COURSE REQUIREMENTS

CATALOGUE/COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Introduction to basics of using social media in strategic ways as a reporter and/or a public relations or advertising professional; many changes in the media landscape and skills needed in today's media careers will be discussed.

COURSE ORGANIZATION

This course will introduce you to the basics of using social media in strategic ways as reporter and/or as a public relations or advertising professional. It will help you develop an understanding of the many changes rocking the media landscape and build the skills you will need in today's media careers.

Social media is altering how journalists and persuasive communication professionals do their jobs and how we communicate in a Web 2.0 world. We will be using blogs, Facebook, Foursquare, RSS feeds, Twitter, widgets, mapping, and many other Web 2.0 tools to produce and curate content and interact with other professionals in our field.

It's important to note that particular sites like Twitter or Foursquare may come and go in this fast-changing environment. Ultimately, this course hopes to foster the ability to apply the core values of journalistic practice to new media forms in productive, creative, and intelligent ways. Flexibility and the ability to experiment and think critically will perhaps be among the most vital abilities of the new era.

PREREQUISITE:

None

TEXTBOOKS:

Shirky, Clay. Here Comes Everybody: The Power of Organizing Without Organizations (2008).

Halverson, Kristina. Content Strategy for the Web (Second Edition)

A variety of additional articles will be assigned and will be available online, distributed to you via email or will be available using the UM drive. The UM drive is accessible from MyMemphis under the eCampus Resources tab (on the top left).

I know books are expensive. Feel free to buy used or pick up an electronic copy for whatever device works for you.

While not required, it's recommended that you have (or have regular access to) some sort of mobile device (smart phone, tablet, iPhone, Android). You're also going to need reliable Internet access. These sorts of things can get expensive, and I respect your financial situation. However, this is web-based class, and learning to publish from (and for) these devices is a part of our class and a part of your future.

In order to get the most out of this class and prepare for your future career, it's important to be a digital native, constantly reading, interacting, playing and creating online. It's nearly impossible to learn online news values and produce quality online content without consuming it. Consider the time you spend online (even scrolling through Facebook) an investment in your future.

CLASSROOM FORMAT:

Lecture/Lab

COURSE POLICIES

Reading / Participation

Be sure that you've read all assigned material and are prepared to discuss it before you come to class. You will be asked to comment on the readings and to discuss your thoughts about them in class.

In addition to reading the assigned materials, please get in the habit of paying attention to developments in social media, technology and news. You may be called on to share something interesting that you've seen in your independent reading. In addition to being involved on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram and other social networks, I suggest reading Mashable, TechCrunch, ValleyWag, the Pastry Box Project and keeping up with local and national news.

Assignments

You will have a variety of assignments throughout the semester, most of which will involve you using or discussing social and digital media. All assignments are to be turned in to me via email - NO PAPER. Please use relevant subject lines, as I get a ton of mail.

Late Work

Journalism is a deadline business, so this class is, too. Assignments are due by 11:59 p.m. on their due date. Anything received more than 24 hours after deadline will not be accepted unless you've made prior arrangements with me.

Communication

Get in the habit of checking your email, Facebook and Twitter at least once per day. I will use them frequently to communicate with you, and you'll need them to communicate with each other.

Attendance Policy

As Woody Allen said, "Eighty percent of life is showing up." It's not that much of your overall grade in this class, but I do have an attendance policy. Because this class only meets once a week, it's important that you show up. I understand that life stuff happens. That's why you get one free pass on missing class, no questions asked. If you need to miss more than once, you must let me know via email, IM, phone call, text, semaphore, Twitter, etc. by 2 p.m. on Wednesday. For every class you miss without letting me know first, two points will be deducted from your final grade.

