ENG 75/8590-001: Appl/Theory Linguistics
Professional Development Seminar
This course is a professional development seminar designed for Applied Linguistics. Professional development is an important component of success for graduate students choosing applied linguistics as their profession. In addition to academic preparation, students need to be equipped to become competent professionals who can navigate a competitive job market. The topics in this course will help graduate students strengthen the professional development component of their programs. Specific focus will be on professionalization in the field through work with journals, professional organizations, professional presentations, etc.