ENGL 7602
Dr. Jared Lemus
Wednesdays 5:30-8:30pm

Fiction Workshop

A writing-intensive graduate workshop in fiction, in which students' original fiction is the primary focus. Students will conduct a close study of a wide range of short stories with an emphasis on technical problems i.e. not "What does this piece of writing mean" but rather, "How does this piece of writing work to convey its meaning?" This class will allow students to compose and discus original work and give them the opportunity to revise their work in preparation for publication in literary journals, anthologies, and single-author collections.