Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

THE FRAGILE FORTRESS

The University of Memphis Law Review Symposium Friday April 7, 2017

Judicial Independence in the 21st Century

Voices from the Bench, Academy and Bar

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2017 INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY SYMPOSIUM

Uncertain Care: The Future of the Affordable Care Act. Click here to read more.

News

COLD CASE: JUSTICE FOR ELBERT WILLIAMS, PRESENTED BY JIM EMISON

On Tuesday, March 21, at noon in Wade Auditorium, Jim Emison, a renowned and award winning courtroom lawyer of 43 years, will present, "Cold Case: Justice for Elbert Williams." Lunch will be provided for attendees. The program is sponsored by the Memphis Law Office of Diversity and the Black Law Students Association. Click here to read more.

MEMPHIS LAW LAUNCHES STRATEGIC CODE ENFORCEMENT ACADEMY

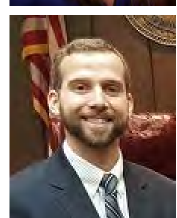
Memphis Law, in collaboration and partnership with Neighborhood Preservation, Inc. and support from The Kresge Foundation, will launch the new Strategic Code Enforcement Academy in May. The new program will examine ways to streamline the process of cleaning up vacant and blighted properties. Click here to read more.

UNCERTAIN CARE: THE FUTURE OF THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

The 2017 Institute for Health Law & Policy Symposium will strive to give an overview of the accomplishments and challenges of the Affordable Care Act, an update on its status and a brief summary of "repeal and replace" options. A number of local and national experts will discuss what "repeal and replace" means locally and what leaders from various key perspectives consider critical elements to any efforts to amend or replace the current law.

PROFESSOR KATE SCHAFFZIN SELECTED TO SERVE ON UOM BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Memphis Law professor Katharine Traylor Schaffzin has been selected by the University of Memphis Faculty Senate to serve as the faculty representative on the inaugural Board of Trustees for the University of Memphis. Professor Schaffzin will serve as a Trustee for a two-year term. Please click here to read more.



ADVANCED MOOT COURT PROBLEM WINS NATIONAL AWARD

Last year's Memphis Law Advanced Moot Court problem won the inaugural Judith S. Kaye Writing Competition, a competition hosted by New York University School of Law to select the best student-written moot court problem in the country. Click here to read more about the problem itself, written by William Cranford, as well as the award.

ELDER LAW CLINIC HIGHLIGHTED IN PERSPECTIVE MAGAZINE

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Elder Law Clinic, led by Professor Donna Harkness, is highlighted in the new issue of Perspective magazine, a publication of the Young Lawyers Section of the NY State Bar Association. Memphis Law and Elder Law Clinic alum Adam Cooper co-authored the article, which details his experience in the Memphis Law Elder Law Clinic, alongside the experiences of other law students from various other law schools. To read the complete article, please click here.

VIRTUAL TOUR OF MEMPHIS LAW

Introducing a new way to experience Memphis Law. Take a virtual tour of our historic home and see for yourself why we were recognized as having the "Best Law School Facilities" in the nation by preLaw magazine. CLICK HERE TO TAKE THE FULL VIRTUAL TOUR.

MEMPHIS LAW - BEST VALUE LAW SCHOOL

Memphis Law is proud to once again be recognized as a Best Value Law School by preLaw Magazine. Click here to read more about the reasons that our law school is consistently recognized as one of the best values in legal education.

MEMPHIS LAW NAMED AS BEST FACILITY

PreLaw magazine and National Jurist have named Memphis Law as having the best law school facilities in the nation! Click here to read the full digital edition!

READ MORE NEWS>>

Events

UP TO DATE INFORMATION ON EVENTS

For a full roundup of all upcoming law school events and activities, please visit our informal events blog, On Legal Grounds for the most up-to-date information.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

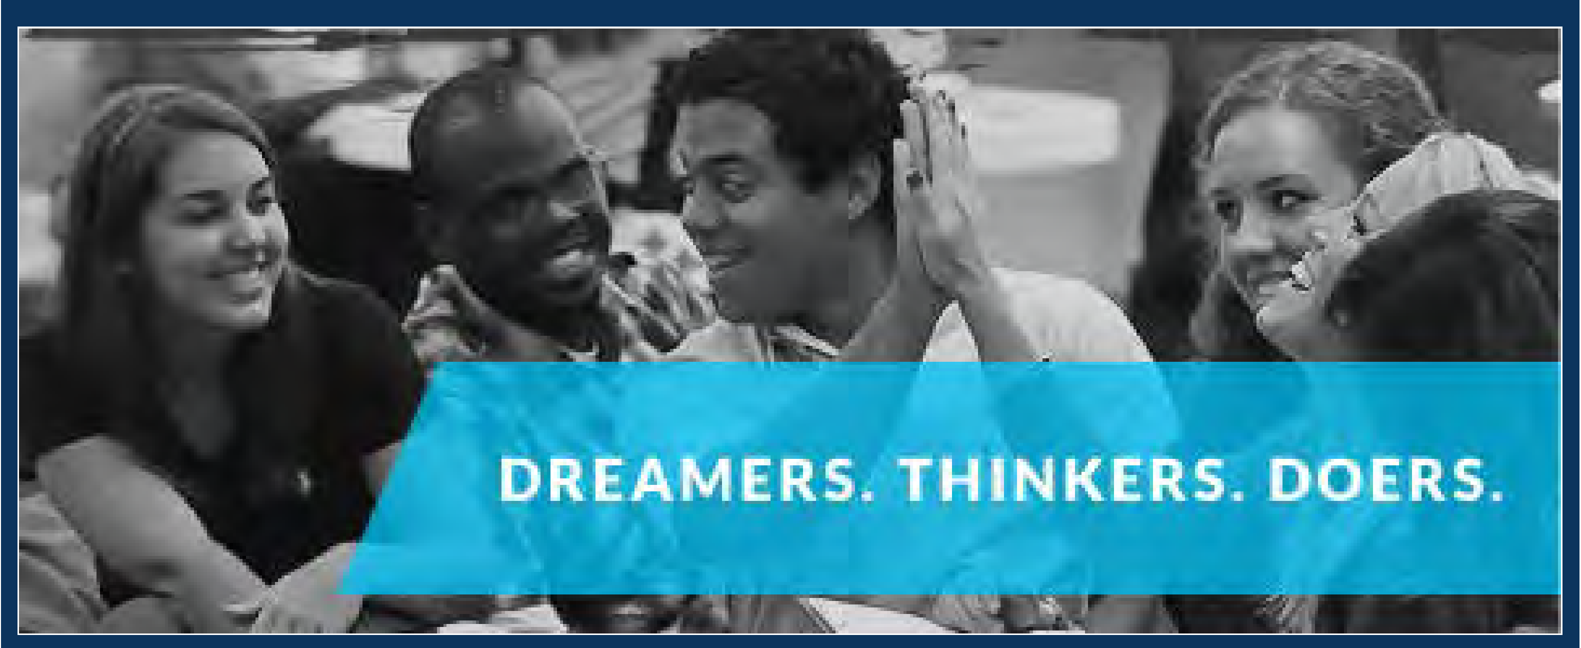
Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

EVENT CALENDARS

ON LEGAL GROUNDS

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice | Last Updated: 3/14/17

University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

About

Memphis Law has the #1 ranked facility in the nation.

It makes it easier to be inspired when you are surrounded by the finest technology and facilities in the entire U.S. legal education system*. Located in downtown Memphis, the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is simply jaw dropping. But it's the education and rich experiences you will receive here that will transform you. Being located in the nation's 20th largest city puts us in a position of influence. As the only law school in Memphis and one of the largest in Tennessee, Memphis Law gives students unparalleled opportunities for success. Memphis is home to several major corporate world headquarters, three Fortune 500 companies, a dynamic healthcare community including 25 hospitals and one of the world's leading healthcare research facilities, and an extensive and diverse legal community, including some of nation's and region's most prominent law firms.

Memphis Law's location will impact the education and experience you receive during your three years here; in turn, that education and experience will help you succeed wherever you go after law school. Memphis makes the difference. Memphis Law is an exceptional HOME and LOCATION, DEDICATED to student-focused, experiential learning. We're ENGAGED with the community and offer you a tradition of SUCCESS.

PreLaw*, 2014

Accreditations and Memberships

The University of Memphis is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges to award bachelor's, first professional, master's, educational specialist's, and doctoral degrees. Contact the Commission on Colleges at 1866 Southern Lane, Decatur, Georgia 30033-4097 or call 404-679-4500 for questions about the accreditation of the University of Memphis.

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is accredited by the American Bar Association (ABA) and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS). The ABA may be contacted at: Council of the Section of Legal Education and Admission to the Bar, 321 N. Clark Street, Chicago, IL 60654-7598, telephone 312.988.6738. The AALS may be contacted at 1614 20th Street, NW; Washington, DC 20009, telephone 202.296.8851; http://www.aals.org/.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

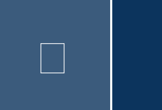
Alumni & Support

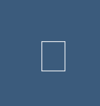
ABA Required Disclosures

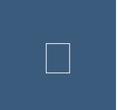
Full sitemap

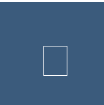
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

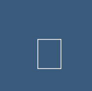
Follow UofM Online

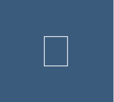












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

Admissions

Admissions

Take a fresh look at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and discover what continues to drive us forward. Whether it's our location, faculty, diversity, success, great value or ability to make a difference in Memphis, we are delighted to share with you all that Memphis Law has to offer.

Memphis is a city known for doing things its own way and at Memphis Law, we're driven to do the same. We look at legal education differently to help you learn, grow and find success in your chosen field. Please scroll below to learn a bit more or reach out to our admissions team if you have any questions.

Your Admissions Team:

Sue Ann McClellan, Assistant Dean for Law Admissions, Recruiting, & Scholarships, Phone: (901) 678-5403, Office: Law 253
Kara Phillips, Assistant Director for Law Admissions; Phone (901) 678-5403; Office: Law 252
Jacqueline O'Bryant, Law School Diversity Coordinator, Phone: (901) 678-2078,
Penny Rogers, Administrative Assistant, Law Admissions, Phone: (901) 678-5403, Office: Law 252

Contact our Office of Admissions for more information, take a look at our official Viewbook, or Apply Today if you're ready to join the Memphis Law community!

- PreLaw magazine named Memphis Law as having the best law school facility in the nation! Click here to read more.
- Memphis Law's downtown location puts us within walking distance from state and federal courts, numerous government offices and law firms.
- Memphis Law hosts an average of 68 conferences, professional networking receptions, and continuing legal education seminars every year in our building.
- Our location in the heart of downtown and the legal community allows us to develop unique and innovative partnerships throughout a variety of sectors and industries.

- Memphis is the sixth most affordable city in America, according to Forbes.
- The city has a cost of living that is 14% below the national average.
- Memphis was named the "Next Hot Southern City" by Travel & Leisure Magazine.
- The Wall Street Journal named Memphis as a Top 4 Market for Millenials with the right Live/Work/Play environment.

- Our curriculum is designed to serve both the student who has an interest or passion for a particular speciality, as well as the student who is seeking a more general legal education.
- 100% of our academic certificates incorporate hands-on learning through externships and legal clinics.
- Our small, first-year sections have just 60 students in each section.
- We have a 12:1 Faculty to Student ratio.
- 100+ law students were placed in a legal externship in Memphis last year.

- Memphis Law graduates have exceeded the Tennessee state bar passage rate for more than 15 consecutive years.
- On average, 86% of our graduates are employed within just ten months of graduation.
- There are Memphis Law alumni practicing in 48 states across the nation.

- Memphis Law students completed 10,182 pro bono service hours last year.
- Over 750 cases involving blighted buildings in Memphis were handled by students in our Neighborhood Preservation Clinic last year.
- Our Medical-Legal Partnership (MLP) Clinic handled over 40 cases last year in all five of the IHELP areas identified by the National Center for Medical Legal Partnership.
- Law students in our Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program (VITA) filed over 70 federal tax returns last year.
- Over 150 clients were helped in 2016 by students taking part in Memphis Law's Alternative Spring Break Program.

- Our 330+ students come from 86 different undergraduate institutions across the nation.
- Memphis Law was named a Top 5 Best Regional Law School for Black Students by Lawyers of Color Magazine.
- Our Tennessee Institute for Pre-Law (TIP) Program is a unique admissions by performance program for Tennessee and border county residents from diverse backgrounds and circumstances.

- Memphis Law is proud to once again be recognized as a Best Value Law School by preLaw Magazine. Click here to read more about the reasons that our law school is consistently recognized as one of the best values in legal education.
- We are the Most Affordable law school in Tennessee.
- Memphis Law is the 10th Least Expensive law school in all 50 states for non-residents.

Important Links

- Guide to Applying
- Apply Now
- 2016 Viewbook
- Request a Viewbook

Important Contacts

- Sue Ann McClellan, Assistant Dean for Law Admissions, Recruiting, & Scholarships, Phone: (901) 678-5403, Office: Law 253
- Kara Phillips, Assistant Director for Law Admissions; Phone (901) 678-5403; Office: Law 252
- Jacqueline O'Bryant, Law School Diversity Coordinator, Phone: (901) 678-2078,
- Penny Rogers, Administrative Assistant, Law Admissions, Phone: (901) 678-5403, Office: Law 252

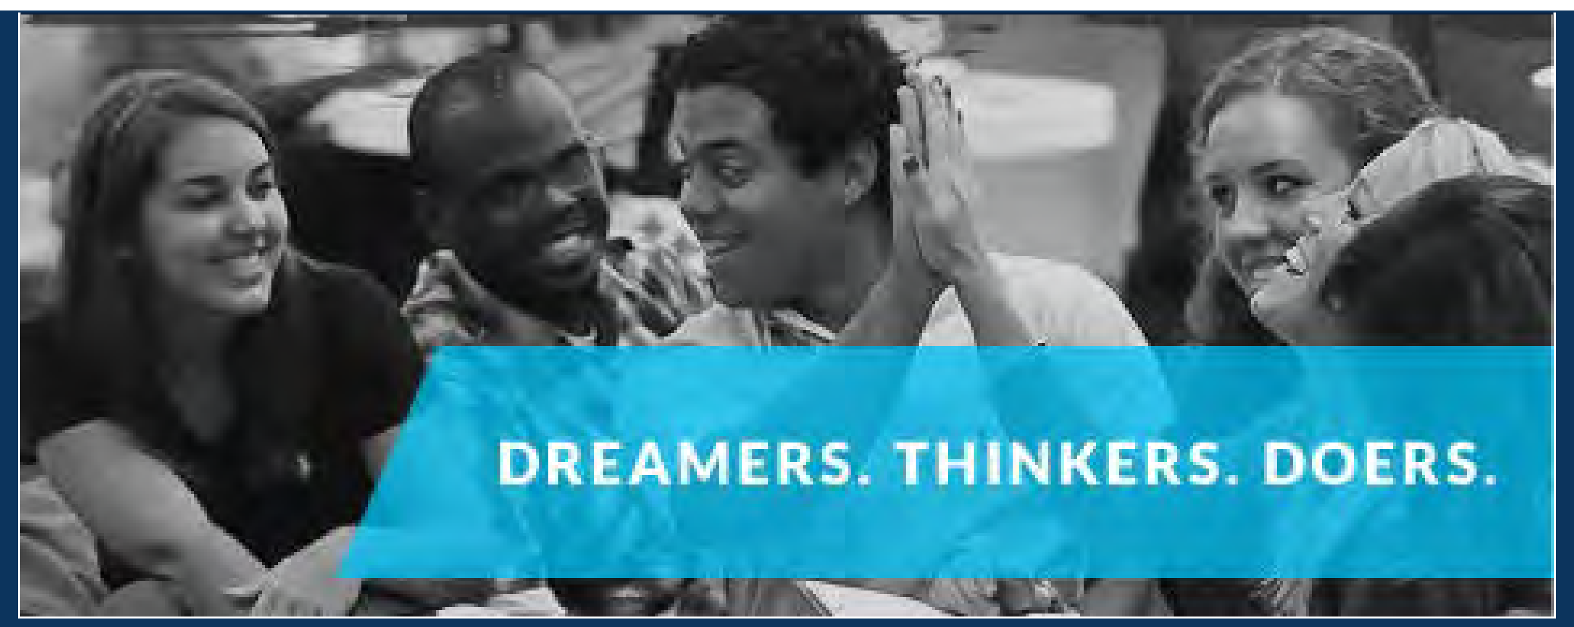
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/1/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

Academic Programs

We invite our students to take advantage of the various classroom, mentoring, programmatic, co-curricular, externship and clinical opportunities available to all Memphis Law students.

This section contains everything you'll need to know about our various degree programs, professional certificate programs, co-curricular opportunities, advocacy program, centers and institutes, as well as legal clinics and experiential learning programs.

Please see below for more information on all of these academic programs and opportunities.

- Degree Programs
- Certificate Programs
- Experiential Learning
- Academic Journals
- Advocacy Programs
- Institute for Health Law & Policy
- Legal Writing
- International Law Programs

Important Contacts

- Steve Mulroy, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs; smulroy@memphis.edu; Office: Law 269; Phone: (901) 678-4494
- Meredith Aden, Assistant Dean for Law Student Affairs; maden@memphis.edu; Office: Law 258; Phone: (901) 678-2528
- Jamie Johnson, Registrar; jmagdvtz@memphis.edu; Office: Law 264; Phone: (901) 678-2660

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

Welcome to the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Current Students webpage. This portion of the site is dedicated to providing you with information that will enrich your experience at the Law School and facilitate the practical aspects of receiving an education here.

Within this site, you can find information on the following:

Registrar

- Course and Class Information
- Course Catalog
- Academic Curriculum
- Registration
- Calendars
- Special Degree Programs
- Certificate Programs
- Records Requests
- Graduation Requirements
- Academic Regulations
- Student Advising
- Bar Exam Information

Student Affairs

- Academic Success Program
- Bar Exam Information

Bookstore
- Commencement
- Counseling Services
- Information Technology
- Law School ID Cards
- Locker Rentals
- Orientation
- Parking
- TN Lawyers Assistance Program
- Study Abroad
- Student Advising

Student Organizations

Academic Regulations

Financial Information

Honor Council

Pro Bono

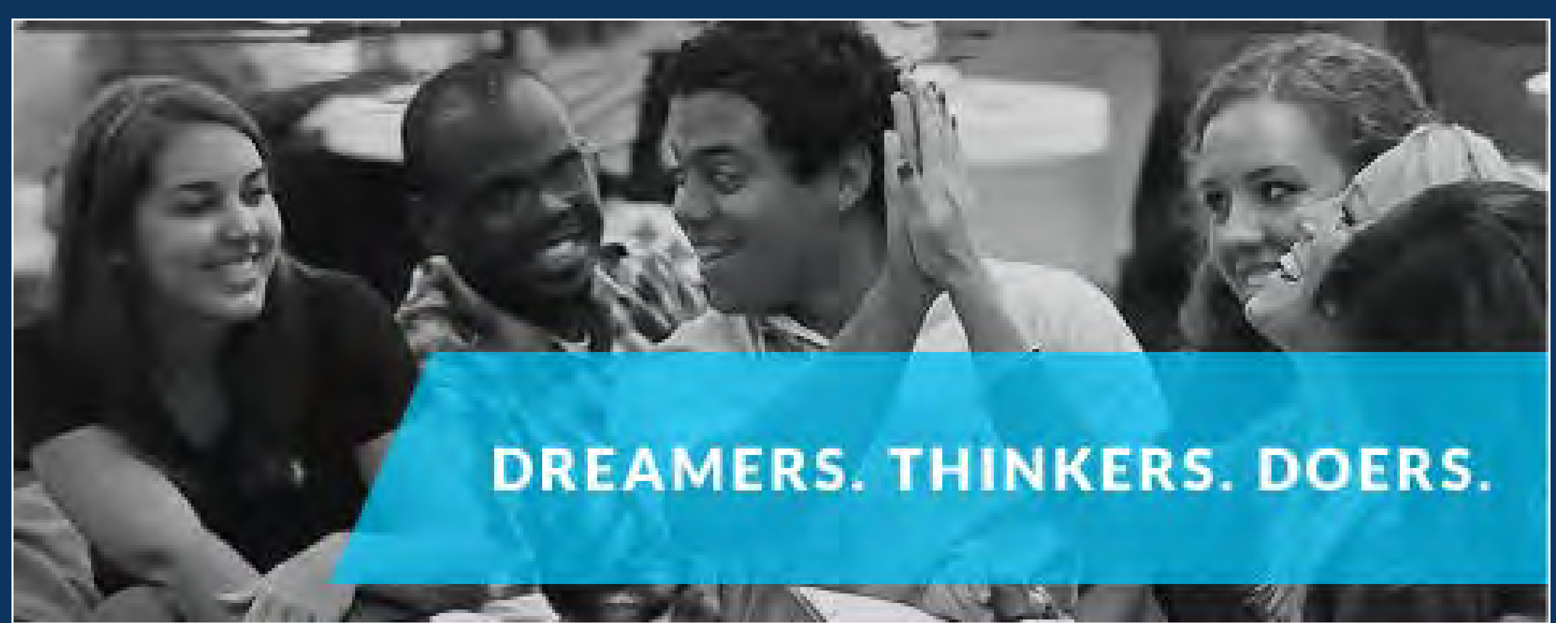
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/1/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Faculty

Alena M. Allen
Associate Professor of Law
amallen5@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3227
Office: Law 368

Lynda Wray Black
Assistant Professor of Law
L.Black@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3225
Office: Law 371

Jeremy Bock
Assistant Professor of Law
jwbock@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-5070
Office: Law 378

Ralph C. Brashier
Cecil C. Humphreys Professor of Law rbrashir@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3235
Office: Law 361

Amy Campbell
Associate Professor of Law
Director, Health Law Institute
tcmpbll3@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3231
Office: Law 362

Demetria Frank
Assistant Professor of Law
djcksn24@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-4948
Office: Law 364

Donna S. Harkness
CELA, Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Elder Law Clinic
dharknss@memphis.edu

Lee Harris
FedEx Professor of Law
laharris@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-1393
Office: Law 360

Lisa M. Geis
Visiting Assistant Professor of Law; Director, Children's Defense Clinic
lgeis@memphis.edu

Phone: (901) 678-3226
Office: Legal Clinic

Janet Goode
Visiting Assistant Professor of Law; Director, Memphis CHiLD Medical Legal Partnership jgoode1@memphis.edu
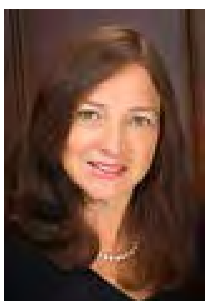
Phone: (901) 678-4589
Office: Legal Clinic



D.R. Jones
Associate Dean for Information Resources, Law Library Director, and Associate Professor of Law drjones@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3244
Office: Law 220/369

Daniel Kiel
Associate Professor of Law
dkiel@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-1672
Office: Law 346

William Kratzke
Cecil C. Humphreys Professor of Law
wkratzke@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3221
Office: Law 380

Barbara Kritchevsky
Director of Advocacy and Cecil C. Humphreys Professor of Law bkrtchvs@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3239
Office: Law 377

Peter Letsou

Dean and Professor of Law
pvletsou@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-2421
Office: Law 276

Ernest F. Lidge, III
Professor of Law
elidge@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3234
Office: Law 379

Boris Mamlyuk
Assistant Professor of Law
bmamlyuk@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-2202
Office: Law 374

Andrew J. McClurg
Professor of Law, Herff Chair of Excellence in Law
amcclurg@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-1624
Office: Law 372

Steven J. Mulroy
Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Professor of Law smulroy@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-4494
Office: Law 269

John Newman
Assistant Professor of Law
jmnwman1@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3224
Office: Law 351

David S. Romantz
Associate Professor of Law
dromantz@memphis.edu

Phone: (901) 678-3232
Office: Law 369

Daniel Schaffzin
Director of Experiential Learning and
Assistant Professor of Law
dschffzn@memphis.edu

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin
Professor of Law
ktschffz@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-1623
Office: Law 367

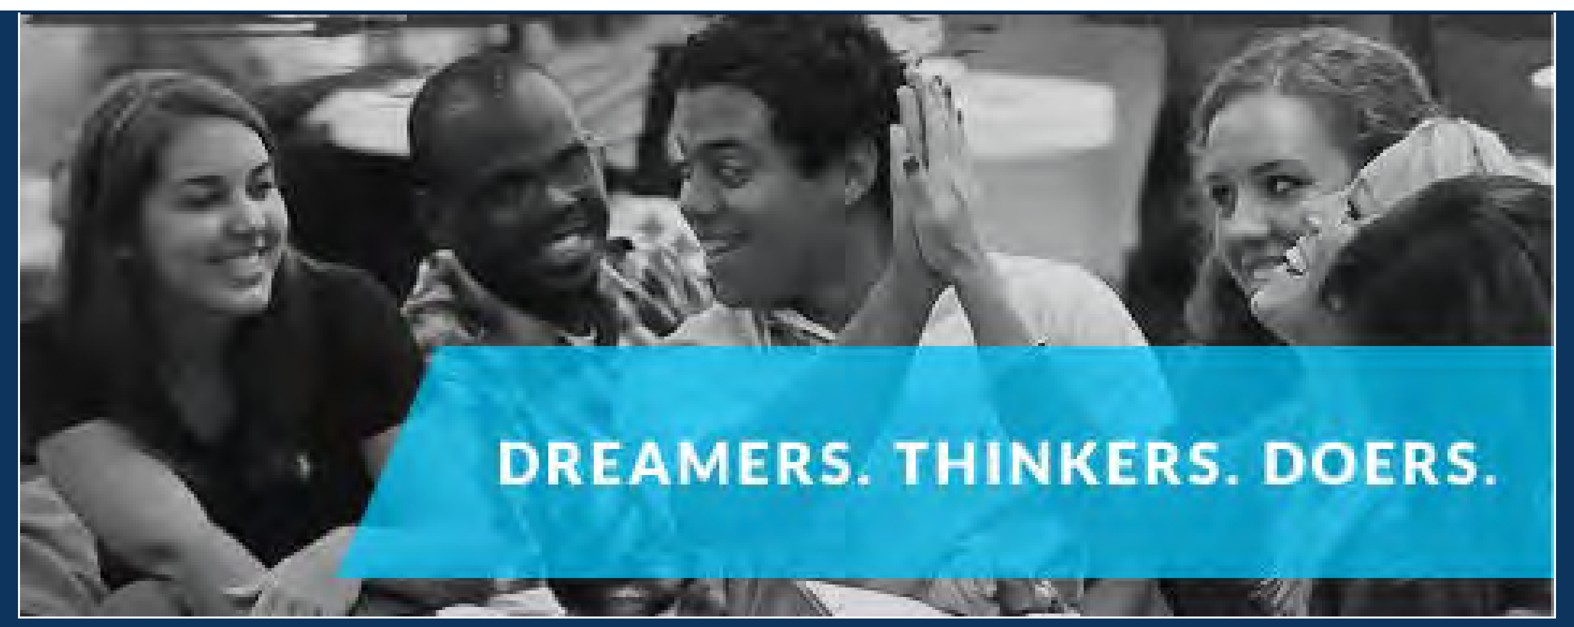
Eugene L. Shapiro
Professor of Law
eshapiro@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3233
Office: Law 366

Kevin H. Smith
Thomas B. Preston Professor of Law
ksmith@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-3648
Office: Law 370

Jodi L. Wilson
Director of Legal Methods and Associate Professor of Law
jlwlson2@memphis.edu
Phone: (901) 678-5730
Office: Law 349

Christina A. Zawisza
Professor of Clinical Law and Director,
Child and Family Litigation Clinic

czawisza@memphis.edu



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

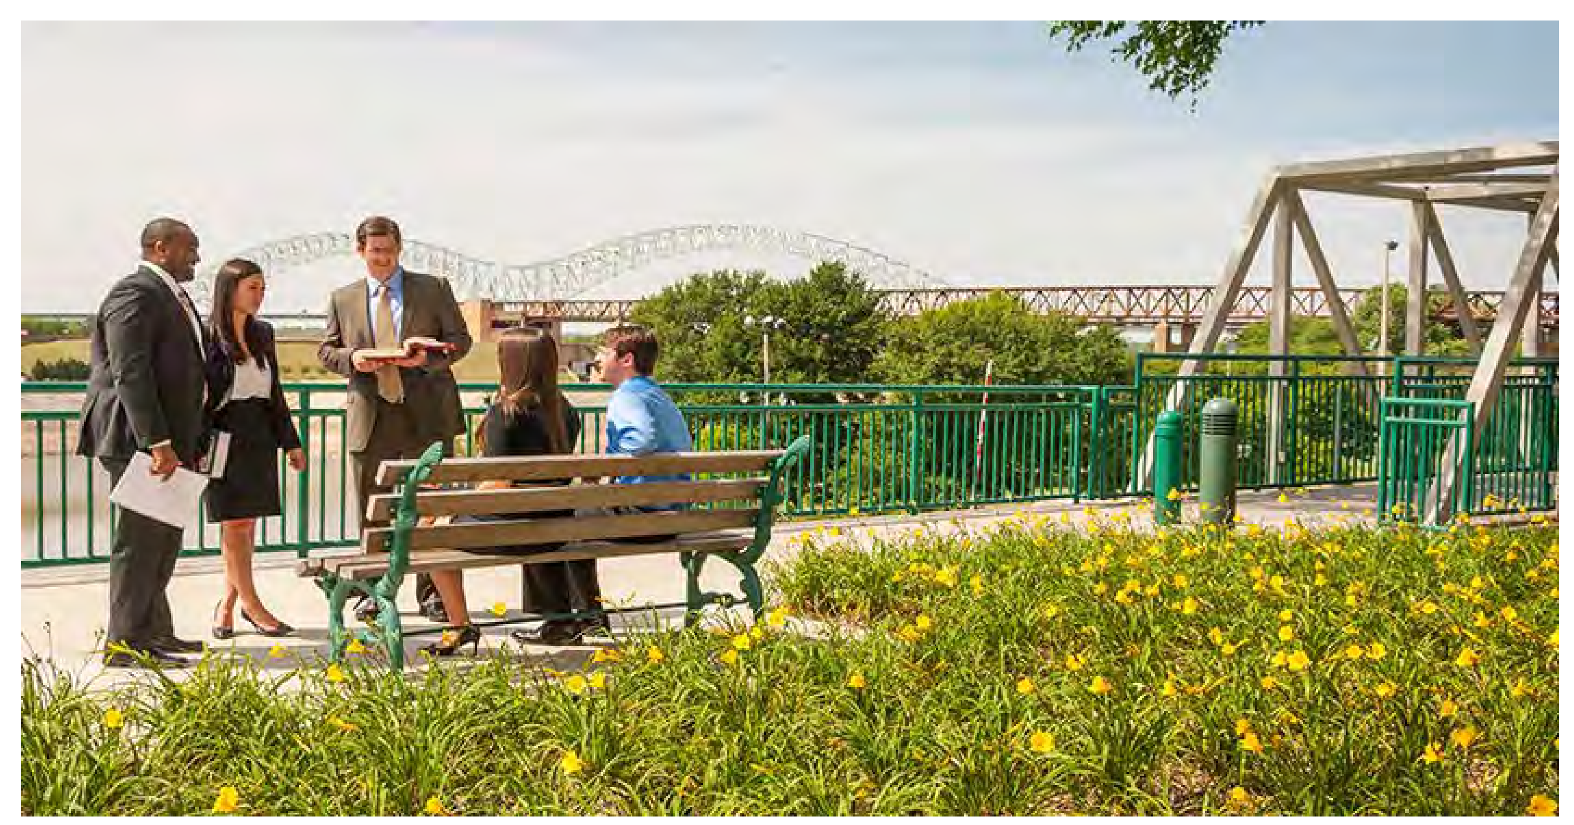
Last Updated: 10/10/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Career Services



Career Services Office

The Career Services Office (CSO) is committed to assisting students and graduates of Memphis Law with job search and professional development needs.

Our staff strives to maximize employment by marketing to employers and promoting placement opportunities. Our office does not guarantee jobs or placement services, but works with students and alumni to ensure that they possess the skills necessary to conduct a successful job search at any point in their career.

ABA Employment Summaries

- Class of 2013
- Class of 2014
- Class of 2015

NALP Reports

- Class of 2010
- Class of 2011
- Class of 2012
- Class of 2013

- Class of 2014
- Class of 2015

Information regarding race, gender, and ethnicity has been redacted from the above NALP reports.

Career Services Office
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front Street, Room 236
Memphis, TN 38103
Telephone: (901) 678-3217
Fax: (901) 678-4107
E-mail: lawcareerservices@memphis.edu
Office Hours: Monday – Friday, 8:30 a.m. – 5 p.m.

It is the policy of the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law that no citizen of the United States or any other person within the jurisdiction thereof shall, on the grounds of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class, be excluded from participation in or be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity of the University. Employers who advertise positions through the Career Services Office or participate in CSO recruitment programs must read the non-discrimination policy and undertake to observe it.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

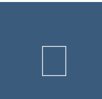
Alumni & Support

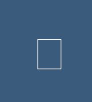
ABA Required Disclosures

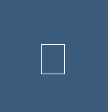
Full sitemap

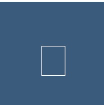
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

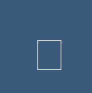
Follow UofM Online

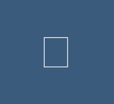












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/10/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Library

Law Library

QUICKSEARCH

Search for books, articles, media, and more:

Advanced QuickSearch | Classic Catalog | Research Guides | WorldCat | ILLiad

JOURNAL TITLES

DATABASES

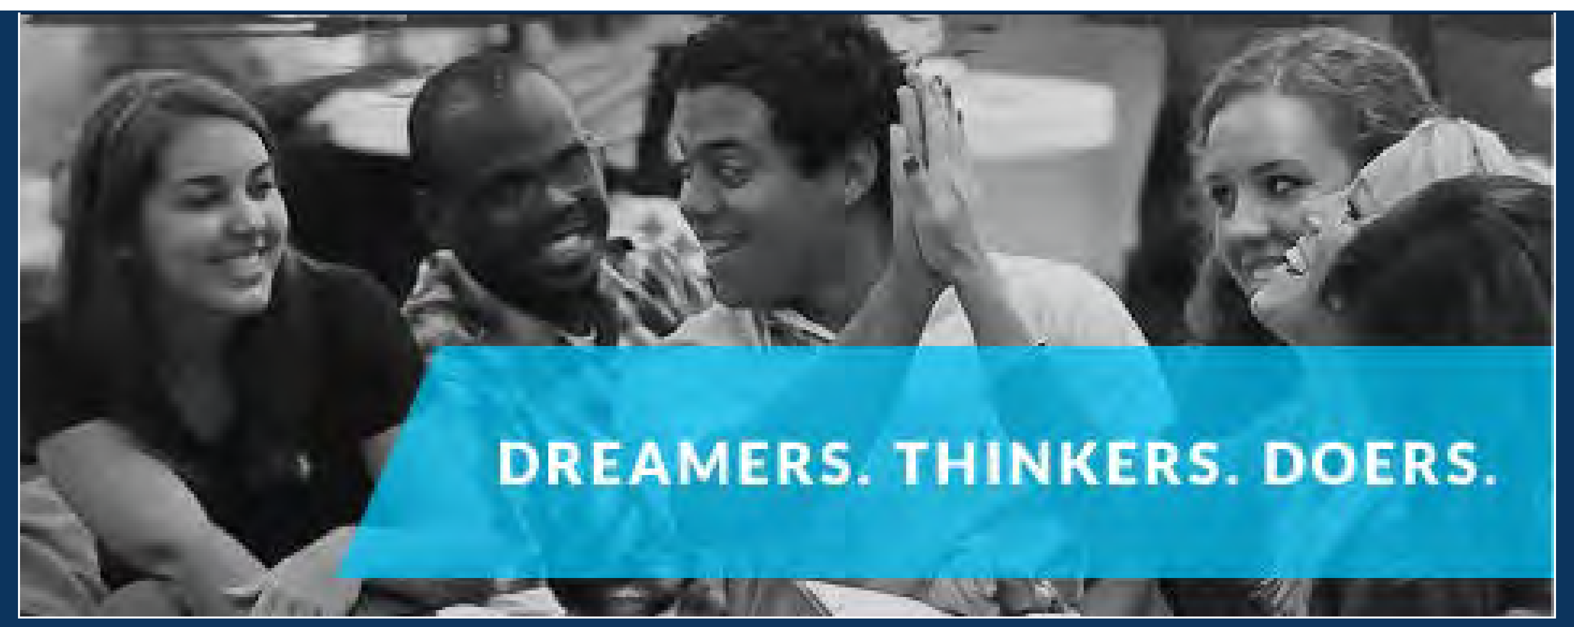
Welcome to the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Library!

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Law Library
1 North Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103-2189
Telephone: (901) 678-2426 Fax: (901) 678-5293
Email: lawcirc@memphis.edu

Hours: Monday - Friday, 7:30 a.m. - 6 p.m. (Faculty, staff, and students have 24/7 access.)

Library Spotlights

The Law Library is a selective depository library. Documents can be found in our catalog. Please ask for assistance with documents at the Circulation and Reference Desk. The McWherter Library on the main campus of the University of Memphis is a regional depository; the government publications department is Uncle Sam.



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/5/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY SYMPOSIUM

The University of Memphis
Institute for Health Law & Policy
4th Annual Symposium

UNCERTAIN CARE:
THE FUTURE OF THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

Our new administration seeks substantial changes to the nation's healthcare system, but what will that change ultimately look like?

This symposium will strive to give an overview of the accomplishments and challenges of the Affordable Care Act, an update on its status, and a brief summary of "repeal and replace" options. A number of local and national experts will discuss what the push to "repeal and replace" means for our local community, and what leaders from various key perspectives consider critical elements to any efforts to amend or replace current law.

Join us as we seek to move from a reactive posture to proactively crafting an agenda for reform that seeks to ensure continued access to affordable, quality care in our community.

Friday, March 31, 2017
9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Wade Auditorium
1 North Front Street, Memphis, Tennessee 38103

CLE Credit Requested.
Registration information to follow.

More information about the Symposium and how to register will be available soon, so please check back.

Spring 2016 Symposium

- An ACE in the Hand of Policy Reform; Loading the Deck for a Trauma-informed Juvenile Justice System
- Featuring presentations by:
    - KEYNOTE SPEAKER: Mark Soler, Executive Director, Center for Children's Law and Policy, Washington, D.C.
    - Stephen Bush, Shelby County Public Defender
    - Chris Peck, State Coordinator, Tennessee ACE Project
    - The Hon. Dan Michael, Chief Shelby County Juvenile Court Magistrate
    - Sen. Mark Norris, State of Tennessee Senate Majority Leader
    - Altha J. Stewart, MD, Director, Center for Health in Justice Involved Youth, University of Tennessee Health Science Center, College of Medicine

Spring 2015 Symposium

- Building Blocks for a Healthier Community
- Featuring presentations by:
    - Sharon Z. Roerty, MCRP - Senior Program Officer, Robert Wood Johnson Foundation
    - Marice Ashe, JD, MPH - Founder and CEO of ChangeLab Solutions
    - Elizabeth Tobin-Taylor, JD, MA - Assistant professor of family medicine, Alpert Medical School and Assistant Professor of health services, policy and practice, Brown University School of Public Health
- To see a video of the entire symposium, visit our YouTube page by clicking here.

Spring 2014 Symposium

- Race, Research, and Rights: The Legacy of the Tuskegee Syphilis Studies
- Special guests – Fred Gray And James Jones
- The Spring 2014 Health Law Symposium featured events at the newly re-opened National Civil Rights Museum, as well as a day-long symposium featuring presentations and panels from leading experts on the Tuskegee studies and topics ranging from public health to medical ethics.

- To see photos from the event, click here.
- To view a comprehensive video playlist of the day's activities, visit our YouTube page HERE.

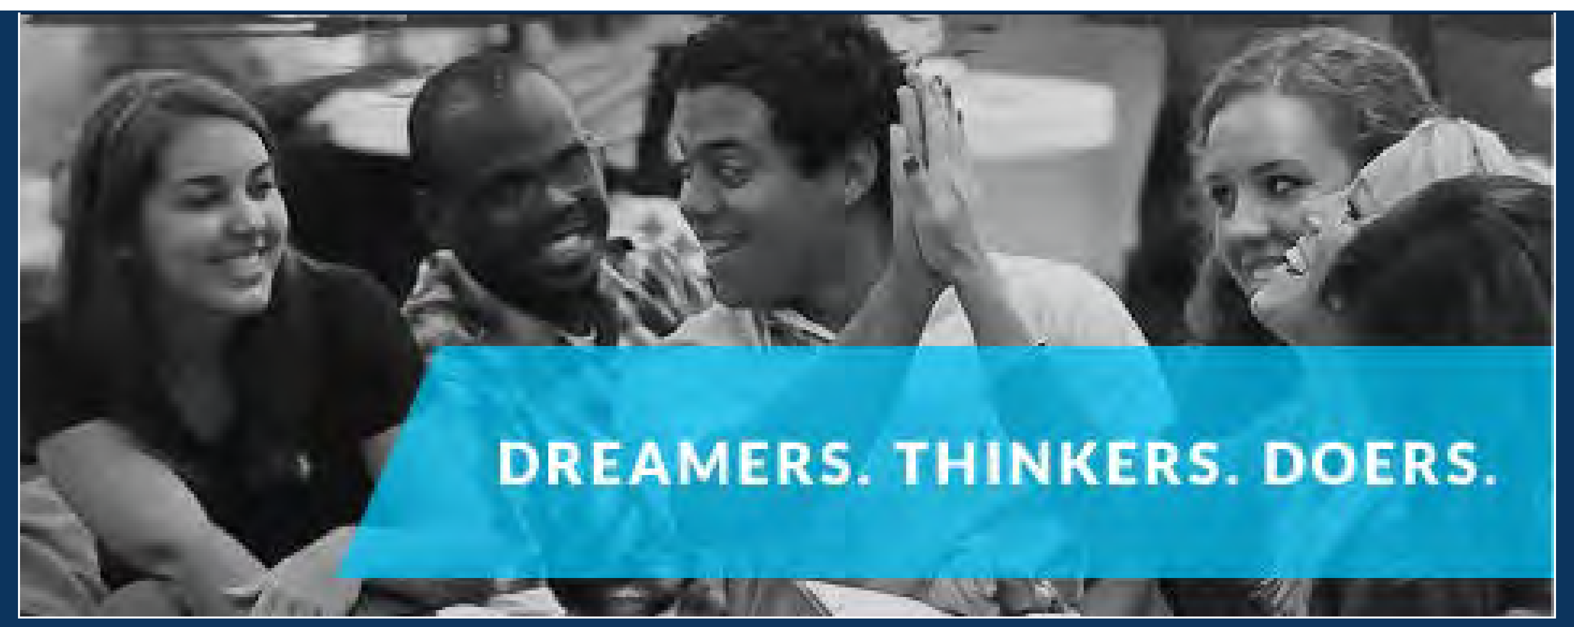
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/1/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LATEST NEWS*

BLSA UNITY IN DIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIP BANQUET

The Black Law Students Association hosted the inaugural Unity in Diversity Scholarship Banquet on Thursday, Feb. 23 at The Guest House at Graceland, with keynote speaker, Robert Grey, the former ABA president and current president of the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity. The event raised over $100,000 for diversity scholarships at the University of Memphis School of Law.

ASST. DEAN MULROY'S RESEARCH CITED IN DOJ REPORT

Associate Dean Steve Mulroy's article "Hold" On: The Remarkably Resilient, Constitutionally Dubious 48-Hour Hold was recently cited in a Department of Justice Civil Rights Division report. His focus on the issue of "48 hour holds" was the main focus of the investigation and the main basis for finding a pattern and practice of discrimination. To read the full DOJ report, please click here.

PROFESSOR CHRISTINA ZAWISZA NAMED MEMPHIS ATTORNEY FOR JUSTICE

Professor Chris Zawisza was recognized as a Memphis Attorney for Justice by Tennessee Supreme Court Justices Jeffrey S. Bivins and Holly Kirby at the Memphis Bar Association Annual Meeting on Dec. 8, 2016. The recognition is awarded to all attorneys who have given 50 or more hours of pro bono service each year.

JACQUELINE O'BRYANT RECEIVES BEN F. JONES PRESIDENT'S AWARD

Jacqueline O'Bryant, law school diversity coordinator at the University of Memphis School of Law, has been named as the honored recipient of the National Bar Association, Ben F. Jones Chapter, President's Award. This award was presented at the Ben F. Jones Chapter 2016 Barrister's Ball, which also marked the 50th anniversary of the Ben F. Jones chapter.

PROFESSOR DANIEL SCHAFFZIN - AALS CLINICAL SECTION EXEC. COMMITTEE

Professor Daniel Schaffzin was recently nominated to the executive committee of the American Association of Law School's section for Clinical Legal Education for 2017. Schaffzin currently chairs the clinical section's Externship Committee through May 2017 and has previously served on the Planning Committee for the 2016 AALS Annual Conference on Clinical Legal Education, the Awards Committee and the Teaching Innovations Committee.

IHELP POLICY LAB: ACE INITIATIVE LAUNCHED

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is proud to announce the launch of the Institute for Health Law and Policy ("iHeLP") Policy Lab: ACE Initiative, thanks to generous support from the ACE Awareness Foundation. Please click here for more information about the policy lab and it's work with the ACE Awareness Foundation and their collaboration.

MEMPHIS LAW HOSTS IMPLICIT BIAS CONFERENCE

Memphis Law recently hosted the conference, Implicit (Unconscious) Bias: A New Look at an Old Problem, on Friday, Nov. 18. For more information and a rundown of the full program, please click here.

JOHN NEWMAN ON CNBC CLOSING BELL

Professor John Newman appeared on the CNBC show "Closing Bell" to discuss the transparency issues surrounding Facebook and Google as it pertains to advertisers. Click here to watch the debate.

U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR SIXTH CIRCUIT VISITS MEMPHIS LAW

The United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit conducted oral arguments in our Historic Courtroom in November. The panel, consisting of Judge Merritt, Judge Siler, and Memphis Law alum Judge Bernice Donald heard oral arguments in Andrew Thomas, Jr. v. Bruce Westbrooks, on Wednesday, November 2nd. This was a rare event for the Sixth Circuit and marks the first time the Court has visited Memphis Law to hear an argument.

LISA GEIS HIRED TO LEAD NEW CHILDREN'S DEFENSE PROGRAM

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is proud to announce our most recent addition to our faculty, Professor Lisa Geis, who will lead our new Children's Defense Program. Please click here to read more about Professor Geis.

PILLARS OF EXCELLENCE AWARDS DINNER

The Memphis Law Alumni Chapter honored Justice Holly Kirby and other Memphis legal community pillars at the annual Pillars of Excellence Awards Dinner. Please click here to read more about the event and the night's honorees.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE DEBATE

The Federalist Society Student Chapter & Memphis Lawyers Chapter recently hosted a debate and discussion on the Electoral College featuring John L. Ryder (General Counsel to the Republican National Committee, Litigation Counsel) and Hon. Robert E. Cooper, Jr. (former Counsel to democratic Gov. Phil Bredesen and the 26th Attorney General and Reporter of Tennessee), for a discussion and debate on whether the Electoral College has a place in contemporary society. Click here for a recap.

PROF. DANNY SCHAFFZIN HAS SCHOLARSHIP CITED IN WASHINGTON POST

A recent Washington Post piece cited Professor Danny Schaffzin's article, "Warning! Attorney Advertising May Be Hazardous to Your Health," (8 CHARLESTON L. REV. 319 (Winter 2013- 14) (by invitation), reprinted in 63 DEFENSE L. J. 3 (2014)). The op-ed piece, written by the President of the U.S. Chamber Institute for Legal Reform and entitled "How lawyers scare people out of taking their meds," can be found by clicking here.

HOUSING ADJUDICATION CLINIC NAHRO AWARD

As a result of its partnership with Memphis Law's Housing Adjudication Clinic, the Memphis Area Housing Authority will receive a Merit Award from the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials (NAHRO) industry organization for the Housing Choice Voucher program enhancements that the clinic helped to establish and implement.

PROF. MCCLURG AUTHORS NEW CASEBOOK

Professor and Herff Chair of Excellence Andrew McClurg has co-authored with Professor Brannon Denning (Cumberland School of Law, Samford University) a new casebook, Guns and the Law: Cases, Problems, and Explanation (Carolina Academic Press 2016). Click here to read more about this exciting new book.

PROF. D.R. JONES APPOINTED TO DALIC COMMITTEE

Professor D.R. Jones was appointed to serve on the American Association of Law Libraries' Digital Access to Legal Information Committee (DALIC), a national committee. She previously served as chair of the DALIC State Online Legal Information sub-committee.

JUSTICE HOLLY KIRBY HONORED AT PILLARS OF EXCELLENCE DINNER

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter honored Tennessee Supreme Court Justice Holly Kirby (BSME '79, JD '82) as Special Distinguished Alumna at the 2016 Pillars of Excellence Awards Dinner recently. Please click here to read more.

ARTICLE BY PROF. STEVE MULROY CITED IN SCOTUS CASE WRIT

In a recent petition for writ of certiorari filed with the United States Supreme Court, a Tennessee defendant represented by Kirkland & Ellis, has presented a direct challenge to the Memphis Police Department's once-pervasive "48-hour hold" policy. The defendant's cert. petition draws heavily on legal scholarship published by Daniel Horwitz and by University of Memphis Law Professor Steven Mulroy in 2015 and 2013, respectively. To read more, please click here.

PROF D.R. JONES RECENT NEWS ITEMS

Prof. Jones presented a paper topic, "Edicts of Government: Copyright and State Laws" at the 2016 Works-Progress Intellectual Property Colloquium (WIPIP) held at the University of Washington School of Law and at the 2016 Intellectual Propery Scholars Conference (IPSC) held at Stanford University School of Law. Prof. Jones also was an invited participant in the 2016 Privacy Law Scholars' Conference held at George Washington University School of Law.

Finally, Prof. Jones was named to the Board of Directors and serves as the Secretary of the Mid-America Library Consortium (MALLCO). This consortium promotes and encourages cooperative endeavors among its 27 member academic law libraries from 13 states.

BRITTANY WILLIAMS NAMED NEIGHBORHOOD PRESERVATION FELLOW

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and the City of Memphis have hired Brittnay Williams as the first "City of Memphis Neighborhood Preservation Fellow." Please click here to read more about Brittany, as well as the Neighborhood Preservation Fellowship.

PROFESSOR AMY CAMPBELL ON THE CHANGING HEALTHCARE INDUSTRY

Professor Amy Campbell, director of the University of Memphis Institute for Health Law & Policy, recently spoke on a Table of Experts panel about the changing landscape of the healthcare industry and how to navigate those changes and challenges in healthcare. To read more, please click here for the full article and discussion.

UOFM RECEIVES URBAN CHILD INSTITUTE GRANT TO HELP VULNERABLE CHILDREN

The Urban Child Institute has awarded the UofM a $2 million grant to support the ACE (Adverse Childhood Experiences) Prevention Project. The initiative will involve, among other areas, several Medical/Legal ACE Initiatives, including the Memphis CHiLD Clinic (Children's Health Law Directive), a collaboration between the School of Law, Memphis Legal Services and Le Bonheur providing legal services and advocacy for families in need, and iHeLP ACE Policy Lab, a year-long practicum where law students investigate how existing laws can be used to advance health and reveal gaps where new laws may be needed. Click here to read more.

MEMPHIS LAW GRAD TESTIFIES BEFORE U.S. SENATE

Meredith Stewart (JD '11) recently testified before the U.S. Senate at a hearing on the impact of H-2B Temporary Foreign Worker Program on the labor market. Please click here to view the full hearing, including Ms. Stewart's testimony.

PROF. ROMANTZ SPEAKS AT LEGAL WRITING INSTITUTE CONFERENCE

In July 2016, Prof. David Romantz moderated a panel at the Legal Writing Institute's bi-annual conference in Portland, Oregon. The panel consisted of current and former deans and associate deans who teach or taught legal writing. The panelists discussed leadership positions in law schools and offered guidance on how legal writing professors can (and should) be leaders in the academy.

50 STUDENTS ENROLLED IN 2016 SUMMER EXTERNSHIPS

Fifty Memphis Law students are enrolled in externships this summer, gaining experience in a wide number of fields, concentrations, practices, and courtrooms. Click here to read more about all of our field placements and impressive experiential learning program.

ROGER PAGE (JD '84) SWORN IN AS TN SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

The Hon. Roger Page (JD '84) was recently sworn in by Governor Bill Haslam as the newest Tennessee Supreme Court Justice at an investiture ceremony in his hometown of Mifflin, Tenn. Click here to read more about the event and view photos and video from the ceremony.

PROFESSOR EUGENE SHAPIRO RETIRES

Professor Eugene Shapiro retired from Memphis Law at the end of the 2015 Academic Year. He was a faculty member here for 40 years and was an outstanding teacher to thousands of students, as well as an exemplary scholar.

ML - SPRING 2016 ISSUE

The newest issue of ML is out now and features stories on Bitcoin, Digital Healthcare Technology, Courtroom Sketch Artists and more! Click here to read the full issue online.

PROF. ZAWISZA APPOINTED TO INDIGENT REPRESENTATION TASK FORCE

Professor Christina Zawisza has been appointed to the Tennessee Supreme Court's Indigent Representation Task Force, which will study the court appointed counsel system in Tennessee. To read more, please click here.

2016 CLEA AWARD

Recent Memphis Law graduate Jeffrey T. Slack has received this year's CLEA Outstanding Student Award. Please click here to read more about this award and Jeff's accomplishments.

STUDENTS TACKLE BLIGHTED HOTEL

Students in our Neighborhood Preservation Clinic were instrumental in demolishing a longstanding eyesore in downtown Memphis. Read more here and in this accompanying article.

UNIV. OF MEMPHIS AND MEMPHIS SHELBY CRIME COMMISSION FORM NEW INSTITUTE

The University of Memphis and the Memphis Shelby Crime Commission have partnered to create the new Public Safety Institute, which will be lead by former Shelby County District Attorney Bill Gibbons. To read more about the new Public Safety Institute, please click here.

2016 KENNETH COX CEREMONY

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Black Law Students Association (BLSA) recently honored law students at The Kenneth Maurice Cox Donning of the Kente Ceremony which was held Friday, May 13th, 2016. Please click here to read more about the event and the graduates.

PALS HOSTS FIRST ONLINE PRO BONO CLINIC

The Public Action Law Society (PALS) recently held its first online pro bono clinic and helped 18 clients in just one hour. Click here to find out more about the online clinic and how you can participate.

PROF. JODI WILSON ELECTED TO ALWD BOARD

Professor Jodi Wilson, Director of Legal Methods and Associate Professor of Law at the University of Memphis School of Law, has been named to the Board of the Association of Legal Writing Directors (ALWD).

THE HON. ANN PUGH, ONE OF MEMPHIS' FIRST FEMALE JUDGES, PASSES AWAY

Judge Ann Pugh, Memphis Law alum and one of the areas first female judges, passed away recently. To read more about Judge Pugh and her life on the bench, please click here.

ROGER PAGE (JD '84) CONFIRMED AS TN SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

The Hon. Roger Page (JD '84) has been confirmed as a new Tennessee Supreme Court Justice. Page previously served as a judge on the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals since December 2011 and joins fellow Memphis Law alum the Hon. Holly Kirby (JD '82) on the Tennessee Supreme Court. Please click here to read more.

ML - ISSUE #4

Memphis Law is excited to present the fourth edition of ML, our official law school magazine. Click here to read the full digital edition and take a look at past issues.

MEMPHIS LAW ALUM ARIEL ANTHONY (JD '15)

Ariel Anthony is an attorney with Husch Blackwell. She joined the firm in 2015 and is profiled in this article in the Hamilton County Herald. Click here to read the full article.

MEMPHIS LAW MOURNS FORMER PROFESSOR JANET RICHARDS

The law school community was saddened to learn about the loss of former professor Janet Richards. Professor Richards served as the Cecil C. Humphreys Professor of Law at Memphis Law, where she joined the faculty in 1978 and served for more than three decades. Click here to read more.

TERRELL TRAVELING TO EUROPE WITH INNS OF COURT

Recent Memphis Law alum William Terrell is traveling to Europe as part of an International Study Program with the Inns of Court. Please CLICK HERE to read more about Will and his upcoming trip abroad, as well as a look at how important mentoring, and the advice given to him by his mentor Richard Glassman, was in helping him achieve success.

DEAN LETSOU'S TAKE ON THE LEGAL MARKET

Dean Peter Letsou recently wrote about how Memphis Law is adapting to the changing realities of the legal market. Read his full op-ed in the Commercial Appeal by clicking here.

MEMPHIS LAW PROFESSOR ADDRESSES RECENT LEGAL ISSUES IN THE MEDIA

Associate Dean and Professor of Law Steve Mulroy spoke with several media outlets regarding a number of recent issues in the news, such as the recent Supreme Court of the United States decisions regarding the Affordable Healthcare Act, the Court's ruling on gay marriage equality, the removal of a Confederate statue from a local park and several issues surrounding the recent deaths of citizens in the Mid-South who were in police custody at the time of their passing.

BLSA HOLDS CANDLELIGHT VIGIL FOR CHARLESTON VICTIMS

Community members and Memphis Law students, in a candlelight vigil organized by our BLSA chapter, gathered in Tom Lee Park to honor and remember the victims of the Charleston shooting. Great work by Regina Thompson and BLSA members on this touching tribute. Click here to view the full news clip.

ML - SPRING 2015 ISSUE

The newest issue of our law school magazine is out now! Click here to read the full issue online and for past issues.

2015 CLEA AWARD

Recent Memphis Law graduate Bill Hardegree was awarded the 2015 Clinical Legal Education Association (CLEA) Outstanding Student Award. Click here to read more.

Professor Alena Allen has been selected to participate in the 2015 Maxine Smith Fellows Program of the Tennessee Board of Regents (TBR). Click here to read more about this impressive accomplishment.

Recent Memphis Law grad Jennifer Mayham was honored with this year's TBA Law Student Volunteer of the Year for her work with Memphis Area Legal Services. To read more, please click HERE.

Memphis Law alumna Amy Amundsen was recently elected into the American College of Family Trial Lawyers as a Diplomate. Click HERE to read more.

The Annual Francis Gabor Memorial Lecture took place on Monday, February 2, 2015 in the Historic Court Room. Dr. Ralph Wilde (University College London), gave a lecture titled "Dilemmas in promoting global economic justice through law: A case study of the 'Maastricht Principles on the Extraterritorial Obligations of States in the area of Economic, Social and Cultural Rights' and their associated Commentary."

Memphis Law is proud to have been named one of the top 25 most impressive law school buildings in the world and as the 15th most impressive in the U.S. To read more, please click HERE.

Citing our own Professor Katherine Schaffzin prominently, the Supreme Court of New Jersey, in the case O'Boyle v. Borough of Longport, broadly adopted the common interest doctrine. Click here to read more about the case.

The Memphis Law Housing Adjudication Clinic has been named one of the Top 15 Most Innovative Clinics in the nation by The National Jurist and preLaw magazine. Read more HERE.

The law school is proud to announce the launch of our new Neighborhood Preservation Clinic. To read more about this unique legal clinic and how students will work to remove blighted properties throughout Memphis, click here to read more.

Older faculty news is archived on our website. Please click here to view older archived news.

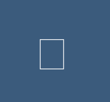
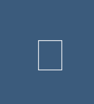
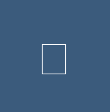
Full sitemap

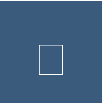
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

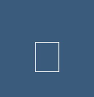
Follow UofM Online

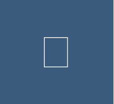












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/24/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

SCHAFFZIN ON UM BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Memphis Law professor Katharine Traylor Schaffzin has been selected by the University of Memphis Faculty Senate to serve as the faculty representative on the inaugural Board of Trustees for the University of Memphis. Professor Schaffzin will serve as a Trustee for a two-year term.

"The UofM has a strong leadership foundation in place, and we could not be more pleased with the announcement of Katharine Schaffzin as the ninth member of the Board of Trustees. Her professional background and unparalleled commitment to our University will bring insightful perspectives to our Board," said University of Memphis President M. David Rudd.

Schaffzin is in her eighth year as a professor at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. She previously taught at the University of North Dakota School of Law and Temple University Beasley School of Law. Before she began teaching, Schaffzin represented clients as a construction litigation associate at Pepper Hamilton, LLP, in Philadelphia, and Mazur, Carp & Rubin, P.C., in New York. She also served as a law clerk to U.S. District Judge James Knoll Gardner.

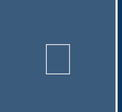
Schaffzin earned a juris doctor and a master of laws degree from Temple University and a Bachelor's degree from LaSalle University.

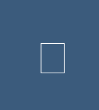
ABA Required Disclosures

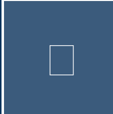
Full sitemap

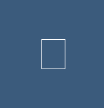
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

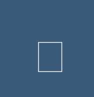
Follow UofM Online

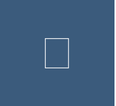












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/23/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

NYSBA Perspective
www.nysba.org/YLS

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

ADVANCED MOOT COURT PROBLEM AWARD

Last year's Memphis Law Advanced Moot Court problem won the inaugural Judith S. Kaye Writing Competition, a competition hosted by New York University School of Law to select the best student-written moot court problem in the country.

All congratulations go to William Cranford, last year's Associate Justice for Advanced, who wrote the problem. The problem, Charlie Utter v. State of South Lakota, raised the questions of whether an ordinance prohibiting solicitations for donations in a limited geographic area violates the First Amendment and whether a person has a reasonable expectation of privacy in belongings left in a public area where he is living. According to the New York Law School Moot Court Board announcement, "The competition saw 'many well-written, thoroughly researched, and frankly amazing problems,' and that each problem went through 'multiple rounds of vetting and selection."

The award is a cash prize and publication in New York Law School's book of moot court problems.

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

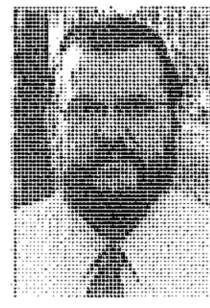
Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

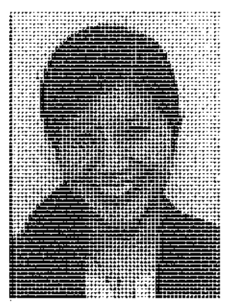
The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

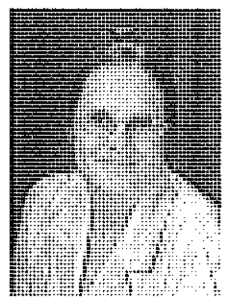
Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

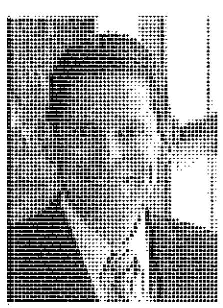
Advantages of the Elder Law Clinic Experience

By Emily Bensco, Adam Cooper, and Kristen Chang
With Deirdre Lok, Donna Harkness and Matthew Andres









Attorneys who practice Elder Law know that being a successful and effective advocate for elderly clients requires more than just a thorough understanding of the substantive law. Elderly clients present a unique set of vulnerabilities which can manifest as problems with communication, ambulation, diminished mental capacity, and potential abuse. These specific vulnerabilities demand a combination of patience, sensitivity, zeal and ingenuity, creating a stimulating and rewarding experience for students. Since working with elderly clients requires so much of attorneys, and since 10,000 Americans are reaching retirement age every day, taking an Elder Law clinic in law school is an invaluable opportunity for aspiring lawyers.

There are approximately 30 Elder Law clinics at law schools throughout the country, where students are given the opportunity to represent older adult clients in a variety of contexts. This article includes perspectives from three students who each participated in one of those clinics: Adam, from The University of Memphis Elder Law Clinic; Kristen from the Elder Financial Justice Clinic (EFJC) at the University of Illinois College of Law, and Emily, from the Helping Elders through Litigation and Policy (HELP) clinic at Brooklyn Law School.

Each clinic deals with a different area of law, but as these students found, the most important lessons were universal. This article contains the students' thoughts on the various obstacles they faced, and specific situations they experienced which contributed to their learning.

The students immediately learned the importance of acting practically and thoughtfully before any legal issues are even presented. Many older adults are not able to ambulate easily, which can present challenges ranging from office meetings, courtroom access and safety and health concerns. Learning to create an inviting and accommodating atmosphere for clients is a critical skill for any attorney providing direct client services.

> Adam—Our clinic encouraged us to make home visits for some of our clients who had difficulty getting to the office. It was valuable to see and appreciate the various situations that clients can be in when they turn to a clinic for help. This was an experience that helped me to put myself in the older client's place in a way I might not have been able to in the course of an office visit.

> Emily—We also were encouraged to make home visits, which always proved helpful. Since all of our clients were facing eviction, sometimes a home visit was necessary to assess the situation. I found that my relationship with clients whose homes I visited was even stronger because there was an increased sense of trust and familiarity which became helpful later in the representation.

> Kristen—Two of the cases that my partner and I handled involved clients who had difficulties driving and walking, which resulted in their inability to physically visit the EFJC office. This was a challenge in itself, but having limited mobility also makes a senior more susceptible to abuse. As a result, we were always sensitive to the effects of mobility challenges on different aspects of a client's life.

Communication with older adult clients can also present challenges. Hearing impairments, speech impediments, vision loss, language barriers, reliance on technology, and stressful situations can make standardized attorney-client meetings difficult. Sensitivity to and awareness of each of these potential obstacles are necessary, and will continue to serve clinic students in their careers as new lawyers, regardless of practice area.

> Emily—Several of our clients were non-English speakers, which made some communication difficult. Even though our office had access to a telephone translating service, dealing with a combination of barriers, including language, generation, and technology, made it difficult to establish and maintain a close relationship with some clients.

Adam—Since many of our clients came to us for help with trusts and estates, our clinic taught us how to speak frankly but sensitively with clients, about life and death and the distribution of possessions.

Kristen—Though communication can sometimes be a challenge for both the client and the attorney, having a representative who is willing to listen will have a positive effect on the client. As students assisting elderly clients at the EFJC, we were prepared to listen patiently to elders about topics that were tangential to the case. Sometimes, the elder simply needed a listening ear. Some form of validation is particularly crucial to building rapport and developing the client's trust so as to be able to investigate the case. The opportunities to speak with the senior also gave us a better impression of the senior's values and priorities.

Many elderly clients will sometimes include other family members in the representation and decision making processes. This can be very helpful, but is also cause for wariness by an attorney. The students had differing experiences with this particular obstacle. Familiarity with the ethical issues that often arise in the course of legal proceedings can be helpful as clinic students move forward in their careers.

Emily—Several of our clients usually had their adult children as a support system. I found working with a client's adult child to be a great asset in helping the client to fully understand the litigation process. I also found our clients to seem more at ease in the courtroom with a familiar face.

Adam—In one particularly difficult situation, my client was a 92-year-old lady who claimed that she had been forced to move to a nursing home where she felt isolated from her church and friends. Her family claimed that she was incompetent, but I found her to be competent and to complicate matters, it seemed that there had been some financial improprieties on the part of some of her family members. These cases were instructive regarding the need for attorneys to help older adults avoid being preyed upon by the people they trust.

Kristen—On a practical level in the clinic, involving family members in representation raised questions for us as students about who our client was, when an individual accompanying the senior could stay with the client during otherwise privileged meetings, and how to best reach a resolution that did not result in unintended consequences or repercussions for the elderly client's relationships with his or her close ties. In some ways, these ethical questions affect aspects of the client's life far beyond the scope of the legal issues in the case.

While older adult clients may bring routine legal problems, there is a heightened possibility of some degree of cognitive impairment that needs to be addressed. Cognitive impairments present on a wide spectrum, and can be caused by a number of diseases that are often present in aging adults. As the students experienced, gaining a level of comfort in this area helps to hone listening and issue-spotting skills.

Emily—In our weekly seminar we were able to learn about various illnesses that may have an impact on an aging person's mental capacity. Although we should be cognizant of any potential issues such as dementia, it is also important to remember that we are not experts in the field and cannot make diagnoses.

Kristen—My clinic partner and I found that symptoms of cognitive impairment may have made some elders more susceptible to financial abuse. Moreover, the limited memory or mental capacity of some clients may make it harder to conduct fact investigation and prepare clients to testify, which can make dire situations even harder to resolve.

Adam—Although dealing with a client who may have diminished capacity is challenging, I found that it helped refine some important skills. I became a keen observer of my clients' behavior—and I believe that made me a better interviewer.

In many cases, seniors are identified as easy targets for many forms of abuse—physical, emotional, financial and even sexual. The students were all confronted with this harsh reality in some way in their clinics, and all found the experience informative and impactful.

Kristen—In the context of dealing with elderly clients who may be financially, emotionally, or physically vulnerable, the consequences of moving forward without strategically examining contingencies and ramifications may be very grave. Elders most often face financial exploitation by those closest to them—their longtime friends, adult children or grandchildren, and caretakers. This puts elderly clients in a uniquely vulnerable situation when they arrive at the EFJC. Additionally, some of our elderly clients had psychological or emotional ties to their abusers, causing the client to feel dependent upon or beholden to the abuser due to the client's vulnerabilities.

> Adam—Unfortunately some of our clients appeared to be victims of abuse. One client, the 92-year-old woman that I spoke of previously, seemed to have been the victim of financial abuse perpetrated by family members. Ultimately we were able to return the client's funds. While rectifying a situation of abuse was not the original goal of that representation, the experience taught us the positive impact an attorney-client relationship can have for a victim of abuse, and showed us that seniors are especially at risk.

> Emily—In our field work, we focused primarily on housing, but our seminar, allowed us to take a different focus, that of elder abuse. Our professor, who is Assistant Director and General Counsel at an elder abuse shelter, presented us with an opportunity to screen for elder abuse as part of a legal intake process. The legal intake process is a perfect opportunity for such a screening because lawyers, or legal assistants, are already addressing serious problems with older adult clients, and questions that may help identify instances of abuse could be easily integrated into the process.

Clinics often provide students their first experiences with the actual practice of law, and thus, especially when dealing with such delicate yet demanding issues, case-related tasks may take students more time than they would take experienced attorneys. However, elder law attorneys sometimes must work quickly, particularly if clients are sick or at risk of losing memories or capacity. Learning to generate high quality work under strict time constraints is a cornerstone of building a successful legal career.

> Kristen—Aside from the stress of these situations, working with elders also requires strategizing around timelines that bring remedies efficiently and effectively. For example, one of our EFJC clients brought up that a later trial would interfere with his potential cancer treatment timeline. Sometimes an older adult client cannot afford his or her cost of living after suffering financial abuse, or a client's ailing health can jeopardize the chance for the client to receive justice in what can be a slow legal process. We learned to be very conscious of the litigation timetable. Since most seniors are retired, we also learned to expect frequent calls from clients and to be prepared to provide clients with frequent updates. The case is often the senior's main priority, and while this may be the case with other litigation clinic clients too, the desire for frequent contact with student attorneys and the potential mismatch between student schedules and client schedules seemed especially pronounced with elders.

> Adam—Because these cases may be especially sensitive and complex, I continued to work with some clients after the semester had ended, over the winter break and into the next term, instead of leaving it for another intern.

> Emily—Since all of our clients were facing eviction, the pressure was on to resolve cases quickly so they could feel secure in their homes. Stalling a case may be a useful tactic in some areas of law, but an older adult client's peace of mind and sense of stability was of the utmost importance at the HELP clinic.

All three clinics discussed here are categorized under the "elder law" rubric, and Adam, Kristen, and Emily shared many of the same insights. However, elder law is also unique in that it can encompass so many areas of substantive law. Having the opportunity to participate in an elder law clinic can afford law students with any number of novel educational experiences. Emily and the students at the HELP clinic were faced with problems that expand outside of an individual client's representation:

> Emily—Working with the HELP Clinic, we were in a unique position at the intersection of crises not just for our clients, but for the entire city. New York City is currently dealing with a rise in its older adult population coupled with a serious lack of affordable housing. According to NYC.gov, "Adults age 65 and older occupy almost 60% of the city's rent controlled units…and as the population of older New Yorkers continues to grow, the demand for affordable housing will undoubtedly increase as well." Working with the Elder Law unit at South Brooklyn Legal Services, we were directly addressing problems right in the middle of serious political and social issues troubling the city. Dealing with these problems first-hand at SBLS, not only were we able to make a real positive impact for our individual clients, but with our combined efforts, we felt like advocates for broader social change.

Kristen and students at the EFJC learned that representing a client may require attorneys to come up with inventive solutions:

> Kristen—One EFJC client who was cheated by unlicensed roofers managed to obtain a judgment in her favor. However, the defendant filed for bankruptcy, and the skimpy sum the bankruptcy court ordered him to pay the EFJC client would have left the client with an inadequate sum to fix her roof. Throughout the semester, the EFJC students helping this client looked for ways to raise money or set up a crowd-fund through a third-party to bring the client a quicker, tangible resolution while arguing her case in bankruptcy court. Students should always consider solutions short of litigation. Since financial exploitation often involves family and close relationships, if amicable resolutions can be reached without going to court then it may help maintain family bonds and decrease the likelihood of a bitter breakdown. As in any case, the priority is the client, and EFJC students try to muster all possible resources to find a viable solution for their senior clients.

Adam and students at the University of Memphis were given the opportunity to learn about many different areas of law in one setting, which has been especially instructive as Adam starts his career as an attorney.

Adam—Working with elders brought me into contact with a wider array of legal issues than other legal clinics might handle. For example, I helped with estate, medical, family, and debt issues. I was able to appear in court on a debt issue and managed to negotiate a favorable resolution for the client. I am now working as an attorney in general practice. Although elder law is just a small part of my caseload, I still find myself using skills I was able to develop through working in the University of Memphis Elder Law Clinic and referring back to my experiences there.

Organizationally, the programs sponsoring these clinics are all passionate about exposing a new generation of lawyers to the engaging, cutting-edge issues involved in working with older adults. The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Center for Elder Abuse Prevention at the Hebrew Home at Riverdale and the Elder Law Unit at South Brooklyn Legal Services, cosponsors of the HELP clinic at Brooklyn Law School, view educating newly minted attorneys about issues surrounding elder abuse and older adult housing insecurity as a core element of their mission. Students carry a caseload advocating for older adults in Brooklyn Housing Court and participate in a seminar exploring the legal ramifications of aging in our society. Students receive cases via the Assigned Counsel Project (ACP), which provides legal representation and an assigned social worker to individuals over 60 who are engaged in eviction proceedings. To supplement their direct client experience, students also participate in a weekly seminar, which covers a variety of legal arenas including capacity, guardianship, family court, ethics, and access to justice and the unique ways in which older adults interact with these areas of the law. Over the course of the semester, each student completes a project related to larger social policy issues facing older adults in New York City.

The Elder Law Clinic at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is a "live client" clinic staffed by upper division law students who are specially admitted to practice by the Tennessee Supreme Court. The Clinic works in partnership with Memphis Area Legal Services, a Legal Services Corporation-funded nonprofit legal services provider serving the low-income population of Memphis and the surrounding four-county area. Under the supervision of the Clinic Director, who is a licensed attorney, the students provide direct representation to indigent clients age 55 and over in a variety of civil matters, ranging from wills, advanced directives, consumer protection issues and financial exploitation to government benefits, housing and real property ownership, conservatorship and family law issues.

The University of Illinois College of Law's Elder Financial Justice Clinic is the first law school clinic in the country focused exclusively on combating elder financial exploitation. The clinic provides free legal services in Illinois to people 60 and over and vulnerable adults who have been victims of any type of financial fraud or abuse, and works for systemic change, including proposing and advocating for legislation, to improve the lives of financially abused seniors. The 44 students who have enrolled in the EFJC since it began three years ago are leaving the College of Law with a skill set and knowledge base that makes them uniquely qualified to continue to advocate for seniors. They have also hopefully gained an enthusiasm for public interest law that will encourage them to continue to serve disadvantaged populations once they enter practice.

In conclusion, for professors the field of elder law is an exciting and rewarding area in which to educate students. And for professors who are also elder law practitioners, it is fulfilling to be part of a constantly evolving legal field. Although the students' experiences represent the challenges and rewards of working in elder law, these experiences have made them better equipped to practice not just elder law, but any legal area.

Emily Bensco is from New Jersey. She attended Temple University, where she majored in English and French and currently is a student at Brooklyn Law School.

Adam Cooper is a graduate of the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and works in a general practice law firm in Memphis, TN handling bankruptcies, divorces, wills and estates, and other matters. Prior to earning his law degree, Adam studied and was a teacher of Jewish law and philosophy for 10 years in New York, where he also served as assistant rabbi in a small congregation for many of those years. Adam also holds a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Memphis, and has a passion for medieval history and literature as well as early music and jazz.

Kristen Chang participated in the Elder Financial Justice Clinic in Fall 2015 under the instruction of Professor Matthew Andres. She graduated from the University of Illinois College of Law, and she is currently working as a law clerk at Hall, Render, Killian, Heath & Lyman, P.C. She holds a Master of Public Administration degree focused on Health Policy from the George Washington University and a Bachelor's degree in Biological Sciences with a minor in Political Science from the University of the Pacific.

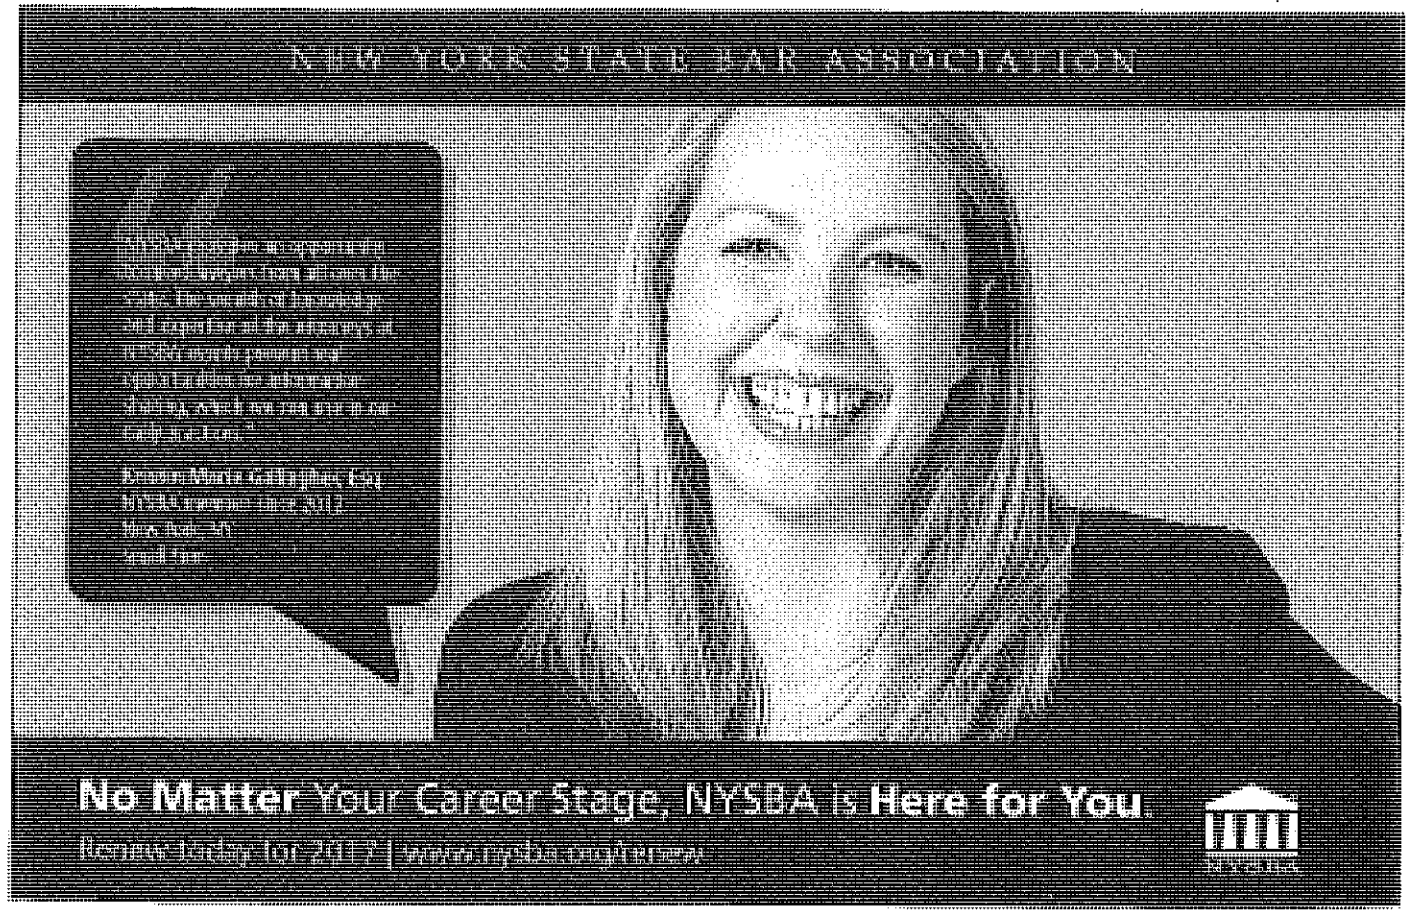
Deirdre M.W. Lok, Esq. is the Assistant Director and General Counsel for The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Center for Elder Abuse Prevention at the Hebrew Home at Riverdale, the nation's first emergency shelter for elder abuse victims. Ms. Lok manages the operations of the shelter, including providing legal services to victims in Supreme Court, Housing Court and Family Court. An Adjunct Professor at Brooklyn Law School, Ms. Lok currently co-directs the law school's HELP (Helping Elders through Litigation and Policy) Clinic. Ms. Lok is a frequent speaker on the issue of elder abuse and the law, and has guest lectured at Penn State Dickinson School of Law, Cardozo Law School, Touro Law, Hofstra Law School and CUNY Law School and has provided training to attorney's through the New York State's Judicial Institute, the Queens Bar Association, and the Bronx Bar Association. Ms. Lok was appointed by Mayor Bill de Blasio to the Age-Friendly NYC Commission, is co-chair of the American Bar Association's Senior Lawyer's Division, Elder Abuse Prevention Taskforce, and serves as Chair of the Policy and Procedure Subcommittee of the New York State Committee on Elder Justice. Prior to joining The Weinberg Center, Ms. Lok was a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney in Oahu, Hawaii and an Assistant District Attorney in the Queens County District Attorney's Office where she focused on domestic violence cases.

Donna S. Harkness is Professor of Clinical Law at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and Director of the Elder Law Clinic. She is certified as a specialist in Elder Law by the National Elder Law Foundation and is a member of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. Ms. Harkness earned her B.A. degree, cum laude, from the University of Memphis and her J.D. degree from Vanderbilt University. She is a frequent lecture to various professional groups on elder law and ethical issues, and has published a number of articles on elder law issues. Ms. Harkness is a member of the American Bar Association, Senior Lawyers Division, as well as being a member of the Tennessee Bar Association, the Association for Women Attorneys, and the Memphis Bar Association.

Matt Andres is an Associate Clinical Professor at the University of Illinois College of Law and the Director of the Elder Financial Justice Clinic. Prior to starting the Elder Financial Justice Clinic, Matt taught in law school clinics helping domestic violence victims at the University of Cincinnati College of Law and Cooley Law School, was a prosecutor in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Oakland County, Michigan, and was a litigation associate at Foley & Lardner in Milwaukee. He earned his J.D. from University of Michigan Law School and a B.A. from Michigan State University.



Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

VIRTUAL TOUR

Named as having the nation's "Best Law School Facilities," our building is a must-see for any prospective student, alumni, or member of the legal community. Take a look around our home and get to know a little more about our historic home with this virtual tour.

Level 1

Main lobby, student lounges, bookstore, auditorium, and the library main level entrance and circulation area are on Level 1.

Level 2

You'll find two large classrooms, administrative offices and library stacks, and study rooms on this level.

Level 3

Level 3 is home to the historic courtroom, a practice courtroom, two large classrooms, and faculty offices, as well as additional library stacks.

Level 4

Come here to see the magnificent river view from the Ball Reading Room, the Law Review suite, and learning commons and offices.

Legal Clinic and Student Rec. Area

The lower level is home to our Legal Clinic with exterior entrance, student locker area and mailboxes, student organization offices, and the library stacks.

