ABSTRACT:

The information security workforce shortfall is widening. In a recent 2015 survey by Frost & Sullivan, in partnership with Booze | Allen | Hamilton suggests that 62% of the survey respondents stated that their organizations have too few information security professionals. However, companies are willing to hire and spend the money to get good candidates but they just can't find them. I will review the findings of this survey and how to prepare for a career in this field.
