

FINANCE MAJOR

Banking and Financial Services Concentration

FIR 1220 - Personal Financial Management is recommended for all finance majors during the Freshman year.

WHAT YOU CAN DO WITH IT

Whether working in private industry, government, or for non-profit organizations, you can:

- Become a Vice President of Commercial Lending serving the financing needs of business, which may lead to being a Bank President
- Manage savings institutions, credit unions and finance companies
- Conduct securities analysis, manage mutual funds, advise investors, and design optimal investment portfolios
- Design and promote financial products for insurance companies, banks, securities firms and other financial institutions
- Analyze the profitability of alternative investment options and make recommendation of likely investment outcomes

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

This concentration will provide students with basic problem-solving and analytical tools necessary to be successful in banking, savings institutions, credit unions, securities firms and investment banks, mutual funds management, managing insurance services firms and finance companies. Banking and Financial services is a rigorous and highly respected field of study that prepares students for career options including VP of Commercial Lending, Bank Manager, Investment Banker, Financial Analyst, Securities Trader, Portfolio Manager, Bank Regulator and Financial Executive. Future employment opportunities in financial services areas are expected to grow at a faster than average rate for business professionals.

SCHOLARSHIPS and INTERNSHIPS

Many scholarship opportunities are available for qualified students majoring in finance with a concentration in banking and financial services. Paid student internships with banks and financial services institutions are strongly encouraged and are an integral part of the concentration.