BUILDING HIGHLIGHTS

Law Library

Wade Auditorium

Historic Courtroom

Reading Room

Back Promenade

Main Lobby

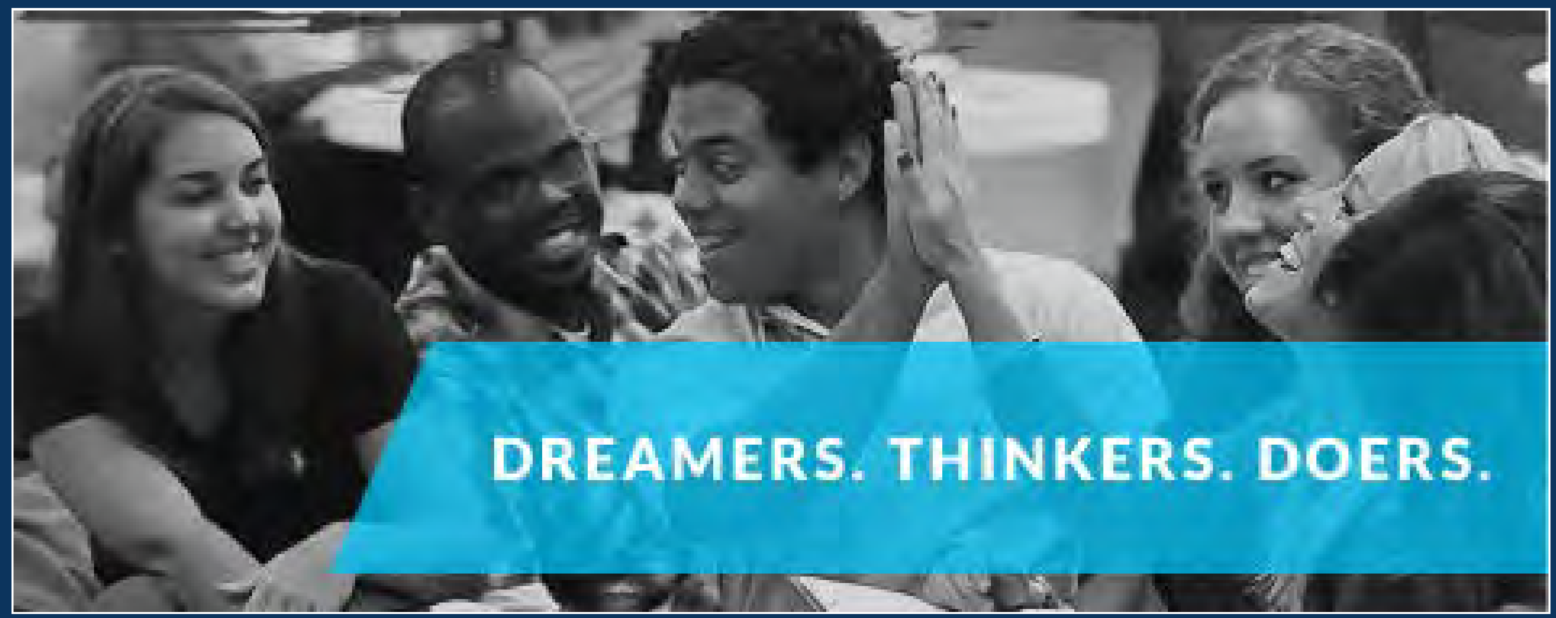
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

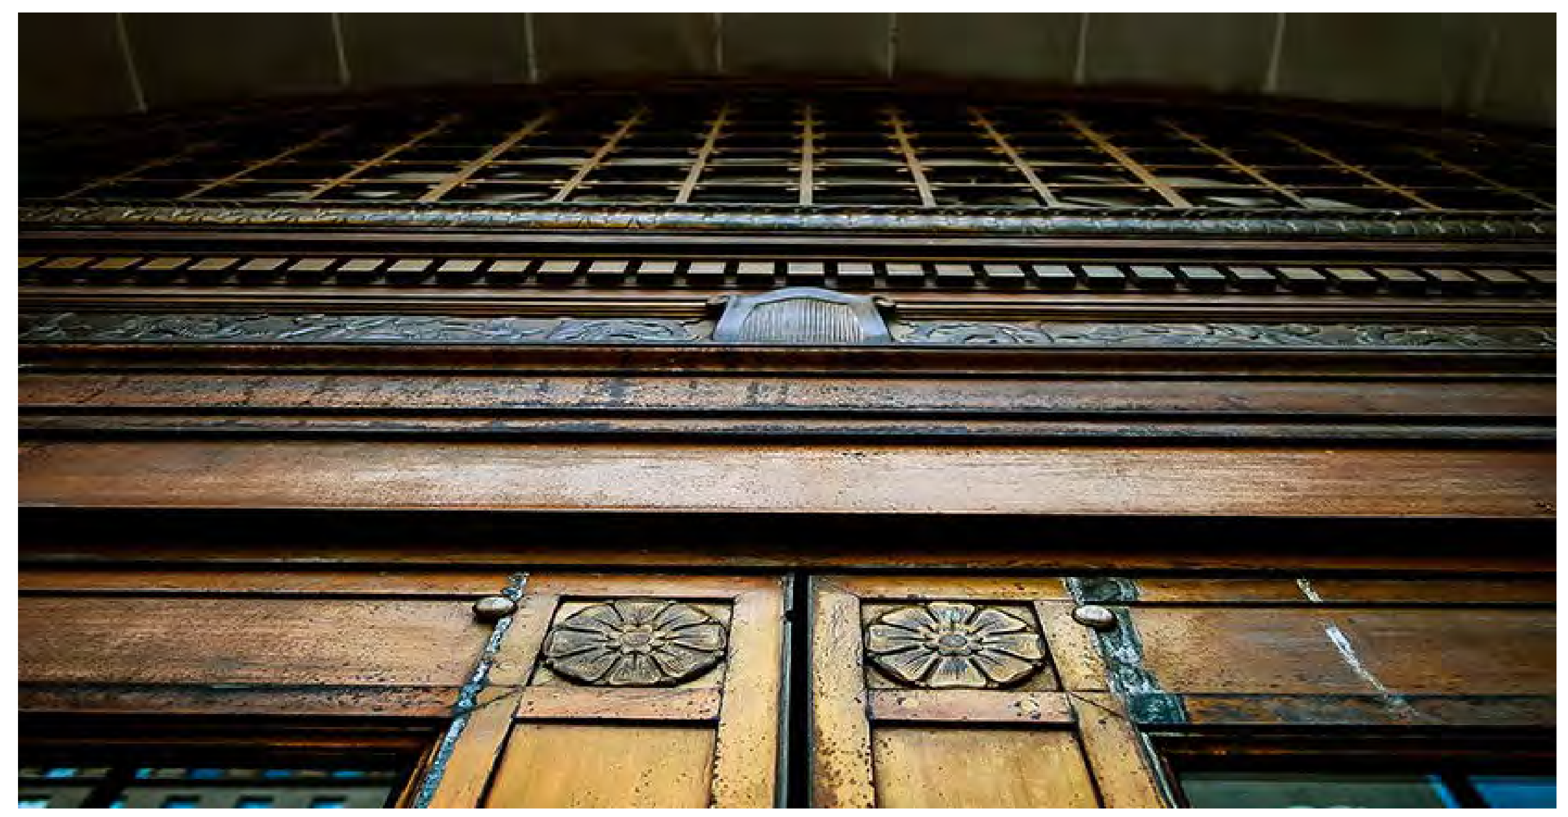
Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About



News & Events

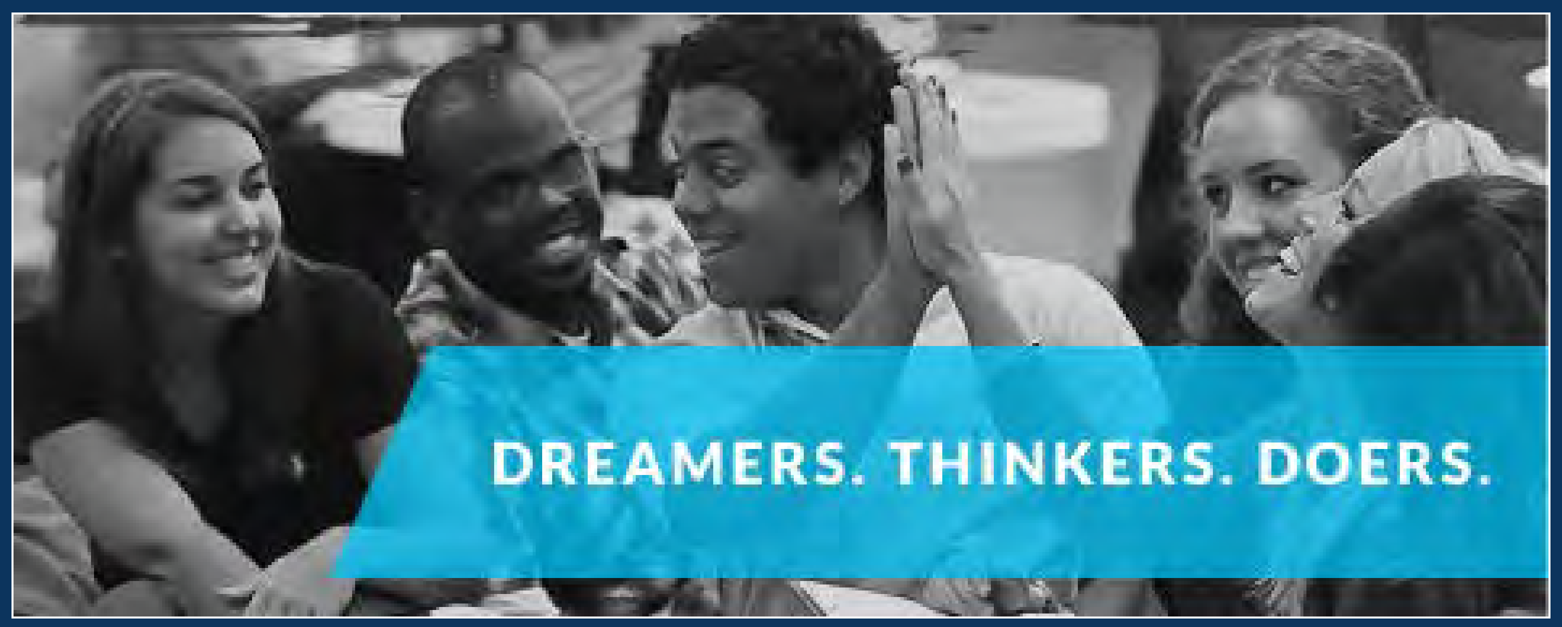
The Office of Communications at Memphis Law provides strategic communication to the law school's various audiences, in order to keep them informed about the Law School, its mission and various events geared towards educating our students and the Memphis community.

Find out more in this section about what's happening at the Law School with our students, faculty, staff or alumni, or contact Ryan Jones if you have questions, media inquiries or updates.

Important links:

- Latest Law School News
- Events Calendar
- On Legal Grounds Blog
- ML - Memphis Law Magazine

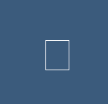
Apply to Memphis Law

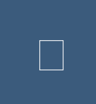


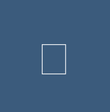
DREAMERS. THINKERS. DOERS.

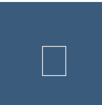
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

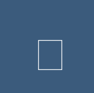
Follow UofM Online

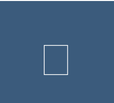












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Alumni

ALUMNI & SUPPORT

Even after students graduate from law school, they're still a valuable part of the Memphis Law community as alumni. Additionally, the many individuals, businesses and law firms that support Memphis Law financially, through volunteering, or by promoting the law school to others are also valuable members of our Memphis Law community.

Update Your Information

If you'd like to update your mailing address, email address, name, title, or place of employment, please click here to update your records with the University of Memphis.

Law School Alumni Chapter

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter is your primary means of involvement and activities with law school alumni. The chapter is under the umbrella of the greater University of Memphis Alumni Association and is run by the Law Alumni Chapter Board of Directors. If you would like more information about upcoming Law School Alumni activities or if you would like to be involved the law alumni chapter, please visit their webpage by Clicking Here.

The Law School Alumni Chapter is on Facebook as well. Follow them here!

Law School Development & Support

If you are interested in donating or supporting the law school or any of its initiatives, please visit our Giving and Support page by clicking here, or feel free to contact Joanna Curtis at jecurtis@memphis.edu or 901-678-5274.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

ABA REQUIRED DISCLOSURES

Download our ABA Standard 509 Report

Download our ABA Employment Summaries:

- Class of 2013
- Class of 2014
- Class of 2015

View our Transfer of Credit Policy

TRANSFER OF CREDIT POLICY

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.

To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

In conformity with the Association of American Law Schools (AALS), the University of Memphis School of Law may grant a transfer student academic credit up to the equivalent of three semesters for full-time students or up to the equivalent of four semesters for part-time students for work successfully completed at another AALS-accredited law school, and two semesters for full-time students or 2.6 semesters for part-time students for work successfully completed at a non-AALS school.

*Information regarding race, gender, and ethnicity has been redacted from the above NALP reports.

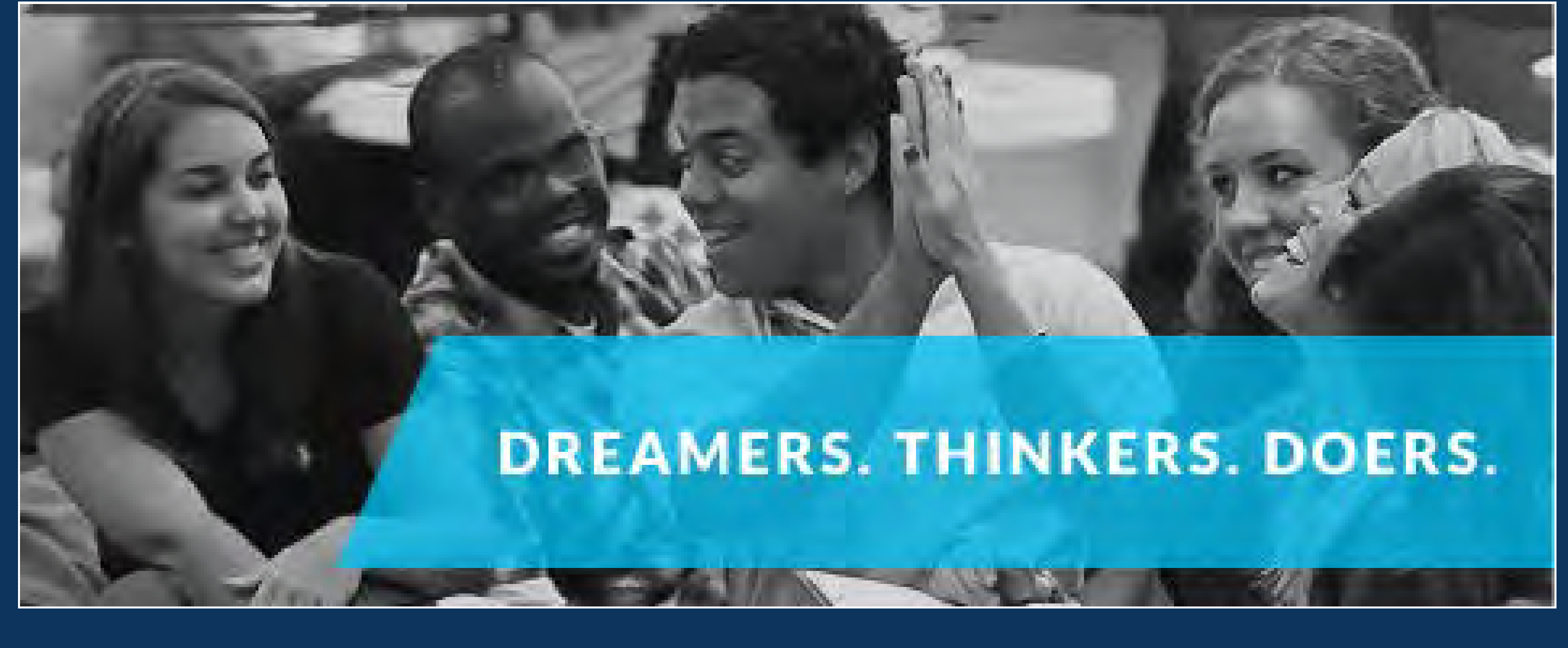
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

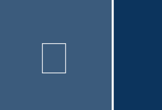
ABA Required Disclosures

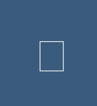
Full sitemap

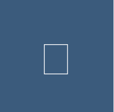


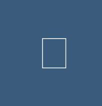
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

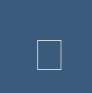
Follow UofM Online

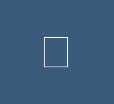












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

CALENDARS

On Legal Grounds Events-only Calendar

Internal Calendar for students, faculty, & staff

- Students, faculty, & staff can view the law school calendar and request space using: https://emsws.memphis.edu/virtualems/
  - Students making bookings (as "RSO"s – registered student organizations) can find more information about how to use the booking system HERE.
- Instructions on how to use this calendar can be found HERE.

External Calendar for general public

- For external audiences who don't have University of Memphis log-in credentials: http://www.memphis.edu/lawcalendar

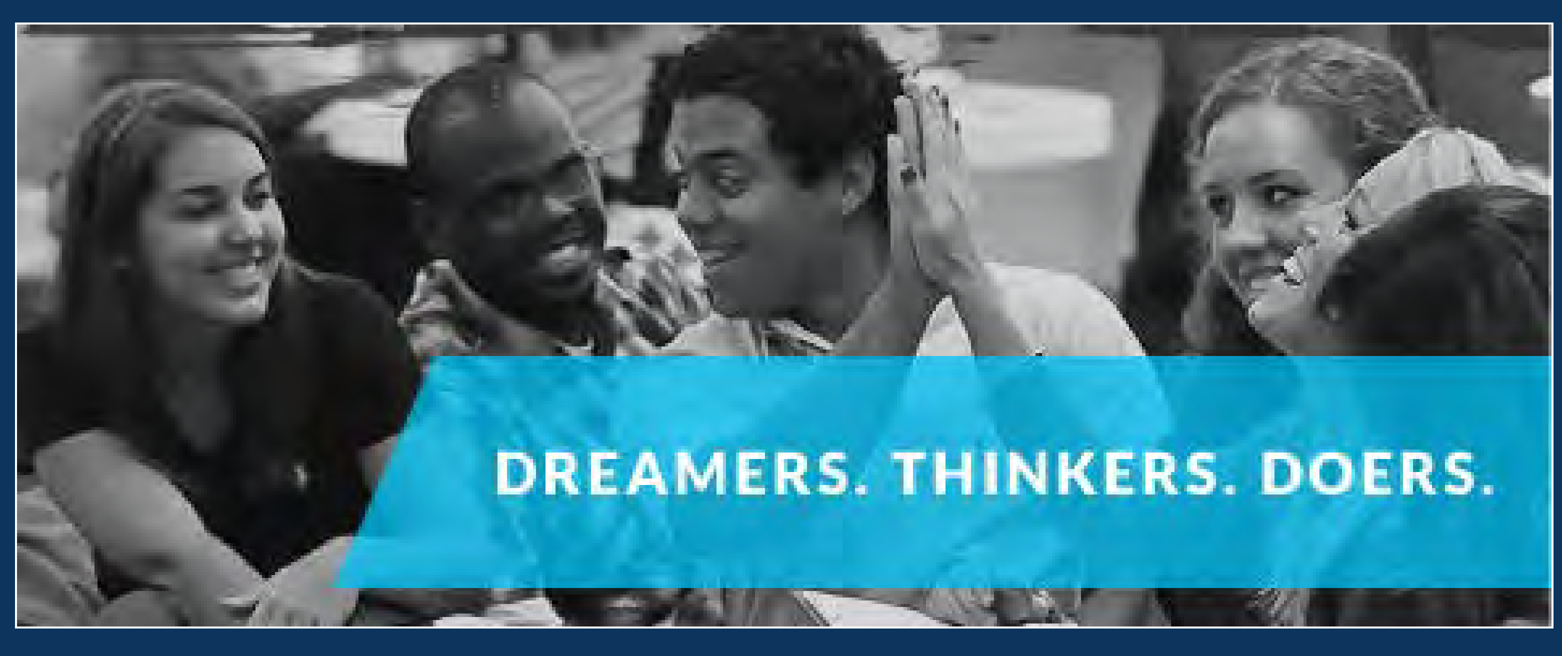
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

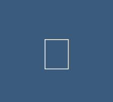
ABA Required Disclosures

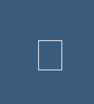
Full sitemap

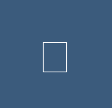


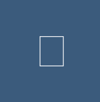
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

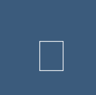
Follow UofM Online

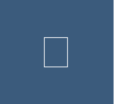












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/9/15 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Admissions

GUIDE TO APPLYING

The University of Memphis School of Law welcomes applications for admission to its 2017 entering class. The application is currently open, and there is no application fee. The priority application deadline is March 15th. Apply here.

A significant factor in the admission decision process is the admission index, which is based on the undergraduate grade point average and the LSAT score. The undergraduate grade point average used in the admission index is the cumulative grade point average found on the Credential Assembly Service (CAS) report produced by LSAC. Also considered are factors deemed to be predictive of success in law school as set forth in the application, personal statement, letters of recommendation, and the applicant's CAS report. Such factors may include, but are not limited to overall academic record, co-curricular activities, community involvement, employment, and other life experiences.

Applicants can access our application at LSAC (Law School Admission Council). Applicants will be sent an email indicating their applications have been received. Applicants will also receive instructions on how view the status of their applications. An email will be sent notifying applicants their files are complete.

It is the applicant's responsibility to take the necessary steps to ensure that all supporting documents required to complete the application are submitted on or before the March 15th deadline. Failure to complete the application by the deadline may reduce the applicant's chance for admission. Applicants are encouraged to begin the application process and submit all the required documents as early as possible. February and June LSAT scores will be reviewed for fall admission.

The application components are:

□ Application (Required)

The application may be accessed through LSAC. Be sure to complete all questions accurately. Include your name and LSAC account number on any addenda. The priority application deadline is March 15th.

□ Credential Assembly Service (CAS) (Required)

Applicants for the 2017 entering class must have an LSAT score that is current and taken between June 2012 and February 2017. LSAC will not release a CAS report until they receive an original transcript from every undergraduate institution you have attended, including summer sessions and study abroad programs. It is the applicant's responsibility to monitor the status of his/her LSAC account. Once your application is complete, the admissions office will send a completion status e-mail. Applicants can also monitor their Memphis application status on-line through LSAC.

□ Personal Statement (Required)

Each applicant is required to submit a personal statement. This statement provides you the opportunity to describe your background and any unique experiences, characteristics or circumstances you want the admissions committee to consider. You should explain your desire to study law, why you believe you will be a successful law student, and what you plan to do with your law degree. You are encouraged to explain your interest in attending our law school and may discuss any information not otherwise apparent from your application, including family members who are graduates of the University of Memphis School of Law. Limit your personal statement to no more than 1,000 words. NOTE: If you want to include relevant information explaining a low undergraduate grade point average or low LSAT score, we encourage you to submit an addendum separate from your personal statement.

□ Admonitory Action Explanation (Required if Applicable)

Applicants must answer questions in the Admonitory Action section of the application. If an applicant answers "yes" to any of the questions, he/she should provide an addendum detailing the date and location of the event and an explanation of what occurred. Applicants are encouraged to include related court documents.

□ Letters of Recommendation/Evaluations (optional)

Applicants are encouraged to submit up to three letters of recommendation addressing their potential for academic success. When possible, letters should come from professors if you are currently in college or have recently graduated. The letters should be sent to LSAC to be included with your CAS report. If a file is complete by March 15th, file review will not be delayed if letters have not been received. For more information visit the LSAC Letters of Recommendation webpage.

□ TIP Statement (Required for all TIP applicants)

Applicants interested in being considered for the Tennessee Institute for Pre-Law Program are required to submit a TIP statement. The statement should address how they have contributed to the overall diversity and/or how they might have been economically disadvantaged. The TIP Program is an alternative admission summer program for Tennessee and border county residents from diverse backgrounds who are not admitted through the regular admissions process, but who show potential for the study of law.

□ Financial Aid and Scholarships

Applicants are encouraged to complete the application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) by March 15th. Memphis Law's code is 003509. Most entering scholarships are awarded based on the merits of the applicant's credentials. Some scholarships have special requirements. For those scholarships, please review the scholarship list for first-year students.

□ Decision Timeline (January – April)

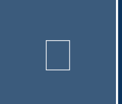
Our online application is available through LSAC. Applicants applying to the University of Memphis School of Law will receive an email with a link to our website and a code to establish an account to check the status of their application. Hence forth, the applicant can check their application status on-line. Applicants will also receive an email once the application is complete. Once a decision is rendered, the online status will read: decision rendered. Final decisions are mailed to the applicants' current address. Most decisions are made between January and April.

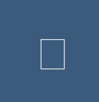
ABA Required Disclosures

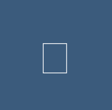
Full sitemap

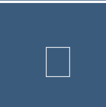
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

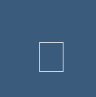
Follow UofM Online

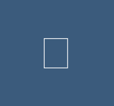












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/3/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

REQUEST A VIEWBOOK

Information Request for Admissions to the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

You must fill in all Marked (*) fields to Receive More Information About The University of Memphis

First Name:*

Middle Initial:*

Last Name:*

Mailing Address:*

Number and Street

* City State

Zip Code

Birthdate:* Month Day Year

Contact Phone: (10 digits - no spaces or dashes)*

Race (Optional)

Expected Enrollment:*

Email:*

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

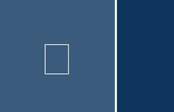
Alumni & Support

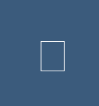
ABA Required Disclosures

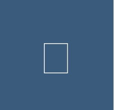
Full sitemap

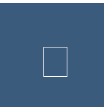
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

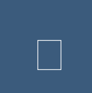
Follow UofM Online

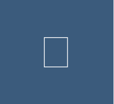












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/1/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

DEGREE PROGRAMS

Memphis Law offers students two optional dual-degree programs, one joint-degree program and a part-time program.

Dual-degree:

- JD/MBA
- JD/MA in Political Science
- JD/MPH
- Fast Track MPH

Part-time Program

Students interested in pursuing these options should review the information provided on the website and can contact the Law Admissions Office by email or at (901) 678-5403.

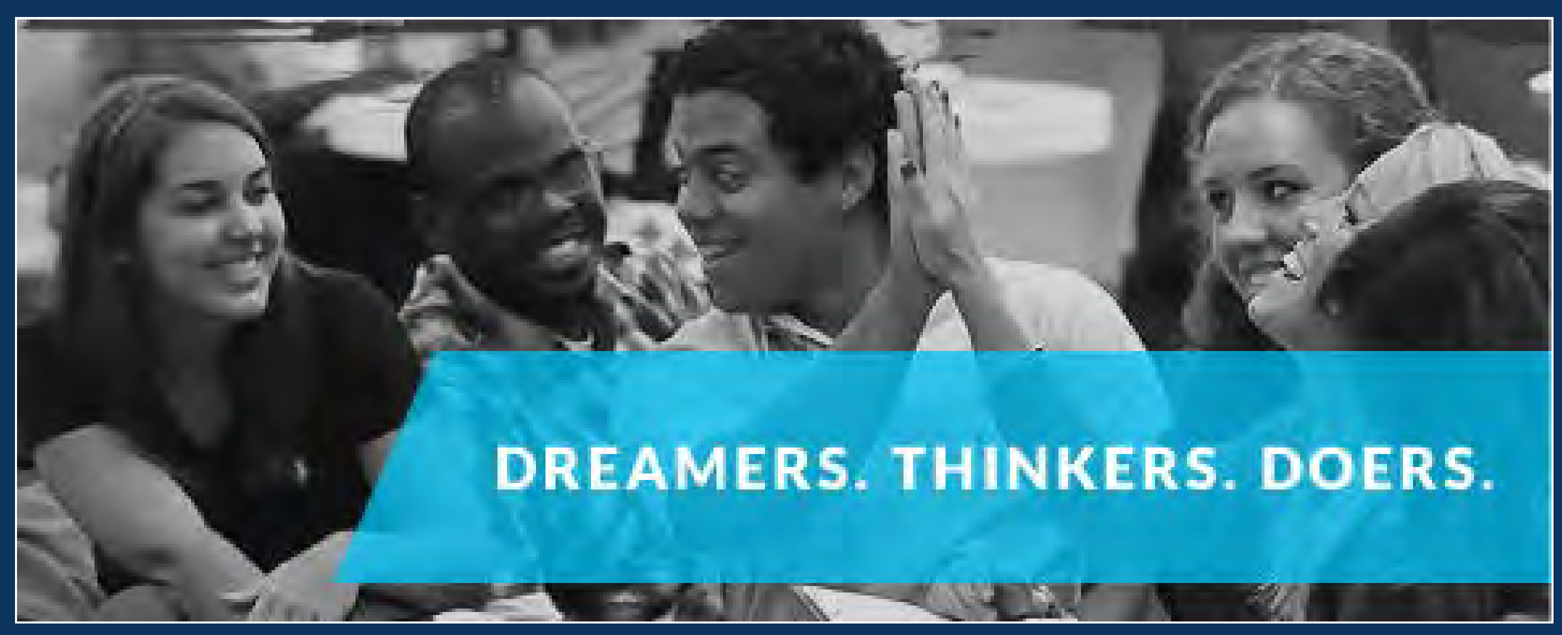
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

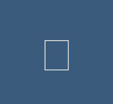
ABA Required Disclosures

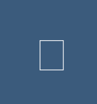
Full sitemap

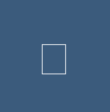


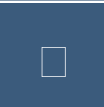
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

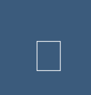
Follow UofM Online

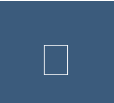












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

CERTIFICATE PROGRAMS

The certificate programs provide students with both specialized and focused study and increased marketability in their respective fields. Students enrolled in the certificate programs take specialized course tracks and receive mentoring and guidance from faculty certificate advisors. Faculty certificate advisors have discretion to certify that particular work satisfies requirements, including requirements for a certificate with honors. Certificate program faculty advisors would have the discretion, for good cause, to alter the written certificate requirements in specific cases.

Students interested in a specific certificate program should contact the program advisor to discuss the program and its requirements. First-year students are encouraged to begin researching the certificate programs in the spring semester of their first year of study.

- Certificate in Advocacy
- Certificate in Business Law
- Certificate in Health Law
- Certificate in Tax Law

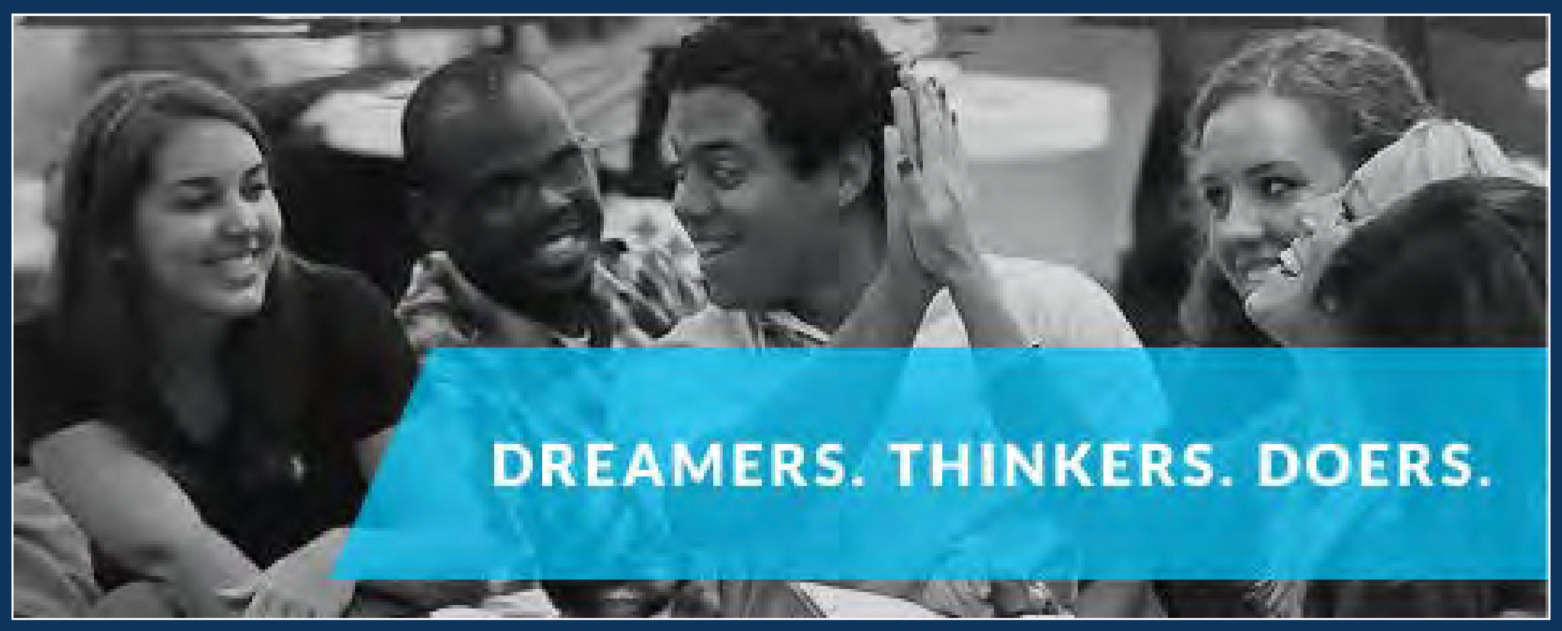
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

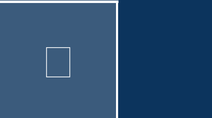
ABA Required Disclosures

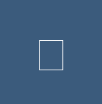
Full sitemap

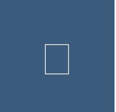


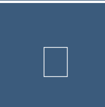
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

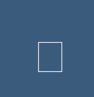
Follow UofM Online

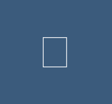












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 11/18/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

A strength of the University of Memphis School of Law is its commitment to graduating students who are prepared to practice law. Within Memphis Law's Experiential Learning Curriculum, upper-level students build upon the foundation of core doctrinal course work by immersing themselves in supervised legal activities designed to further develop essential lawyering skills and professional values.

Download the Spring 2017 Legal Clinic Course Application Here.

Download the Spring 2017 Externship Clinic Application Here.

The Experiential Learning Curriculum centers around two academic programs:

- The University of Memphis Legal Clinic
- The University of Memphis Externship Program

The University of Memphis Legal Clinic

The University of Memphis Legal Clinic is an academic program and professional law office housed within the walls of the law school. Working under the direct and ongoing supervision of licensed faculty members, clinic student attorneys represent clients in a wide variety of lawsuits and other legal matters, maintaining primary responsibility for all aspects of the cases to which they are assigned. Through their case-related work and simultaneous participation in a faculty-led, weekly seminar, clinic student attorneys further hone essential legal skills and take an important step toward becoming strategic, reflective, and self-aware attorneys.

The following clinics will be offered during the Spring 2017 semester:

- Children's Defense Clinic
- Civil Litigation Clinic: Child and Family
- Elder Law Clinic
- Housing Adjudication Clinic
- Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic
- Mediation
- Neighborhood Preservation Clinic

For more information about the University of Memphis Legal Clinic, please see:

In-House Clinical Programs

The University of Memphis Externship Program

The University of Memphis Externship Program offers upper-level law students the opportunity to earn academic credit for carefully supervised legal work they perform in a variety of practice settings throughout the Memphis area. Stepping outside the traditional classroom, externship students learn by doing and observing, further developing essential research and writing skills, communication abilities, and problem-solving techniques under the direction of local judges and attorneys. To maximize this experiential learning opportunity, externship students simultaneously participate in a faculty-led seminar designed to introduce the essential habits of the reflective practitioner and assessment of the skills, relationships, issues, and mindsets that prevail in the practice setting.

Field placements through the Externship Program include the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, U.S. District Court, U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Tennessee Supreme Court, Tennessee Court of Appeals, Shelby County Circuit Court, U.S. Attorney's Office, Federal Public Defender's Office, Shelby County District Attorney General's Office, Shelby County Public Defender's Office, the National Labor Relations Board, and Memphis Area Legal Services.

For more information about the University of Memphis Externship Program, please see:

- Externships
- Externship News

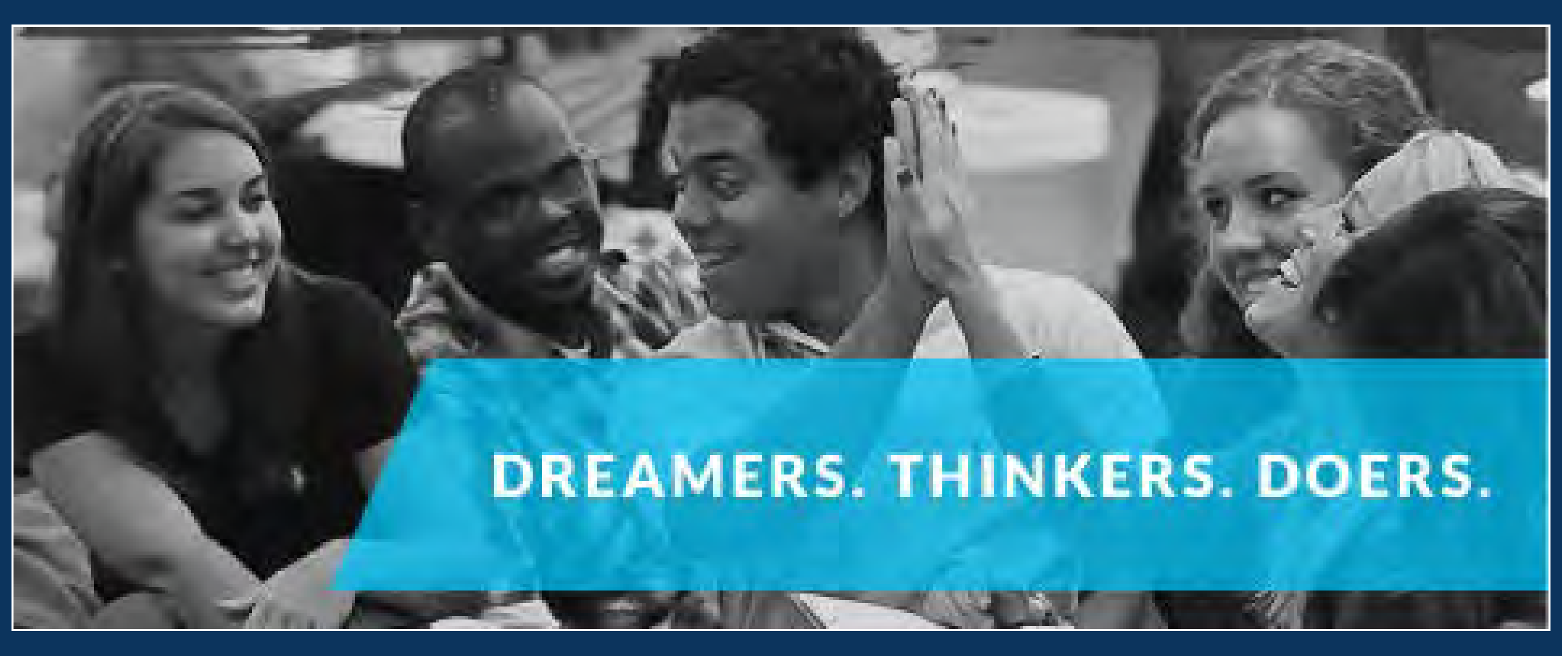
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

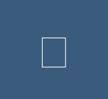
ABA Required Disclosures

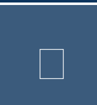
Full sitemap

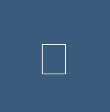


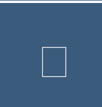
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

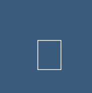
Follow UofM Online

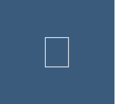












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/12/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

Programs

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW

The University of Memphis Law Review is a student-run organization whose primary purpose is to publish a journal of legal scholarship. The Law Review is published four times per year, and is roughly 1000 pages per volume. Student editors make all editorial decisions and, together with a faculty advisory, carry out the vision of the publication.

The Law Review is an important academic forum for legal scholarship, publishing articles by professors, judges, and practitioners from around the country. Additionally, the journal is designed to be an effective research tool for practicing lawyers and students of the law. The Law Review also provides opportunities for student editors to develop their own editing and writing skills.

All articles—even those by the most respected authorities—are subjected to a rigorous editorial process designed to sharpen and strengthen substance and tone.

About

- Masthead
- Editorial Board
- Editor-in-Chief
- Joining Law Review

- Virtual Tour of the Law Review Suite

Symposium

Subscriptions

- Submissions
- Renewals

Issue Archives

- Current Journal
- Abstracts for upcoming articles
- Masthead

Photos

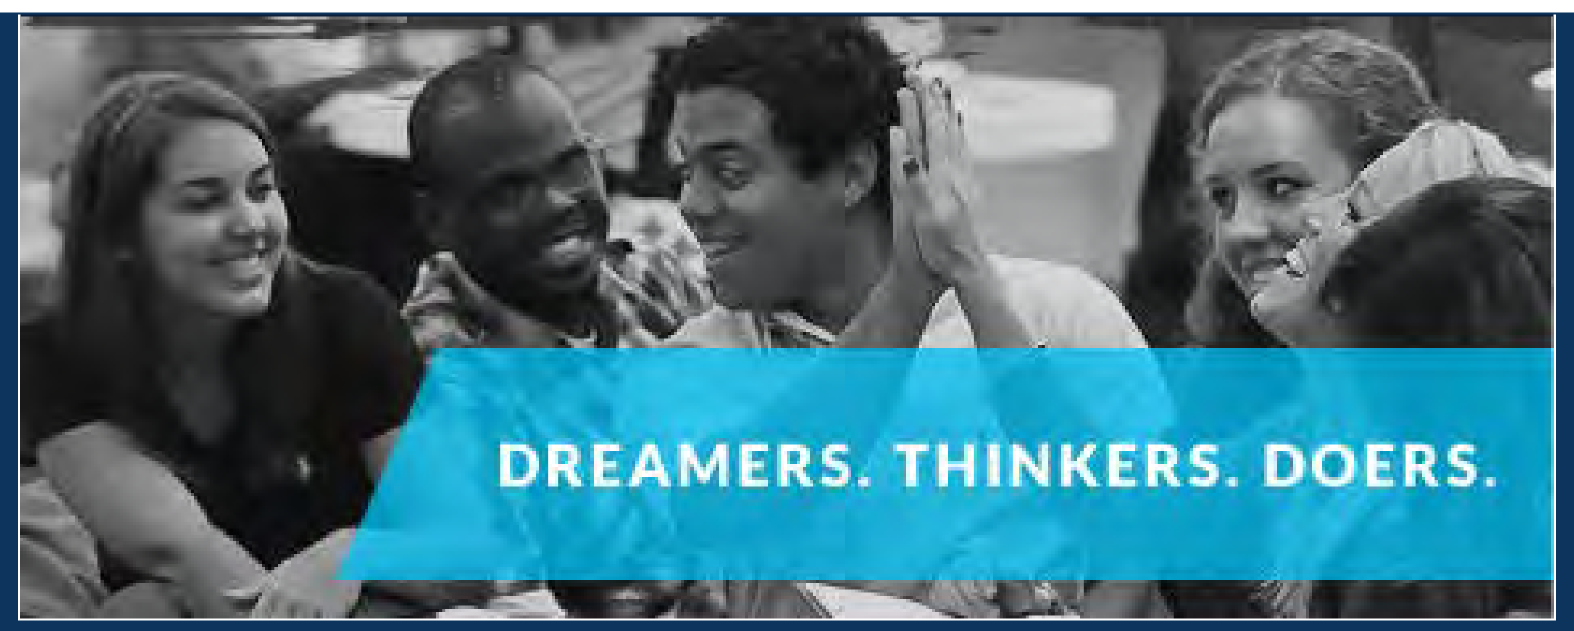
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/10/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

MOOT COURT BOARD

The Moot Court Board of the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law of the University of Memphis is dedicated to recognizing and fostering excellence in both appellate and trial advocacy. The Moot Court Board consists of twenty, third-year law students who the outgoing Board selects from the most qualified applicants. The incoming board is announced during the spring semester prior to the Freshman Moot Court Competition.

The Moot Court Board is primarily responsible for organizing and coordinating all in-school competitions. The Board also fields teams for travel team competitions. The traveling teams have been consistently competitive with some of the most prestigious schools in the country and have proudly represent the University of Memphis every year.

2016 - 2017 Executive Board:

- Kendra Lyons, Chief Justice
- Devon Muse, Associate Chief Justice
- Elizabeth Booker, Associate Justice for Advanced Moot Court
- Bob Huddleston, Associate Justice for Mock Trial
- Erica Coleman, Associate Justice for First Year Competition

Faculty Advisor:

Barbara Kritchevsky, Director of Advocacy

Click here to see the full 2015-2016 Moot Court Board Masthead.

Contact Moot Court Board

Email: MootCourt@memphis.edu
Office: Memphis Law Moot Court Board, 1 N. Front St., Memphis, TN 38103
Phone: (901) 678-2679

If you are interested in judging a Moot Court or Mock Trial competition at the law school, please email MootCourt@memphis.edu.

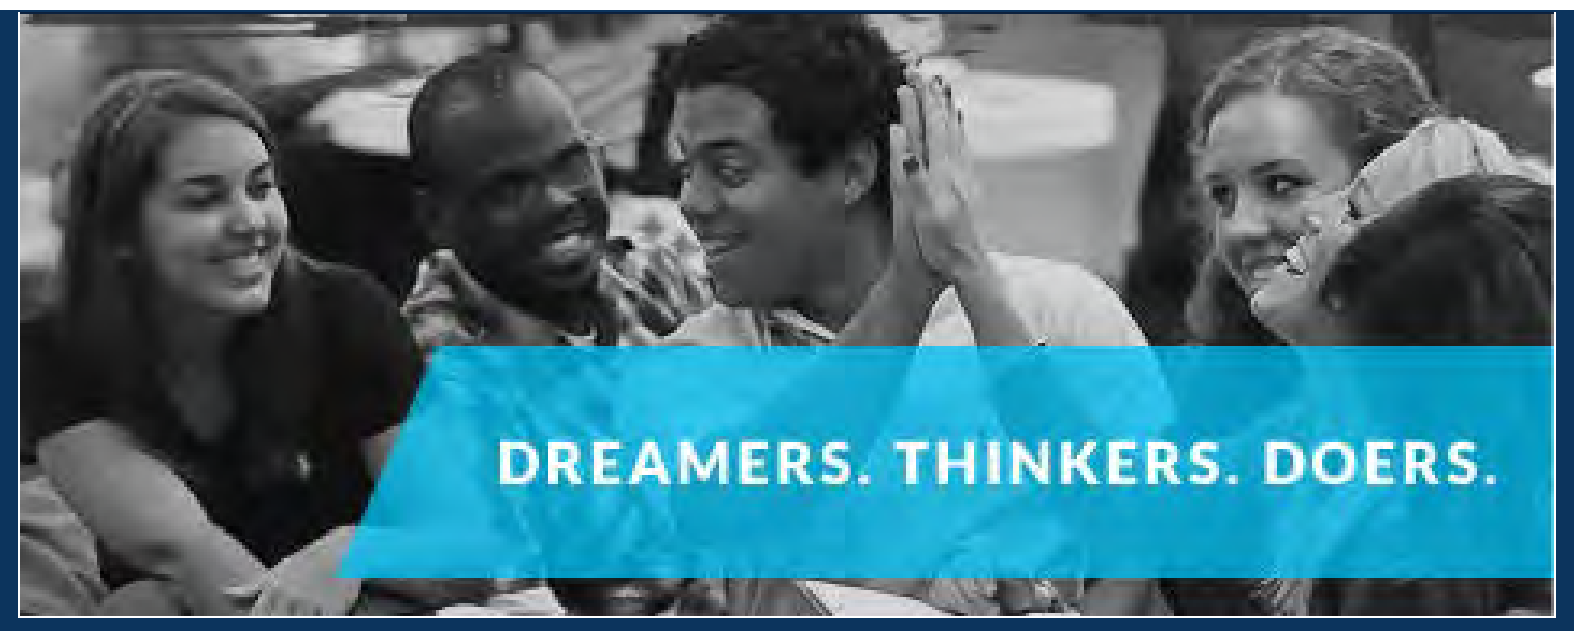
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

Programs

INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY

The mission of the Institute for Health Law & Policy covers three prongs: Education, Scholarship, and Service. Each area is grounded by an overarching mission to use law and policy to advance health.

Educational goals focus on developing competencies and skills in law students for interdisciplinary, client- and mission-driven practice via traditional coursework, externships and other skills-based opportunities, and scholarship. Focus areas cover traditional health law practice, as well as public health and health system policy and science/biotechnology. Faculty have expertise in a diverse array of health law fields, and are also drawn from the surrounding community – who bring a critical practice-based orientation to education.

Scholarship opportunities open up for students the possibility for self-directed and faculty-sponsored research, both within and transcending the law school's boundaries, to include, for example, collaboration with affiliated faculty with the School of Public Health and the School of Nursing at the University of Memphis, and the University of Tennessee Health Science Center.

Service extends iHeLP's reach into the community, where the Institute endeavors to: address unmet health law issues of local organizations and communities, host community forums on health law and policy issues, and work with community leaders to proactively address health policy needs.

DOWNLOAD THE FULL iHeLP INFORMATIVE PAMPHLET HERE

Health Law is constantly changing on the national, state, and local scale. Stay up to date with the latest events, information and announcements by connecting with us on social media. Like us! Follow us! Stay connected!

Health Law Society's Facebook Page:
www.facebook.com/HLSMemphis

MBA Health Law Section's Twitter:
@MBA_HealthLaw

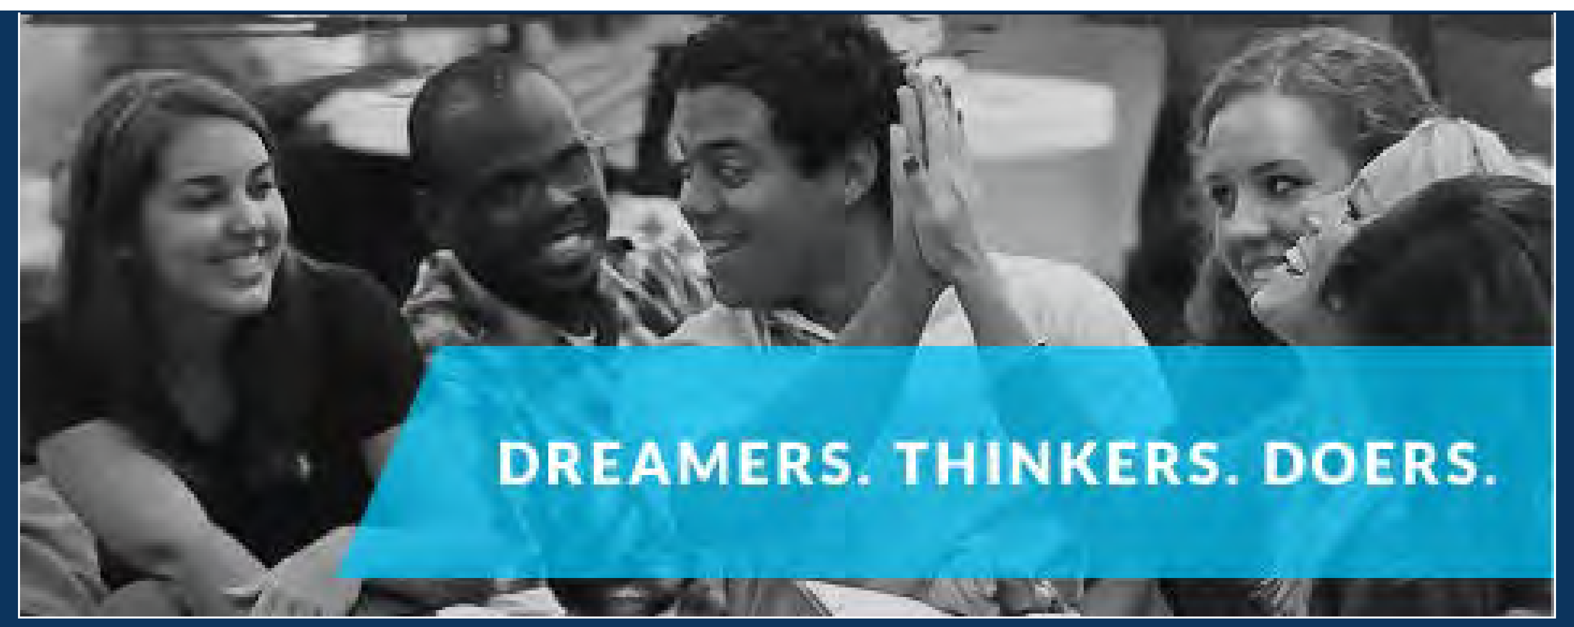
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/1/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

INTERNATIONAL LAW PROGRAMS

The University of Memphis School of Law offers a range of programs focused on international and comparative law. The law school sponsors an active local branch of ILSA – the International Law Students Association. In addition, the law school has hosted a number of speakers, including academics and policymakers working in international law, international trade, and international business. A list of these activities is available here:

- International Law Students Association (ILSA)
- Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition (Jessup)
- Roundtable on Private International Law (January 2013)
- Study Abroad
- Career Pathways

In addition, the law school maintains an active scholarly program in the domain of transnational law.

- Francis Gabor Memorial Speaker Series
  - Dr. Akbar Rasulov, International Law in the Long 1990s (February 2013)
- Faculty Colloquium
  - Dr. John D. Haskell, An Anti-biography of Francis Lieber (April 2013)
- Visiting Scholar Program
  - Professor Luwam Dirar (Summer 2013). Prof. Dirar is a J.S.D. candidate and a Berger International Studies Fellow at Cornell Law School. Prof. Dirar interests include international trade law and human rights. Prof. Dirar is originally from Eritrea.

- Professor Hou Xianming (October 2013), an associate professor at Ludong University in Shandong, China. Prof. Xianming studies commercial law and securities law. Prof. Xianming will be here from October 2013 through September 2014.
- Professor Osamu Hirasawa (April 2013-March 2014) from Chuo Gakuin University, Department of Law in Chiba, Japan. Prof. Hirasawa teaches criminal law and procedure and intends to research American criminal law.

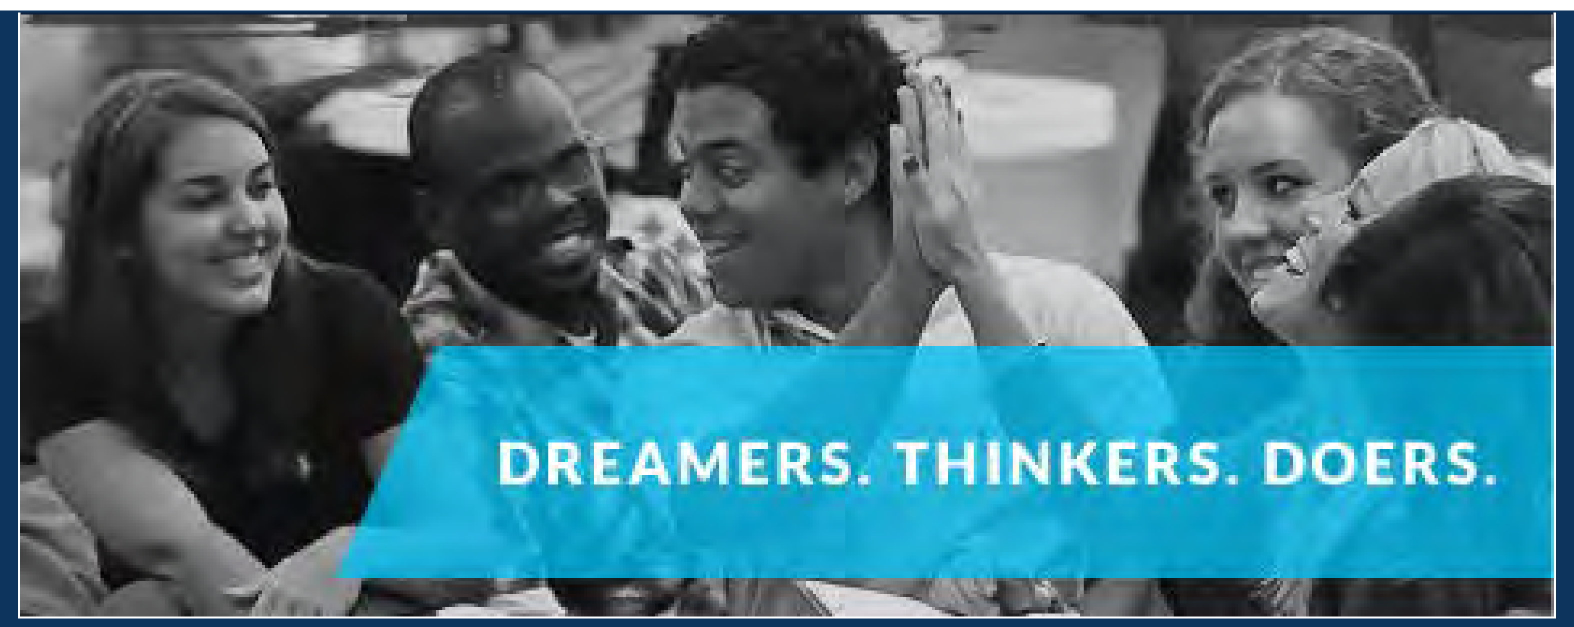
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

COURSE & CLASS INFORMATION

Below you will find calendars, class grid, exams schedules, etc.

Academic Calendars

- 2016-2017 Academic Calendar
- 2017-2018 Academic Calendar

Spring 2017

- First Assignments
- Booklist
- Course Schedule
- Course Grid
- Exam Schedule
- Registrar Memorandum
- Deadline Calendar

Summer 2017

- Course/Exam Schedule
- Registrar Memorandum
- Deadline Calendar

Fall 2017

- Course Schedule
- Course Grid
- Exam Schedule
- Registrar Memorandum
- Deadline Calendar

Spring 2018

- TENTATIVE Course Grid

Exam4 Instructions (Spring 2017 midterm)

ACADEMIC ADVISING POWERPOINT

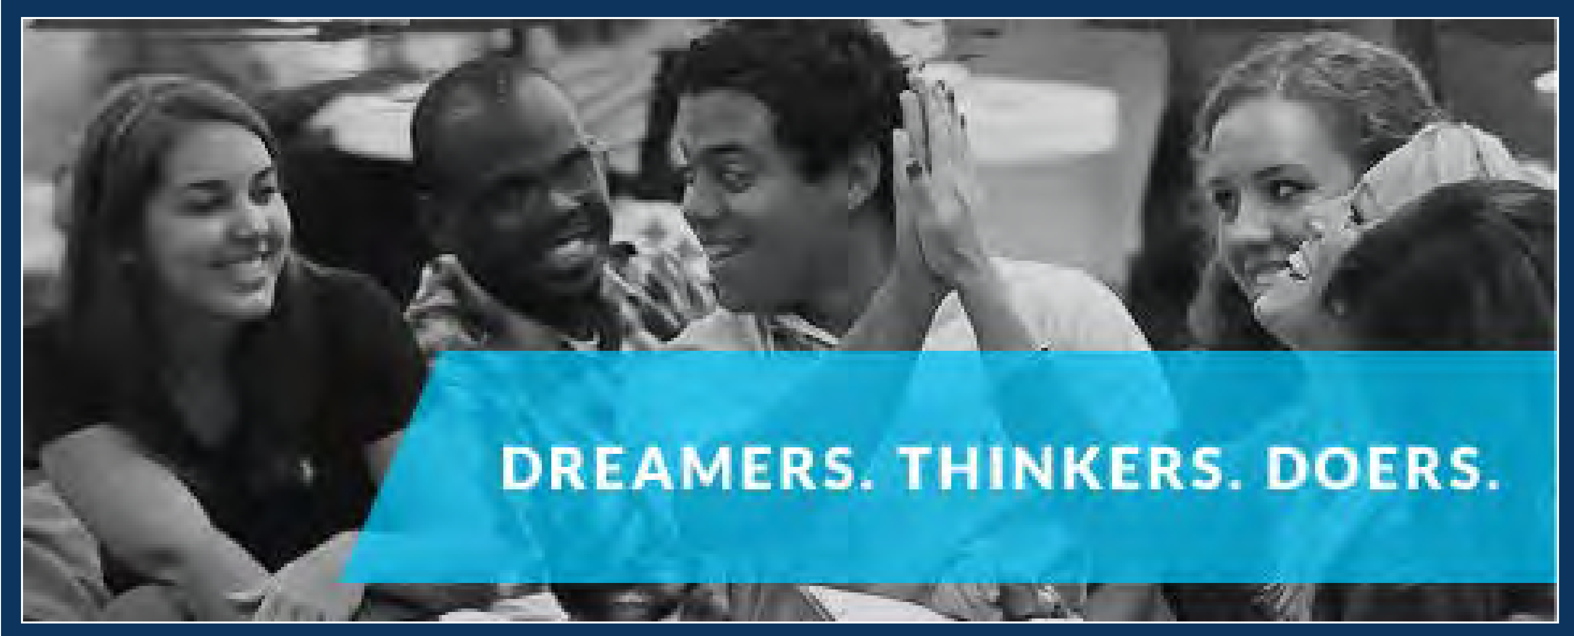
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

COURSE CATALOG

Below students can find information about required, elective and specialized courses offered at Memphis Law.

- Numerical Course List
- Alphabetical Course List
- Electives & Specialized Areas of Study
- Upper-level Research & Skills Requirement
- Degree Programs
- Certificate Programs

Alphabetical Course List

A | B | C | D | E | F | G | H | I | J | K | L | M | N | O | P | Q | R | S | T | U | V | W | X | Y | Z

•Skip to Electives and Specialized Areas of Study

Administrative Law

Course 311

3-hour practice foundation menu course

Administrative agencies execute law affecting almost every aspect of daily life, including labor and employment, environmental, intellectual property, insurance, transportation, and health laws. This course does not focus on the substantive law of any particular agency; it instead examines principles and procedures common to all agencies, derived in large part from the U.S. Constitution and the Administrative Procedure Act. The course will examine the sources of agency authority, the limitations on agency actions, the procedures that agencies must use in rulemaking and adjudication, and the availability and scope of judicial review of agency actions.

Admiralty and Maritime Law

Course Number 312

2-hour elective course

This 2-hour course will focus on traditional admiralty and maritime law concepts, including an examination of the Jones Act, unseaworthiness, the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, and the general maritime law. The course will also cover issues relating to maritime contracts and liens, limitation of liability, issues relating to collisions, allisions, and breakaways, fleeter's liability, and issues relating to admiralty jurisdiction. The course will also review the available defenses and damages. While the concepts taught are applicable to all areas of maritime practice, the primary focus will be on maritime law as it applies to the inland waterways of the United States. There are no prerequisites.

Advanced Appellate Advocacy

Course 523

1- or 2-hour skills course

Advanced Appellate Advocacy is a skills course for students participating on Moot Court Travel Teams. It focuses on developing and practicing skills in brief-writing and oral advocacy. Students who both write a competition brief and argue orally are eligible for two credits. It is a non-classroom course and students should enroll during the semester in which they compete in an inter-school competition. Students are able to take the course more than once, if they compete in more than one inter-school competition. The Director of Advocacy may award grades of Excellent, Pass, or Fail, based on the recommendation of the team's coach.

Advanced Brief Writing Seminar

Course 453

2-hour research/writing course

This class is designed to offer students who have some experience with writing briefs the opportunity to hone their brief-writing skills. The class will discuss how to research an issue in depth and present a case persuasively, considering issues such as developing a theory of the case, arguing thematically, using the components of the brief effectively, using precedent effectively, and structuring the argument persuasively. Students will have substantial latitude in selecting an issue to brief. Students will write a brief to a court of last resort and will present the case orally. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

<BACK TO TOP>

Advanced Constitutional Law: Freedom of Speech
Course 396
3-hour elective course
This course examines many of the principal doctrines which have evolved with regard to the First Amendment's protection of "the freedom of speech." Among the areas discussed are the values served by this guarantee, the Supreme Court's process of categorizing unprotected speech, the issues of content and manner regulation, the forum, prior restraints, the right not to speak, and the consequences of governmental employment or support of speech.

Advanced Trial Advocacy
Course 524
1-hour skills course
Advanced Trial Advocacy is a skills course for students participating on mock trial travel teams. It focuses on developing and enhancing the skills necessary to put on a basic trial. It is a non-classroom course and students should enroll during the semester in which they compete in an inter-school competition. Students are able to take the course more than once, if they compete in more than one inter-school competition. The Director of Advocacy may award grades of Excellent, Pass, or Fail, based on the recommendation of the team’s coach. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

ADR-Labor
Course 315
2-hour skills course
This course offers Negotiations and Mediation skills to prepare the student to properly represent clients in labor mediation and other alternative dispute resolution techniques. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Prerequisite (Recommended): Professional Responsibility and Evidence

ADR-Mediation
Course 316
2-hour skills course
This course offers negotiation and mediation skills to prepare the student to properly represent clients in mediation. While students will likely gain insight into how the mediator conducts a mediation session, the goal of the course is lawyering skills in mediation, not skills as a mediator. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Prerequisites (Required): Professional Responsibility and Evidence, prior to or concurrently

<BACK TO TOP>

Antitrust Law
Course 318

3-hour elective course

Antitrust law is concerned with how firms compete in the marketplace. Given its broad focus on market competition, the study of antitrust allows students to better understand how modern economies function and why businesses (large and small) behave the way they do. The primary strategies addressed are monopolistic conduct, cartel behavior, mergers and acquisitions, and joint-venture activities. Particular areas of focus include amateur-sports regulation, regulatory capture of state licensing boards, and evolving healthcare and pharmaceutical markets.

Appellate Advocacy

Course 309

3-hour skills course

Appellate Advocacy is a writing skills course that builds on Legal Methods II. The course covers the basics of appellate advocacy: analyzing an issue on appeal, writing an appellate brief, and preparing and delivering an oral argument. The course offers instruction in brief writing through regular writing assignments, culminating in an appellate brief. It also offers instruction in how to prepare and deliver an oral argument. Students write a brief and give and judge oral arguments. Grades are based on the written work, oral arguments, and other aspects of class participation.

This course is integrated with the Advanced Moot Court Competition, although class members are not required to compete. The Advanced Moot Court problem will be the basis of class discussion. The Advanced Moot Court brief will be the draft brief for the course. Students will rewrite that brief for the final grade. The Advanced Moot Court Competition will give students the opportunity to practice their arguments for the final in-class argument.

The course will be scheduled around the Advanced Moot Court Competition. Classes will focus on brief-writing until the Advanced brief is due. Classes from the time the brief is due until the competition starts will discuss oral argument. Class will not meet during the Advanced Competition so students can devote their attention to competing. Students who complete the Advanced Moot Court Competition and one other competition are eligible for one credit in addition to the two credits for this course.

All students are highly encouraged to take this course to learn the basics of appellate advocacy and develop writing skills. This course is extremely important for students who wish to participate on moot court competition teams or become a member of the moot court board. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Bar Preparation Course

Course 721

2-hour course

Effective August 2017, this course is a required upper-level course for graduation. Students may apply to the Associate Dean for a waiver of this requirement.

This is a course to help graduating students prepare for the Bar Exam both by reviewing some substantive law and instructing on how successfully to navigate multiple choice, essay, and Multistate Performance Test questions. The class reviews substantive criminal law, constitutional law, and tort law. Students answer simulated multistate and essay questions and receive regular feedback on their performance. There will be graded mid-term and final examinations and a graded Multistate Performance Test. This course is in addition to, not a substitute for, a summer bar preparation course.

Bioethics & the Law
Course 304
2-hour elective course
This course examines the legal pillars of contemporary medical ethics and, more broadly, "bioethics." It will focus particularly on [a] informed consent, [b] end of life, [c] medical research, and [d] the financial challenges of modern health care. The materials and discussion will emphasize the ways in which, historically, bioethics is rooted heavily in case law and the difficult human stories those cases addressed. And they will emphasize the day-to-day clinical realities that must be understood if difficult bioethical/legal questions are to be addressed insightfully and appropriately.

Business Organizations I
Course 211
3-hour practice foundation menu course
This course is a survey of agency law and selected statutory provisions, common law doctrines, and administrative regulations related to the formation, operation, and dissolution of general partnerships, limited partnerships, and corporations, along with the rights and responsibilities of the primary internal stakeholders of these entities. Class discussions of cases include both ethical issues associated with practicing law within the context of business situations, and practical perspectives to forward students' development of lawyering skills while mastering terminology and substance. Although the broad framework of business serves as a backdrop for the legal doctrine, the course is designed to be accessible to students without a business background.

<BACK TO TOP>

Children's Defense Clinic
Course 569
4-hour skills course
In the Children's Defense Clinic, supervised student attorneys will provide legal representation to youth facing criminal charges in delinquency proceedings in the Shelby County Juvenile Court. Concurrent with their case work, Clinic students will complete a curriculum designed to provide training in the handling of delinquency cases, to enhance the vital lawyering skills students will use in their casework and in practice beyond, and to expose students to the complex legal, policy, social, and economic issues that arise in the juvenile justice and criminal defense settings. The Clinic will emphasize team practice and collaboration, and, where possible, develop and seize on interdisciplinary partnerships to provide broadly focused, multi-systemic advocacy for Clinic clients.

Civil Litigation Clinic: Children and Families
Course 509
4-hour skills course
This clinic offers student attorneys the opportunity to develop the core legal skills determined by the ABA's

MacCrate Report to be fundamental to the successful practice of law. This is foremost a litigation clinic, which allows student to practice essential skills necessary in a litigation practice, in the context of representing children. Due to the nature of a child and family law practice, this Clinic has a strong interdisciplinary bent.

Student attorneys primarily represent children as court-appointed Guardians ad Litem in juvenile court in child abuse and neglect or termination of parental rights proceedings. There is a great demand for court-appointed attorneys in juvenile courts in Tennessee, both in child representation and parent representation, and this Clinic prepares graduates to undertake these roles. In addition, student attorneys might represent a child in education matters, delinquency hearings, adoption, guardianships, conservatorships, administrative matters such as children's SSI, or miscellaneous other problems that might take the student to chancery, probate, or circuit court, to administrative agencies, or even to the appellate courts. Through giving a vulnerable population 'voice' in the legal system, the Child and Family Litigation Clinic awakens within students who will be tomorrow's litigators, advocates, lawmakers and judges a spirit of compassion, a sense of fairness, and an understanding of equal justice. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Prerequisite (Required): Professional Responsibility and Evidence
Prerequisite (Recommended): Juvenile Law and Trial Advocacy

Civil Procedure I
Course 114
3-hour required course
Civil Procedure provides an overview of the procedural issues involved in the filing and adjudication of civil suits, primarily in federal court. Over two semesters (Civil Procedure I in the fall, Civil Procedure II in the spring), we will study: jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter; venue; the applicable law; pleadings; joinder of parties and claims; discovery; adjudication without trial; principles of trial by jury; the preclusive effects of former adjudication; and, if time permits, additional advanced topics.

A subset of the above-listed topics is covered in Civil Procedure I (fall semester). Please check with the instructor for a list of the specific topics covered.

Civil Procedure II
Course 124
2-hour required course
Civil Procedure provides an overview of the procedural issues involved in the filing and adjudication of civil suits, primarily in federal court. Over two semesters (Civil Procedure I in the fall, Civil Procedure II in the spring), we will study: jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter; venue; the applicable law; pleadings; joinder of parties and claims; discovery; adjudication without trial; principles of trial by jury; the preclusive effects of former adjudication; and, if time permits, additional advanced topics.

A subset of the above-listed topics is covered in Civil Procedure II (spring semester). Please check with the instructor for a list of the specific topics covered.

<BACK TO TOP>

Civil Rights
Course 322
3-hour elective course
This course covers § 1983 litigation and aims to make students familiar with issues that arise in prosecuting or defending a § 1983 action. TOPICS: Action under color of state law, statutory claims, Fourth Amendment, Eighth Amendment, Due Process, Immunities, Municipal Liability, Eleventh Amendment, and if time allows, Recovery (including attorney's fees), and Jurisdictional issues.

Prerequisite (Required): Constitutional Law
Prerequisite (Recommended): Criminal Procedure

Commercial Law
Course 700
4-hour elective course
This course examines core concepts of the Uniform Commercial Code, focusing on Sales (Article 2), Negotiable Instruments (Article 3), and Secured Transactions (Article 9). Related areas of law (i.e., bankruptcy, payment systems, consumer law, etc.) and aspects of commercial and business practices will be discussed as required. This course is intended to provide an overview of commercial law for students who will not be enrolling in each of the commercial law trilogy (Sales, Commercial Paper, and Secured Transactions), but who wish to obtain a significant exposure to the structure and operation of the Uniform Commercial Code, as well as to fundamental commercial law and business practices.

Note: Students who already have completed two or more of the commercial law menu courses will not be permitted to enroll in Commercial Law Survey. Students who have completed Commercial Law Survey may take one of the other commercial law courses in order to gain in-depth knowledge about the chosen area; the student may take both Commercial Law Survey and one other commercial law course in the same semester.

Commercial Paper
Course 323
2- or 3-hour statutory menu course
The law of commercial paper is concerned with the facilitation of banking and other commercial transactions through the use of negotiable paper. The course focuses on Articles 3, 4, and 4A of the Uniform Commercial Code and on relevant federal legislation affecting payment systems.

Comparative Law Seminar

Course 441
2-hour research/writing course
Despite accelerating globalization, the world remains governed by an overlapping set of fragmented legal regimes. This seminar will survey a number of non-U.S. national legal traditions from historical, critical, and comparative perspectives. Topics of current interest will include studies of horizontal and vertical legal harmonization and regionalism. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

<BACK TO TOP>

Conflict of Laws
Course 324
3-hour elective course
Bar course
When an Arkansas driver is involved in an accident in Tennessee, which state's law applies? Are states ever required to recognize out-of-state divorces or apply foreign laws? When and how can contracting parties choose a particular set of laws to govern their relationship? This course will prepare you to address the issues that arise when a matter may be governed by more than one legal system. Particular areas of focus include horizontal (state-versus-state) choice-of-law approaches, constitutional limits on horizontal choice of law, and recognition and enforcement of out-of-state judgments, and vertical (federal-versus-state) conflicts.

Constitutional Law
Course 212
4-hour required course
The objective of this course is to become familiar with major topics of constitutional debate and to learn to make a constitutional argument. Coverage: Article III, Commerce Clause, Dormant Commerce Clause, Articles IV & VI, Due Process, Equal Protection and (time allowing) First Amendment freedoms of speech and religion.

Contracts
Course 121
4-hour required course
This course addresses contract formation and breach of contract. Coverage includes: the meaning of the word “contract”; the doctrine of consideration and when promises may be unenforceable due to the absence of bargained-for exchange; the elements of and the subtle twists associated with offer and acceptance; the requirement of a writing for certain types of contracts; the extent to which courts “police” the substance of a bargain to prevent unfairness and limit contract enforcement; the process of defining the scope of a contract; and the interpretation of contract language.

<BACK TO TOP>

Copyright
Course 325

2- or 3-hour elective course

This course covers the subject matter of copyright, limitations on the subject matter of copyright, infringement of copyright, and defenses to infringement. This course will teach concepts fundamental to Copyright Law so that students will understand and be able to apply them to analysis of issues arising in factual settings.

Corporate Finance

Course 384

2-hour elective course

This course is designed to familiarize the student with basic concepts of corporate finance, including certain valuation methodologies, related accounting concepts and legal and administrative requirements. It will focus on the lawyer's role in corporate practice, dealing primarily with public companies, debt and equity financings and the terms and provisions of relevant instruments, such as preferred stock, subordinated debentures, warrants, stock options and various classes of common and preferred stock. It also will cover various aspects of mergers and acquisitions, tender offers and anti-takeover defenses.

Prerequisites: Business Organizations; Mergers and Acquisitions is helpful but not required.

Corporate Governance and Compliance

Course 720

2-hour elective course

This course covers corporate governance and compliance. "Corporate Governance" refers to the processes by which decisions are made within firms, including the roles played by shareholders, directors, and executives. "Corporate Compliance" refers to the processes by which an organization seeks to ensure that employees and others conform to applicable norms, which can include either the requirements of laws or regulations or the internal rules of the organization. Covered compliance mechanisms include internal enforcement, as well as the role played by regulators, prosecutors, whistleblowers, and attorneys.

Corporate Law Seminar

Course 440

2-hour research/writing course

This course provides an in-depth discussion of the law, theory and policy of corporate governance. The course will be taught in a seminar format and will require the completion of a paper. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

Corporate Tax

Course 334

3-hour statutory menu course

The course focuses on the federal income tax aspects of corporate formation, capital structure, distributions to shareholders, redemptions of shareholders, liquidations, taxable acquisitions and reorganizations, and nontaxable reorganizations.

Prerequisite (Required): Basic Income Tax

Criminal Law
Course 126
3-hour required course
This course introduces students to basic principles of substantive criminal law (under the common law and one Model Penal Code), the principals of criminal culpability and the analysis of criminal statutes. Topics include: the criminal act, mens rea, homicide, attempt, complicity, conspiracy and defenses.

Criminal Procedure I
Course 223
3-hour practice foundation menu course
An examination of principles of constitutional criminal procedure, with a focus on search and seizure, the right to counsel, the law governing interrogation and confessions, and pre-trial identification procedures and other selected issues.

Criminal Procedure II
Course 326
2-hour elective course
Covers all aspects of criminal procedure from pre-arrest through post-conviction and habeas corpus. Upon completion of course, students should have a thorough and practical understanding of criminal procedure, particularly Tennessee Rules of Criminal Procedure.

Prerequisite (Recommended): Criminal Procedure I is recommended, but not required. Primarily statutory, but some practice emphasis. Although not specifically listed as a topic that is bar tested, some bar questions in the past have included matters covered by this class.

Debtor-Creditor Law
Course 327
3-hour elective course
Debtor-Creditor Law is a foundational course that addresses the question of what to do when there's not enough money to go around. It provides a brief introduction to state and federal debt collection laws before diving into federal bankruptcy law. The emphasis is on the consumer side because that is most often the context in which these questions arise, but also explores concepts such as fraudulent conveyances and preferential transfers that are encountered in business contexts as well, The course serves as an excellent review of concepts learned in secured transactions that are likely to be encountered on the bar exam. It is a must for both transactional lawyers who want to draft documents that adequately address the possibility of financial default and litigators who want to know what to do once a judgment is entered.

It is strongly recommended, but not required, that students complete Secured Transactions before taking this course.

Decedents' Estates

Course 213
3-hour required course
Coverage includes intestate succession, wills, nonprobate assets, and a brief introduction to trusts. Objectives include mastery of fundamental principles under the Uniform Probate Code, the Tennessee Code, and case law.

<BACK TO TOP>
Discovery
Course 377
2-hour skills course
This course covers the pre-trial practices used by one party to obtain facts and information about a case from another party in order to assist the party's preparation for trial. Students study depositions, interrogatories, production of documents, requests for admissions, and other pre-trial discovery practices. The course is hands-on and requires students to draft pleadings, conduct discovery activities, and participate in a mediation. The course also includes electronic discovery and discusses counsel's duty to properly identify, preserve, collect, review, and produce electronically stored information (ESI), as well as on the basic technological knowledge litigation counsel should possess. The course covers the growing case law in the area and prepares students through exercises in mock depositions, and exercises in proper written discovery practice and an exercise in a mock mediation. The course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

There are no prerequisites.

Divorce Law Practicum
Course 305
3-hour skills course
The Divorce Law Practicum is a semester-long course designed to convey the essential principals, skills, and values that a lawyer must embrace and master in order to provide competent counsel in the practice of divorce law. Working in the context of a simulated case file and related mock writing and advocacy opportunities, students will consider the potential effects of the substantive law, procedural rules and ethical guidelines, as well as the accepted customs and practices of lawyers.

Designed for students who have completed the fundamental Family Law survey course, the 3-hour Divorce Law Practicum will closely examine the primary areas of divorce practice.

Prerequisite (Required): Civil Procedure, Evidence and Family Law

Economic Analysis of the Law
Course 346
3-hour elective course
The objective of the course is to expose students to the economic analysis of the law. The course covers at a basic level various economic principles and considers application of those principles to basic areas of law, ie; tort, contract, and property.

Education & Civil Rights

Course 310

3-hour elective course

This course explores the intersection of education law and policy as it meets constitutional and equal protection law. Students will be asked to consider policy decisions that impact civil rights in various areas, including student assignment, student admissions, and student instruction, and relate them to disparities across lines of race, ethnicity, gender, native language, and religion.

Elder Law

Course 374

3-hour elective course

Coverage includes ethical issues, age discrimination in employment, income maintenance, health care, long-term care, housing, guardianship, health care decision making, elder abuse and neglect, and basic estate planning. The objective is to provide an overview of principal issues facing the practitioner of Elder Law.

Prerequisites (Required): First-year courses.

<BACK TO TOP>

Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic

Course 535

4-hour skills course

The Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic will provide students with the opportunity to 1) represent low income elderly patients facing legal issues related to health care, such as advanced health care decision making, Medicaid and Medicare eligibility, nursing home quality of care and residents' rights issues, hospice care, and medical futility; 2) engage in collaborative health policy discussions and initiatives with aging network providers; and 3) conduct community education efforts targeting health law issues of concern to the elderly. During orientation, student attorneys will interface with the Long Term Care Ombudsman for West Tennessee and various other aging network health care providers, while also becoming acquainted with pertinent ethical issues, substantive health law issues affecting elders, administrative law relating to TennCare and Medicare appeals and Clinic office procedures.   After the initial three weeks of orientation, students will participate in weekly case review meetings with their supervising clinical professor and other class members to discuss issues and progress in their cases, policy initiatives and community education efforts. Students are expected to devote 15 hours per week (which includes seven office hours and a weekly one-hour twenty-minute case review session) on Clinic activities.

Prerequisites: Professional Responsibility and Evidence
Recommended: Health Law, Administrative Law and Elder Law

Elder Law Clinic

Course 510

4-hour elective course

The Elder Law Clinic is a live client clinic, where students will have the opportunity to provide legal representation to actual persons to whom they will owe a professional responsibility. Ideally, each student will represent between 4-6 clients during the semester, with cases ranging from wills, durable powers of attorney for finances, affidavits of heirship, qualified income trusts, and other document preparation, to consumer protection, contract matters, financial exploitation, governmental benefits, housing and real property law, custody, adoption, and uncontested divorce. Depending on their caseload, students will have the opportunity to develop skills in interviewing, factual development, legal research and writing, case management, problem solving, community legal education, client counseling and negotiation and should expect some litigation and courtroom experience.

Prerequisites: Professional Responsibility and Evidence
Recommended: Decedents' Estates and Elder Law

Employee Benefits
Course 371
3-hour elective course
With employee benefits issues, laws, and regulations changing so rapidly and at the forefront of the news, business and legal worlds, employee benefits law has become one of the fastest growing and most critical areas of the law today. Employee benefits issues affect not just traditional “pension” lawyers but also affect the practices of many practicing lawyers, including the corporate lawyer, the domestic relations lawyer, the litigation lawyer, the estate planning lawyer and the general practitioner. This course will provide an introduction to ERISA-governed employee benefit plans (including the impact of the Affordable Care Act on such plans), welfare benefit plans, and executive compensation plans. It will be an applied problem method of instruction with emphasis on questions, issues and problems involving employee benefit plans likely to arise in a general litigation or business transaction practice.

Environmental Law
Course 328
3-hour elective course
This survey course provides a broad, practical understanding of several important federal environmental statutes and related case law. The course is designed to introduce students to the variety of environmental challenges addressed by environmental laws, the difficult policy issues surrounding environmental problems, the legal complexities of environmental regulatory and administrative schemes, and issues associated with compliance and enforcement. The course focuses on the following federal acts: the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), and the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA).

<BACK TO TOP>

Estate Planning and Transfer Taxation
Course 329

3-hour elective course

Analysis of all aspects of Wills, probate procedures, trusts, Living Wills, Guardianships, Durable Powers of Attorney, Irrevocable Trusts, Estate Tax savings techniques, generation skipping techniques, life insurance in estate planning and probate avoidance techniques.

Prerequisites (Required): Decedents' Estates

Evidence

Course 221

4-hour required course

Considers the presentation of and admissibility of factual information in the trial of a case: including the determination of relevance; proof of writings and other real evidence; qualification, examination and impeachment of witnesses; privileges; opinion testimony; and the application of the hearsay rule. Emphasis is on the Federal Rules of Evidence.

Externships

Fair Employment Practices

Course 330

3-hour statutory menu course

Focuses on statutes banning discrimination in employment and other fair employment issues. Federal and state laws dealing with discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, religion, disability, and national origin will be examined. Questions regarding affirmative action and "reverse discrimination" will be discussed. The course will also look at the recent erosion of the employment at will doctrine and a variety of special employment-related topics.

<BACK TO TOP>

Family Law

Course 331

3-hour practice foundation menu course

Bar Course

This is a survey course in Family Law that focuses primarily on marriage, divorce, and issues related to dissolution of a marriage. There is an emphasis on Tennessee law.

Prerequisite (Required): Constitutional Law

Family Law Seminar

Course 421

2-hour research/writing course

This seminar examines current topics in family law with an emphasis on reproductive rights, the establishment of the parent-child relationship, and the evolving definition of family.

Students will write and present a substantial, publishable quality paper. This seminar satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

Prerequisites (Required): Constitutional Law and Family Law

Federal Courts
Course 333
3-hour elective course
This course addresses the constitutional and statutory provisions, as well as the judicially-created doctrines, that shape and limit the role that federal courts play in our system of government. It pays particular attention to issues implicating the separation of powers and federalism and to contending visions of the functions federal courts should perform in American society. Selected topics include the nature of the federal judicial function, standing and justiciability doctrines, congressional control of federal court jurisdiction, Supreme Court review of state court decisions and the relationship between state and federal law, the federal question jurisdiction of the federal district courts, judicial abstention doctrines and the power of federal courts to enjoin state court proceedings, and state sovereign immunity from suit in federal and state court.

Prerequisite (Required): Civil Procedure and Constitutional Law

Federal Discrimination Seminar
Course 444
2-hour elective course
This seminar looks at current topics in federal discrimination law. Topics include disparate impact analysis, affirmative action, gay rights, voting rights issues, and others. Reading assignments are included in a packet provided by the professor and average 30-40 pages per week. The packet includes excerpts from cases, law review articles, congressional testimony, and newspaper and magazine articles, as well as several short writing exercises. Students will write one 25-page research paper, and present that paper in a class toward the end of the semester. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

Food and Drug Law
Course 388
3-hour elective course
The primary focus of this class will be on the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act generally and the FDA, in particular. The course covers such contemporary issues as protecting against unsafe or mislabeled food, controlling carcinogens, color additives, expediting approval of AIDS and cancer drugs, assuring the safety of prescription drugs before and after marketing, importing drugs from abroad, switching drugs from prescription to nonprescription status, balancing the benefits and risks of breast implants, the compassionate use of experimental products, regulating complex new medical device technology, control of such biotechnology techniques, requiring adequate consumer and professional labeling for FDA-regulated products, and the relationship among international, federal and state regulatory enforcement. There are no prerequisites, but Administrative Law is recommended.

Franchising Law

Course 706

2-hour elective course

The impact of franchising is very significant, as franchised businesses contribute to over 11% of all private sector economic output, create over 15% of all private sector jobs, and account for approximately 3.4% of the gross domestic product of the United States. With over 3,000 franchise businesses and 900,000 franchise establishments, there are nearly 9.5 million jobs in franchised businesses in our country. It is most likely that practicing attorneys will have some meaningful involvement with franchising throughout their careers.

This course will cover all relevant aspects of US franchise law, including: its history; the impact of trademark , trade secret, and antitrust laws on franchising; the governing federal and state registration laws; the unique franchise sales process and required documentation; and the typical contractual, business and real-life issues that arise with franchising.

The focus of the course will be on the practical side of providing legal assistance to franchisors and franchisees. The intent of this course is to prepare the participants to be able to render meaningful and proper advice to clients in this highly regulated and pitfall-ridden business arena. Along with providing a basic understanding of the entire franchise process, this course will offer specific guidance on gauging the viability of franchise opportunities, gleaning relevant information from franchise disclosure documents, negotiation of franchise agreements and related documents, and handling the day-to-day issues most common to franchise relationships. There are no prerequisites for this course and no prior experience in Intellectual Property is required.

<BACK TO TOP>

Government Relations & Lobbying

Course 710

2-hour elective

This course will cover the statutory requirements on becoming a lobbyist at the federal level, as well as applying it to interactive scenarios using real examples. This course is geared toward the practical practice of lobbying, whether in law firms, corporations, or government bodies.

Guns and the Law

Course TBA

2- or 3-hour elective course

This course explores a variety of legal issues related to the contentious issues of guns and gun violence in America, including current federal and state gun laws, major constitutional cases, post-Heller Second Amendment litigation, modern self-defense rules such as Stand Your Ground laws, civil liability, gun laws in other countries, legal solutions to gun violence, and issues of guns and race, alienage, culture, and gender.

Health Care Insurance & Regulation Seminar

Course 434

2-hour research/writing course

In this seminar, students will engage in detailed investigation of how the health care system is designed post-enactment of the Patient Protection & Affordable Care Act ("ACA"). It will use ACA as a vehicle through which to gain deeper understanding of how health insurance is structured in the U.S., and how ACA impacts (or is likely to impact) the "experience" of health care, at an individual or population – and private or public – level via federal and downstream state law and regulation. The primary intent will be to equip students with the knowledge to better understand the short- and long-term implications of ACA vis-à-vis the health care "system," and the skills to analyze policy developments to more effectively practice in an ever-changing health law landscape.

Students will be expected to write a substantial, publishable quality paper, and to present their work to the class. This seminar will satisfy the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

Prerequisite (Recommended): Health Law (can be taken concurrently)

Health Law Survey

Course 722

3-hour elective course

This course provides broad coverage of health law issues, suitable for all students with an interest in health law while also serving as a foundation for those students seeking to concentrate their studies in health law. The course will seek to expose students to leading components of what health law practitioners consider to be health law. The first part of the course will cover Quality and Access issues, where topics will include: access to health care and the "duty to treat," licensing of health professionals and institutions, informed consent and confidentiality, and health care professional and institutional liability. The second part will cover major bioethical issues in health care, including abortion, the right to die, and regulation of human research subjects. The third part of the course will cover topics in public health law, such as immunization and reducing medical errors. The fourth part will then move to Organization and Finance topics, including: funding of health care through private and public insurance, including Medicare and Medicaid and as expanded through the Affordable Care Act; fraud and abuse laws, including the False Claims Act, the Anti-Kickback law and STARK; and antitrust law.

Health Policy Practicum (offered fall and spring semesters)

Course 705

3-hour skills course

In the Health Policy Practicum ("Practicum"), students will work in teams alongside community partners to address a real-world policy issue negatively impacting health. Specific projects may change from year to year, and more may be added or amended, depending on community needs at a given time. Types of projects may include (non-exclusive list, all as relate to health law/policy issues):

- a literature review and analysis;
- a needs assessment to develop health policy priorities;
- an education module on a law/policy issue for non-lawyer audiences;
- a position paper for a community stakeholder entity;
- prepared testimony for presentation to a governmental body;
- a piece of legislation or regulation, or comments to regulation; or

• an analysis of existing policies to identify gaps, funding needs for effective implementation, necessary adjustments to achieve policy goals, etc.

