HARNESSING THE POWER OF TALENT: AFRICAN-AMERICAN MALE STUDENTS

HAAMI members celebrate a successful year at the 2017 Hooks Gala, April 20, 2017.

What better way for the Hooks Institute to celebrate its 20th anniversary than by developing the personal, social and academic skills of African-American men at the University of Memphis (UofM)? While African-American male students are tremendously talented and ambitious, they are among the lowest graduating groups at the UofM. The Hooks African-American Male Initiative (HAAMI) focuses on increasing the retention and graduation rates of African-American males attending the UofM through intensive academic, social and cultural coaching and mentoring.

GROWTH OF THE PROGRAM

Participation in the program is growing by leaps and bounds! Since 2015, the pilot year of HAAMI, enrollment has grown from 10 members to 32 members during the 2016-2017 academic year. For the 2017-2018 academic year, we expect a total of 50 students to enroll in HAAMI!

CELEBRATING HAAMI'S THIRD YEAR!

HAAMI is successful in large part because of the commitment of the HAAMI members to positively shape a future that includes their personal and professional success. Additionally, the Hooks Institute is proud of the collaborations that make HAAMI possible: committed students, community members, businesses, and the staff of the Hooks Institute. Together we can build a strong Memphis and nation by investing in African-American male success!

For more about HAAMI, contact Rorie Trammel at rtrammel@memphis.edu or 901-678-4654, or visit www.memphis.edu/benhooks/haami.

GEARING UP FOR FALL 2017

HOOKS NATIONAL BOOK AWARD WINNER ANNOUNCED! WE ARE AN AFRICAN PEOPLE: INDEPENDENT EDUCATION, BLACK POWER, AND THE RADICAL IMAGINATION | BY RUSSELL RICKFORD

In the midst of the more well-studied educational changes of the school desegregation era, a handful of “Pan African nationalist” independent black schools emerged as an alternative mechanism for African American uplift. We Are An African People: Independent Education, Black Power, and the Radical Imagination by Russell Rickford examines the ideas and motivations behind these autonomous black institutions and places them within a broader discussion about how best to achieve liberation for the next generation of African Americans. Rickford’s work at once expands upon the understanding of a very specific topic within the quest for the intellectual liberation of African Americans and grapples with very broad questions about education, freedom and the diversity of viewpoints during the civil rights era.

“By focusing on schools, Rickford raises questions that continue to have relevance today, given the persistent racial disparities in American education.”

Daniel Kiel (Associate Professor, UofM Law School), Book Award Committee Chair

The Hooks Institute’s National Book Award annually recognizes the publication that best advances our understanding of the American Civil Rights Movement and its legacy.

The 2016 National Book Award presentation, including a lecture by the winning author, Russell Rickford, will be held on Thursday, October 19, 2017, at noon in the University Center River Room (Room 300) at the University of Memphis. This event is free and open to the public.

SPRING 2017 IN REVIEW

2017 ANNUAL JOIN HANDS FOR CHANGE GALA AN EXCITING EVENING IN SUPPORT OF HOOKS PROGRAMS

Momentum is not made through the actions of leaders alone; it requires teamwork and persistence. Speaking with the wisdom of a seasoned civil rights activist, Ambassador Andrew J. Young, a friend and colleague of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., emphasized the importance of working in unity to achieve the dream of an equal world.

“We are always looking for leaders and I think that’s a mistake. We didn’t have a leadership, we had a team... When everybody does what they are supposed to, we can change America.”

Andrew J. Young, 2017 Hooks Gala

On April 20, 2017, Young highlighted the Hooks Institute’s 20th anniversary celebration and gala in support of the outstanding programs of the Institute. Young’s inspiring career leads us to ask ourselves, “What can we do in our lives to move toward an equal and just world?”

Proceeds from the 2017 Hooks Gala help sustain Hooks Institute programs and initiatives.

HOOKS IN THE COMMUNITY

The Hooks Institute is pushing forward our examination of civil rights in the past and present, highlighting important and relevant issues of our time! Our work over the past several months include the following:

COMMUNITY SCREENINGS

Duty of the Hour, a film on the life of civil rights activist Benjamin L. Hooks, produced by the Hooks Institute, was screened to nearly 1000 students at White Station High School, Booker T. Washington High School, and Leoyne Owen College.

HOOKS PAPERS DIGITIZATION WEBSITE

The University Libraries at the University of Memphis and the Hooks Institute completed the digitization of the personal papers of Benjamin L. Hooks. The digitized collection, which spans the tenure of Hooks as Executive Director of the NAACP (1977-1993), is now available for a world audience online at www.memphis.edu/hookspapers.

IDA B. WELLS

The Hooks Institute completed interviews with scholars and others for the Hooks Institute’s upcoming documentary on civil rights and human rights activist Ida B. Wells (1862-1931).

AFRICAN-AMERICAN MALE ACHIEVEMENT

In April 2017, Hooks hosted a free conference for the community, featuring national experts on African American male achievement in education.
