

ENGL 7/8806: Research Methods in Writing

Dr. Katie Fredlund

This course introduces you to interdisciplinary approaches to qualitative and quantitative research methods for composition and technical communication. Students will gain a theoretical and practical understanding of engaging with and conducting primary research in the discipline; understand the differences between methodologies and how they allow you to answer different questions; analyze and design research studies; and understand the relationship between methods and methodologies.