The course will include a weekly seminar (1 hour-50 minute) that will focus on building core understanding of legal issues implicated by a given year's policy project(s), in addition to skills of policy-making and community engagement, and an opportunity to present work, learn from affected stakeholders and brainstorm options. Out-of-class work will include drafting exercises and topical research, and community-based project work under the supervision of a lead Community Supervisor as determined in consultation with Practicum faculty and community partners. Overarching supervision, and final grade assessment, will reside in Practicum faculty.

Students will receive 3 "SKILLS" academic credits for the course on a graded basis (A/B/C/D/F). This course meets the experiential course requirement for students seeking the Health Law Certificate.

Prerequisites: Health Law or Public Health Law (prior to or concurrently). (Recommended: Administrative Law or Legislation (prior to or concurrently).)

Health Law Seminar

Course 400

2-hour research/writing course

In this course, students will write and present a paper on a topic in healthcare law. The purpose of this seminar is to provide each student with writing instruction and exposure to the health law literature. Students have the flexibility to choose from a wide variety of topics but, ultimately, the topic must fall under the umbrella of "health law." Students will also practice writing well by following a strict schedule to organize their thoughts and then learn about critique by presenting their topics to an audience. The seminar will guide students through topic selection, the writing process, reading health law articles, and finishing a first draft. By the end of the semester, students will do a presentation on their paper and turn in a final draft. This course fulfills the upper-level writing requirement.

Corequisite: Must have taken or be currently enrolled in Public Health Law, Health Law I, or Bioethics.

Housing Adjudication Clinic

Course 501

4-hour skills course

Students enrolled in the Housing Adjudication Clinic will have the unique opportunity to study law and lawyering from the standpoint of the administrative law judge rather than that of direct client representative. Working under faculty supervision, students will be assigned to investigate, research, hear, adjudicate, and issue written opinions ruling on administrative appeals involving participants in the Memphis Housing Authority's Housing Choice Voucher Program who have challenged adverse decisions affecting their public housing assistance. To complement their work as adjudicators, Clinic students will participate in a twice-weekly classroom seminar designed to survey substantive fair housing law, explore administrative law and procedure, provide skills training, and consider issues of ethics and professionalism that arise in the context of the hearings to which they are assigned. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Immigration Law

Course 337

3-hour elective course

The subject matter of Modern Immigration Law and Policy. OBJECTIVES: To teach concepts fundamental to Immigration Law so that students will understand and be able to apply them to analysis of issues arising in factual settings.

Income Tax
Course 214
3-hour statutory menu course
This course covers concepts of gross income, exclusions from gross income, deductions, capital gains, timing, and tax systems. An important objective of the course is to develop the skill of reading statutes and applicable regulations.

<BACK TO TOP>

Insurance Law
Course 339
3-hour elective course
This course will focus on traditional insurance law concepts and cutting edge legal issues affecting insurance law theory and practice. The course work will include an examination of insurance history and fundamental concepts, insurance contract law, government regulation, insurable interest requirements, limitations of risk, defenses and duties of policy holders after loss. The course will include a review of property, liability, life, health, disability, automobile and other forms of insurance coverage. We will spend a considerable time with insurance coverage that attorneys will be called upon to consider and understand in most all types of practices.

Intellectual Property Survey
Course 395
3-hour elective course
This course covers the basics of intellectual property law relating to trade secrets, patents, copyrights, and trademarks.

International Business Transactions
Course 399
3-hour elective course
This course consists of two parts. The first part introduces the student to the environments within which transnational business operations take place. Within this framework a basic introduction to Public International Law will be followed by a concise examination of the leading institutions of the World Economic Environment such as the World Trade Organization and the International Monetary Fund. On the transactional level the corporate actors in the transnational business environment will be introduced focusing on the special role of the multinational enterprise. A comparative law overview of transnational legal practice opportunities will lead to a more comprehensive discussion on international litigation strategies covering forum selection, choice of law, international commercial arbitration, and other practical private international law problems. The second part of this course presents problem exercises in transnational business, such as drafting and consulting on transnational sales, distributorship agreements, and licensing agreements.

International Economic Law

Course 397

3-hour elective course

This course examines the legal and economic frameworks of international trade. The course focuses on the arguments for and against free trade and on the law of the World Trade Organization.

<BACK TO TOP>

International Human Rights Law

Course 306

2-hour elective course

This course provides an introduction to international and regional laws and mechanisms for the protection and promotion of human rights. Students will begin by studying the history and evolution of basic principles of international human rights law. Through a critical examination of the development and effectiveness of international and regional international human rights mechanisms, students will have the opportunity to explore contemporary human rights issues in more detail. Selected topics may include: The Role of Non-governmental Organizations, Socio-Economic Rights Litigation, Gender, Humanitarian Intervention and Refugees.

International Law

Course 340

3-hour elective course

Introduction to public international law that also explores selected private transnational legal problems. Covers the nature and sources of international law, jurisdiction of states over persons and territory, recognition of states and governments, governmental immunities, the law of treaties and principles of state responsibility. Special emphasis is on the study of the international protection of human rights, legal controls on the use of force and selected transnational economic problems.

Jurisprudence

Course 342

2-hour elective course

General survey of jurisprudential subjects, including stare decisis, methods of legal analysis; methods of judging; legislative intent; Natural Law; Positive Law; Legal Realism; Sociological Jurisprudence; Critical Legal Studies; Feminist Jurisprudence; and Critical Race Theory.

Juvenile Law and Practice

Course 303

3-hour skills course

This is a three credit survey course that covers doctrine, practice, and procedure regarding children's rights, juvenile delinquency, juvenile dependency (abuse, neglect, and abandonment), and termination of parental rights. Because the right to family integrity on the civil side and a child's potential loss of liberty on the delinquency side serve as bedrocks for juvenile statutes and rules, the course, of necessity, dwells on constitutional law principles.

Practice in Tennessee courts will be highlighted. Students will be required to observe three hours of proceedings in the Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County and write a reflection paper. During the first five weeks of the semester, doctrine and drafting will be emphasized. During the last two weeks of the semester, trial skills will be emphasized, and students will be expected to conduct a mock juvenile trial. Students will be graded on two written drafting exercises, their performance in the mock trial, and on a one (1) hour closed book examination.

Labor Relations
Course 343
3-hour elective course
This course is a study of labor relations law, with a special focus on the federal statutes. Primary emphasis is placed on union organization, employer responses, union economic weapons (strikes, picketing, and boycotts), internal union discipline of members, collective bargaining, and the role of the National Labor Relations Board. The problems involved in balancing the interests of management and labor, the individual and the group, and the state and federal governments will also be discussed.

<BACK TO TOP>
Land Use Law
Course 344
2-hour elective course
Land use law governs the way our cities are developed and redeveloped. This two-hour course will focus on land use as practiced in Tennessee by examining pertinent case law, statutes and legal concepts related to the fields of planning, zoning and subdivision regulations. The course will also cover federal statutes that affect local zoning, including Section 1983 of the Civil Rights Act of 1871, the Civil Rights Act of 1968 and the Telecommunications Act of 1996, as well as pertinent sections of the United States Constitution and the seminal opinions they have promulgated.
<BACK TO TOP>

Law Review
Courses 912, 913, 914
3- or 4-hour research/writing course
The University of Memphis Law Review is the law school's scholarly journal, publishing articles written by law professors, judges, and practitioners, as well as student "Notes" written by members of the law review. Students serving as staff members or editors earn credit writing their notes, editing and cite-checking articles, and fulfilling the other obligations necessary to publish 4 issues of the law review each year. Students are selected to become law review staff members through a "write-on" competition held in the summer after the first year of law school that considers their performance on the write-on competition paper, their score on a legal citation style (i.e., Bluebook) test, and other factors. In their second year of law school, staff members interested in becoming editors may apply in the Spring semester for positions on the editorial board. A minimum GPA of 2.50 is required to participate in and remain eligible for law review. Successful completion of the Law Review Note satisfies the research/writing requirement.

Legal Argument and Appellate Practice

Course 347
2- or 3-hour research/writing OR skills course
This is a practical course which focuses on the skills involved in taking a first appeal. Students will work with a real trial transcript. The class will focus on identifying issues for appeal and will cover topics such as preservation of error, plain error, harmless error, and standards of review. Students will write a brief to a court of appeals and argue the appeal orally. This course will satisfy the upper-level skills requirement or the research/writing requirement, but not both.

Legal Drafting: Litigation Drafting
Course 513
2-hour skills course
This course is designed to provide second- and third- year law students with the skills and knowledge necessary to draft client letters, pleadings, and motions involved in civil litigation. Students will be challenged to refine their writing skills and strategic analysis of pre-trial issues in this practical based course. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Legal Drafting: Contracts
Course 597
2-hour skills course
This course is a transactional drafting course for second- and third- year law students. The course is designed to provide students with the analytic skill of translating the business deal into contract concepts, and an understanding of the rules and techniques for good transactional drafting to enhance clarity and avoid ambiguity. Students will be challenged to learn to think like lawyers and develop skills in translating that thinking into the contracts they draft, utilizing a variety of contracts and transactional practice areas. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Legal Ethics Seminar
Course 447
2-hour research/writing course
This seminar gives the students an opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of selected issues in professional responsibility and professionalism. Coverage will include confidentiality, conflicts of interest, litigation tactics, perjury, the client-lawyer relationship, counseling clients, competence, admission to practice, professional discipline, delivery of legal services, and legal education. Students research and write a paper on a selected professional responsibility or professionalism issue. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

<BACK TO TOP>

Legal Methods I
Course 113
3-hour required course

Objective: To produce competent practitioners using a guided approach to legal research, legal drafting, and legal analysis. This course focuses on the process of legal research, the objective analysis of legal issues, and the substance and form of objective legal memoranda.

Legal Methods II
Course 123
2-hour required course
The objective of this course is to produce competent advocates. LM II covers persuasive advocacy. Building on LM I's emphasis on research, analysis, and objective writing, students further refine these skills by drafting a persuasive brief and arguing before a mock court.

Legislation
Course 348
3-hour statutory course menu course
Many law school courses focus on judge-made law and appellate opinions. The vast majority of American law, however, is enacted law—statutory and regulatory law. This course is designed to teach students how legislatures enact law. Studying Article I of the U.S. Constitution as well as House and Senate standing rules, students explore how Congress is structured and how it operates to make law and policy. The course also discusses courts' relationship with statutory law and the canons of statutory construction. Finally, the course teaches students how to draft legislation—at the end of the term the class will sit as a mock legislature debating bills drafted by students.

Mass Incarceration Seminar
Course 502
2-hour Research/writing course
This seminar will encourage students to explore the rise of mass incarceration and its consequences for U.S. law and society. The following topics will likely be explored as they relate to mass incarceration: origins and causes; sentencing; the "War on Drugs"; disability and mental health; race and poverty; penal confinement & conditions; effectiveness in crime reduction; effect on families and labor markets; rehabilitation & recidivism; the purpose of penal punishment; and penal reform. Assigned reading will include various sources including case law, summaries of existing research, books, legal scholarship and research papers in other disciplines. Assessment for the class will be based on in-class participation and a research paper.

Prerequisites: Constitutional Law, Criminal Law

Mediation Clinic
Course 502
4-hour skills course

Students in the University of Memphis Mediation Clinic will study mediation from the inside-out, analyzing in detail the communicative, strategic, and ethical dimensions of specific interventions that mediators make in the context of particular cases. The Clinic will primarily focus on the students as the mediators, but the students will also be asked to consider the issues from other points of view: as the disputant, as an attorney representing a client in mediation, and in the capacity of advising an organizational client about dispute resolution options. The Mediation Clinic has four primary components: (1) The training that is required by Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 31 before one may become listed as a Rule 31 General Civil Mediator; (2) Ongoing student observation of mediations conducted by Rule 31 Mediators in General Sessions Court cases, Federal Court cases, and other administrative proceedings; (3) Student participation as co-mediator (when available with clients' permission) with Rule 31 Mediators in Shelby County General Sessions Court cases (or other agencies); and (4) Weekly classroom seminar and participation in simulations designed to give students further training and feedback throughout the course of the semester.

Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic
Course 595
4-hour skills course
Housed in both devoted hospital space and the law school Clinic offices, law students participating in the MLP Clinic provide legal assistance to the low-income patients of Le Bonheur Children's Hospital and their families under the supervision of experienced MLP faculty, lawyers, and healthcare providers. Among other case-related assignments, MLP Clinic students conduct intake interviews, develop case strategies, conduct legal research, prepare legal documents, counsel clients, and provide representation in court and administrative proceedings pursuant to applicable student practice rules. Among other areas of focus, the MLP Clinic assists clients in cases involving housing and landlord-tenant issues, public benefits, public and private health insurance, wills and health power of attorneys, guardianships, and conservatorships and educational law services.
To complement their casework, Clinic students will participate in a weekly interdisciplinary classroom session designed to explore the legal work they are performing, the legal, policy, and ethical issues that affect patients' health, and the ways that health outcomes and health care access for low-income children can be enhanced by bringing health and legal professionals together. Throughout their Clinic semester, students have the opportunity to work collaboratively with the faculty and staff of Le Bonheur Children's Hospital and to participate in joint class sessions with medical students and students from other health disciplines.
Prerequisites: Professional Responsibility and Evidence preferred, although not required.

Mental Health Law
Course 394
3-hour elective course
This course begins with a discussion of mental disorders from the medical perspective. Next, attention is turned to the role of mental health experts in legal matters, with special emphasis on that to which they can and cannot testify and when a defendant is entitled to the assistance of an expert. In this area, many of the cases involve the insanity defense, including those with the death penalty at stake.
The focus then turns to civil commitment, which is the largest part of the course. In short, a person can be involuntarily hospitalized if he or she has a mental illness and as a result of that mental illness is either dangerous to himself/herself or others. Both the substantive and procedural aspects of civil commitment are covered. To see these in practice, students have the opportunity to observe civil commitment hearings, which are closed to the public.
Some time is also spent on the issue of competency and the appointment of a guardian or conservator.

Finally, students examine what mental issues are required to be disclosed on the Tennessee Bar Application, and the consequences of those disclosures.

Mental Health Law Seminar
Course 402
3-hour research/writing course
Students will write and present a paper of publishable quality on a topic involving mental health law, the specific topic to be selected by the student with the approval of the instructor. Students will perform in-depth research and will participate in an intensive, supervised writing process. Significant time will be spent on instruction regarding academic writing and in editing the student's own work and, occasionally, the work of other students. In addition, the seminar will provide an opportunity to examine current topics in mental health law through reading assignments coupled with rigorous analysis and vigorous discussion amongst the seminar students under the guidance of the instructor. Approximately ten reading assignments will provide the material for analysis and discussion. Reading assignments will comprise excerpts from cases, law review articles and other periodicals, and newspapers and magazines. The seminar will take place across both the fall and spring semesters. The class will meet for two hours each week in the fall semester and for one hour each week in the spring semester with a final, overall grade being assigned at the end of the spring semester. The fall semester will focus on topic selection, the writing process, editing, and the reading assignments, and will culminate in a high-quality first draft of the paper. The second semester will focus on revising the paper and also will involve making a presentation to the seminar class based upon the paper.
Papers that earn a grade of C or better will satisfy the Advanced Research/Writing Requirement.

Mergers & Acquisitions
Course 301
2- or 3-hour elective
This course introduces students to the legal principles that underlie mergers and acquisitions. The advantages and disadvantages of various acquisition forms, such as mergers, asset acquisition, stock purchases, and tender offers are discussed. Significant focus is also given to the fiduciary duties and other obligations of company boards of directors, the role of shareholder voting, externalities arising from some merger/acquisition transactions, state anti-takeover statutes, disclosure requirements arising from the securities laws, and the effects of mergers and acquisitions on other constituencies (beyond shareholders and management). Prerequisite: Business Organizations.

Moot Court
Course 811
1- or 2-hour elective
Students can receive one or two credits for Moot Court by successfully completing intra-school moot court or mock trial competitions. A student who successfully completes two competitions is eligible for one credit. A student who successfully completes four competitions is eligible for two credits. Students generally register for credits in their final semester of study.

<BACK TO TOP>
National Security Law

Course 308
2-hour elective course
This course is designed for upper level students, particularly those interested in employment opportunities in the significant number of positions with the U.S. Government, U.S. Military, or private practice. Major areas to be covered will include the constitutional and legislative framework for Presidential power and the powers of Congress, using armed force abroad, detaining "enemy combatants" (terrorist suspects), intelligence gathering, Homeland Security, and future threats to national security. Significant current events also will influence the scope of the course schedule.

Negotiation and Mediation
Course 317
2-hour skills course
This course offers an introduction to negotiation theory and provides the opportunity to apply that theory in various negotiating contexts. Students will be exposed to basic concepts of principled and strategic negotiation and engage in in-class negotiating exercises. Students will also learn about the mediation process and how to negotiate effectively as advocates in mediation through role playing in mock mediation exercises at the end of the semester. This course is team taught with another section.

Non-Profit Organization Tax
Course 370
3-hour elective course
This course covers the state law requirements regarding the organization and operation of nonprofit organizations. In addition, a heavy emphasis is placed on the federal income tax treatment of nonprofit organizations, including the requirements for obtaining and maintaining tax-exempt status, the distinction between a public charity and a private foundation, the private foundation excise taxes, and the unrelated business income tax.
Prerequisites (Required): Income Tax.
Prerequisites (Recommended): Business Organizations.

Partnership Tax
Course 352
3-hour elective course
The course focuses on the federal income tax aspects of partnership formation, operations, sales and exchanges of partnership interests, operating distributions, liquidations and S Corporations.
Prerequisite (Required): Basic Income Tax
Prerequisite (Recommended): Corporate Tax

Patent Law
Course 390
3-hour elective course
This course covers the substantive requirements for obtaining a patent on an invention and enforcing patent rights in federal court. Topics include: patentable subject matter; utility; disclosure; novelty; nonobviousness; claim construction; infringement; defenses; and remedies. A technical background is not required for this course.

<BACK TO TOP>

Pre-Trial Litigation Practice

Course 551

3-hour skills course

An intensive simulation-course designed for students who plan to be civil litigators. Through a case file assigned at the beginning of the semester, students are encouraged to explore how lawyers strategically use each step in the pretrial litigation process to advance their clients' interests. Among other things, students will analyze the law, investigate the facts of the assigned case file, draft relevant pleadings, prepare and respond to discovery, take and defend depositions, brief and argue a pretrial motion and engage in settlement negotiations with an opposing party, all while maintaining client relations and expectations.

Prerequisites (Required): Civil Procedure & Evidence

Problems in Bankruptcy

Course 354

2-hour elective course

Addressing, discussing, and solving selective bankruptcy problems involving, for example, home mortgages, trustee's avoidance powers, relief from stay, plan confirmation utilizing applicable Code and Rule provisions and decisional law.

Products Liability

Course 357

2-hour elective course

A complete review of the current status of product liability law, including an examination of the bases of liability (warranty, misrepresentation, negligence and strict liability); issues relating to proximate cause; issues related to industry liability, market share and enterprise liability; a review of defenses available (comparative negligence, assumption of the risk, product misuse; product alteration, governmental standards pre-emption, statutes of limitations and statutes of repose, learned intermediary doctrine, idiosyncratic reaction); a review of damages issues peculiarly related to product liability law; evidentiary problems such as those related to expert witnesses and spoliation; an examination on the type of entities who are liable under presently existing product liability law (employers, lessors, bailors, franchisors, used product sellers, real estate vendors, landlords and personal service providers); and an examination in detail of the Tennessee Product Liability Act of 1978.

Professional Responsibility

Course 224

2-hour required course

Bar course

This course examines issues of professionalism and ethics, with a particular focus on the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct. This required course may be taken in the 2L or 3L year.

Property I

Course 115

3-hour required course

Coverage includes personal property, private interests in land, and the sale of land. Objectives include mastery of principal concepts of acquisition, retention, and transfer of property rights.

Property II

Course 125

3-hour required course

Coverage includes personal property, private interests in land, and the sale of land. Objectives include mastery of principal concepts of acquisition, retention, and transfer of property rights.

Public Health Law

Course 702

3-hours elective course

This course will offer a survey perspective of key issues at the intersection of public health (as distinguished from individual health or clinical treatment) and the law. It will examine the complex interplay between government's role in protecting and promoting population health, and individual liberties, privacy, commercial speech, and property rights. It will begin by discussing the foundations of legal involvement in public health and traditional government powers (e.g., infectious disease control and surveillance, vaccination, food and water safety, environmental safety). A substantial amount of time will then be spent on legal, policy, and ethical issues raised by evolving notions of those governmental powers, including the power of government (including through use of tort law) to promote "healthy" behaviors (e.g., anti-obesity efforts), and to regulate "non-valued" behaviors (e.g., smoking, alcohol use; decisions not to be vaccinated or comply with infection control). A small part of the course will also touch on recent efforts related to bioterrorism, responses to natural disasters, and public health genetics. While US-focused, there will be opportunities to discuss global public health.

Public International Law seminar

Course 404

2-hour research/writing course

Public international law is concerned with the law governing relations between States (i.e., U.S., China, Germany) as legal entities. This 2 hour seminar course is not bar tested, and is not a menu course, but it is an indispensable course for anyone who wants to understand global power structures. Week-by-week, we will cover a range of foundational doctrines in international law, including the doctrines of sources, jurisdiction, sovereign immunity, treaty law, and various remedial mechanisms and processes. over the course of the semester, students will prepare a seminar paper on an international law topic of their choice. While there are no prerequisites for the course, success in the course will require immersion in current events and heightened awareness of major global developments.

This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.

<BACK TO TOP>

Realty Transactions
Course 358
2-hour elective course
This course covers transactional aspects of the buying, selling and financing of real property including real estate contracts; title insurance, surveys, environmental issues and other pre-closing due diligence; conveyance documents and settlement statements; mortgages and other real estate finance documents; foreclosures; bankruptcy and tax implications; and ethical considerations.

Remedies
Course 368
3-hour elective course
Bar course
This course studies the nature and measurement of the judicial remedies to which a party is entitled after establishing that a substantive right has been violated. It focuses on Coercive Remedies (injunctions, specific performance), Damages (compensatory, punitive) and Restitution.

Research I
Course 711
1-hour elective
Independent Research is intended to permit students with an avid interest in a particular topic to explore that topic at length under the supervision of a faculty member. Accordingly, it is contemplated that students will generate the topic based upon the student's interests. In other words, it is not the purpose of Independent Study to enable a student to fill a gap in the student's schedule or to satisfy graduation requirements. Independent Study does not satisfy the advanced writing requirement, in whole or in part. Students may enroll in Independent Research for not more than one credit hour. In addition, permission of a supervising faculty member (who shall be a full-time, tenured or tenure-track faculty member) is required, as is approval by the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Sales
Course 359
3-hour statutory menu course
Bar course
This course covers Article 2, and to some intent, Articles 2A, 5, and 7.
Prerequisites (Recommended): Contracts I and II

Secured Transactions
Course 222
3-hour statutory menu course
General survey of topics relating to the creation, perfection, and priority of security interests, as well as topics relating to the identification of types of collateral and rights upon default. This course is recommended as an introductory commercial law class which introduces the student to the Uniform Commercial Code.

Securities Regulation
Course 361

3-hour elective course

This course considers federal regulation of the registration, issuance, and trading of securities in national, regional and private markets for securities. Materials in the course will examine the 1933 and 1934 Acts and other federal statutory provisions (for example, The Dodd-Frank Act of 2010) and their effects on markets for issuance and trading of securities.

Prerequisites (Recommended): Business Organizations I

<BACK TO TOP>

Sports Law

Course 372

2-hour elective course

This course is designed to introduce students to the legal, business and policy issues and disputes that arise in the world of amateur and professional sports. The course will approach topics from the perspective of various players in the sports industry, such as the sports lawyer, the corporate counselor, the university administration, team management, various sports regulatory bodies, the athletes and even the fans. In addition, we will discuss and dissect current events in the world of sports.

Tax Seminar

Course 431

2-hour research/writing course

Assigned readings on various tax policy topics are discussed in class. In addition, each student prepares a research paper on a selected tax policy topic and presents that paper to the class. To further enhance writing skills, each student edits two other students' research papers. This course satisfies the Advanced Research/Writing requirement.
Prerequisite (Required): Basic Income Tax

Tennessee Civil Procedure Seminar

Course 429

2-hour research/writing course

The Tennessee Civil Procedure Seminar addresses the subject matter jurisdiction of Tennessee's various courts; judicial jurisdiction with emphasis on Tennessee's long arm statutes; venue; statutes of limitation and repose; pleadings; pre-trial motion practice; discovery; trial practice including jury selection, opening statements , presentation of evidence and objections under the Tennessee Rules of Evidence, jury instructions, closing arguments, verdicts, and post trial motions; and appeals under the Tennessee Rules of Appellate Procedure. Ethics issues as they relate to Tennessee Civil Procedure will be addressed as will enforcement of judgments. General Sessions Court and Juvenile Court practice.
Course materials will be made available on TWEN.

Students enrolled in this seminar will prepare original research papers on a topic of Tennessee Civil Procedure, which may include topics regarding civil trial practice, rules of evidence, appellate practice, and ethics, among other topics. It is expected that student papers will be of a quality worthy of publication as a

Note in a law review such as the UM Law Review. Students will be expected to prepare initial and final drafts of their papers. Papers that earn a grade of C or better will satisfy the Advanced Research/Writing Requirement.

<BACK TO TOP>

Tennessee Constitutional Law Seminar

Course 445

2-hour research/writing course

This seminar will explore state constitutional doctrine. While development under the Constitution of Tennessee will be a principal focus, selected issues in other states will be examined as well, as will the methodology of state constitutional analysis. This course satisfies the Research/Writing requirement.

Prerequisites (Required): Constitutional Law

Torts I

Course 112

3-hour required course

Torts addresses civil wrongs, other than breaches of contract, for which the law provides a monetary remedy. Torts I begins with coverage of the basic intentional torts (battery, assault, false imprisonment, intentional infliction of emotional distress, trespass to land, trespass to chattels, and conversion) and the privileges or defenses to the intentional torts. Most of the course, however, is devoted to the broad tort of negligence. Simplistically, negligence law is the study of liability for accidental injuries.

Torts II

Course 122

3-hour required course

Torts II picks up where Torts I leaves off, with further consideration of the tort of negligence. Other topics that may be covered include strict liability (of which products liability is the largest component), wrongful death, tort damages, and defamation and privacy.

Prerequisite (Required): Torts I

Trade Secrets

Course 707

2- or 3-hours elective course

Trade secrets are one of the four core areas of intellectual property law and the one most likely to be encountered in legal practice by non-specialists, as trade secret issues arise in areas as diverse as employment law, business formation, mergers and acquisitions, licensing, franchising, venture financing, development of new technologies, and contractual relationships of all sorts between competitors, joint venturers and vendors.

This course will cover the laws protecting trade secrets and confidential business information, including the various related doctrines that govern the ownership and use of information between employers and employees, fiduciary duties, non-compete agreements, and assignment agreements concerning new inventions and discoveries.

The focus of the course will be on the Uniform Trade Secrets Act now in effect in almost every state (including Tennessee), as well as the federal Economic Espionage Act. The "hot" topics in current trade secret practice, including what does and does not constitute an actual trade secret, the doctrine of inevitable disclosure, and real-world contractual restrictions on employee mobility through non-competes and non-solicitation covenants, will be covered in depth. Alongside this practice-oriented approach, the course will also explore certain public policy concerns, including the effect of trade secret laws on employee rights and on technological innovation. There are no prerequisites for this course and no prior experience in Intellectual Property is required.

Trademarks
Course 366
2-hour elective course
Considers legal and policy problems in the law of trademarks through case analysis and examination of the Lanham Act. Topics include marks subject to protection, the federal registration process, likelihood of confusion, 'palming off,' and remedies.

Prerequisite (Recommended): IP Survey

Trial Advocacy
Course 516
3-hour skills course
Trial Advocacy is a simulation course wherein students will learn about the various phases of jury trial in civil and criminal contexts, as well as the differences between jury and non-jury trials. Students will simulate jury selection, opening statements, direct and cross examinations, and closing arguments, and will learn how to introduce exhibits, present expert testimony, raise and respond to objections, and deal with problem witnesses. Students will have weekly simulation assignments and, in most sections, will conduct a full trial at the end of the semester. This course satisfies the upper-level skills requirement.

Prerequisite (Required): Evidence, may be taken concurrently

Trust Law
Course 392
2-hour elective course
A comprehensive, theoretical study of the law of trusts, including the history, the necessary elements of a trust, beneficiary rights, Trust administration, trustee roles and liability.
Prerequisites (Required): Decedents' Estates
Prerequisites (Recommended): Estate Planning

U.S. Taxation of International Income
Course 385
3-hour elective course

The course will examine U.S. tax rules applicable to business and investment activities of foreign individuals and corporations in the United States (“inbound transactions”) and U.S. tax rules applicable to U.S. taxpayers who invest and conduct business abroad (“outbound transactions”. Specific topics will include sourcing and characterization of items of income and deductions, the branch profits tax, foreign investment in U.S. real estate, the foreign tax credit, property transfers, controlled foreign corporations, and U.S. tax treaties. Federal Taxation of Business Entities is a prerequisite but it may be taken concurrently.

Prerequisite (Required): Basic Income Tax
Prerequisite (Recommended): Partnership Tax

Voting Rights & Election Law
Course 704
2-hour elective course
Voting Rights & Election Law covers the law involving voting rights, election administration, and campaign finance. Topics covered will include one-person, one-vote; political and racial gerrymandering; alternative electoral systems; election challenges and recounts; voter enfranchisement and disenfranchisement; and the regulation of campaign finance. Both constitutional and statutory issues will be covered.

White Collar Crime
Course 703
2-hour elective course
This course will introduce students to the scope and significance of white collar crime in the United States and educate students about the substance and procedure of federal white collar crime prosecutions, with an emphasis on health care crimes. Students who take the course will become familiar with fundamental procedures of federal criminal investigation, prosecution and sentencing. Substantively, they will develop an understanding of the most frequently used federal white collar criminal statutes and those statutes most often used to prosecute health care crimes.

Prerequisite (Recommended): Criminal Procedure

<BACK TO TOP>

Electives & Specialized Areas of Study

Memphis Law's curriculum provides many elective courses which cover a wide range of substantive legal knowledge and lawyering skills. The upper level curriculum permits students to take courses in specialty areas of law, develop fundamental lawyering skills, and concentrate their legal education in particular areas of interest. These elective courses are listed by basic specialty areas.

Commercial Law

Bankruptcy Externship

Commercial Paper

Debtor-Creditor

Problems in Bankruptcy

Sales

Constitutional Law

Civil Rights

Education & Civil Rights

Federal Courts A

Federal Courts B

Tennessee Constitutional Law Seminar

Corporate/Business Law

Antitrust

Business Organizations II

Mergers & Acquistions

Securities Regulation

Secured Transactions

Unfair Trade Practices

Domestic Relations Law

Child and Family Litigation Clinic

Divorce Law Practicum

Family Law

Juvenile Law

Juvenile Law and Practice

Estate Planning and Probate Law

Elder Law

Elder Law Clinic

Estate Planning

Trust Law

Health Law

Health Law Survey

Health Law Seminar

Health Policy Practicum

Intellectual Property Law

Copyright

Cyber Law
Patent Law

International and Comparative Law
Comparative Law Seminar
Immigration Law
International Business Transactions
International Economic Law

Jurisprudence, Interdisciplinary Study and Public Policy
Education/Civil Rights
Federal Discrimination Seminar
Gun Control/Gun Rights Seminar
Jurisprudence
Law and Accounting
Law and Economics
Legal History
Mental Health Law

Labor and Employment Law
Fair Employment Practices
Labor Relations
NLRB (National Labor Relations Board) Externship

Lawyering Skills Practice
ADR-Labor
ADR-Mediation
Negotiation and Mediation
Advanced Appellate Advocacy
Appellate Advocacy
Child and Family Litigation Clinic
Criminal Justice Externship
Discovery
Elder Law Clinic
Ethics Seminar
General Sessions Civil Litigation Clinic
Judicial Externship
Legal Argument and Appellate Practice
Legislation
Memphis Area Legal Services Externship

Pre-Trial Litigation
Trial Advocacy
Professional Responsibility
U.S. Attorney Externship

Procedure/Civil and Criminal

Administrative Law
Civil Procedure III
Conflicts
Criminal Procedure II
Federal Courts A
Federal Courts B
Remedies
Tennessee Civil Procedure Seminar

Real Estate/Environmental Law

Environmental Law
Environmental Law Seminar
Land Use Planning
Realty Transactions

Taxation

Estate and Gift Tax
Federal Taxation of Business Enterprises
Non-Profit Organization Tax
Partnership Tax
Tax Seminar

Torts/Product Liability Law

Insurance Law
Privacy Law Seminar
Products Liability

<BACK TO TOP>

Upper-level Research Requirement & Skills Requirement

To graduate, a student must successfully complete the upper-level research requirement and the skills requirement. See Academic Regulation 16.c.

Skills Course: A student must have two-credits of skills credit to satisfy the Skills Requirement.

- ADR/Arbitration
- ADR/Labor
- ADR/Mediation
- ADR/Negotiation
- Advanced Clinic
- Business Planning
- Clinic
- Disability Law & Practice
- Discovery
- Divorce Law Practicum
- Externship
- Juvenile Law and Practice
- Legal Argument & Appellate Practice (satisfies either Skills or Upper-level Research/Writing, but not both)
- Legal Drafting: Litigation
- Legal Drafting: Contracts
- Trial Advocacy
- Appellate Advocacy
- Advanced Appellate Advocacy
- Advanced Trial Advocacy

Upper-level Research/Writing Requirement: A student must have two-credits of research/writing credits to satisfy the Upper-level Research/Writing Requirement.

- Successful completion of the Law Review Note
- Legal Argument & Appellate Practice (satisfies either Skills or Upper-level Research/Writing, but not both)
- Seminar

Zoology

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

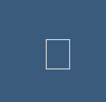
Alumni & Support

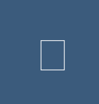
ABA Required Disclosures

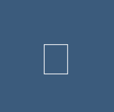
Full sitemap

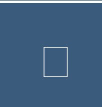
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

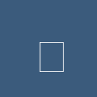
Follow UofM Online

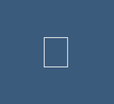












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/8/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

ACADEMIC CURRICULUM

Memphis Law offers both a full-time day program and a part-time day program. The part-time program is for a limited number of students whose other responsibilities make full-time study difficult. Our curriculum is designed to challenge students and prepare them for the practice of law. The curriculum reflects a commitment to traditional legal education with the emphasis on fundamental lawyering skills and core areas of knowledge.

Memphis Law operates on the semester system and requires 90 semester hours for the J.D. degree. A full-time student is required to enroll in at least 12 hours each semester. Students in the full-time program normally graduate in three years. Summer classes are sometimes available and students can graduate after five semesters and two summer sessions of full-time study.

Part-time students normally will graduate in four or four-and-one-half years (including summer semesters). Graduation requirements for those students enrolled in the part-time program are the same as for those students enrolled in the full-time program. A part-time student is required to enroll in at least eight hours, but may enroll in no more than 11 hours, each semester.

CLICK HERE FOR CURRICULUM SUMMARY

CLICK HERE FOR COURSE CATALOG

Transferred Credit

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

Determination of Credit Hours for Coursework

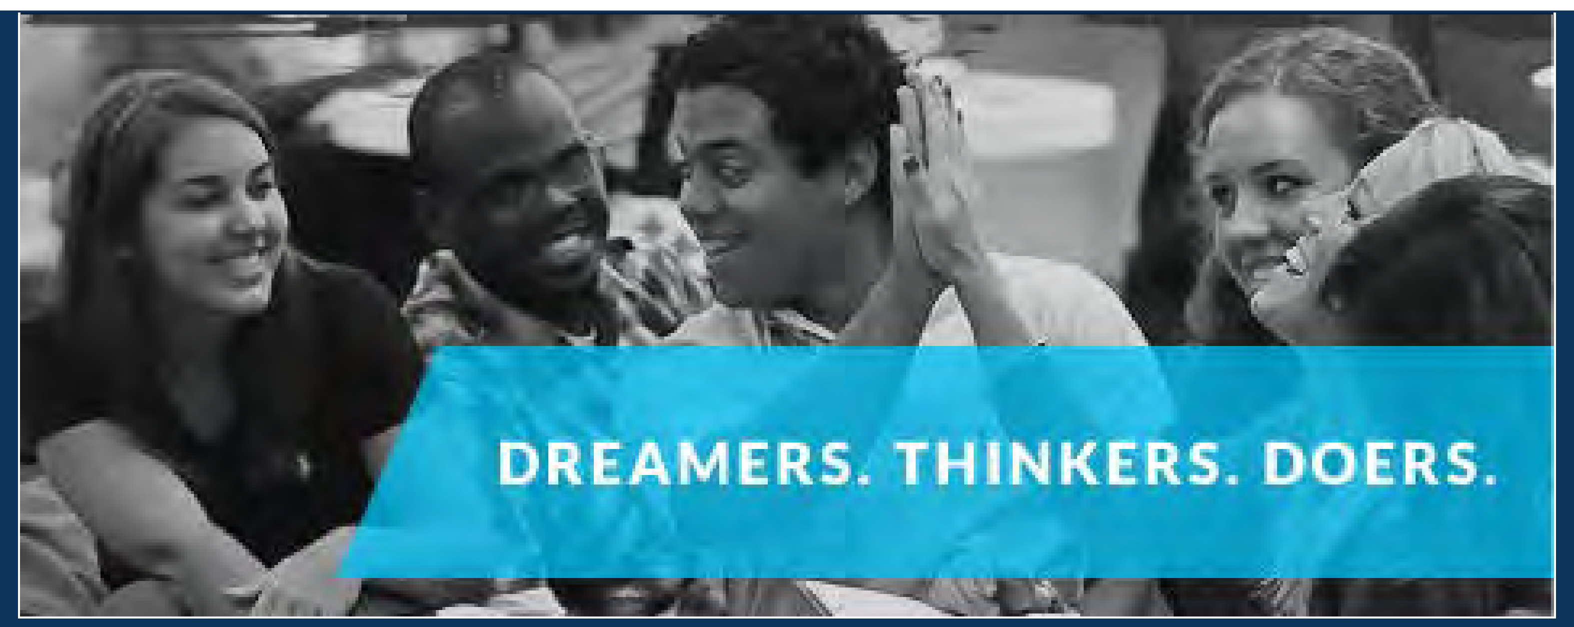
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/7/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

Calendars

Academic Calendars

- 2017-2018 Academic Calendar
- 2016-2017 Academic Calendar
- 2015-2016 Academic Calendar
- 2014-2015 Academic Calendar

Deadlines Calendars

- Spring 2015 Deadlines
- Summer 2015 Deadlines
- Fall 2015 Deadlines
- Spring 2016 Deadlines
- Summer 2016 Deadlines
- Fall 2016 Deadlines
- Spring 2017 Deadlines

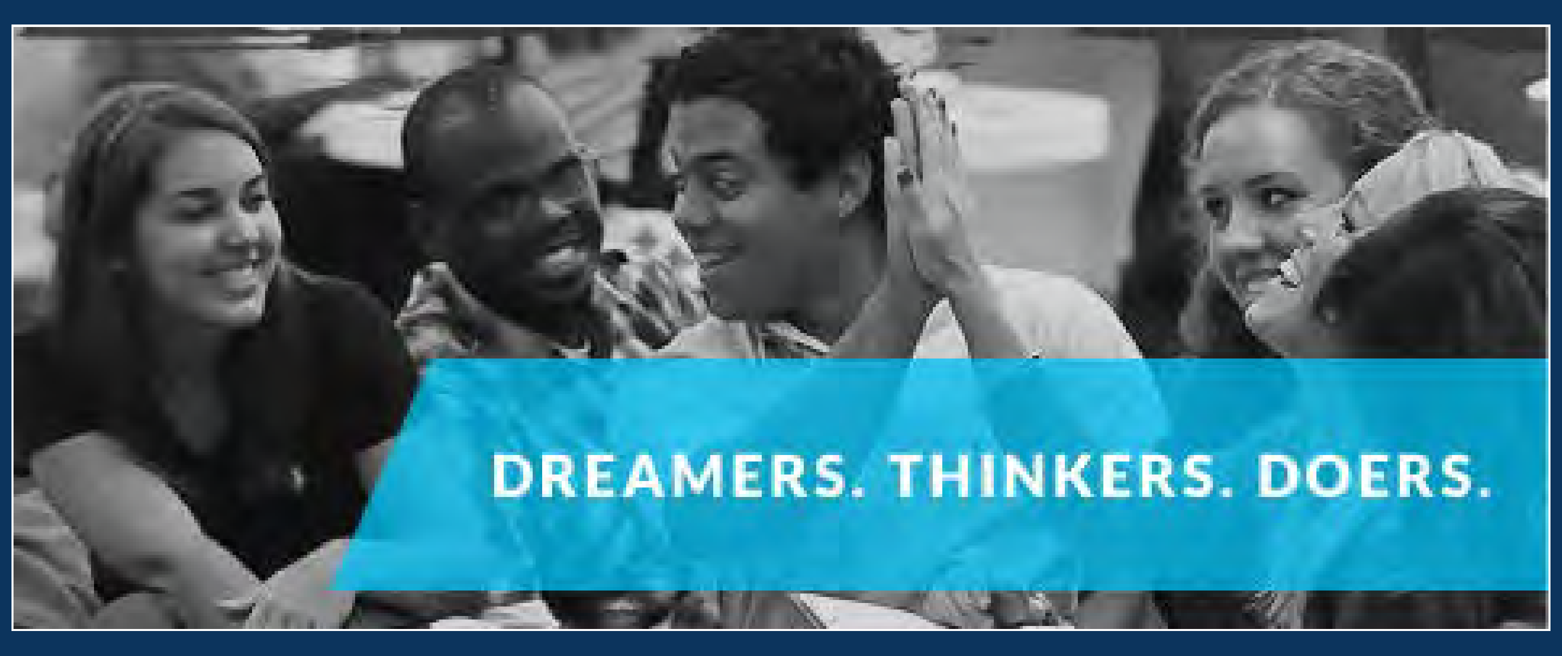
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

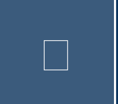
ABA Required Disclosures

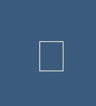
Full sitemap

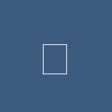


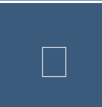
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

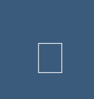
Follow UofM Online

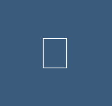












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/4/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

RECORDS REQUEST

The procedures for obtaining both official and unofficial transcripts are listed below. Note that official transcripts are available only through the University of Memphis Registrar's Office on main campus, not through the Law School.

Official Transcripts for Current Students and Alumni

Official transcripts must be requested from the University of Memphis Registrar's office. Please note that normal processing time is five business days.

- Go to the UofMemphis Registrar's website for an explanation of the process.
- Complete this Transcript Request form.
- Current students may bring the form to the Registrar's office at Memphis Law to be faxed.
- If you plan to request your transcript in person, there is a separate form to complete in the UofMemphis Registrar's office.
- If you have already requested or are requesting more than a total of 20 transcripts, a fee of $5.00 per transcript charge will apply to quantities over 20.

Unofficial Transcripts for Current Students and Alumni

- Current students and recent alumni may view and print an unofficial transcript in Student Self Service.

- Alumni entering the Law School in Fall 1988 or later may print an unofficial transcript; see instructions on this page.
- Alumni entering the Law School prior to Fall 1988 must request an official transcript; unofficial transcripts are not available.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

The Academic Regulations at Memphis Law govern the Academic Affairs of all students enrolled at the School of Law. All references to these Academic Regulations shall be deemed to include Appendix I. It is the responsibility of each student to be familiar with the terms contained herein and each student shall be deemed to be so. For the purposes of these Academic Regulations, any place where approval of the Dean is required, it shall be taken to mean the Dean or the Dean's designate such as the Associate Dean or an Assistant Dean.

ACADEMIC YEAR 2016 - 2017

The 2016 - 2017 Academic Regulations can be viewed and downloaded in full by CLICKING HERE.

ACADEMIC YEAR 2015 - 2016

The 2015 - 2016 Academic Regulations can be viewed and downloaded in full by CLICKING HERE.

A helpful "Academic Regulations FAQ" document can be found by CLICKING HERE.

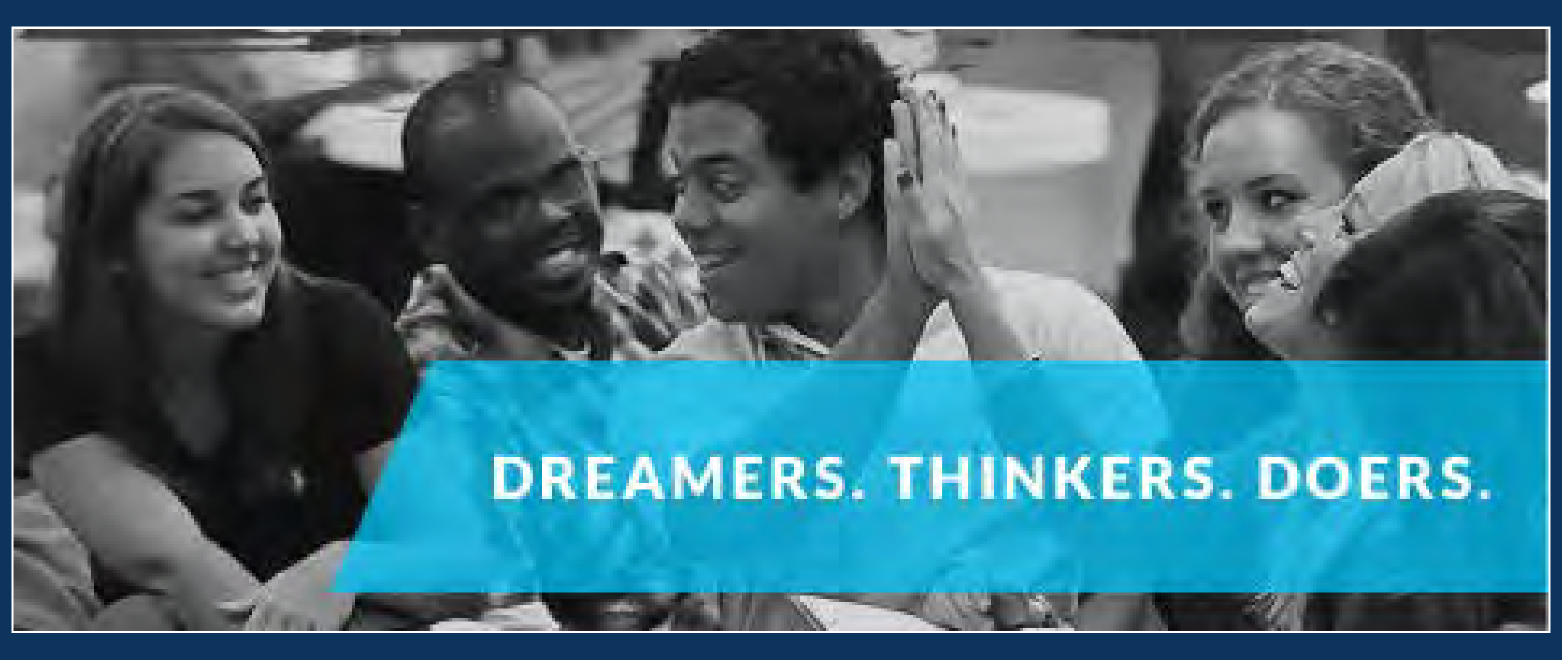
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

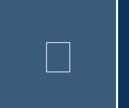
ABA Required Disclosures

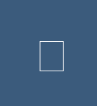
Full sitemap

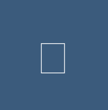


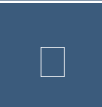
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

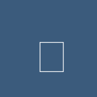
Follow UofM Online

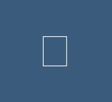












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/1/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

Current Students

STUDENT ADVISING

Dean Mulroy, Dean Aden, and Law School Registrar, Jamie Johnson, are available by appointment for students who need academic advising.

A summary of information students should know in selecting courses can be found here.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

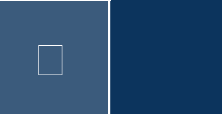
Alumni & Support

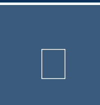
ABA Required Disclosures

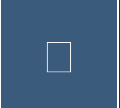
Full sitemap

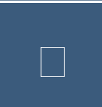
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

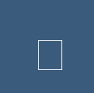
Follow UofM Online

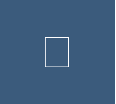












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

BAR EXAM INFORMATION

On this page, you can find information for the various Bar examinations and deadlines that are applicable to your situation. Please read the information thoroughly, paying special attention to required deadlines and fee information. Various required forms are linked throughout the page for easy download.

Character & Fitness

In addition to a bar examination, there are character, fitness, and other qualifications for admission to the bar in every U.S. jurisdiction. Applicants are encouraged to determine the requirements for any jurisdiction in which they intend to seek admission by contacting the jurisdiction. Addresses for all relevant agencies are available through the National Conference of Bar Examiners.

Multistate Professional Responsibility Exam (MPRE)

Test Dates, Deadlines, and Fees:

2017 MPRE Test Dates, Registration Deadlines, and Fees

Test Date*	Regular Registration Deadline ($95)	Late Registration Deadline ($190)
Saturday, March 18, 2017	January 26, 2017	February 2, 2017
Saturday, August 12, 2017	June 22, 2017	June 29, 2017
Saturday, November 4, 2017	September 14, 2017	September 21, 2017

* Applicants whose religious beliefs preclude them from taking the MPRE on a Saturday may apply with LSAC to take the exam on the designated alternate date, usually the following Monday. To apply, you must provide a letter to LSAC on official stationery from your cleric confirming your affiliation with a recognized religious entity that observes its Sabbath throughout the year on Saturday. Email a copy of the letter to LSAC at MPREInfo@LSAC.org. The letter must be received at LSAC by the late registration deadline or you will not be allowed to test.

 ADA Accommodations Requests: All ADA accommodations requests must be RECEIVED by the late registration deadline; NO exceptions.

You can find additional information about the MPRE here.

Tennessee Bar Exam

Students wishing to take the Tennessee Bar Exam should consult the Board of Law Examiners of Tennessee and the National Conference of Bar Examiners for information on completing the bar application and preparing for the bar exam. This page contains some general information about the Tennessee Bar exam obtained from these sources.
Please note that the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners has a new website, http://www.tnble.org/.

TN Bar Application

Tennessee applicants must file bar applications with the Tennessee Bar. The Board of Law Examiners uses an electronic application, and application instructions are available here.

Your bar application will require a notary. Brigitte Boyd, Sandy Love and Cheryl Edwards are all notaries at the law school. They are available to notarize applications for University of Memphis law students at no cost. Please schedule an appointment to meet with a notary and make sure to bring your student ID card for identification purposes.

Make sure that you complete the Law Degree or Dean's Certification form and turn it in to Cheryl Edwards, the Administrative Assistant to the Law School Registrar in Room 262 as soon as possible.

Disclose any admonitory actions before turning in your application. If you failed to disclose an admonitory action such as an act of academic dishonesty or an arrest before law school or you were involved in an admonitory while in law school, contact Steve Mulroy, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, as soon as possible.

Information about laptop testing versus hand-writing the bar exam is available here.

TN Bar Exam

The Tennessee Bar exam, a two-day exam, consists of

- The six-hour Multistate Bar Exam (MBE)
- Nine (9) Tennessee essay questions, and
- The Multistate Performance Test (MPE).

Copies of past Tennessee essay questions are available here.

The following subjects may be tested on the Tennessee bar exam:

- Constitutional law (United States and Tennessee);
- Criminal law (substantive and procedural);
- Contracts;
- Torts;
- Property (real and personal);
- Evidence;
- Civil procedure (United States and Tennessee);
- Business organizations (including agency, partnerships and corporations);
- Commercial transactions (Articles 1, 2, and 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code);
- Wills and estates;
- Family law (husband and wife, parent and child, marriage and divorce, etc.);
- Professional responsibility;
- Restitution and remedies; and
- Conflicts of law.

Other State Bar Exams

If you are taking the bar examination in another state, contact information for each state is available here through the National Conference of Bar Examiners. Additional information is also available in the 2016 Edition of the Comprehensive Guide to Bar Admissions Requirements, a joint publication of the National Conference of Bar Examiners and the ABA Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

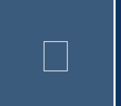
Alumni & Support

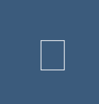
ABA Required Disclosures

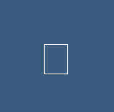
Full sitemap

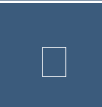
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

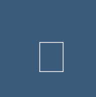
Follow UofM Online

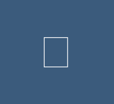












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/19/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

STUDENT AFFAIRS

The Office of Student Affairs assists law students in a variety of ways:

- Overseeing the Academic Success Program.
- Hosting student activities such as 1L Orientation, Commencement and Student Organization Fairs.
- Overseeing Student Organizations and keeping an up-to-date Student Organization roster and calendar (On Legal Grounds).
- Acting as a liaison between the law school and the Office of Student Affairs on our main campus institution.
- Working with Disability Resources for Students to provide classroom accommodations for students with disabilities.
- Being available to meet one-on-one with students to discuss and assist with student needs.
- Overseeing law student logistical needs, such as locker rentals, student ID cards, parking, and counseling services.

If you have a question related to student affairs, please do not hesitate to contact the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, Meredith Aden.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

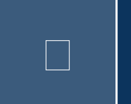
Alumni & Support

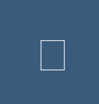
ABA Required Disclosures

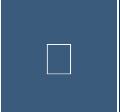
Full sitemap

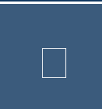
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

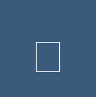
Follow UofM Online

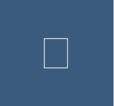












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

ACADEMIC SUCCESS PROGRAM

Memphis Law offers an Academic Success Program (ASP) for first-year and upper-level students.

First Year Students

The ASP program helps first-year students get off to a strong start with a variety of resources that are essential to success in their first year of study. The program is free and is open to all first-year students.

First-year ASP consists of two components: a workshop series and individual tutorials. The "Lunch and Learn" workshop series begins early in the fall and assists students in areas such as class preparation, case briefing, study skills, and exam preparation. Lunch is provided for students while the program director presents some of the basic skills needed for success at Memphis Law.

One-on-one tutorials are offered to first-year students who have questions concerning their classes or want to improve their study skills. Tutorials are conducted in individual meetings led by highly accomplished upper-level students.

Upper-Level Students

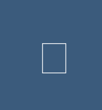
The ASP program is also available to upper-level students. Students can meet with Dean Aden, Director of the Academic Success Program, to seek assistance. In addition, students can meet with the ASP graduate assistants for help with study skills, exam prep, outlining, etc. The program is free and is open to all upper-level students.

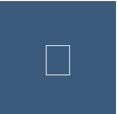
If you would like to make an appointment with Dean Aden, please see the instructions here on how to send a calendar invite.

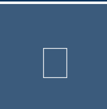
Full sitemap

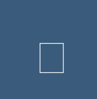
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

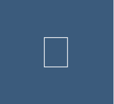
Follow UofM Online











Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

COMMENCEMENT INFORMATION

Memphis Law celebrates all graduates with three annual commencement ceremonies, in May, August, and December. (August and December commencements are held with the University's main ceremony).

May 2017 Commencement Information

Saturday, May 13, 2017 at 5:00 p.m.
The Orpheum Theater
203 S. Main Street
Memphis, TN 38103

Graduation is expected to last until approximately 7:00 p.m.

Seating

We will have general seating at graduation with the exception of several reserved front rows. Your guests do not need to purchase or use tickets for graduation. There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend.

Photographers

There will be professional photographers taking photos at graduation. Each graduate will be photographed on stage as he or she is being hooded and during the handshake. In addition, each graduate will have the opportunity to take an additional formal graduation photo during the graduation ceremony. Information about how to purchase photographs will be available at the ceremony.

Invitations

The law school will not have an official invitation, but graduates can order invitations through the University or on their own. To order through the University, please contact Balfour at 1-800-278-7644 or visit the law school landing page on their website. Be sure to use this link to ensure you are on the law school landing page and not the main university landing page.

More information will be available closer to the date.

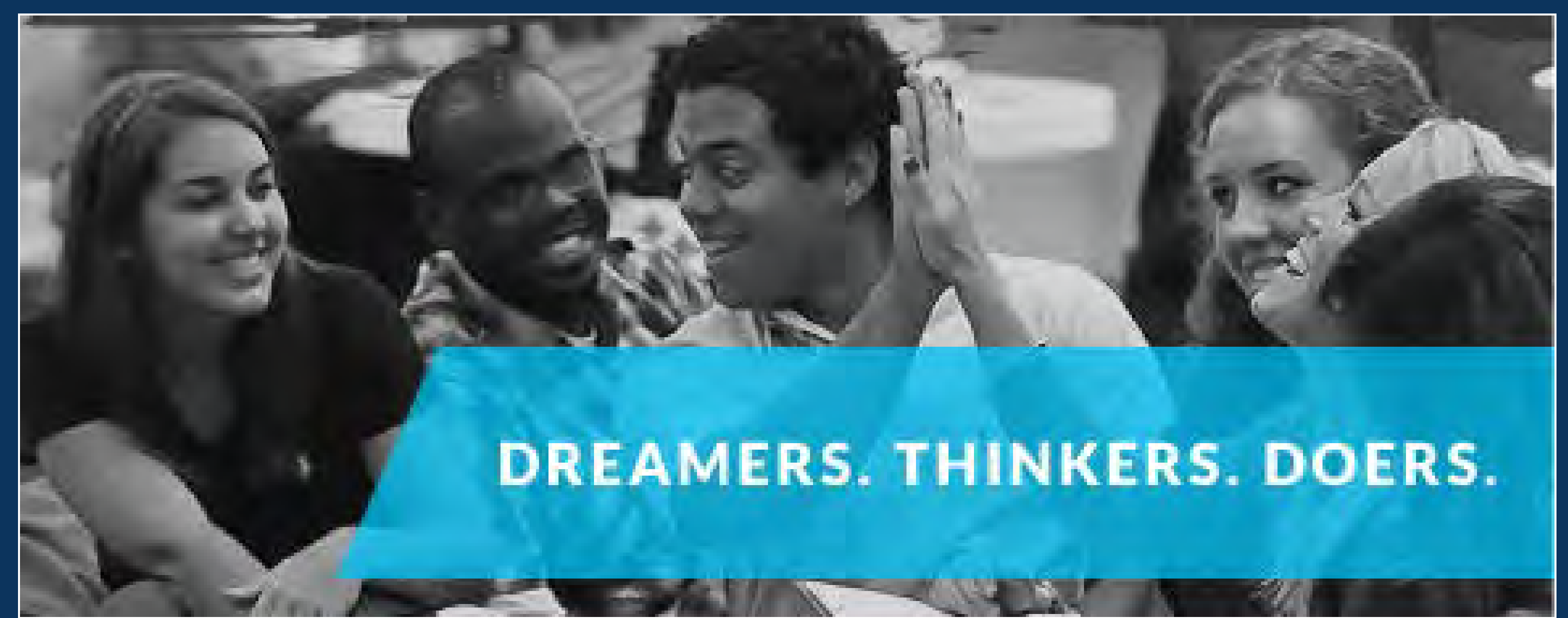
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

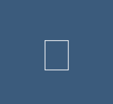
ABA Required Disclosures

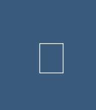
Full sitemap

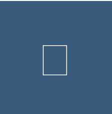


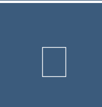
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

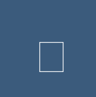
Follow UofM Online

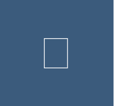












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/21/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

COUNSELING SERVICES

The University of Memphis Counseling Center provides free counseling, wellness, and psychiatric services for University of Memphis students, including law students.

The Counseling Center is located on the main campus in Room 214, Wilder Tower. And, the Counseling Center now provides free parking to law students utilizing counseling services.

If you want to take advantage of the free parking for the Counseling Center, you should park in the Zach Curlin garage, attend your counseling appointment or meeting, and request a single-use parking voucher at the end of the session. Each voucher can be used one time to exit the Zach Curlin parking garage with no charge.

At this time, the single-use vouchers are only available for students using the Counseling Center.

You can learn more about the University Counseling Center and the services available to students here:

http://www.memphis.edu/cpcc/

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Library

TECHNOLOGY

University Technology Resources are available to all UofM students, staff, and faculty. This includes law students and the law building even though we are not on the main campus. This is the ITD resources page that links to the technology that is available including identity management, e-mail, wireless, printing and all university resources. Here are a few of the highlights of what would be useful to law students:

- myMemphis portal (formerly Spectrum) brings together the university's technology resources in one place. The myMemphis Portal personalizes information it displays to each user, as well as allows the user to customize information.
- iAM identity management website allows students, staff, and faculty to manage their computer account password and display name.
- iPrint Kiosks are located throughout campus. Students, staff, and faculty can print from their laptop to any iPrint kiosk. For a list of iPrint locations, visit the Technology Resource Locator. iPrint kiosks in the law building are located on the labs in rooms 205 and 432. Instructions for installing iPrint.
- Wireless Network (Safe Connect) Access is available to connect to the University wireless for portable technology devices, including laptops. Students, staff, and faculty can register their portable technology device once and then use the university's wireless network anytime.
- Get started with Email. The University of Memphis has a "cloud based" Microsoft Live@EDU system. Email can be accessed via the web from on or off campus. Students, staff, and faculty are each given 10gb mailboxes under this system.

Help desk staff are available to answer your technology-related questions 24-hours a day, 7 days a week, excluding university holidays. Please call 901-678-8888 for assistance.

- Law students have 24/7 access to the law building. All classrooms have wireless, projectors, and screens. The law library houses 2 computer labs; rooms 205 and 432. Westlaw and Lexis printers are available for student use.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/9/15 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

ID CARD REPLACEMENT

University of Memphis Law School IDs are available for law students who want to replace a lost or stolen ID Card. The cost is $10, which is only payable by credit card here via an online payment system.

Once you have completed the online payment, please print a copy of your payment confirmation page and bring it to the law school business officer in Room 267 on the second floor of the Law School in the Deans' Administrative Wing.

After confirming payment, we will take your picture and send it off for your card to be made.

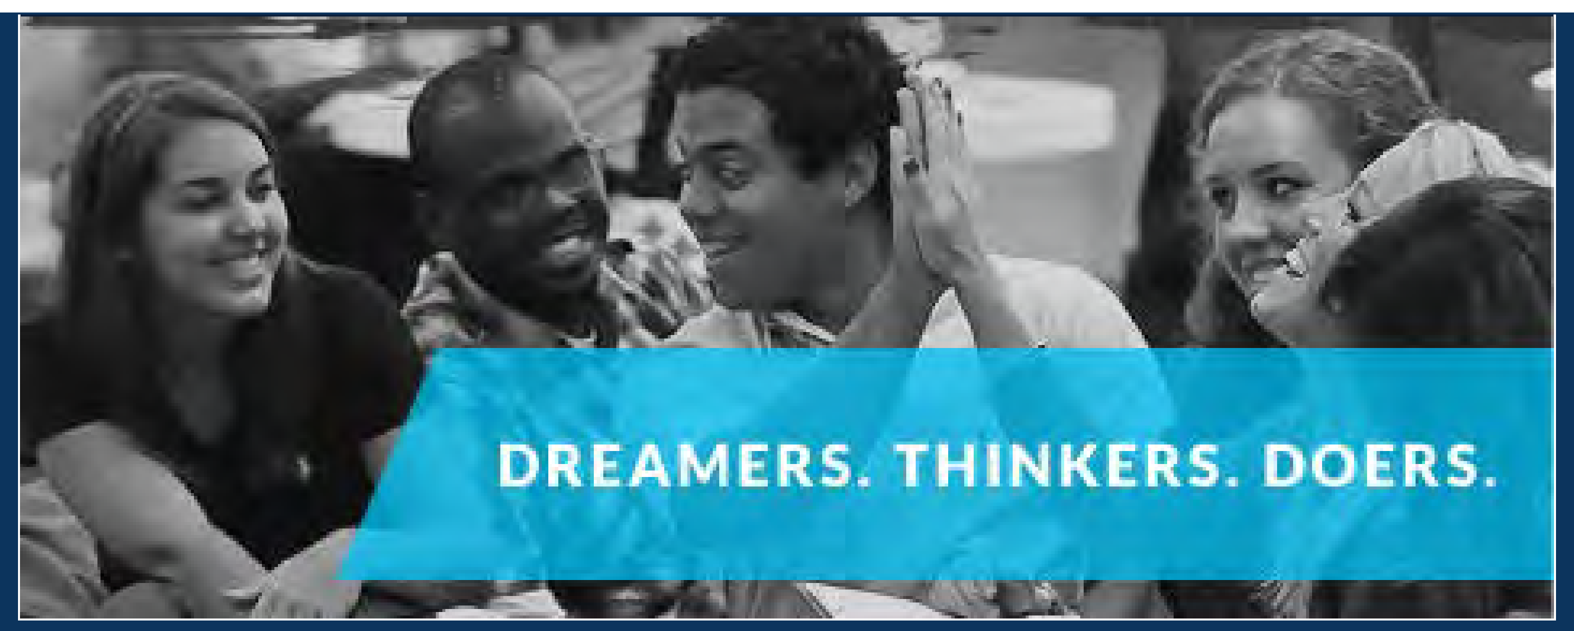
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LOCKER RENTALS

Lockers are available for law students who want to have a secure location to keep personal belongings during the school year. Lockers are optional, and the cost is $5/semester.

To rent a locker:

- Complete the online payment process and locker rental agreement here. (Note that cash and checks will no longer be accepted - all lockers must be rented using the online payment system).
- Bring a copy of your payment confirmation to Brigitte Boyd in the Student Affairs office. She will assign you a locker number and provide you with a lock (included in the rental fee).

For questions, please contact Brigitte Boyd.

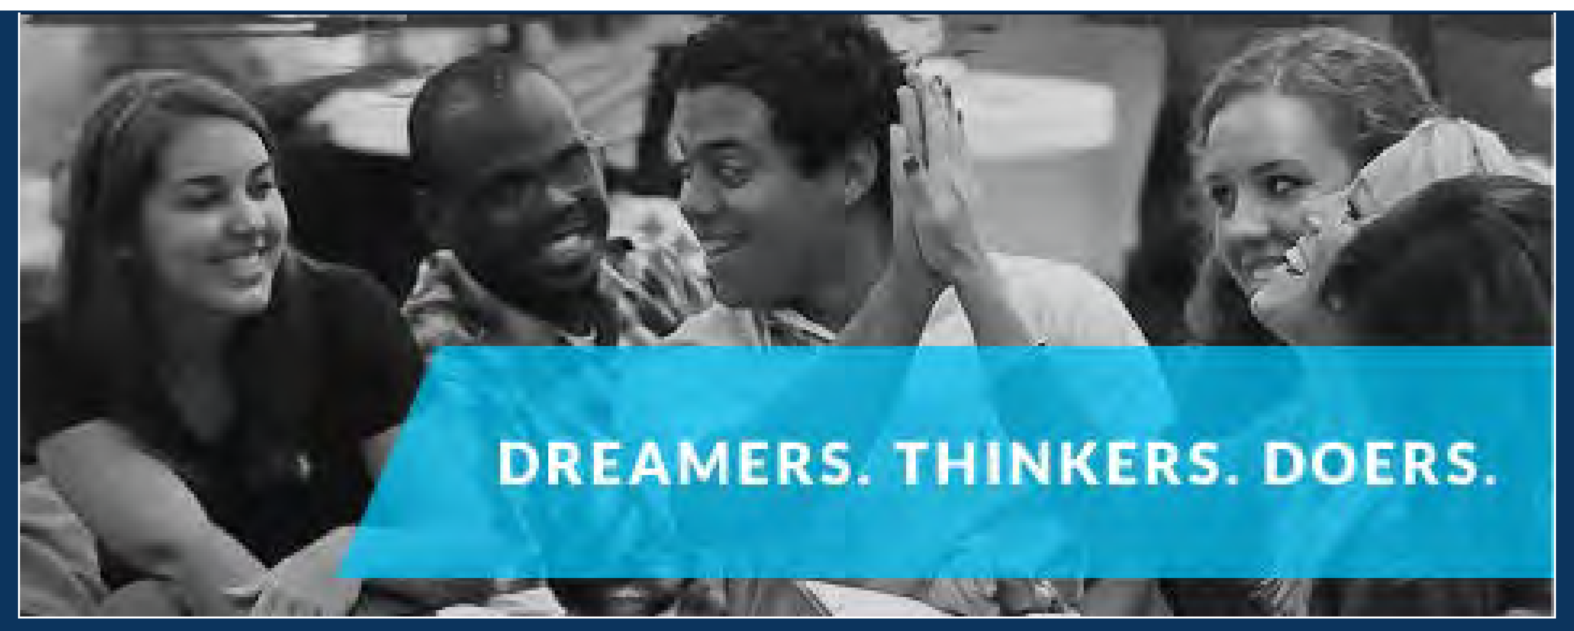
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION

Before classes begin, all first-year students participate in an orientation program to ease the transition into law school. This year's orientation will take place from August 8 - August 12, 2016.

There are numerous opportunities to interact with professors and fellow students. Upper level students will serve as Peer Mentors to small groups of 10-12 students. There will be opportunities to discuss essential study skills, workload, school policies, community involvement opportunities, and other topics of interest.

You will receive an orientation to our excellent facility and information about our downtown location, housing, and parking. Finally, you will attend your first Legal Methods class to begin your legal education.

The information below will remain on this page for the duration of the academic year, so that you can access it as needed during your time at Memphis Law.

2016 Orientation Details

- Orientation Schedule
- 1L Pre-Orientation Checklist
- Welcome Reception at the Belz Museum Invitation
- Social Events Invitation
- Pre-Orientation Survey
- Financial Responsibility Statement
- Post-Orientation Survey
- Lawyering Fundamentals

2016-2017 Academic Information

- 2016-2017 Academic Calendar for Law School
- Academic Regulations
- First Class Assignments
- 1L Book List
- Registration Instructions for Westlaw, TWEN and TWEN Course
- Registering for Lexis Access and Web Course on Blackboard

Student Services Information

- Bookstore Advance Payment Plan (BAPP) Information
- Career Services: Handout for New Students
- Financial Aid
- Information Technology
- Law Library
- Law School Floorplans
- Locker Rental Information
- Parking Information

- Oath of Professionalism
- Student Health Insurance
- TigerText Information
- University of Memphis Map

Video Introductions to Law School Offices

- Registrar's Office
- Career Services Office
- Law Library
- Police Services
- Office of Diversity
- Counseling Services

Academic Success Program (ASP)

- ASP Information
- ASP Schedule

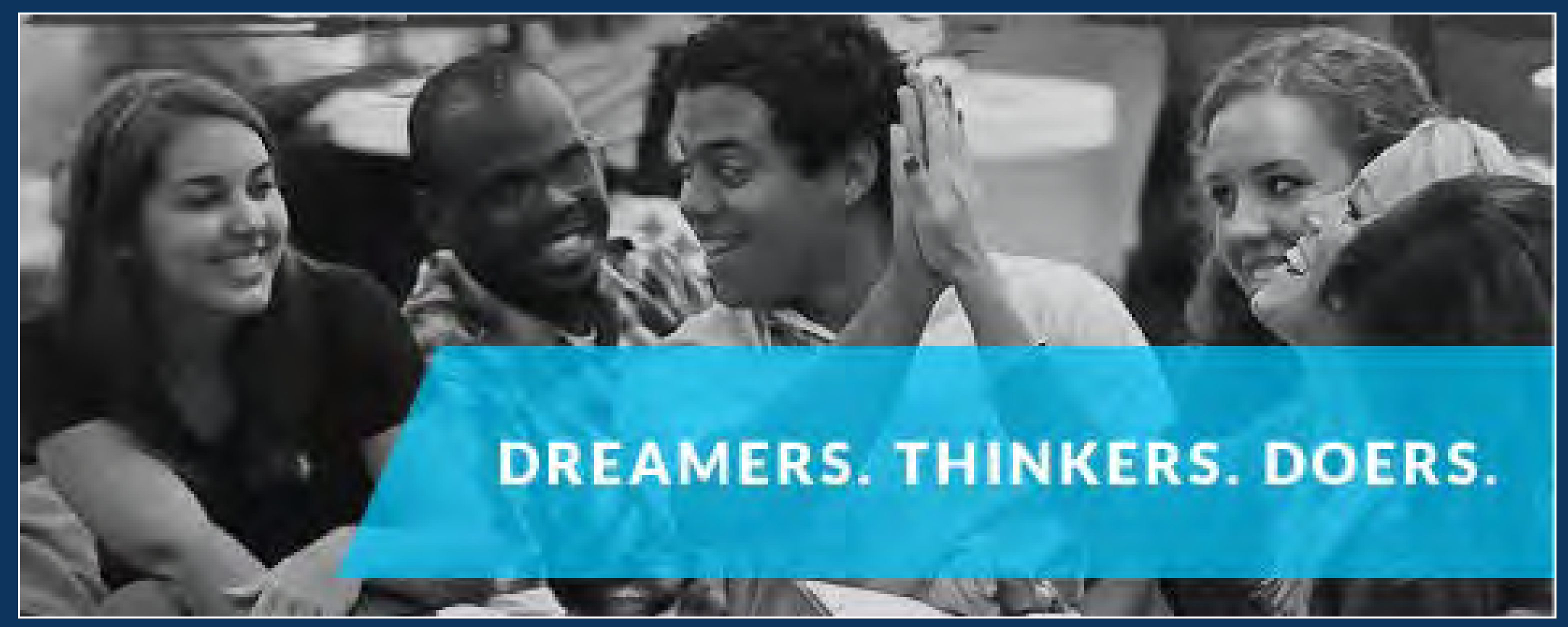
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

PARKING

Student parking for the Law School is available at all downtown parking garages and public parking venues. The University has negotiated reduced parking rates for law students at nearby garages listed here. Please contact the garages directly for any parking-related questions.

The Law School does not provide any on-campus parking for law students. Students may not park in the University-designated faculty/staff parking areas on Court Avenue or next to the Law School building.

Of course, you may choose to seek other options for parking. A good place to start is www.downtownmemphis.com. Click on the parking map link.

Main Campus Parking

Parking passes are available for law students who have an occasional need for services on the main campus such as the following:

- The Counseling Center
- Disability Resources for Students
- The Student Health Center
- Tiger Copy & Graphics
- The Bookstore
- The Bursar's Office
- The Financial Aid Office
- IT
- Testing Center
- Student government meetings (for our law school representatives)
- Educational Help & Tutoring
- Libraries

These parking solutions are not available for students with other regular business on the main campus (such as students regularly visiting the rec center, playing intramural sports, or joint/dual-degree students). These students should make other parking arrangements, as Options 1 and 2 are meant for students who have only an occasional need to go to the main campus for student services.

Effective immediately, if you are utilizing the above services, you will have three options for free parking on the main campus:

1. Single-Use Passes for the Zach Curlin Garage

The law school has purchased a limited number of single-use parking passes. Students can stop by the Dean's suite and request a single-use parking pass from Brigitte Boyd. Students will be required to indicate a broad category of utilization so we will be able to track what services students are accessing with the parking passes. These passes are good for a single visit to the Zach Curlin garage.

2. University Hang Tags

The Law School has also purchased five (5) University of Memphis parking hang tags. These hang tags are meant for our students to share. They will provide access to general parking lots on the main campus. These lots are designated in yellow on this parking map. The hang tags can be checked out from Brigitte Boyd in the Dean's Suite according to the process set forth below. As with the single-use passes, students will be required to indicate a broad category of utilization so we will be able to track what services students are accessing with the parking passes.

3. Confidential Counseling Center Single-Use Passes

Students using the Counseling Center should not use Option 1 or 2 listed above but should instead use the single-use passes that are available upon request from the University Counseling Center. Students wishing to utilize these Counseling Center passes should park in Zach Curlin garage. You can request a single-use pass at the end of your counseling appointment. The single-use pass will enable you to exit the Curlin garage without charge. Students can request as many single-use passes as needed for counseling services.

Hang tags check-out procedure:

1. Location of Passes

Passes can be checked out during law school business hours (8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.) from Brigitte Boyd in the Dean's Suite. Students will be required to indicate a broad category of utilization so we will be able to track what services students are accessing with the parking passes.

2. Time of Check-Out

Each pass is available to be checked out for two business days. Passes must be checked in and re-checked out after two business days. Students checking out a parking pass on Thursday have until Monday to return the parking pass.

3. Late & Lost Pass Fees

The University will not replace any hang tags that are lost or missing. Therefore, any tags that are lost or not returned will be unavailable for any students to use for the remainder of the semester. As a result, students who lose a parking pass or who are late returning a parking pass will lose parking privileges and will not be allowed to check out another hang tag or to receive another single-use pass from the Dean's suite unless they first reimburse the law school for the cost of the lost pass.

By checking out a parking pass or requesting a single-use pass, you are certifying that you are only using the parking pass for the accepted uses set forth in this announcement. Students who abuse the parking pass usage policy may have their parking pass check-out privileges revoked.

Please contact Assistant Dean Meredith Aden if you have any questions about the parking passes.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

STUDY ABROAD

While Memphis Law does not currently host any study abroad programs, we encourage students to explore programs at other law schools. Study abroad is a great way to gain unique educational experiences and meet students from all over the world.

How to Apply for Study Abroad

Please review Academic Regulations 16.5 and learn about transfer credit for law school work completed at another law school. Credit will only transfer from an ABA-accredited law school. You first must request the permission of Steven J. Mulroy, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, to enroll in the program. You must make a "C" or better in each course for the credit to transfer. The credit hours transfer, but the actual grade does not.

To receive permission from Dean Mulroy, you must submit a written memo requesting approval for transfer credit. The memo must provide sufficient information for Dean Mulroy to evaluate the transfer credit. The memo must be in hard copy (no emails) and must include the following information:

1. The name of the law school hosting the study abroad program. (Please note that the law school must be accredited by the ABA).

2. An official course description including the number of credit hours to be awarded. (Please note that links to a program are not sufficient - you must copy and paste the relevant information into your memo).

3. A description of how the the course(s) is examined (paper, final examination, etc.).

4. Information on how the course is graded (pass/fail, letter grades, etc.). Please note that pass/fail credits will not be accepted. If a course is pass/fail, you must contact the host school to make alternative grading arrangements and provide that documentation to Dean Mulroy.

5. Your signature.

Law schools from all over the country send Memphis Law information about upcoming study abroad opportunities, and we post this information on a bulletin board in the basement near the student mailboxes for you to view. In addition, this list is not exhaustive but contains additional information about international programs.

For example, Mississippi College School of Law is hosting programs in Mexico, Cuba, China, Germany, South Korea, and France this year. You can find more information about these programs here.

In addition, the ABA maintains as list of ABA-approved study abroad programs for law students. You can access that list here.

Also, students can apply for University scholarship funding for study abroad programs here. You can also use financial aid to pay for study abroad programs. Third party organizations, such as Go Overseas, also have scholarships and funding available. I recommend searching for other study abroad scholarship opportunities.

If you have any questions about study abroad programs, please contact Assistant Dean for Law Student Affairs, Meredith Aden. She can be reached at maden@memphis.edu or by calling (901) 678-2528.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Current Students

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

Memphis Law has a number of active student organizations. Each organization is listed below with contact information. Throughout a student's law school career many find it extremely beneficial to be a part of one or a few student organizations.

Association for Women Attorneys

President: Ashley Finch

The Association for Women Attorneys student chapter is an organization dedicated to promoting the interests, education, and advancements of women attorneys. Along with the AWA professional chapter, the AWA student chapter regularly coordinates scholarship opportunities, speaking engagements, and meetings for members. Please contact the Memphis Chapter of the AWA or memphisawa@yahoo.com for further information.

Black Law Students Association
President: Dawn Campbell

Founded in 1966, the Black Law Students Association seeks to promote the professional needs of African-American law students through promoting professional competence and increasing awareness of the needs of the African American community. For further information, please contact The National BLSA.

Christian Legal Society
President: Dominique Winfrey

The Christian Legal Society is a non-denominational national organization dedicated to serving Jesus Christ and committed to offering law from a balanced, Christian perspective. Society activities include monthly meetings, guest speakers, and annual barbeques that provide further opportunities for Christian fellowship. For further information, please contact The Christian Legal Society.

Federal Bar Association
President: Jacob Brown

The Federal Bar Association is a national organization consisting of more than 16,000 attorneys and 1,200 federal judges. The student organization works closely with the Memphis Mid-South Chapter to foster a strong relationship between student members and local federal judges and attorneys. We host several speakers on campus and provide a number of networking opportunities with attorneys who practice in the federal system.

Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies
President: Hunter Yoches

The Federalist Society is a group composed of conservatives and libertarians interested in promoting awareness of Federalist principles, including: that the state exists to preserve freedom, that the separation of governmental powers is central to our Constitution, and that it is emphatically the province and duty of the judiciary to say what the law is, not what it should be. Please see The Federalist Society for further information.

Health Law Society
President: Kelsey Walton

The Health Law Society ("HLS") is dedicated to exploring the intersection between medical health care and the judicial system. The HLS examines not only the traditional areas of health law, but also delves deeper into local and national health policy concerns. The HLS strives to enhance the experience and knowledge of its members and the entire Memphis law community.

Hispanic Law Student Association
President: Esperanza King

HLSA membership is not limited by race or ethnicity. We are an organization geared towards helping students of all races and ethnicities excel throughout law school. Our goal as an organization is to make sure that you succeed in law school academically, culturally and socially. To accomplish this goal, we continually implement programming that addresses the needs of our diverse student body. Whether it is providing mentoring opportunities with the local minority bar association, various social outings, or hosting community service projects, we always have something planned to enrich your experience at the University of Memphis.

Honor Council

Chief Justice: Gale Robinson

The legal profession is a self-regulated profession; meaning judges and lawyers determine their own professional standards and enforce them. That tradition of self-regulation starts in the law school with the Honor Code and Honor Council. The Honor Code is a code of professional and academic standards. The Honor Council enforces the Honor Code. The Honor Council is composed of eleven law students elected by the student body. The Honor Council investigates and prosecutes alleged violations of the Honor Code. All first-year law students will take an oath at law school orientation to honor the values reflected in the Code.

More detailed information about the Honor Code can be found in the Academic Regulations and on the Honor Council homepage here.

International Law Students Association
President: Alessandra Davey

The International Law Students Association is committed to educating students and lawyers, from all over, in the principles and purposes of international law, international organizations and institutions, and comparative legal systems. We hope to achieve this by encouraging communication among students and lawyers from different parts of the world, promoting international understanding and cooperation, and by advancing the legal education of members in general. We also strive to provide opportunities for law students and lawyers to learn about other cultures and legal systems in a system of critical dialogue and international cooperation.

The University of Memphis Law Review
Editor-in-Chief: Lyle Gruby

The Law Review is a student publication committed to producing a scholarly, legal journal. All of the articles published in the journal are selected by students and edited by students. The notes and comments selected for publication are also written and edited by students. The goal is to provide a publication that will benefit practitioners, judges, professors, students, and others that use this journal in their practice, on the bench, in the classroom, or in their legal research.

Memphis Law+

President: Vanessa Murtaugh

Moot Court Board

Chief Justice: Kendra Lyons

The Moot Court Board is dedicated to recognizing, coordinating and fostering excellence in both the appellate and trial advocacy. Duties of the Board include advertising, organizing, and coordinating all intraschool competitions.

National Lawyer's Guild
President: Nathaniel Bishop

The National Lawyers Guild Student Chapter at Memphis Law aspires to facilitate the discussion of many current issues while ensuring that multiple perspectives of a given issue are heard. The NLG is dedicated to the need for basic change in the structure of our political and economic system. We seek to unite the lawyers, law students, legal workers and jailhouse lawyers to function as an effective force in the service of the people, to the end that human rights shall be regarded as more sacred than property interests. Our aim is to bring together all those who recognize the importance of safeguarding and extending the rights of workers, women, LGBTQ people, farmers, people with disabilities and people of color, upon whom the welfare of the entire nation depends; who seek actively to eliminate racism; who work to maintain and protect our civil rights and liberties in the face of persistent attacks upon them; and who look upon the law as an instrument for the protection of the people, rather than for their repression.

Outlaw
President: Mel Borelli

OUTLAW is a law student organization geared specifically towards gay, bisexual, lesbian, and trans-gendered legal issues. The Gay-Straight Alliance promotes equality and civil rights while maintaining visibility in the Memphis legal community as a resource for the gay population. For more information, please contact the Human Rights Campaign website or the Memphis Gay and Lesbian Community Center.

Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity
Chapter Justice: Chris Miller

With over 300,000 members, Phi Alpha Delta is the nation's largest co-ed professional law fraternity. It exists to promote the welfare of each member as well as the community by fostering lasting relationships between teachers and students of law, promoting the ideals of liberty and equal justice under the law, stimulating excellence in scholarship, inspiring virtues of compassion and courage, and fostering integrity and professional competence. For further information, please visit Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity's national website.

Public Action Law Society
President: Danielle Salton

The Public Action Law Society (PALS) at the University of Memphis is a student-led organization that seeks to promote volunteerism, community service, and a pattern of activities that will instill in participants a desire to continue in pro bono work after becoming attorneys. PALS coordinates volunteers for a number of different organizations. Volunteers are connected to community service organizations that match the students' interests and abilities.

Sports & Entertainment Law Society (SELS)

President: Tanner Ball

SELS is a student-run organization dedicated to providing information, career support, and social activity for law students interested in careers within the sports and entertainment industry. We are committed to increasing student exposure to the industry. We plan to arrange guest speakers to provide industry insight and examine topical issue in sports and entertainment law. Through these events, our organization aims to provide a realistic introduction to the entry level sports and entertainment law market for today's law student. For more information, follow @MemphisLaw_SELS on Twitter.

Street Law

President: Shrushti Kothari

Student Bar Association
President: Sydney Van Winkle-Trujilo

The Student Bar Association (SBA) is dedicated to connecting all University of Memphis School of Law students into one body to foster fellowship and cooperation as well as advance the aims and purposes of the School of Law. Duties of the association include creating forums to resolve student issues, plan students activities, and partner with other university departments for the advancement of common interests. All students enrolled in the School of Law are automatically members of the SBA.

Tennessee Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers (Student Chapter)

President: Nicole Franco

The Tennessee Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers (TACDL) at the University of Memphis is the student chapter that focuses on education and support to lawyers representing citizens accused of crime. TACDL members also acts as advocates for a fair and effective criminal justice in the courts, the legislature, and wherever justice demands. TACDL will hold events particularly pertaining to criminal defense, private practice, and indigent clients. TACDL strives to enhance the experience and knowledge of its members and the entire Memphis law community.

Additional Information:

- In addition to law school student organizations, law students are welcome to be a part of the University of Memphis Graduate Student Organization.
- All law school student organizations must register through Student Leadership and Involvement to become a Registered Student Organization.

