

FINANCE MAJOR

Business Finance Concentration

WHAT YOU CAN DO WITH IT

Whether working in private industry, government, or for non-profit organizations, you can:

- Develop and monitor operating budgets and financial control systems
- Conduct financial analysis to aid in corporate control, advise investors, and design optimal investment portfolios
- Design and promote financial products for use by industry, banks, and other financial institutions
- Analyze the profitability of alternative investment options and make recommendation of likely investment outcomes

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

A wide range of opportunities exists for financial analysts, budget analysts, loan officers, stockbrokers, portfolio managers, investment brokers and other financial advisors. According to U.S. government sources, employment in many finance areas are expected to grow faster than average in the future.

SCHOLARSHIPS and INTERNSHIPS

Many scholarship opportunities are available for qualified students majoring in finance with a concentration in business finance. Internships are available in industrial corporations, banks, thrift institutions and securities firms.