GRADING:

Assignments (many of varying size): 60 percent

Final project: 20 percent

Reading and Participation: 20 percent

TENTATIVE TIMETABLE:Week 1: Introduction to the Course / Overview of Digital Media Changing Journalism, PR and Communication

- Explanation of the course and syllabus
- Why social media matters
- What happens when everyone is a content producer
- How digital media has changed journalism
- Two-way communication and best practices

Assignments

- Join class Facebook group, introduce yourself to the class [Details TBA]
- If you are not already on Twitter (or would rather set up a separate account for this class), create an account. Send me your account via email or @reply.
- Choose a topic of focus (or, what reporters might consider a beat) for this class. You'll be creating content around this beat for the duration of the semester, so it's important to choose wisely. Pick something you're interested in or passionate about, either personally or professionally. It could be music, TV, local politics, national politics, an industry or cause you're interested in. Consider your future goals, but be sure that your topic is something you actually care about because you'll be spending a lot of time with it and be expected to engage with others online about this topic. Narrowing your focus is critical.
- Write a short description of your beat and email it to me.

Week 2: Blogging

- Basics of blogging and blogging platforms (Wordpress, Blogger, Tumblr)
- Why journalists and PR professionals blog
- Choosing a niche and other blogging best practices
- Blogs vs. Journalism (and the reasons that argument is outdated)
- Is blogging social?

Reading

Shirkey, chapters 1-3

The Twisted Psychology of Bloggers vs. Journalists

<http://pressthink.org/2011/03/the-psychology-of-bloggers-vs-journalists-my-talk-at-south-by-southwest/>

Assignments

- Finish setting up your blog (theme, RSS, social integration, etc.)
- Set up an RSS reader (Feedly) and subscribe to 10 sites relevant to your beat or this class.
- Make a list of at least five content ideas for your blog. Think about questions you want to answer, your opinions, current topics related to your area. The ideas can be for content in any format (text, videos, interviews, photos, etc.) They don't have to be refined or perfect - just make a list of initial content ideas. Email them to me.

- Develop a list of at LEAST two to three other blogs/websites that meaningfully address your topic of interest. Summarize and evaluate some of the key features of each blog or site using bullet points. Answer all of the following questions: What kind of problem do these websites/blogs help solve for their audience and/or what needs do they fulfill? What do they do well? What could they improve? Can you identify any gaps in their content or features that a competitor could fill, and how is what you could offer different or better? Look at their comments or interaction via social media: Are they cultivating an active community around their site? Post this assignment to your site and send me a link via email or Twitter.

Week 3: Microblogging (Twitter) and Facebook

Note that there is a high likelihood that I will be out of town this week on business. The class will be taught via YouTube video / Google Broadcast. Be sure to pay attention - Details TBA.

- The basics of Twitter and Facebook and Best Practices
- Talking to Strangers 101: How to be Human on the Internet
- The relationship between breaking news and social media
- Using Twitter and Facebook for Reporting
- Telling a story with Twitter

Assignments

- Create a few lists on Twitter of relevant accounts for your beat, your personal life or your interests. Find new people to follow related to your beat, and send at least two tweets interacting with them. Email me / tweet me the links to these tweets.
- Blog Post: make a list of AT LEAST four twitter accounts related to your beat. List and link to their account name, and give a brief summary that answers the following questions for each: Who are they and what do they do that makes them relevant to your beat? What sorts of content do they post? What is it about? Post this list to Twitter and email a link to me.

Week 4: Grow It, Use It, Shake It Off: Community Management, Crowdsourcing and Haters on Social Media

- Growing community through the social web
- Engagement is the core of social media, and it's critical to your work as a journalist or with a brand. How do you create engagement?
- Making the most of the communities you build and participate in
- Community Moderation, wikis and chats
- Crowdsourcing for journalists
- Three kinds of haters and what to do about them

Reading

7 Tips for Building a Social Media Audience - <http://mashable.com/2013/12/24/grow-social-audience/>

Assignments

- Blog post: Find an article or blog post related to your beat that allows comments. Give a brief summary of the post, then analyze the comments. What are people saying about the topic? What are the most meaningful comments? How is the discussion on the comments furthering (or not furthering) the topic?
- Comment on at least three articles or social media posts related to your beat. Try to provide meaningful insight and contribute to the conversation. Try to encourage engagement with other commenters.
- Create a moderation policy for your social media, taking into account the following questions: When should a comment be deleted? What are the rules of your community? What sort of discussion do you want to encourage and discourage? Add it to the about section of your blog.