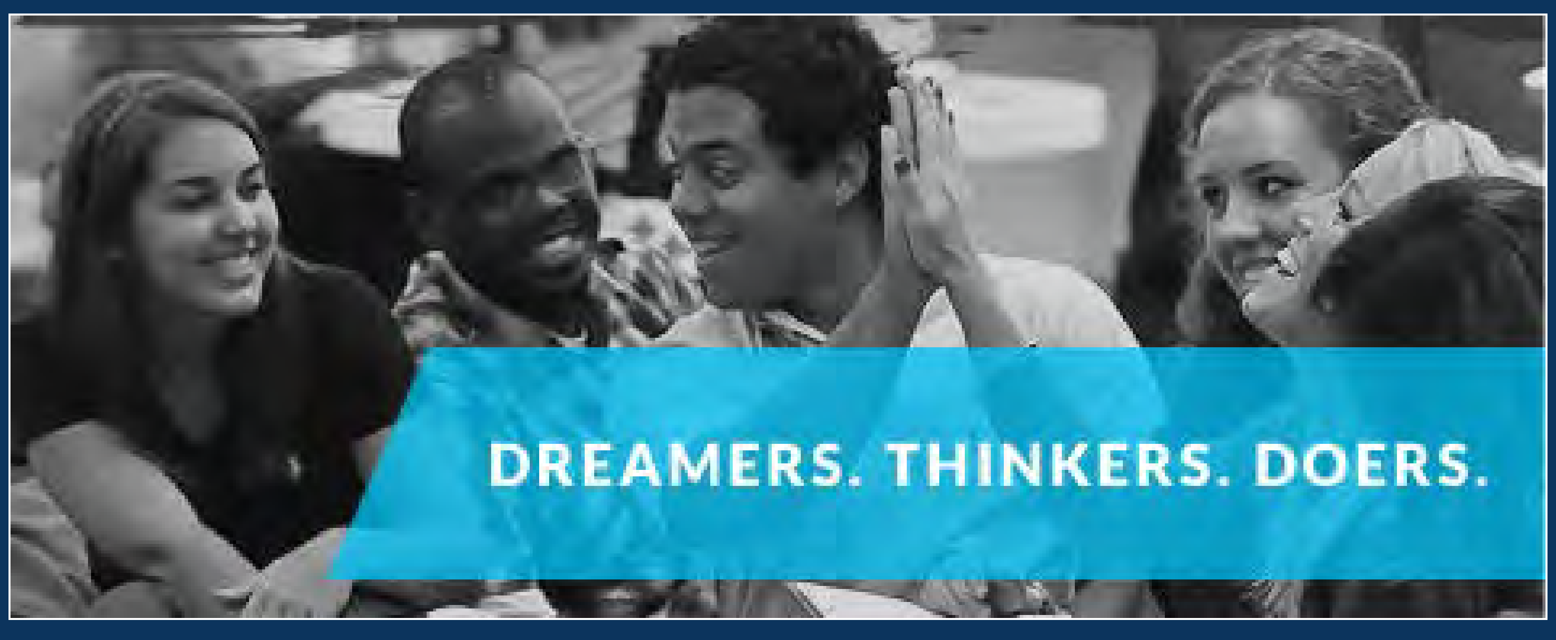
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

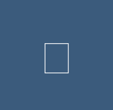
ABA Required Disclosures

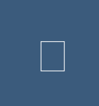
Full sitemap

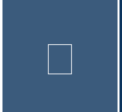


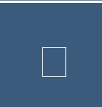
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

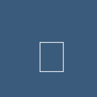
Follow UofM Online

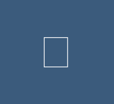












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About
Admissions
Programs
Current Students
Faculty
Careers
Library

Admissions

TUITION, FINANCIAL AID & SCHOLARSHIPS

Tuition

The estimated costs for the 2016-2017 academic year (Fall & Spring Semesters) are as follows:

	In-State	Out-of-State
Tuition & Fees	$18,763*	$25,968*
Room & Board	$9,863	$9,863
Books/Supplies	$1,969	$1,969
Transportation	$2,509	$2,509
Misc./Personal	$3,235	$3,235
Loan Fees	$604	$604
Total	$36,943	$44,148

*Based on full-time enrollment for the academic year. Part-time tuition & fees are billed by the credit hour. Tuition and fees above includes a $20 per credit hour law library fee with no maximum (30 hours for entering students in the 2016-2017 academic year).

For more detailed information regarding Tuition and Fees, please visit the main Tuition Information Page.

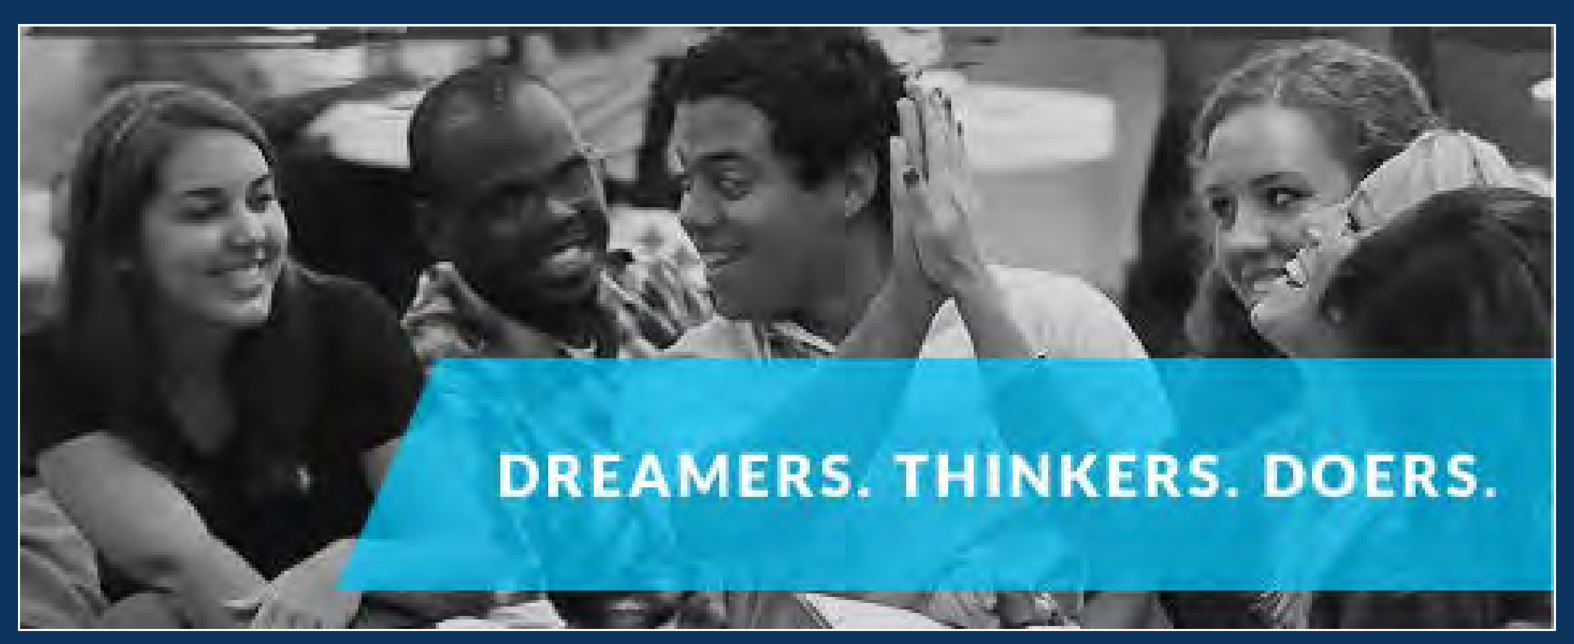
Financial Aid

Most of our students receive some sort of financial aid. Applicants should refer to our Financial Aid Guide or visit the University of Memphis Office of Financial Aid.

Scholarships

A number of scholarships are available to entering students, including academic merit awards, diversity awards, and awards for students with demonstrated financial need. Some scholarship awards are based on the information in the application, while others require additional information. If you are interested in being considered for first-year scholarships, you are encouraged to complete the optional application questions and submit any necessary information. Scholarship award letters are usually sent by April 1.

For more information about additional scholarships and specifics about the application process, please visit our Main Scholarship Page.



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/8/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

HONOR COUNCIL

The legal profession is a self-regulated profession; meaning judges and lawyers determine their own professional standards and enforce them. That tradition of self-regulation starts in the law school with the Honor Code and Honor Council. The Honor Code is a code of professional and academic standards. The Honor Council enforces the Honor Code. The Honor Council is composed of eleven law students elected by the student body. The Honor Council investigates and prosecutes alleged violations of the Honor Code. All first-year law students will take an oath at law school orientation to honor the values reflected in the Code.

More detailed information about the Honor Code can be found in the Academic Regulations.

PLEASE CLICK HERE TO VIEW THE 2012-2013 HONOR COUNCIL REPORT

PLEASE CLICK HERE TO VIEW THE 2013-2014 HONOR COUNCIL REPORT

PLEASE CLICK HERE TO VIEW THE 2014-2015 HONOR COUNCIL REPORT

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

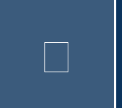
Alumni & Support

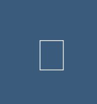
ABA Required Disclosures

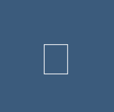
Full sitemap

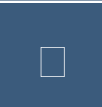
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

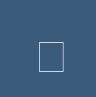
Follow UofM Online

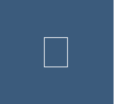












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Career Services

PRO BONO

Memphis Law is committed to instill within its students the very heart of the legal profession — providing equal justice under the law. Because equal justice comes at a cost, lawyers have a unique and rewarding obligation to provide pro bono services to those unable to pay. Memphis Law's Pro Bono Program is designed to nurture this ethical obligation and provide students with the opportunity to gain a practical, hands-on experience while helping improve the lives of the under-represented.

PRO BONO PROGRAM

Memphis Law is one of a select group of law schools in the country that requires students to engage in pro bono work during law school. Students entering in the fall of 2012 and thereafter are required to complete 40 hours of supervised pro bono work in order to graduate. For more information on the program and to see a list of pre-approved placements, please click the links below.

- Pro Bono Program Handbook
- Pre-approved Pro Bono Placements
- Steps To Receive Pro Bono Credit

Pro Bono Forms

- Supervisor Certification Form: students or supervisors must submit this form in order for students to receive pro bono credit.

- Student-Initiated Project Form: this form is required for students who wish to perform work at a placement that is not on the Pre-approved Pro Bono Placements list located above.
- Placement Inquiry Form: organizations or individual attorneys may submit this form if they wish to host law student volunteers.

New York's 50 Hour Pro Bono Requirement

Students interested in sitting for the New York state bar must perform 50 hours of pro bono services. For more information on this requirement, please visit the New York Court's website.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/10/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Alena Allen

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3227
EMAIL amallen5@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Office 368
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Allen

Professor Allen joined the Memphis law faculty in 2010. She teaches Torts I, Torts II, Health Law Organization and Finance, Health Law Survey, and a Health Law Seminar. Professor Allen was voted Professor of the Year in 2013. Her research interests includes health policy, pharmaceutical regulation, and medical malpractice. Professor Allen's work was one of only four articles chosen for presentation at the American Society of Health Medicine and Ethics/ SLU Law Health Scholars workshop in 2012.

Education

J.D., Yale Law School, 2003; B.A., magna cum laude with honors in Psychology, Loyola University, 1999.

Admitted

State Bar of Texas, DC Bar.

Experience

Assistant Professor of Law, 2010-Present; Healthcare/FDA Associate, Arnold & Porter LLP, 2007-2009; Law Clerk, The Honorable Paulette Delk, Federal Bankruptcy Judge, Memphis, TN, 2006-2007; Law Clerk, The Honorable Samuel H. Mays, Jr., Federal District Court Judge, Memphis, TN, 2005-2006; Employee Benefits Associate, Baker Botts LLP, Houston, TX, 2003-2005; Summer Associate, Allen & Overy, London, England, Summer 2002; Summer Associate, Vinson & Elkins LLP, Houston, TX, Summer 2002; Summer Associate, Mayer, Brown, Rowe & Maw, Houston, TX, Summer 2001; Student Clerk, Dept. of Justice, Executive Office for Immigration Review, New Orleans, LA, 1997-2000; Research Assistant, Department of Psychology, Dr. Kim Ernst, Loyola University, New Orleans, LA, 1999.

Honors and Awards

Professor Alena Allen has been selected to participate in the 2015 Maxine Smith Fellows Program of the Tennessee Board of Regents (TBR). Click here to read more about this impressive accomplishment.

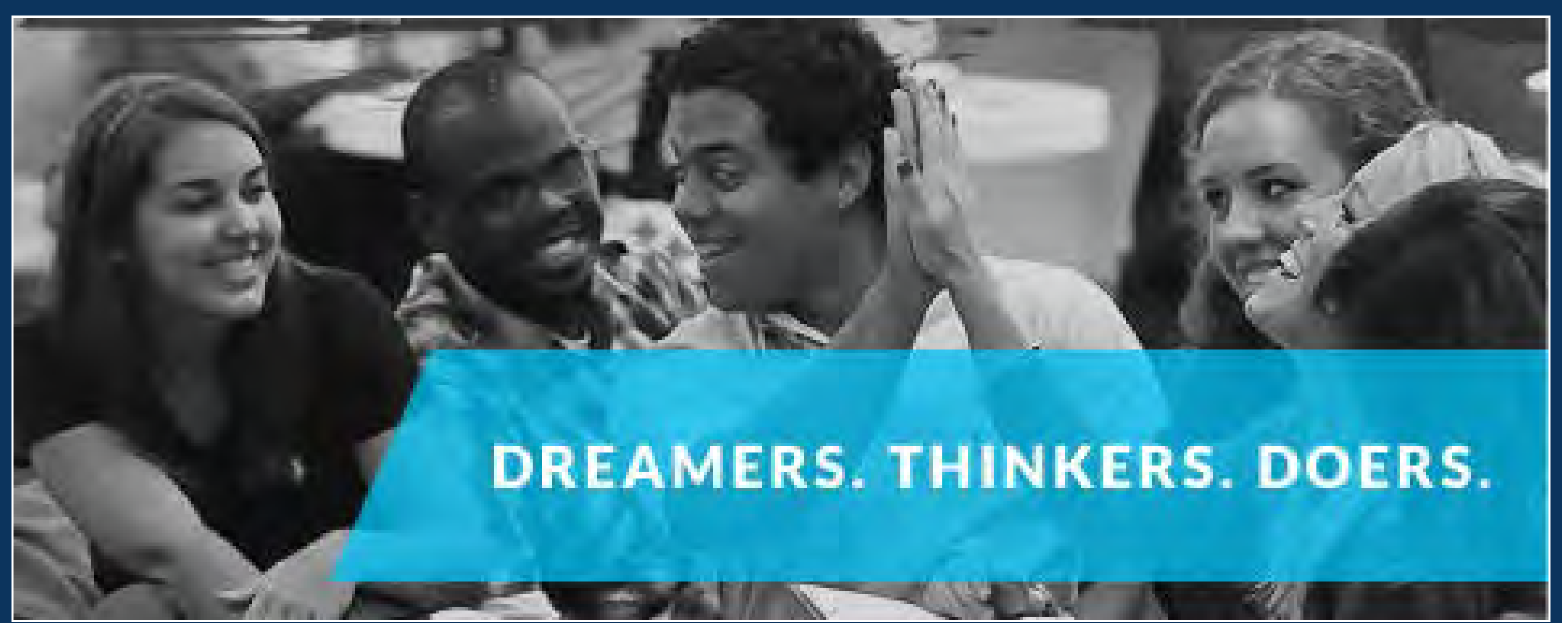
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Lynda Black

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3225
EMAIL l.black@memphis.edu
FAX 901-678-0753

OFFICE Law 371
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Black

Lynda Wray Black has practiced law in New York City and Memphis, primarily focused in the areas of estate planning, probate and trusts. Her practice also has encompassed representation of not-for-profit organizations, contracts, sureties law and domestic relations.

Education

J. D., Yale Law School, 1989; B.A., (summa cum laude with honors in Philosophy), University of Memphis, 1986.

Admitted

New York, Tennessee.

Experience

Assistant Professor of Law, 2010-Present; Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, 2000-2001 and 2008–2010; Adjunct Professor of Law, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, 1999-2008; Associate, Black, McLaren, Jones, Ryland & Griffee,1997-2008; Associate, Cravath, Swaine & Moore,1989-1994.

Teaching Interests

Estate Planning, Decedents' Estates, Business Organizations, Family Law, Secured Transactions and Trust Law.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

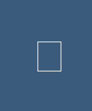
Alumni & Support

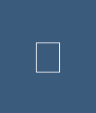
ABA Required Disclosures

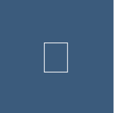
Full sitemap

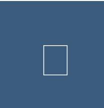
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

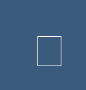
Follow UofM Online

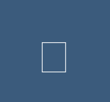












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Jeremy Bock

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-5070
EMAIL jwbock@memphis.edu
FAX 901-678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Room 378
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Bock

Using empirical techniques and theoretical models, Prof. Bock studies the legal, organizational, and behavioral considerations that underlie the various dysfunctional, inefficient, or otherwise socially-undesirable aspects of patent litigation. His research often takes an interdisciplinary approach, drawing on lessons from behavioral economics, cognitive psychology, and management science.

Education

J.D., Univ. of California, Berkeley, School of Law; S.B., M.Eng., Massachusetts Institute of Technology (Electrical Engineering & Computer Science)

Admitted

2000, U.S. Patent & Trademark Office (Reg. No. 45,482)
2004, California
2006, District of Columbia

Experience

Prior to joining the faculty, Prof. Bock was a Research Fellow and Senior Visiting Scholar at the Berkeley Center for Law & Technology at the Univ. of California, Berkeley, School of Law. He has also worked in-house at a multinational semiconductor company, litigated patent cases in various federal district courts and before the U.S. International Trade Commission, and clerked for Judge Alan D. Lourie at the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

Teaching Interests

Patent Law, Civil Procedure.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

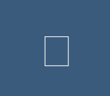
Alumni & Support

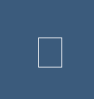
ABA Required Disclosures

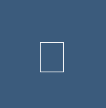
Full sitemap

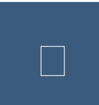
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

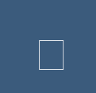
Follow UofM Online

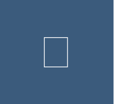












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Ralph C. Brashier

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3235
EMAIL rbrashir@memphis.edu
FAX (901) 678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Office 361
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Brashier

Ralph Brashier is a Professor of Law and holds a Cecil C. Humphreys Chair at the University of Memphis School of Law, where he teaches Decedents' Estates, Elder Law, and Property. A native of Mississippi, he received his bachelor's degree from Florida State University, his master's degree from the Eastman School of Music, his J.D. from Ole Miss (where he was Editor-in-Chief of the Missisisppi Law Journal), and his LL.M. from Yale. Before joining the faculty at Memphis, he practiced in New York City with Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft. He is the author of numerous articles and two books on decedents' estates and elder law. His elder law book is on the required or recommended reading list or serves as the course book for classes in elder law at several schools. At the University of Memphis, he has received the University of Memphis Distinguished Teaching Award, the Alumni Excellence in Teaching Award, and the Farris Bobango Faculty Scholarship Award. On eight occasions, the members of the law school graduating class have named him Law School Professor of the Year.

Education

B.M., 1979, summa cum laude, Florida State University; M.A., 1982, Eastman School of Music; J.D., 1986, magna cum laude, University of Mississippi; LL.M., 1990, Yale University.

Admitted

Mississippi, New York.

Experience

Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, New York City, 1986-89; joined the University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1990.

Teaching Interests

Property, Decedents' Estates, and Elder Law.

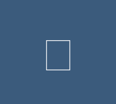
Publications

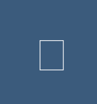
Author of articles on decedents' estates or elder law in various law journals including Boston University Law Review, Case Western Reserve Law Review, Louisiana Law Review, South Carolina Law Review, Southern Methodist Law Review, Temple Law Review, and Utah Law Review; member, Tennessee Uniform Probate Code Commission (1995-1997); former contributing editor to bi-monthly column, "Keeping Current," in Probate & Property (ABA).

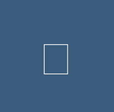
Full sitemap

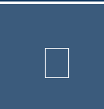
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

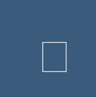
Follow UofM Online

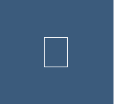












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Amy Campbell

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW; DIRECTOR, INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY

PHONE (901) 678-3231
EMAIL tcmpbll3@memphis.edu
FAX (901)678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Office 361
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Campbell

Professor Campbell is an Associate Professor of Law at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, and serves as the director of the Institute for Health Law & Policy at the University of Memphis. She also serves as Adjunct Faculty in the Center for Bioethics and Clinical Leadership of the Union Graduate College-Mount Sinai School of Medicine Bioethics Program.

Education

MBE, University of Pennsylvania, 2003. J.D., Yale Law School, 1997; B.A., summa cum laude History/Peace Studies, University of Notre Dame, 1993.

Admitted

New York State Bar (active). State of Pennsylvania Bar (inactive status).

Experience

Associate Professor of Bioethics and Humanities (primary), SUNY Upstate Medical University 2013; Associate Professor, Department of Psychiatry (secondary), SUNY Upstate Medical University, 2013; Assistant Professor of Bioethics (Adjunct (Associate) Faculty), The Center for Bioethics and Clinical Leadership, Union Graduate College-Mount Sinai School of Medicine Bioethics Program, Schenectady, NY, 2009-2013; Assistant Professor of Law, Syracuse University College of Law, 2009-2013; Assistant Professor of Bioethics and Humanities, SUNY Upstate Medical University, 2008-2013; Assistant Professor, Department of Psychiatry, SUNY Upstate Medical University, 2011-2013; Adjunct Senior Instructor, Division of Medical Humanities, University of Rochester School of Medicine & Dentistry, 2003-2009; Assistant Provost, Office for Human Subject Protection, University of Rochester, 2005-2006; Senior Instructor, Department of Psychiatry, University of Rochester School of Medicine & Dentistry, 2002-2005.

Teaching Interests

Health Law, Bioethics

Publications

Teaching Law in Medical Schools: First, Reflect. Journal of Law, Medicine & Ethics. 2012 (Summer); 40(2): 301-310.; The Context for Government Regulation of Obesity Around the Globe: Implications for Global Policy Action. World Medical & Health Policy. 2012; 4(2): Article 4.; Using Therapeutic Jurisprudence to Frame the Role of Emotion in Health Policymaking. Phoenix Law Review 2012; 5(4): 676-704. (Inaugural issue on Comprehensive Law and Therapeutic Jurisprudence; with peer review); Bioethics in the Public Square: Reflections on the How. Journal of Medical Ethics. 2012; 38:439-441.

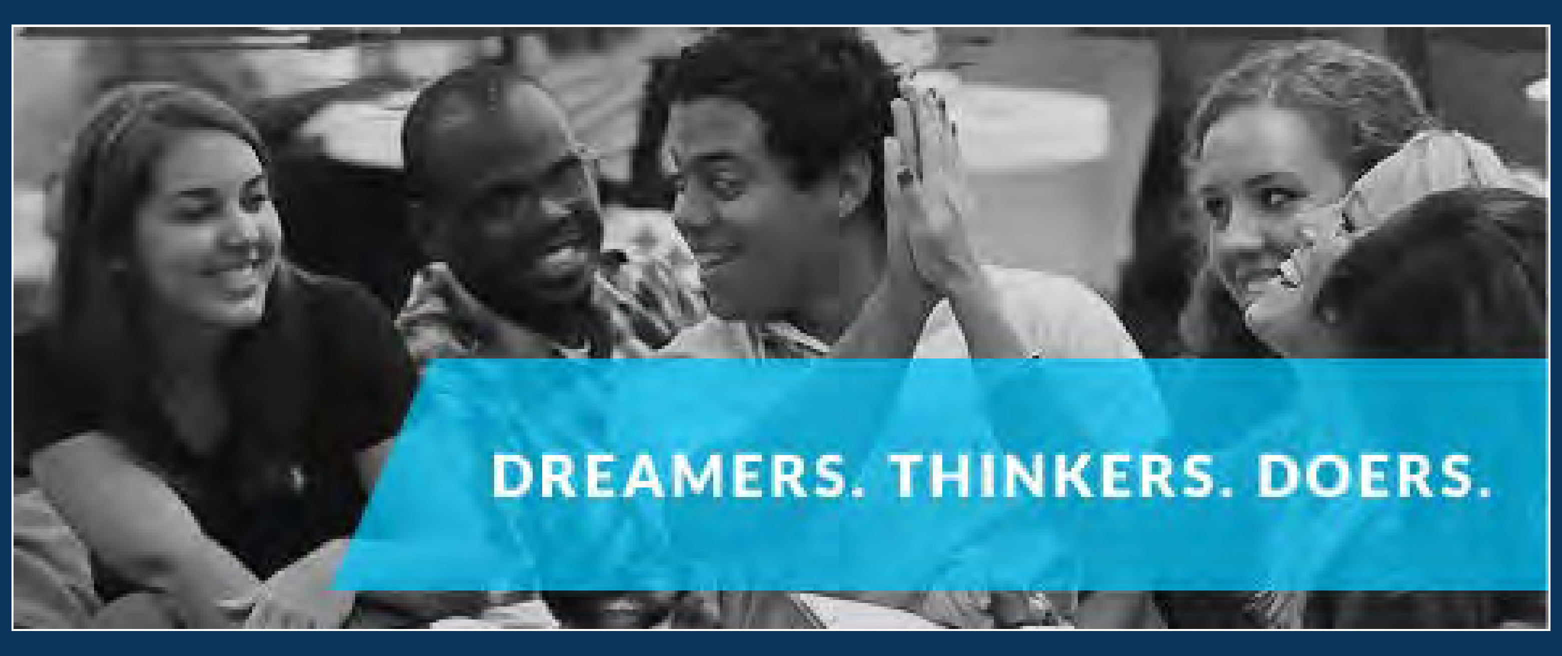
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

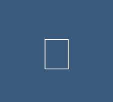
ABA Required Disclosures

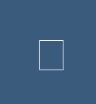
Full sitemap

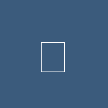


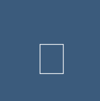
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

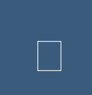
Follow UofM Online

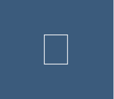












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Demetria Frank

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-4948
EMAIL djcksn24@memphis.edu
FAX (901) 678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Room 351
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Frank

Demetria D. Frank joined the Memphis Law faculty in 2013. She currently teaches courses in Evidence, Federal Courts, Trial Practice and Pretrial Litigation. Prior to joining Memphis Law, Professor Frank was a member of the University of Wyoming College of Law faculty where she also taught courses in Torts and Appellate Advocacy. Professor Frank also teaches Torts in the Tennessee Institutive for Pre-Law Students, a program devoted to increasing the diversity of Memphis Law's student body through performance based admission. Professor Frank also serves as advisor to the Ben F. Jones Chapter of the Black Law Students' Association and has been a mock trial team coach for several of its members.

Professor Frank's scholarship and speaking interests are in the areas of civil and criminal courtroom evidence, systemic discrimination and federal court litigation practice. Her most recent publication, The Proof is in the Prejudice: Implicit Racial Bias, Uncharged Act Evidence & the Colorblind Courtroom, was published in the Harvard Journal on Racial & Ethnic Justice and addresses the role of implicit bias in admitting uncharged act evidence against racially diverse criminal defendants. Professor Frank has presented on a number of issues related to race in courtroom, systemic disparity, implicit bias and mass incarceration.

Prior to law teaching, Professor Frank attended the University Of Texas School Of Law receiving her J.D., in 2005. Following law school, she was a toxic tort attorney where she represented injured plaintiffs in products liability lawsuits. Professor Frank has also served as a Community Prosecutor in the Dallas City Attorney's Office and as an Associate Judge for the City of Dallas and the City of Houston.

Education

The University of Texas School of Law, 2005; University of Houston (cum laude).

Admitted

State Bar of Texas

Experience

University of Wyoming College of Law, Assistant Professor of Law (2011-2013), Brent Coon & Associates, PC, Litigation Manager (2009-2011); The City of Dallas, Associate Municipal Court Judge, Assistant City Attorney (2007-2009); Waters & Kraus, LLP, Associate (2005-2007)

Teaching Interests

Evidence, Federal Courts, Pretrial Litigation, Torts and Trial Practice

Publications

The Medical Device Federal Preemption Trilogy: Salvaging Due Process for Injured Patients. 35 S. Ill.U. L.J. 453 (2011).

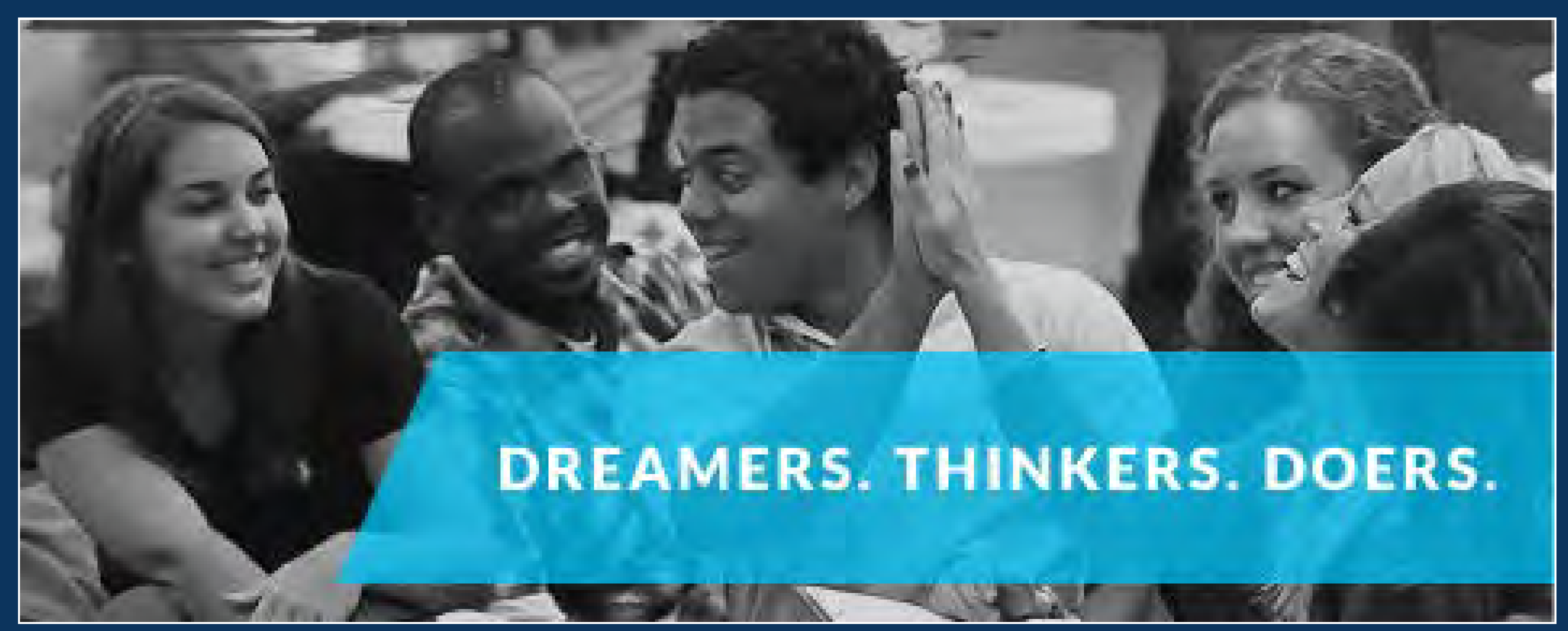
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/10/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Donna Harkness

CELA, PROFESSOR OF CLINICAL LAW AND DIRECTOR, ELDER LAW CLINIC

PHONE (901) 678-5138
EMAIL dharknss@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Legal Clinic Offices
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Harkness

Donna S. Harkness is currently Professor of Clinical Law and Director of both the Elder Law Clinic and the Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic. She is a National Law Foundation certified elder law attorney.

Education

B.A., University of Memphis, Philosophy, magna cum laude, 1974; J.D. Vanderbilt, 1980.

Admitted

Tennessee and Florida.

Experience

1993 – present, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law/University of Memphis Legal Clinic; 1990-93, Staff Attorney, Housing Opportunities Corp.; 1985-87, District Legal Counsel, Florida Dept. of Health and Rehabilitative Services; 1980-84, Staff Attorney, Legal Services of Middle Tennessee.

Teaching Interests

Elder Law Clinic, Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic, Elder Law and Professional Responsibility

Publications

Professor Harkness is the author of one book, Elder Law Essentials (Knowles, updated 2013), which provides a basic overview of the substantive law, ethical issues, and practice concerns that confront attorneys representing elderly clients. Professor Harkness's articles have appeared in the Elder Law Journal, Marquette Elder's Advisor, and the Georgetown Journal on Poverty Law and Policy. She has also authored four elder law case files for the National Institute of Trial Advocacy (NITA) involving a will contest, elder abuse, predatory lending and wrongful death in a long term care institution.

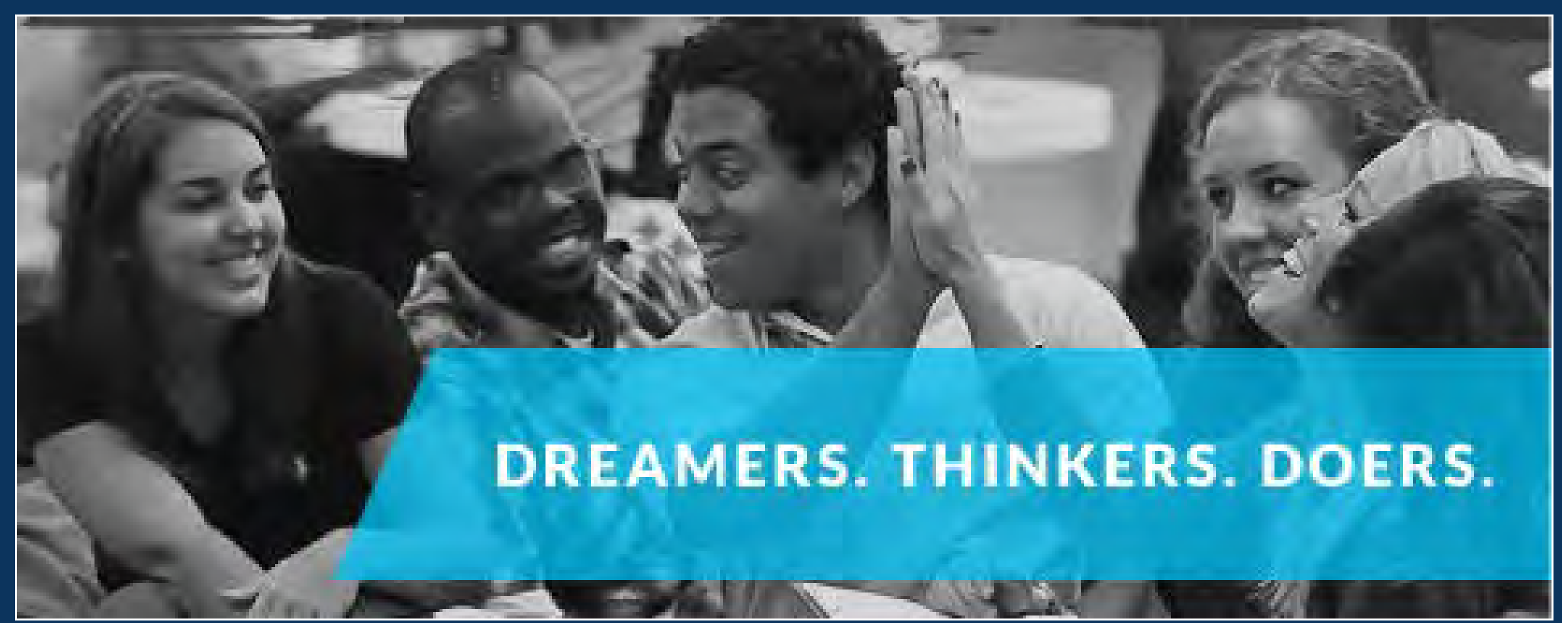
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Lee Harris

FEDEX PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-1393
EMAIL laharris@memphis.edu
FAX (901) 678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Office 360
OFFICE HOURS

CV | SSRN

About Professor Harris

Lee Harris has been a member of the Memphis faculty since 2005. He teaches Contracts, Corporations, and Mergers & Acquisitions. He writes about the various ways investors influence the firm. His work has been selected for presentation at the Stanford/Yale Junior Faculty Forum and featured in prominent media outlets, like The Economist magazine. In addition to his appointment at Memphis, Harris has held visiting appointments at the George Washington School of Law in Washington DC and the Grenoble Ecole de Management in France. Prior to coming to Memphis, Professor Harris worked at Baker Donelson, a large corporate law firm. He has also held teaching fellowships in the Economics Department at Yale University and at Yale Law School. Professor Harris graduated from Yale Law School and Morehouse College in Atlanta, GA. He has also been a visiting student at the London School of Economics.

Education

B.A., Morehouse College, 2000; Visiting Student, London School of Economics and Political Science, 1998-1999, J.D., Yale Law School, 2003.

Admitted

Tennessee (inactive)

Experience

2009-present, Associate Professor of Law, Cecil C. Humphreys school of Law; 2005-2009, Assistant Professor of Law, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law; 2003-2005, Associate, Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz; Coker Fellow, Yale Law School, 2002-2003.

Teaching Interests

Business Organizations, Contracts, Corporations, Law and Economics, Social Welfare Policy

Publications

1. CORPORATIONS AND OTHER BUSINESS ENTITIES: A PRACTICAL APPROACH (Aspen 2011)

2. MASTERING CORPORATIONS & OTHER BUSINESS ENTITIES (Carolina Academic Press 2008)

Selected Articles

- Corporate Elections and Tactical Settlements, 39 J. CORP. L. 221 (2014)
- CEO Retention, 24 FLA. L. REV. 1753 (2013)
- The Politics of Shareholder Voting, 86 NYU L. REV. 1761 (2011)
- Shareholder Campaign Funds: A Campaign subsidy Scheme for Corporate Elections, 58 UCLA L. REV. 167 (2010)
- Missing in Activism: Retail Investor Absence in Corporate Elections, 2010 COLUM. BUS. L. REV. 101 (2010), discussed in The Economist.
- A Critical Theory of Private Equity, 35 DEL. J. CORP. L. 259 (2010), reprinted in 2 FINANCIAL FRAUD L. REPORT 262 (March 2010)

- Tort Reform as Carrot-and-Stick, 46 HARVARD J. LEGIS 163 (2009), reprinted in A. POPPER, TORT REFORM: ESSAYS, CASES & MATERIALS (2010) and selected for 2007 Yale-Stanford Junior Faculty Forum

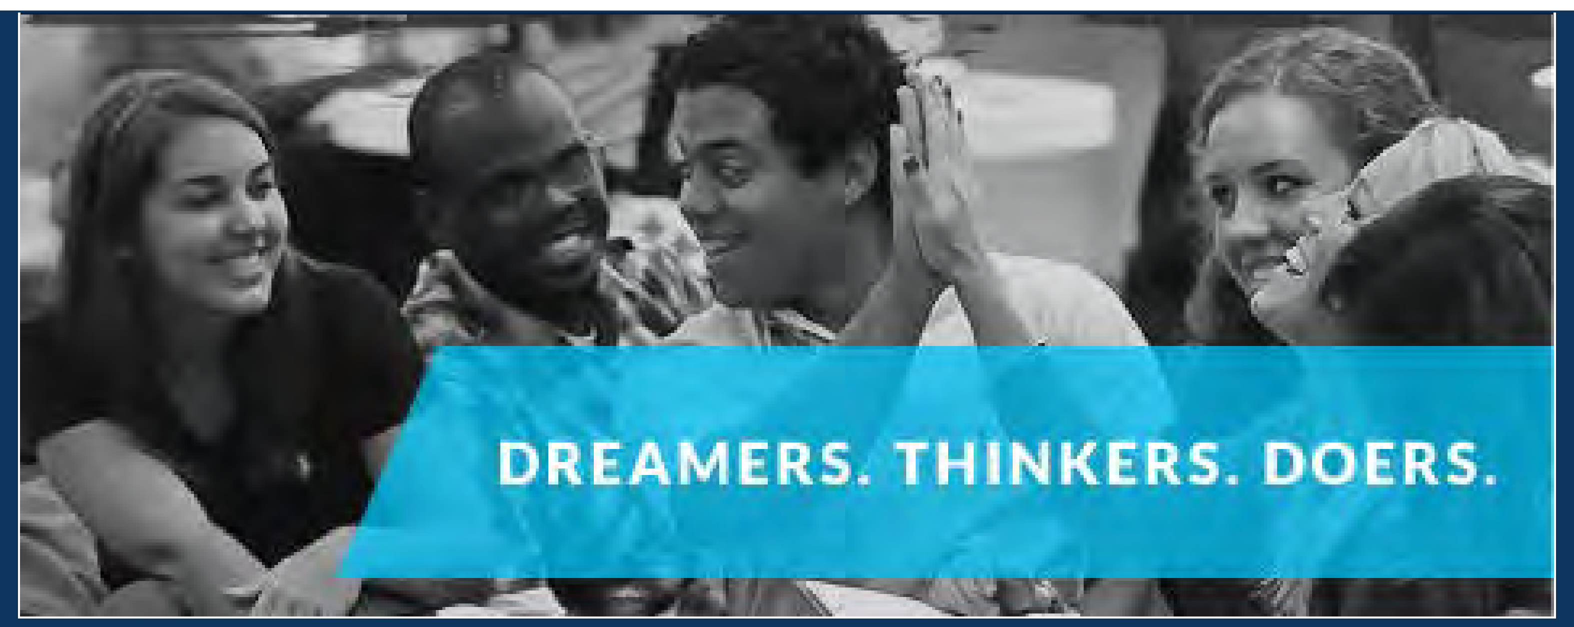
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Lisa M. Geis

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW; DIRECTOR, CHILDREN'S DEFENSE CLINIC

PHONE (901) 678-3226
EMAIL lgeis@memphis.edu
FAX 901-678-0753

OFFICE Legal Clinic
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Geis

Professor Lisa Geis leads our new Children's Defense Program. Most recently, Professor Geis served as a Clinical Professor and Supervising Attorney in the DC Students in Court Program, an organization that serves several Washington, D.C. area law schools.

Education

LL.M., University of the District of Columbia - David A. Clarke School of Law, 2014; JD, Rutgers School of Law, 2010; B.A., The Catholic University of America, 1988.

Admitted

2011, State of New Jersey.
2012, United States District of New Jersey
2012, District of Columbia Bar
2015, United States Supreme Court

Experience

Prior to joining the faculty, Prof. Geis served as a Clinical Professor and Supervising Attorney in the DC Students in Court Program. Additionally, she was a clinical instructor and supervising attorney at the University of the District of Columbia, David A. Clarke School of Law, Juvenile & Special Education Law Clinic - Took Crowell Institute for At-Risk Youth and prior to that she was the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Models for Change Fellow at the Rutgers School of Law in its Juvenile Indigent Defense Action Network - Post Disposition Representation Project.

Teaching Interests

Juvenile Justice Clinic

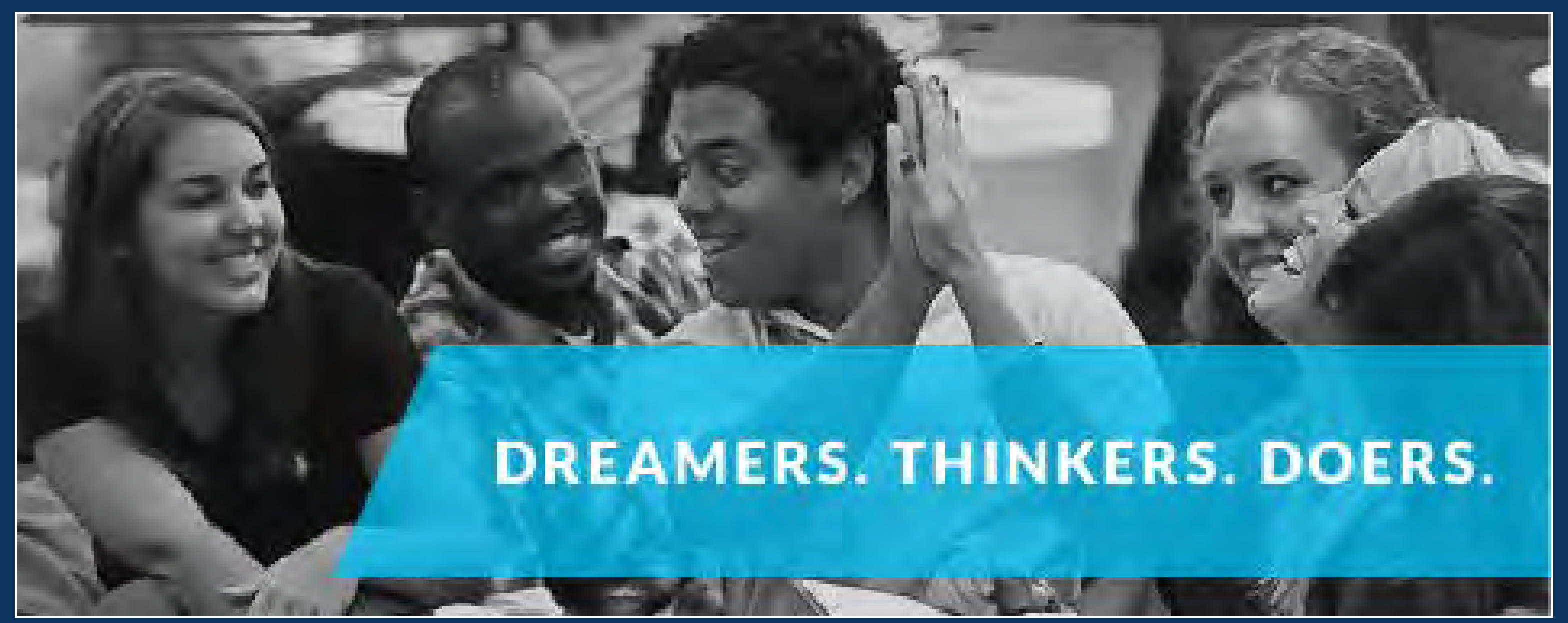
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/16/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Janet Goode

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW; DIRECTOR, MEMPHIS CHILD MEDICAL LEGAL PARTNERSHIP

PHONE (901) 678-4589
EMAIL jgoode1@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Legal Clinic Offices
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Goode

Janet Goode is a Visiting Assistant Professor of Law and director of the Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic, part of the Memphis Children's Health Law Directive (Memphis CHiLD). Memphis CHiLD is an innovative alliance between the Law School, Le Bonheur Children's Hospital, and Memphis Area Legal Services that provides legal services to low-income pediatric patients and their families.

Most recently Professor Goode served as the first Executive Director of Christian Legal Aid of Pittsburgh (CLA), a large pro bono community clinic, where she significantly shaped CLA's direction and clinic structure, represented clients, and managed a network of volunteer attorneys and law students. Professor Goode was the recipient of the 2013 Lorraine M. Bittner Public Interest Attorney Award and the 2014 Pennsylvania Bar Association Civil Legal Aid Attorney Award for her work with CLA.

Following law school, Professor Goode clerked for the Hon. Keith P. Ellison in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Texas. She then served as an Assistant District Attorney at the New York County District Attorney's Office where she handled a large caseload of both misdemeanor and felony offenses and was a member of the Domestic Violence Unit. She has also worked as an associate at Kirkpatrick & Lockhart Preston Gates Ellis LLP (now K&L Gates).

In addition to her legal career, Professor Goode has served on the executive committee of the board of a community health center dedicated to providing quality, whole person, affordable heath care and was on the governing board of her church.

Education

Stanford Law School, 2002; B.A., New York University, History with Honors, Minor in French (magna cum laude), 1997.

Admitted

Tennessee, Pennsylvania, New York.

Experience

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Memphis Tennessee; Visiting Assistant Professor & Director, Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic, 2015 - present

Christian Legal Aid of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Executive Director, 2008 - 2014

Kirkpatrick & Lockhart Preston Gates Ellis LLP, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Associate Attorney, 2006 - 2008

New York County District Attorney's Office, New York, New York; Assistant District Attorney, 2003 - 2006

Law Clerk, 2002 - 2003, The Honorable Keith P. Ellison, U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas, Laredo Division

Publications

N/A

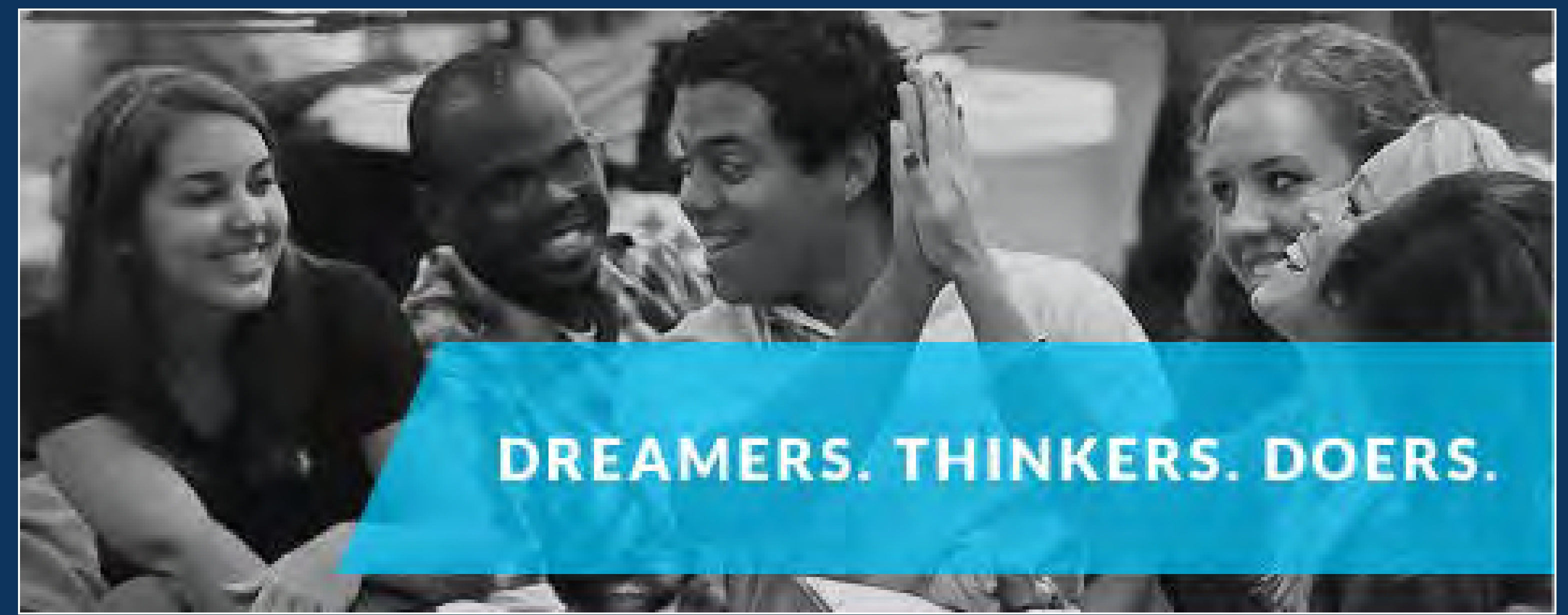
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

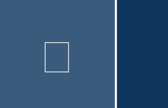
ABA Required Disclosures

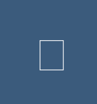
Full sitemap

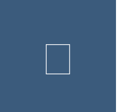


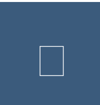
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

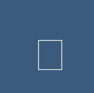
Follow UofM Online

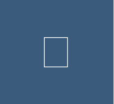












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

D.R. Jones

ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR INFORMATION RESOURCES, LAW LIBRARY DIRECTOR, AND ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3244
EMAIL drjones@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 220
OFFICE HOURS

SSRN

About Professor Jones

Professor Jones joined the Memphis law faculty in 2008. She teaches Copyright law. Professor Jones's scholarship explores copyright and privacy issues. She recently served as the Chair of the American Association of Law Libraries' Copyright Committee. This is a national committee that represents, promotes and advocates AALL's interests regarding copyright and other intellectual property issues.

Professor Jones has provided extensive professional service in law librarianship. She has served as Special Interest Section (SIS) Council Chair, a national level office in the American Association of Law Libraries; as the chair of one of the largest AALL SISs, and as President of one of the largest chapters of AALL in geographic coverage (ten states). She has shared her knowledge and experience by speaking on a variety of topics at numerous national, regional and state meetings and conferences, including the Conference for Law School Computing (CALI Conference).

Education

B.A. (summa cum laude), Mercer University; J.D. (cum laude), Mercer University School of Law; Master of Librarianship, with a certificate in law librarianship, University of Washington

Admitted

Georgia (inactive)

Experience

Deputy Director, Judge Ben C. Green Law Library, and Adjunct Assistant Professor of Law, Case Western Reserve School of Law, Cleveland, Ohio; Lawyering Skills I Instructor, University of San Diego School of Law, San Diego, California; Assistant Director for Reference Services, Boley Law Library, and Adjunct Professor of Law, Northwestern School of Law of Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Oregon; Attorney, Trotter, Smith and Jacobs, Atlanta, Georgia; Attorney, Kilpatrick and Cody, Atlanta, Georgia

Teaching Interests

Copyright Law.

Publications

Her recent publications are: Protecting the Treasure: An Assessment of State Court Rules and Policies for Access to Online Civil Court Records, 61 Drake Law Review 375 (2013), Locked Collections: Copyright and the Future of Research Support, 105 Law Library Journal 425 (2013) and Law Firm Copying and Fair Use: An Examination of Different Purpose and Fair Use Markets, 56 South Texas Law Review 313 (2014). The Locked Collections article won the American Association of Law Libraries Law Library Journal Article of the Year Award in July 2014. She has presented at a number of conferences, including the Annual Intellectual Property Scholars' Conference and the Works in Progress Intellectual Property (WIPIP) Colloquium. She has also been a participant in the Annual Privacy Law Scholars' Conference.

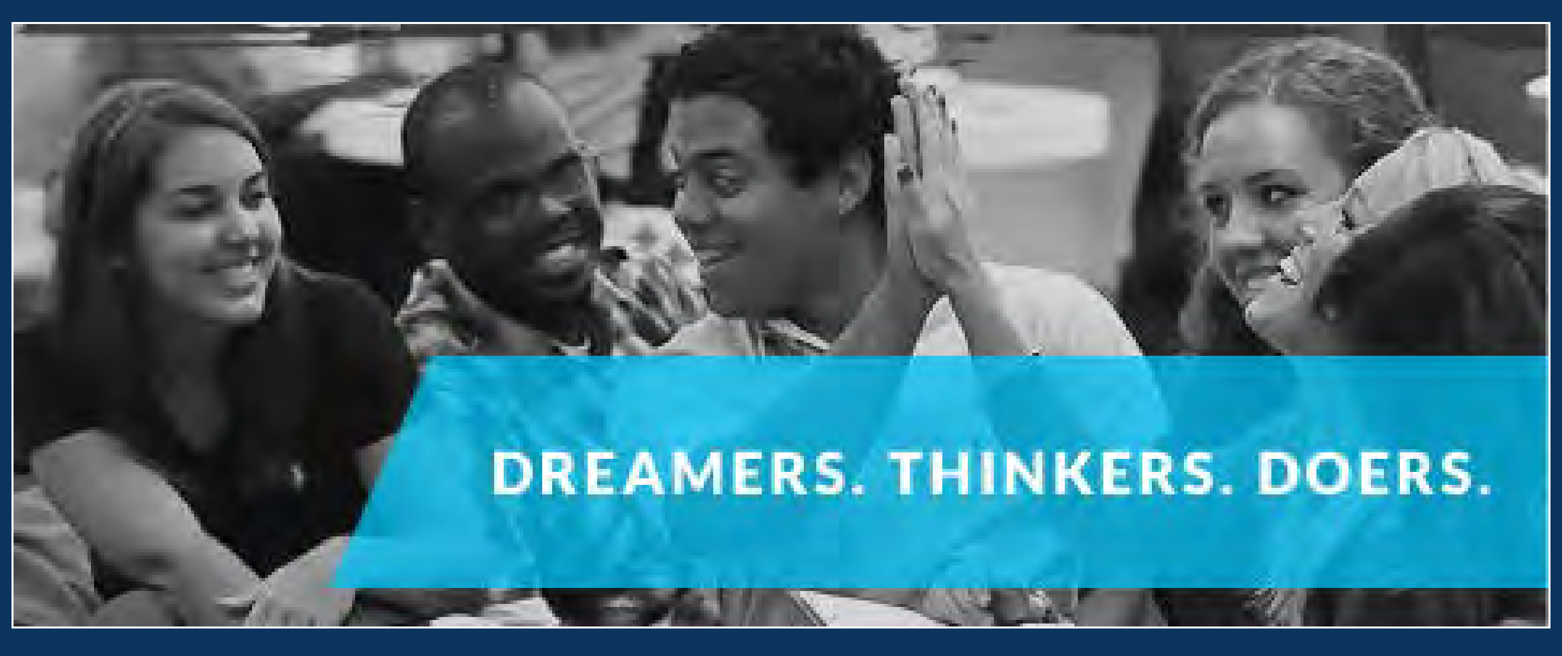
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

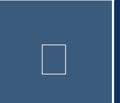
ABA Required Disclosures

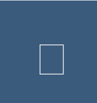
Full sitemap

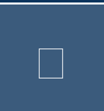


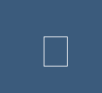
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

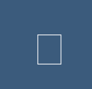
Follow UofM Online

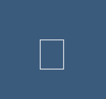












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Daniel Kiel

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-1762
EMAIL dkiel@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 346
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Kiel

Professor Kiel's work centers on inequality in the education system, particularly along lines of race. His research examines efforts to reduce educational disparities, including both the historical era of desegregation and more modern efforts to reform the structure of public education.

In 2011, Prof. Kiel built upon his work on school desegregation in Memphis through an oral history project that culminated in The Memphis 13, a documentary film he wrote and directed sharing the stories of the first students to desegregate public schools in Memphis. The film premiered at the National Civil Rights Museum on the 50th anniversary of that historic event and has been featured at film festivals, universities, and museums across the country.

In addition to his scholarly writing listed below, Prof. Kiel has written op-eds for the Washington Post, USA Today, and the Memphis Commercial Appeal and has given numerous presentations on issues of race and education, both locally and nationally. During the merger of school districts in Shelby County, Prof. Kiel was appointed to the Transition Planning Commission charged with crafting a plan for that merger, and served as co-chairperson of the group's Education Committee. For his work on schooling in Memphis, he has been cited in The New York Times, The Atlantic, and Education Week and was awarded the 2013 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Human Rights Award by the University of Memphis.

In 2015, Prof. Kiel was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship to undertake comparative research on educational disparities in South Africa and was hosted during his months there at the University of the Free State. Prior to entering teaching, Prof. Kiel worked in private practice doing civil litigation at firms in Boston and Memphis. While in practice, he also represented criminal defendants in post-conviction matters at both the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals. Prof. Kiel serves on the boards of Facing History and Ourselves and Just City, and was a founding steering committee member of Common Ground Memphis. On campus, he serves as a reviewer for the annual book award presented by the Benjamin Hooks Institute of Social Change.

Education

J.D., Harvard Law School, 2004; B.A., University of Texas at Austin, 2001

Admitted

Massachusetts, Tennessee

Experience

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (2008-present); Fulbright Scholar, The University of the Free State (South Africa) (2015); Adjunct Professor of Legal Methods, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (2006-2008); Associate, Burch, Porter & Johnson (2005-2008); Associate, Bingham McCutchen (2004-2005).

Teaching Interests

Education Law & Policy, Civil Rights, Property, Remedies, Constitutional Law, Law & Documentary Studies

Research & Publications

- The Memphis 13, documentary film (2011)
- The Endangered School District: The Promise and Challenge of Redistributing Control of Public Education, Boston University Public Interest Law Journal (2013)
- The Enduring Power of Milliken's Fences, The Urban Lawyer (2013)
- A Memphis Dilemma: A Half-Century of Education Reform from Desegregation to Consolidation, Univ. of Memphis Law Review (2011)
- An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure: Reframing the Debate About Law School Affirmative Action, Denver Law Review (2011)
- It Takes a Hurricane: Might Hurricane Katrina Produce for New Orleans Students What Brown Once

Promised?, Journal of Law & Education (2011)
- Accepting Justice Kennedy's Dare: The Future of Integration in a Post-PICS World, Fordham Law Review (2010)
- Exploded Dream: Desegregation in the Memphis City Schools, Law & Inequality (2008)
- Lessons from the Memphis 13: What 13 First Graders Have to Teach About Life, Law, and the Legacy of Brown, Thurgood Marshall Law Review (2013)
- No Caste Here? Toward a Structural Critique of American Education, Penn State Law Review (2015)

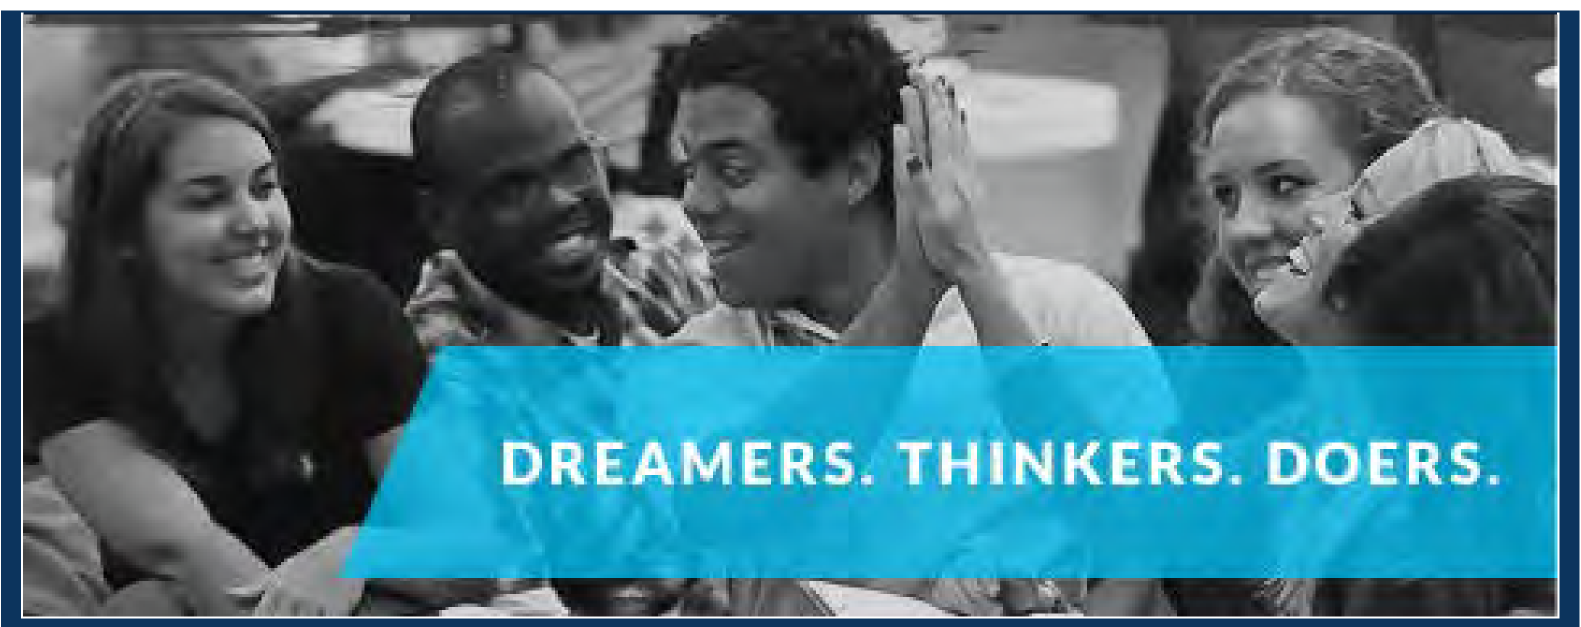
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

William P. Kratzke

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3221
EMAIL wkratzke@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 380
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Kratzke

Professor Kratzke has been on the faculty at Memphis Law since 1979 and has served in various roles, including Interim Dean of the Law School.

Education

B.A., 1971, University of Washington; J.D., 1974, Valparaiso University; LL.M.., 1977, Georgetown University Law Center.

Admitted

Washington.

Experience

Assistant Professor of Law, Oklahoma City University, 1977-79; joined The University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1979; visiting Professor of Law, 1986-87, Santa Clara University.

Teaching Interests

Torts, Federal Income Taxation, Unfair Competition, and Economic Analysis of Law.

Publications

Co-author with Earl W. Kintner of three volumes of nine volumes treatise, Federal Antitrust Law (volume 6, 7, and 8); law review articles on trademark law, Federal Tort Claims Act, Tennessee administrative law, labor law, products liability law, and Russian law. He is a member of the American Law Institute. Fulbright Scholar, Spring 1997 and 2001-2002.

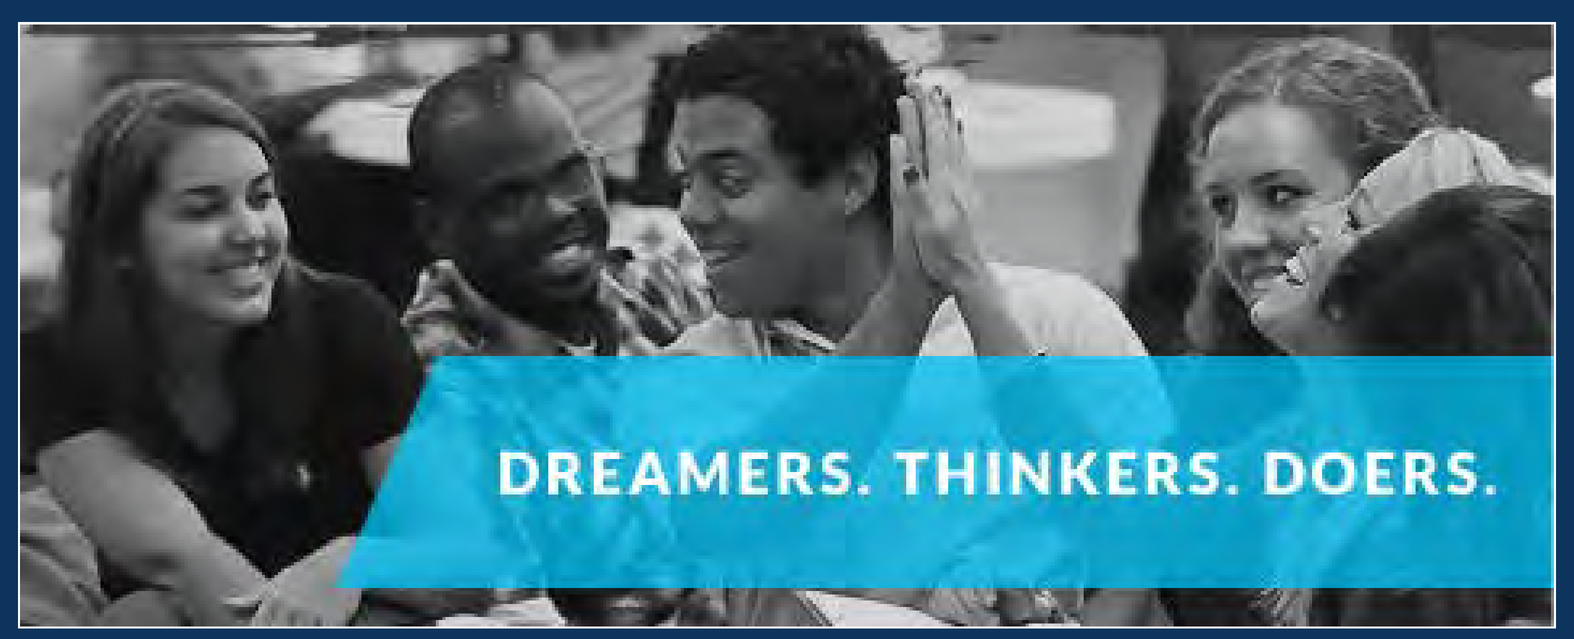
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Barbara Kritchevsky

DIRECTOR OF ADVOCACY AND CECIL C. HUMPHREYS PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3239
EMAIL bkrtchvs@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 377
OFFICE HOURS

Education

B.A. (summa cum laude), 1977, Middlebury College; J.D. (cum laude), 1980, Harvard University.

Admitted

Pennsylvania; Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals

Experience

Associate, 1980-83, Drinker, Biddle & Reath, Philadelphia, PA., Litigation; joined The University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1983. Associate Dean 2001-2009. Director of Advocacy since 8/2009.

Teaching Interests

Administrative Law, Appellate Advocacy, Brief Writing, Civil Rights, Constitutional Law, Criminal Law, Federal Courts, Legal Argument and Appellate Practice, Torts.

Publications

Author of article on negligence per se in The Wisconsin Law Review (2009), articles on Section 1983 litigation in the UCLA Law Review (1988), Toledo Law Review (1991), George Washington Law Review (1992), Villanova Law Review (1996), the Urban Lawyer (1999 & 2005), Rutgers Law Journal (2004), and Cardozo Law Review (2004). Author of articles on state constitutional law, criminal law, moot court, and constitutional law in The University of Memphis Law Review. Coach: 2008 ABA National Appellate Advocacy Competition national finalists and best oral advocate and 2010 regional champions; 1996, 1994, and 1993 Wagner Moot Court national champions, 2003 and 1992 semifinalists; 2006 National Moot Court national finalists, 1999 and 1993 national quarter-finalists, and 2008-09 regional finalists. Officer or Executive Committee Member, Civil Rights Section, Association of American Law Schools (since 1/2002).

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

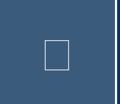
Alumni & Support

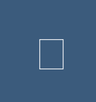
ABA Required Disclosures

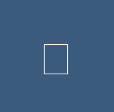
Full sitemap

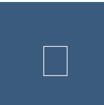
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

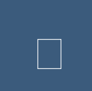
Follow UofM Online

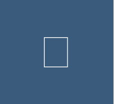












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Peter V. Letsou

DEAN AND PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-2421
EMAIL pvletsou@memphis.edu
FAX (901) 678-5210

OFFICE Law School, Office 276
OFFICE HOURS

CV | SSRN

About the Dean

Peter Letsou joined the Memphis faculty upon his appointment as Dean in June 2013. Prior to coming to Memphis, Dean Letsou served as Dean and Wendt Chair in Business Law at Willamette University College of Law in Salem, Oregon; Professor of Law and Director of the Center for Corporate Law at the University of Cincinnati College of Law; and Associate and Assistant Professor of Law at George Mason University in Arlington, Virginia. In addition to his permanent appointments, Dean Letsou has held visiting professorships at University of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne (where he served as Chair of the Americas), the University of Connecticut School of Law, and Emory University School of Law. Before entering the academy in 1990, Dean Letsou practiced law in New York City with Cravath, Swaine & Moore and Christy & Viener, served as Associate Counsel to the United States Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition, and clerked for the Honorable Walter R. Mansfield of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Dean Letsou received his J.D. with highest honors from the University of Chicago Law School and his B.A. in physics, magna cum laude, from Harvard University. Dean Letsou teaches and writes in the areas of corporate law, securities law, corporate finance and mergers and acquisitions. He is the author of two casebooks and numerous articles and essays.

Education

Harvard College, B.A. Physics 1983 (magna cum laude); The University of Chicago Law School, J.D. 1986 (with highest honors). Order of the Coif. Member, University of Chicago Law Review (1984-1986) Comment Editor, University of Chicago Law Review (1985-86); Olin Foundation Fellow in Law and Economics, 1984-86

Admitted

New York State Bar

Experience

Dean, Roderick & Carol Wendt Chair in Business Law & Director, Program in Law & Business (Isaac Van Winkle Melton Professor, 2002-2003; Wendt Chair since 2003-2013; Associate Dean 2006-2011; Dean 2011-2013) Willamette University College of Law, Salem, Oregon; Visiting Professor (Chair of the Americas) (Nov. 2009) University of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne, Paris, France; Professor of Law & Director, Center for Corporate Law (1997-2002) University of Cincinnati College of Law, Cincinnati, Ohio; Visiting Professor of Law (fall 2001) University of Connecticut School of Law
Hartford, Connecticut; Visiting Professor of Law (fall 1999) Emory University School of Law, Atlanta, Georgia; Associate Professor of Law (1994-1997; with tenure: 1996-97); George Mason University School of Law, Arlington, Virginia; Assistant Professor of Law (1990-1994) George Mason University School of Law, Arlington, Virginia;

Associate (1988-1990) Christy & Viener, New York, New York; Associate (1987-1988) Cravath, Swaine & Moore, New York, New York; Associate Counsel (1987) United States Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition Washington, D.C.; Law Clerk (1986-1987) The Honorable Walter R. Mansfield, United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and Division of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit for the Purpose of Appointing Independent Counsels.

Teaching Interests

Business Organizations, Corporate Finance, Corporations, Mergers & Acquisitions, Quantitative Methods for Lawyers, and Securities Regulation.

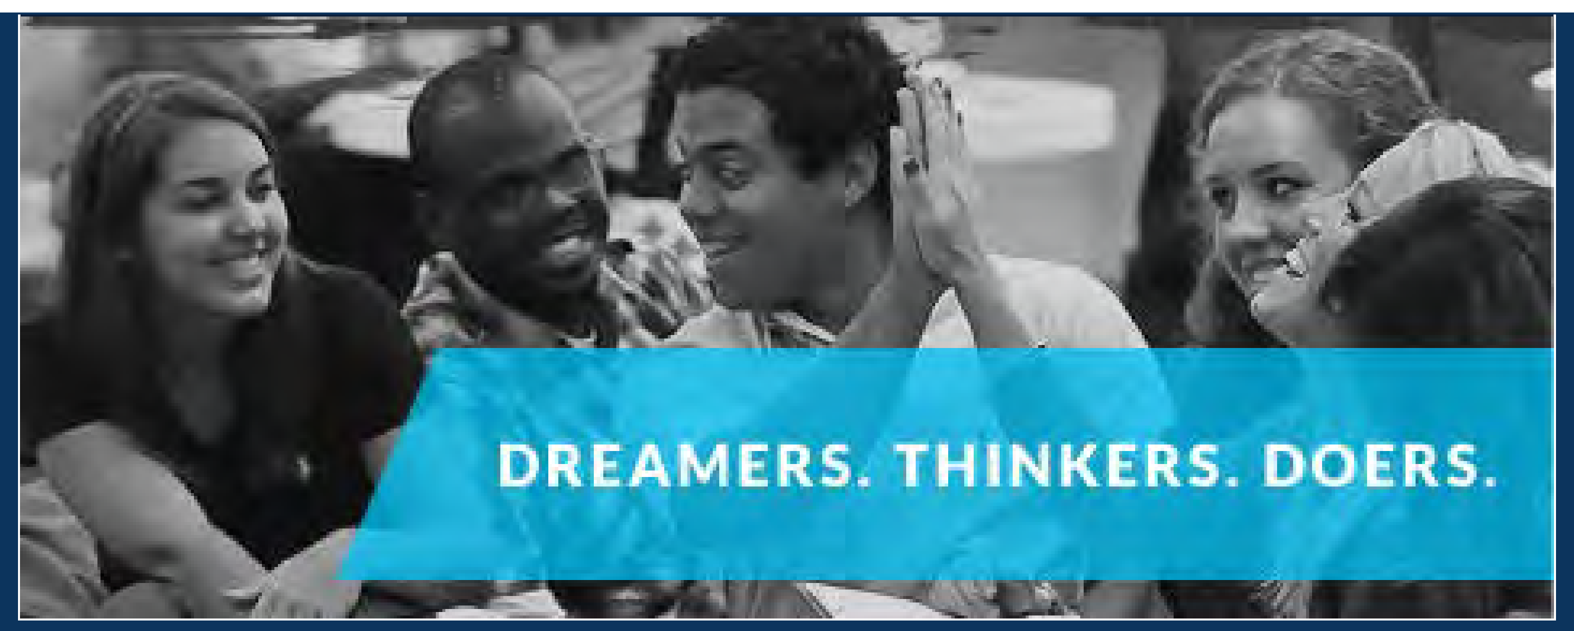
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Ernest F. Lidge, III

PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3234
EMAIL elidge@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 369
OFFICE HOURS

Education

B.S. Ed., 1976, Northern Illinois University; M.A., 1981, J.D., 1984, University of Illinois.

Admitted

Illinois

Experience

Social Studies teacher, Glenbrook North High School, Northbrook, Illinois, (1977-81); Associate, Mayer, Brown & Platt, Chicago, Illinois (1984-88); joined The University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1988.

Teaching Interests

Fair Employment Practices, Labor Law, Professional Responsibility.

Publications

Articles on professional responsibility and employment law in the Indiana Law Journal, Arkansas Law Review, Missouri Law Review, Kansas Law Review, and the Tennessee Law Review; currently serving on the Tennessee Bar Association's Professional Standards Committee.

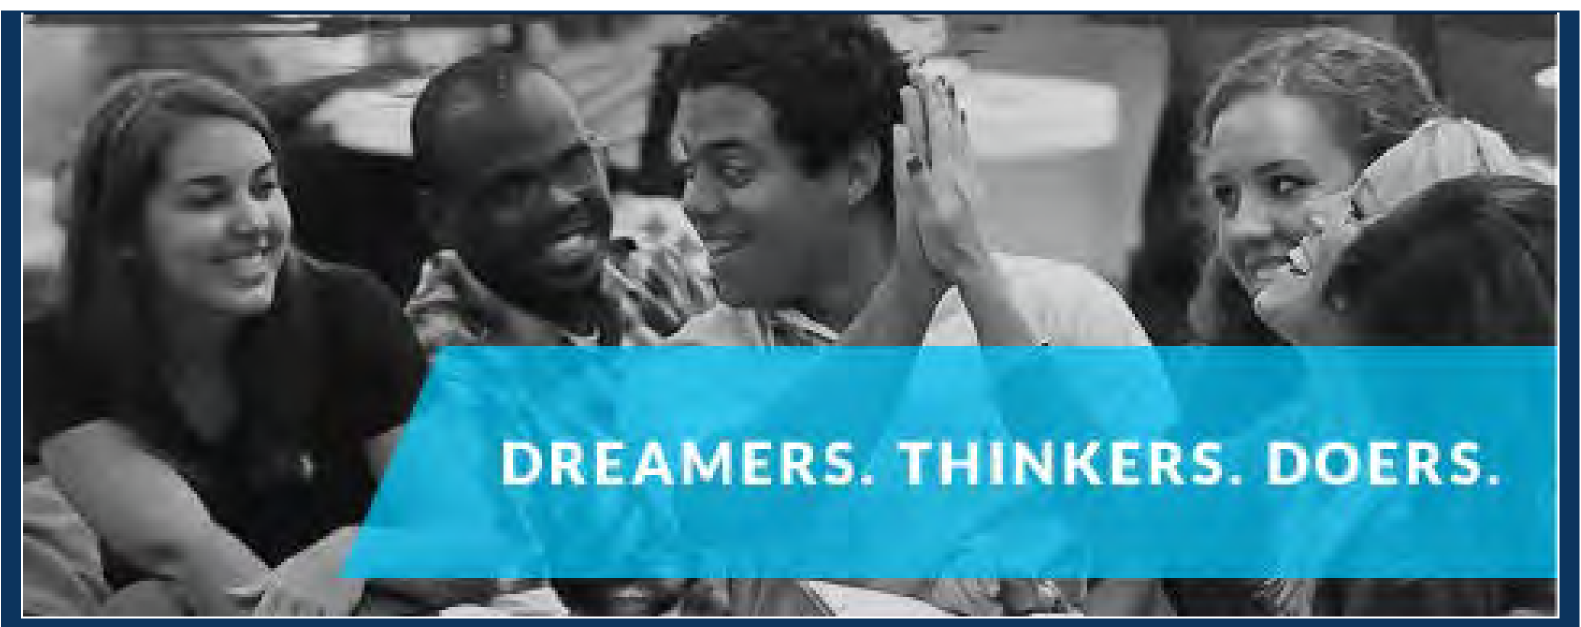
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Boris Mamlyuk

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-2202
EMAIL bmamlyuk@memphis.edu
FAX (901) 678-0753

OFFICE Law School, Office 362
OFFICE HOURS

CV | SSRN

About Professor Mamlyuk

Boris Mamlyuk joined the Memphis law faculty in 2011. He teaches first year Contracts, Public International Law, International Business Transactions, and leads the Comparative Law seminar. Professor Mamlyuk earned his J.D.

from the University of California (Hastings) in 2005. After admission to the bar, Professor Mamlyuk practiced in the Irvine, CA office of Watt, Tieder, Hoffar & Fitzgerald, representing clients in complex commercial litigation. In 2007, Mamlyuk returned to academia to pursue doctoral work at the CLEI Centre, a research center founded by Cornell Law School and the University of Turin, Faculty of Law. During the course of his doctoral studies, Mamlyuk held a number of joint appointments, including as visiting scholar at Columbia University's Harriman Institute for Russian, Eurasian and Eastern European Studies, and as a visiting scholar at Cornell Law School. In 2008-09, Prof. Mamlyuk served as a Fulbright Fellow, studying Russian law and transition at the Institute of State and Law in Moscow. While in Russia, Mamlyuk taught courses on Civil Society and Russian Law and Politics at Moscow's Higher School of Economics.

Education

Ph.D., University of Torino, Faculty of Law, 2011; J.D., University of California (Hastings), 2005; B.A., California State University (Fullerton), 2002.

Admitted

California

Experience

2011-present, Assistant Professor of Law; 2010-2011, Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, Ohio Northern University; 2009-2010, Visiting Scholar, Cornell Law School; 2005-2007, Associate, Watt, Tieder, Hoffar & Fitzgerald, LLP.

Teaching Interests

Contracts, Commercial Law, International and Comparative Law

Publications

Mamlyuk's research interests include international legal theory, law and development, and issues of legal transition and Rule of Law reforms in developing and post-socialist states. His current research project focuses on Russia's attempts to harmonize domestic legal structures in light of WTO accession. Mamlyuk has delivered numerous conference presentations on these topics in more than five countries. His work has been selected for presentation at the Yale Comparative Law Works-in-Progress Workshop and he has served as a participant at the annual Institute for Global Law and Policy workshop, hosted by Harvard Law School. Since 2013, Prof. Mamlyuk also serves on the advisory board of CleanApp, a global open-source, wiki-based civic complaint reporting application.

Representative Publications:

- Russian International Law and Indeterminacy: Cold War and Post-Soviet Dynamics, in The Legal Dimension in Cold War Interactions: Some Notes from the Field (William Simons, Tatiana Borisova, eds., M. Nijhoff 2012).

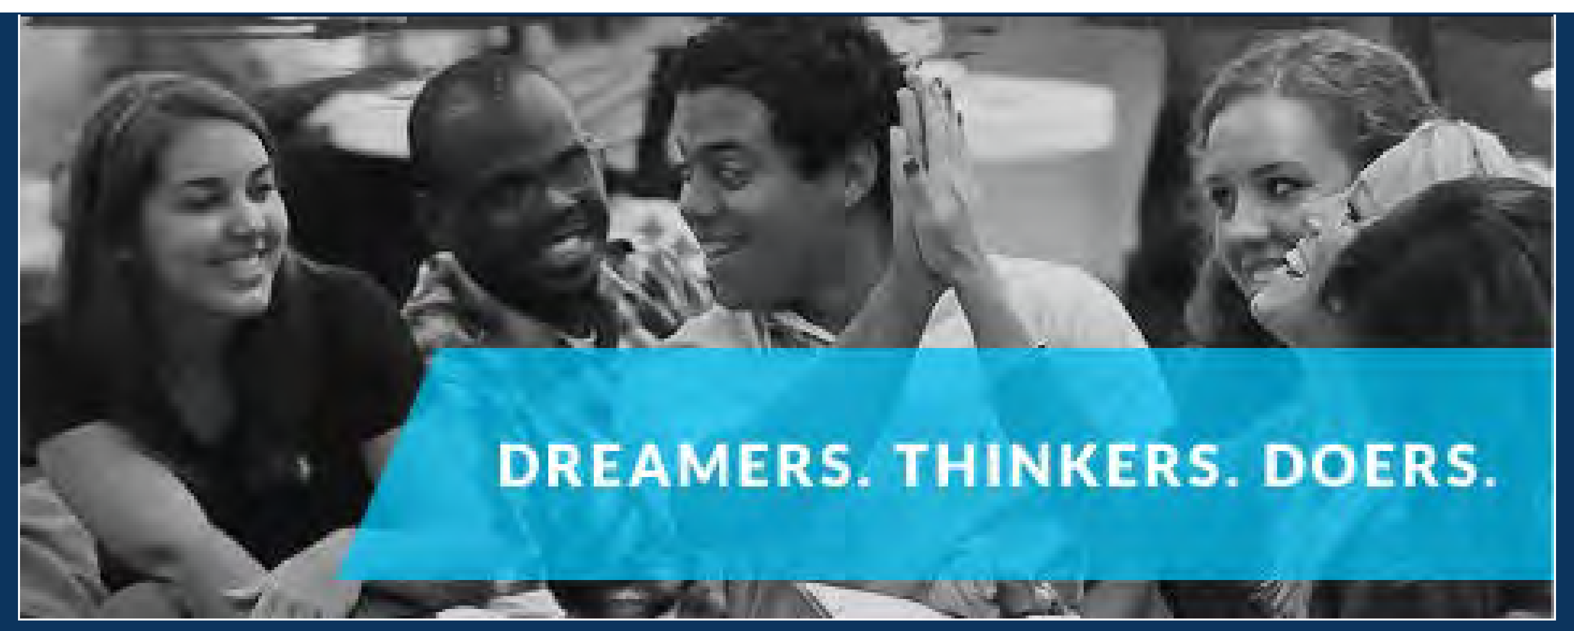
- Comparative International Law, 36 Brooklyn J. Int'l L. 385 (2011) (with Ugo Mattei).
- Russia & Legal Harmonization: an Historical Inquiry into IP Reform as Global Convergence and Resistance, 10 Wash. U. Global Stud. L. Rev. 535 (2011).
- "Capitalism, Communism ... And Colonialism? A Critical Colonial Reading of 'Transitology' in the Former Soviet Union", 9(1) Global Jurist (2009), with John D. Haskell (SOAS) (reproduced at <http://www.bepress.com/gj/vol9/iss2/art7/>)



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/20/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Andrew J. McClurg

PROFESSOR OF LAW, HERFF CHAIR OF EXCELLENCE IN LAW

PHONE (901) 678-1624
EMAIL amcclurg@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 372
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor McClurg

Professor McClurg holds the Herbert Herff Chair in Excellence in Law. A nationally recognized scholar and teacher, McClurg has taught at six law schools and received numerous awards for both his teaching and research.

McClurg has published seven books and dozens of scholarly articles, which have been cited in more than 500 law journals. His popular law school prep book, 1L of a Ride: A Well-Traveled Professor's Roadmap to Success in the First Year of Law School (West 2d ed. 2013), is assigned as required or recommended reading at law schools throughout the country. He is also the author of The "Companion Text" to Law School: Understanding and

Surviving Life with a Law Student (West 2012), the only book that prepares the loved ones of law students for the law school experience.

McClurg is Series Editor for Carolina Academic Press's series of comparative law books: The Contextual Approach Series. He is co-author of the first entry in the series: Practical Global Tort Litigation: United States, Germany, and Argentina (2007) (with Koyuncu and Sprovieri).

In addition to his scholarly writings, McClurg is the author/editor of two legal humor books, editor of Lawhaha.com (an academically oriented humor blog), and a former monthly humor columnist for the American Bar Association Journal.

He has been interviewed and quoted as a legal expert by National Public Radio, Time, U.S. News and World Report, the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Washington Post, and dozens of other media sources.

Prior to joining academia, McClurg served as a law clerk to U.S. District Judge Charles R. Scott (M.D. Fla.) and worked four years as a litigation associate. He graduated Order of the Coif from the University of Florida College of Law, where he was a member of the Florida Law Review.

Education

B.S., University of Florida; J.D. (journalism, with honors), University of Florida (Order of the Coif).

