

Spring 2020
Lakeitha Wilson
ENGL 2202

In this course we will examine literary works written by writers of African descent, including poetry, prose, and drama. The course is designed to encourage critical thinking skills and composition skills. As such, students will be expected to write a number of formal and informal assignments. As a class we will explore the cultural, historical, and political realities of African Americans in the United States. Please be aware that this is a reading and writing intensive course.