Week 5: Content and Context: Basic Content Strategy, Curation and Linking

- The basics of content strategy
- What is content curation, and why does it matter?
- Who are the gatekeepers now and do they matter?
- The importance of linking
- Finding and creating relevant content
- Voice: Why is it important? How should you talk to your users? How do you create voice in your writing, posting and social media?

Reading

Halverson, Chapters 1-3

Tone and Voice: Showing Your Users That You Care - <http://uxmag.com/articles/tone-and-voice-showing-your-users-that-you-care>

Not exactly a reading, but something I want you to check out:

<http://voiceandtone.com>

Assignment

- Think about your site's voice, tone and content strategy. Do you have a defined voice? If not, start considering what changes you could implement to further define your voice.
- Blog post: Create a piece of content (any type) relevant to your users. Focus on your user - consider who they are, what they care about and think about the meeting point of the things you care about and the things they care about. Use at least one link to another relevant source. Tag it, send it out over social media and email it to me.

Week 6: Social Photography and Video

- Basics of social photography and video (Instagram, YouTube, Vimeo, SnapChat, Vine, etc.)
- Using social photo and video for journalism and PR
- Basics of taking quality photos and video
- What happens when everyone is a photographer?

Reading

14 Instagram Photojournalists Who Will Open Your Eyes to the World - <http://mashable.com/2013/12/26/instagram-photojournalism/>

Assignment

- Blog post: Create 5-10 QUALITY photos related to your beat or topic. Know that you'll have to take more than that in order to get 10. Post at least one to your blog with captions and share them via at least one social network that we've talked about with proper hashtags.
- Create a video related to your beat or topic. Upload it to YouTube, Vimeo or a social video site (we'll discuss) with proper captions and tags. You can create it using iMovie (or something like it), Instagram, Vine or another video app. Embed it to your blog and send it out over your social networks. You'll be competing with the class to see who's video gets the most views, so make sure it's good.

Week 7: Location-Based Social Media and Social Review Sites

- Uses for location-based social media (FourSquare, etc.)
- Social Review sites and why they matter
- Mobile apps and the future of journalism. How does mobile change what we do? How does mobile change how people consume content?

Reading

Assignments

- Blog post: Create a data set, infographic or map related to your beat and post it to your blog. Give it context with a meaningful headline and text.

Assignments

- Post a review to Yelp and email me a link.
- Use FourSquare check in at at least three locations this week. Comment on the location (Details TBA).
- Blog post: What impact does location have on your chosen beat? Write a post about your topic and location. Does it matter where you are? (More details TBA)

Week 9: Showing Value: Social Metrics and Analytics

- The importance of showing value through metrics and analytics
- Learn Basic SEO
- Understand metrics, how to find them and how to improve them
- Understanding social influencers and their importance

For Reference:

How to Get Started on Google Analytics - <http://mashable.com/2011/05/23/how-to-use-google-analytics/>

Assignment

- Make a specific list or spreadsheet of the metrics you want to track for the rest of the semester. Include details of how you're going to track them.
- Answer the following questions: What insights are you hoping to derive from your metrics? What do you want to know about your users? What's your initial hypothesis on what types of content or engagement you think will work or not work towards growing your metrics?
- Implement a metrics system on your site and social networks. We'll talk about how to do this in class and which services are free. Do this now - you'll need it for your next assignment and for your final project.

Week 10: Going Viral and Social Sharing

- The basics of viral content
- Can you make content go viral?
- Pinterest (and other social sharing sites)
- Where is your information coming from? The ways social sharing can limit experiences.