Admitted

Florida

Experience

Professor and Herbert Herff Chair of Excellence in Law (2006-present) and Associate Dean for Faculty Development (2008-2011), Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, University of Memphis; Professor, Florida International University College of Law, 2002-2006; Nadine H. Baum Distinguished Professor of Law, University of Arkansas at Little Rock William H. Bowen School of Law (Baum Prof. 1998-2002; Prof. 1992-1998; Assoc. Prof. 1989-92; Asst. Prof. 1986-89); Visiting Professor, Wake Forest University School of Law, Spring 2000; Visiting Professor, Golden Gate University School of Law, 1991-92 academic year and Spring 1997; Visiting Professor, University of Colorado School of Law, Summer 1994; Associate, Bedell, Dittmar, DeVault & Pillans, Jacksonville, Florida, 1982-1986; Judicial Law Clerk, Honorable Charles R. Scott, United States District Judge, Middle District of Florida, 1980-82.

Teaching Interests

Tort Law, Products Liability, Privacy Law, Firearms Policy.

Publications

Books

Guns and the Law: Cases and Materials (Carolina Academic Press, forthcoming 2016) (with Brannon Denning).

1L of a Ride: A Well-Traveled Professor's Roadmap to Success in the First Year of Law School (West 2d ed. 2013).

The "Companion Text" to Law School: Understanding and Surviving Life with a Law Student (West 2012).

1L of a Ride: A Well-Traveled Professor's Roadmap to Success in the First Year of Law School (West 2009).

Practical Global Tort Litigation: United States, Germany, and Argentina (Carolina Academic Press 2007) (with Adem Koyuncu and Luis Eduardo Sprovieri).

Amicus Humoriae: An Anthology of Legal Humor (Carolina Academic Press 2003) (with Robert M. Jarvis and Thomas E. Baker).

Gun Control and Gun Rights (New York University Press 2002) (with David B. Kopel and Brannon P. Denning).

The Law School Trip (the Insider's Guide to Law School) (Trafford 2001).

Law Journal Articles

The Second Amendment Right to be Negligent, 68 Florida Law Review ___ (forthcoming 2016).

In Search of the Golden Mean in the Gun Debate, 58 Howard Law Journal ___ (forthcoming 2015) (invited symposium participant).

Preying on the Graying: A Statutory Presumption to Prosecute Elder Financial Exploitation, 65 Hastings Law Journal 1099-1144 (2014).

Firearms Policy and the Black Community: Rejecting the "Wouldn't You Want A Gun If Attacked?" Argument, 45 Connecticut Law Review 1773–1808 (2013) (invited submission).

Why Can't We Be Friends: Improving Doctor-Lawyer Relationships Out of Mutual Self-Interest, 24 Health Lawyer 38-47 (2012) (journal of the ABA Health Law Section, invited submission).

Fixing the Broken Windows of Online Privacy through Private Ordering: A Facebook Application, 1 Wake Forest Law Review Online 74-85 (2011) (invited submission).

Fight Club: Doctors vs. Lawyers – A Peace Plan Grounded in Self-Interest, 83 Temple Law Review 309-67 (2011).

Neurotic, Paranoid Wimps – Nothing has Changed, 78 University of Missouri-Kansas City Law Review 1049-61 (2010) ("1L Stories" issue with introduction by Scott Turow, author of ONE L).

Kiss and Tell: Protecting Intimate Relationship Privacy Through Implied Contracts of Confidentiality, 74 University of Cincinnati Law Review 887-940 (2006).

Dead Sorrow: A Story About Loss and A New Theory of Wrongful Death Damages, 85 Boston University Law Review 1-51(2005).

Sound-Bite Gun Fights: Three Decades of Presidential Debating About Firearms, 73 University of Missouri-Kansas City Law Review 1015-45 (2005) (invited symposium participant).

Thousand Words are Worth a Picture: A Privacy Tort Response to Consumer Data Profiling, 98 Northwestern University Law Review 63-144 (2003).

Lock, Stock and Barrel: Civil Liability for Allowing Unauthorized Access to Firearms, 14 Journal on Firearms and Public Policy 137-60 (2002) (invited submission).

The Public Health Case for the Safe Storage of Firearms: Adolescent Suicides Add One More 'Smoking Gun', 51 Hastings Law Journal 953-1001 (2000).

Armed and Dangerous: Tort Liability for the Negligent Storage of Firearms, 32 Connecticut Law Review 1189-1245 (2000) (invited symposium participant).

Child Access Prevention Laws: A Common Sense Approach to Gun Control, 18 St. Louis University Public Law Review 47-78 (1999) (invited symposium participant).

"Lotts" More Guns and Other Fallacies Infecting the Gun Control Debate, 11 Journal on Firearms and Public Policy 139-76 (1999) (invited submission).

Good Cop, Bad Cop: Using Cognitive Dissonance Theory to Reduce Police Lying, 32 University of California-Davis Law Review 389-453 (1999).

Poetry in Commotion: Katko v. Briney and the Bards of First-Year Torts, 74 Oregon Law Review 823-48 (1995).

The Tortious Marketing of Handguns: Strict Liability is Dead, Long Live Negligence, 19 Seton Hall Legislative Journal 777-820 (1995) (invited symposium participant).

Bringing Privacy Law Out of the Closet: A Tort Theory of Liability for Intrusions in Public Places, 73 North Carolina Law Review 989-1088 (1995).

The Rhetoric of Gun Control, 42 American University Law Review 53-113(1992).

Strict Liability for Handgun Manufacturers: A Reply to Professor Oliver, 14 University of Arkansas at Little Rock Law Journal 511-29 (1992).

Handguns as Products Unreasonably Dangerous Per Se, 13 University of Arkansas at Little Rock Law Journal 599-619 (1991).

It's a Wonderful Life: The Case for Hedonic Damages in Wrongful Death Cases, 66 Notre Dame Law Review 57-116 (1990).

Your Money or Your Life: Interpreting the Federal Act Against Patient Dumping, 24 Wake Forest Law Review 173-237 (1989).

Logical Fallacies and the Supreme Court: A Critical Analysis of Justice Rehnquist's Decisions In Criminal Procedure Cases, 59 University of Colorado Law Review 741-844 (1988).

Comparative Law Book Series Editor

Aya Gruber, Vicente de Palacios & Piet Hein van Kempen, Practical Global Criminal Procedure: United States, Argentina, and the Netherlands (Carolina Academic Press 2012).

Janet Leach Richards, Chen Wei & Lorella dal Pezzo, Practical Global Family Law: United States, China, and Italy (Carolina Academic Press 2009).

Andrew J. McClurg, Adem Koyuncu & Luis Eduardo Sprovieri, Practical Global Tort Litigation: United States, Germany, and Argentina (Carolina Academic Press 2007).

Monthly Columnist

American Bar Association Journal, 1997-2001. Author of Harmless Error: A Truly Minority View of the Law, satirical column that ran for fifty-one months on the Obiter Dicta page of the A.B.A. Journal.

Book Chapters

Minimizing Medical Malpractice Exposure (with Robert W. Bailey and Philip M. Gerson) in The Sages Manual of Quality, Outcomes & Patient Safety, Society of Gastrointestinal & Endoscopic Surgeons 553–67 (D. Tichansky et al. eds 2012).

The Ten Commandments of [The First-Year Course of Your Choice] and Paying Respects to Law School's First Year in Techniques for Teaching Law 6, 23 (Gerald F. Hess & Steve Friedland eds. 1999).

The Danger Posed by Handguns Outweighs Their Effectiveness, in Gun Control 176-81 (Bruno Leone, Bonnie Szumski, Carol Wekesser & Charles P. Cozic eds. 1992).

Other Publications

Fight Club: Doctors v. Lawyers, Chicago Medicine, June 2012, at8 (cover story).

Book Review: Philip K. Howard, Life without Lawyers: Restoring Responsibility in America, 52 American Journal of Legal History 387 (2012).

Children of the World v. Santa Claus, in A Family Christmas 104-05 (Caroline Kennedy ed. 2007) (Christmas anthology collected by Caroline Kennedy including works by Charles Dickens, Robert Frost, Mark Twain, and many others).

Remembering Law School's Torments, UF Law Magazine, Summer 2007, at 42-44 (University of Florida College of Law alumni magazine).

Online Lessons on Unprotected Sex, Washington Post, Aug. 15, 2005, at A15 (op-ed).

In ID Theft, Customer Becomes the Commodity, Miami Herald, May 28, 2005, at 19A (op-ed).

Book Review: Joyce Lee Malcolm, Guns and Violence: The English Experience, 46 American Journal of Legal History 507 (2004).

Why I Teach, The Law Teacher, Spring 2004, at 16.

Risky Business: The Dangers of Using Humor, Orange County Lawyer, June 2003, at 32.

The Risks of Being Funny, GPSolo, Apr. 2003, at 60 (magazine of the ABA's General Practice, Solo & Small Firm Section).

Book Review: John Grisham, The Testament, 10 Bimonthly Review of Law Books 3 (Sept.-Oct. 1999).

Supreme Court Extends Daubert to All Expert Testimony, ATLA (Arkansas Trial Lawyers Association) Docket, Summer 1999, at 11.

Fourth Amendment Standing? – Take A Seat, ATLA Docket, Spring 1999, at 20.

Book Review: Grif Stockley, Blind Judgment, 10 Bimonthly Review of Law Books 1 (Jan.-Feb. 1999).

Final Footnote To Foster Tragedy: Supreme Court Recognizes Posthumous Attorney-Client Privilege, ATLA Docket, Winter 1998, at 4.

Supreme Court Gives Green Light To Police Chases, ATLA Docket, Summer 1998, at 6.

Of Mice and Men: Supreme Court Sets Standard of Review for Daubert Rulings, ATLA Docket, Spring 1998, at 6.

Ten Really Important Things To Know About Arguing In the U.S. Supreme Court, ATLA Docket, Winter 1998, at 4.

Mass Tort Class Actions: May They Rest In Pieces, ATLA Docket, Fall 1997, at 8.

Dear Employer . . ., Journal of Legal Education, June 1997, at 267.

Bryan County Commissioners v. Brown: Supreme Court Shrinks Municipal Liability for Police Brutality, ATLA Docket, Summer 1997, at 20.

Rungful Suits, A.B.A. Journal, June 1997, at 98.

A Day in the Life of Justice Antonin Scalia, ATLA Docket, Spring 1997, at 7.

A Review of the 1995-96 U.S. Supreme Court Term: The Effects on Trial Lawyers, ATLA Docket, Winter 1997, at 14.

Poetry In Commotion: Katko v. Briney and the Bards of First-Year Torts, The Law Teacher, Fall 1996, at 1.

Wheels of Misfortune: The Supreme Court Approves Pretextual Automobile Stops, ATLA Docket, Fall 1996, at 22.

BMW, Inc. v. Gore: The Supreme Court Finishes a "$2 Million Paint Job," ATLA Docket, Summer 1996, at 4.

Blue Process: Or How I Lost my Car Because My Husband's a Jerk, ATLA Docket, Spring 1996, at 25.

The World's Greatest Law Review Article, A.B.A. Journal, Oct. 1995, at 84 (also published in the United Kingdom in the New Law Journal, Aug. 18, 1995, at 1274.

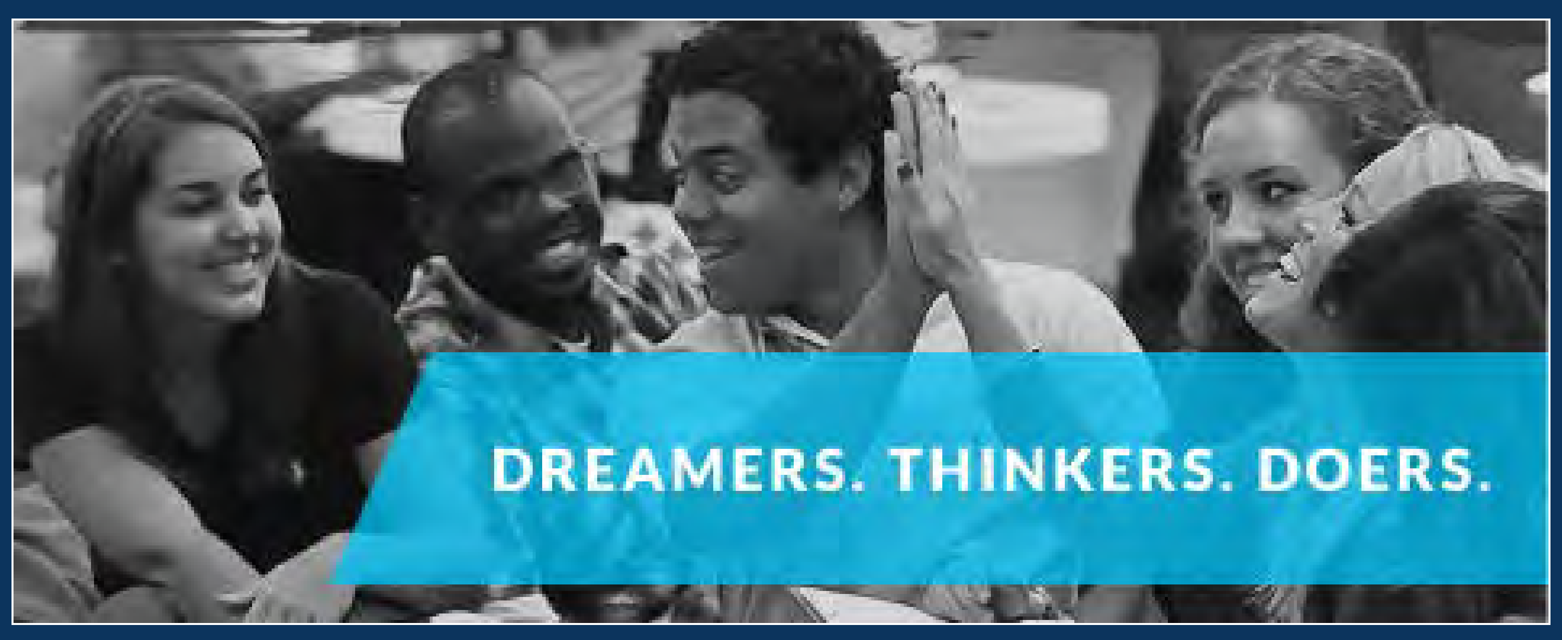
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

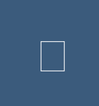
ABA Required Disclosures

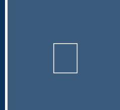
Full sitemap

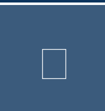


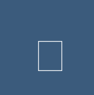
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

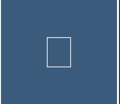
Follow UofM Online











Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Steven J. Mulroy

ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS & PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-4494
EMAIL smulroy@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 378
OFFICE HOURS

SSRN

About Professor Mulroy

As a law professor, Professor Mulroy has participated in the litigation of over a dozen cutting-edge cases in the above areas (mostly pro bono) which inform his scholarship, including the challenge to the Palm Beach County, Florida "butterfly ballot" in the 2000 presidential election; the first-ever federal court injunction against a state senate's ongoing internal election recount proceedings; litigation establishing the legal standard for coram nobis challenges to criminal convictions in Tennessee; the first commutation of a death sentence in Tennessee in 40 years; the first federal case imposing "cumulative voting" as a non-district remedy for minority vote dilution under the Voting Rights Act; and a 2014 Sixth Circuit decision overturning a death sentence. He is a frequent commentator in local media on legal issues, and has been quoted by such media organizations as the Associated Press, USA Today, the Washington Post, the Dallas Morning News, Public Radio International, and the Nashville Tennesseean.

Prof. Mulroy served as an elected Shelby County Commissioner from 2006 through 2014, drafting, inter alia, the county's first ethics code, animal welfare ordinance, and first legislation at any level in Tennessee to provide discrimination protection for the LGBT community. He has served on the board of the Memphis Bar Association and is a Memphis Bar Fellow, and for over ten years has served on the board of the Community Legal Center, which provides free legal services to the working poor.

Education

B.A., 1986, Cornell University; J.D., 1989, William & Mary.

Admitted

District of Columbia (Inactive); Tennessee.

Experience

Law Clerk to U.S. District Court Judge Hon. Roger Vinson, (N.D. Fla.), 1989-1991; Attorney, Civil Rights Division, U.S. Dept. of Justice, 1991- 2000; U.S. Attorney's Office. E.D. Va., 1999-2000; Law professor, University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, 2000-present (currently Professor of Law); Visiting Professor, William & Mary Law School, 2003.

Teaching Interests

Constitutional Law, Criminal Law, Election Law, Civil Rights, Civil Liberties, Criminal Procedure.

Publications

Professor Mulroy has published over 20 articles or book chapters in such journals as the Harvard Civil Rights-Civil Liberties L. Rev., North Carolina L. Rev., George Mason Law Review, Tulane Law Review, Tennessee Law Review, Florida State Law Review, and other journals on constitutional law, criminal law, election law, and criminal procedure. He was awarded the 2009 Democracy Innovator Award by the national Fairvote organization for his advocacy and scholarship on voting rights and election law issues.

Blood Type/Chirpy Personal Motto: B Positive.

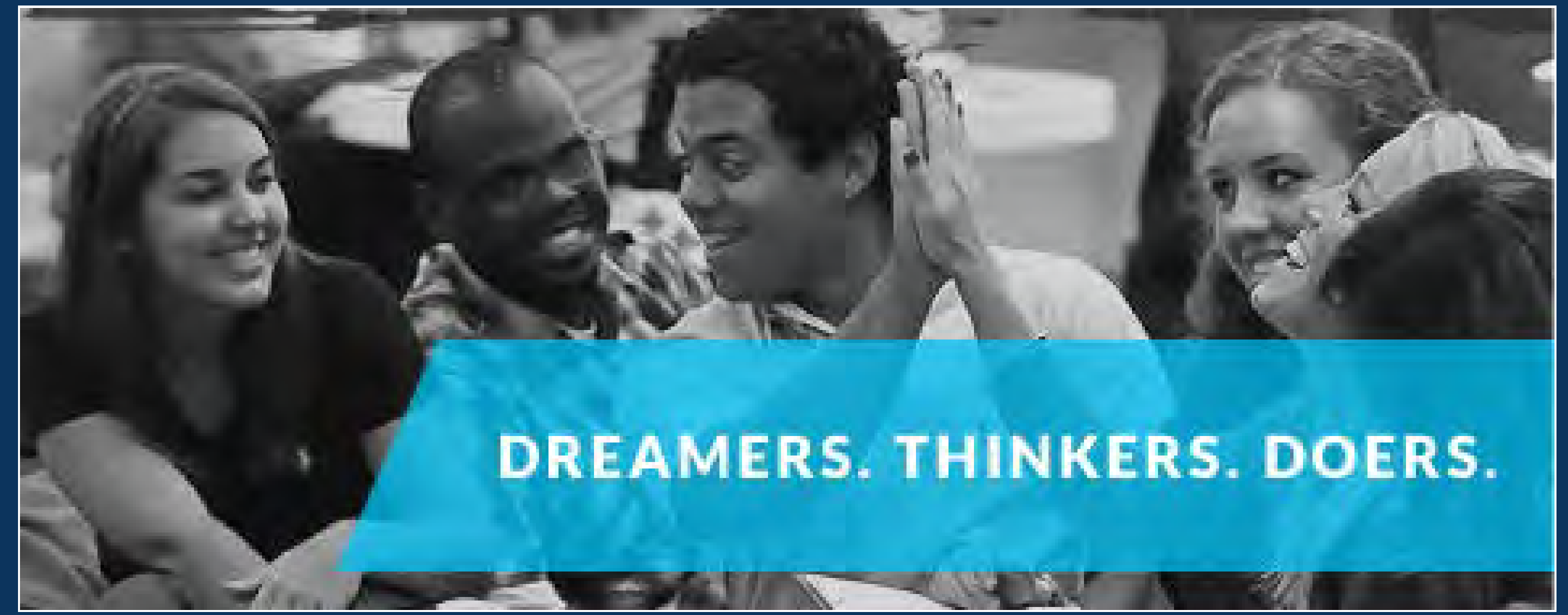
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

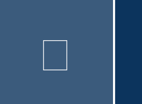
ABA Required Disclosures

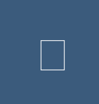
Full sitemap

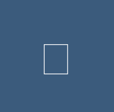


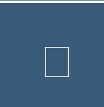
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

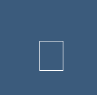
Follow UofM Online

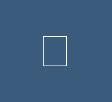












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

John Newman

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3224
EMAIL jmnwman1@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 351
OFFICE HOURS

CV | SSRN

About Professor Newman

Professor Newman currently teaches Contracts I and II, Conflict of Laws, and Antitrust Law. Prior to joining the University of Memphis law faculty, he practiced as a trial attorney with the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. His primary practice involved civil antitrust litigation, analyzing the competitive effects of mergers and acquisitions, and investigating potential antitrust conduct violations. He also maintained an active pro bono practice, representing low-income tenants in litigation and alternative dispute resolution and advising a start-up on intellectual-property licensing issues.

Professor Newman's scholarship focuses on competition and innovation policy in technology markets. His articles have appeared the University of Pennsylvania Law Review, Washington University Law Review, Vanderbilt Law Review, Maryland Law Review, and Florida State University Law Review. He has also been published by and quoted in popular press sources, including Business Insider, Bloomberg, and New Scientist magazine.

While earning a J.D. from the University of Iowa College of Law, Professor Newman served as research assistant to Herbert Hovenkamp, was managing editor of the Iowa Law Review, and published student notes in journals at the University of Iowa and the University of Virginia.

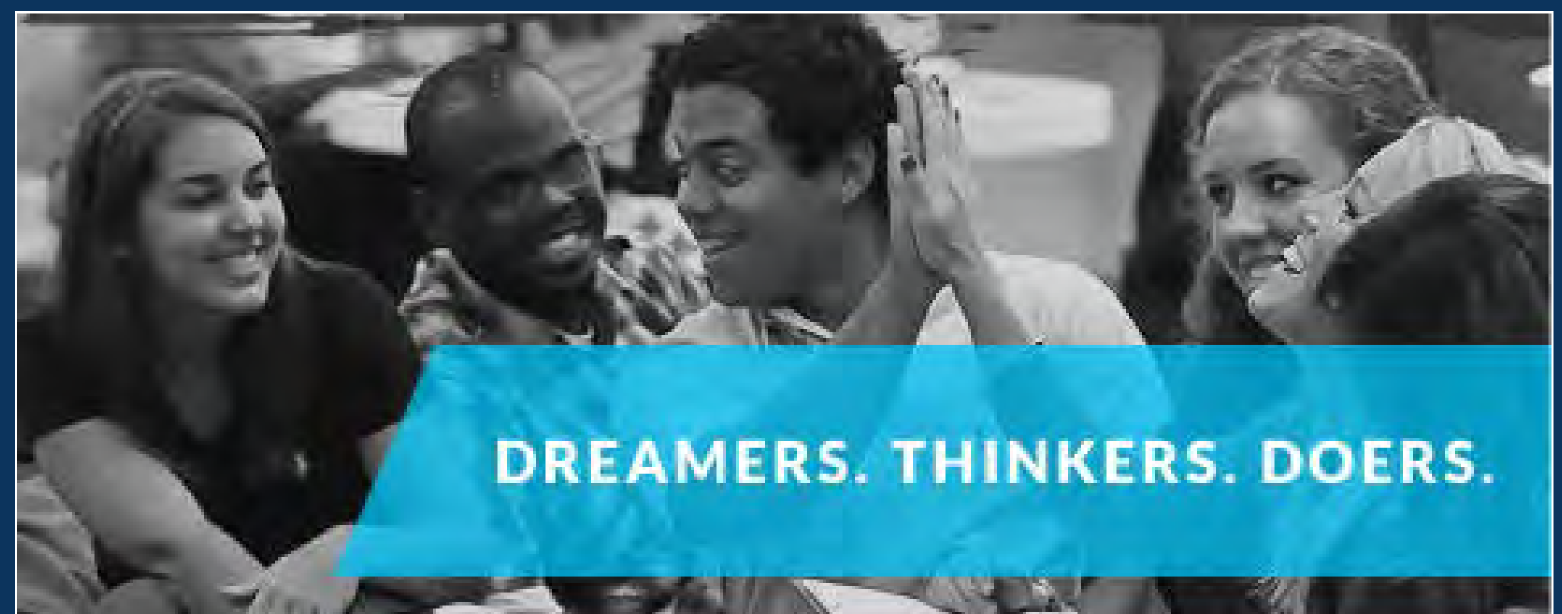
Education

J.D., University of Iowa College of Law (2011); B.A., Iowa State University of Science & Technology (2007).

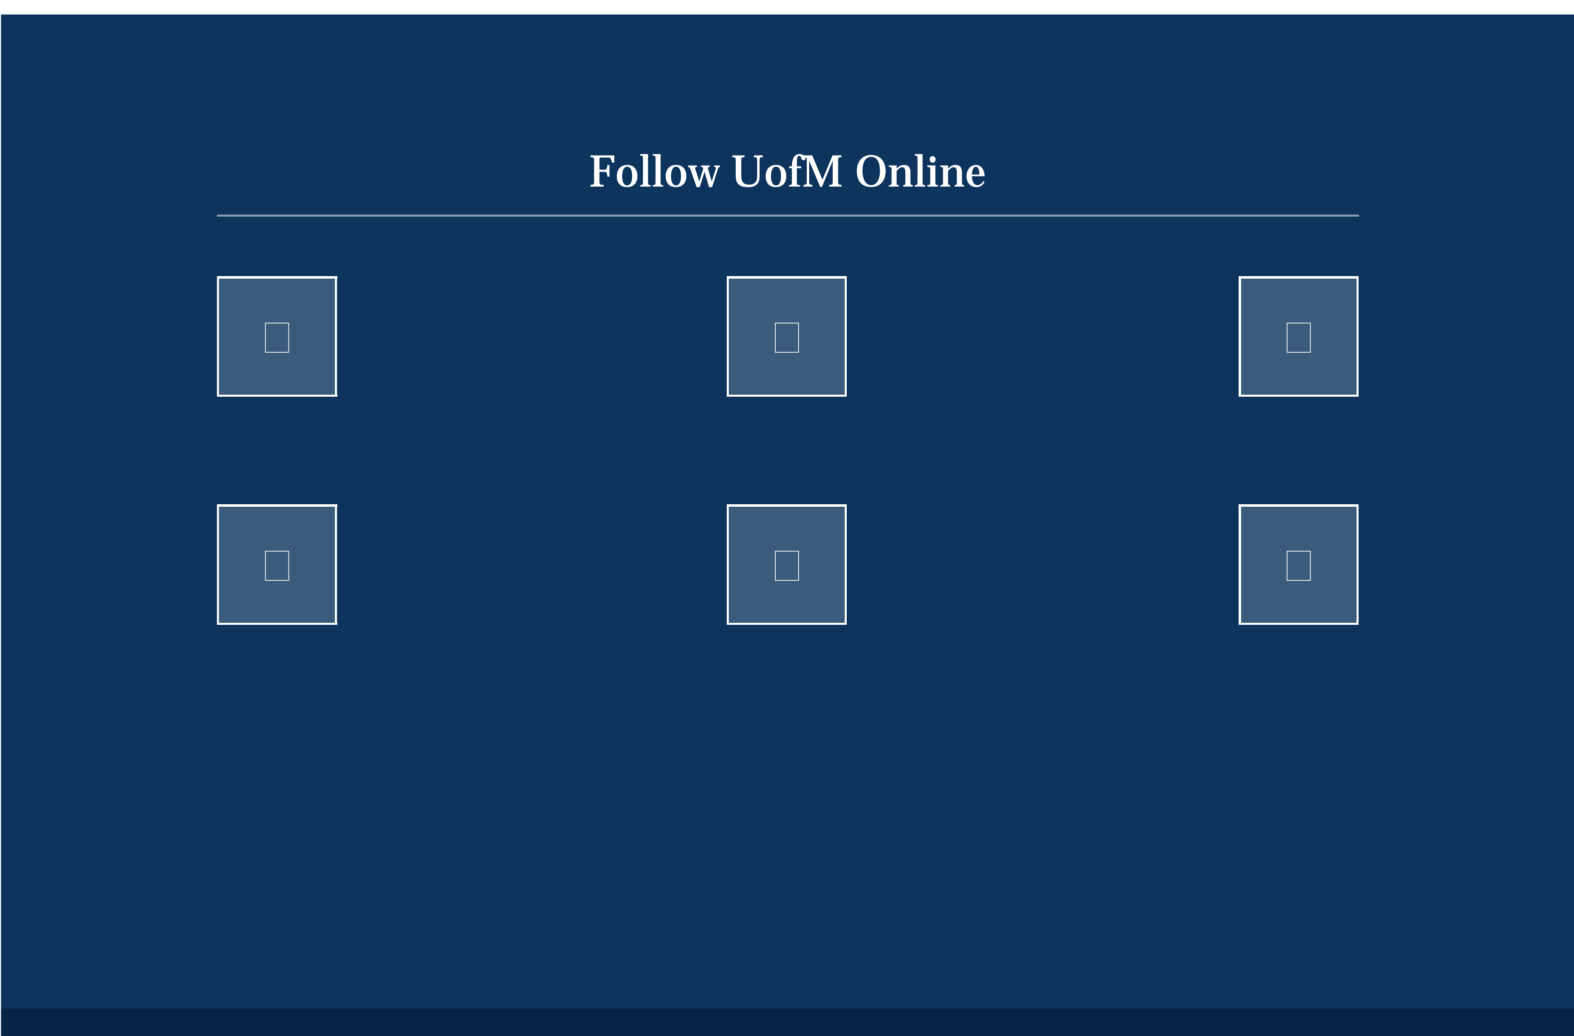
Selected Publications

- Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets: Applications, 94 WASH. U. L. REV. __ (forthcoming 2016).
- Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets: Foundations, 164 U. PA. L. REV. 149 (2015).
- Copyright Freeconomics, 66 VAND. L. REV. 1409 (2013).
- Personal Jurisdiction and Choice of Law in the Cloud, 73 MD. L. REV. 313 (2013) (with Damon Andrews).
- Anticompetitive Product Design in the New Economy, 39 FLORIDA ST. U. L. REV. 681 (2012).

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS



Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

David S. Romantz

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3232
EMAIL dromantz@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 269
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Romantz

Professor Romantz has served on the faculty at Memphis Law since 1999. He has served as the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs since 2010. He is the faculty advisor for the Student Bar Association and the Hispanic Law Students Association.

Education

B.A., 1987 University of Michigan; J.D. (with honors), 1995, Suffolk University Law School

Admitted

Massachusetts (1995); New York (1997).

Experience

1995-1996, Assistant District Attorney (Special), Essex County Massachusetts; 1996-1998, Instructor of Law, Legal Practice Skills Program, Suffolk University Law School

Teaching Interests

Legal Method, Legal Argument, Advocacy, Drafting, and Legislation

Publications

Professor Romantz recently published, "You Have the Right to Remain Silent": A Case for the Use of Silence as Substantive Proof of the Criminal Defendant's Guilt, 38 Ind. L. Rev. 1 (2005 (lead article), and The Truth About Cats & Dogs: Legal Writing Courses and the Law School Curriculum, 52 Kan. L. Rev. 105 (2003). He has also published in the Stetson Law Review, Perspectives: Teaching Legal Research and Writing, and the Suffolk University Law Review. He co-authored a book titled, Legal Analysis: The Fundamental Skill (1998, Carolina Academic Press) and formerly served as editor of Martindale-Hubbell's Massachusetts Law Digest. Professor Romantz has spoken at a variety of regional and national conferences, including the Legal Writing Institute Conference, New England Legal Writing Consortium, the Rocky Mountain LRW Conference, and the Central Regional LRW Conference. Professor Romantz serves on the Board of Directors for the Association of Legal Writing Directors and the Community Legal Center.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

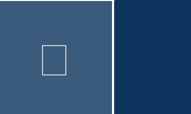
Alumni & Support

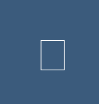
ABA Required Disclosures

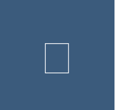
Full sitemap

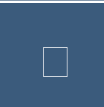
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

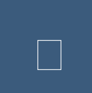
Follow UofM Online

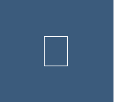












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Daniel Schaffzin

DIRECTOR OF EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING AND ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-5056
EMAIL dschffzn@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Legal Clinic Offices
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Schaffzin

Now in his seventh year at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Professor Schaffzin is an Assistant Professor of Law and the Law School's Director of Experiential Learning. Professor Schaffzin co-directs and teaches the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic . He also directs the Externship Program and teaches the Externship Seminar. Previously, Professor Schaffzin has taught the Civil Litigation Clinic, the Housing Adjudication Clinic, Trial Advocacy, and Contracts I and II. In 2014, National Jurist magazine recognized the Housing Adjudication Clinic as one of the 15 most innovative law school clinical courses in the country. Since arriving at the Law School, Professor Schaffzin has additionally served as the coach of the National Trial Team. In 2013, the Trial Team won its regional championship and finished as National Semifinalists (final four out of 320 teams) in the prestigious National Trial Competition.

Professor Schaffzin is an active contributor to the national clinical teaching community. Presently, he serves on the Planning Committee for the 2016 AALS Clinical Conference and is chairing the Planning Committee for the 2015 Southern Clinical Conference. He also serves as co-chair of the AALS Externships Committee and is a member of the Clinical Legal Education Association's Externships Committee.

Prior to joining the Law School faculty, Professor Schaffzin was a Visiting Assistant Professor of Law at the University of North Dakota School of Law, instructing the school's Housing and Employment Litigation Clinic. While at the University of North Dakota Law School, he also coached the school's National Trial Team. In both 2008 and 2009, the UND team won its Regional Championship and advanced to the National Final rounds of the National Trial Competition.

Professor Schaffzin began his career at Pepper Hamilton LLP in Philadelphia. At Pepper, he worked for five years as an associate in the firm's Health Effects Litigation Practice Group and focused his practice on pharmaceutical and medical device products liability litigation. Professor Schaffzin also maintained an active pro bono practice, including work on a successful death penalty appeal under the Pennsylvania Post-Conviction Relief Act. He received the Pennsylvania Bar Association Pro Bono Award in 2005.

In 2005, Professor Schaffzin joined GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) as Counsel in the pharmaceutical company's U.S. Legal Operations group. At GSK, Professor Schaffzin served on the Sales, Marketing, and Managed Care Legal Team, providing guidance to the company's diabetes franchise and pediatric vaccines product teams, as well as to several sales regions, concerning product promotion, fraud and abuse, and general regulatory compliance issues.

Before starting his legal career, Professor Schaffzin served as a public affairs officer at the Embassy of Israel in Washington, D.C.

Education

J.D. Temple University, 2000 (cum laude); B.A., Temple University, Journalism (magna cum laude), 1996.

Admitted

Tennessee, Pennsylvania (inactive), New Jersey (retired), North Dakota (inactive).

Experience

Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Experiential Learning, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (January 2011-Present); Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (August 2009-December 2010); Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, University of North Dakota School of Law (August 2007-May 2009); Counsel, GlaxoSmithKline (2005-2007); Associate, Pepper Hamilton LLP (2000-2005).

Courses Taught

Current Courses: Neighborhood Preservation Clinic, Externship Course

Other Courses Taught: Civil Litigation Clinic, Housing Adjudication Clinic, Trial Advocacy, Contracts

Publications

So Why Not an Experiential Law School . . . Starting With Reflection in the First Year?, 7 ELON L. REV. 383 (March 2015) (by invitation).

Teamwork: Doctors and Lawyers Working Together Could Be Cure for Many, 51 TENN. B. J. 12 (Jan. 2015) (with E. Lay, C. McDaniel, L. Mutrie, A. Seamon, L. Seely, E. Todaro).

Warning! Lawyer Advertising May Be Hazardous to Your Health: A Call to Limit Commercial Solicitation of Clients in Pharmaceutical Litigation, 8 CHARLESTON LAW REVIEW 319 (Winter 2013-14) (by invitation), reprinted in 63 DEFENSE LAW JOURNAL 3 (2014).

Preaching to the Trier: Why Judicial Understanding of Law School Clinics is Essential to Continued Progress in Legal Education, 17 CLINICAL L. REV. 515 (2011) (with M. Jackson).

Landlord Weapon or Tenant Shield? A Proposal to Reform North Dakota's Residential Security Deposit Statute, 85 N.D. L. REV. 251 (2009) (lead article).

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

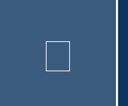
Alumni & Support

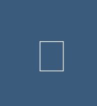
ABA Required Disclosures

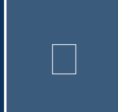
Full sitemap

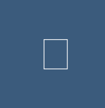
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

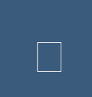
Follow UofM Online

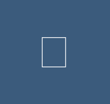












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin

PROFESSOR OF LAW & DIRECTOR OF FACULTY DEVELOPMENT

PHONE (901) 678-1623
EMAIL ktschffz@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 367
OFFICE HOURS

CV

About Professor Schaffzin

Professor Schaffzin joined the faculty of the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law in 2009, after serving for three years as Assistant Professor at the University of North Dakota School of Law. Prior to her services at UND, she was an Abraham L. Freedman Fellow & Lecturer in Law at Temple University Beasley School of Law. She practiced law for three years in the area of construction litigation in New York and Philadelphia. As a transition from practice to law teaching, she clerked for the Honorable James Knoll Gardner in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

In addition to her scholarly interests, Professor Schaffzin is deeply committed to teaching students trial advocacy skills. She is certified by the National Institute of Trial Advocacy as a Teacher of Trial Advocacy Skills. At the University of North Dakota School of Law, she coached the Trial Team to consecutive regional championships and to the National Trial Competition. While practicing and clerking, she coached the Trial Team at Franklin Learning Center in Philadelphia, PA, to several city championships and to the state competition. In addition to her other courses at Memphis, Schaffzin teaches Trial Advocacy. She has also been invited to address the Advisory Committee on Evidence Rules.

Education

LLM, Temple University Beasley School of Law, Philadelphia, PA; JD, Temple University Beasley School of Law, Philadelphia, PA; BA, LaSalle University, Philadelphia, PA

Admitted

New York (inactive); New Jersey; Pennsylvania (inactive); United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; United States Tax Court.

Experience

Professor of Law, Director of Faculty Development, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, University of Memphis (present); Assistant Professor of Law, University of North Dakota School of Law (2006-2009); Abraham L. Freedman Fellow & Lecturer in Law, Temple University Beasley School of Law (2004-2006); Judicial Law Clerk, Honorable James Knoll Gardner, United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania (2003-2004); Associate, Mazur, Carp & Rubin, P.C., New York, NY (2002-2003); Associate, Pepper Hamilton, LLP, Philadelphia, PA (2000-2002).

Teaching Interests

Evidence, Civil Procedure, Professional Responsibility, and Trial Advocacy

Publication and Research

Professor Schaffzin focuses her research on the intersection of evidence, civil procedure, and professional responsibility, with an emphasis on the issue of privilege. Her work has been published in the UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN JOURNAL OF LAW REFORM, the BOSTON UNIVERSITY PUBLIC INTEREST LAW JOURNAL, the NORTH DAKOTA LAW REVIEW, THE TENNESSEE LAW REVIEW, THE CHARLESTON LAW REVIEW and the TEMPLE LAW REVIEW. Her course package reflects her interest in the area of her scholarship.

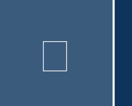
Alumni & Support

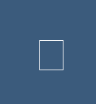
ABA Required Disclosures

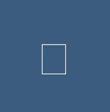
Full sitemap

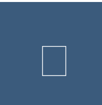
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

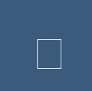
Follow UofM Online

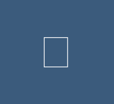












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/5/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Eugene L. Shapiro

PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3233
EMAIL eshapiro@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 366
OFFICE HOURS

Education

B.A., 1968, Harpur College, S.U.N.Y. Binghamton; J.D., 1972, University of Virginia; LL.M. (Cr. J), 1973, New York University.

Admitted

New York Bar.

Experience

Associate Appellate Counsel, 1974-76, The Legal Aid Society, New York, NY; Attorney National Labor Relations Board; joined The University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1976.

Teaching Interests

Constitutional Law, Criminal Procedure, Criminal Law.

Publications

Professor Shapiro's articles on Constitutional Law and Criminal Procedure have appeared in the Arizona Law Review, Seton Hall Law Review, South Carolina Law Review, Tennessee Law Review, Valparaiso Law Review, Oklahoma Law Review, and the West Virginia Law Review. In 1982, he co-authored TENNESSEE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE with Orrin K. Ames.

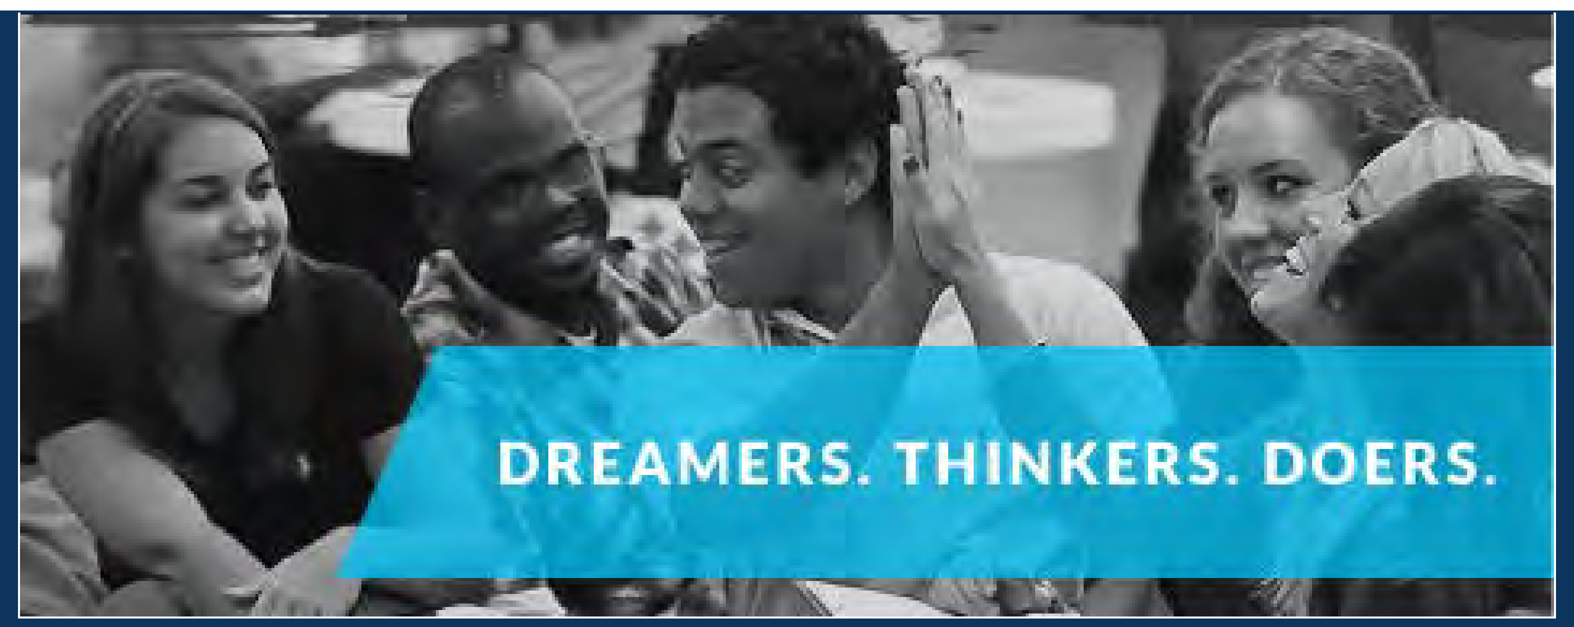
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Kevin H. Smith

THOMAS B. PRESTON PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-3648
EMAIL ksmith@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 370
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Smith

Professor Smith has served on the Memphis Law faculty since 1993. He served as Dean of the law school from 2007-2012, overseeing the law school's move downtown to the historic building at 1 North Front Street in the former U.S. Custom House/Federal Courthouse/U.S. Post Office.

Education

B.A., 1977, Drake University; M.A., 1981, J.D., 1983, Ph.D., 1994, The University of Iowa.

Admitted

Iowa and Maryland (on inactive status).

Experience

Visiting Associate Professor, Notre Dame Law School, August 2000 to May 2001, Visiting Assistant Professor, Chicago-Kent College of Law, 1990-93; Visiting Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, Northern Illinois University, Spring 1991; Associate Attorney, Cook, Howard, Downes & Tracy, Towson, Maryland, 1984-88; joined The University of Memphis School of Law faculty in 1993.

Research Interests

Secured Transactions, Commercial Paper, Jurisprudence, Business Organizations, Social Science and Statistics in the Law, and Law, Science, and Technology.

Publications

Professor Smith has published on topics such as disability law, Supreme Court certiorari decision making, secured transactions, law school pedagogy, and legal reasoning in the Akron Law Review, the Albany Law Review, the Denver Law Review, the Hofstra Law Review, the Law Review of Michigan State University--Detroit College of Law, the Loyola University Chicago Law Journal, the Oklahoma Law Review, the Seton Hall Law Review, the University of Kansas Law Review, the University of Memphis Law Review, and the Wayne Law Review.

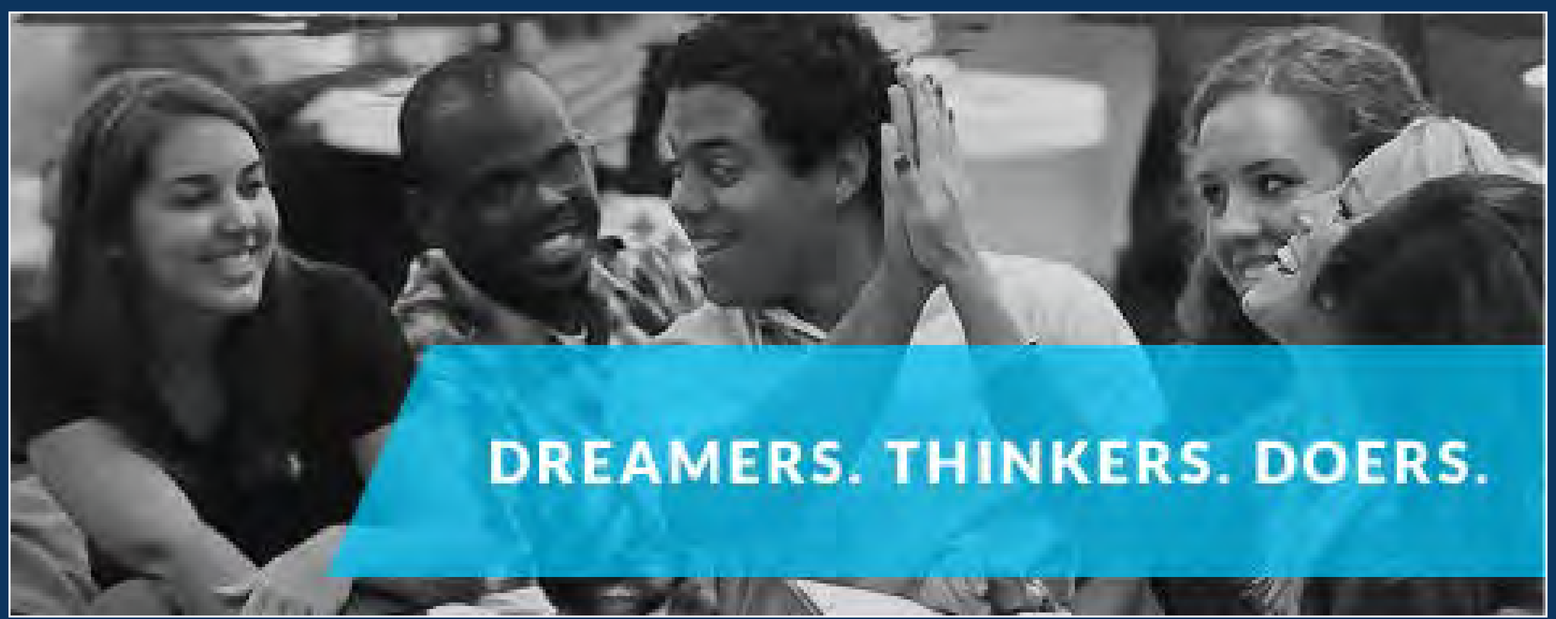
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Faculty & Staff

Jodi Wilson

DIRECTOR OF LEGAL METHODS AND ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW

PHONE (901) 678-5730
EMAIL jlwlson2@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Office 349
OFFICE HOURS

CV | SSRN

About Professor Wilson

Professor Wilson came to the University of Memphis to accept the Director of Legal Methods position in 2009. Prior to joining the faculty at the University of Memphis, she was a litigator with a national civil litigation and arbitration practice, focusing on business disputes and securities industry arbitrations. In 2002, the American Academy of Otolaryngology - Head & Neck Surgery presented Prof. Wilson with the Board of Governors Chair Award in honor of her work in health care litigation on behalf of physicians and other health care providers.

As a member of the community, Prof. Wilson has provided pro bono legal services through Memphis Area Legal Services and the Community Legal Center. In connection with her pro bono work, Memphis Area Legal Services awarded her the Advocate Circle Award for Individuals in 2006.

Prof. Wilson graduated first in her class at the Washington University School of Law and was inducted into the Order of the Coif. During law school, she was a staff member of the Washington University Law Quarterly and a member of the Environmental Law National Moot Court Team.

Education

B.A., University of Arkansas, with honors; J.D., Washington University, with honors.

Admitted

Tennessee; Illinois (inactive); Missouri (inactive); U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee; U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Illinois; U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Experience

Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Legal Methods, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (2009-present); Adjunct Professor of Legal Methods, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (2007-2009); Associate, Bass, Berry & Sims, PLC (2007-2009); Associate, Tate, Lazarini, Brady & Davis, PLC (2005-2007); Associate, Cates, Kurowski, Bailey & Shultz, LLC (2003-2005); Associate, Carr, Korein, Tillery, Kunin, Montroy, Cates, Katz & Glass, LLC (and successor firms) (2001-2003).

Teaching Interests

Legal Methods, Advocacy, Alternative Dispute Resolution, Professional Responsibility

Publications

Please see professor Wilson's SSRN page for details about her scholarly research.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

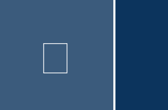
Alumni & Support

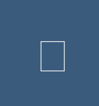
ABA Required Disclosures

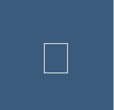
Full sitemap

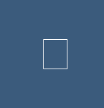
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

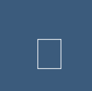
Follow UofM Online

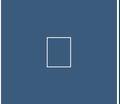












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

Christina A. Zawisza

PROFESSOR OF CLINICAL LAW AND DIRECTOR, CHILD AND FAMILY LITIGATION CLINIC

PHONE (901) 678-5201
EMAIL czawisza@memphis.edu
FAX

OFFICE Law School, Legal Clinic Offices
OFFICE HOURS

About Professor Zawisza

Chris Zawisza is a nationally recognized expert and practitioner in the field of children's law. She was a founder and director of Children First (now Florida's Children First), an innovative statewide law reform project to enhance children's legal rights by taking into consideration their medical, educational and social needs. She has represented children at all levels of the court system from administrative levels to the United States Supreme Court and has practiced extensively before the Florida Legislature on behalf of children and families.

Among her achievements are: litigation and settlement of a class action lawsuit, M.E.v. Bush, on behalf of 45,000 dependent and delinquent children in Florida to obtain necessary mental health treatment; representation of foster children in challenging the gay adoption ban in Florida in Lofton v. Florida Department of Children and Families, 157 F.Supp. 2d 1372 (S.D. Fla. 2001), 358 F.3d 804 (11th Cir. 2004), 543 U. S. 1081 (cert. denied 2005); drafting and advocacy to create a funded relative caregiver program in Florida; drafting of the Florida constitutional amendment providing universal pre-kindergarten education to four year olds; and representation of Amici Curiae before the Tennessee Supreme Court in In re A. M. H., 215 S.W. 3d 793 (Tenn. 2007), which resulted in a unanimous decision clarifying termination of parental rights requirements and the concept of substantial harm.

Most recently, Professor Zawisza had developed and delivered a Juvenile Court Practice Series on behalf of the Tennessee Administrative Office of the Courts. Titles in this PowerPoint series include: Trial Skills for Children in the Courtroom; Expert Witnesses in Juvenile Court; Ethics Refresher for Juvenile Court Practice; and Cross-Cultural Competency.

As the faculty advisor for the Public Action Law Society, Professor Zawisza has mentored students in the Alternative Spring Break (ASB) Project, which in 2010 sent 15 law students to Miami to assist Haitians caught in Miami after a hurricane to achieve temporary protected status. In 2011, 30 law students from around the country will participate in ASB at Memphis Law and will work on pro se divorce, advanced directives, and non-profit projects.

Education

B.A., magna cum laude, State University of New York at Albany, M. A. in Public Policy, the University of Wisconsin, J.D., the University of Virginia

Admitted

Tennessee, New York and Florida

Experience

Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Child and Family Litigation Clinic, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, 2009 - present.

Associate Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Child and Family Litigation Clinic, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, 2004 to 2009.

Over 30 years of legal practice in the area of juvenile and family law in Florida and Tennessee, 19 years as a Legal Services attorney; Director, Children First and Clinic Instructor, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad Law Center, 1996
-2002.

Teaching Interests

Child Advocacy, Clinical Legal Education, Juvenile Law, Disability Law and Practice

Publications

Professor Zawisza has presented poster sessions at AALS clinical conferences and has organized and moderated panel discussions at AALS Global Alliance for Justice Education Conferences in Poland and in Argentina. She writes in the area of child welfare law and practice and clinical teaching methodologies; her most recent publication is "Storied Anna Mae He Decision Clarifies Law But Leaves Unanswered Questions," 38 U. Mem. L. Rev. 637 (2008), which tracks the seven year custody battle between Chinese birth parents and American foster parents. She currently serves on the Tennessee Supreme Court Dependency Court Improvement Task Force and the Tennessee Children's Justice Task Force. Professor Zawisza has received numerous honors and awards, including the American Bar Association Young Lawyers National Child Advocacy Award. She has been interviewed and quoted extensively on children's legal issues in print and broadcast media, including The New York Times, Brian Williams, then of MSNBC, and the Associated Press.

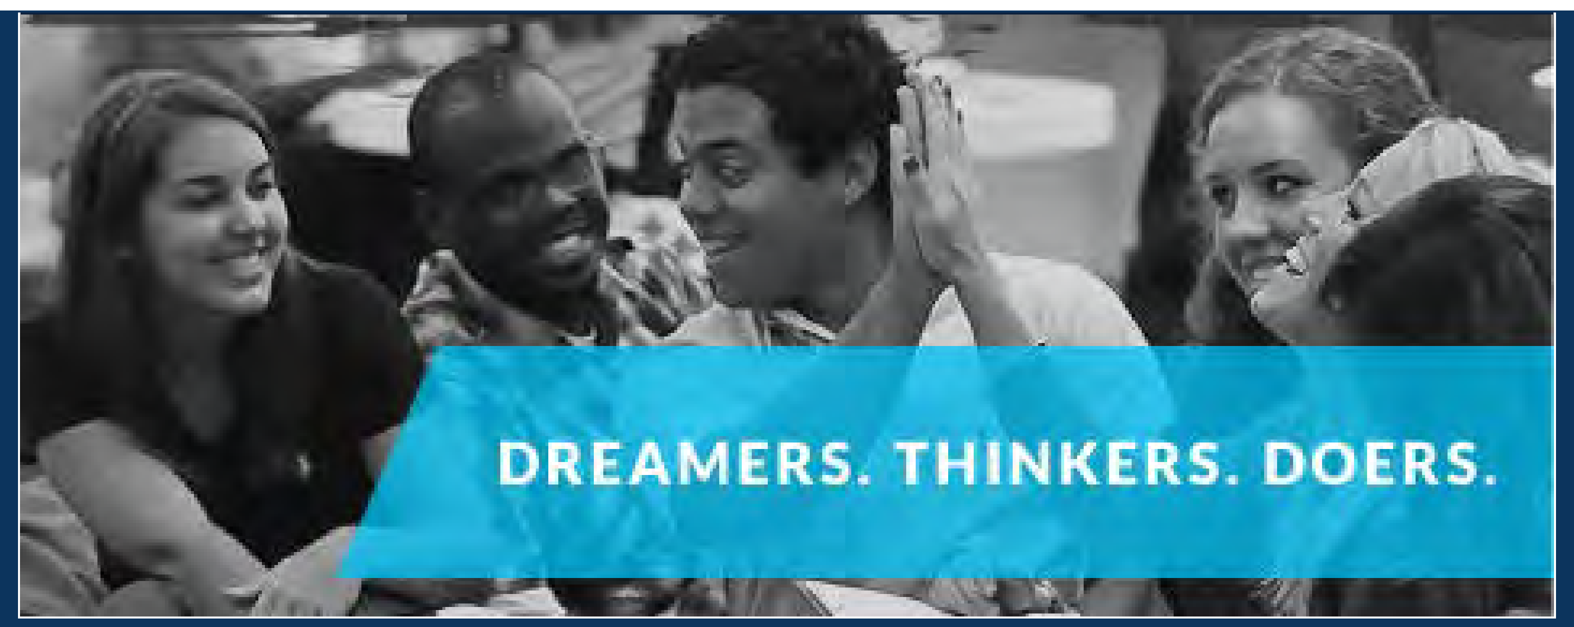
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

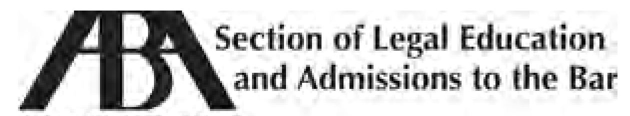
Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

The University of Memphis



EMPLOYMENT SUMMARY FOR 2013 GRADUATES

EMPLOYMENT STATUS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	76	2	4	5	87
Employed - J.D. Advantage	6	0	0	2	8
Employed - Professional Position	6	1	0	0	7
Employed - Non-Professional Position	0	0	1	0	1
Employed - Undeterminable	0	0	0	0	0
Pursuing Graduate Degree Full Time					0
Unemployed - Start Date Deferred					1
Unemployed - Not Seeking					4
Unemployed - Seeking					14
Employment Status Unknown					2
Total Graduates					124

LAW SCHOOL/UNIVERSITY FUNDED POSITIONS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - J.D. Advantage	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Non-Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Total Employed by Law School/University	0	0	0	0	0

EMPLOYMENT TYPE	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Law Firms
Solo	1	0	2	1	4
2 - 10	30	0	0	0	30
11 - 25	7	1	0	0	8
26 - 50	6	0	0	0	6
51 - 100	2	0	0	0	2
101 - 250	2	0	0	0	2
251 - 500	4	0	0	0	4
501 +	0	0	0	0	0
Unknown Size	0	0	0	1	1
Business & Industry	13	1	1	1	16
Government	11	0	1	0	12
Pub. Int.	1	1	1	3	6
Clerkships - Federal	5	0	0	0	5
Clerkships - State & Local	5	0	0	0	5
Clerkships - Other	0	0	0	0	0
Education	1	0	0	1	2
Employer Type Unknown	0	0	0	0	0
Total	88	3	5	7	103

EMPLOYMENT LOCATION	STATE	NUMBER
State - Largest Employment	Tennessee	88
State - 2nd Largest Employment	Arkansas	3
State - 3rd Largest Employment	Virginia	3

Employed in Foreign Countries	0

- Employed – Bar Passage Required.

A position in this category requires the graduate to pass a bar exam and to be licensed to practice law in one or more jurisdictions. The positions that have such a requirement are varied and include, for example, positions in law firms, business, or government. However, not all positions in law firms, business, or government require bar passage; for example, a paralegal position would not. Positions that require the graduate to pass a bar exam and be licensed after beginning employment in order to retain the position are included in this category. Judicial clerkships are also included in this category.

- Employed – J.D. Advantage.

A position in this category is one for which the employer sought an individual with a J.D., and perhaps even required a J.D., or for which the J.D. provided a demonstrable advantage in obtaining or performing the job, but which does not itself require bar passage or an active law license or involve practicing law. Examples of positions for which a J.D. is an advantage include a corporate contracts administrator, alternative dispute resolution specialist, government regulatory analyst, FBI agent, and accountant. Also included might be jobs in personnel or human resources, jobs with investment banks, jobs with consulting firms, jobs doing compliance work in business and industry, jobs in law firm professional development, and jobs in law school career services offices, admissions offices, or other law school administrative offices. Doctors or nurses who plan to work in a litigation, insurance, or risk management setting, or as expert witnesses, would fall into this category, as would journalists and teachers (in a higher education setting) of law and law related topics. It is an indicator that a position does not fall into this category if a J.D. is uncommon among persons holding such a position.

- Employed – Professional Position.

A position in this category is one that requires professional skills or training but for which a J.D. is neither required nor a demonstrable advantage. Examples of persons in this category include a math or science teacher, business manager, or performing arts specialist. Other examples include professions such as doctors, nurses, engineers, or architects, if a J.D. was not demonstrably advantageous in obtaining the position or in performing the duties of the position.

- Employed – Non-Professional Position.

A position in this category is one that does not require any special professional skills or training.

- Short-term.

A short-term position is one that has a definite term of less than one year. Thus, a clerkship that has a definite term of one year or more is not a short-term position. It also includes a position that is of an indefinite length if that position is not reasonably expected to last for one year or more.

A position that is envisioned by the graduate and the employer to extend for one year or more is not a short-term position even though it is conditioned on bar passage and licensure. Thus, a long-term position that is conditioned on passing the bar exam by a certain date does not become a short-term position because of the condition.

- Long-term.

A long-term position is one that does not have a definite or indefinite term of less than one year. It may have a definite length of time as long as the time is one year or longer. It may also have an indefinite length as long as it is expected to last one year or more. The possibility that a short-term position may evolve into a long-term position does not make the position a long-term position.

- Full-time.

A full-time position is one in which the graduate works a minimum of 35 hours per week. A full-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

- Part-time.

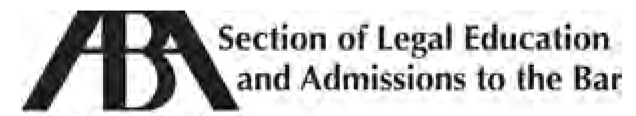
A part-time position is one in which the graduate works less than 35 hours per week. A part-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

Submitted On 3/17/2014 11:19:56 AM

Last Updated 3/17/2014 10:52:16 AM

The University of Memphis
1 N. Front Street
Phone : 901-678-2421
Memphis, TN 38103
Website : www.memphis.edu/law/



EMPLOYMENT SUMMARY FOR 2014 GRADUATES

EMPLOYMENT STATUS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	75	1	1	2	79
Employed - J.D. Advantage	6	1	0	1	8
Employed - Professional Position	7	1	0	1	9
Employed - Non-Professional Position	4	1	3	1	9
Employed - Undeterminable	0	0	0	0	0
Pursuing Graduate Degree Full Time					2
Unemployed - Start Date Deferred					1
Unemployed - Not Seeking					3
Unemployed - Seeking					20
Employment Status Unknown					0
Total Graduates					131

LAW SCHOOL/UNIVERSITY FUNDED POSITIONS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - J.D. Advantage	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Non-Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Total Employed by Law School/University	0	0	0	0	0

EMPLOYMENT TYPE	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Law Firms
Solo	6	0	0	0	6
2 - 10	32	0	0	2	34
11 - 25	3	1	0	0	4
26 - 50	4	0	0	0	4
51 - 100	3	0	0	0	3
101 - 250	2	0	0	0	2
251 - 500	0	0	0	0	0
501 +	2	0	0	0	2
Unknown Size	2	0	0	0	2
Business & Industry	13	3	2	1	19
Government	9	0	1	1	11
Pub. Int.	2	0	1	1	4
Clerkships - Federal	5	0	0	0	5
Clerkships - State & Local	5	0	0	0	5
Clerkships - Other	0	0	0	0	0
Education	4	0	0	0	4
Employer Type Unknown	0	0	0	0	0
Total	92	4	4	5	105

EMPLOYMENT LOCATION	STATE	NUMBER
State - Largest Employment	Tennessee	74
State - 2nd Largest Employment	Arkansas	3
State - 3rd Largest Employment	Texas	2

Employed in Foreign Countries	1

- Employed – Bar Passage Required.

A position in this category requires the graduate to pass a bar exam and to be licensed to practice law in one or more jurisdictions. The positions that have such a requirement are varied and include, for example, positions in law firms, business, or government. However, not all positions in law firms, business, or government require bar passage; for example, a paralegal position would not. Positions that require the graduate to pass a bar exam and be licensed after beginning employment in order to retain the position are included in this category. Judicial clerkships are also included in this category.

- Employed – J.D. Advantage.

A position in this category is one for which the employer sought an individual with a J.D., and perhaps even required a J.D., or for which the J.D. provided a demonstrable advantage in obtaining or performing the job, but which does not itself require bar passage or an active law license or involve practicing law. Examples of positions for which a J.D. is an advantage include a corporate contracts administrator, alternative dispute resolution specialist, government regulatory analyst, FBI agent, and accountant. Also included might be jobs in personnel or human resources, jobs with investment banks, jobs with consulting firms, jobs doing compliance work in business and industry, jobs in law firm professional development, and jobs in law school career services offices, admissions offices, or other law school administrative offices. Doctors or nurses who plan to work in a litigation, insurance, or risk management setting, or as expert witnesses, would fall into this category, as would journalists and teachers (in a higher education setting) of law and law related topics. It is an indicator that a position does not fall into this category if a J.D. is uncommon among persons holding such a position.

- Employed – Professional Position.

A position in this category is one that requires professional skills or training but for which a J.D. is neither required nor a demonstrable advantage. Examples of persons in this category include a math or science teacher, business manager, or performing arts specialist. Other examples include professions such as doctors, nurses, engineers, or architects, if a J.D. was not demonstrably advantageous in obtaining the position or in performing the duties of the position.

- Employed – Non-Professional Position.

A position in this category is one that does not require any special professional skills or training.

- Short-term.

A short-term position is one that has a definite term of less than one year. Thus, a clerkship that has a definite term of one year or more is not a short-term position. It also includes a position that is of an indefinite length if that position is not reasonably expected to last for one year or more.

A position that is envisioned by the graduate and the employer to extend for one year or more is not a short-term position even though it is conditioned on bar passage and licensure. Thus, a long-term position that is conditioned on passing the bar exam by a certain date does not become a short-term position because of the condition.

- Long-term.

A long-term position is one that does not have a definite or indefinite term of less than one year. It may have a definite length of time as long as the time is one year or longer. It may also have an indefinite length as long as it is expected to last one year or more. The possibility that a short-term position may evolve into a long-term position does not make the position a long-term position.

- Full-time.

A full-time position is one in which the graduate works a minimum of 35 hours per week. A full-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

- Part-time.

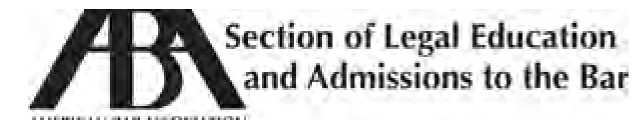
A part-time position is one in which the graduate works less than 35 hours per week. A part-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

Submitted On 4/6/2015 1:08:49 PM

Last Updated 4/6/2015 1:06:48 PM

The University of Memphis
1 N. Front Street
Phone : 901-678-2421
Memphis, TN 38103
Website : www.memphis.edu/law/



EMPLOYMENT SUMMARY FOR 2015 GRADUATES

EMPLOYMENT STATUS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	58	3	3	4	68
Employed - J.D. Advantage	15	0	1	2	18
Employed - Professional Position	1	0	1	0	2
Employed - Non-Professional Position	1	1	1	1	4
Employed - Law School/University Funded	1	0	0	0	1
Employed - Undeterminable	0	0	0	0	0
Pursuing Graduate Degree Full Time					0
Unemployed - Start Date Deferred					2
Unemployed - Not Seeking					3
Unemployed - Seeking					10
Employment Status Unknown					0
Total Graduates					108

EMPLOYMENT TYPE	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Law Firms
Solo	1	0	3	2	6
2 - 10	33	0	1	2	36
11 - 25	5	1	0	0	6
26 - 50	3	2	0	0	5
51 - 100	0	0	0	0	0
101 - 250	3	0	0	0	3
251 - 500	2	0	0	0	2
501 +	2	0	0	0	2
Unknown Size	1	0	0	0	1
Business & Industry	4	1	1	2	8
Government	10	0	0	0	10
Pub. Int.	2	0	1	0	3
Clerkships - Federal	2	0	0	0	2
Clerkships - State & Local	3	0	0	0	3
Clerkships - Other	1	0	0	0	1
Education	2	0	0	1	3
Employer Type Unknown	2	0	0	0	2
Total	76	4	6	7	93

LAW SCHOOL/UNIVERSITY FUNDED POSITIONS	FULL TIME LONG TERM	FULL TIME SHORT TERM	PART TIME LONG TERM	PART TIME SHORT TERM	NUMBER
Employed - Bar Passage Required	1	0	0	0	1
Employed - J.D. Advantage	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Employed - Non-Professional Position	0	0	0	0	0
Total Employed by Law School/University	1	0	0	0	1

EMPLOYMENT LOCATION	STATE	NUMBER
State - Largest Employment	Tennessee	78
State - 2nd Largest Employment	Arkansas	3
State - 3rd Largest Employment	Mississippi	3

Employed in Foreign Countries	0

- Employed – Bar Passage Required.

  A position in this category requires the graduate to pass a bar exam and to be licensed to practice law in one or more jurisdictions. The positions that have such a requirement are varied and include, for example, positions in law firms, business, or government. However, not all positions in law firms, business, or government require bar passage; for example, a paralegal position would not. Positions that require the graduate to pass a bar exam and be licensed after beginning employment in order to retain the position are included in this category. Judicial clerkships are also included in this category.

- Employed – J.D. Advantage.

  A position in this category is one for which the employer sought an individual with a J.D., and perhaps even required a J.D., or for which the J.D. provided a demonstrable advantage in obtaining or performing the job, but which does not itself require bar passage or an active law license or involve practicing law. Examples of positions for which a J.D. is an advantage include a corporate contracts administrator, alternative dispute resolution specialist, government regulatory analyst, FBI agent, and accountant. Also included might be jobs in personnel or human resources, jobs with investment banks, jobs with consulting firms, jobs doing compliance work in business and industry, jobs in law firm professional development, and jobs in law school career services offices, admissions offices, or other law school administrative offices. Doctors or nurses who plan to work in a litigation, insurance, or risk management setting, or as expert witnesses, would fall into this category, as would journalists and teachers (in a higher education setting) of law and law related topics. It is an indicator that a position does not fall into this category if a J.D. is uncommon among persons holding such a position.

- Employed – Professional Position.

  A position in this category is one that requires professional skills or training but for which a J.D. is neither required nor a demonstrable advantage. Examples of persons in this category include a math or science teacher, business manager, or performing arts specialist. Other examples include professions such as doctors, nurses, engineers, or architects, if a J.D. was not demonstrably advantageous in obtaining the position or in performing the duties of the position.

- Employed – Non-Professional Position.

  A position in this category is one that does not require any special professional skills or training.

- Short-term.

  A short-term position is one that has a definite term of less than one year. Thus, a clerkship that has a definite term of one year or more is not a short-term position. It also includes a position that is of an indefinite length if that position is not reasonably expected to last for one year or more.

  A position that is envisioned by the graduate and the employer to extend for one year or more is not a short-term position even though it is conditioned on bar passage and licensure. Thus, a long-term position that is conditioned on passing the bar exam by a certain date does not become a short-term position because of the condition.

- Long-term.

  A long-term position is one that the employer expects to last one year or more. A law school/university funded position that the law school expects to last one year or more may be considered long-term for purposes of this definition only if the graduate is paid at least $40,000 per year. The possibility that a short-term position may evolve into a long-term position does not make the position a long-term position.

- Full-time.

  A full-time position is one in which the graduate works a minimum of 35 hours per week. A full-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

- Part-time.

  A part-time position is one in which the graduate works less than 35 hours per week. A part-time position may be either short-term or long-term.

Submitted On 4/6/2016 2:52:34 PM

Last Updated 4/6/2016 11:47:47 AM

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2010 Summary Report

			Full-time Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 127
Employment Status Known:
Bar Passage Reqd	81	75.7	43	42,000	50,000	70,000	59,809
JD Preferred	4	3.7	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	5	4.7	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Unemployed-Seeking	12	11.2	.	.	.	.	.
Unemployed-Not Seeking	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	107	100.0
Total Employed or Degree:
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Employed	92	86.0	45	42,000	50,000	70,000	58,990
Subtotal	94	87.9
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	63	68.5	30	42,000	57,500	78,000	63,433
Public Sector	28	30.4	14	42,900	49,720	57,000	50,683
Subtotal	91	98.9

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown.
A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2010 Summary Report--Page 2

	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	Full-time Salaries 25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	75	81.5	.	.	.	.	.
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	6	6.5	.	.	.	.	.
JD Preferred-FT	3	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
JD Preferred-PT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	4	4.3	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-PT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-FT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-PT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	92	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	6	6.5	.	.	.	.	.
Business	6	6.5	.	.	.	.	.
Judicial Clerk	10	10.9	7	36,000	54,000	57,000	49,286
Private Practice	57	62.0	29	42,000	65,000	78,000	63,897
Government	9	9.8	6	45,000	47,220	59,688	53,610
Public Interest	3	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	91	98.9
Business Jobs
Bar Passage Reqd	3	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
JD Preferred	1	16.7	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	16.7	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	16.7	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	6	100.0
Size of Firm:
2-10	31	54.4	13	40,000	40,000	65,000	53,923
11-25	12	21.1	7	50,000	50,000	78,000	59,429
26-50	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
51-100	3	5.3	.	.	.	.	.
101-250	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
251-500	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
501+	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Unknown Size	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Solo	4	7.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	57	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. Categories for unknown job and employer types are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2010 Summary Report--Page 3

			Full-time Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Type of Law Firm Job:
Attorney	6	100.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	6	100.0
Jobs Taken by Region:
South Atlantic	4	4.4	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	83	92.2	38	40,000	50,000	70,000	59,389
W South Central	2	2.2	.	.	.	.	.
Foreign	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	90	100.0
Location of Jobs
In-State	82	91.1	38	40,000	50,000	70,000	59,389
Out of State	8	8.9	6	50,000	54,500	70,000	59,295
Subtotal	90	100.0
States w/Employed Grads
	7	.	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	7	**.
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	28	30.4	.	.	.	.	.
Before Graduation	44	47.8	.	.	.	.	.
Before Bar Results	20	21.7	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	92	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. See Table 12 for information on job sources.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

Class of 2010--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	2	20.0	1	2.1
Job listing	1	16.7	0	0	4	40.0	18	37.5
Pre-law school employer	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	2.1
Referral from friend	1	16.7	1	16.7	0	0	10	20.8
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	0	0	2	20.0	3	6.3
All other	4	66.7	5	83.3	2	20.0	15	31.3
TOTAL	6	100.0	6	100.0	10	100.0	48	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	4	50.0	0	0	0	0	7	7.8
Job listing	3	37.5	1	11.1	0	0	27	30.0
Pre-law school employer	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1.1
Referral from friend	0	0	2	22.2	1	33.3	15	16.7
Letter/self-initiated	1	12.5	3	33.3	2	66.7	11	12.2
All other	0	0	3	33.3	0	0	29	32.2
TOTAL	8	100.0	9	100.0	3	100.0	90	100.0

 Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.*
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, commercial websites, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

Class of 2010--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
South Atlantic	Florida	1	1.1
	Georgia	2	2.2
	North Carolina	1	1.1
		4	4.4
E. South Central	Kentucky	1	1.1
	Tennessee	82	91.1
		83	92.2
W. South Central	Arkansas	1	1.1
	Texas	1	1.1
		2	2.2
Non US locations	Non U.S. locations	1	1.1
		1	1.1
TOTAL		90	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

Class of 2010--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Chattanooga	3	3.7
Clarksville	1	1.2
Jackson	2	2.4
Johnson City	1	1.2
Knoxville	2	2.4
Memphis	56	68.3
Murfreesboro	2	2.4
Nashville	8	9.8
Other/unknown Tennessee	7	8.5
	82	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

Class of 2010--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Duration of Job by Employer Type

Duration of Job by Employer Type	Permanent		Temporary		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	4	66.7	2	33.3	6	100.0
Business	5	83.3	1	16.7	6	100.0
Judicial clerkship	0	0	10	100.0	10	100.0
Law firm	53	93.0	4	7.0	57	100.0
Government	7	77.8	2	22.2	9	100.0
Public interest	3	100.0	0	0	3	100.0
Unknown employer type	1	100.0	0	0	1	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which duration was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

Class of 2010--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 16
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	4	66.7	2	33.3	6	100.0
Business	5	83.3	1	16.7	6	100.0
Judicial clerkship	9	90.0	1	10.0	10	100.0
Law firm	53	93.0	4	7.0	57	100.0
Government	8	88.9	1	11.1	9	100.0
Public interest	3	100.0	0	0	3	100.0
Unknown employer type	1	100.0	0	0	1	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2011
Table reprinted by NALP on Wednesday, December 21, 2011

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2011 Summary Report

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 129
Gender Reported:
Bar Passage Required	83	76.9	45	45,000	57,408	65,000	58,863
JD Advantage	6	5.6	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	4	3.7	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	3	2.8	.	.	.	.	.
Pursuing Degree FT	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Unemployed-Seeking	8	7.4	.	.	.	.	.
Unemployed-Not Seeking	3	2.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	108	100.0
Total Employed or Degree:
Pursuing Degree FT	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Employed	96	88.9	49	42,000	55,000	65,000	57,432
Subtotal	97	89.8
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	65	67.7	28	45,000	60,000	84,000	64,357
Public Sector	30	31.3	21	40,000	50,000	57,408	48,199
Subtotal	95	99.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. Employment by sector does not include graduates for whom employer type was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2011 Summary Report--Page 2

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	73	80.2	45	45,000	57,408	65,000	58,863
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	6	6.6	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-FT	6	6.6	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	2	2.2	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-PT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-PT	3	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	91	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Business	11	11.5	.	.	.	.	.
Judicial Clerk	13	13.5	9	50,000	51,024	57,408	50,472
Unknown Type	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Private Practice	54	56.3	24	43,500	62,500	89,000	65,917
Government	13	13.5	9	40,000	47,000	59,000	47,881
Public Interest	3	3.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	96	100.0
Academic Jobs:
JD Advantage	1	100.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	1	100.0
Business Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	4	36.4	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	3	27.3	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	9.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	3	27.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	11	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2011 Summary Report--Page 3

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries
			# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Private Practice Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	54	100.0	24	43,500	62,500	89,000	65,917
Subtotal	54	100.0
Government Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	8	61.5	6	47,000	58,800	60,000	52,600
JD Advantage	2	15.4	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	3	23.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	13	100.0
Public Interest Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	3	100.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	3	100.0
Size of Firm:
2-10	30	55.6	12	32,500	47,500	65,000	49,833
11-25	6	11.1	.	.	.	.	.
26-50	4	7.4	.	.	.	.	.
51-100	1	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
101-250	1	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
251-500	1	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
501+	4	7.4	.	.	.	.	.
Solo	7	13.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	54	100.0
Type of Law Firm Job:
Attorney	52	98.1	22	45,000	62,500	88,000	66,318
Law Clerk	1	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	53	100.0
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2011 Summary Report--Page 4

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Jobs Taken by Region:
W North Central	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
South Atlantic	3	3.2	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	87	91.6	41	44,000	55,000	60,000	55,370
W South Central	3	3.2	.	.	.	.	.
Pacific	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	95	100.0
Location of Jobs:
In-State	85	89.5	39	42,000	55,000	60,000	53,389
Out of State	10	10.5	9	42,000	88,000	95,000	74,667
Subtotal	95	100.0
States and Territories w/Employed Grads:
	10	.	.	.	.	.	.
Total	10	**.

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

	Number Reported	% of Reported
Source of Job
Fall OCI	3	3.4
Job fair/consortia	1	1.1
Job Posting	10	11.5
Commercial Internet Site	3	3.4
Return to Prior Job	7	8.0
Referral	34	39.1
Start own practice	7	8.0
Self-initiated/letter	15	17.2
Temp Agency	1	1.1
Other	6	6.9
Subtotal	87	100.0
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	34	36.6
Before Graduation	37	39.8
Before Bar Results	22	23.7
Subtotal	93	100.0
Search Status of Employed Grads
Seeking a different job	19	20.9
Not seeking a different job	72	79.1
Subtotal	91	100.0
Note: Figures are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

	Jobs lasting a year or more
	Total Number	Number of Indefinite Duration	Number of Fixed Duration	Number of Short-term Jobs
Duration of Jobs
Academic	.	.	.	1
Business	10	10	.	1
Judicial Clerk	12	2	10	1
Unknown Type	1	.	.	.
Private Practice	54	53	.	.
Government	11	9	1	2
Public Interest	3	2	1	.
Total Reported	91	76	12	5
Number of Jobs Reported as Funded by Law School
	1	.	.	.
Total Reported	1	**.	**.	**.

Note: Figures for job duration are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.
The count of jobs funded by the law school is a total, regardless of duration.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

Class of 2011--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	1	7.7	1	2.4
Job listing	0	0	0	0	4	30.8	4	9.5
Pre-law school employer	0	0	4	40.0	0	0	1	2.4
Referral from friend	1	100.0	3	30.0	4	30.8	17	40.5
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	2	20.0	2	15.4	7	16.7
Temp agency or legal search	0	0	1	10.0	0	0	0	0
All other	0	0	0	0	2	15.4	12	28.6
TOTAL	1	100.0	10	100.0	13	100.0	42	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	1	14.3	0	0	0	0	3	3.4
Job listing	0	0	2	18.2	0	0	10	11.5
Pre-law school employer	0	0	1	9.1	1	33.3	7	8.0
Referral from friend	4	57.1	4	36.4	1	33.3	34	39.1
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	3	27.3	1	33.3	15	17.2
Temp agency or legal search	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1.1
All other	2	28.6	1	9.1	0	0	17	19.5
TOTAL	7	100.0	11	100.0	3	100.0	87	100.0

 Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.*
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, commercial websites, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

Class of 2011--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
W. North Central	Minnesota	1	1.1
		1	1.1
South Atlantic	Washington, DC	1	1.1
	Georgia	1	1.1
	Virginia	1	1.1
		3	3.2
E. South Central	Alabama	2	2.1
	Tennessee	85	89.5
		87	91.6
W. South Central	Arkansas	1	1.1
	Louisiana	1	1.1
	Texas	1	1.1
		3	3.2
Pacific	California	1	1.1
		1	1.1
TOTAL		95	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

Class of 2011--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Bartlett	3	3.5
Chattanooga	1	1.2
Clarksville	1	1.2
Columbia	1	1.2
Jackson	6	7.1
Johnson City	1	1.2
Memphis	50	58.8
Murfreesboro	1	1.2
Nashville	9	10.6
Other/unknown Tennessee	12	14.1
	85	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

Class of 2011--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	1	100.0	0	0	1	100.0
Business	7	63.6	4	36.4	11	100.0
Judicial clerkship	11	84.6	2	15.4	13	100.0
Law firm	48	96.0	2	4.0	50	100.0
Government	11	91.7	1	8.3	12	100.0
Public interest	3	100.0	0	0	3	100.0
Unknown employer type	0	0	1	100.0	1	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, June 2012

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 134
Gender Reported:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Race Reported:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Gender & Race Repted:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	-	-	-	-	-
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Employment Status Known:
Bar Passage Required	86	66.2	54	45,000	52,000	62,500	54,112
JD Advantage	16	12.3	10	40,000	47,500	60,000	53,420
Other Professional	7	5.4	-	-	-	-	-
Non-professional	1	0.8	-	-	-	-	-
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.5	-	-	-	-	-
Start date after 2/15/13	1	0.8	-	-	-	-	-
Not employed-Seeking	14	10.8	-	-	-	-	-
Not employed-Not Seeking	3	2.3	-	-	-	-	-
Subtotal	130	100.0
Total Employed or Degree:
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.5	-	-	-	-	-
Employed	110	84.6	69	42,500	52,000	62,500	53,815
Subtotal	112	86.2
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	85	77.3	52	41,250	55,000	65,000	54,875
Public Sector	25	22.7	17	44,600	50,000	57,408	50,575
Subtotal	110	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. Employment by sector does not include graduates for whom employer type was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report--Page 2

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	78	70.9	54	45,000	52,000	62,500	54,112
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	8	7.3	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-FT	15	13.6	10	40,000	47,500	60,000	53,420
JD Advantage-PT	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	7	6.4	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-FT	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	110	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Business	16	14.5	12	41,500	59,000	62,500	54,833
Judicial Clerk	6	5.5	6	50,000	57,408	57,408	52,681
Private Practice	69	62.7	40	41,250	50,500	66,000	54,888
Government	12	10.9	8	43,400	46,000	52,500	48,085
Public Interest	6	5.5	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	110	100.0
Academic Jobs:
Other Professional	1	100.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	1	100.0
Business Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	2	12.5	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	9	56.3	6	40,000	50,500	60,000	52,667
Other Professional	4	25.0	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	6.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	16	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report--Page 3

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Private Practice Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	69	100.0	40	41,250	50,500	66,000	54,888
Subtotal	69	100.0
Government Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	5	41.7	5	45,000	47,000	53,000	50,097
JD Advantage	5	41.7	-	-	-	-	-
Other Professional	2	16.7	-	-	-	-	-
Subtotal	12	100.0
Public Interest Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	4	66.7	-	-	-	-	-
JD Advantage	2	33.3	-	-	-	-	-
Subtotal	6	100.0
Size of Firm:
2-10	39	56.5	24	36,000	50,000	55,500	47,625
11-25	6	8.7	5	45,000	65,000	75,000	60,000
26-50	4	5.8	-	-	-	-	-
51-100	6	8.7	5	67,000	72,000	72,000	71,200
101-250	2	2.9	-	-	-	-	-
501+	1	1.4	-	-	-	-	-
Solo	11	15.9	-	-	-	-	-
Subtotal	69	100.0
Type of Law Firm Job:
Attorney	64	94.1	38	42,500	53,000	67,000	55,539
Law Clerk	4	5.9	-	-	-	-	-
Subtotal	68	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report--Page 4

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries: # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Jobs Taken by Region:
E North Central	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
W North Central	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
South Atlantic	4	3.6	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	98	89.1	59	42,200	50,000	62,500	53,108
W South Central	2	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Mountain	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Pacific	2	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Foreign	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	110	100.0
Location of Jobs:
In-State	98	89.1	59	42,200	50,000	62,500	53,108
Out of State	12	10.9	10	43,000	59,000	65,000	57,991
Subtotal	110	100.0
States and Territories w/Employed Grads:
	11	.	.	.	.	.	.
Total	11	.

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report--Page 5

	Number Reported	% of Reported
Source of Job
Fall OCI	4	3.7
Job fair/consortia	1	0.9
Job Posting in CSO	12	11.0
Job posted online or in print	6	5.5
Return to Prior Job	5	4.6
Referral	38	34.9
Start own practice	11	10.1
Self-initiated/letter	11	10.1
Spring OCI	1	0.9
Other	20	18.3
Subtotal	109	100.0
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	39	36.4
Before Graduation	37	34.6
Before Bar Results	31	29.0
Subtotal	107	100.0
Search Status of Employed Grads
Seeking a different job	29	26.4
Not seeking a different job	81	73.6
Subtotal	110	100.0
Note: Figures are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2012 Summary Report--Page 6

	Jobs lasting a year or more
	Total Number	Number of Indefinite Duration	Number of Fixed Duration	Number of Short-term Jobs
Duration of Jobs
Academic	1	1	-	-
Business	15	15	-	1
Judicial Clerk	6	-	6	-
Private Practice	65	65	-	4
Government	9	9	-	3
Public Interest	5	5	-	1
Total Reported	101	95	6	9

Note: Figures for job duration are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.
The count of jobs funded by the law school is a total, regardless of duration.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013
Because of NALP's quality-control process and follow-up with schools, some figures in these tables may differ slightly from figures posted by the ABA.

