

KING, COMMUNICATION, AND THE LEGACY OF CIVIL RIGHTS

A Symposium

RIVER ROOM • University Center 300 • University of Memphis

WELCOME-9:00AM

Anne Hogan-Dean, College of Communication and Fine Arts, University of Memphis

LECTURE-9:15AM-10:45AM

Women and the Civil Rights Movement

CHAIR

Michael Steudeman-Visiting Assistant Professor, Department of Communication,
University of Memphis

SPEAKER

Rachel Griffin-Assistant Professor, Department of Communication, University of Utah

RESPONDENT

Earnestine Jenkins-Professor, Department of Art, University of Memphis

ROUNDTABLE-11:00AM-12:00PM

Health Equity Research and Health Communication: Contraception and Cancer in Memphis

MODERATOR

Joy Goldsmith-Associate Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

PARTICIPANTS

Owen Phillips-Physician, University of Tennessee Health Science Center

M. Paige Powell-Assistant Professor, School of Public Health, University of Memphis

Marlene Strong-Patient Stakeholder Council Leader,
Patient-Centered Outcomes Research Institute

Amanda J. Young-Associate Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

Y'Esha Williams-Assistant Professor, Loewenberg College of Nursing, University of Memphis

BREAK 12:00-1:00PM

ROUNDTABLE-1:00PM-2:00PM

Sickle Cell Disease in Context: Political, Social, Cultural, and Medical Factors

MODERATOR

Amanda J. Young-Associate Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

King, Communication, & the Legacy of Civil Rights

PARTICIPANTS

ToMecia Conard-Medical Social Worker, Methodist Le Bonheur Sickle Cell Center

Jane S. Hanks- Physician, Methodist Le Bonheur Sickle Cell Center

Michael Jackson-Program Coordinator, Sickle Cell Foundation of Tennessee

Pastor Juveiane Richards, Sickle Cell Disease Patient

Taylor Vick-Student Researcher, University of Memphis

Amber Wilkins, Sickle Cell Disease Patient

LECTURE-2:15PM-3:45PM

Race and the Myth of Liberalism in Higher Education

CHAIR

Christi Moss- Assistant Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

SPEAKER

Ronald L. Jackson II-Professor, Department of Communication, University of Cincinnati

RESPONDENT

Brian Kwoba-Assistant Professor, Department of History, University of Memphis

RECEPTION-5:30-6:00PM

KEYNOTE-6:00PM

WELCOME

Antonio de Velasco-Associate Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

INTRODUCTION

Andre E. Johnson-Assistant Professor, Department of Communication, University of Memphis

SPEAKER

Tami Sawyer – "When the Eraser Breaks: Southern White Male Politicians and Their Attempts to Silence the Voices of Black Civil Rights Leaders"

Hosted by the Department of Communication, with generous support from the Departments of Anthropology, Art, English, History, Journalism and Strategic Media, Political Science, and Sociology. For more information, contact Tony de Velasco, Associate Professor of Communication at 901.678.3185 or antonio.de.velasco@memphis.edu

Department of Communication