

The Economics of Ecology

Dr. Douglas Campbell, Department of Economics, dacampbe@memphis.edu

This course, offered for the first time at the University of Memphis this fall, examines the behavior of the market within the context of the natural world in which it exists. Issues of sustainability and sustainable growth will be discussed, in addition to the valuation of natural capital and resources.

The Economics of Ecology
Economics 3024-001
Fall Semester 2010
Tuesdays and Thursdays
1:00 PM to 2:25 PM
CRN 90837
Prerequisite: Introduction to Microeconomics
(ECON 2120) or equivalent