Class of 2012--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	3.3
Job listing	0	0	1	6.3	1	16.7	5	8.3
Pre-law school employer	0	0	2	12.5	0	0	2	3.3
Referral from friend	0	0	7	43.8	0	0	22	36.7
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	1	6.3	2	33.3	6	10.0
All other	1	100.0	5	31.3	3	50.0	23	38.3
TOTAL	1	100.0	16	100.0	6	100.0	60	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	2	22.2	0	0	0	0	4	3.7
Job listing	2	22.2	2	16.7	1	20.0	12	11.0
Pre-law school employer	0	0	0	0	1	20.0	5	4.6
Referral from friend	3	33.3	5	41.7	1	20.0	38	34.9
Letter/self-initiated	1	11.1	1	8.3	0	0	11	10.1
All other	1	11.1	4	33.3	2	40.0	39	35.8
TOTAL	9	100.0	12	100.0	5	100.0	109	100.0

 Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.*
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, non-CSO job sites and postings, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013

Class of 2012--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
E. North Central	Illinois	1	0.9
		1	0.9
W. North Central	Minnesota	1	0.9
		1	0.9
South Atlantic	Florida	1	0.9
	Georgia	2	1.8
	North Carolina	1	0.9
		4	3.6
E. South Central	Tennessee	98	89.1
		98	89.1
W. South Central	Arkansas	1	0.9
	Louisiana	1	0.9
		2	1.8
Mountain	Colorado	1	0.9
		1	0.9
Pacific	California	1	0.9
	Washington	1	0.9
		2	1.8
Non US locations	Non U.S. locations	1	0.9
		1	0.9
TOTAL		110	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013

Class of 2012--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Bartlett	1	1.0
Chattanooga	2	2.0
Cleveland	1	1.0
Jackson	2	2.0
Knoxville	1	1.0
Memphis	53	54.1
Murfreesboro	1	1.0
Nashville	17	17.3
Other/unknown Tennessee	20	20.4
	98	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013

Class of 2012--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	1	100.0	0	0	1	100.0
Business	16	100.0	0	0	16	100.0
Judicial clerkship	6	100.0	0	0	6	100.0
Law firm	63	91.3	6	8.7	69	100.0
Government	12	100.0	0	0	12	100.0
Public interest	3	50.0	3	50.0	6	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2013

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 124
Gender Reported:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Race Reported:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Gender & Race Repted:
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	.	.	.	.	.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Subtotal	[illegible]	[illegible]
Employment Status Known:
Bar Passage Required	87	71.3	58	45,000	51,000	60,000	57,010
JD Advantage	8	6.6	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	7	5.7	5	40,000	62,500	77,000	71,900
Non-professional	1	0.8	.	.	.	.	.
Start date after 2/14/14	1	0.8	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Seeking	14	11.5	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Not Seeking	4	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	122	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. Employment by sector does not include graduates for whom employer type was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 2

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Employed or Degree:
Employed	103	84.4	66	40,000	52,000	62,500	58,069
Subtotal	103	84.4
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	74	71.8	47	40,000	50,000	70,000	59,881
Public Sector	29	28.2	19	48,000	53,280	59,400	53,588
Subtotal	103	100.0
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	78	75.7	58	45,000	51,000	60,000	57,010
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	9	8.7	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-FT	6	5.8	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-PT	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	7	6.8	5	40,000	62,500	77,000	71,900
Non-professional-PT	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	103	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Business	17	16.5	10	45,000	61,250	77,000	66,950
Judicial Clerk	10	9.7	9	52,400	53,280	58,000	54,276
Private Practice	57	55.3	37	40,000	50,000	70,000	57,970
Government	8	7.8	5	46,000	50,000	60,000	54,500
Public Interest	9	8.7	5	40,000	59,400	59,800	51,440
Subtotal	103	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 3

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Academic Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	1	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	1	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	2	100.0
Business Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	5	29.4	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	5	29.4	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	6	35.3	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	5.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	17	100.0
Private Practice Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	57	100.0	37	40,000	50,000	70,000	57,970
Subtotal	57	100.0
Government Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	6	75.0	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	2	25.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	8	100.0
Judicial Clerkships:
Federal	5	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
State	5	50.0	5	50,000	52,400	53,000	51,336
Subtotal	10	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014

NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 4

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Public Interest Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	8	88.9	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	11.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	9	100.0
Size of Firm:
2-10	30	52.6	21	40,000	40,000	50,000	42,857
11-25	8	14.0	.	.	.	.	.
26-50	6	10.5	5	45,000	70,000	75,000	61,080
51-100	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
101-250	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
251-500	4	7.0	.	.	.	.	.
Unknown Size	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Solo	4	7.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	57	100.0
Type of Law Firm Job:
Attorney	54	94.7	36	40,000	50,000	70,000	58,469
Law Clerk	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
Administrative	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	57	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 5

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Jobs Taken by Region:
E North Central	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
W North Central	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
South Atlantic	7	6.8	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	89	86.4	60	40,000	50,000	59,900	54,726
W South Central	4	3.9	.	.	.	.	.
Pacific	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	103	100.0
Location of Jobs:
In-State	88	85.4	59	40,000	50,000	59,800	53,959
Out of State	15	14.6	7	71,500	90,000	115,500	92,714
Subtotal	103	100.0
States and Territories w/Employed Grads:
	11	.	.	.	.	.	.
Total	11	**.

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 6

	Number Reported	% of Reported
Source of Job
Fall OCI	6	5.8
Job fair/consortia	1	1.0
Job Posting in CSO	12	11.7
Job posted online or in print	11	10.7
Return to Prior Job	4	3.9
Referral	36	35.0
Start own practice	7	6.8
Self-initiated/letter	14	13.6
Spring OCI	1	1.0
Other	11	10.7
Subtotal	103	100.0
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	40	38.8
Before Graduation	34	33.0
Before Bar Results	29	28.2
Subtotal	103	100.0
Search Status of Employed Grads
Seeking a different job	25	24.3
Not seeking a different job	78	75.7
Subtotal	103	100.0
Note: Figures are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2013 Summary Report--Page 7

	Jobs lasting a year or more
	Total Number	Number of Indefinite Duration	Number of Fixed Duration	Number of Short-term Jobs
Duration of Jobs
Academic	1	1	.	1
Business	14	13	1	3
Judicial Clerk	10	1	9	.
Private Practice	54	54	.	3
Government	8	8	.	.
Public Interest	6	6	.	3
Total Reported	93	83	10	10

Note: Figures for job duration are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.
The count of jobs funded by the law school is a total, regardless of duration.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

Class of 2013--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	1	10.0	1	2.1
Job listing	0	0	1	5.9	3	30.0	7	14.6
Pre-law school employer	1	50.0	2	11.8	0	0	1	2.1
Referral from friend	0	0	6	35.3	1	10.0	21	43.8
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	2	11.8	3	30.0	7	14.6
All other	1	50.0	6	35.3	2	20.0	11	22.9
TOTAL	2	100.0	17	100.0	10	100.0	48	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	4	50.0	0	0	0	0	6	5.9
Job listing	0	0	0	0	1	11.1	12	11.8
Pre-law school employer	0	0	0	0	0	0	4	3.9
Referral from friend	0	0	2	25.0	6	66.7	36	35.3
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	2	25.0	0	0	14	13.7
All other	4	50.0	4	50.0	2	22.2	30	29.4
TOTAL	8	100.0	8	100.0	9	100.0	102	100.0

 Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.*
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, non-CSO job sites and postings, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014

Class of 2013--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
E. North Central	Illinois	1	1.0
		1	1.0
W. North Central	Minnesota	1	1.0
		1	1.0
South Atlantic	Florida	1	1.0
	Georgia	2	1.9
	Maryland	1	1.0
	Virginia	3	2.9
		7	6.8
E. South Central	Kentucky	1	1.0
	Tennessee	88	85.4
		89	86.4
W. South Central	Arkansas	3	2.9
	Texas	1	1.0
		4	3.9
Pacific	California	1	1.0
		1	1.0
TOTAL		103	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014

Class of 2013--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Chattanooga	1	1.1
Clarksville	1	1.1
Jackson	4	4.5
Knoxville	2	2.3
Memphis	55	62.5
Morristown	1	1.1
Murfreesboro	1	1.1
Nashville	12	13.6
Oak Ridge	1	1.1
Other/nnknown Tennessee	10	11.4
	88	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014

Class of 2013--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	1	50.0	1	50.0	2	100.0
Business	14	82.4	3	17.6	17	100.0
Judicial clerkship	10	100.0	0	0	10	100.0
Law firm	53	93.0	4	7.0	57	100.0
Government	7	87.5	1	12.5	8	100.0
Public interest	6	66.7	3	33.3	9	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2014

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries: # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 131
Subtotal
Subtotal
Subtotal
Employment Status Known:
Bar Passage Required	79	60.3	51	42,000	55,000	60,000	55,826
JD Advantage	8	6.1	5	65,000	67,500	75,000	66,300
Other Professional	9	6.9	7	49,750	50,000	70,000	56,250
Non-professional	9	6.9	.	.	.	.	.
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.5	.	.	.	.	.
Start date after 3/15/15	1	0.8	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Seeking	20	15.3	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Not Seeking	3	2.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	131	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. Employment by sector does not include graduates for whom employer type was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 2

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Employed or Degree:
Pursuing Degree FT	2	1.5	.	.	.	.	.
Employed	105	80.2	65	45,000	55,000	61,000	55,532
Subtotal	107	81.7
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	77	73.3	44	42,000	57,500	68,750	56,552
Public Sector	28	26.7	21	45,879	53,208	60,000	53,393
Subtotal	105	100.0
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	77	73.3	51	42,000	55,000	60,000	55,826
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-FT	7	6.7	5	65,000	67,500	75,000	66,300
JD Advantage-PT	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	8	7.6	7	49,750	50,000	70,000	56,250
Other Professional-PT	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-FT	5	4.8	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-PT	4	3.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	105	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	3	2.9	.	.	.	.	.
Business	19	18.1	12	47,000	62,500	70,000	55,850
Judicial Clerk	10	9.5	7	40,000	53,208	58,000	49,173
Private Practice	58	55.2	32	42,000	53,500	62,505	56,816
Government	11	10.5	10	49,750	60,000	61,000	59,404
Public Interest	4	3.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	105	100.0
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 3

	Number Reported	% of Reported	Full-time Long-term Salaries: # with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Academic Jobs:
JD Advantage	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	3	100.0
Business Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	3	15.8	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	5	26.3	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	5	26.3	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	6	31.6	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	19	100.0
Private Practice Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	55	94.8	32	42,000	53,500	62,505	56,816
JD Advantage	2	3.4	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	1.7	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	58	100.0
Government Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	8	72.7	8	50,440	60,000	60,500	59,287
Other Professional	3	27.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	11	100.0
Judicial Clerkships:
Federal	5	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
State	5	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	10	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 4

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Public Interest Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	3	75.0	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	1	25.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	4	100.0
Size of Firm:
1-10	38	65.5	22	40,000	49,000	60,000	48,841
11-25	4	6.9	.	.	.	.	.
26-50	4	6.9	.	.	.	.	.
51-100	3	5.2	.	.	.	.	.
101-250	2	3.4	.	.	.	.	.
501+	2	3.4	.	.	.	.	.
Unknown Size	1	1.7	.	.	.	.	.
Solo practitioner	4	6.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	58	100.0
Type of Law Firm Job:
Associate	47	82.5	28	42,000	57,500	67,500	58,254
Staff Attorney	6	10.5	.	.	.	.	.
Law Clerk	2	3.5	.	.	.	.	.
Paralegal	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Administrative	1	1.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	57	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 5

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Jobs Taken by Region:
E North Central	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
South Atlantic	5	4.9	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	89	87.3	58	45,000	55,000	60,009	54,964
W South Central	6	5.9	.	.	.	.	.
Mountain	1	1.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	102	100.0
Location of Jobs:
In-State	87	85.3	57	45,000	55,000	60,009	55,489
Out of State	15	14.7	8	40,000	51,375	75,750	55,833
Subtotal	102	100.0
States and Territories w/Employed Grads:
	12	.	.	.	.	.	.
Total	12	**.
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 6

	Number Reported	% of Reported
Source of Job
Fall OCI	8	8.3
Job Posting in CSO	7	7.3
Job posted online or in print	9	9.4
Return to Prior Job	7	7.3
Referral	34	35.4
Start own practice	5	5.2
Self-initiated/letter	14	14.6
Spring OCI	1	1.0
Temp Agency	1	1.0
Other	10	10.4
Subtotal	96	100.0
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	37	37.4
Before Graduation	33	33.3
Before Bar Results	29	29.3
Subtotal	99	100.0
Search Status of Employed Grads
Seeking a different job	20	21.3
Not seeking a different job	74	78.7
Subtotal	94	100.0
Note: Figures are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2014 Summary Report--Page 7

	Jobs lasting a year or more
	Total Number	Number of Indefinite Duration	Number of Fixed Duration	Number of Short-term Jobs
Duration of Jobs by Employer Type
Academic	3	3	.	.
Business	15	13	.	4
Judicial Clerk	10	3	7	.
Private Practice	55	53	.	3
Government	10	8	.	1
Public Interest	3	3	.	1
Total Reported	96	83	7	9

Note: Figures for job duration are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.
The count of jobs funded by the law school is a total, regardless of duration.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/classof2013.

Class of 2014--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	7.0
Job listing	0	0	0	0	2	22.2	5	11.6
Pre-law school employer	0	0	3	16.7	0	0	1	2.3
Referral from friend	2	66.7	7	38.9	1	11.1	18	41.9
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	2	11.1	1	11.1	6	14.0
Temp agency or legal search	0	0	1	5.6	0	0	0	0
All other	1	33.3	5	27.8	5	55.6	10	23.3
TOTAL	3	100.0	18	100.0	9	100.0	43	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	5	71.4	0	0	0	0	8	8.4
Job listing	0	0	0	0	0	0	7	7.4
Pre-law school employer	0	0	3	27.3	0	0	7	7.4
Referral from friend	1	14.3	4	36.4	1	25.0	34	35.8
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	2	18.2	2	50.0	13	13.7
Temp agency or legal search	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1.1
All other	1	14.3	2	18.2	1	25.0	25	26.3
TOTAL	7	100.0	11	100.0	4	100.0	95	100.0

 Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.*
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, non-CSO job sites and postings, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

Class of 2014--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
E. North Central	Wisconsin	1	1.0
		1	1.0
South Atlantic	Florida	1	1.0
	Georgia	1	1.0
	North Carolina	1	1.0
	Virginia	2	2.0
		5	4.9
E. South Central	Alabama	1	1.0
	Mississippi	1	1.0
	Tennessee	87	85.3
		89	87.3
W. South Central	Arkansas	3	2.9
	Louisiana	1	1.0
	Texas	2	2.0
		6	5.9
Mountain	Colorado	1	1.0
		1	1.0
TOTAL		102	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

Class of 2014--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Chattanooga	3	3.4
Columbia	1	1.1
Jackson	3	3.4
Knoxville	3	3.4
Memphis	53	60.9
Murfreesboro	1	1.1
Nashville	5	5.7
Oak Ridge	1	1.1
Other/unknown Tennessee	17	19.5
	87	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

Class of 2014--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	3	100.0	0	0	3	100.0
Business	16	84.2	3	15.8	19	100.0
Judicial clerkship	10	100.0	0	0	10	100.0
Law firm	56	96.6	2	3.4	58	100.0
Government	10	90.9	1	9.1	11	100.0
Public interest	2	50.0	2	50.0	4	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, July 2015

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Total Reported = 108
Gender Reported:
Subtotal		100.0
Race Reported:
Subtotal		100.0
Gender & Race Repted:
			.	.	.	.	.
			.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal		100.0
Employment Status Known:
Bar Passage Required	71	65.7	40	45,000	54,707	67,000	58,907
JD Advantage	17	15.7	13	36,000	45,344	55,000	49,003
Other Professional	2	1.9	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	4	3.7	.	.	.	.	.
Start date after 3/15/16	1	0.9	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Seeking	10	9.3	.	.	.	.	.
Not employed-Not Seeking	3	2.8	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	108	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis. Employment by sector does not include graduates for whom employer type was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 2

	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
			Full-time Long-term Salaries
Total Employed or Degree:
Employed	94	87.0	54	44,000	52,750	66,000	56,404
Subtotal	94	87.0
Employment by Sector
Private Sector	69	73.4	36	42,000	55,000	73,500	59,089
Public Sector	23	24.5	18	45,344	51,750	55,000	51,036
Subtotal	92	97.9
FT/PT Jobs:
Bar Passage Reqd-FT	63	67.0	40	45,000	54,707	67,000	58,907
Bar Passage Reqd-PT	8	8.5	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage-FT	15	16.0	13	36,000	45,344	55,000	49,003
JD Advantage-PT	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-FT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional-PT	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-FT	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional-PT	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	94	100.0
Employment Categories:
Academic	3	3.2	.	.	.	.	.
Business	8	8.5	.	.	.	.	.
Judicial Clerk	6	6.4	5	42,000	48,000	54,414	48,201
Private Practice	61	64.9	34	44,000	55,000	70,000	59,506
Government	11	11.7	10	45,344	52,000	55,000	50,014
Public Interest	3	3.2	.	.	.	.	.
Unknown Type	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	94	100.0
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 3

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Academic Jobs:
JD Advantage	2	66.7	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	3	100.0
Business Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	1	12.5	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	3	37.5	.	.	.	.	.
Non-professional	4	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	8	100.0
Private Practice Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	54	88.5	29	45,000	55,000	77,000	62,190
JD Advantage	7	11.5	5	36,000	37,500	45,000	43,940
Subtotal	61	100.0
Government Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	7	63.6	6	49,960	52,482	56,868	51,965
JD Advantage	4	36.4	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	11	100.0
Judicial Clerkships:
Federal	2	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
State	3	50.0	.	.	.	.	.
Local	1	16.7	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	6	100.0

Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 4

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Public Interest Jobs:
Bar Passage Required	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
JD Advantage	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Other Professional	1	33.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	3	100.0
Size of Firm:
1-10	40	65.6	24	40,000	46,500	58,500	51,863
11-25	6	9.8	.	.	.	.	.
26-50	5	8.2	.	.	.	.	.
101-250	3	4.9	.	.	.	.	.
251-500	2	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
501+	2	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
Solo practitioner	3	4.9	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	61	100.0
Type of Law Firm Job:
Associate	45	73.8	26	48,000	58,500	88,000	64,212
Staff Attorney	6	9.8	.	.	.	.	.
Law Clerk	5	8.2	.	.	.	.	.
Paralegal	3	4.9	.	.	.	.	.
Administrative	2	3.3	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	61	100.0
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 5

			Full-time Long-term Salaries
	Number Reported	% of Reported	# with Salary	25th Percentile	Median	75th Percentile	Mean
Jobs Taken by Region:
E North Central	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
South Atlantic	1	1.1	.	.	.	.	.
E South Central	82	87.2	48	44,500	51,750	67,000	56,916
W South Central	5	5.3	.	.	.	.	.
Mountain	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Pacific	2	2.1	.	.	.	.	.
Subtotal	94	100.0
Location of Jobs:
In-State	78	83.0	46	45,000	52,750	68,000	57,467
Out of State	16	17.0	8	39,250	52,500	56,934	50,296
Subtotal	94	100.0
States and Territories w/Employed Grads:
	12	.	.	.	.	.	.
Total	12	**.
Note: Categories with no graduates reported are not shown. A minimum of five salaries is required for each salary analysis.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 6

	Number Reported	% of Reported
Source of Job
Fall OCI	2	2.3
Job Posting in CSO	6	7.0
Job posted online or in print	5	5.8
Clerkship application process or Oscar	2	2.3
Return to Prior Job	10	11.6
Referral	36	41.9
Start own practice	5	5.8
Self-initiated/letter	11	12.8
Spring OCI	2	2.3
Other	7	8.1
Subtotal	86	100.0
Timing of Job Offer
After Bar Results	31	34.8
Before Graduation	27	30.3
Before Bar Results	31	34.8
Subtotal	89	100.0
Search Status of Employed Grads
Seeking a different job	23	27.7
Not seeking a different job	60	72.3
Subtotal	83	100.0
Note: Figures are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Class of 2015 Summary Report--Page 7

	Jobs lasting a year or more
	Total Number	Number of Indefinite Duration	Number of Fixed Duration	Number of Short-term Jobs
Duration of Jobs by Employer Type
Academic	2	2	.	1
Business	5	5	.	3
Judicial Clerk	6	1	5	.
Unknown Type	2	2	.	.
Private Practice	54	53	1	7
Government	11	11	.	.
Public Interest	3	3	.	.
Total Reported	83	77	6	11
Total Number of Jobs Reported as Funded by Law School
	1	.	.	.
Total Reported	1	**.	**.	**.

Note: Figures for job duration are based on jobs for which the item was reported, and thus may not add to the total number of jobs.
The count of jobs funded by the law school is a total, regardless of duration.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016
NALP Summary Report data may vary slightly from the school-specific data published by the ABA because of definitional differences between the two organizations and because NALP's quality control process can result in changes made after the ABA data has been submitted. For more on this, see www.nalp.org/erssinfo.

Class of 2015--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 12
Source of Job by Employer Type

Source of Job by Employer Type	Academic		Business		Judicial clerkship		Law firms of 50 or fewer
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	2.0
Job listing	0	0	0	0	2	33.3	4	7.8
Clerkship application process or Oscar	0	0	0	0	2	33.3	0	0
Pre-law school employer	1	33.3	4	57.1	0	0	5	9.8
Referral from friend	0	0	1	14.3	1	16.7	25	49.0
Letter/self-initiated	0	0	0	0	1	16.7	7	13.7
All other	2	66.7	2	28.6	0	0	9	17.6
TOTAL	3	100.0	7	100.0	6	100.0	51	100.0

Source of Job by Employer Type	Law firms of 51 or more		Government		Public interest		All Employer Types*
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Fall OCI	0	0	1	9.1	0	0	2	2.3
Job listing	0	0	0	0	0	0	6	7.0
Clerkship application process or Oscar	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	2.3
Pre-law school employer	0	0	0	0	0	0	10	11.6
Referral from friend	5	83.3	2	18.2	2	100.0	36	41.9
Letter/self-initiated	1	16.7	2	18.2	0	0	11	12.8
All other	0	0	6	54.5	0	0	19	22.1
TOTAL	6	100.0	11	100.0	2	100.0	86	100.0

* Excludes jobs for which a source, employer type, or firm size was not reported.
"Other" also includes job fairs, spring OCI, non-CSO job sites and postings, and the self-employed.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016

Class of 2015--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 13
Number of Jobs Reported Taken by State

Region	State	# of jobs	% of jobs
E. North Central	Indiana	1	1.1
	Ohio	1	1.1
		2	2.1
South Atlantic	Florida	1	1.1
		1	1.1
E. South Central	Alabama	1	1.1
	Mississippi	3	3.2
	Tennessee	78	83.0
		82	87.2
W. South Central	Arkansas	3	3.2
	Oklahoma	1	1.1
	Texas	1	1.1
		5	5.3
Mountain	Colorado	1	1.1
	Utah	1	1.1
		2	2.1
Pacific	California	2	2.1
		2	2.1
TOTAL		94	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016

Class of 2015--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 14
Location of Instate Jobs

In-state location	# of Jobs	% of Jobs
Bartlett	2	2.6
Chattanooga	4	5.1
Clarksville	2	2.6
Jackson	3	3.8
Kingsport	1	1.3
Memphis	47	60.3
Murfreesboro	2	2.6
Nashville	6	7.7
Other/unknown Tennessee	11	14.1
	78	100.0

Excludes employed graduates for whom job location was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016

Class of 2015--The University of Memphis - Cecil Humphreys School of Law
Table 15
Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type

Full and Part-time Jobs by Employer Type	Full-time		Part-time		All
	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported	Number Reported	% of Reported
Academic	2	66.7	1	33.3	3	100.0
Business	5	62.5	3	37.5	8	100.0
Judicial clerkship	6	100.0	0	0	6	100.0
Law firm	53	86.9	8	13.1	61	100.0
Government	11	100.0	0	0	11	100.0
Public interest	2	66.7	1	33.3	3	100.0
Unknown employer type	2	100.0	0	0	2	100.0

This table excludes jobs for which full or part-time information was not reported.

Table prepared by NALP, August 2016

IHELP POLICY LAB: ACE INITIATIVE

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is proud to announce the launch of the Institute for Health Law and Policy ("iHeLP") Policy Lab: ACE Initiative, thanks to generous support from the ACE Awareness Foundation.

The result of a transformative investment by the ACE Awareness Foundation, the iHeLP Policy Lab: ACE Initiative will be a multi-disciplinary resource for policy research, policy advising and drafting of new policies to create a nationally-regarded, trauma-informed system, building on the foundation's goals to inform the community about the role of emotional trauma in mental, physical and behavioral health, and implement models that provide preventable and sustainable solutions to reducing toxic stress in family systems.

"The ACE Awareness Foundation is committed to creating a trauma informed community that comprehends the impact of toxic stress on child and adult health as well as the silent, long-term social and economic impact on our community," said Ellen Rolfes, Regional Director for the ACE Awareness Foundation. "We are most fortunate to have a partnership with the University of Memphis to develop multi-disciplined ACE curriculum with six academic areas and create a policy initiative with the law school to impact healthcare. Such powerful collaboration is essential to a better Memphis."

Dean Peter Letsou announced the ACE Awareness Foundation gift and the iHeLP Policy Lab: ACE Initiative earlier this year at iHeLP's 2016 symposium, An ACE in the Hand of Policy Reform: Loading the Deck for a Trauma-Informed System, attended by stakeholders, nationally recognized leaders, and local and state experts. The gift will enable iHeLP to demonstrate the valuable role it can play as a non-partisan partner with skills and expertise in crafting a policy landscape that sees law itself as an intervention.

"Thanks to the generosity and vision of the ACE Awareness Foundation, the law school has been able to spearhead the creation of the University's first multidisciplinary, collaborative ACE curriculum. The work done by the policy lab will build on local and statewide momentum around addressing adversity in the early childhood years and building family support," according to Dean Peter Letsou. "We will partner in efforts to drive system-level health policy change in the Mid-South community across Tennessee for the specific purpose of ACE (Adverse Childhood Experiences), mitigation and recovery."

This foundation support will not only allow Memphis Law and iHeLP look locally at policy regarding ACEs in Shelby County, but will provide the policy lab with the potential to drive policy change at both the state and national levels. It will also allow Memphis Law to assume a leadership position in the state as the only law school doing this type of work.

As part of the policy lab's work, enrolled students and fellows will examine items that include, for example, substantial research into insurance reimbursement policies to help craft "bundled" payment models that incorporate prevention and wellness services promising culturally-sensitive family and parental-support practices and programs. It will also serve as policy advisor and support to the Building Strong Brains: Tennessee ACEs Initiative.

"Through this policy lab, I hope to see the Institute help to advance the law school's role in the community and the growing influence of public/private initiatives," said iHeLP Director, Professor Amy Campbell. "This will help create a variety of academic/public/private approaches to benefit our community's overall health and be representative of the Institute's mission to use law and policy to advance health."

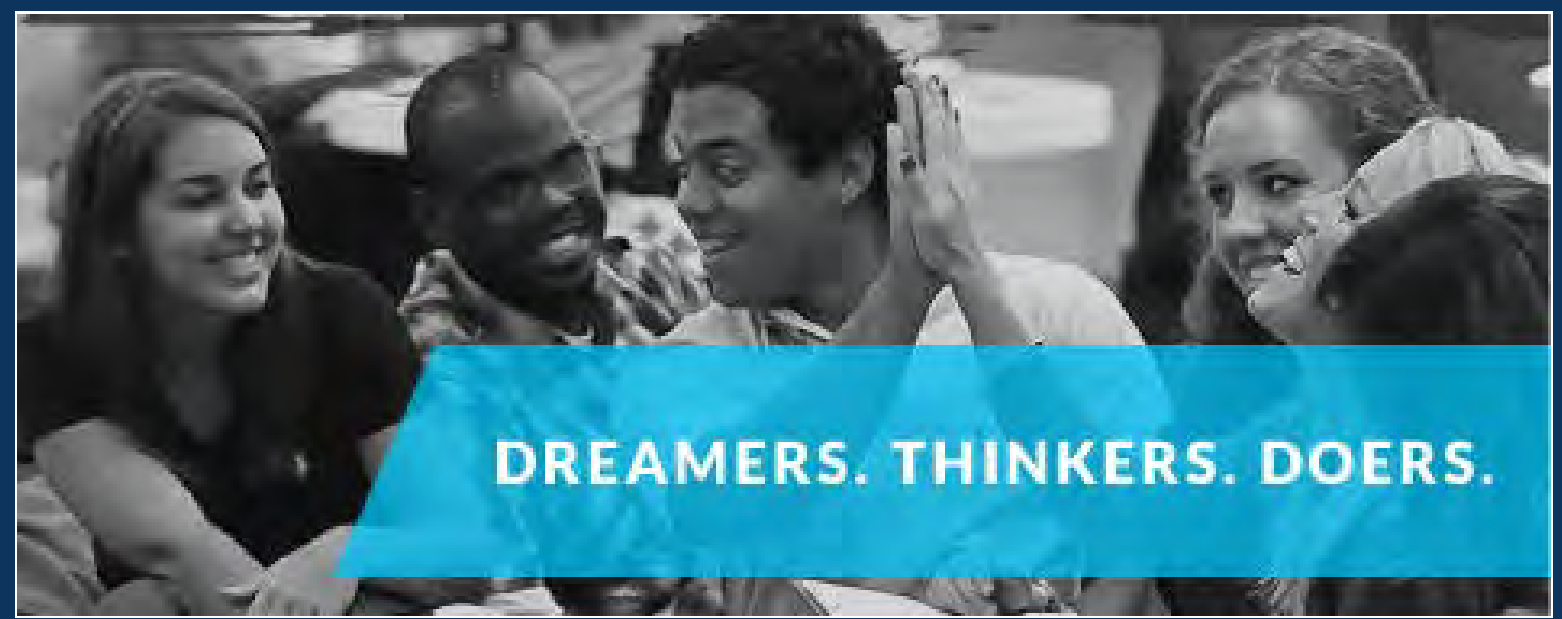
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/2/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

IMPLICIT BIAS CONFERENCE

IMPLICIT (UNCONSCIOUS) BIAS CONFERENCE
FRIDAY, NOV. 18
8:00 A.M. - 5:00 P.M.
UNIV. OF MEMPHIS SCHOOL OF LAW
1 NORTH FRONT ST.

Thought by some to be an "old" problem, explicit bias continues to influence virtually all areas of American life including the business world, the media, education, and our justice systems. In addition, decision-makers may also be influenced by implicit (unconscious) bias. How implicit bias operates including strategies that will assist decision-makers in recognizing, shaping and managing its influence is the subject of this must-attend conference that will provide "A New Look At An Old Problem."

Explicit bias refers to bias that is a product of conscious, intentional discriminatory behaviors. In contrast, implicit bias refers to the more recent and controversial belief that automatic, unintentional biases and stereotypes people experience toward members of social groups or categories of people other than their own, can influence their decision-making and systemically and adversely affect members of certain groups. The importance of this topic is illustrated by the recent mandate by the U. S. Department of Justice requiring more than 33,000 of its agents and attorneys to undergo training to eliminate the influence of implicit bias in law enforcement decisions.

Non-Attorneys and government employees: $75; Attorneys: $125.

CLICK HERE TO REGISTER.

Nationally recognized experts will explore these timely and important topics, with the keynote address by Paulette Brown, Immediate Past President of the American Bar Association.

You may see the full program by clicking here.

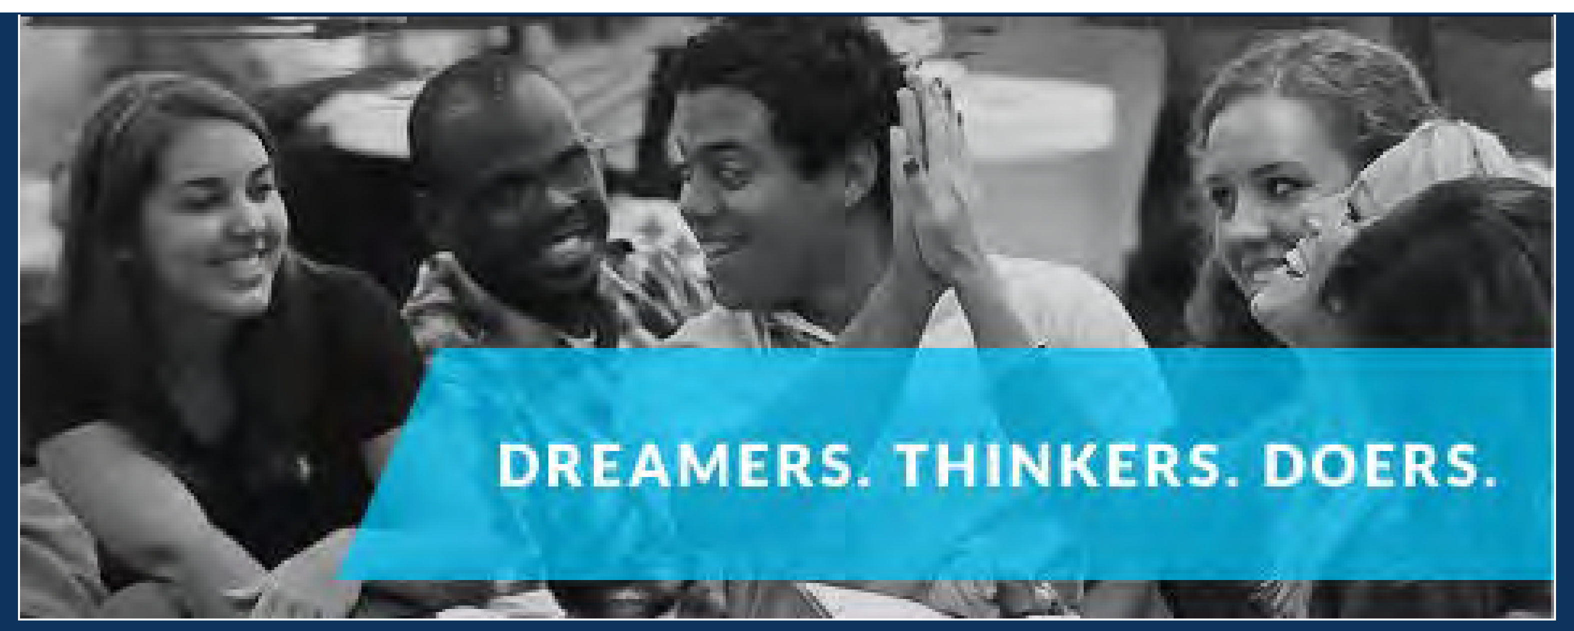
This program is approved for 7 hours CLE (6 general, 1 dual) and 8 SHRM re-certification credits HRCI re-certification credits are pending.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 11/16/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

CHILDREN'S DEFENSE CLINIC

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law new Children's Defense Clinic will offer supervised student attorneys the opportunity to provide legal representation to youth facing criminal charges in delinquency proceedings in the Shelby County Juvenile Court. Clinic students will complete a curriculum designed to provide training in the handling of delinquency cases, to enhance the vital lawyering skills students will use in their casework and in practice beyond, and to expose students to the complex legal, policy, social, and economic issues that arise in the juvenile justice and criminal defense settings. The clinic will emphasize team practice and collaboration, and, where possible, develop and seize on interdisciplinary partnerships to provide broadly focused, multi-systemic advocacy for Clinic clients.

It is anticipated that the Children's Defense Clinic will provide direct representation to children in all phases of delinquency cases. Students will also engage in systemic reform through policy advocacy and it is further hoped that the clinic will assist in the development of training materials and conduct training programs for practicing lawyers focused on best practices in juvenile criminal defense.

The Children's Defense Clinic is led by Professor Lisa Geis. Before joining the Memphis Law faculty, Professor Geis served as a Clinical Professor and Supervising Attorney in the DC Students in Court Program, an organization that serves several Washington, D.C. area law schools. She also taught at the University of the District of Columbia, David A. Clarke School of Law Juvenile & Special Education Law Clinic and was the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Models for Change Fellow at the Rutgers School of Law – Camden Children's Justice Clinic, where she worked on the Juvenile Indigent Defense Action Network (JIDAN-NJ).

Faculty: Lisa Geis, Visiting Assistant Professor of Law and Director, Children's Defense Clinic

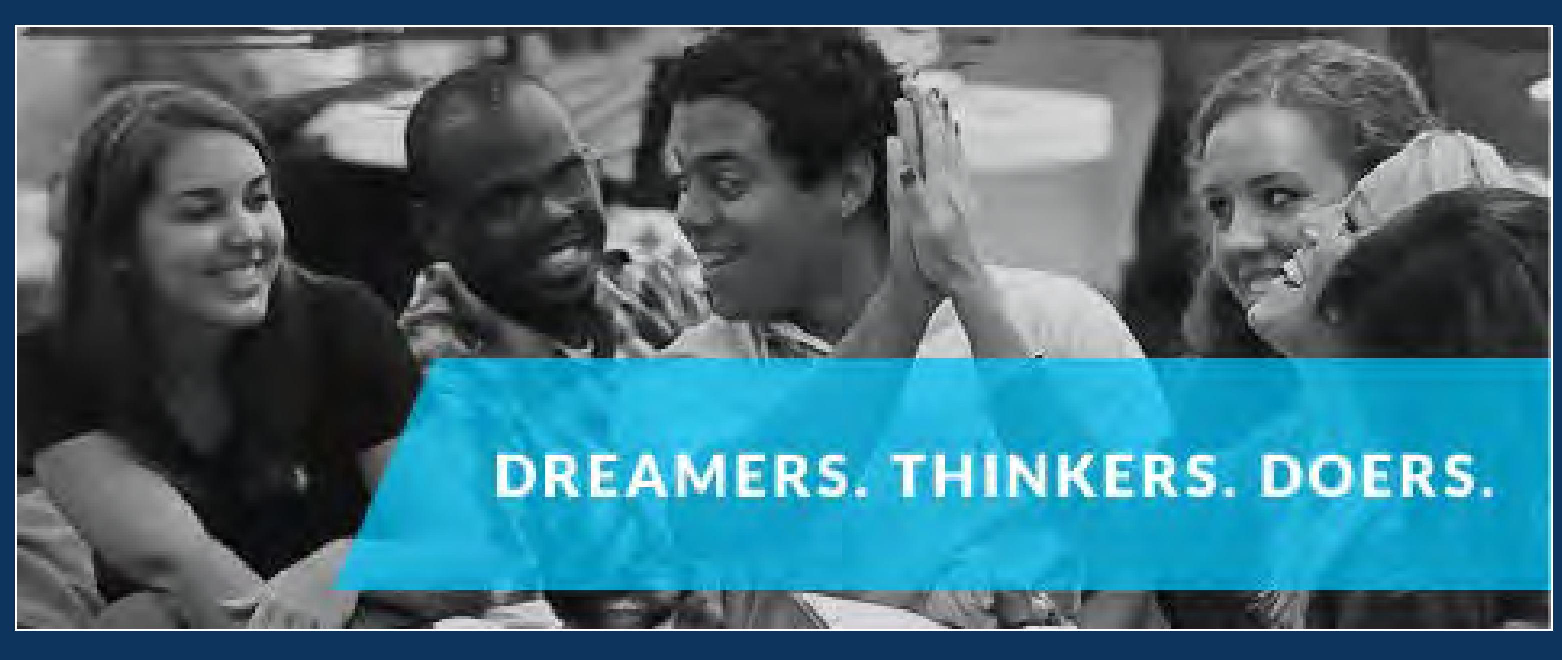
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

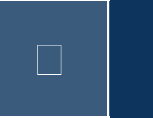
ABA Required Disclosures

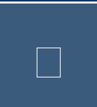
Full sitemap

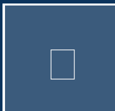


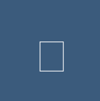
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

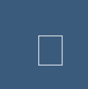
Follow UofM Online

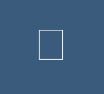












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

2016 PILLARS OF EXCELLENCE AWARDS

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter honored eight individuals for their contributions to the law and to the community at its 2016 Pillars of Excellence dinner on Saturday, August 20, 2016 at the Holiday Inn on the University of Memphis campus.

The 2016 Pillars of Excellence honorees were G. Pat Arnoult, Saul Belz, John Dunlap, Jef Feibelman, Philip G. Kaminsky, Henry Klein and former Memphis Mayor A C Wharton. The Law Alumni Chapter also recognized Justice Holly Kirby (BSME '79, JD '82) as Special Distinguished Alumna.

Justice Kirby (JD '82) is an associate justice on the Tennessee Supreme Court. She is the first Memphis Law graduate to serve as a member of the state Supreme Court, which now includes a second Memphis Law alumnus, Justice Roger Page. Justice Kirby was appointed to the court by Gov. Bill Haslam on Dec. 17, 2013 to fill the vacancy created by retirement of Justice Janice Holder. She assumed office on Sept.1, 2014. Justice Kirby is a former judge for the Tennessee Court of Appeals. She was appointed to this court by Gov. Don Sundquist in 1995 and was elected in August 1996.

Justice Kirby received her undergraduate degree in engineering from the University of Memphis and her JD from the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. She began her legal career in 1982 as a law clerk to Judge Harry Wellford of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. She then worked as an attorney in private practice from 1983 to 1995 and later became a partner at the firm of Burch, Porter & Johnson. She was appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1995 and was the first woman to serve on the Court of Appeals.

To see photos from the event, please click HERE.

Recipients of the Pillars of Excellence Award must be living at the time of selection; must have been admitted to the practice of law for more than 45 years; given significant service to the legal profession, including membership in bar associations and participation in bar association activities; given significant service to the community, including involvement in civic and charitable organizations; served in leadership roles in the legal and civic communities; made other significant contributions to the practice of law; and must be generally recognized among the Memphis Bar to possess the highest legal skills and ethical standards.

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/25/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

PROF. ANDREW MCCLURG AUTHORS CASEBOOK

Professor and Herff Chair of Excellence Andrew McClurg has co-authored with Professor Brannon Denning (Cumberland School of Law, Samford University) a new casebook, Guns and the Law: Cases, Problems, and Explanation (Carolina Academic Press 2016).

McClurg is a longtime researcher, teacher, and presenter on issues of U.S. firearms policy, with a previous book and many law journal articles on the subject. He has been interviewed about firearms policy by sources such as National Public Radio, Time, U.S. News & World Report, the New York Times, Washington Post, and Politifact.

Asked what he sees as the primary strength of the new casebook, McClurg said: "Balance. Brannon is a pro-gun rights scholar and I'm pro-reasonable regulation. Together, as we did in our other book, we kept each other honest. The truth is that reasonable arguments exist on both sides of nearly every gun issue in America."

The book covers topics such as the book current federal and state gun laws, major constitutional cases, post-Heller Second Amendment litigation, modern self-defense rules such as Stand Your Ground laws, civil liability, gun laws in other countries, legal solutions to gun violence, and issues of guns and race, alienage, culture, and gender.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

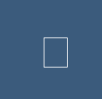
Alumni & Support

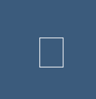
ABA Required Disclosures

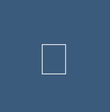
Full sitemap

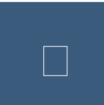
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

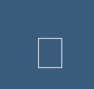
Follow UofM Online

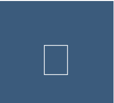












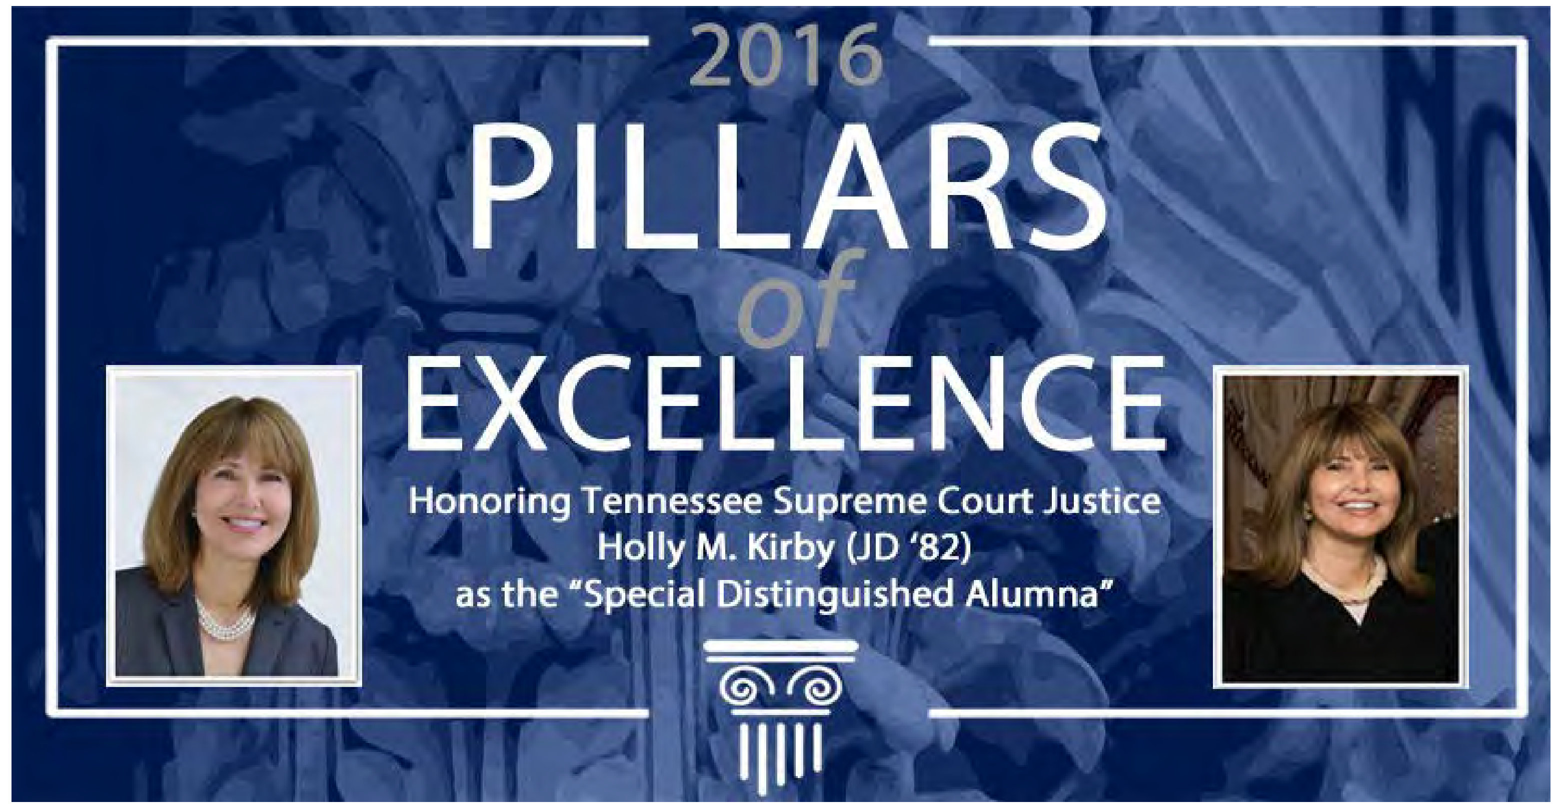
Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law



LAW ALUMNI HONOR JUSTICE HOLLY KIRBY

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter will honor Tennessee Supreme Court Justice Holly M. Kirby (JD '82) as the "Special Distinguished Alumna" at its 2016 Pillars of Excellence Awards Ceremony and Dinner. The event will be held Saturday, August 20, at the University of Memphis Holiday Inn. A VIP Meet & Greet will begin at 5:30 p.m., followed by a cocktail reception at 6:00 p.m., with dinner and awards at 7:00 p.m.

Justice Kirby (JD '82) is an associate justice on the Tennessee Supreme Court. She is the first Memphis Law graduate to serve as a member of the state Supreme Court, which now includes a second Memphis Law alumnus, Justice Roger Page. Justice Kirby was appointed to the court by Gov. Bill Haslam on Dec. 17, 2013 to fill the vacancy created by retirement of Justice Janice Holder. She assumed office on Sept.1, 2014. Justice Kirby is a former judge for the Tennessee Court of Appeals. She was appointed to this court by Gov. Don Sundquist in 1995 and was elected in August 1996.

Justice Kirby received her undergraduate degree in engineering from the University of Memphis and her JD from the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. She began her legal career in 1982 as a law clerk to Judge Harry Wellford of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. She then worked as an attorney in private practice from 1983 to 1995 and later became a partner at the firm of Burch, Porter & Johnson. She was appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1995 and was the first woman to serve on the Court of Appeals.

This year's other Pillar honorees are G. Pat Arnoult, Saul Belz, John Dunlap, Jef Feibelman, Philip G. Kaminsky, Henry Klein and former Memphis Mayor AC Wharton.

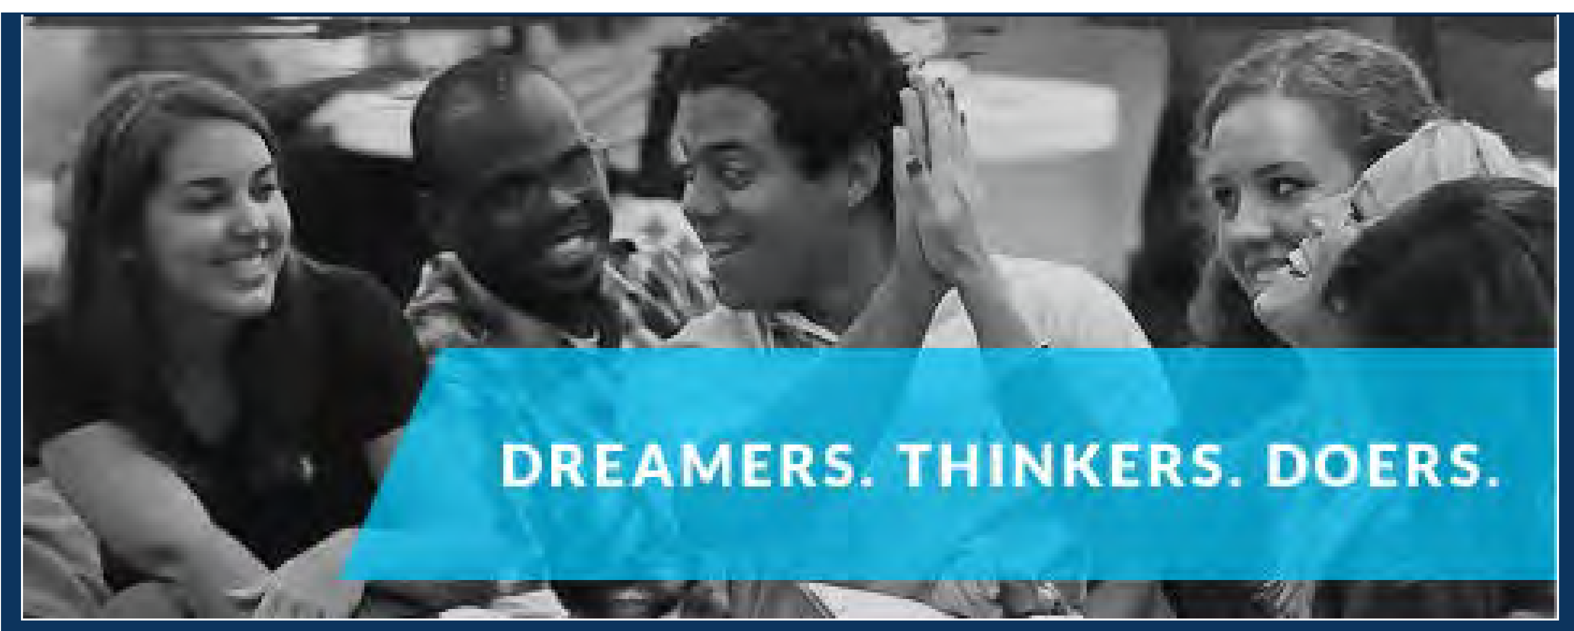
For more information on the event, visit alumni.memphs.edu and click on the Pillars of Excellence link, or contact Marina Carrier at m.carrier@memphis.edu or 901-678-2461.

Recipients of the Pillars of Excellence Award must be living at the time of selection; must have been admitted to the practice of law for more than 45 years; given significant service to the legal profession, including membership in bar associations and participation in bar association activities; given significant service to the community, including involvement in civic and charitable organizations; served in leadership roles in the legal and civic communities; made other significant contributions to the practice of law; and must be generally recognized among the Memphis Bar to possess the highest legal skills and ethical standards.



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/20/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

BRITTANY WILLIAMS NAMED NPC FELLOW

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and the City of Memphis have hired Brittany Williams as the first "City of Memphis Neighborhood Preservation Fellow."

As a Fellow, Williams will assist in case handling and management for Neighborhood Preservation Act cases and other Environmental Court cases filed by the City. She will also draft and file lawsuits in Environmental Court, as well as communicate outside of court with defendants and attorneys for defendants regarding the status of all cases filed with Environmental Court or otherwise managed by the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic on behalf of the City. She will represent the City in litigation against owners of blighted property that violates City codes and will provide assistance to students enrolled in the University of Memphis Neighborhood Preservation Clinic in regards to case filing and management.

The City of Memphis provided the law school with $150,000 of funding to support this unique position through December 31, 2017, with proceeds from its Vacant Property Registry used to fund the unique partnership. As part of the agreement, the "Neighborhood Preservation Fellow" must be a Memphis Law graduate, with preference given to a graduate who has successfully completed a semester in the law school's Neighborhood Preservation Clinic, or participated in the anti-blight litigation externship with the City of Memphis Law Division.

Brittany Williams, a Class of 2015 Memphis Law graduate, was officially named the first Neighborhood Preservation Fellow in Summer 2016, only one year after successfully graduating from law school. Prior to her appointment as Fellow, Brittany worked for the law firm of Brewer & Barlow, PLC as a law clerk and in March 2016 was named the Interim Neighborhood Preservation Fellow before her official appointment in June of 2016.

"Our efforts with the City of Memphis to fight blight allow us to not only help the city itself, but also give our current students, and now our graduates like Brittany Williams, the ability to play a front-line role in this critical fight," said Dean Peter V. Letsou. "We are training our students to tackle a problem that lacked a focused solution before this partnership and, in doing so, we are helping to provide Memphis with specially trained attorneys to alleviate this blight epidemic."

The fellowship adds yet another component to the law school's and the City's dedicated fight against blight in the Mid-South. The law school and the City of Memphis last year announced the creation and launch of the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic, a partnership between the law school and the City's legal division that allows law students to earn real-world experience for law students in issues of blight, property abandonment, and neglect through the handling of cases in the Shelby County Environmental Court. The clinic is co-directed by local attorney and Memphis Law adjunct faculty member Steve Barlow and Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Experiential Learning Daniel Schaffzin. Over the past year, law students in the clinic have studied the laws concerning real property abandonment and neglect in Memphis, and worked with code enforcement officers to prosecute civil lawsuits filed pursuant to the Tennessee Neighborhood Preservation Act. The clinic and the City celebrated the filing of the City's 1,000th lawsuit against blighted property owners during the fall 2015 semester.

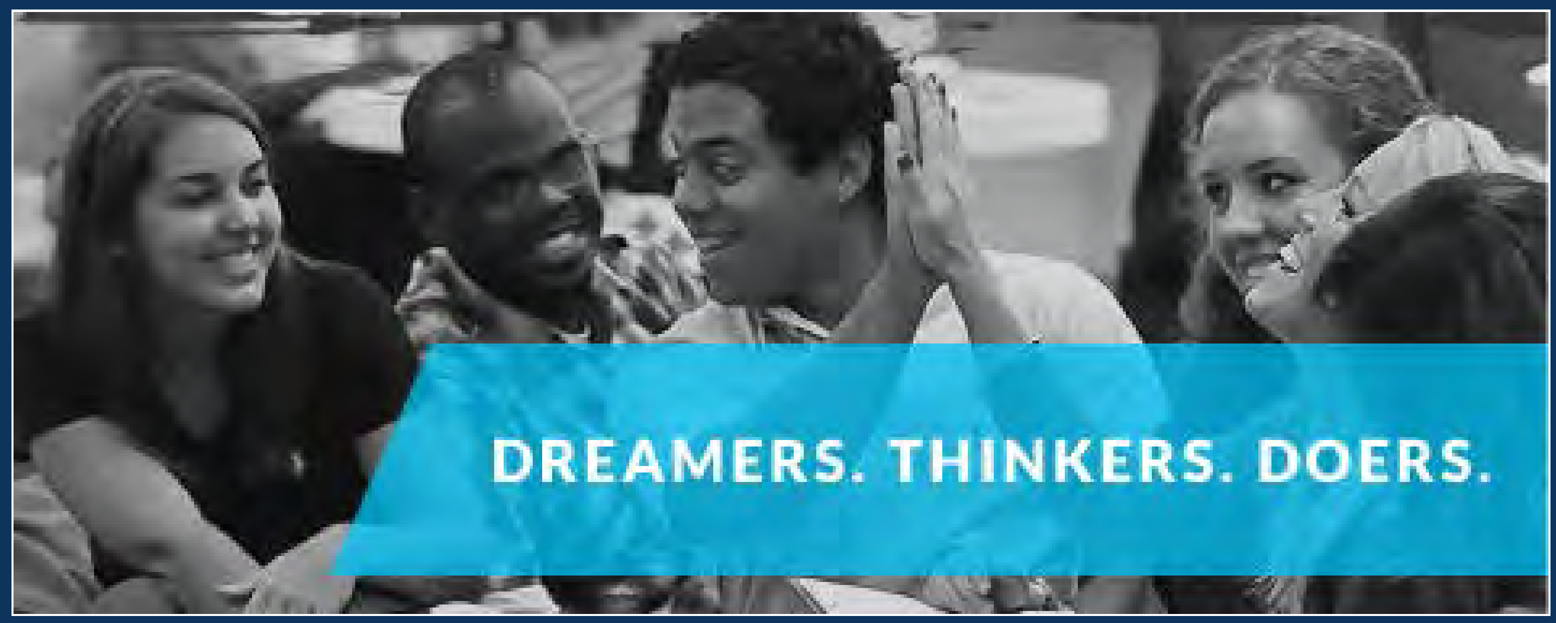
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

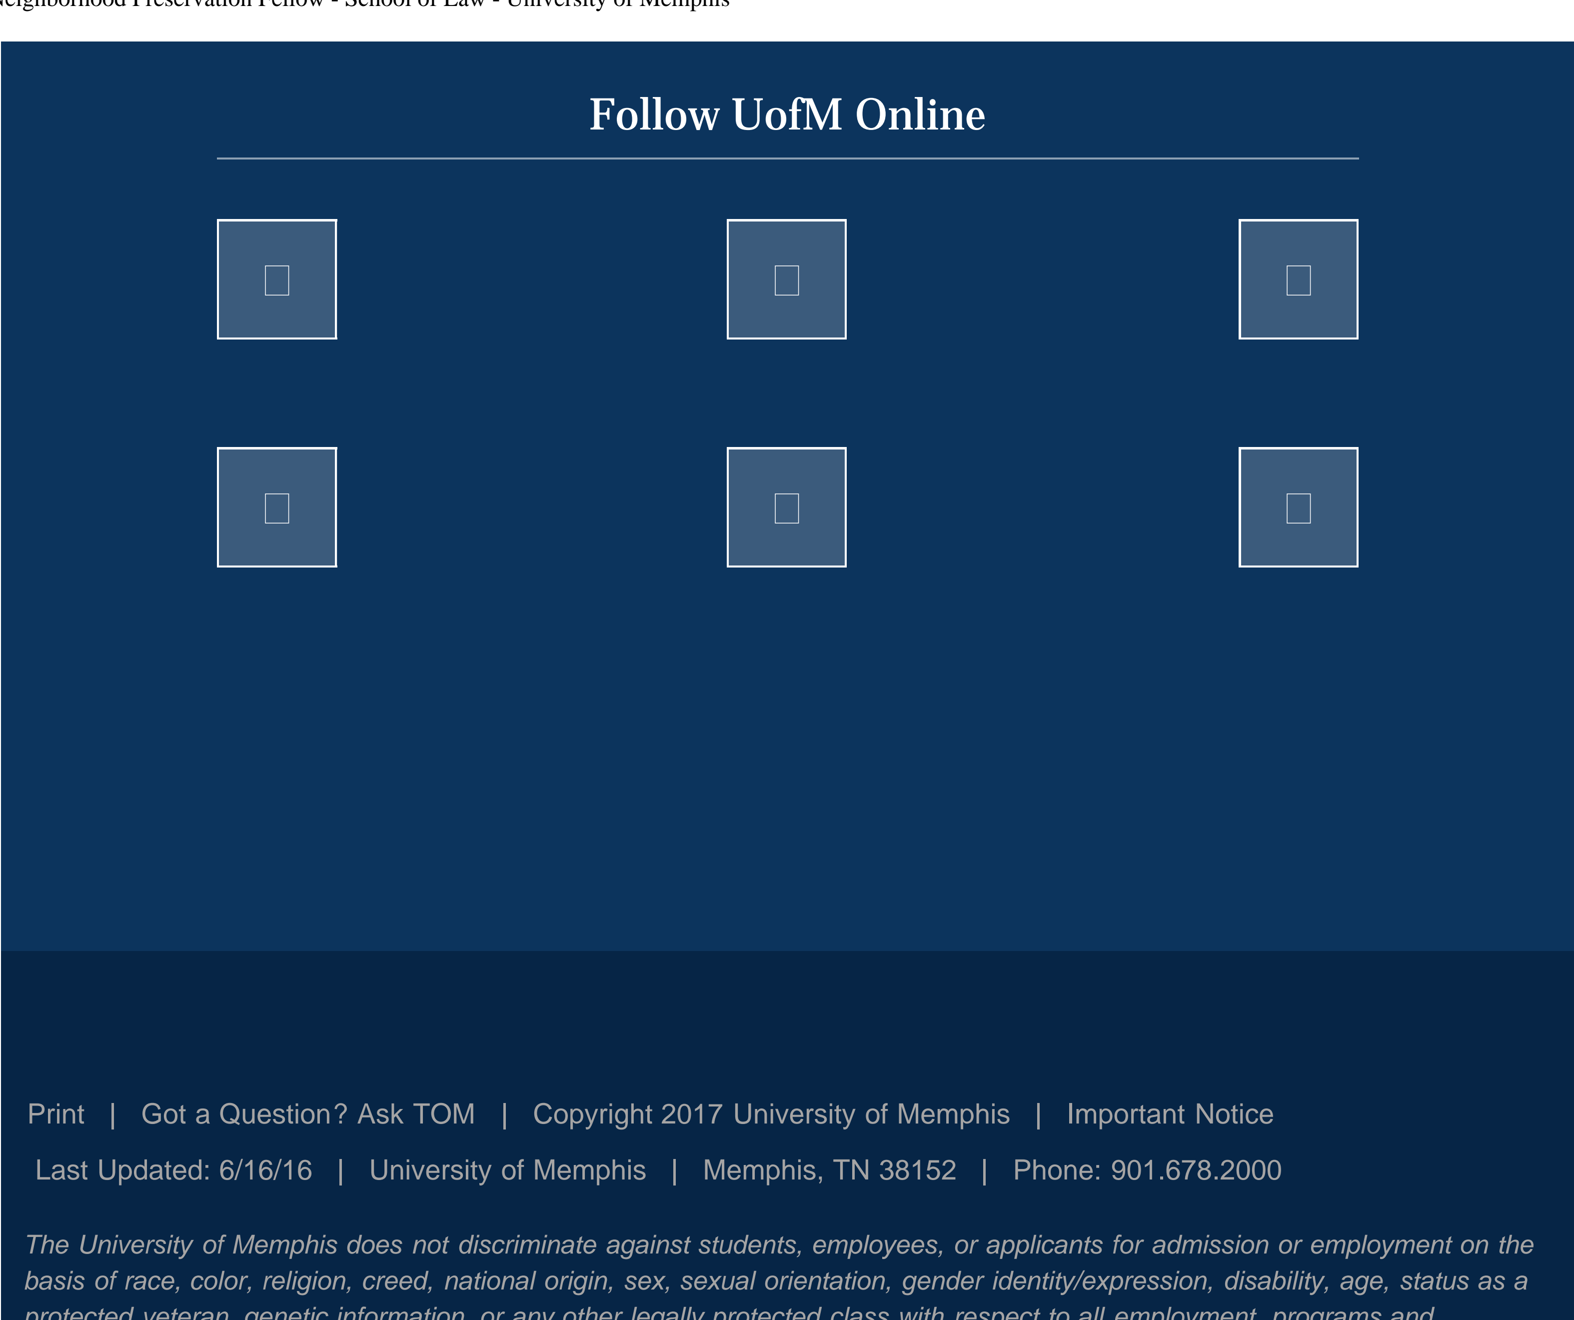
Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS



Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 6/16/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

"We want better outcomes, but we don't want to pay as much. That's the challenge."

— PAUL HOPKINS

JUNE 2016

HEALTH CARE

Advertising Supplement to:

SPONSORS

MODERATOR

Dr. Kennard Brown
Executive Vice Chancellor/ Chief Operations Officer, The University of Tennessee Health Science Center

Brown holds the responsibility of coordinating the day-to-day administrative operations and the effective management of the campus central administration. Brown has been with the Health Science Center for 17 years and began his university service in the Office of the General Counsel.

He previously served as the director of the Office of Equity and Diversity, Office of Employee Relations and Center on Health Disparities. He serves as the Assistant Professor in the College of Pharmacy, Department of Surgery in the College of Medicine.

PANELISTS

Prof. Amy Campbell
Associate Professor of Law; Director of the Institute for Health Law and Policy, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Campbell serves as adjunct faculty in the Center for Bioethics and Clinical Leadership of the Union Graduate College-Mount Sinai School of Medicine Bioethics Program. Campbell received her law degree from Yale Law School, master's in Bioethics from the University of Pennsylvania, and B.A. in History and Peace Studies from the University of Notre Dame.

Campbell serves on the Executive Committee of the Health Law Section of the Tennessee Bar Association and on the Board of the Memphis Bar Association's Health Law Section.

Paul Hopkins
CPA/Partner, Dixon Hughes Goodman LLP

Hopkins has more than 20 years of experience as a certified public accountant working primarily in the health care industry.

He is an assurance partner for Dixon Hughes Goodman LLP and has been with DHG since 2004. Within the health care industry, he serves hospitals and related entities, physician practices, skilled nursing facilities, independent and assisted living facilities and continuing care retirement communities.

With more than two decades' experience in health care, Hopkins brings skill and industry insight to his clients.

Jimmie Mancell
M.D, Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare

Mancell is the chief of medicine and associate dean for Clinical Affairs at Methodist University Hospital and UT Methodist Physicians in Memphis.

In addition, he is an associate professor in the Department of Medicine at the University of Tennessee Health Science Center.

He is currently a team physician with the Memphis Grizzlies and is a member of the Strategy Committee and Cardiac Subcommittee of the NBA Physicians Association, and he is a consulting physician for the University of Memphis Athletics and the Memphis Redbirds.

Ron Rukstad
Chief Executive Officer, The Village at Germantown

Rukstad has 40 years of experience in the field of senior housing and services, and has served as the executive director of The Village at Germantown for the past four years.

Prior to that he was the executive vice president of operations for CRSA, a Memphis-based firm that specializes in the development, marketing and operation of life plan communities in 17 states. While in this capacity, his corporate staff oversaw the opening of many retirement communities and served as manager for 25 communities.

DHG | healthcare
CONSULTING | ASSURANCE | TAX

PROUD TO BE PART OF THE TABLE OF EXPERTS

Our services are purposefully designed to assist our clients in their journey to risk capability. Creating institutional value is a critical focus as our clients define the strategic approach, execute on transformational plans, and manage the financial health and sustainability of their organizations.

Learn more at www.dhgllp.com

cfo advisory enterprise intelligence reimbursement strategy

Navigating changes and challenges in health care

Kennard Brown: As hospitals struggle with their bottom line, is it possible for a hospital to go out of business?

Jimmie Mancell: Unfortunately, this is the reality for some small community hospitals as well as regional hospitals. Their health care margin is so narrow; they have to be very good stewards of their resources to stay in business or change their business model. If they do not adapt to the changes in health care, they cannot survive. We have seen evidence of this within our own community.

Brown: In the past, hospitals were incentivized for volume. Today, they are incentivized on the quality of care. How is this changing hospitals?

Mancell: Even if paid less, one could just increase the volume to make up the difference. This is no longer the case. Now, hospitals and clinicians will be rewarded for the increased quality of care they provide and penalized if they do not meet set quality goals. Additionally, hospitals and clinicians are incentivized for preventive care as well as efficiently transitioning care from the inpatient to the outpatient setting.

Brown: How do physicians feel about payers setting the paradigm on the standard of care? How are they responding to those standards, such as the set time frame for readmissions?

Mancell: With a certain degree of anxiety and apprehension. However, these standards are not going away, therefore clinicians must be willing to collaborate with payers to agree to best practices to which we will hold ourselves accountable. As to the time frame for readmissions, it would seem straightforward, but this is not the case. Clinicians and hospitals can be penalized for a preventable complication causing readmission. This would seem to be a reasonable expectation. However, there are complications and/or medical events completely unrelated to the initial episode of care that require readmission. The hospital and clinicians would be penalized adversely for this readmission as well, which does not make sense.

Brown: There are challenges with the transparency and understanding of health care costs. How do we better understand health care costs and the unpredictability of hospital costs?

Paul Hopkins: It's a conundrum. We're getting a lot of calls about where health care is headed and how hospitals are going to be paid in the future. With the new value-based payment system, hospitals need to be able to become more risk-capable. This means taking on greater responsibility for the care of a defined patient population. Under a risk-capable payment model, providers are penalized or given a bonus for the quality of care they provide — and those payment models come in different forms. In the future, that transparency about the varying costs will become clearer as payments are made to treat an entire episode of care from start to finish. This puts hospitals and providers in riskier situations. So, at DHG Healthcare, we analyze the costs and help hospitals plan financially so as to not affect their bottom line.

Brown: The Affordable Care Act (ACA) can be confusing and complicated. What is expected to happen in health care with the new administration? Will the 'policy dust' ever settle?

Amy Campbell: It is very complex. And a lot of the complexity was also happening before the ACA, so some of these policies are more reactive, while others are proactive. The ACA addressed the complexity but also created more complexity. We have to figure out what law's role is in all of this. There are so many layers and unintended complexities. We must determine if the laws should be put in place to nudge a system toward wellness and out of the hospital and whether policies and laws should be reactive or proactive. And we have to figure that out by looking at both the negative and positive aspects we're seeing in health care.

Ron Rukstad: In retirement communities, we've been looking at how to prepare. We're going to get sicker people sooner and must take care of them in a patient-centered, state-of-the-art health care setting. As part of our partnership with Methodist Hospital, we are working on and preparing for that. This is partly because of the changes in health care reimbursement. The average a patient would stay at a rehab facility after a hip or knee procedure was 22-23 days. Now, the normal stay is seven days. So, we also have to change the way we manage patients and prepare them to be independent and ready to go home in just seven days as opposed to 23. Our focus is on rehab and doing it well and as quickly as possible.

Brown: Can you please explain what the seniors' Life Plan Community is?

Rukstad: Things have changed in senior housing. When I began work in this field, the entire emphasis was on convenience — seniors would not have to take care of a yard or cook meals or do housekeeping. Today, our residents expect a comprehensive plan of wellness and programs that will help them live longer with a higher quality of life. So, the focus is now more on wellness and related programming. In addition, the emphasis for retirement communities used to be on seniors' care when they were sick. If their health declined, we'd help take care of them. Today our Life Plan Community program focuses on the positive and takes a holistic approach to wellness to help them live at the highest quality of life. In a traditional nursing home, people think that once they enter the facility, they are there to stay. We want to rehabilitate at the highest level possible — with 87 percent of the seniors returning to highest level of functioning. The whole approach has changed — Life Plan focuses on the positive and staying healthy, not simply taking care of you while ill.

Brown: Where does the health care responsibility lie — with the federal government or on the state level?

Campbell: It's not an either/or situation. We rely on and depend on the state's ingenuity and how they respond to local resources, conditions and needs. States also have more flexibility than the federal government. But the federal government can be supportive to states by showing them how to invest and also by sharing best practices. Think of this as a two-legged stool: It might get off-kilter, but we do need interaction from both. And that also creates challenges of which is more dominant — states or feds? We have to value that health is as a state issue, but there is a role for the federal government. We have to find the balance, which is an ever-present challenge.

Brown: Should the payers devote more resources and pay more for populations with the poorest health or those who are sick more, such as geriatric and pediatric patients — or focus on trying to keep populations healthy?

Campbell: Historically, we've always paid more for the sick, and we've focused on a higher level of care for someone in the hospital. So, as we shift our policies, we still need to devote our resources to those ill populations, but we have to figure out how to do it more efficiently and effectively. Payers are realizing that it's not just the health system's job anymore, we have to help keep kids well and out of the ER. We could address mold in a household, for example. It's an odd health charge, but it will save health costs down the line. Payers also need to think about how what makes someone healthy isn't just about what happens in a hospital; they have to think in broader terms.

Hopkins: Employers are driving reform, too. Their health care costs have skyrocketed. So, they want to help their employees stay healthy, keep them out of the hospital and help manage their chronic care — doing so helps keep the employers' costs down.

Mancell: Employers are investing in prevention and wellness because this affects the health and subsequent productivity of their employees, creating savings for them. Insurance companies, as well as the federal and state payers, should have strategies around preventive care and wellness for specific populations and communities. There was a time when medical insurance would only pay for a visit if there was actually something wrong with the health of the patient. This mindset has to shift in the discussion of population health.

Brown: Should health care and insurance be attached to employment?

Campbell: I say no. With the ACA exchanges, there are trends where employers want to get out of that line of business. Historically, it's been an employer-based benefit. It's so complex for employers, they'd want to be rid of that responsibility; so, they are interested. But, we have to figure out what fills that vacuum. Is it public or private? State or federal? What we have is not working — so, what's the fix? That's the challenge.

Brown: You know the saying "First in cost, last in outcomes." How do we make people come to grips with this reality?

Hopkins: There's continued pressure for the

METHODIST HOSPITAL NAMED BEST BY U.S. NEWS

It's recognition for unsurpassed excellence that so many in Memphis recognized long ago. For the fifth year in a row, Methodist's Memphis Hospitals are proud to be ranked Best in the Memphis metro area by U.S. News & World Report. This honor is the gold standard in rankings for healthcare and a testament to our talented physicians, nurses, partners and Associates who truly believe that being the best starts with putting the patient first.

Be treated well.

Go online to see the full story: MethodistHealth.org/Best health care industry to do more and to do better with less and with a finite amount of money. The ACA ignited industry reform, where everyone is questioning this now and saying, "We want better outcomes, but we don't want to pay as much." That's the challenge. So, we need more best practices. For example, in the past, we'd always discharge patients to a nursing home and they'd stay for an extended period of time. Now, to reduce some of the financial waste, we're looking at home health care or rehab when appropriate to help reduce costs. This takes everyone working together. Employers and the government are driving this – the "do more with less" attitude – by funneling it down at an accelerated pace.

Rukstad: We have to change traditional mindsets to be more efficient with less. How can we deal with new quality-centered reimbursement systems? We need to rethink how everything works. Working with Methodist has been a great experience, because we are working together as partners to identify procedures, to provide efficient health care to seniors.

Mancell: In the changing health care landscape, we are going to have to provide value by increasing quality while decreasing cost. Essentially doing more with less. At Methodist LeBonheur Healthcare, we are doing this by removing inefficiencies and waste. Some of this is through better use of technology, including the electronic medical record. However, there continues to be obstructions such as HIPAA. Due to occasions of over-interpretation of this law, there can be an inability to get medical records with vital information, test results or procedural reports, which forces clinicians to sometimes repeat unnecessary tests. This reality has to change.

Jimmie Mancell and Amy Campbell

ELLEN COLLIER | MBJ

Campbell: I tell my students, the HIPAA law is an intervention in many ways as a lived experience; as a practice, it does frustrate and stifle conversation and that wasn't the intent – but that's how it's being interpreted, used and applied. Law's responsibility is to work and navigate, so the law is achieving the intended result not creating barriers. This is an opening – address HIPAA and those kinds of laws.

Brown: Should we deal with tort reform? What risk are physicians in in terms of legal culpability and malpractice?

Campbell: There is a role for litigation and addressing serious errors. And there is a role for tort reform as we have more team-based care, where the physician has the prominent risk, but the physician isn't the only one with the risk – the liability is on a team, not just the doctor. Tort reform is for enhancing the quality of care. So, we have to figure out: How do we make sure the intent behind the law is being achieved?

Brown: To reduce hospital admissions and length of stays, wellness programs are being incentivized. Should entities take on more proactive measures to help to mitigate costs downstream?

Rukstad: New reimbursement systems are going to drive that, which is the expectation of payers and partners. The biggest incentive we have is to be in a preferred provider relationship, as we are with Methodist, Campbell Clinic, and MSK, which is a benefit to us. Wellness programs right now are only private pay. Our residents have access to our pool, track, therapists – they're part of the Life Plan Community. They have access to those things by being residents of the community. We are looking to expand that platform to our larger senior community.

Hopkins: Wellness becomes more important from the employer standpoint. By offering health club memberships and helping manage chronic conditions, employers are attempting to keep their employees healthy and total health care costs down, as well. Wellness programs will continue to expand to keep costs down. The benefit is reduced insurance costs to the employer. There should be some financial incentive because of the reduction in health care spending on the backend.

Brown: What can be done to orient the frontline physicians with the reality of the costs and economics of the medical industry?

Mancell: Physicians are going to have to become more actively involved in setting the standards for increasing the quality of care. This will require a better understanding of the costs associated with the care they provide. As we become more responsible for this cost, we are going to have to collaborate with each other as well as hospital management. At Methodist LeBonheur Healthcare, we have started this collaborative effort between hospital management and the medical staff by forming clinically integrated networks.

Brown: Should we indoctrinate medical students about the economics of the industry earlier – during medical school?

Mancell: Yes, we should. I have given a medical economics lecture to medical residents and students regarding the cost of what we do. During the lecture, I ask them to write down the costs they believe are associated with certain tests, X-rays and procedures they order. Then, we go over the actual cost of all of these items, which becomes a rather sobering moment. I believe teaching medical students early the costs associated with what they do will certainly improve the quality of care while reducing these expenditures.

Hopkins: It can be challenging for hospitals to tell you their true cost for an episode of care, but they know what they're going to get reimbursed. There must be transparency. But, there is confusion because hospitals can show what the charges are, but they don't necessarily show the contracted amounts they will be paid. The industry only works like this because of third-party payer involvement.

Brown: How can costs for the same procedures be so different at various hospitals? Is there any intent to set a standard for charges and reimbursement to establish predictability in the costs?

Hopkins: Some reimbursement variance is due to different markets, but sometimes it just says something to the skill of contract negotiators to get a higher reimbursement rate for their hospital.

Campbell: We should have consistency and less variation. Health care is a business, and we have some knowledge of what it will cost and reimbursements based on what we're providing. We all agree there are problems, but we're not changing. The ACA created some changes, but we still need more understanding, consistency and clarity. Would we be better off with just one payer that we negotiate across systems? Even from a business and accounting perspective, that would have benefits.

Rukstad: Medicare covers a growing segment of the population. There is Medicare A, Medicare B, supplemental insurance, long-term insurance – it is all a challenge to navigate. There are few geriatricians. We are fortunate at The Village at Germantown to have doctors and staff who understand Medicare and how the system works – they deal with it every day. There is a real need within the industry to understand the Medicare system and how to navigate it. It is extremely complex.

Brown: So, where do seniors go for help with the system?

Excellence
you will only find at The Village.

Experience makes the difference. The Village offers a private residential lifestyle with the services you need today, as well as into the future. You have the assurance of on-site adult day services, assisted living, skilled nursing care and memory care, should you ever need it.

We've broken ground on our new independent living expansion.

Call today to schedule a private visit!

901-737-4242
Independent Living

7820 Walking Horse Circle, Germantown, TN 38138 | www.village-germantown.com

Live your life—your way, every day—at The Village!

Rukstad: At The Village at Germantown, we have a social services staff to help navigate that. In conjunction with Methodist, we want to use our platform as a basis to provide education to the community, so we offer people access to the full extent of services they may need — hospice, home health, companion programs and education on how to use Medicare. Our goal is to provide care coordinators for seniors who take advantage of the new program we envision: Seniors will be able to pick up the phone and tell the coordinators what's happening and ask who to be in touch with regarding a specific issue. We want them to be able to say, "I'm concerned about this, who can help me?" We want to be a resource for seniors because so many experience that difficult problem: What do I do?

Brown: What does the medical industry's economic future look like?

Hopkins: That's difficult, because the health care industry is always changing. I'd say we're going to see more alternative payment models and more risk pushed from payers over to providers. Providers who are ready for it will thrive, others will fail in that system. The time to look at it is now. We are close to that tipping point of when it occurs. If we can get some of the waste out of the system, that will take some of the pressure off.

Mancell: We will continue to have to improve managing costs associated with all patient populations, including insured, underinsured and uninsured patients. One of our solutions has been providing preventative services through our Congregational Health Network, especially in the 38109 ZIP code, which has improved care in the outpatient setting and decreased the high cost of hospital utilization. All health care systems will have to be proactive using different and unorthodox methods to improve the health in our community.

Brown: Is the magnitude of the underinsured and uninsured population still significant?

Mancell: The magnitude does remain significant. In addition, we have to recognize the increased out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the insured population with high-deductible plans, many of whom are one significant illness away from bankruptcy. Now the burden includes patient populations without insurance as well as populations with insurance having to pay an increased out-of-pocket expense. This increases the magnitude of financial risk.

Campbell: The ACA had built-in assumptions that states would expand Medicaid and the presumption that we wouldn't have uninsured people, and it altered how health systems would be reimbursed. We didn't expect we'd still have uninsured people and that rates would change with out-of-pocket costs. Health isn't just a Methodist Hospital or a Baptist Hospital — it's the health systems like Congregational Health Network. We have to be thinking, what can schools do to promote health, what can be done about transportation? So many things impact health and health systems. Our communities need to know what their roles are in maintaining health.

Brown: States can create unintentional competition. When a medical helicopter from Mississippi flies a patient to a medical facility in Memphis, are communities expected to incur the costs of people who are not from that community? Are health systems and communities being negatively impacted by being a regional hub? And, who assumes financial responsibility for undocumented patients?

Paul Hopkins and Ron Rukstad

ELLEN COLLIER | MBJ

Campbell: This is another part of the state vs. federal roles. But, for certain trauma care and specialized care, which are necessary, it makes sense that there are just a few centers of excellence, rather than middling facilities. Memphis is a place that has centers of excellence and bears the burden of the cost of care from other communities, not just from within our own community. There can be a role there for the federal government to help ensure Memphis doesn't lose out because it did the right thing and served someone from Arkansas or Mississippi. We shouldn't have a system that says, we can't afford this. The federal government needs to help by playing a role with a fund to draw from to help offset those costs, for example.

Mancell: We experience this all the time. Being a regional referral center, we accept complex cases from multiple outlying communities. Whether they are insured, underinsured or uninsured, we can have significant difficulty returning them to their community. They may have limited family support or resources. This leads to very prolonged hospitalization with a high cost, for which we are typically not reimbursed. There are challenges unique to different states regarding the provision of care for patients from their communities and efforts to return them to those communities.

Brown: Where is the line drawn when cost is passed on to the health system? Who foots the bill for bad behavior such as eating fast food meals every day or choosing not to wear a helmet while riding a motorcycle? What about when cities pass laws banning 64 oz. sugary soft drinks for health reasons?

Campbell: We have to be careful here: How much can the law do and where does the law fit in? does it come before or after issues? With value-based insurance, if you don't do certain things, you have to pay more, and you'll pay less each month if you do those things. How much is willfully bad and how much is systemic? How can we address the environment — if someone can't join a gym because it's expensive, but they could exercise outside — can we put the responsibility on the person? If so, we have to be careful. How much is it the individual's clear, obstructed choice and how much is environmental? The law has to address those barriers that impact health. Policy is shifting to say that, with these value-based insurance plans, if you engage in behaviors that lead to unhealthy outcomes, you will pay more. If you smoke, for example, you'll have a surcharge. Within certain limits, surcharges are allowed.

Brown: Is a penalty for not having insurance okay?

Campbell: I'm okay with that — as long as we structure it correctly. For those who really can't afford it, can we craft ways to make sure the copays are affordable and the coverage is appropriate? There is a lot of focus on this idea: As an individual, I have rights when I get sick; I have needs. I think there has to be a shift in understanding that health is collectively felt and impacted. The system works best if we can figure out how to get everyone insured, perhaps by offering a sliding scale to make that mandate affordable.

Brown: Should the role of law be more embedded in the creation of health care legislation? Once a law is created, is the interpretation of the law up to the hospital, payers and providers? What if they have different interpretations rather than a common understanding? There should be more emphasis on how these laws are interpreted. The bastardization of HIPAA is a good example.

Campbell: I agree. When we're thinking about legislation or regulation, we should have doctors, CEOs, accountants — all people should be involved in an evidence-informed process. Law doesn't come from nothing. It's to address issues where it makes sense. We can't think of it as: Once we pass the law, we're done. Once it's passed, we must educate our health care partners about what the law means and the differences between a statute vs. a regulation. And we have to listen. If we hear or see there are problems, we have to think how we can fix the educational aspect or the actual law. There must be interdisciplinary collaboration in crafting, implementing, evaluating and amending as needed.

Brown: How do we keep young, bright people in the health care industry despite the challenges of policies and economics?

Mancell: We keep them interested by reminding them of the ultimate reward and satisfaction achieved by caring for our fellow man. It truly is a calling. There are going to be frustrations and challenges, as there are with most things in life, but to care for and improve the quality of life for our patients and their families is a true gift. We have to prepare them for these challenges to minimize their frustration.

Brown: From doctors to policy makers and social services, health care has a framework based on community. Would you say that we, as a community, have to be more involved in our health care system and industry?

Mancell: We have to be more involved to address the health care disparities we have in a significant portion of the communities we serve. We know the majority of our community wants good health, we just have to find ways to remove the barriers keeping them from achieving good health. We have to be mindful of the financial barrier contributing to poor health. For example, the cost associated with the therapy of some chronic conditions such as diabetes is more than the monthly rent or mortgage for several of the patients in our community.

Brown: If you could change one thing about health care, what would it be?

Rukstad: Our nurses are amazing — they input chart information into the computer; what they did with the patient; why they did that; the care plan — all to ensure everything is compliant. These nurses want to care for these patients but spend much time in documentation. We need compliance, but it is to the point of being difficult to provide the hours on care required and expected.

Mancell: Sensible accountability. Physicians and health care systems should be held accountable for the quality of care they provide and any preventable complication associated with that care. Currently, though, physicians and hospitals are held accountable for unrelated complications as well as readmissions for medical problems completely unrelated to prior episodes of care based solely on a predetermined period of time, 30 days. This absurdity is what continues to perpetuate pessimism and the reluctance to participate in meaningful change within payment systems. As a whole, we must be more engaged than ever to remove these arbitrary penalties and drive sensible accountability.

Hopkins: From an accounting and CPA standpoint, health care is highly regulated, and a lot of dollars are spent on compliance that could be spent on patient care. To make health care better, one thing I'd change is to find a way to effectively operate the industry as it should, but not spend so many dollars on compliance.

Campbell: When I'm working with students, I tell them that law does not operate in a vacuum. Law is a service profession of open dialogue with all the players in the system with the right balance of policy regulation and a spirit of humility. Early on, we need to start training people to think about how we can be more collaborative and do more listening. What's the problem I'm hearing that law could help with? Law should be more of a flexible partner than in a fixed state. It's hard to change laws without unintended consequences. We need law advancing health — its purpose is not an impediment to health. How do we get a unified mission to advance health, and what's the role of law: as informing; being a firm hand; to nudge; to be a silent partner when it needs to be? How do we strike that balance? It has to start in law school by opening our doors and learning alongside businesses and health systems and all the players. What is this system, and what's the pivot point for law?