How to Make That One Thing Go Viral (Just Kidding) - <http://www.upworthy.com/how-to-make-that-one-thing-go-viral-just-kidding>

Assignment

- Try to make something go viral. Create a new piece of content related to your beat (it can be any type of content). Attempt to make it go viral. Track the number of shares, retweets, views, or comments it gets using the metrics systems you set up last week.
- Blog Post: Reflect on your experience with viral content. Did it work? What did you do to try to make your content go viral, and what (if anything) should you have done differently? Consider viral content you've seen recently. What about it made you want to click, share or like? Why?
- Share at least one piece of content (not yours) via Facebook and Twitter. Be sure to link to the original source, but give it context. Tell people why they should look at it.

Week 11: Social Media Demographics and Research

- How to use social media for research and reporting
- Demographics across social media platforms
- Who uses social media? Why? How does that affect our strategies?
- User interviews - how to do them, how to understand them and the reasons you need them.

Assignment

- Blog Post: Your choice. Must be relevant to your beat.
- Conduct an interview with one of your users / community members about your work (refer to the question list we'll make in together in class).
- Examine the demographics of your readership / followers / community that you've created based on your metrics and your user interview. Who are your users? What do they care about? What can you tell about them from the way they interact with your content? Are they the people you were hoping to target? Email your reflections to me.

Week 12: Everything is Public: Social Media and Your Personal and Professional Brand

- How do brands use social media? What are best practices?
- Building a personal brand on social media
- Professionalism and social media

Assignments

- Create a LinkedIn profile and connect it to your blog. If you already have a LinkedIn profile, enhance it.
- Write a brief essay answering the following questions: What are you doing to establish your personal brand online? What could you be doing better? What do you plan to do in the future? What strategies will you employ to do so?
- Blog post: Your choice. Must be beat relevant.

Week 13: Privacy, Longevity and Other Very Real Concerns

- Social media and the right to privacy. Should we be worried?
- The lasting effects of social networks, or, what happens to your Facebook when you die?
 - What affects do social networks have on our real lives and relationships?
 - How is social media shaping our society? How is it changing what we share and what we choose to keep private? Should we be concerned?
 - Who controls privacy? How does this affect our work?

- Demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy fairness and diversity.
- Think critically, creatively and independently.
- Write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the communications professions, audiences and purposes they serve.
- Critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy, fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness.
- Apply tools and technologies appropriate for the communications professions in which they work.

Performance Standards To Be Met (Demonstrable Skills, Abilities, Techniques, Applied Competencies):

- Students will learn about the many ways the use and presentation of images and information are shifting in the new media landscape, and how these changes affect journalism, public relations, advertising, and society as a whole.
- Students will develop the ability to use numerous tools and technologies that have become vital to journalism, public relations and advertising

- Students will hone their written and visual communication skills through content production in multiple media.
- Students will learn how to apply their existing knowledge of best practices and core values of journalism, public relations, and advertising to new contexts.
- Students will learn about the ethical implications of social network use, such as the concerns surrounding privacy.

HOW ASSESSMENT OF STUDENT LEARNING WILL BE MET FOR SOCIAL MEDIA AND MASS COMMUNICATION:

- Students will read and critically reflect, both orally and in writing, on a number of contemporary texts that explore how social networking is changing the use and presentation of images and information.
- Students will complete numerous assignments that will require them to master the basics of how to use social networking tools and to improve their written and visual skills to create content for these sites.
- Students will interact with other journalism students, professors, and professionals all over the United States and even the world to enhance their understanding of the collaborative power of social media.
- Students will complete a final project that allows them to apply and advance the skills they learned in the course.

