

HIGH TIDE HOUSE

Architecture is a functional form of art.
Art contains a conceptual element that can be interpreted in multiple forms.
Art has intentionality and results in a final product that can be understood through different subconscious levels.
Architecture conforms to measurements and standards.
Architecture should contain distinctive elements and have iconic characteristics: it should stand up to the test of time, remaining a good design, despite the passing of years, decades, and centuries.
Architecture contains conceptual levels of design that create a variety of spatial experiences per user.
Architecture, treated as art, integrates concept into form and functional.
Architecture is Art.

1. LEISURE - a comfy space with an abundance of natural light and a beautiful view to the water
2. FOOD PREPARATION - this kitchen may be small but has all the necessities you can ask for within arms reach
3. UTILITIES - every place of living needs utilities so what better way to have it behind a hidden sliding door
4. HYGIENE - the public hygiene space for anyone that comes to visit
5. PLATFORM - this platform deck serves two purposes: a nice outdoor deck but also becoming a pool with a water filtration system fed from the annual floods
6. SLEEP - a simple room with an outstanding view to the water, this space may not seem that furnished but does have a hidden storage space within the headboard of the bed
7. MAIN HYGIENE - this space may throw your senses wild with the gravel flooring and stone path making you feel like you are outdoors
8. STUDIO - this office space offers a practical working environment with an inspiring view to the outdoors