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

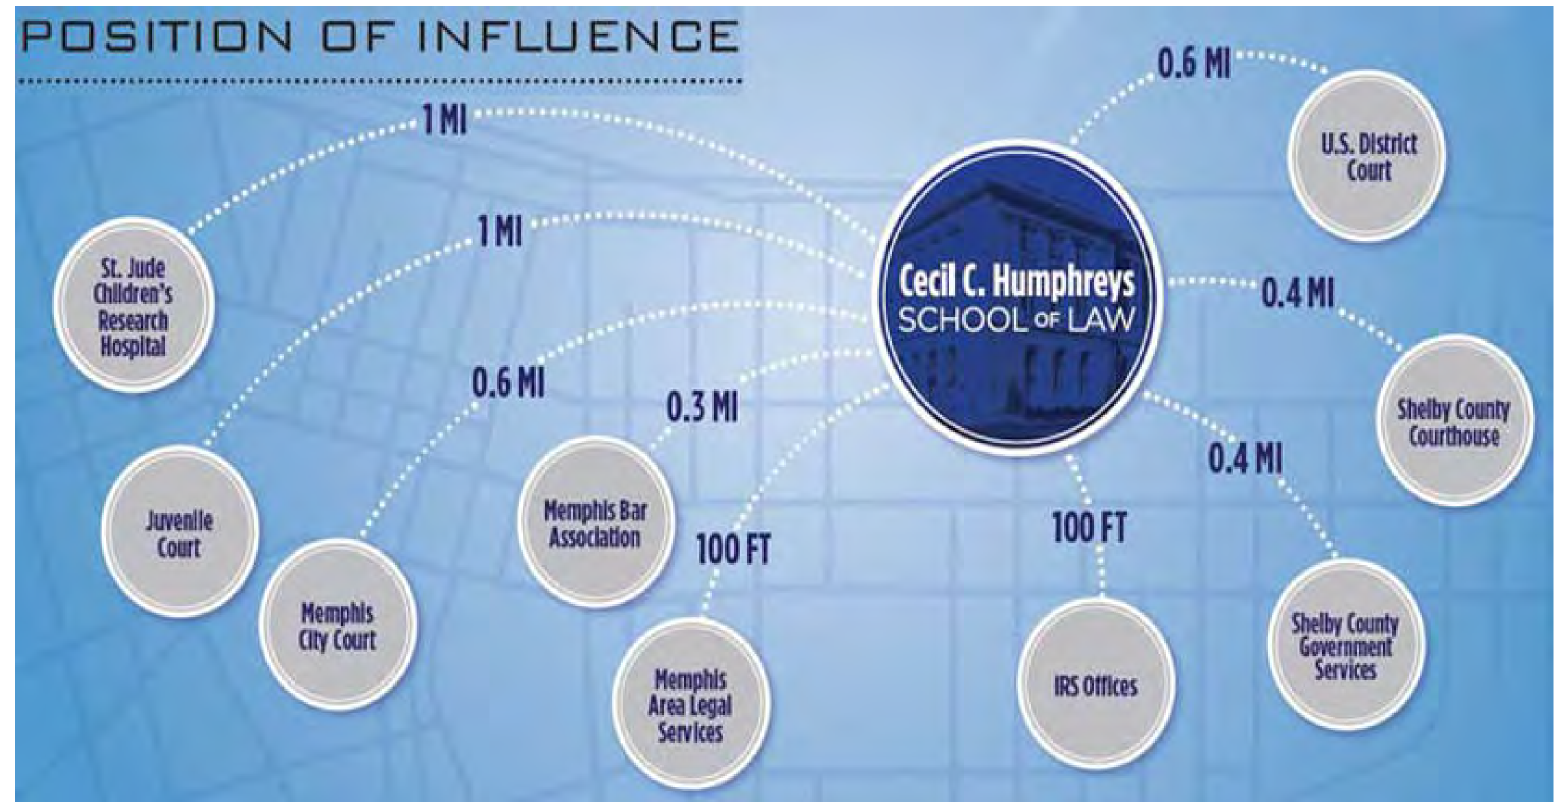
Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library



2016 SUMMER EXTERNSHIPS

During the Summer 2016 semester, 50 University of Memphis School of Law students are enrolled in the externship course, simultaneously earning academic credit and gaining valuable hands-on legal experience through field placement work performed under the supervision of federal and state judges on the appellate and trial court levels; federal and state attorneys' and public defenders' offices; federal and state government and administrative agencies; an educational institution; healthcare entities; and non-profit legal services providers.

"By taking advantage of the law school's experiential learning course offerings, including our field-based externships and in-house, live-client clinics, Memphis Law students move beyond the foundation of core doctrinal courses and immerse themselves in supervised legal activities designed to further develop essential lawyering skills and professional values," said Daniel Schaffzin, Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Experiential Learning. "Students emerge from experiential courses that much more ready to practice law and to meet the rightfully high expectations of the future clients and employers on whose behalf they will work following graduation."

"I highly recommend the externship course at the University of Memphis because it provides a necessary exposure to 'real world lawyering' beyond the walls of the law school building," said Bob Huddleston, a rising 3L student, who is a summer extern with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's Hearings Unit in Memphis. "An externship provides insight into practical lawyering skills by showing how the substantive material learned in the traditional classroom translates into day-to-day legal practice. Additionally, the contacts, connections, and mentoring relationships made while working alongside supervising judges and practitioners serve the extern well in his or her future career, and, even better, are rewarding on a purely personal level."

As part of the Summer 2016 externship course, Memphis Law students are gaining for-credit learning and work experience opportunities through the following field placements:

Judicial Chambers

- Judge Bernice B. Donald, U.S Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, Memphis, Tennessee
- Judge S. Thomas Anderson, U. S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee, Memphis, TN
- Judge John T. Fowlkes, U. S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee, Memphis, TN
- Magistrate Judge Tu M. Pham, U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee, Memphis, TN
- Justice Holly Kirby, Tennessee Supreme Court, Memphis, TN
- Judge Camille McMullen, Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals, Memphis, TN
- Judge Robert L. Childers, Shelby County Circuit Court, 30th Judicial District, Memphis, TN
- Judge Donna M. Fields, Shelby County Circuit Court, 30th Judicial District, Memphis, TN

Federal and State Government Law Offices

- City of Memphis Attorney's Office, Litigation Unit, Memphis. TN
- Office of the Desoto County District Attorney, Hernando, MS
- Office of the Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney, Kennett, MO
- Office of the Federal Public Defender for the Western District of Tennessee, Memphis, TN
- Shelby County District Attorney General's Office, Memphis, TN
  - Honors Prosecution Externship (8 Students)
- Shelby County Public Defender's Officer, Memphis, TN
- Tennessee Office of the Post-Conviction Defender, Nashville, TN
- U.S. Attorney's Office for the Western District of Tennessee, Memphis, TN
- U.S. Attorney's Office for the Western District of Tennessee, Jackson, TN

Federal and State Administrative Agencies

- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Public Health Law Program, Atlanta, GA
- Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority, Memphis, TN
- Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation, Nashville, TN
- U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Hearing Division, Memphis, TN

Educational Institutions

- University of Memphis Office of Athletic Compliance
- University of Memphis Office of Legal Counsel

Healthcare Entities

- Baptist Memorial Health Care Corporation, Memphis, TN
- Shelby County Health Department, Memphis, TN

Non-Profit Advocacy

- American Civil Liberties Union, Nashville, TN
- Community Legal Center, Immigration Justice Program, Memphis, TN
- Ducks Unlimited, Memphis, TN
- Financial Institution Regulatory Authority (FINRA), Atlanta, GA
- Justice for Our Neighbors, Nashville, TN
- Memphis Area Legal Services, Memphis, TN
    - Domestic Violence Unit
    - Low Income Taxpayer Unit
    - Partnership for Educational Advocacy and Parity
- University of Memphis Neighborhood Preservation Clinic

For more information about the Experiential Learning Program at the University of Memphis School of Law, please click here.

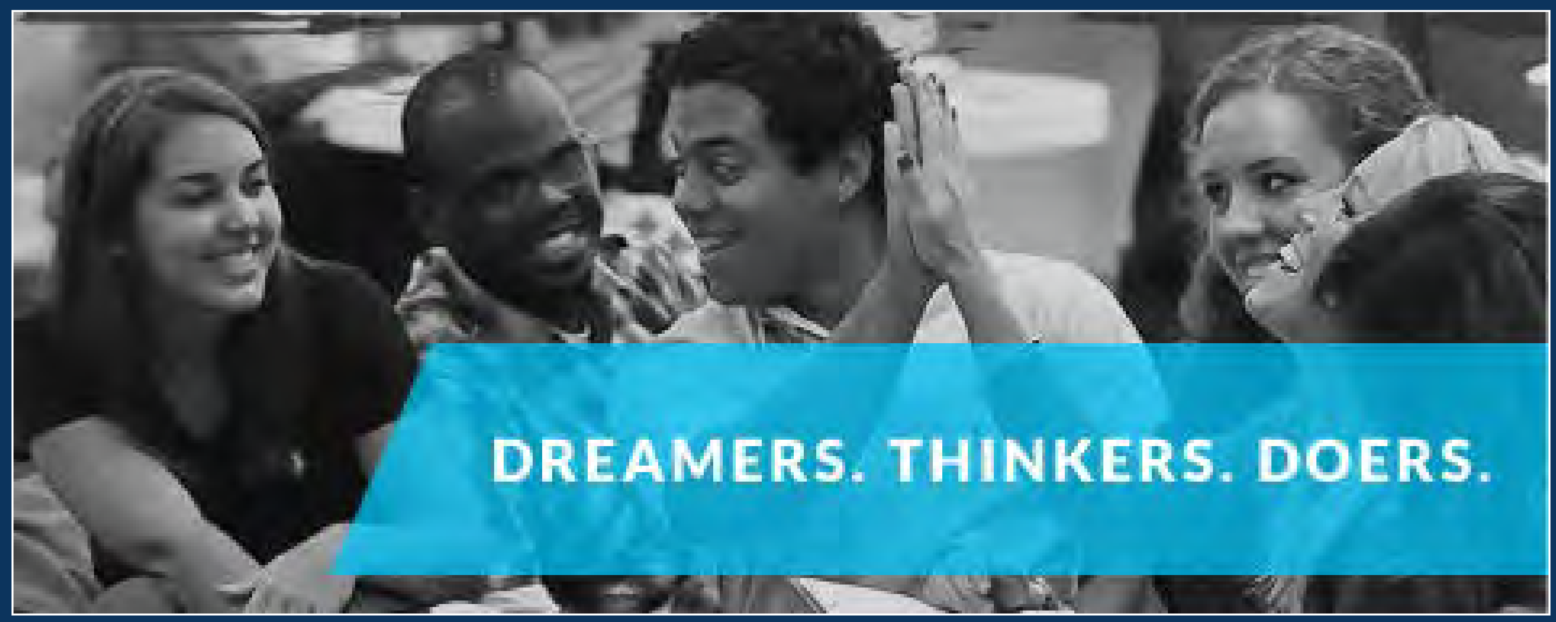
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 5/31/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

JUSTICE ROGER PAGE (JD '84) INVESTITURE

The Hon. Roger Page (JD '84) was recently sworn in by Governor Bill Haslam as the newest Tennessee Supreme Court Justice at an investiture ceremony in his hometown of Mifflin, Tenn. Page previously served as a judge on the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals since December 2011 and joins fellow Memphis Law alum the Hon. Holly Kirby (JD '82) on the Tennessee Supreme Court.

Page was the first Supreme Court nominee to have to be approved by the state legislature after the state changed the rules for how nominees were selected. The process added hours to an already laborious process, but Page had no trouble passing through the legislature, winning their unanimous approval, 132-0.

Several members of Justice Page's Memphis Law Class of 1984 attended the investiture to show their support. Among those class of 1984 guests were Judge Gina Higgins, Nan Barlow, Mary Thompson LeMense, and Judge J. Webster McCraw, all of whom are pictured below.

To read more about Justice Page's investiture ceremony, please click here for an article from the Jackson Sun.

To view a video of the ceremony, please click here.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

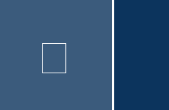
Alumni & Support

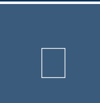
ABA Required Disclosures

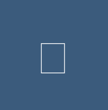
Full sitemap

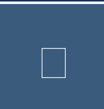
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

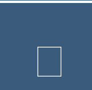
Follow UofM Online

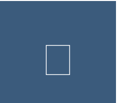










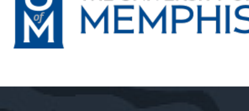


Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 5/2/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.



Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

2016 CLEA AWARD

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law recent graduate Jeffrey T. Slack (JD '16) was recently awarded the Clinical Legal Education Association (CLEA) Outstanding Student Award. Jeff was a student in both the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic during the Fall 2015 semester and the Elder Law Clinic in the Spring 2016 semester.

CLEA recognizes law students who have excelled in clinical fieldwork in law school by providing high quality representation to clients, and who have engaged in exceptionally thoughtful, self-reflective participation in an accompanying clinical seminar. The award is based on excellence in case work and the quality and extent of the student's contribution to the clinical community at his law school. Bill was lauded for, among other things, his ability to set the pace and the standard for his colleagues in his diligence, preparation, thoughtfulness, and motivation to be the best lawyer he can be.

Jeff's instructors noted that he treated all of his clients with the utmost respect and regard for their personal dignity and needs as vulnerable elders. He excelled in the seminar component of his clinical courses and made the most of the educational opportunities that were offered. Additionally, the faculty noted that Jeff distinguished himself throughout his clinical course by providing to his clients the kind of personal, caring service that exemplifies the "kinder, gentler" type of practice that elder lawyers are known for.

In their nomination letter for Mr. Slack, the Memphis Law clinical faculty noted several things about Jeff that make him the ideal candidate for this award. They states that as a student attorney enrolled in the Elder Law Clinic, Jeff treated all of his clients with the utmost respect and regard for their personal dignity and needs as vulnerable elders. He has been vigilant concerning ethical issues and understands that his role as an attorney is to advance the cause of social justice. He excelled in the seminar component of the course, producing exceptional reflection papers and taking all assignments seriously, making the most of the educational opportunities that were being offered. Jeff was always willing to go the extra mile, whether it be by coming in to the clinic office over the weekend to review a 200 page packet of discovery obtained from the opposing party in a case defending a client against collection of credit card debt, or whether it be by driving out to meet with a client in the community to file documents with the county Register of Deeds, rather than requiring the client to make the trip downtown. Jeff distinguished himself throughout by providing to his clients the kind of personal, caring service that exemplifies the "kinder, gentler" type of practice that elder lawyers are known for.

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 5/17/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

2016 KENNETH COX CEREMONY

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Black Law Students Association (BLSA) recently honored law students at The Kenneth Maurice Cox Donning of the Kente Ceremony which was held Friday, May 13th, 2016. This ceremony was initiated in 2007 and recognizes each graduating BLSA member for their contribution to the law school's academic, cultural, and professional environment. It is also named in honor of one of the law school's first African-American graduates, Kenneth Maurice Cox. This year's ceremony marked the 50th anniversary of Kenneth Cox's graduation from the then Memphis State University School of Law. The guest speaker for this event was Attorney Ricky Wilkins.

In the photo above is each of this year's honorees. The honorees are (first row/from left) Rodrequez Watson, Lani Lester, LaKevia Perry, Crystal Johnson-Cathey, Regina Thompson, Jakeva Dotson, Faith Sanford, Erica Perry, (second row/from left) Brandon Boykin, Charlesa Stoglin, Angellika Campbell, and Corbin Carpenter. Not pictured is honoree Brittany Neal.
Graduation was held Saturday, May 14th, 2016 at the Orpheum Theatre.

The National Black Law Students Association (BLSA) is the nation's largest student-run organization representing nearly 6,000 minority law students from over 200 chapters and affiliates throughout the United States. Since its foundation in 1966, BLSA has sought to promote the professional needs of African-American and minority law students by promoting professional competence and increasing awareness of the needs of the community.

The Benjamin L. Hooks Chapter of BLSA at the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is devoted to providing opportunities and benefits for students and the community. BLSA membership is available to all University of Memphis School of Law students and provides its members with professional networking opportunities, professional and academic mentorship, social engagement, and the opportunity to participate in community service and pro bono activities. In addition, the BLSA Thurgood Marshall Mock Trial Team and Frederick Douglass Moot Court Team continue to succeed and compete in the Southern Region BLSA competitions, as well as in national competitions.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 5/17/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

PALS HOSTS FIRST ONLINE PRO BONO CLINIC

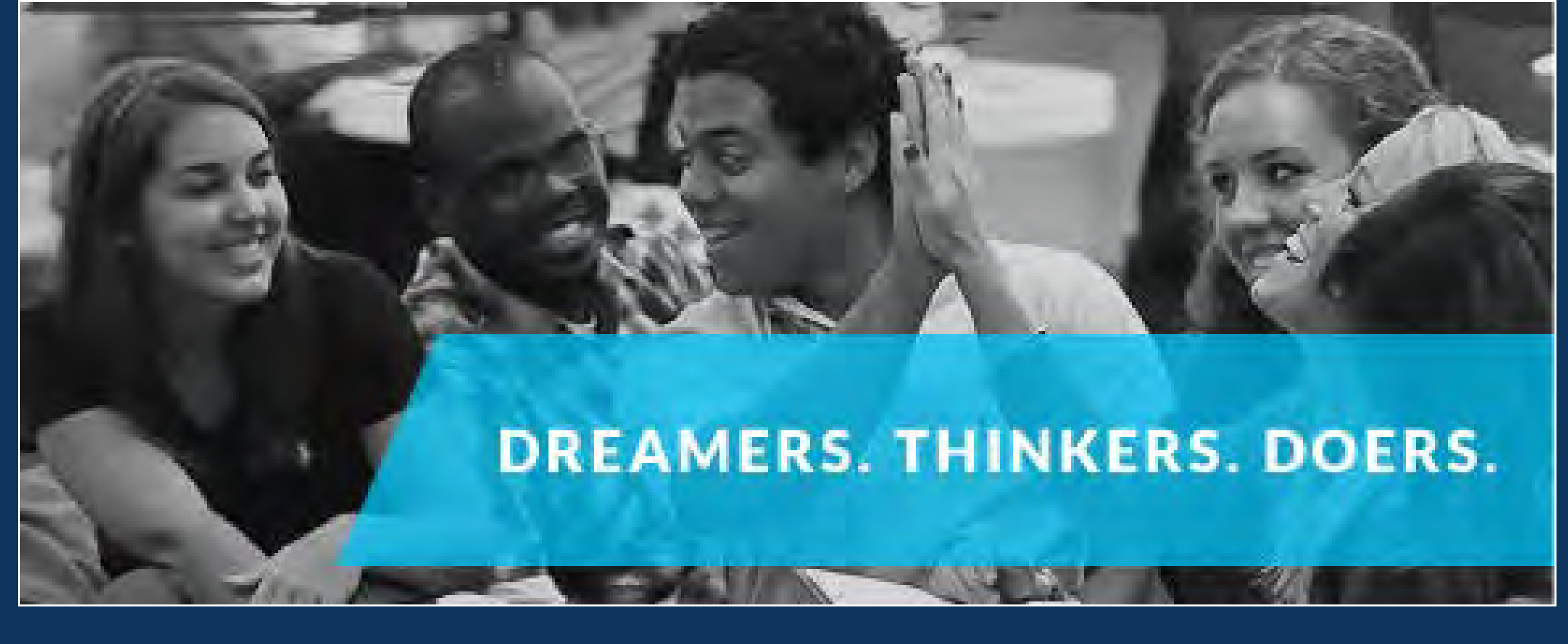
The Public Action Law Society (PALS) recently held its first online pro bono clinic. The volunteer attorneys paired off with law students and assisted clients through the Online Tennessee Justice website. In this forum, clients submit questions on a variety of topics including: landlord/tenant issues, small claims court concerns, questions regarding orders of protection, conflicts involving wills, and employment discrimination problems. Once approved, attorneys can login in and pick questions from the queue and respond with information on how the person in need can proceed in court, how to find relevant case law or codes, or where to go for more assistance.

In just one hour the law students and their supervising attorneys were able to assist eighteen clients! PALS hopes to make this a yearly event.

Interested licensed attorneys can sign up at http://www.onlinetnjustice.org/ to serve at any time. Not only is it a simple was to give back, but for every five hours of time spent on the site helping answer questions an attorney can receive one hour of CLE credit.

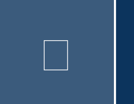
ABA Required Disclosures

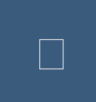
Full sitemap

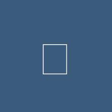


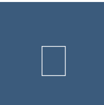
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

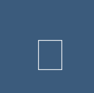
Follow UofM Online

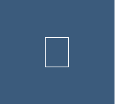












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 4/15/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

ML

Memphis Law Magazine | Fall 2015

A publication of the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

RISE OF THE DRONES

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

THE LETTER(S) OF THE LAW (SCHOOL) + WATER WARS

Fall 2015 | Issue 4

Dean
Peter V. Letsou

Executive Editor
Ryan Jones

Contributing Writers
Alena Allen
Steve Barlow
Ryan Jones
Toby Sells
Lance Weidower

Photography
Rhonda Cosentino
Ryan Jones
Lindsey Lissau
Jason Martin

Art Direction and Design
Archer Malmo

Published by
The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103
(901) 678-2421
www.memphis.edu/law

To submit story ideas, alumni updates, or for other ML related inquiries, please contact executive editor Ryan Jones at rjones1@memphis.edu.

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Latosha Dexter, Interim Director for Institutional Equity, vldexter@memphis.edu, 156 Administration Building, 901.678.2713. The University of Memphis policy on nondiscrimination can be found athttp://policies.memphis.edu/UM1381.htm. UOM252-FY1516/6M Hot Graphics

A Year of Bests and Firsts with More to Come!

Dear Friends,

The 2014-2015 academic year was a year of bests and firsts for Memphis Law.

PreLaw magazine recognized Memphis Law as having THE very best law school facilities in the nation. Better than Harvard. Better than Yale. And better than the 200 other ABA-approved Law Schools in the United States. This is something we in Memphis have long known. But it's still nice to see the news spreading across the country.

Memphis Law was also ranked among the very best law schools in the nation for bar preparation. This ranking was based on a comparison between predicted and actual bar passage rates for each ABA-approved law school. Only five law schools in the nation exceeded their predicted bar passage rates by wider margins.

Memphis Law reduced its out-of-state tuition by one of the largest percentages in the United States — 38% — taking tuition and mandatory fees for nonresidents from $38,706 to $25,907, while holding in-state tuition flat. With these steps, Memphis Law became the 10th least expensive law school in all 50 states for nonresidents and the least expensive for Tennessee residents.

With this combination of success and cost, it's no wonder that Memphis Law was named one of the 20 best values in legal education in the United States.

These bests were coupled with several firsts.

In 2014-2015, Memphis Law enrolled the most diverse class in the law school's history, with diverse students comprising more than 30% of the 1L class for the first time, up from 22% in 2013-2014 and 15% in 2012-2013.

Also in 2014-2015, Memphis Law partnered with the City of Memphis to launch a first-in-the-nation Neighborhood Preservation Clinic. This new clinic enables law students to play a leading role in the battle against blighted properties in Memphis, while continuing our tradition of leadership and innovation in experiential learning.

And 2014-2015 marked the first complete year of publication of ML—Memphis Law Magazine, a publication that is already winning awards and becoming a must-read in the Memphis legal community.

We're proud of these bests and firsts, but we're also excited by what lies ahead.

We spent much of the last year engaged, as a community, in strategic planning with a goal of identifying the special attributes of our law school and community that would enable us to enhance our ability to train lawyers, strengthen the reputation of our law school, and build on unique opportunities available to us here in Memphis.

The plan we've developed achieves these goals by, among other things, enhancing the roles of experiential learning and community service in our program of legal education.

We'll have more to say about our new plan later, but I'm pleased to say we're already moving forward with implementation.

In addition to the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic already mentioned, we've just begun a new Medical Legal Partnership at Methodist Le Bonheur Children's Hospital that puts our faculty and students in the hospital, working side-by-side with health care professionals, to remove legal obstacles that undermine the health of our community's children.

And we're just about to embark on a new juvenile justice clinic, in partnership with Shelby County, which will allow our law school to become a national leader in formulating new models for training lawyers to represent children.

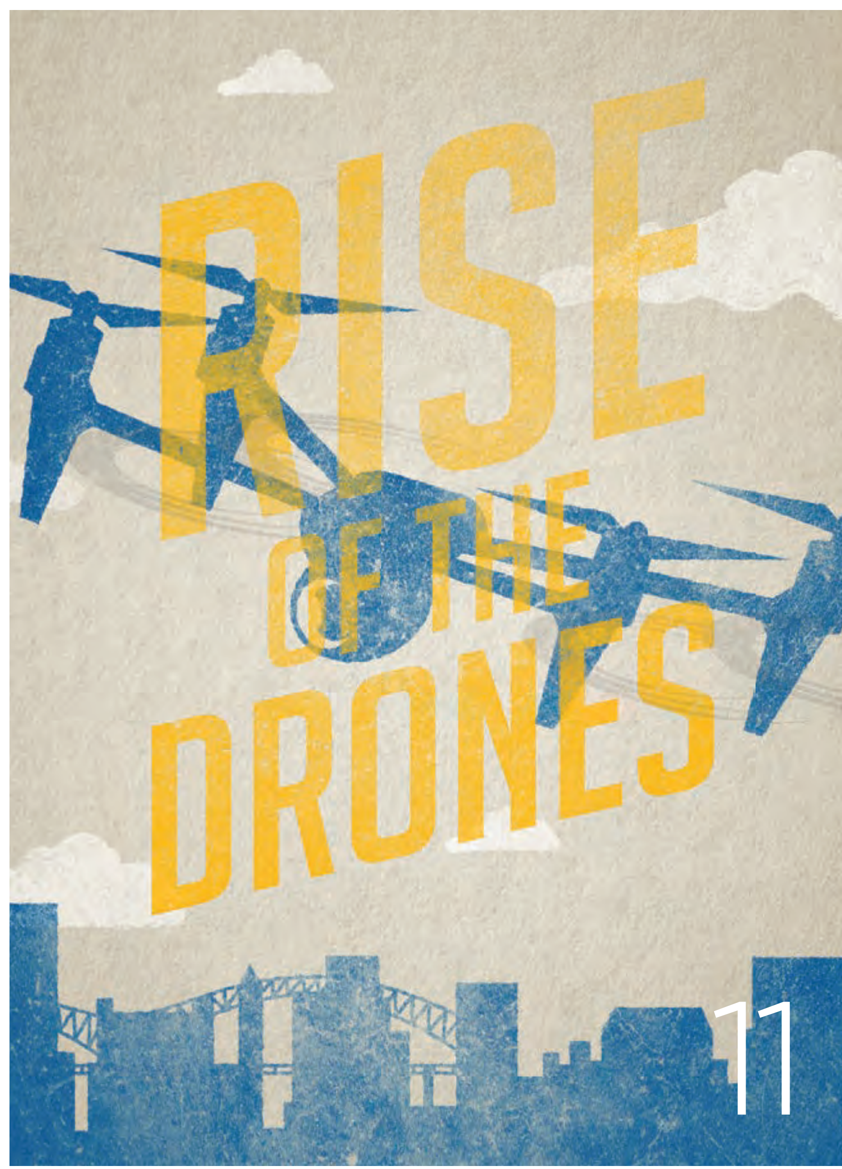
We're excited by these new initiatives and hope they'll make you, our alumni and friends, even more proud of Memphis' law school.

Cordially,

Peter V. Letsou

Dean

CONTENTS



FEATURES

11 RISE OF THE DRONES

BY TOBY SELLS
Laws and the legal system try to keep pace with the aggressive proliferation of drone technology. The commercial and recreational markets are outpacing legislation across the country. Lawmakers at both the federal and state levels are faced with a variety of challenges regulating what is fast becoming a booming industry with vast ramifications.

15 WATER WARS

BY LANCE WEIDOWER
With devastating droughts in the Western United States affecting water supplies and the agricultural industry, as well as groundwater and surface water battles waging in the eastern states, water rights are at the forefront of the American legal landscape. Will the nation soon have a new perspective on how our water is managed?

21 THE LETTER(S) OF THE LAW (SCHOOL)

BY RYAN JONES
Most of us grew up with the alphabet decorating the classrooms of our youth. In this feature, we've brought some of that theme to law school, with a touch of class, architectural history and sophistication that you can see for yourself as you take a linguistic journey through the halls of Memphis Law.

DIVISIONS

05 BRIEFS:
News + Events

07 A FOUNDATION OF HOPE

BY STEVE BARLOW
Steve Barlow is a national and local leader in the anti-blight effort, and has played a lead role in inspiring and launching the law school's Neighborhood Preservation Clinic. In this piece, we learn more about the clinic's impact in the City of Memphis so far and the reasons why it's such an innovative approach to the education of our students and the fight against blight.

09 STUDENT PROFILE:
Top 10 Lessons Learned in Law School
ML asked ten Memphis Law students to give us their top 10 lessons they've learned while in law school. These range from the off-beat and funny anecdotes many students experience, to the life-changing lessons that some of our students have taken to heart during their time here. These are the Top 10 responses we hope will resonate with readers.

19 TRUE BLUE INTER*VIEW

BY RYAN JONES
Former National Hockey League player Stu Grimson (J.D. '05) is one of the more nontraditional students to graduate from Memphis Law in quite some time. After 17 years as a professional hockey player, 14 of those in the NHL, Grimson moved from the ice to the courtroom. He hasn't looked back since.

23 SETTING THE BAR:
Memphis Law Alumni Class Notes

25 FACULTY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

27 DENSE WOMEN

BY ALENA ALLEN
Professor Alena Allen gives her take on breast cancer tests regarding density notification and the impact lawmakers are having on women's health and doctors' treatment plans. While density notification legislation informs women, this solution has negative consequences as well.

9

ALWD @ MEMPHIS LAW

The Association of Legal Writing Directors hosted the 2015 Biennial Conference of the Association of Legal Writing Directors, entitled "Heart and Soul: LRW at the Center of Legal Education," at the law school in June. Over 160 faculty members from different law schools across the country attended the three-day conference, with activities ranging from an opening reception in the law school's Gordon Ball Scenic Reading Room, to a celebratory gala at the National Civil Rights Museum, and concluding with a night out with the Memphis Redbirds at AutoZone Park. The event, hosted by Memphis Law and overseen by our director of legal writing, Professor Jodi Wilson, was a wonderfully successful learning experience and showcase of the law school and our downtown community.

MEMPHIS CHILD LAUNCHED

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS) and Le Bonheur Children's Hospital have collaborated to create and launch Memphis CHiLD (Children's Health Law Directive), a medical-legal partnership, the first medical-legal partnership of its kind in the region, including all of Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi.

In addition to a variety of training programs and educational, bidirectional partnerships, Memphis CHiLD will also consist of an on-site legal clinic located at Le Bonheur Children's Hospital, where Memphis Law students, working under the supervision of Memphis Law clinical professor Janet Goode and a MALS staff attorney, will have devoted space to work on cases and referrals, meet with patients/clients, and conduct training sessions. Medical professionals and Le Bonheur residents will have access to the clinic as well, and will have direct involvement in the Memphis CHiLD Legal Clinic training sessions and learning opportunities available through the program.

FULBRIGHT AWARD TO PROFESSOR DANIEL KIEL

Professor Daniel Kiel received a fellowship from the Core Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program, which will enable him to spend the fall 2015 semester at the University of the Free State (UFS) in Bloemfontein, South Africa, working on his project, "Comparative Analysis of Educational Remedies in Destratifying Societies."

STANTON NOMINATED FOR FEDERAL JUDGESHIP

University of Memphis School of Law alumni Edward Stanton III, the U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Tennessee, has been named by President Obama to become a U.S. District Judge for the Western District of Tennessee.

BLSA CANDLELIGHT VIGIL

Community members and Memphis Law students, in a candlelight vigil organized by the Memphis Law BLSA chapter, gathered in Tom Lee Park to honor and remember the victims of the Charleston, South Carolina, shooting. Led by BLSA President Regina Thompson and other BLSA members, the tribute drew a large crowd and the majority of the Memphis media sources covered the event.

CLASS OF 2015 GRADUATION CEREMONY

The Class of 2015 celebrated its Commencement at the Cannon Center in downtown Memphis on Saturday, May 9. Family and friends of the 102 Memphis Law graduates attended the ceremony. Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals Judge John Everett Williams was the Class of 2015 speaker. Professor Steve Mulroy received the Farris Bobango Faculty Scholarship Award at the ceremony. Professor Lynda Wray Black was named Professor of the Year by the Class of 2015.

CLASS OF 2015 COMMENCEMENT

ABA PRESIDENT VISITS MEMPHIS LAW

American Bar Association Immediate Past President William Hubbard, pictured above, visited Memphis Law in June for a reception, with brief remarks and a short Q&A session with faculty, staff and students. The event took place in the Gordon Ball Scenic Reading Room.

LYNDA WRAY BLACK APPOINTMENT

University of Memphis President M. David Rudd appointed Professor Lynda Wray Black as the NCAA Faculty Athletic Representative for the University of Memphis and as chair of the University's Faculty Athletic Committee. Professor Black represented the University at the American Athletic Conference Annual Meeting in Key Biscayne, Florida, in May 2015. The majority of Memphis media sources covered the event.

COX CEREMONY

The Memphis chapter of the Black Law Students Association (BLSA) honored graduating members at its annual Kenneth Maurice Cox Donning of the Kente Ceremony on May 8, 2015. Pictured left to right are De'Antwaine Moye, Jarrett Spence, Justin Rudd, Aurelia Patterson, Jana Mitchell, Ariel Anthony, LaTanyia Walker and Brittany Williams. Not pictured is Jerrick Murrell.

2015 PILLARS OF EXCELLENCE AWARDS

The University of Memphis School of Law Alumni Chapter honored the following individuals at the 2015 Pillars of Excellence Awards in August: The Hon. George H. Brown, Joe M. Duncan, The Hon. David S. Kennedy (J.D. '70), Arnold Perl, Julia S. Sayle (J.D. '70), The Hon. Donn A. Southern, Blanchard E. Tual, and Kathy and J.W. Gibson.

MULROY APPOINTED NEW ASSOCIATE DEAN

Professor Steve Mulroy accepted the position as the law school's new associate dean for academic affairs this summer, replacing Professor David Romantz, who dutifully served in the role for six years.

ELIZABETH RUDOLPH AND CAREER SERVICES

Elizabeth Rudolph has been hired on a full-time basis as the assistant dean for career services at Memphis Law. Ms. Rudolph served as the interim assistant dean for career services since spring 2015.

U.S. SENATOR CORKER VISITS MEMPHIS LAW

U.S. Senator Bob Corker spoke at the University of Memphis School of Law in September for a special "D.C. Update." Senator Corker spoke about current domestic and international events and issues, as they relate to his work in Washington as the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in the Senate, as well as his work on the banking committee and others.

MEMPHIS LAW AND BUTLER SNOW WELCOME BUSINESS COURT

The law school partnered with law firm Butler Snow for an information session and Q&A with the new Tennessee Business Court. Students, faculty, staff and the Memphis legal community were all invited to attend and get an informative introduction to the Tennessee Business Court – Davidson County Pilot Project. Guest speakers included Business Court Judge, The Hon. Ellen Hobbs Lyle, and Business Court Staff Attorney, Justin Seamon. The informational seminar was followed by a reception in the Gordon Ball Scenic Reading Room.

TENNESSEE DEAN'S TOUR

The Dean and other staff will be traveling across Tennessee in spring 2016. Be on the lookout for event details for receptions in Chattanooga, Jackson, Johnson City, Knoxville and Nashville. We hope you can connect with us and other alumni and potential students in your area.

GOODE

NEW VISITING PROFESSOR

The law school welcomed Janet Goode to the faculty this fall. Ms. Goode was hired as a visiting professor of law with the responsibility of overseeing our new medical legal partnership (Memphis CHiLD) and corresponding legal clinic (with Le Bonheur Children's Hospital and Memphis Area Legal Services).

A FOUNDATION OF HOPE

By Steve Barlow

Steve Barlow is a national and local leader in the anti-blight effort and has played a huge role in inspiring and launching the law school's Neighborhood Preservation Clinic. In addition to his continuing work with the City of Memphis and in private practice, Steve is codirecting the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic as an adjunct professor.

The great urbanist and architect Steve Mouzon once wrote, "The first prerequisite of community-building is hope because people without hope will not build." I would add to that sentiment: without hope, they will not stay. They will not invest. And they cannot thrive. Identifying and building upon community assets, while rooting out intractable challenges, is the only viable formula for community revitalization.

I have spent a large part of my academic and professional life, including my time as a student at the University of Memphis (Law School and Graduate School for Applied Urban Anthropology), attempting to understand and help repair these tears in the fabric of urban communities. Many complex factors lead to the abandonment of real estate, which in turn leads to neglect and decay; but whatever the cause, entire neighborhoods suffer when blighted properties are allowed to exist unabated. Properties lose value–people lose hope–and those who can, leave.

Public records reveal that there are at least 10,000 abandoned single-family houses and 3,000 abandoned multifamily units in the City of Memphis. Anecdotally, it is clear that Memphis contains hundreds, if not thousands, of abandoned commercial and industrial structures, not to mention the tens of thousands of abandoned vacant lots–enough to fill one third of the City of Washington, D.C.! Every single piece of abandoned property represents an unfortunate rip in the fabric that holds our urban neighborhoods together. When any garment becomes too riddled with holes and tears, it can never fully be stitched back together. But it gets worse. Abandoned properties are "attractive nuisances"—inviting criminal behavior, vandalism, arson and other activity that depresses surrounding property values. And the cancer of abandonment spreads, triggering a spiral of further abandonment and neighborhood decay.

Fortunately, Memphis, while faced with a titanic challenge of abandonment, has abundant reasons for hope in the ongoing efforts to reclaim, redevelop and repopulate our core city neighborhoods. I believe the next front in the battle to reclaim our neighborhoods is giving tomorrow's lawyers the training they need today. That's why the School of Law, in partnership with the City of Memphis Law Division, launched the Neighborhood Preservation Clinic in January 2015. Memphis Law students get hands-on litigation experience in nuisance property cases, from investigating property ownership and property conditions, to working with code-enforcement officers, preparing civil lawsuits, and leading the prosecution of negligent property owners in front of Judge Larry Potter (J.D. '77) in the Shelby County Environmental Court.

Already, Memphis Law students have litigated over 200 cases in Environmental Court. As these students advance in their legal careers, their experience representing the City of Memphis in the battle against blighted properties will help to shape their perspectives and encourage them to take the work of helping neighborhoods personally.

The Neighborhood Preservation Clinic is the only one of its kind in the country. The scale of the problem in Memphis is immense, but every successful legal challenge unlocks enthusiasm and new opportunities. There are powerful legal tools at our disposal, and I am inspired by the potential of this clinic to bring about lasting positive change in Memphis.

Blighted properties are tearing Memphis apart. Left alone, the tears will continue to spread and rip through entire blocks and neighborhoods. Recognized and addressed swiftly, however, as a part of a comprehensive and community-involved strategy, communities can be made whole, healthy and livable again.

FORMER EXECUTIVE INN ON AIRWAYS BLVD.

By using the law to hold a nuisance property owner accountable, not only is a blighted property removed from a neighborhood, but a solid dose of hope is delivered as well. And that hope is the most essential community building tool of all.

INAUGURAL NEIGHBORHOOD PRESERVATION CLINIC STUDENTS WITH INSTRUCTORS AND MAYOR AC WHARTON

TOP 10 LESSONS LEARNED IN LAW SCHOOL

PHOTOS BY RHONDA COSENTINO & LINDSEY LISSAU

Time spent in law school can be summarized a number of ways. It can be fruitful, memorable, miserable, interesting, fun, depressing or a plethora of other adjectives. No matter what your law school experience is like though, it's nearly impossible to come away from it without learning a lesson or two of some kind. Whether it's in the classroom or in the community, students learn a great deal about themselves and the law during their time at 1 North Front Street. ML asked ten students to tell us about some of the most memorable and important lessons they've learned since walking through these doors and we've compiled a list of their Top 10 responses for you to enjoy (and learn from)!

10.

MOLLY GLASER

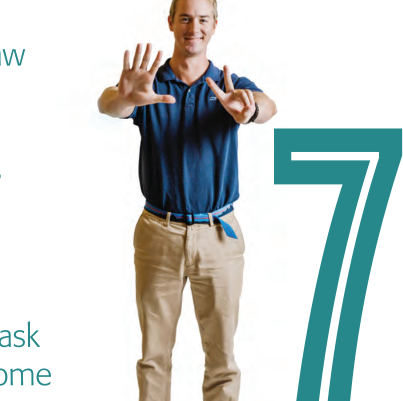
Seat choice at the beginning of the semester is critical. A seat too close or even all the way in the back might mean you are the easiest target for cold calls. Also, beware the aisle seats in McClurg's class!

9.

JOHN FLOYD

Pick a conclusion and stick by it. Judges really appreciate a confident position and conclusion, backed up with research, over a hedged bet. They know there are two (or more) plausible outcomes—otherwise they wouldn't be listening to you.

8.



SYDNEY VAN WINKLE

The professors and administration know all of the gossip. The law school is everyone's pride and joy, and all of the goings-on are some of the professors' and staffs' favorite personal pastimes. They know everything, from who was late and why, to who was dating whom. There are no secrets in law school.

7.

PATRICK QUINN

Get to know the older students and ask them for advice on class. They are some of the best resources.

6.

TUCKER MARSHBURN

I have learned through many meals and hours of research that Central BBQ does, in fact, have the best BBQ in Memphis.

5.

JAKE STRAWN

Participate in Alternative Spring Break. I'll always remember doing it my 1L year because it was the first chance I had to actually take what I had learned here in school and make it real. It's easy to get bogged down in work and forget why you chose to come to law school in the first place. ASB reminds you what it means to sit down with real people and help them through tough legal choices.

4.

DAWN CAMPBELL

Don't complain about your life prior to law school. Before law school, I might catch myself complaining about things like long days at work or being stuck in traffic while getting my kids to school. But, law school has a way of putting everything into perspective. Now, that hour sitting in traffic is often the only time I have together with my kids. I've learned to treasure every minute with them, even if it is spent sitting in traffic.

3.

CAITLIN O'CONNOR

Explore the city! I have learned how awesome Memphis actually is and how it truly has so much to offer. Take me to Earnestine and Hazel's and I'll love you forever.

2.

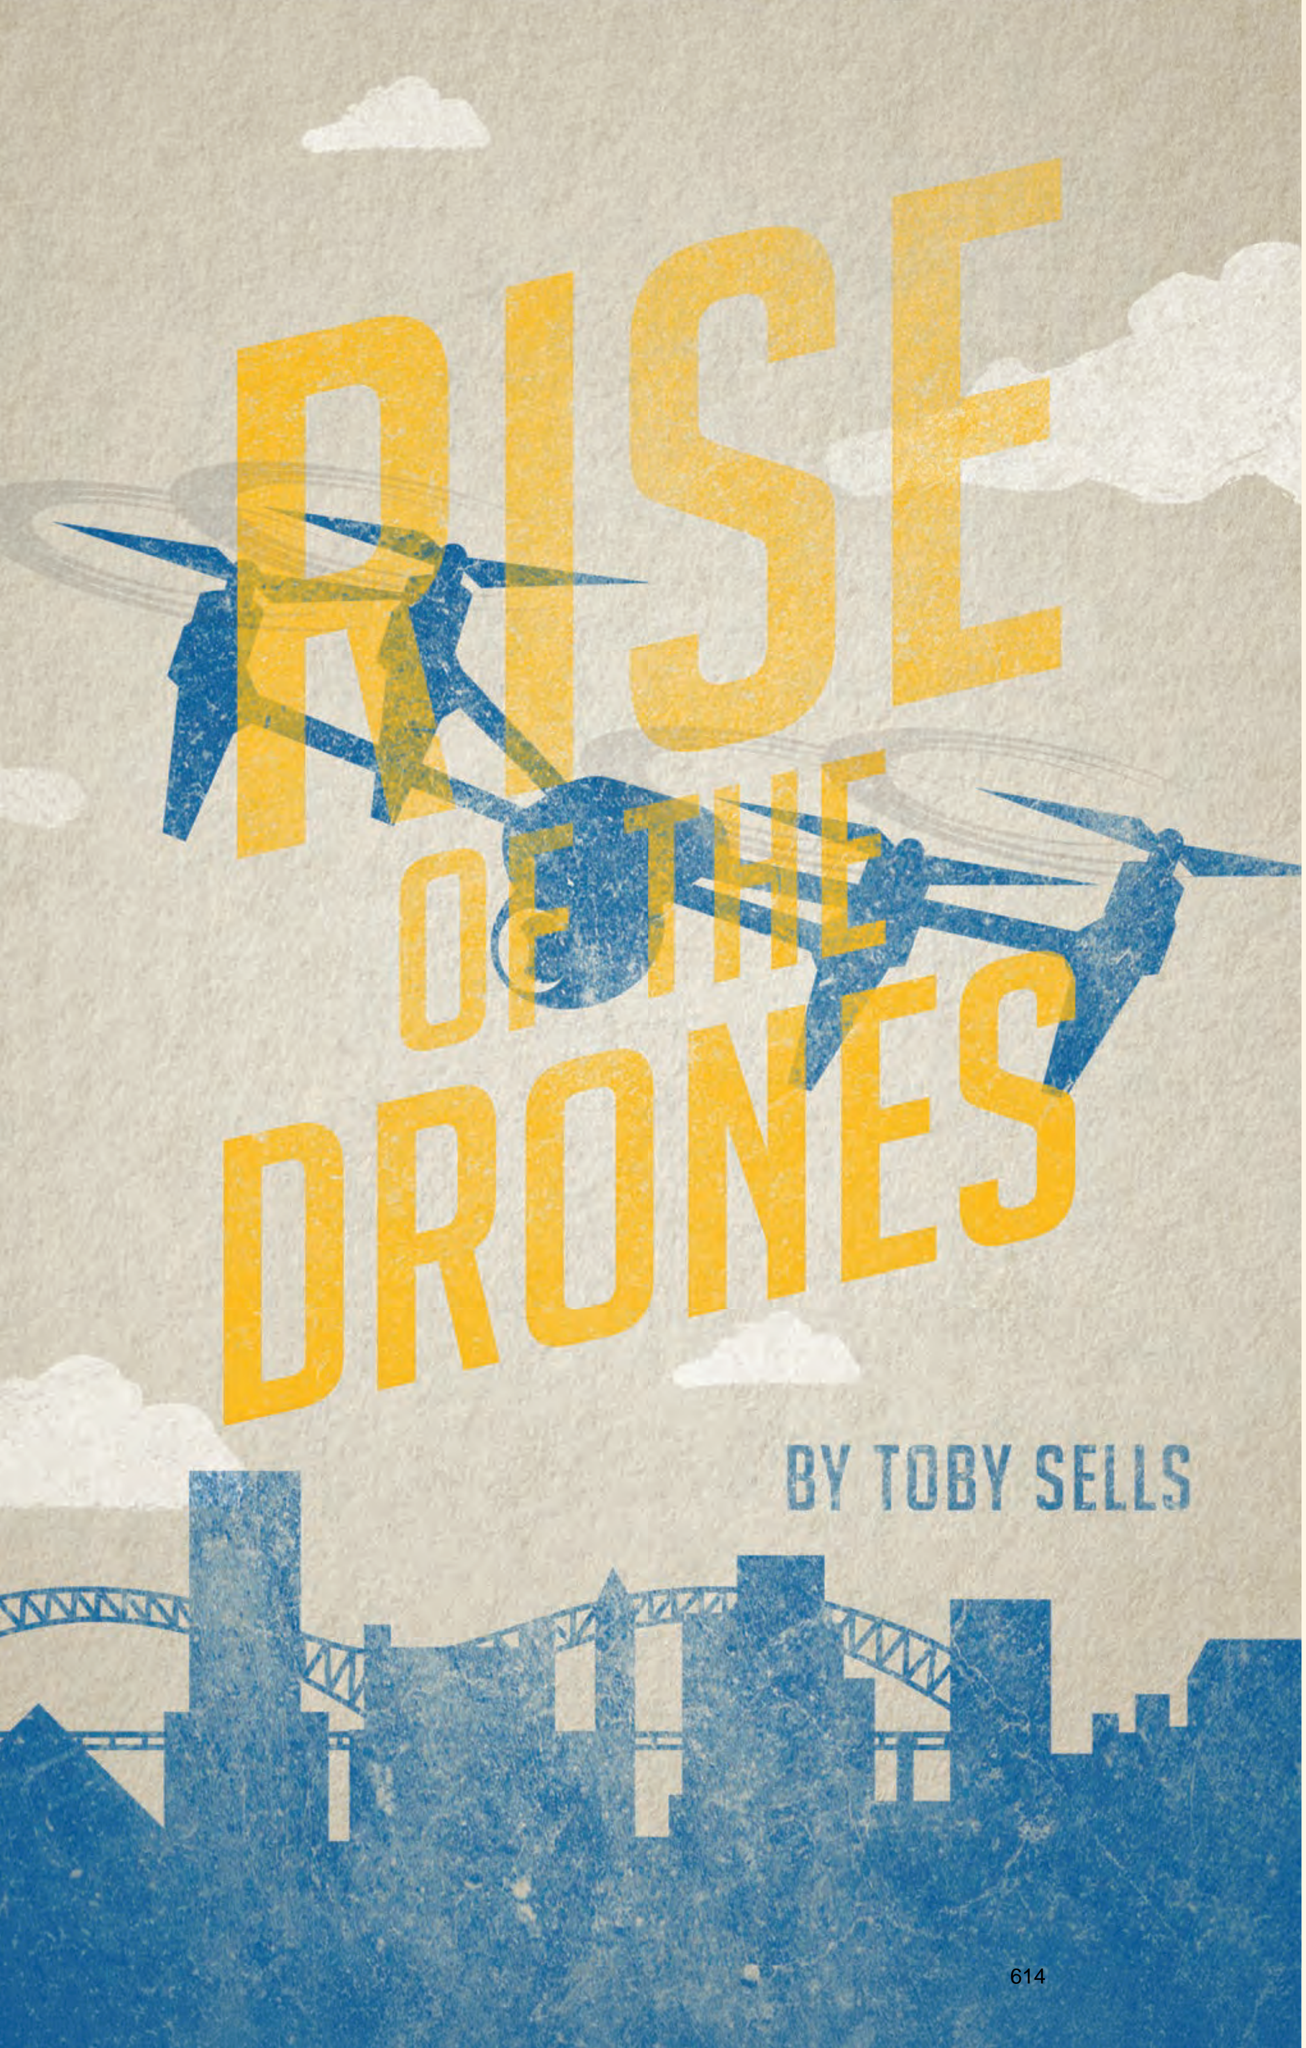
REGINA THOMPSON

I learned that my dream is a reality. I always said that I wanted to be an attorney and help others. I would dream of becoming a big-time attorney who went back to my community and changed things. I have remained on track to do what I said that I would. Despite some of the obstacles I've faced in life, I am closer to achieving my dream. I still have the passion in my heart for helping my community that I've had for years. Being in law school has made me more confident in my ability to shed light on the issues in Memphis and change them.

1.

BARRETT FREDERICK

Don't worry about other people's work. When you finish your exams, each and every one, get out of the building and do not look back. You have better things to do than hear what other people wrote on their exams.



Pilots log hours of time in the air and the classroom (and spend thousands of dollars) to get legally airborne. But if you want to pilot the friendly skies these days, all you really need is a credit card and an Amazon account.

American airspace is abuzz with hives of drones, unmanned aircraft piloted from the ground. They range from cheap, plastic toys for kids in the backyard to sophisticated, multi-million-dollar aircraft that deliver Hellfire missiles for the U.S. government.

Drone technology has developed aggressively over the last 20 years. This pushed their abilities further and drove their prices down, into the hands of the everyday consumer. All of this has quickly outpaced laws to govern drone use, both commercial and recreational.

The drone debate was sparked years ago, especially about their military uses. But a different debate continues in courthouses and state legislatures across the country. Civilian users of this cutting-edge technology are pushing it to the limits of their imaginations (and constantly into uncharted legal territory). Drone pilots are constantly proving drone technology as an agent of good and bad, showing it all on thousands of new YouTube videos uploaded every day.

A recent Friday in July yielded two news stories that perfectly illustrate both sides of the drone coin.

THE GOOD

On Friday, July 17, a drone hummed through the morning air in southwest Virginia. It was delivering much-needed medical supplies to a rural fairgrounds in Wise County, the heart of Appalachia. The 24 packages it delivered that day were the very first drone deliveries approved by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). Driving those packages would normally take an hour and half through the mountainous terrain. A one-way drone flight took only a few minutes that Friday morning.

The flight would be remembered as a "Kitty Hawk" moment for drone use, according to the Los Angeles Times, and was a proving grounds for the use of drones in response to humanitarian crises.

Yes, the drone future looked bright.

THE BAD

Later that same Friday afternoon, a giant wildfire (called the North Fire) blazed through southern California, north of San Bernadino. It consumed multiple homes as it spread quickly through Cajon Pass and consumed cars as it jumped across Interstate 15.

Firefighting air units were sent in to drop their payloads and extinguish the roaring flames. But all of them were forced to jettison their loads elsewhere and land back at the airport.

Five drones were spotted in the skies above the fire on the interstate, apparently shooting video of the flames. They made that airspace unsafe for the rescue units, which were not allowed on the scene until the drones were grounded. The drones "definitely contributed" to the delayed response and broader fire damage, officials told Los Angeles television station KNBC. At 10:30 p.m. that same night, the North Fire had grown to 3,500 acres and was only five percent contained.

Yes, the drone future looked grim.

"It's an exciting time if you're in the drone industry, if you're looking to expand your business with the use of drones," said Robert Van de Vuurst (J.D. '86), an aviation attorney with Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC.

"It's also a very concerning time because the technology is fast outpacing the safety efforts and how society in general is going to look at these things in terms of safety and privacy."

The next five to ten years are going to be interesting ones for drones, he said, because, really, the national conversation about them is just beginning.

DEFINING A DRONE

At its heart, a drone is an aircraft without a pilot. This gives rise to the machines' other names like unmanned aerial vehicle, or unpiloted aerial vehicle, remotely piloted aircraft, or unmanned aircraft systems (UAS), which is their formal designation from the FAA. This variety of names shows the technology hasn't yet settled into our language or everyday culture. For instance, does anyone recall the Bankograph, the Bancomat, or the Docuteller? Likely not since these days most everyone just calls it an automated teller machine, or ATM.

Drones come in all shapes, sizes, prices and uses.

Large military drones look like small airplanes or helicopters. These can cost millions of dollars to buy, thousands of dollars to operate per hour, and can be used for everything from reconnaissance to delivering those Hellfire missiles—all while the pilot sits half a world away. The Center for the Study of the Drone at Bard College reports that the Pentagon plans $2.9 billion in spending this year for buying "unmanned systems," including 29 of the drab-gray MQ-9 Reaper drones, which should be familiar to anyone who has seen a military drone story on the nightly news.

But click around the Drone Store on Amazon.com and you'll find dozens of models available to anyone with a bank account or credit card. Most of them look like large science fiction insects. These are typically called "quadcopters" and usually have four horizontal rotors perched on arms above a central body and a set of legs. These drones have enough power to hoist at least a digital camera (and more). These are aimed at the serious hobbyist and range in price from $380 to $3,300 on the Drone Store. Smaller, weaker quadcopters can be purchased for as little as $15.

As for uses, the sky really is the limit. Drones have been used as crop dusters and storm chasers, to monitor wildlife, jungles, and glaciers, to inspect danger zones like the Fukushima nuclear disaster, and for capturing aerial shots for big-budget movies. Experiments by drone hobbyists have ranged from the silly to the scary, outfitting drones with everything from Roman candles to handguns. There's even a Memphis-based company called Flyral which bills itself as a marketing company specializing in using advanced technology (specifically drones with high quality cameras) and a creative skill set to sell property, promote businesses, capture moments and more.

So it's safe to say that photography seems to be the largest commercial and personal use of drones going forward.

THE NOT-SO-FRIENDLY SKIES

Unmanned aircraft have been used in warfare since World War I. But drone use as we know it today began in earnest in the early 2000s.

For a time, they were strictly the purview of the U.S. military. The technology got smaller and cheaper and soon they hit the marketplace for companies and the general population. Since then, skies across America have been a sort of Wild West for drones.

People have flown them—without a license or permission—over huge concerts like Beale Street Music Festival, smaller concert venues like the Levitt Shell, NFL games, MLB games, Memphis Redbirds games, street festivals, parks, riots, weddings, beaches, real estate, car chases, wildfires, fireworks shows (more on that later), and almost anything else you can dream of.

And just like in the Wild West, some arrests have been made. In the middle of Manhattan, a man was arrested after his drone struck a skyscraper. Two men were arrested in New York after their drone flew too close to a medical helicopter. An Ohio man was arrested because his drone blocked a medical helicopter arriving at a car crash. Two drones have flown over the White House fence. One case was accidental and the pilot was not charged. The other was intentional and that pilot was arrested and awaits a hearing.

As Van de Vuurst explained,

"States and cities govern what happens on the ground, but the feds rule the skies."

For years, FAA rules were foggy on what pilots could and could not do with a drone. But in 2012, Congress passed the FAA Modernization and Reform Act, which required a plan to integrate civil drone use into the National Airspace System (NAS) by September 30, 2015. In mid-February 2015, the FAA lifted the fog on drones with a brand new set of rules.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

The new rules specifically targeted "small" drones, those under 55 pounds. The rules only cover nonrecreational drone flights, which was good news for hobbyists. But it was bad news for some businesses with active experimental drone programs, like Amazon's Prime Air delivery service.

The FAA rules said commercial drone operators must always be able to see their drones and see them with only the naked eye, glasses, or contact lenses (no binoculars). Drones can only be flown during daylight hours at less than 100 miles per hour and at a maximum altitude of 500 feet above the ground.

Commercial drone operators must be at least 17 years old. They have to pass an aeronautical knowledge test and obtain an FAA drone operator certificate (but not get a private pilot's license or a medical rating). To keep the drone license, drone pilots would have to pass the FAA knowledge test every two years.

Drone pilots must keep their aircraft away from manned aircraft and abandon any flight that poses risks to people, property, or other aircraft. Commercial drones cannot be flown over people, according to the new rules, other than those directly involved with their flight.

Drone operators must keep their aircraft out of airport flight paths, and restricted airspace areas, and obey any FAA Temporary Flight Restrictions. The new rules maintain existing rules against "operating in a careless or reckless manner" and dropping objects from drones.

As of this writing, the new rules are proposals, a framework of regulations. When the government rolled out the rules back in February, Obama Administration officials stressed the need to keep those rules loose. For example, U.S. Department of Transportation Secretary Anthony Foxx said the rules must "accommodate innovation." FAA Administrator Michael Huerta spelled it out a little more clearly:

"We have tried to be flexible in writing these rules," Huerta said. "We want to maintain today's outstanding level of aviation safety without placing an undue regulatory burden on an emerging industry."

With that, few were surprised with what the FAA did next. It turned to the private sector for help.

"Like Uber and other ride-sharing services, drones are here to stay," McClurg said. "They are not going away, so we're going to have to learn to live with them."

BALANCING BUSINESS POTENTIAL AND PITFALLS

The same day the FAA unveiled its rules for commercial drones, the White House issued a presidential memo with a long, yet precise title: "Promoting Economic Competitiveness While Safeguarding Privacy, Civil Rights, and Civil Liberties in Domestic Use of Unmanned Aircraft Systems."

The title is a mouthful, but one that uncovers the tangled-up balancing act that comes with regulating drones for safety and privacy but not dousing their money-making potential. The Association for Unmanned Vehicle Systems International (AUVSI), a drone trade group, said drones are set to have an $82.1 billion economic impact in America between 2015 and 2025, creating more than 100,000 jobs.

Retail giant Amazon told the FAA in 2014 it was working on Amazon Prime Air, a "future delivery system from Amazon designed to safely get packages into customers' hands in 30 minutes or less using (drones)." At the time the company said "It looks like science fiction, but it's real. One day, seeing Prime Air vehicles will be as normal as seeing mail trucks on the road." The new FAA rules grounded parts of the Seattle-based research program and Amazon has warned it may move its drone research overseas, as a result.

At the time, Amazon's initial announcement drew laughs from industry leaders and from more than one late-night talk show host. Last year, FedEx® CEO Fred Smith told The Associated Press that the idea of delivering parcels by drone was "almost amusing" and questioned drones' abilities to make local deliveries efficiently.

But other companies are hard at work on drone research projects. Deutsche Post DHL has tested its "parcelcopters" since 2013. Google is at work on another drone project after scrapping its Project Wing design earlier this year. Back in 2014, Lakemaid Beer delivered some of its beers to Minnesota ice fisherman until the FAA shut the project down.

Still, as the presidential memo shows, drone use is as packed with potential as it is with possible pitfalls. But integrating new technology and new rules is not a brand new endeavor, according to Andrew Jay McClurg, a professor at the UofM law school and an expert in privacy law.

"Like Uber and other ride-sharing services, drones are here to stay," McClurg said. "They are not going away, so we're going to have to learn to live with them. In regulating drones, the key is striking the proper balance between protecting safety and privacy without impinging their beneficial uses."

Cont'd on pg 28

WATER

"Whiskey is for drinking; water is for fighting over." - Mark Twain

Drought has been a part of life in the western United States for decades. But, what if the water dried up and went away like a spigot was permanently shut off? With the current drought conditions and fights over water rights in California, it's not exactly a reality yet, but it's closer to a possibility than ever before.

Closer to home in Memphis, the water flows freely, pouring out of taps as what is considered some of the best drinking water in the world. Even during dry periods, the water in the Memphis Sands aquifer flows with no end in sight.

Could the U.S. Supreme Court render a decision that might alter that water flow, bringing California's water woes to the Bluff City? Mississippi has been waging a legal battle against Memphis for 10 years, saying the city is pumping water that belongs to it instead. The U.S. Supreme Court, in a June 29 order, said the state of Mississippi can proceed with its complaint against Memphis alleging that groundwater pumping by Memphis Light, Gas and Water Division from the Memphis Sands aquifer has caused water to flow from that state into Tennessee. Mississippi is seeking more than $615 million in damages rather than an equitable apportionment of aquifer water. This case has the potential to not only change the way we get our water in the Mid-South, but also the very definition of how the law views types of water.

WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE

To better understand this Mid-South battle, it's important to examine the water wars in other regions.

To the southeast of Memphis in Georgia, a battle has raged for years over the water that is pumped out of Lake Lanier to supply the growing metropolis of Atlanta. That water use is causing the levels of streams and rivers in Alabama and Florida to drop. And more than just lower water levels, evidence is mounting that the declining water levels are having an adverse effect on the oyster beds along the Gulf Coast.

Back out West in Colorado, homeowners who want to reuse rainwater that falls onto their homes and runs down into water collection barrels are actually breaking the law. It all circles back to the needs of users downstream in Nevada, Arizona and California, where water rights go back to the 1800s, belonging to property owners who have held land for generations.

Across the United States there are individual water wars raging. Some involve states battling one another, while others pit state governments against their own residents. And the issue is only growing, particularly in regions where growth outpaces the amount of water available in surface sources. But with laws in place, what can be done?

By Lance
Weidower

Drought in California and drastic water restrictions announced earlier this year there have made international headlines, with California facing one of the most severe droughts on record. In January, Gov. Edmund Gerald (Jerry) Brown Jr. declared a drought State of Emergency, directing state officials to take all actions to prepare for water shortages.

Water consumers have been told to reduce use by 25 percent. But it's really nothing new.

"California has been experiencing serious drought conditions for a number of years," said Randall B. Womack (J.D. '80), a member in the Memphis office of Glankler Brown PLLC who focuses his practice on environmental law. "This has put a great deal more stress on surface water sources, which in turn has caused even greater conflict among stakeholders. The drought conditions have also resulted in increased use of groundwater aquifers.

"The shortage of water has become so severe that earlier this year Gov. Jerry Brown issued mandatory restrictions on residents and businesses. The governor was criticized for exempting the agriculture industry from the cutbacks on water use. However, more recently, the state has taken action to reduce the volume of water taken for farming. In addition, a statute went into effect early this year that will result in greater management of groundwater sources at the state level."

Why not just be proactive in cutting water use well before things get dire?

"That's the trend," said Robert Steele, a shareholder in the Nashville office of Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz PC, who has extensive experience in water rights issues. "People get all excited when the droughts hit and then it starts raining again and everybody forgets about it. But it would be appropriate for local governments who don't have abundant supplies to think about that within the extent of their powers and politics to urge conservation to require these land use measures that would preserve water supplies. It's difficult anywhere with the expectation of people. The urgency goes up during drought time."

While the current headlines in California are more pronounced, the story is not new, and with the state producing an abundance of agriculture used around the world, the reach is far. In early 2014, when President Barack Obama visited California's San Joaquin Valley, he stated the obvious about the importance of the Golden State's water issues, connecting the drought to climate change and the national interest. "California is our biggest economy," he said. "California is our biggest agricultural producer. Whatever happens here, happens to everybody."

The situation in California is complicated, although the problem can be simplified by examining where the water is consumed vs. where it comes from. A lengthy article in the February 2014 edition of The Atlantic titled "American Aqueduct: The Great California Water Saga" explores the water wars being waged there, with much of the frontlines occurring in the central valleys where water that falls in the northern reaches of the state and Sierra Nevada Mountains is funneled to the south through a detailed canal system. This massive State Water Project, completed in the 1960s, would send water to the dry areas where it was needed most. The story cites a state Department of Water Resources Annual Report that was released in 1968 just as the project neared completion. "California is in the midst of constructing an unprecedented water project for one essential reason–the state had no alternative. Nature has not provided the right amount of water in the right places at the right times. Eighty percent of the people in California live in metropolitan areas from Sacramento to the Mexican border; however, 70 percent of the state's water supply originates north of the latitude of San Francisco Bay."

Western states have enormous competing interests for water: agriculture, drinking water and endangered species, all mixed in with a long history of court battles over water rights.

"Fundamentally, out West they move the water where people are instead of living where the water is," said Stephanie Showalter Otts, director of the National Sea Grant Law Center. "There [have] always been drought conditions but when it wasn't as severe or as much development they had enough to carry through. Now they've hit their limit. But the way they move water is inefficient. There is a lot of evaporation. For instance, in Lake Mead, there is a lot of water seepage through the bottom."

With population explosions in Southern California, Las Vegas and Arizona, the problem isn't going away, and it's only heightened during periods of drought, particularly during the current one of historic proportions.

EAST VS. WEST

Ah, water allocation. It's a foreign idea in the lush, green environments east of the Mississippi River where drought and dry conditions aren't common. And while there are water wars raging east and west of the Great River Divide, the rules on either side of the Mississippi are quite different.

With Western water law, there is something called prior appropriation doctrine. "You get there first, you claim it and you use it," Steele explained. "It's a property interest that is not necessarily based on society with all kinds of complications on how you use those rights. … Who cuts back? Why do I have to cut back everything when this guy who got his rights in 1890 doesn't have to cut back?"

"You get there first, you claim it and you use it," Steele explained. "It's a property interest..."

Imagine an abundance of water in a time of no drought. You're a rancher in Colorado with rights to all the water you need. Thanks to your great-grandparents owning the land and the water rights that come with it, you are entitled to the water, too. There is a simple philosophy governing it all, and it can be summed up as use it or lose it. Why would you turn off the water so that everyone else downstream can access it instead? The Colorado River helps supply some 40 million people across Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. Now, water rights have been issued for more water than the river can provide.

"The West has always had a scarcity," Steele said. "First in land, first in right. You get there, you build your dam and have your gun and everyone else can wait."

So the first people to arrive in the American West were the first to gain rights to the water. And as the population has exploded, those property owners with long-held rights control the natural resources.

Eastern water laws are focused more on accommodating everyone.

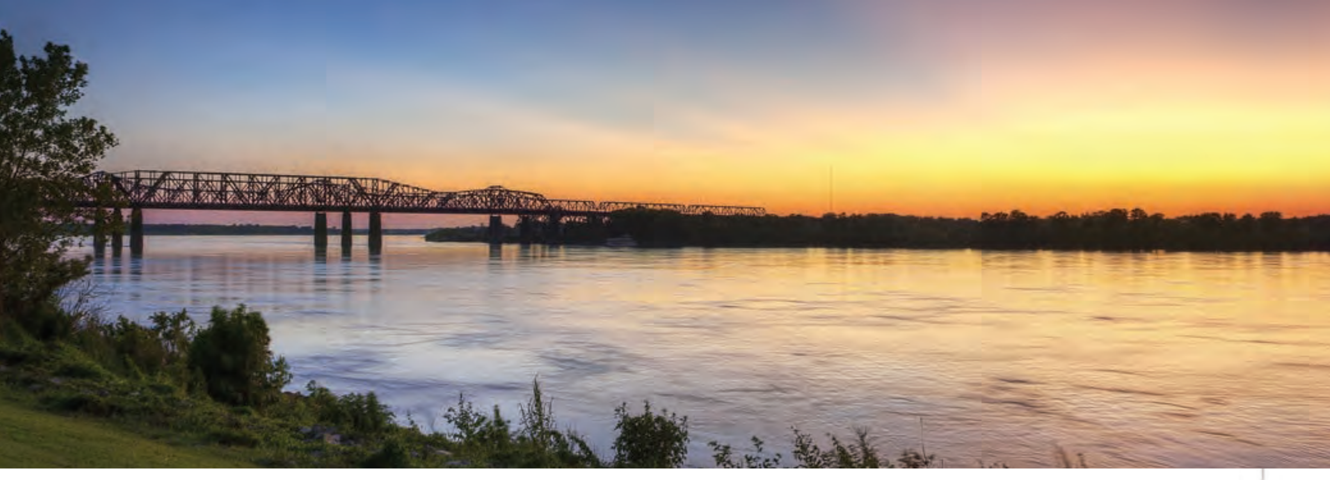
For the most part, water rights in areas east of the Mississippi River are based on the common law doctrine of "riparian rights" originally adopted by English courts. Under the riparian rights doctrine, use of surface water is limited to land owners whose property abuts a river, stream or lake. The property owner is entitled to the "natural flow" of the water across or by his or her land and is further entitled to the "reasonable use" of that water for domestic, agricultural, and manufacturing purposes.

However, a riparian landowner may not use surface water in a way that harms other riparian owners. For example, the landowner may not divert a stream from its normal course or diminish the amount of water that would usually flow in the stream.

A property owner whose family has been on the land for 150 years has just as much right to the water as the homeowner who just moved in six months ago. Everyone who lives near a river or lake has the same right to the water as the next person.

THEM'S FIGHTIN' WORDS

That brings everything to Memphis, where the drinking water is considered some of the best in the United States. The large Memphis Sands aquifer stretches under Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, supplying quality groundwater to people of the Mid-South for everything from drinking water to agricultural uses, beer making, manufacturing and anything else where fresh water could be used.



The city of Memphis has been withdrawing water from the aquifer for municipal use since 1886. Mississippi believes Memphis is taking its unfair share. The state began a legal fight against Memphis and its water utility 10 years ago.

In Mississippi v. Tennessee, the state of Mississippi alleged that Memphis wrongfully pumped groundwater from the aquifer that is the state's sovereign property. All of MLGW's wells are within Tennessee, but three of them are near the state line and Mississippi alleged the water pumping has created an underground cone of depression under Memphis that extends into Mississippi. That cone of depression has caused groundwater to flow from Mississippi into Tennessee where it is pumped for use in Memphis. Mississippi claimed that the water levels in the part of the aquifer below the state are being reduced at a higher rate than can be replenished.

In 2005, Mississippi, through its attorney general, brought an action for trespass and wrongful conversion against MLGW in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Mississippi. The state of Tennessee was excluded.

The large Memphis Sands aquifer stretches under Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, supplying quality groundwater to people of the Mid-South for everything from drinking water to agricultural uses, beer making, manufacturing and anything else where fresh water could be used.

In its complaint, Mississippi alleged that some portion of the groundwater that is pumped out of the aquifer by MLGW is Mississippi's sovereign property, and that Mississippi must therefore be compensated. The district court dismissed that action. The court concluded that, absent an equitable apportionment of the water in the aquifer between Mississippi and Tennessee, the court could not evaluate whether Memphis and MLGW had pumped water belonging to Mississippi. The court further explained that the relief requested by Mississippi would require the court to engage in a de facto apportionment of the aquifer, which would require joinder of Tennessee as a defendant, and that such a dispute would fall within the exclusive original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

In 2009, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit affirmed this decision, stating that the action could not proceed without Tennessee being listed as a party in the case, because the aquifer is an "interstate water source" that must be apportioned before any state may claim a judicially enforceable right to a share of it. The court of appeals explained that the aquifer flows, albeit very slowly, under several states and in that respect is indistinguishable from a river or lake bordered by several states. The court of appeals also affirmed that Tennessee could not be joined in the lawsuit without depriving the district court of subject matter jurisdiction. Mississippi then filed a petition for a writ of certiorari, which the Supreme Court denied the following year.

Simultaneous with filing its petition for a writ of certiorari, Mississippi filed a motion in the Supreme Court for leave to file a bill of complaint against Tennessee, the City of Memphis, and MLGW, seeking approximately $1 billion in damages. In addition to repeating its claims of trespass and conversion, Mississippi contended that an equitable apportionment was not necessary because there had already been an "inherent apportionment" of the groundwater in the aquifer upon Mississippi's admission to the Union in 1817. Mississippi requested an equitable apportionment as an alternative form of relief, but only if the Court determined that Mississippi did not own and control the aquifer resources within its borders. The Supreme Court denied Mississippi's motion without prejudice, which opened the door for Mississippi to refile at a later date.

SO WHAT CHANGED THIS TIME AROUND?

"Most of us observing thought that was correct because you have to know what each state should get," Showalter Otts said. "When Mississippi came

Cont'd on pg 31

THE LEGAL ENFORCER

STU GRIMSON (J.D. '05)

More and more law students are falling under the umbrella of being nontraditional these days. That can mean anything from being slightly older than your average law student, having a family and/or children, or embarking on a new career path.

Former National Hockey League player Stu Grimson (J.D. '05) is one of the more nontraditional students to graduate from Memphis Law in quite some time. After 17 years as a professional hockey player, 14 of those in the NHL, Grimson moved from the ice to the courtroom. He hasn't looked back since.

Known in hockey circles as an "enforcer," Grimson played in over 700 games with eight different teams during his time in the NHL, with over 2,113 penalty minutes from various fights and pummelings to show for it. He also had two trips to the Stanley Cup finals during his career, once in 1992 with the Chicago Blackhawks and again in 1995 with the Detroit Red Wings. He hung up his skates and gloves for good in 2001, however, when he suffered a serious concussion while playing for the Nashville Predators. But he didn't waste any time trying to figure out his next move.

"I've always had a serious approach to education and life after hockey," says the former "Grim Reaper" when asked about his choice to finish his education. He decided to finish his undergraduate degree in economics with the help of the NHL Players' Association program, Life After Hockey, which helps players adjust after they retire. He then set his sights on law school.

"Once I decided that law school was the direction I wanted to go in, I immediately began to realize how incredibly competitive the law school application and acceptance process was going to be," Grimson said. "My family and I were living in Nashville, but when I looked at where the best value was as far as a law school education is concerned versus costs, Memphis was just the best place for me. It was close enough to commute and they reached out to me early and made me feel comfortable."

Grimson notes that his situation was unique. Not only was he older than his typical classmate, he also commuted from Nashville for the week during law school. He spent four days in Memphis at school and drove back home every weekend. His competitive drive and devotion to his task were no different from when he was in the NHL though. "You really have to treat law school like a full-time job. It's really like a job and a half, to be honest," says Grimson. "Take it seriously."

"Law school, at the end of the day, helped ease the transition for me when I left the league," Grimson says of his life after the NHL. "It allowed me a to find a profession where traits of my personality carried over from the game to the classroom to the courtroom, and provided me with a wider range of options for what I could do in the next phase of my life, so that I could continue to take care of my family."

After graduating from Memphis Law in 2005, Grimson went to work for the NHL as in-house counsel at the National Hockey League Players' Association (NHLPA) in their Labor Department. After several years with the NHLPA, Stu and his family returned to Nashville to work as a defense attorney with Kay, Griffin, Enkema & Colbert, PLLC until 2012. Since then, he's returned to the Nashville Predators organization, first as a color analyst on the Predators radio network and now as one of the primary analysts for the Predators Television Network.

When asked what was more challenging (or what was more exciting) amongst his career choices of hockey "enforcer" and attorney, Grimson notes "lawyers are sort of adversarial by nature," and that his personality traits carried over to the legal arena. In his playing days, part of his role was to step in and make sure anyone who slighted his team or his teammates paid for it. As an attorney, one of his favorite things is being an advocate for someone and helping that person when they need the assistance.

"There's nothing more challenging than being in front of a judge and advocating on a client's behalf and doing the best job you possibly can for them," said Grimson. And if you want to know which is more daunting—doling out a professional NHL beating or being in the legal profession—Grimson has something to say about that as well. "Nothing has ever come remotely close to the true courtroom experience for me," Grimson says about his trial experience. "Absolutely nothing is that challenging or as big of a rush, certainly in terms of the intellectual experience, preparation and challenge."

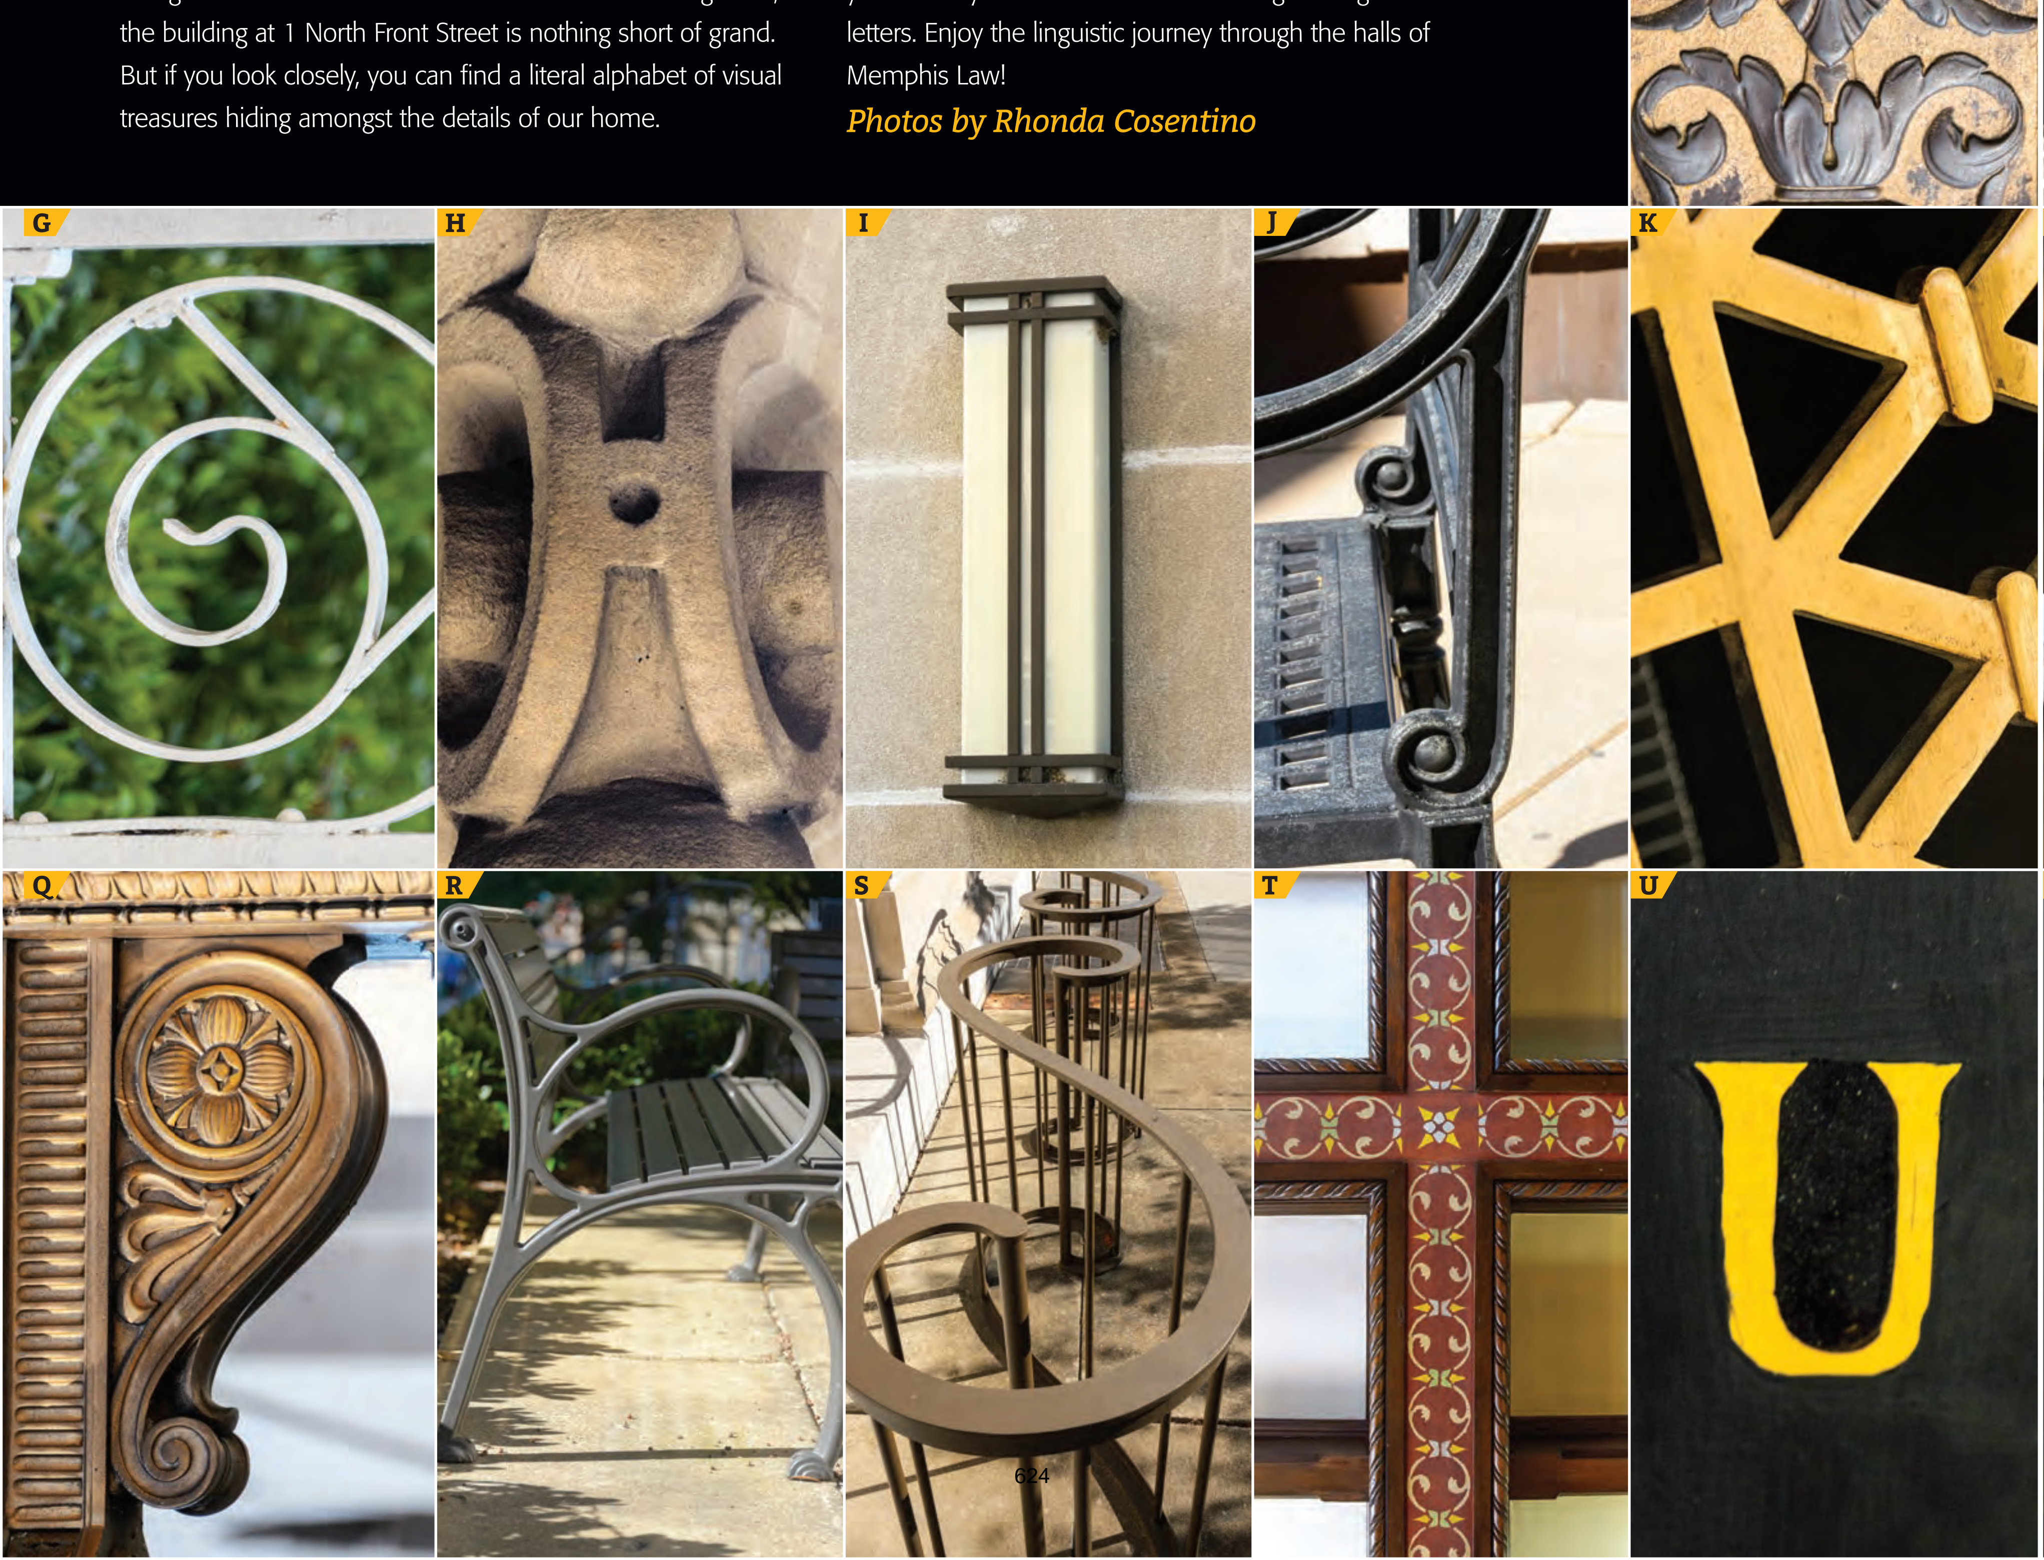
"Nothing has ever come remotely close to the true courtroom experience for me," Grimson says about his trial experience. "Absolutely nothing is that challenging or as big of a rush, certainly in terms of the intellectual experience, preparation and challenge."

The Letter(s) of the Law (School)

Our building is impressive, there's no way around that. With its soaring marble columns, original brass doors, elevators and window cages, hardwood paneling, intricate crown molding, beautiful woodworking with hand-painted stencil designs, and grand staircases made of Tennessee marble and granite, the building at 1 North Front Street is nothing short of grand. But if you look closely, you can find a literal alphabet of visual treasures hiding amongst the details of our home.

Most of us grew up with the alphabet decorating the classrooms of our youth. In this feature, we've brought some of that theme to law school, with a touch of class, architectural history and sophistication that you can see for yourself as you walk around our building looking for these letters. Enjoy the linguistic journey through the halls of Memphis Law!