PROFESSIONAL VALUES AND COMPETENCIES FOR JOURNALISM PROGRAM:

The Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communication requires that, irrespective of their particular specialization, all graduates should be aware of certain core values and competencies and be to:

- understand and apply the principles and laws of freedom of speech and press, for the country in which the institution that invites ACEJMC is located, as well as receive instruction in and understand the range of systems of freedom of expression around the world, including the right to dissent, to monitor and criticize power, and to assemble and petition for redress of grievances;
- demonstrate an understanding of the history and role of professionals and institutions in shaping communications;
- demonstrate an understanding of gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation and, as appropriate, other forms of diversity in domestic society in relation to mass communications.
- demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of peoples and cultures and of the significance and impact of mass communications in a global society.
- understand concepts and apply theories in the use and presentation of images and information;
- demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy, fairness and diversity;
- think critically, creatively and independently;
- conduct research and evaluate information by methods appropriate to the communications professions in which they work;
- write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the communications professions, audiences and purposes they serve;
- critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy and fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness;
- apply basic numerical and statistical concepts;

- apply tools and technologies appropriate for the communications professions in which they work.

ASSESSMENT OF STUDENT LEARNING FOR JOURNALISM PROGRAM:

The Council seeks to promote student learning and encourages experimentation and innovation.

Assessment is a system of evaluation of student learning at the course or unit level (as opposed to grading at the individual level). Three criteria should guide assessment of student learning:

- Awareness: familiarity with specific information, including facts, concepts, theories, laws and regulations, processes and effects.
- Understanding: assimilation and comprehension of information, concepts, theories and ideas.
- Application: competence in relating and applying skills, information, concepts, theories and ideas to the accomplishment of tasks.

DEPARTMENT POLICIES

EMAIL:

You must have your UM email account activated. If you are using another provider such as Google, you are required to have your UM email forwarded to that account. Go to the <http://iam.memphis.edu> website to implement forwarding of UM email. You are required to check your email daily. You are responsible for complying with any email sent to you by your professor or the University.

CELLPHONES:

You must turn them off during class.

ATTENDANCE:

Class attendance is mandatory in the Department of Journalism. You may be assigned a failing grade for the semester for nonattendance, or habitual late arrival. No late work will be accepted without prior arrangements, which are acceptable to your professor. Students may not be permitted to make up any missing work unless it is for an absence due to illness or other catastrophic emergency such as a death in the family that can be documented (e.g. with a doctor's note or a copy of the newspaper obituary). This is a professional program for journalists who are expected to understand and comply with deadlines. If you have some problem making it to class on time make arrangements to fix the problem or consider taking another class. You should consider this class your "job" in the educational process and be on time just as you would elsewhere.

CHEATING:

In addition to university-wide policies stated in the Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities, the Department of Journalism considers making up quotes from sources, turning in substantially the same assignment for credit in two different courses, or a student receiving any assistance from others for work assigned to be done on his/her own, as acts of cheating punishable to the degree determined appropriate by the course instructor and department chair. That may include grade reductions or seeking dismissal of the student from the university.

"Your written work may be submitted to Turnitin.com, or a similar electronic detection method, for an evaluation of the originality of your ideas and proper use and attribution of sources. As part of this process, you may be required to submit electronic as well as hard copies of your written work, or be given other instructions to follow. By taking this course, you agree that all assignments may undergo this review process and that the assignment may be included as a source document in Turnitin.com's restricted access database solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism in such documents. Any assignment not submitted according to the procedures given by the instructor may be penalized or may not be accepted at all." (Office of Legal Counsel, October 17, 2005)

ONLINE SETEs:

You are urged to complete the SETEs evaluation of this course. Once your instructor has posted your grade, you can immediately see that grade, provided you completed a teacher evaluation for that class. How to access your evaluation forms: Log in using your UUID and email password; click on the gray "Student" tab; complete an evaluation for each course listed and hit the "Submit" button at the bottom of the form. It will only take a few minutes of your time. We take the evaluations very seriously and use them to improve courses and instructional quality. Your feedback is essential and will be appreciated.

DISABILITY:

Any student who feels s/he may need an accommodation based on the impact of a disability should contact the Office for Disability Services at (901) 678-2880 in 110 Wilder Tower Hall to coordinate reasonable accommodations for students with documented disabilities.
