Step 1

Visit the Agile Academy Page (found here) and find the class you wish to register for.

The screenshot shows the FedEx Institute of Technology website. The header features the FedEx Institute of Technology logo and the name 'FedEx Institute of Technology'. A navigation menu includes links for About, Research, Events, Training, OTT, News, and Contact Us. A sidebar menu under 'Trainings' lists various programs, with 'Agile Academy' expanded to show sub-options: About, Agile Project Management, Agile Release Management, Agile in Software Testing, Agile Executive Leadership, Student Bootcamps, Memphis Innovation Bootcamp, and R Immersion Workshop. The main content area for 'Agile Academy' includes a breadcrumb trail (Home > FedEx Institute > Trainings > About), the title 'Agile Academy', and two paragraphs of text. The first paragraph describes the academy's development in 2017 to assist with the FedEx Agile Transformation. The second paragraph mentions a planned transformation in 2018 into a larger training initiative. A 'Community Partners' link is visible at the bottom left of the page.

Agile Academy

The Agile Academy was developed in 2017 to provide assistance with the FedEx Agile Transformation. Working closely with the Scaled Agile Transformation Office (SATO) and FedEx IT Training and Education, a roster of classes designed to compliment the ongoing transformation of Agile was implemented. The classes, developed to answer questions of continuing education in Agile, addresses specific needs in the transformation for active participants.

In 2018 the Agile Academy will transform into a larger training initiative designed to help FedEx meet training requirements across all of FedEx's technical tenets. Including classes on cloud native, devsecops, and many others, the FedEx Institute of Technology is helping to make technology innovation happen across the FedEx organization.