Photos by Rhonda Cosentino



B
C
D
E
F
L
M
N
O
P
V
W
X
Y
Z

ALUMNI: SETTING THE BAR

1970

John I. Houseal, Jr., of Glankler Brown, was recently elected to the board of directors of the Memphis Navy League. He was also asked by the University of Memphis School of Law to sit on the advisory board of a new law program focusing on health-care law.

1977

R. Hunter Humphreys, of Glankler Brown, has been invited to join the American College of Real Estate Lawyers. ACREL's distinguished, nationally-known lawyers have been elected to fellowship for their outstanding legal ability, experience and high standards of professional and ethical conduct in the practice of real estate law.

Lancelot L. Minor, III, a partner with the Memphis law firm of Bourland Heflin Alvarez Minor & Matthews, PLC, has been honored by being selected as a 2015 Mid-South Super Lawyer by Thomson Reuters, publishers of Mid-South Super Lawyers Magazine.

1980

W. Kerby Bowling was selected as a 2015 Power Player in Employment Law for Inside Memphis Business.

1981

Steve McCleskey, of Glankler Brown, has recently obtained his license to practice law in Mississippi.

1982

Judge William J. Borah finished his term as Chairman of the Illinois State Bar Association's Labor and Employment Law Section Council.

Bill Jakes was recently inducted into the American College of Trial Lawyers.

1992

Steve Maroney was reappointed in March 2015 as the Madison County Attorney, a position he has held since 2012.

1993

Caren Beth Nichol was recently appointed to the Beale Street Tourism Development Authority Board.

1995

Garland Erguden joined the Shelby County Juvenile Court as a magistrate and chief legal officer.

1996

Kevin Snider was recently reappointed to serve as the volunteer commander of the Fayette County Technical Rescue Team located in Rossville, Tennessee.

1998

Ronald T. Catelli became the President of the Monmouth County Bar Association in Monmouth, New Jersey.

Saffa Koja recently accepted a position at FTI Consulting as a business development director in New York City, New York.

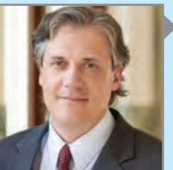
Emily Taube recently joined the Nashville office of Burr & Forman as a partner.

2000

Jason D. Salomon, an estate planning specialist with the Memphis law firm of Harkavy Shainberg Kaplan & Dunstan PLC, has been elected chairman of the Probate & Estate Planning Section of the Memphis Bar Association.

2001

Jacob Zweig, of Evans Petree PC, for the 2nd year in a row was named Bankruptcy Counsel of the Year by TD Auto Finance LLC as part of the firm's Creditor Rights/Insolvency Group. The award is given for superior overall performance and strategic bankruptcy litigation victories.



2002

John Packard Wade has joined McNabb, Bragorgos & Burgess, PLLC. Mr. Wade is admitted to practice law in all Tennessee courts and in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee. He was named a "Rising Star" in the 2012 and 2013 editions of Super Lawyers.

Meredith L. Williams, chief knowledge management officer for Baker Donelson, has been elected to her third term on the board of directors of the International Legal Technology Association (ILTA) and will serve as its president. ILTA is governed by a seven-member board that is elected biennially.

2003

Kyle I. Cannon has achieved an AV-rating by Martindale-Hubbell. He also served as the co-chair of the Big Wig Ball 2015, the Le Bonheur Children's Hospital Associate Board's largest annual fundraiser. The event raised $60,000 for the hospital.

Jennifer Harrison joined the regional law firm of Hall Booth Smith as a partner and will lead the firm's newest office in Memphis, Tennessee. Jennifer focuses her practice on the defense of professional liability, medical malpractice and other healthcare related cases. She was selected as a Mid-South Super Lawyer in 2014 and is licensed in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Robert J. Fehse, of Evans Petree PC, for the 2nd year in a row, was named Bankruptcy Counsel of the Year by TD Auto Finance LLC as part of the firm's Creditor Rights/Insolvency Group. The award is given for superior overall performance and strategic bankruptcy litigation victories.

2004

Freeman Foster was recently appointed to serve as an Assistant City Attorney for the City of Memphis.

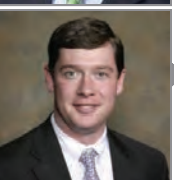
Kandace C. Stewart, of Evans Petree PC, for the 2nd year in a row was named Bankruptcy Counsel of the Year by TD Auto Finance LLC as part of the firm's Creditor Rights/Insolvency Group. The award is given for superior overall performance and strategic bankruptcy litigation victories.

Bert A. Echols, III, Evans Petree PC, for the 2nd year in a row was named Bankruptcy Counsel of the Year by TD Auto Finance LLC as part of the firm's Creditor Rights/Insolvency Group. The award is given for superior overall performance and strategic bankruptcy litigation victories.

2005

Thomas R. Greer was elected as president-elect of the Tennessee Association for Justice.

Aaron J. Nash, Evans Petree PC , for the 2nd year in a row was named Bankruptcy Counsel of the Year by TD Auto Finance LLC as part of the firm's Creditor Rights/Insolvency Group. The award is given for superior overall performance and strategic bankruptcy litigation victories.



Brian L. Yoakum, of Evans Petree PC, was recently elected as a barrister in the Leo Bearman, Sr. Chapter of the American Inn of Court.

2008

Nicole Bermel Dunlap has recently begun working for Ford & Harrison, LLP, one of the country's largest management-side labor and employment firms, in its Tampa, Florida office.

Russell A. Humphrey was elected president of the American Association of Legislative Clerks and Secretaries. Additionally, he was selected as a commissioner for the Mason's Manual Commission, which oversees the revisions of the parliamentary law treatise, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure.

Mary Lee was recently designated as a White House Foster Care Champion of Change. She and 12 other former foster youth were honored at a ceremony in Washington, D.C. at the White House, with remarks from U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan and Deputy Assistant to the President for Urban Affairs, Justice and Opportunity Roy L. Austin, Jr.

2009

Richard "Trammel" Hoehn Jr. has joined the Nashville office of Butler Snow, and will work with the firm's government relations group.

Michael M. Lawless was elected chairman of the Young Lawyers Division of Eminent Domain Section of the North Carolina Advocates for Justice. The NCAJ is North Carolina's premier association of trial attorneys, and the Eminent Domain Section focuses on law, policy, and practice skills relevant to practitioners in that area.

Kacie Flinn McRee was honored as one of Knoxville's 40 Under 40 by the Knoxville News Sentinel.

Adam C. Ragan joined the law firm of McGuireWoods LLP as an attorney in its Financial Services Litigation Group.

2012

Lauren Dunavin Callins joined the law firm of Hall Booth Smith as an associate and assisted in opening the firm's eleventh regional office located in Memphis, Tennessee. Lauren focuses her practice on the defense of hospitals, physicians, and other healthcare providers in a variety of medical malpractice and professional liability claims.

Maggie Smith has joined the firm of Batson Nolan PLC.

2014

Megan E. Warden has joined Shea Moskovitz & McGhee as an associate.

2015

Martha Crowder has joined the firm of Apperson Crump PLC.

If you have an alumni news item or update that you would like to see featured in this section of ML, please send it to ML executive editor Ryan Jones at rjones1@memphis.edu, along with any corresponding headshots.

IN THESE HALLS: FACULTY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Alena Allen

Professor Allen's most recent article, "Dense Women," will be published in the Ohio State Law Journal. She was also selected as a 2015 Maxine Smith Fellow by the Tennessee Board of Regents.

Lynda Wray Black

Professor Black was selected 2015 Professor of the Year by the Memphis Law Class of 2015. She was also named the 2015 Outstanding Alumna by the University of Memphis Alumni Association, Arts and Sciences Chapter.

Professor Black was also appointed to the Research Oversight Committee for the Biorepository and Integrative Genomics Initiative at Le Bonheur Children's Hospital.

Amy Campbell

Professor Campbell co-organized the Therapeutic Jurisprudence Track and was named to the International Scientific Committee of the 34th International Congress on Law and Mental Health held in Vienna, Austria, in July 2015. At this Congress, she also presented a work-in-progress, "Gun Control and Mental Health," as part of the Mental Health Exceptionalism Panel.

Professor Campbell was elected to the Nominating Committee of the American Society of Bioethics & Humanities in July 2015. She also was invited to join the newly formed Memphis My Brother's Keeper Policy Working Group (Mayor Wharton's Young Men of Color Initiative).

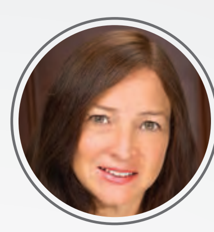
Donna Harkness

Professor Harkness's book chapter, "Bridging the Caregiving Gap - Does Technology Provide an Ethically and Legally Viable Answer? A U.S. Perspective," has been published in International and Comparative Law on the Rights of Older Persons.

Daniel Kiel

Professor Kiel received a fellowship from the Core Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program which will enable him spend the fall 2015 semester at the University of the Free State (UFS) in Bloemfontein, South Africa, working on his project, "Comparative Analysis of Educational Remedies in Destratifying Societies."

Professor Kiel also had a chapter published in the book, "Law and Education Inequality." The chapter is called "Equity Through Differentiation." He was also named chairman of the board of Just City, a new local nonprofit charged with minimizing the incidents and impact of contact with the criminal justice system in Memphis.



D.R. Jones

Professor D.R. Jones' article, "Law Firm Copying: An Examination of Different Purpose and Fair-Use Markets," is forthcoming in the South Texas Law Review. Professor Jones also has another article entitled "Commerciality and Fair Use" which is forthcoming in the Wake Forest Journal of Business and Intellectual Property Law.

Barbara Kritchevsky

Professor Kritchevsky's book chapter, "If There's a Right, is There a Remedy? The Federal Courts' Role in Remedying Constitutional Violations," will be published in Constitutionalism, Executive Power, and the Spirit of Moderation (State University of New York Press).

Boris Mamlyuk

Professor Mamlyuk's book chapter, "Early Soviet Property Law in Comparison with Western Legal Traditions," is forthcoming in Political Economy and Law: A Handbook of Contemporary Practice, Research and Theory.

Andrew McClurg

Professor McClurg's most recent article, "The Second Amendment Right to be Negligent," will be published in the Florida Law Review, and his article, "In Search of the Golden Mean in the Gun Debate," is forthcoming in the Howard Law Journal. Professor McClurg also was one of 10 authors (out of more than 1000) for West Academic Publishing invited to attend the Author Inside Look Conference in St. Paul, Minnesota. It was his second invitation in three years.

Steve Mulroy

Professor Mulroy's article, "Sunshine's Shadow: Overbroad Open Meetings Laws as Content-Based Speech Restrictions Distinct from Disclosure Requirements," was published in the Willamette Law Review. Professor Mulroy presented a paper in March at the Sorbonne in Paris, as part of the International Symposium on Freedom of Information & Governmental Transparency in the Open Government Era, University of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne. His paper, "Sunshine's Chill: Overbroad American Open Meetings Laws and the Limits of Disclosure," which takes a comparative approach, will be published in the book produced as part of the symposium. This past July, Professor Mulroy spoke at the Southeast Association Of Law Schools (SEALS) Conference in Boca Raton, Florida, on innovative methods for teaching Constitutional Law.

John Newman

John Newman's paper, "Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets: Foundations," has been accepted for publication in the University of Pennsylvania Law Review.

Danny Schaffzin

Professor Schaffzin's article, "So Why Not an Experiential Law School . . . Starting With Reflection in the First Year?," was published in the Elon Law Review. He also coauthored the Externships Chapter, titled "Delivering Effective Education in Externship Program" in the forthcoming Building on Best Practices book to be published by LexisNexis (summer/fall 2015).

Professor Schaffzin presented at the following events:

- Making Beautiful Music Together: Lawyers Team with Doctors in Medical-Legal Partnerships – panel presenter; Tennessee Bar Association Annual Convention, Memphis, Tennessee., June, 2015.

- Just What the Doctor Ordered: Multi-Disciplinary Clinics at the Forefront of Change – Co-presenter; AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Rancho Mirage, California., May, 2015.

- Advancing Population Health: An Overview of Law-School Based Medical-Legal Partnerships – poster presenter; National Medical-Legal Partnership Summit, McLean, Virginia, April, 2015.

Katherine T. Schaffzin

Professor Kate Schaffzin's article, "Learning Outcomes in a Flipped Classroom: A Comparison of Civil Procedure II Test Scores between Students in a Traditional Class and a Flipped Class," was accepted for publication in the University of Memphis Law Review.

Eugene Shapiro

Professor Shapiro's article, "Governmental Acquiescence in Private Party Searches: The State Action Inquiry and Lessons from the Federal Circuits," will be published in the Kentucky Law Journal.

Kevin Smith

Professor Smith's article, "Wax on/Wax off: Reflections on Learning to Think and Do as a Stone Carver (with Applications to Legal Education)," was published by the University of Memphis Law Review in the spring 2015 issue.

Jodi Wilson

In August 2015, Professor Wilson was an invited speaker at the 34th Annual Meeting of the Association of Reporters of Judicial Decisions. She spoke about assessing and citing nontraditional sources in opinions.

Christina Zawisza

Professor Zawisza was recently recognized by Florida's Children First, a statewide advocacy organization she helped to create, as Director Emeritus. Her article, "Teaching Cross-Cultural Competence to Law Students: Understanding the 'Self' as 'Other,'" will be published in the Florida Coastal Law Review. It will be published in the winter 2015 symposium edition developed in conjunction with the Florida Bar Public Interest Law Section.

Professor Zawisza also made a presentation on "Embracing Time and Place: Therapeutic Jurisprudence and the Civil Rights Movement in Memphis" at the 34th International Congress on Law and Mental Health at Sigmund Freud University in Vienna, Austria, in July 2015.

FACULTY PROMOTIONS

JODI WILSON

Jodi Wilson was promoted to Associate Professor of Law and awarded tenure in 2015.

KATHERINE T. SCHAFFZIN

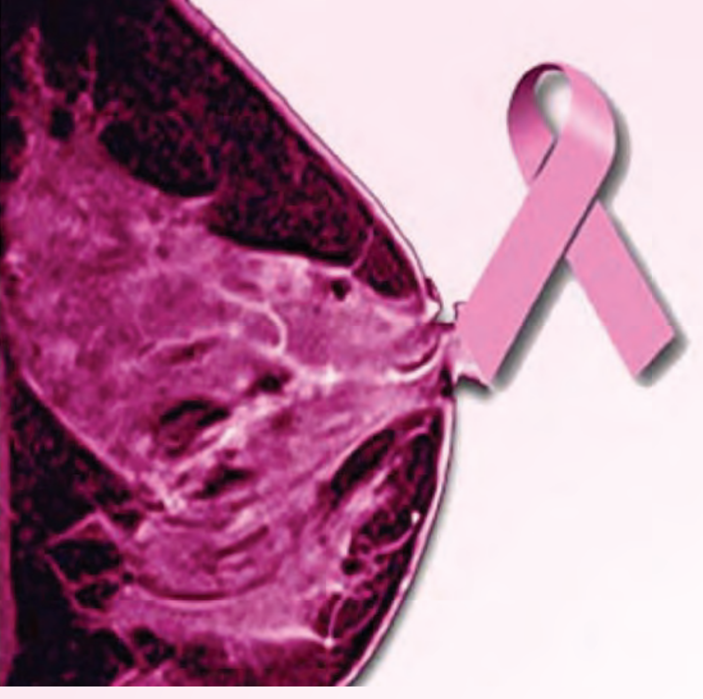
Katherine T. Schaffzin was promoted to Professor of Law in 2015.

D.R. JONES

D.R. Jones was promoted to Associate Professor of Law and awarded tenure in 2015.

JOHN NEWMAN

John Newman was hired on a full-time basis as an Assistant Professor of Law.



Do Dense Women Need Legislative Protection?

By Professor Alena Allen

Public support and awareness of breast cancer is unparalleled in Tennessee and throughout the nation. Pink ribbons, an international symbol of breast cancer, are now worn by both women and men throughout the year, and breast cancer charities have ramped up awareness by linking brands and products with pink ribbons. In fact, their strategy has been so successful in marketing that "pink" is now a verb.

As a result, almost every woman knows that early detection exponentially increases a woman's chance of survival and that having a yearly mammogram after 40 is the best way to ensure early detection.

But this familiar mantra at best offers incomplete information and at worst lulls women into a false sense of security. Although it is true that survival rates hover well over 98 percent if breast cancer is caught in the earliest stages, a yearly mammogram is not a panacea.

Mammographic technology has limits which until recently were not widely shared with women. In short, if a woman has dense breast tissue, then the fatty tissue in her breasts appears white on mammographic film. Because cancer also has a white appearance on mammographic film, cancer in women with dense breast tissue is much more likely to be missed.

Many women are dense. In fact, roughly 50 percent of women have clinically dense breasts. Moreover, breast density is not static but tends to decrease with age. Yet, few women are told anything about their breast density until they are, ultimately, diagnosed with advanced-stage breast cancer.

Density notification legislation seeks to change this and mandates that women be informed about their breast density. In 2009, Connecticut passed the first density notification law in the country. Currently, 24 states have enacted density legislation, including Tennessee.

Tennessee's statute became effective on January 1, 2014. The statute provides that the facility where the mammogram is performed must provide the following written notice to women with dense breasts:

Your mammogram shows that your breast tissue is dense. Dense breast tissue is common and not abnormal. However, dense breast tissue can make it harder to evaluate the results of your mammogram and may also be associated with an increased risk of breast cancer. This information about the results of your mammogram is given to you to raise your awareness and inform your conversations with your doctor. Together you can decide which screening options are right for you. A report of your results was sent to your physician.

While density notification legislation informs women, this solution has negative consequences as well.

First, women are informed of their density in writing. This means that a woman who has questions is not in an immediate position to have her questions answered by a physician. This situation can produce needless angst and anxiety while the woman is waiting to speak with her physician.

Second, the legislation usurps the power of physicians to decide what information should be shared and how.

The law has traditionally deferred to physicians allowing medical professionals to set the standard of care without having to worry about second-guessing by lay people. Density notification legislation interferes with the ability of physicians to exercise their professional judgment for the benefit of each individual patient.

This intrusion is particularly problematic because the legislature has mandated density notification without mandating that insurers pay for additional screenings. In practice, the law steers women to discuss breast density and its risks with their physicians without providing access to further assessment methodologies.

While supplemental screenings such as ultrasound and tomosynthesis are available, insurers are unlikely to cover the cost because such screenings are not cost effective. This puts women who are not affluent in the anxiety provoking position of spending limited resources on expensive supplemental screenings or going without the additional screening and hoping that cancer is not being masked by dense breast tissue.

Disclosure legislation is a hollow victory for breast cancer advocates. Dense women do not need boilerplate notices sent at the behest of the state legislature. Dense women need access to better individualized care and affordable access to screenings.

Cont'd from pg 14

The 60-day public comment period on the FAA's proposed drone rules ended in April with more than 4,500 comments and many expected a final rule would be delivered soon after. But given the amount of comments, the mandate from Congress to integrate drones into the American airspace, and orders from President Barack Obama to do it in a balanced way, the FAA (in the unsurprising move mentioned above) said it needed more time to issue a final rule and reached out to the private sector for help.

"Government has some of the best and brightest minds in aviation, but we can't operate in a vacuum," Transportation Secretary Foxx said in a statement. "This is a big job, and we'll get to our goal of safe, widespread (drone) integration more quickly by leveraging the resources and expertise of the industry."

The announcement came in May at the annual conference of the AUVSI, the drone trade group, in Atlanta. The FAA said then that it began working with three different companies on three different segments of drone regulation.

The agency is now working with cable news network CNN on operating drones in urban areas for gathering news in populated areas. It will work with drone manufacturer PrecisionHawk to explore drone use for monitoring crops in precision agriculture operations. Also, the FAA will work with BNSF railroad on using drones to inspect rail-system infrastructure.

Given all of the yet-answered questions and all of complexities within each question, the FAA said it wasn't comfortable even projecting a timeline for a final rule.

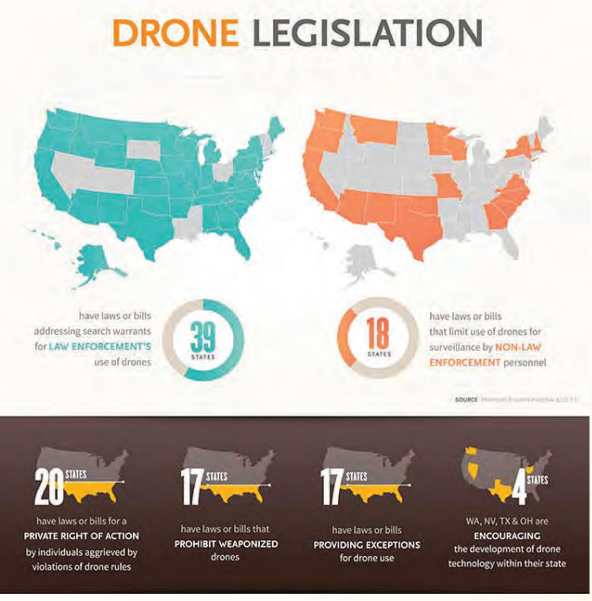
TENNESSEE FIREWORKS

Imagine flying through a huge fireworks show. Not high above it. Not below it looking up. But flying right through it.

Mortar shells explode a few feet in front of you and their concussive booms blow you back. All around you, the sky is painted with dazzling lights that burst and unfurl like the massive tendrils of electric, 50-story palm trees.

You can see this right now, thanks to YouTube and a drone.

Last year, a Nashville entrepreneur launched his $1,300 drone from a parking lot and flew it and a camera over the Cumberland River and directly into Music City's Fourth of July fireworks show, the second largest in the country. In the darkness, he lost sight of the drone but watched its course on a video screen with his friends.



On July 6, The Tennessean called the video "spectacular" and said that the drone pilot was on "firm legal footing for the activity." Two days later, the paper reported that the Federal Aviation Administration had opened an investigation into the fireworks flight. The agency received complaints about the risk the flight posed for possible injury and property damage on the ground after the video went viral.

For his part, the drone operator, Robert Hartline, was unconcerned, telling a Tennessean reporter that, "The technology is here, and it's going to take a while for the FAA to process how (drone use is) going to affect people."

Hartline was right, of course, at the time. But since the interview a year ago, his original drone video has been viewed more than 93,000 times and has been copied on tons of other YouTube channels. His story spread to online tech magazines, tech blogs, drone blogs, and also to a mainstream, national audience via USA Today and the Huffington Post. His story also spread to the Tennessee General Assembly.

In January, a bill was filed in the Tennessee House of Representatives that would ban drones to "intentionally capture an image over certain open-air events." The Tennessee State Fire Marshall's Office quickly requested an amendment to add firework displays. Hartline's fireworks flight was on its way to becoming a Class C misdemeanor.

The bill's Senate sponsor, Senator Jack Johnson (R-Franklin) said drone enthusiasts urged him to keep the new state rules loose. But he said companies and other government agencies found out about his drone bill and were eager to add their regulations. For example, the Tennessee Department of Corrections requested an amendment to ban drone flights over correctional facilities.

The Tennessee Titans requested an amendment to ban drone flights over ticketed, open-air events with more than 100 people. The team's lobbyist, Lana Johnston (J.D. '09), an associate and policy advisor with the law firm of Waller Lansden Dortch and Davis, told a House committee that the amendment targeted drone hobbyists, who require neither training nor licensure.

“Before you can fly a drone over my stadium, please go get an actual license.”

“Before you can fly a drone over my stadium, please go get an actual license,” Johnston said. “Otherwise, I don’t want you flying over this public space for public safety and for copyright issues.”

But Senator Lee Harris (D-Memphis), a UofM law professor, asked the broadest, simplest and perhaps the most potent question about drones and public gatherings.

“If I’m having a backyard barbecue in Memphis and I invite 100 people over, shouldn’t I have an expectation of privacy?” Harris asked during a meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee. “I was protected with the original bill but I’m not now (with the amended bill).”

Johnson, the bill’s sponsor, said he was trying to “thread the needle” on the drone issue, addressing copyright and safety concerns, and “not putting unreasonable restrictions on enthusiasts who like to fly these things in the park on Sunday afternoons.” But he said Harris was right on point.

“If you have a swimming pool in your backyard and you have a party and have some folks over, there’s nothing in the law prohibiting your neighbor from just flying his drone over and just filming what’s going on in your backyard,” Johnson said. “I don’t know how we rectify that.”

But Senator Mark Green (R-Clarskville) had a sound effect for a simple answer that had the hearing room in stitches. “Chick-chick,” he said, and the room erupted in laughter.

“Senator Green is over here cocking a shotgun,” laughed Johnson. “That would be one possibility.”

The bill became law in April and Hartline’s drone flight through the fireworks would now come with a fine of no more than $50 and no more than 30 days in jail. The same penalty comes for any drone user capturing images over a ticketed event of more than 100 people without the owner’s consent.

Tennessee state legislators asked for a drone task force to be assembled in 2013 to simply “study the use of drones for public and private purposes in this state.” Task force members would have been pulled from state offices representing everything from safety to economic development. The language of the law creating the task force noted (as did the Presidential memo on drones) that drones have great potential for commerce but pose unknown risks. However, the task force was never convened.

That same year, the legislature passed the Freedom from Unwarranted Surveillance Act, which banned law enforcement agencies from using drones to collect evidence or other information. That law was passed in response to the purchase of two drones by the Metro Nashville Police Department. In 2014, the legislature passed a bill that outlawed drone use to watch people “lawfully” hunting and fishing.

Before all of this, though, the legislature passed a blanket ban on drones, which made it a crime to use drones for photography except in 18 different situations, including scholarly research, mapping purposes, part of the U.S. military, for maintaining utility easements, surveying the scene of a catastrophe, fire suppression, and more.

Right now 20 states have passed drone laws, according to McClurg, the UofM law professor and privacy expert, but he's not sure these laws are such a great idea.

"We should be careful in passing laws too quickly in such a rapidly changing area," McClurg said. "Ultimately, a uniform national approach would be preferable to a patchwork of conflicting state laws.

"Even in the absence of statutes or regulations, common law remedies for invasion of privacy and aerial trespass may be available to persons who are subjected to private drone misuse."

> "We should be careful in passing laws too quickly in such a rapidly changing area."

THE HOBBYIST AND THE FUTURE

While big corporations push their drone research projects in super secrecy, drone hobbyists place their work loudly and proudly on the Internet for anyone who will click. And, to a large degree, hobbyists are on the front lines of the drone future. No matter what the FAA says.

Earlier this year the FAA issued an updated set of safety guidelines for drone hobbyists that it had used earlier for model aircraft. The guidelines say hobbyists should fly their drones below 400 feet, within their lines of sight, and away from manned aircraft, airports, people, and stadiums. The FAA also reminded hobbyists that they can be fined for endangering people or other aircraft. To push these rules, the FAA launched its "Know Before You Fly" campaign with a website, social media, and a mobile app.

It's not that drone hobbyists are scofflaws; they're more imbued with the current tech-punk sense of DIY power that places few limits on what can be done with an aircraft, a camera and a computer. And they'll put all of it—good or bad—on YouTube.

More than 1.8 million people have seen YouTube user Andy Stewart's video of a drone strapped with Roman candles. The fireworks are lit and the drone lifts off and shoots fire balls at two men who run away from it through the snow. Funny? Yes. Dangerous? A little. Did the cops show up? Probably not.

Now consider that more than 3.1 million have watched the 15-second, "Flying Gun" video from YouTube user "Hogwit." It shows show a drone strapped with semi-automatic hand gun. The 15-second video shows the gun hovering in the air while someone remotely pops off four rounds. Funny? No. Dangerous? Maybe. Did the cops show up? Yes. The stunt triggered an FAA investigation.

Hogwit went on to shoot a video at a Connecticut beach. A woman saw him doing it, confronted him, and shoved him to the ground. She was charged. He was not. It's the next step of normalizing drones into daily life. Remember Senator Green's suggestion of shooting an offending drone with a shotgun? Consider that when a Kentucky man did just that in July, he was charged with first degree criminal mischief and first degree wanton endangerment and spent the night in jail.

THE NEXT HUNDRED STEPS

As Van de Vuurst explained, old-school model airplane pilots policed themselves, stayed out of trouble, and were left largely alone by law enforcement or the FAA. But drones are easy to fly—with a joystick like in a video game ("and millennials were raised on video games") and they are easy to get.

He repeated the fact that drones are not going away and said the new FAA rules were a good first step.

"That is the first step in the next hundred that's going to have to be taken over the next several years to figure out how in the world we're going to integrate these things into everyone's lives and do it safely," Van de Vuurst said. "At the same time, we're going to have to figure out what to do with someone who puts a gun on one of them!"

Cont'd from pg 18

back they didn't change much (in the filing). They were still alleging the damage claim. Many observers of the case," Showalter Otts said, "were surprised the U.S. Supreme Court didn't dismiss the most recent complaint like the one before." Maybe it's to actually rule that groundwater should be treated in a similar way to surface water, thus putting it through a process that ends up with equitable apportionment. Of course, at least five of the justices might have felt there is merit to the case and are interested in hearing Mississippi's case.

"The Supreme Court granted Mississippi's most recent Petition for Leave to file an Original Action without explanation, so any attempt to explain what the Supreme Court considered or why the Court took this approach would be pure speculation," said David Bearman (J.D. '96) a shareholder at Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC and the co-lead attorney representing Memphis and MLGW in the case. Bearman points out that the City of Memphis and MLGW will respond to Mississippi's complaint and remain confident that they will ultimately prevail.

SURFACE WATER VS. GROUNDWATER

To understand the reasons, it might make sense to take a closer look at what is going on in Georgia.

The longstanding issue regarding Atlanta's use of water from Lake Lanier has moved back up to the Supreme Court because of shellfish issues in Alabama and Florida. The court has continued siding with Georgia.

It's important to note that when water is apportioned it doesn't have to be equal. "It's mostly based on need and different uses can be given greater priority," said Showalter Otts. "Out West, agriculture is given greater priority. In Atlanta, the public drinking water gets priority. The court has traditionally sided with Georgia because it has given this public use higher value than leaving water in streams. Alabama and Florida are arguing it should stay in streams for wildlife. That generally has been given lesser priority than public drinking water."

"With surface water, like with Georgia and Florida, the state would have to file for equitable apportion of the water. What Mississippi is doing is filing more of a tort action seeking monetary award."

Now, in 2015, it's the first summer with true drought that has led to a visible impact on the oyster industry in the Gulf of Mexico. "Finally," Showalter Otts said, "there is proof that a lack of freshwater is affecting the coastal economies."

The fight in Alabama, Florida and Georgia surrounds surface water. In Memphis, it's all about water that sits underground.

"Most of us thought this would be dismissed because one of the issues is, what is the right way to raise this?" Showalter Otts said. "With surface water, like with Georgia and Florida, the state would have to file for equitable apportion of the water. What Mississippi is doing is filing more of a tort action seeking a monetary award. I'm unsure (the Supreme Court) accepted it to go through the action to see if surface and ground waters are the same or to hear the argument Mississippi is making."

Some argue that Mississippi has relied on studies that are older, before the explosion in growth in Southaven. It could be argued that the growth in DeSoto County is in fact causing the water to draw back toward Mississippi.

The next step is the Supreme Court appoints a special master to investigate the case. That could take a few months, and it certainly would be surprising to expect a report from the special master for a year or so. As of the filing of this story, the time for the defendants to file an answer was extended to Sept. 14, 2015.

Speculating about what the U.S. Supreme Court might do can be a tricky proposition. So many unknowns surround Mississippi's case against Memphis and how the court might rule. But if or when it does one day rule in favor of Mississippi, some unknowns will face Memphis and Memphis Light, Gas and Water.

THE "WHAT IFS?"

"Requiring MLGW to draw water from the Mississippi River as an alternative or supplemental source of water is one of the remedies that the state of Mississippi is pursuing," Womack said. "One would assume that it would be necessary to construct a water treatment plant somewhere along or very close to the Mississippi River in order to utilize water from the Mississippi as a drinking water source. There would be challenges associated with the use of water from the Mississippi River that do not exist with the current use of groundwater."

It would cost a significant amount of money to pull water from the river, which already has a reputation for being less than clean, so there would be additional water treatment costs that don't exist with the current groundwater situation.

"If the Supreme Court rules that conversion is a cognizable claim and if Mississippi were to prevail on a conversion claim, the impact on ground water users throughout West Tennessee would be severe," said Bearman. "A switch from ground water to river water would require construction of a new water collection facility, changes to the water distribution infrastructure, and development of much more intensive water treatment operations. The extremely high cost for these modifications would likely be reflected in higher water rates for our citizens."

Womack said the long-term issues surrounding a decision in favor of Mississippi will demonstrate the need for communities in the Mid-South to develop coordinated strategies for allocating, protecting and conserving water sources. "I believe that Memphis and every other community need to develop long-range plans to assure an adequate and safe water supply," he said. "Anyone reading about what is happening in such states as California and Texas would likely wonder whether their own communities could be impacted by water shortages and what can be done to avoid such problems."

"I find it highly unlikely under current law that the court could prevent Memphis from withdrawing anything," Showalter Otts said. "Even if they rule groundwater is different than surface water and it's the property of the state it underlies, Memphis would still have a right to withdraw water under its state. The question would be if Memphis would have to redo what it's withdrawing to take care of the alleged cone of depression."

"I find it highly unlikely under current law that the court could prevent Memphis from withdrawing anything."

And figuring out the amount of water being used isn't exactly impossible to know. Hydrologists can analyze what's going on in the aquifer. They know how much water is in there through seismic surveys. Showalter Otts said there is some indication that the cone of depression is not there anymore and has in fact changed direction because of development in Southaven, Mississippi.

BOTH SIDES OF THE ISSUE

Mississippi

The legal brief in the recent case states that "Mississippi cannot claim that Tennessee is taking Mississippi's water until the aquifer has been apportioned, and Mississippi expressly does not seek an equitable apportionment here. … Accordingly, the court should deny Mississippi leave to file its complaint without prejudice to refiling a properly framed complaint for an equitable apportionment of the aquifer premised on concrete allegations of real and substantial injury."

Jim Hood's response for Mississippi in late May this year said, "The Tennessee Parties could and should have located MLGW's massive well fields further from the Mississippi/Tennessee border, limiting withdrawal to the natural recharge in Tennessee, and supplementing their needs with the abundant water from the Mississippi River. Instead, it is undisputed that for purely economic reasons, they have consciously chosen to use modern pumping technology to reach into Mississippi, and forcibly take hundreds of millions of gallons of irreplaceable groundwater out of Mississippi's groundwater storage, drawing down water levels in wells throughout DeSoto County, Mississippi. This intentional, unauthorized taking of Mississippi's valuable natural resource, solely for the Tennessee Parties' economic advantage, is an actionable violation of Mississippi's sovereignty under the Court's decisions."

RANDALL WOMACK

According to the state of Mississippi, "The natural hydrogeological characteristics of this Mississippi groundwater under natural conditions make it an intrastate, not interstate, natural resource. Under these conditions, it is trapped and resides in Mississippi, never naturally crossing into Tennessee."

Tennessee

Tennessee argues that Mississippi is relying on the same territorial property rights theory that the Supreme Court rejected when it denied Mississippi leave to file a bill of complaint in 2010. Tennessee further contends that Mississippi has no enforceable rights to water in the aquifer until that water has been apportioned and that the Supreme Court's doctrine of equitable apportionment applies to an action by one state that reaches into the territory of another state through the agency of natural law. Tennessee characterizes its commercial pumping operation, and the resulting drop in aquifer pressure, as an example of Tennessee reaching into Mississippi by the "agency of natural law."

Tennessee also argues that Mississippi's claims are barred by the doctrine of issue preclusion, which prevents a party from re-arguing an issue of fact that has already been determined by a previous court where no error was found. The district court and the Fifth Circuit both rejected Mississippi's territorial property-rights theory, and determined that the aquifer is a shared interstate waterway subject to equitable apportionment. Tennessee asserts that these findings are conclusive; therefore, Mississippi is precluded from raising these same issues before the Supreme Court.

"The water levels in the aquifer have materially dropped in areas on both sides of the Mississippi River largely due to irrigation practices initiated over the past 30 to 40 years."

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

There are other issues in the Mid-South where states and communities are focusing efforts on current and future water needs. Womack said a growing number of farmers and several communities in Arkansas, with the assistance and encouragement of the state and other agencies, have been working to reduce their dependence on the water taken from the Mississippi River Valley Alluvial Aquifer, a relatively shallow aquifer.

"The water levels in the aquifer have materially dropped in areas on both sides of the Mississippi River largely due to irrigation practices initiated over the past 30 to 40 years," Womack said. "A few years ago a task force was established in Mississippi to promote conservation measures, irrigation management practices and strategies and plans for sustainable water resources in the delta. Projects in both states are either under consideration or under construction to use surface water for irrigation and industrial uses."

Back in the West where the drought continues, it's hard to imagine the situation correcting overnight, especially with continued population explosions. "It's hard to stop a train like that," Showalter Otts said.

Closer to home, litigation over groundwater is at the forefront and Mississippi v. Tennessee could point the way towards new standards to resolve disputes over interstate groundwater resources.

"As a practicing trial lawyer and former city attorney, I know firsthand the importance of active learning experiences to help develop the skill set necessary to successfully litigate cases. Moot court provides those experiences for students. Through this fund, we hope to help grow the experiential learning team to ensure that any student with an interest in trial work can get practical experience."
Robert L.J. Spence (J.D. '86) and Dorchelle Spence (BA '94; BBA '12) recently committed $36,000 to the Robert L.J. Spence, Jr. Moot Court Award, which will be an endowed fund to support in-school trial competitions.
When you make a gift to Memphis Law, you
MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN YOUR COMMUNITY.
U of M
THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Contact Holly Hazlett at (901) 678-4726 to see how you can invest in Memphis Law.

1 North Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103-2189

PRESORTED
Non-Profit Org
U.S. POSTAGE PAID
MEMPHIS, TN
PERMIT NO. 207

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

MEMPHIS LAW MOURNS THE PASSING OF PROFESSOR EMERITUS JANET RICHARDS

"Professor Richards was respected by colleagues and beloved by students," said Peter V. Letsou, Dean of the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. "She left a lasting impression on this law school and her many students that have gone on to become successful attorneys will be her lasting legacy."

Professor Richards served as the Cecil C. Humphreys Professor of Law at Memphis Law, where she joined the faculty in 1978 and served for more than three decades. Professor Richards taught Family Law, Family Law Seminar, Juvenile Law and Sales. She obtained her B.S. and J.D. from the University of Memphis and her LL.M. from Yale. She was a member of the American Law Institute, past chair of the AALS Family and Juvenile Law Section, a master emeritus in the Leo Bearman Sr., Inn of Court and a member of the TBA Family Law Code Commission. She was also a past president of the Tennessee Supreme Court Historical Society, a Tennessee Bar Foundation Fellow, and a recipient of the Memphis Bar Association's prestigious Sam Myar Award.

"It is not hyperbole to say that Janet was a light within the law school, a wonderful mentor, an excellent teacher, a source of wise counsel, always institutionally minded, and of positive outlook and disposition," said professor Kevin Smith, former dean of the University of Memphis School of Law and friend and colleague of professor Richards."

There was nothing she would not do for the law school and for her fellow human beings," said professor William P. Kratzke, echoing the statements of all that knew and worked with her.

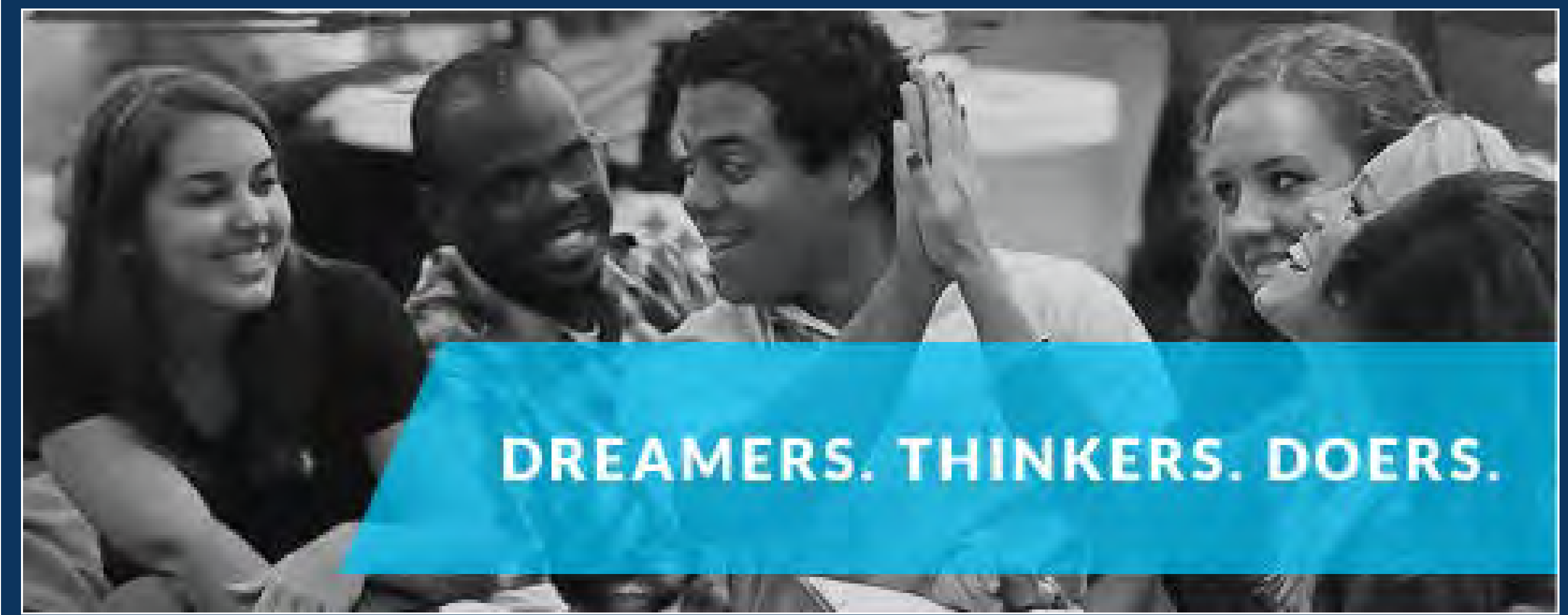
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

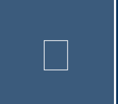
ABA Required Disclosures

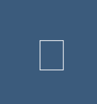
Full sitemap

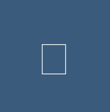


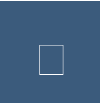
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

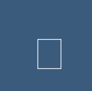
Follow UofM Online

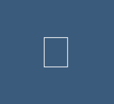












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 1/25/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

PROF. MULROY SPEAKS ON VARIETY OF ISSUES

University of Memphis School of Law Professor and Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, Steve Mulroy spoke with several media outlets regarding a number of recent issues in the news, such as the recent Supreme Court of the United States decisions regarding the Affordable Healthcare Act, the Court's ruling on gay marriage equality, the removal of a Confederate statue from a local park and several issues surrounding the recent deaths of citizens in the Mid-South who were in police custody at the time of their passing.

Additionally, Professor Mulroy officiated the wedding of a local, same-sex couple at the the Memphis Gay and Lesbian Community Center on the same day that the SCOTUS ruling was announced.

SCOTUS Decision media coverage:

- Memphis Flyer - http://www.memphisflyer.com/MemphisGaydar/archives/2015/06/26/couples-tie-the-knot-at-tennessee-equality-project-marriage-celebration
- Memphis Daily News - http://www.memphisdailynews.com/news/2015/jun/27/gay-marriage-marks-first-day-in-memphis
- Fox 13 Memphis - http://www.myfoxmemphis.com/clip/11634049/law-professor-steve-mulroy-talks-about-supreme-court-ruling
- Albany Times Union - http://www.timesunion.com/news/article/Same-sex-couple-marries-in-Nashville-after-ban-6351935.php
- ABC 24 - http://www.localmemphis.com/story/d/story/memphis-lgbt-community-celebrates-marriage-equalit/10678/XptwjdXzE0ORHUFECuWjxA
- WREG Ch. 3 - http://wreg.com/2015/06/26/aca-ruling/

Passenger's rights coverage:

ABC 24 - http://www.localmemphis.com/news/local-news/knowing-the-law-when-being-pulled-over
- Fox 13 Memphis - http://www.myfoxmemphis.com/story/29609910/passengers-rights-when-a-car-is-pulled-over-by-police

Removal of Confederate statue coverage:

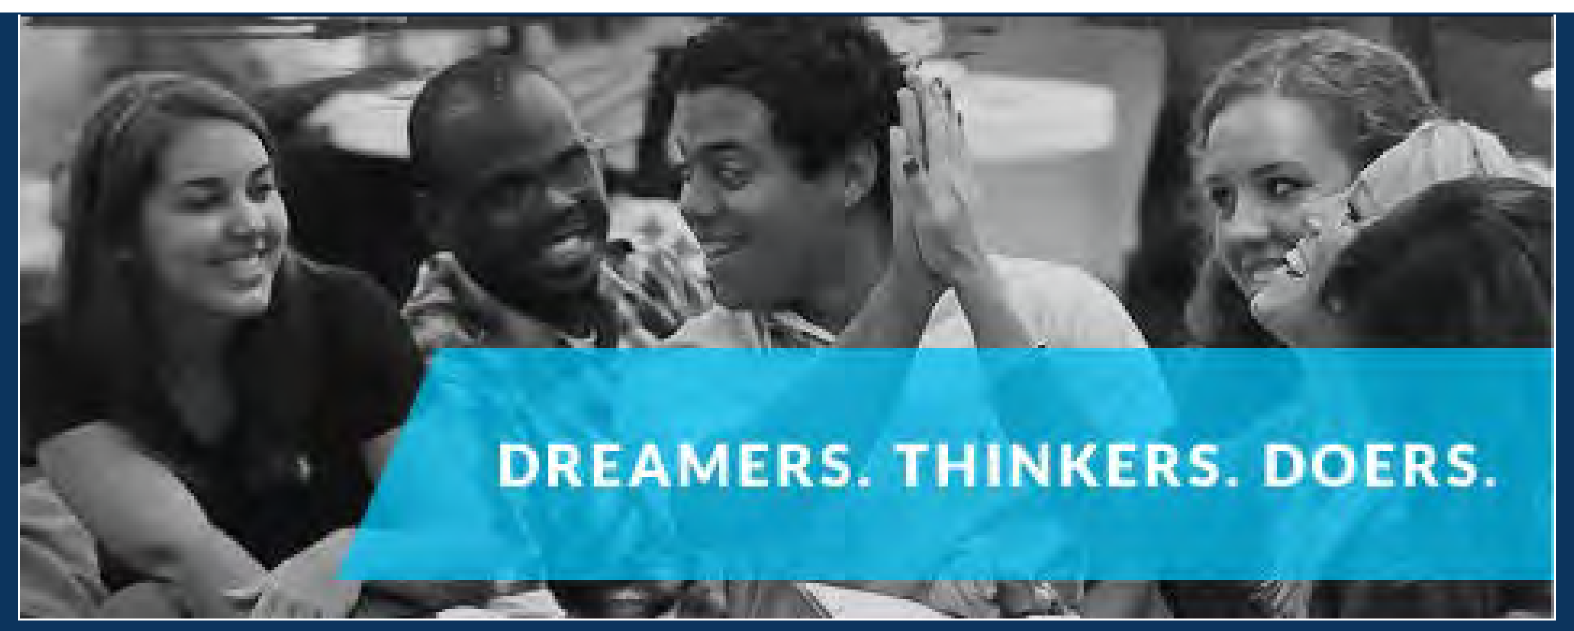
- WMC TV 5 - http://www.wmcactionnews5.com/story/29514094/citys-fight-to-remove-nathan-bedford-forrest-monument-grave-from-park-wont-be-easy

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/9/15 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

ML - Memphis Law Magazine

In this issue, we examine the current state of the bail bonding industry in America, with an interesting and in-depth feature from Lurene Kelley . From how this money-based bail system is being reformed and challenged across the country, to how it is being addressed here in Memphis and across Tennessee, this article examines the issue from all angles.

Our second feature story covers the daily fantasy sports betting industry that is being turned on it's head by new legislation, data leaks and promises of wealth. Toby Sells tells the full story of how the industry itself has been tackled for a major loss.

We also have some wonderful faculty contributions from Professors Demetria Frank and Daniel Kiel, with pieces focusing on Unconscious Bias and the Dual Roles of Public Education, respectively.

Make sure you take a look at the visually striking student profile in this issue too, as it focuses on law students that were student-athletes in their undergraduate careers.

And finally, our alumni spotlight in this issue highlights Marci Harris (JD '06) and her work in using communication, the legislature and a unique online platform called POPVOX to change the world!

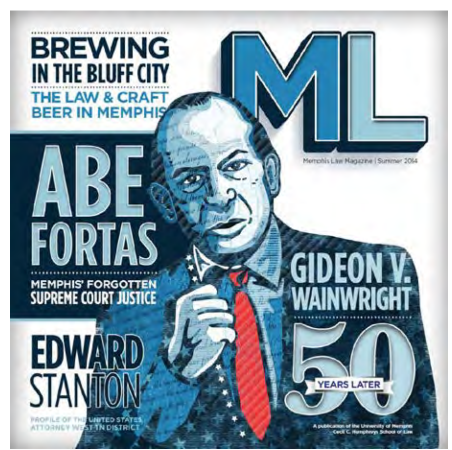
Click HERE to read the full issue online.

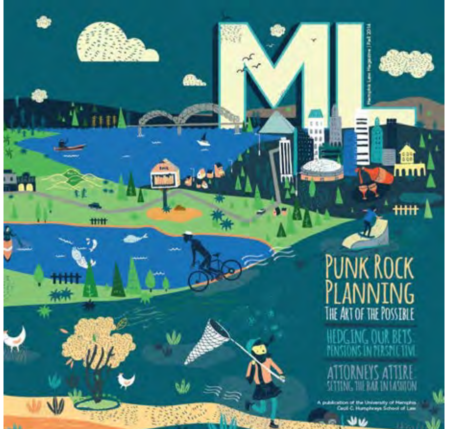
Feel free to send us class notes and updates about your accomplishments. Please include your class year and a high-res head shot, if possible.

To request a hard copy, please email us and we will send you a copy as long as extras are available.

CONTACTING ML:

Ryan Jones - Executive editor
(901) 678-4910
rjones1@memphis.edu
University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front St.
Memphis, TN 38103





ML Issue #1, Spring 2014

ML Issue #2, Fall 2014

ML Issue #3, Spring 2015

ML Issue #4, Fall 2015 ML Issue #5, Spring 2016 ML Issue #6, Fall/Winter 2016

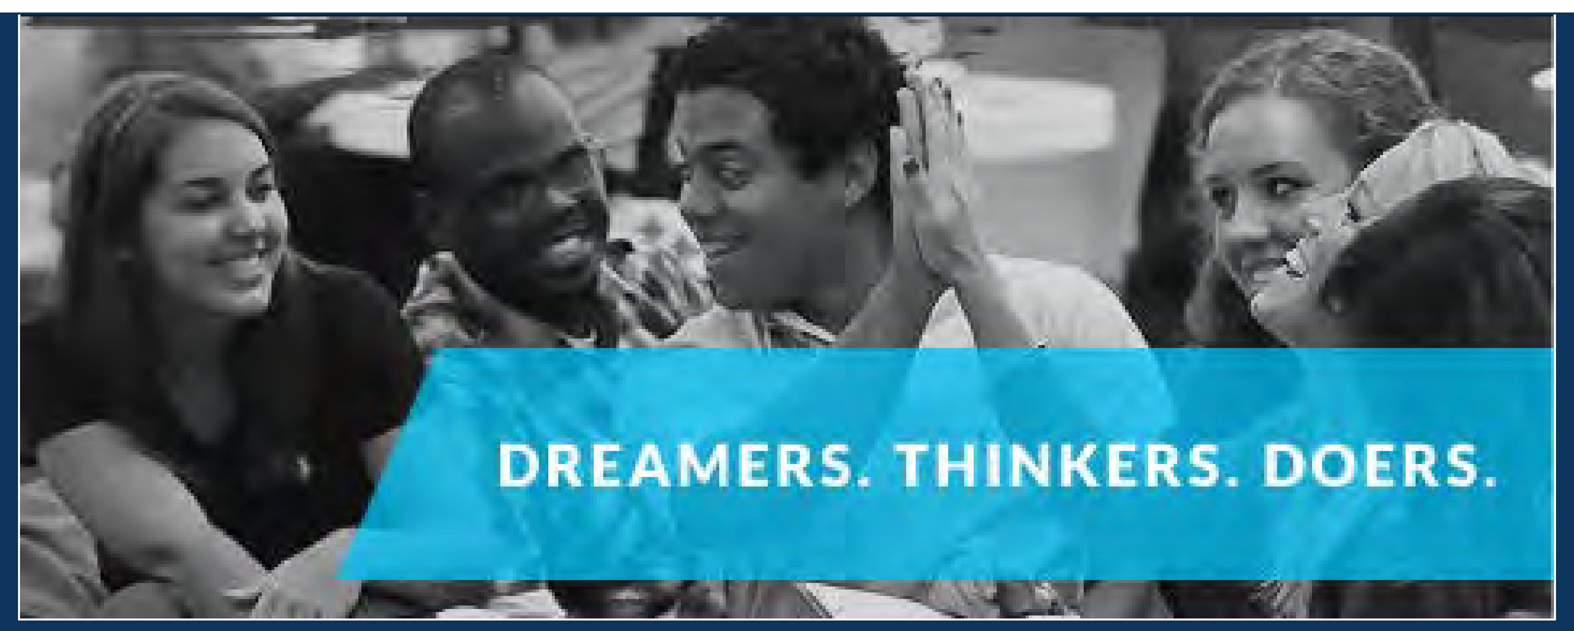
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

2015 CLEA AWARD

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law recent graduate Bill Hardegree (JD 14) was recently awarded the Clinical Legal Education Association (CLEA) Outstanding Student Award.

CLEA recognizes law students who have excelled in clinical fieldwork in law school by providing high quality representation to clients, and who have engaged in exceptionally thoughtful, self-reflective participation in an accompanying clinical seminar. The award is based on excellence in case work and the quality and extent of the student's contribution to the clinical community at his law school. Bill was lauded for, among other things, his ability to set the pace and the standard for his colleagues in his diligence, preparation, thoughtfulness, and motivation to be the best lawyer he can be.

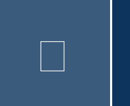
In his mid-semester reflection, Bill Hardegree listed his tenets of life as "passion, diligence, and integrity. He said, "I am extremely passionate about my work. "...If I submit a trial brief with my signature, I will make sure that it is truthful, aesthetically appealing, and better than any sample brief. It may not be perfect, but my diligent pursuit of the best fueled by my passion will make it a contender for perfection."

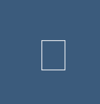
In her nomination letter for Mr. Hardegree, Professor Donna Harkness notes several things about Bill that make him the ideal candidate for this award. She states that in his daily work, Bill lived up to his previously noted tenets, making every effort to take maximum benefit from the clinic and to hone his professionalism and litigation skills. He handled four cases in which he represented eight children. He deliberately chose his cases to give himself a wide range of experience: a highly contested, complex severe child abuse case involving four children ages seven to one; a guardianship for two Central American unaccompanied minors escaping from violence in their home country; a delinquency for a youth facing transfer to adult court, and foster care review for a dependent-delinquent youth in a residential treatment program. He accomplished representation with knowledge, persuasion, and reflection, routinely logging twenty to twenty-five hours per week. Bill not only plans ahead strategically, he seeks out feedback on how he can improve at every juncture.

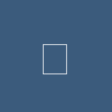
Full sitemap

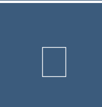
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

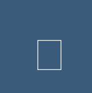
Follow UofM Online

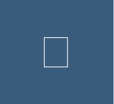












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/9/15 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Faculty & Staff

ARCHIVED FACULTY NEWS

2015

- Professor Christina Zawisza was recently recognized by Florida's Children First, a statewide advocacy organization that she helped to create, as Director Emeritus, with the following statement: "For realizing that Florida's children in care have similar systemic problems across the state, Having the foresight to bring together passionate child advocates to lay the groundwork in creating the leading nonprofit child advocacy organization in the state of Florida, And for tirelessly working to improve child-caring systems, serving for over a decade as a motivating force for all who follow."
- Professor Kate Schaffzin was elected as treasurer of the American Association of Law Schools (AALS) Section on Litigation.
- Professor Kate Schaffzin's article, entitled "Beyond Bobby Jo Clary: The Unavailability of Same-Sex Marital Privileges Infringes the Rights of So Many More than Criminal Defendants," was published in the University of Kansas Law Review.
- Professor Daniel Schaffzin's essay, "So Why Not An Experiential Law School ... Starting With Reflection In The First Year," was published in volume 7 of The Elon Law Review.
- Professor Schaffzin served on the Planning Committee for the Southern Clinical Conference at William & Mary Law School. At the conference he co-presented a concurrent session entitled "Is Subjective Assessment an Indispensable Cornerstone of Clinical Legal Education? Exploring the Role that Subjectivity Should Play in the Evaluation of Law Clinic Students."
- Professor Steve Mulroy was recently published in the Willamette Law Review, the article is entitled "Sunshine's Shadow: Overbroad Open Meetings Laws as Content-Based Speech Restrictions Distinct From Disclosure Requirements."

- Professor Mulroy presented a paper in March at the Sorbonne in Paris, as part of the International Symposium on Freedom of Information & Governmental Transparency in the Open Government Era, University of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne. His paper, "Sunshine's Chill: Overbroad American Open Meetings Laws and the Limits of Disclosure," which takes a comparative approach, will be published in the book produced as part of the symposium.
- Professor Andrew McClurg's article, "In Search of the Golden Mean in the Gun Debate," will be published in volume 58 of the Howard Law Journal as part of a symposium, "Rights vs. Control: America's Perennial Debate on Guns."
- Professor Ernest Lidge's article, "The Necessity of Expanding Protection from Retaliation for Employees Who Complain about Hostile Environment Harassment," was published in the Louisville Law Review.
- Professor Lidge also served as a presenter on a panel at the ABA Practice and Procedure Under the National Labor Relations Act Committee Meeting, Region VIII. The panel topic was "NLRB Rulemaking: Proposed Amendments to Election Procedures."
- Professor Lidge was also a presenter at the Association of Administrative Law Judges Annual Conference, where he spoke on the topic, "Legal Ethics for Administrative Law Judges."
- Professor Christina Zawisza was a presenter at the Association of Administrative Law Judges Annual Conference, where she spoke the topic, "Children in the Courtroom."
- Professor Barbara Kritchevsky gave a presentation entitled "Moot Court Judging: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly," at the Moot Court Conference held at Marquette Law School. She was also a panelist at the same Moot Court Conference, serving on a panel entitled "Teaching Brief-Writing: Some Successful Approaches."
- Professor Daniel Kiel recently had a chapter published in a book entitled "Law & Educational Inequality: Removing Barriers to Educational Opportunities." His chapter, "Equity Through Differentiation," examines the foundation and merits of the claim that equity can be achieved by providing more individualized educational opportunities by granting greater autonomy to individual school leaders.
- Professor D.R. Jones was invited to be a speaker on copyright law at the Wake Forest School of Law Intellectual Property in the Digital Age Symposium. The symposium was in February 2015. Professor Jones discussed fair use issues and issues concerning the resale of digital works.
- Professor Jones' article entitled "Law Firm Copying: An Examination of Different Purpose and Fair Use Markets" will be published in the winter issue of the South Texas Law Review.
- In February 2015, Professor Jones presented a paper topic, "Libraries, Contracts and Copyright" at the 2015 Works-in-Progress Intellectual Property Colloquium (WIPIP) held in Alexandria, Va., at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.
- Professor Donna Harkness's article, entitled "Bridging the Uncompensated Caregiver Gap: Does Technology Provide an Ethically and Legally Viable Answer," was published in the spring 2015 edition of The Elder Law Journal.
- Professor Amy Campbell published a chapter in the Handbook of Community Sentiment. Her chapter was entitled "Is There a Therapeutic Way to Balance Community Sentiment, Student Mental Health, and Student Safety to Address Campus-Related Violence?"
- Professor Campbell also made a presentation, entitled "Embedding a Longitudinal Experience in Public Health Law/Policy in the Academy & Community," at the APHA 2014 annual meeting in New Orleans, Louisiana.

- Professor Ralph Brashier's article, "Conservatorships, Capacity, and Crystal Balls," was the lead article in the first issue of volume 87 of the Temple Law Review (fall 2014).
- The second edition of Professor Brashier's book, "Mastering Elder Law," was published by Carolina Academic Press in January 2015.
- In February 2015, Professor Brashier and Shelby County Probate Judge Kathleen Gomes headed a legal-musical presentation on elder financial abuse, entitled "Probate: How to Catch a Thief," before the Leo Bearman Sr. American Inns of Court.
- Professor Jeremy Bock attended the second annual Roundtable on Empirical Methods in Intellectual Property at IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law. He was also a panelist at the Leo Bearman Sr. American Inn of Court program, "A Case For and Against Patent Reform."
- Professor Jeremy Bock published an article in the University of Richmond Law Review, entitled "Does the Presumption of Validity Matter? An Experimental Assessment."
- Citing our own Professor Katherine Schaffzin prominently, the Supreme Court of New Jersey, in the case O'Boyle v. Borough of Longport, broadly adopted the common interest doctrine. Click here to read more about the case.

Summer/Fall 2014

- Professor Andrew McClurg's book, The "Companion Text to Law School: Understanding and Surviving Life with a Law Student has been named one of Amazon Editors' Favorite Books of the Year.
- Professor Steve Mulroy has been a recently featured speaker at a number of events in Fall 2014, such as:
  - A panel discussion on Tennessee Amendment 2 (judicial selection), Memphis Law SBA sponsored event—October 2014.
  - A presentation on his amicus curiae participation in Van Tran v. Colson (6th Cir. 2014) and his Vermont Law Review article on mental retardation and the death penalty—Sponsored by the Memphis Law Mental Health Law Society.
  - A debate against Prof. John Stinneford, Univ. Florida School of Law, on Eighth Amendment—sponsored by Federalist Society—November 2014.
  - A panel discussion on Amendment 1 (abortion), a Memphis Law SBA/ACS sponsored event—November 2014.
  - Moderated panel discussion between Prof. Michael Helfand of Pepperdine School of Law and Prof. Steven Green of Willamette School of Law re: the Hobby Lobby Supreme Court decision and religious freedom—sponsored by the law school—November 2014.
- Professor Lynda Black's article "The Birth of a Parent: Defining Parentage for Lenders of Genetic Material" was published in the Nebraska Law Review June 2014 edition. She also spoke at the Athens Institute for Education and Research (ATINER) Law Research Conference hosted in Athens, Greece, with a presentation on how the practices of assisted reproductive technology and surrogacy leave open many questions regarding legal parentage, particularly when couples engage in these practices abroad and then return to their home country with the child. Professor Black was also a workshop discussant at the 2014 Annual Conference of the Southeastern Association of Law Schools, where she spoke on the topic of "Innovations in Trusts and Estates."
- Professor Jeremy Bock's article "Restructuring the Federal Circuit" was published in the NYU Journal of Intellectual Property and Entertainment Law.

  - His article "Neutral Litigants in Patent Cases" was published in the North Carolina Journal of Law & Technology in 2014.
- Professor Donna Harkness participated in the 21st Belle R. & Joseph H. Braun Memorial Symposium/2014 International Elder Law and Policy Conference, jointly sponsored by John Marshall Law School, Roosevelt University and East China University of Political Science and Law, held in Chicago during July. Professor Harkness presented remarks as part of the Panel 2 discussion – "Health Care, Caregiving for Older Persons, and Legal Decision Making." Professor Harkness' recently published article "What Are Families For? Re-evaluating Return to Filial Responsibility Laws" was also featured in Professor Katherine Pearson's (Penn State Dickinson Law) March 18, 2014, post to the Elder Law Prof Blog.
- Professor Jones presented a paper on "Law Firm Copying and Fair Use" at the Works in Progress Intellectual Property (WIPIP) Colloquium held at Santa Clara University School of Law, Santa Clara, Calif., in February and at the 15th Annual Intellectual Property Scholars' Conference held at UC Berkeley, Berkeley, Calif., in August.
- Professor Jones was the moderator and a speaker for the program "Emerging Issues in Copyright: What You Need to Know" at the American Association of Law Libraries Annual Meeting in July 2014.
- Professor Daniel Kiel made two presentations at the Education & Civil Rights Conference at Penn State School of Law in June 2014. One paper offered the merger and demerger of school districts in Shelby County as a case study of contemporary educational reform, while the other made a broad structural critique of the American education system as one of inherent inequality.
- Professor Kiel also served on the scholar review committee for the renovations to the National Civil Rights Museum, which reopened in April. He consulted on the completely reconfigured exhibition on Brown v. Board of Education and contributed footage that is now featured in the museum.
- Professor Boris Mamlyuk published an article titled "Regionalizing Multilateralism: The Effect of Russia's Accession to the WTO on Existing Regional Integration Schemes in the Former Soviet Space" in the UCLA Journal of International Law & Foreign Affairs.
- Florida State University Law Review published Professor Mulroy's article "Raising The Floor Of Company Conduct: Deriving Public Policy From The Constitution In An Employment-At-Will Arena," co-authored by Elon University Professor (and former Memphis law professor) Amy Moorman in the fall of 2014. Professor Mulroy has authored another law review article "Sunshine's Shadow: Overbroad Open Meetings Acts As Content-Based And Distinct From Finance Disclosure" which has been accepted for publication in several law journals and is currently being evaluated by others. He made a presentation on this article at St. Mary's Law School in San Antonio, Texas in the fall of 2014.
- Visiting Assistant Professor John Newman's article "Cloud-Computing Contracts and Innovation Policy" was accepted for publication in the Handbook of Research on Digital Transformations for a forthcoming 2015 issue.
- Professor Daniel Schaffzin's latest article "Warning! Lawyer Advertising May Be Hazardous to Your Health: A Call to Limit Commercial Solicitation of Clients in Pharmaceutical Litigation" was published in the winter 2013-14 volume of the Charleston Law Review. The article has been reprinted in the latest Volume 63 of the Defense Law Journal.
- In April 2014, Professor Daniel Schaffzin co-presented a concurrent session entitled "Educating Money (and Other Motivators): Teaching Social Justice and Life Balance to Future For-Profit Attorneys" at the annual AALS Conference on Clinical Education in Chicago, Ill.
- Professor Katherine Schaffzin has been named as a Provost's Fellow by the University of Memphis and will serve in this role in the Provost's office in spring 2015.

- Professor Katherine Schaffzin also had her article "Beyond Bobby Jo Clary: The Unavailability of Same-Sex Marital Privileges Infringes the Rights of So Many More than Criminal Defendants" in the October 2014 issue of the Kansas Law Review.
- Professor Kevin Smith published his article "25 années de problem-solving courts aux Etats-Unis" in the French publication Cahiers de la sécurité intérieure (Journal of Safety).
- Professor Smith also continues his service on the Tennessee Access to Justice Commission – Education Advisory Committee and the Tennessee Access to Justice Commission – Pro Bono Committee.
- During the Legal Writing Institute's 2014 Biennial Conference, Professor Jodi Wilson gave a poster presentation entitled "Wikipedia on the Rise: Teaching Legal Writers to Assess Non-Traditional Sources." In June 2014, Professor Wilson gave a joint presentation with Robert B. Vandiver, Jr., entitled "Joint Representation in Bankruptcy - Ethical Considerations" at the American Bankruptcy Institute's 2014 Memphis Consumer Bankruptcy Conference. Professor Wilson has been appointed to serve as the chair of the Listserv Committee of the Legal Writing Institute and the co-chair of the Survey Committee of the Association of Legal Writing Directors.
- In April 2014, Professor Chris Zawisza presented a seminar on "Hot Topics in Education Law" to over 100 student teachers in the University of Memphis Department of Education student teaching seminar. In June 2014, she presented a CLE on "Ethics and Professionalism: Integrity in the Courtroom" in Nashville on behalf of the Tennessee Administrative Office of the Courts Dependency Court Improvement Program (AOC). The session has been videotaped for viewing on the AOC website.

Spring 2014

- Professor Boris Mamlyuk's essay, Uniting for "Peace" in the Second Cold War: A Response to Larry Johnson, was recently published on the American Society for International Law website. To read the full essay, please click here.
- In an extremely unique result of legal scholarship, Prof. Andrew McClurg's presumption proposal in the recent Hasting Law Journal was enacted into law in Florida. The presumption statute pass unanimously through each legislative committee and also the Florida House and Senate. Florida Governor Rick Scott signed it into law on June 20, 2014 and it has an effective date of October 1, 2014. This is the ONLY statute of its type in the nation. To read a PDF version of the original article, click HERE. To see the final version of the Florida statute, please click HERE.
- Prof. Amy Campbell, director of the University of Memphis Health Law Institute, has been selected as one of 10 faculty fellows chosen to participate in the Future of Public Health Law Education: Faculty Fellowship Program. The program is funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to foster innovations and build a learning community among those who teach public health law at professional and graduate schools. For more information, visit law.gsu.edu/phlfellowship.
- Professor D.R. Jones is the recipient of the 2014 American Association of Law Libraries Law Library Journal Article of the Year Award. This national award, which is one of AALL's highest honors, is given for outstanding achievement in research and writing. The award is for Professor Jones' article entitled Locked Collections: Copyright and the Future of Research Support, 105 Law Library Journal 425 (2013) (available HERE). Professor Jones will receive the award at the AALL Annual Meeting in July 2014.

Spring 2013

- Prof. Boris Mamlyuk participated in an academic conference titled "Russia Between Asia and Europe" in Moscow and Perm, Russia from May 27 to June 2, 2013. The conference was organized by Rossotrudnichestvo, under the jurisdiction of the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Prof. Mamlyuk also participated in the Institute for Global Law and Policy Conference and Colloquium at Harvard Law School from June 2 to June 8, 2013. Prof. Mamlyuk presented remarks on a forthcoming article with Dr. Karolina Zurek, titled "Political Economy of a 21st Century Corporate Mass Merger: Walmart-Massmart and the Future of Global Governance."
- Prof. Andrew McClurg and portions of his book, The Companion Text to Law School: Understanding and Surving Life with a Law Student, were featured in an article from The National Jurist entitled "Can You Love While in Law School?" Click here for the full article.
- Prof. Christina Zawisza was reappointed by the Tennessee Supreme Court to the Court Improvement Program Work Group. The Supreme Court has asked the Work Group to review and revise the Tennessee Rules of Juvenile Procedure.
- Prof. Kate Schaffzin's article, The Great and Powerful Oz Revealed: The Ethics and Wisdom of the SCOTUS Leaks in National Federation of Independent Business v. Sebilius, 7 CHARLESTON L. REV. 317 (Winter 2012-13) (invited submission) will be published later this year in the Charleston Law Review.
- Prof. Jodi Wilson has several recent publications: How the Supreme Court Thwarted the Purpose of the Federal Arbitration Act, 63 CASE W. RES. L. REV. 91 (2012) and Students Can't Avoid What They Can't See: Helping Students Recognize Ethical Pitfalls, THE SECOND DRAFT, Fall 2012, at 11. A forthcoming publication will be: Teaching by Engaging; Engaging by Gaming, The Learning Curve (forthcoming Winter 2013-2014).
- Associate Dean for Academic Affairs David Romantz was elected to the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS) Section for Legislation & Law of Political Process.
- Prof. Kate Schaffzin presented at the Tennessee District Attorneys General Conference at the University of Memphis School of Law in early 2013. She presented a course on Prosecutorial Ethics in Closing Arguments.
- Whitney Curtis, Assistant Director for Public Services in the Memphis Law Library, recently published an article titled We Go Out Looking for Trouble: Taking Library Services to the Patrons' Point of Need in Perspectives: Teaching Legal Research and Writing.
- Assistant Professor Boris Mamlyuk presented a paper at the University of Maryland, in connection with the annual meeting of the Society of American Law Teachers. The presentation topic was "Logic and Pedagogy: Third World Perspectives & Public International Law." A link to the conference can be found here.
- Prof. Shapiro's article titled Examining an Underdeveloped Constitutional Standard: Trial in Absentia and the Relinquishment of a Criminal Defendant's Right to be Present will be published in the Winter, 2013 issue of the Marquette Law Review.
- Prof. Daniel Kiel was recently selected as one of the University of Memphis' 2013 Martin Luther King, Jr. Human Rights Award recipients.
- Prof. Alena Allen recently presented her paper, Direct to Consumer Advertising and Neo Classical Economics: A Dangerous Cocktail, at the St. Louis University and American Society of Law, Medicine, and Ethics health scholars workshop.

Prof. D.R. Jones was appointed to serve on the American Association of Law Libraries' Copyright Committee, a national committee that serves to represent, promote, and advocate AALL's interests regarding copyright and other intellectual property issues.

- Professor D.R. Jones' article, Protecting the Treasure: An Assessment of State Court Rules and Policies for Access to Online Civil Court Records, was accepted for publication in the Drake Law Review, volume 61, issue 2 (2013). The article has been distributed in the LSN Information Privacy Law eJournal (sponsored by the George Washington University Law School and the Berkeley Center for Law and Technology), the LSN Cyberspace Law eJournal and the LSN Information & Technology eJournal.

Fall 2012

- Assistant Dean for Career Services, Estelle Winsett, was recently named one of the 2013 Memphis Bar Association Fellows.
- Professor Lynda Black's review of Alan L. Feld's article, Who Are the Beneficiaries of Fisk University's Stieglitz Collection?, was recently published inTrusts & Estates JOTWELL publication. Please read her full review, The Failings of Donor Intent, by clicking here>>
- Herff Chair and Professor Andrew McClurg's article , Fight Club: Doctors vs. Lawyers, was recently published as the lead article in Chicago Medicine Magazine, the official publication of the Chicago Medical Society. The article is a revised, shortened version of an article McClurg originally published in the Temple Law Review. To read the article, please click here>>
- Herff Chair and Professor Andrew McClurg's book review of Philip Howard's Life Without Lawyers: Restoring Responsibility in America has been published in the American Journal of Legal History, vol. 52, p. 387.
- Professor Danny Schaffzin has been appointed by Memphis Mayor A.C. Wharton, Jr. to serve on the Memphis Civil Service Commission. The Civil Service Commission, comprised of seven members, conducts hearings to review disciplinary actions, including suspensions, dismissals, or demotions, of any city employees not exempted from the provisions of the City of Memphis Charter and Code. Members of the Commission are appointed by the Mayor, with the approval of a majority of the Memphis City Council. Professor Schaffzin will serve a three-year term as a commissioner.

Summer 2012

- The Community Alliance for the Homeless has recognized our very own Professor Steve Mulroy, also a Shelby County Commissioner, by awarding him the Homeless Public Champion Award for his recent advocacy for the homeless. Please click here to read more.
- Jamie B. Kidd has been named the assistant director for Law School Administration at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. Her responsibilities will include matters concerning human resources, accreditation, budgeting, academic regulations, and other administration-related projects.
- Jacqueline O'Bryant is the new coordinator of diversity programs at the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis. O'Bryant will oversee the Tennessee Institute for Prelaw, the state's only summer diversity access program for law school. She will also actively recruit and support diverse law students, while developing additional diversity outreach initiatives for the school.
- The Student Bar Association has named Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Parker as the 2011-2012 Adjunct Professor of the Year and has posthumously named Professor Francis Gabor as the 2011-

2012 Professor of the Year.
- Professor Daniel Kiel received the Farris Bobango Scholarship Award for The Memphis 13, a documentary film. The film tells the stories of the 13 African-American individuals who broke the color line in the Memphis City Schools system.
- Herff Chair and Professor Andrew McClurg is one of 10 professors nationwide to be invited to this summer's West Author Inside Look conference, in which select West Academic Publishing authors are invited to the publisher's manufacturing headquarters in Minneapolis to meet with editors and staff to tour the facility and discuss current and future trends in legal publishing.

Spring 2012

- Professor Boris Mamlyuk will be participating in the third annual Institute of Global Law and Policy workshop at Harvard Law School from May 29 to June 9, 2012. Click here to view a video of Professor Mamlyuk's from last year's Workshop.
- Whitney A. Curtis, Assistant Director, Public Services at the Law Library, was a presenter at the 2012 Southeastern American Association of Law Libraries Conference. The Conference is entitled In Step with the Future, and is in Clearwater Beach, Florida on March 22-24, 2012. Ms. Curtis will present a session entitled We Go Out Looking for Trouble: Taking Library Services to Patrons' Point of Need. This presentation is part of the SEAALL Insitutute, Going Mobile in a Mobile World.
- Professor Christina Zawisza has been reappointed by Tennessee Supreme Court Justice Sharon Lee for an additional year on the Court Improvement Program Workgroup. The workgroup is charged with identifying and addressing barriers for safety, permanency, and child and family well-being at the state and local levels.
- At the invitation of the Governor's Counsel, Professor Eugene Shapiro recently submitted his views concerning the constitutional issues involved with the state regulation of a public forum.
- Two law professors, Chris Zawisza and Angela Laughlin Brown, are working with law students to assist the Shelby County Juvenile Court in operating its Youth Court program. Youth Court is an effort to divert juvenile first time offenders from adjudication as delinquents. Professor Zawisza recently presided over one Youth Court trial, while a Student Attorney in the Child and Family Litigation Clinic, Jennifer Sutch, mentored a young prosecutor. Professor Laughlin-Brown also recently mentored a high school student and also introduced her Evidence students to the Youth Court process.
- Professor Daniel Schaffzin was a presenter at the Externships 6 Conference, Preparing Lawyers: The Role of Field Placement, co-hosted by Harvard Law School and Northeastern University School of Law on March 1-4, 2012. Professor Schaffzin presented as part of a session entitled "Necessary Control or Control Freak? For and Against Faculty Selection of For-Credit Field Placements for Externship Students."
- Professor Alena Allen recently published an article in the BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY LAW REVIEW entitled State-Mandated Disability Insurance as Salve to the Consumer Bankruptcy Imbroglio.
- Professor Barbara Kritchevsky, whose article, Judging: The Missing Piece of the Moot Court Puzzle, served as inspiration for the Legal Writing Institute's model guidelines for oral argument judges. The guidelines will be used by coordinators of intramural and national moot court competitions to educate their oral argument judges. The article originally appeared in 37 U. Mem. L. Rev. 45 (2006).
- Professor and Herff Chair Andrew McClurg was interviewed on West Academic Publishing's Insider Blog about his new book, The "Companion Text" to Law School: Understanding and Surviving Life with a Law Student.

- Callie Caldwell (JD 10) has been named the first public interest counselor in the Office of Career Services. Read more here>>
- Estelle Winsett, Assistant Dean for Career Services, was recently named a West TN Delegate for the TBA General, Solo and Small Firm Practitioner's Section Executive Council.
- Professor Katharine Traylor Schaffzin contributed to the winter edition of the AALS Evidence Section Newsletter.
- Professor Daniel Schaffzin will be a presenter at the Externships 6 Conference in March. Professor Schaffzin's session abstract is "Necessary Control or Control Freak? For and Against Faculty Selection of For-Credit Field Placements for Externship Students." The session will be held at Harvard Law School.
- Professor Boris Mamlyuk recently published an article in the WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY GLOBAL STUDIES LAW REVIEW entitled Russia and Legal Harmonization: an Historical Inquiry into IP Reform as Global Convergence and Resistance.
- Professor Lee Harris recently gave a talk to Duquense Law School faculty in Pittsburgh, regarding executive compensation and reform.
- Professor and Herff Chair Andrew McClurg recently published a book entitled, The "Companion" Text to Law School: Understanding and Surviving Life with a Law Student (West 2012). Read more about the book here.
- Fall 2011
- Professor Donna Harkness published an article in the December 2011 edition of the TENNESSEE BAR JOURNAL, Now That We've Got It, What Does It Do For Us? The Uniform Adult Guardianship and Protective Proceedings Jurisdiction Act! The article is the feature story in the publication.
- Professor Katharine Traylor Schaffzin contributed to the winter edition of the AALS Evidence Section Newsletter.
- Professor Katarine Traylor Schaffzin authored three guest posts on EvidenceProf Blog regarding the newly revised Federal Rules of Evidence that became effective on December 1, 2011. Click on the following links for the posts: Take 1, Take 2 and Take 3.
- Professor Lee Harris recently authored a guest column for the Commercial Appeal.
- Professor and Herff Chair Andrew McClurg was recently featured in an entertaining article in the Commercial Appeal.
- Associate Dean David Romantz spoke to the Memphis Daily News about the law school's new curriculum, effective for the incoming class of 2012.
- Professor and Herff Chair Andrew McClurg's article, Fixing the Broken Windows of Online Privacy Through Private Ordering: A Facebook Application, has been published as the feature article by the Wake Forest Law Review Online.
- Professor Boris Mamlyuk attended a conference on Third World Approaches to International Law (TWAIL) hosted by the University of Oregon, School of Law from October 20-22, 2011. His presentation discussed whether TWAIL frameworks offer any guidance to understanding international law developments in the Post-Soviet space. Additionally, Professor Mamlyuk moderated a panel titled "Situating TWAIL within Political Struggles and Ideational Contestations." The conference brought more than 50 international law scholars from more than ten countries.
- Professor Ernest Lidge was a panel speaker at the ABA/NLRA Practice and Procedure Region meeting on Friday, Sept. 10 on the topic of "NLRB Rule Making: Proposed Amendments to Election Procedures." He will also speak at the upcoming Federal Bar Association Annual Seminar on Wednesday, Oct. 26 on the topic of "Ethics of Contacting the Opposing Party's Current and Former Employees."

- The Memphis 13, a documentary directed and produced by Professor Daniel Kiel, premiered to the public on Tuesday, October 4, 2011. Click here for the full release.
- Professor Steven Mulroy spoke on Separation of Church and State: DeSoto County Issues on Sept. 15, at the Cordova Library. The event was sponsored by the Memphis Freethought Alliance. The talk dealt with the constitutional issues raised by the recent controversies in DeSoto County regarding the broadcast of prayers at public high school football games, and the distribution of Bibles by private groups on public school campuses during school hours.
- The Law Teacher will publish an essay written by David S. Romantz, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, in its spring 2012 edition. Professor Lee Harris was recently included in Memphis-based Grace Magazine's "Top Forty Under Forty" list.
- Read the September issue of the National Jurist for insights from Professor Andrew McClurg about the first year of law school. The Law Teacher is published twice a year by the Institute for Law Teaching and Learning (previously the Institute for Law School Teaching). It provides a forum for ideas for improving teaching and learning in law schools and informs law teachers of the activities of the Institute.
- Jamie Kidd (JD 10) joined the law school in August as Acting Assistant Dean for Administration.
- Memphis Law named five new faculty in the fall of 2011.
- Professor Barbara Kritchevsky chatted with the Daily News in August about her years of involvement with Memphis Law's advocacy program.
- Professor Daniel Kiel was featured in August on CSPAN discussing the history of Memphis school desegregation.
- This summer, Professor Lee Harris published his second book, Corporations and Other Business Entities: A Practical Approach.
- Janette Smith, law school receptionist, received a Bachelor of Professional Studies with a concentration in Organizational Leadership from the University of Memphis.
- Professor and Herff Chair Andrew J. McClurg's book, 1L of a Ride: A Well-Traveled Professor's Roadmap to Success in the First Year of Law School, was recently touted in an article about the summer before law school that appears in both the National Jurist's Prelaw and Concurring Opinions, a well-respected legal blog.

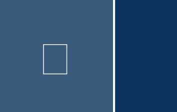
Click here to browse the archived faculty and staff news.

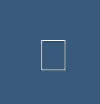
ABA Required Disclosures

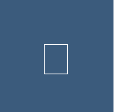
Full sitemap

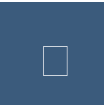
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

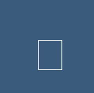
Follow UofM Online

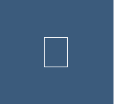












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 7/8/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Alumni

HOW TO GIVE TO MEMPHIS LAW

Gifts of Cash

- Donate online
- Send your gift by mail by downloading the gift form and mailing it to:

The University of Memphis Foundation
Department 238
P.O. Box 1000
Memphis, TN 38148-0001

- Contact Joanna Curtis at jecurtis@memphis.edu or 901-678-5274 to make your gift over the phone.

Matching Gifts

You or your spouse may work for a company that offers to match employees' charitable donations. If that is the case, simply obtain the appropriate form from your company and submit it with your gift to:

The University of Memphis Foundation
Department 238
P.O. Box 1000

Memphis, TN 38148-0001

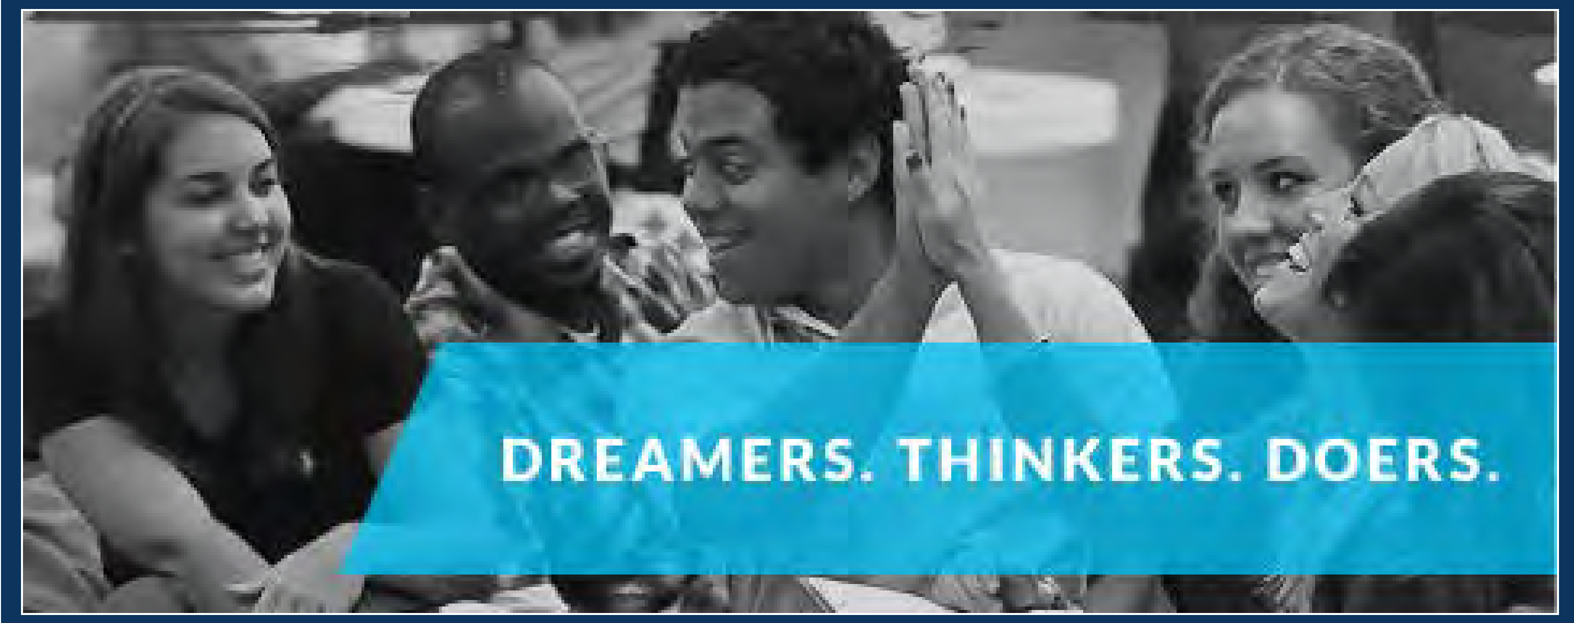
Gifts of stocks, bonds or mutual funds

Your gift of securities can be transferred to the law school through either Morgan Stanley, Merrill Lynch or Raymond James.

Before making the transfer, please call us at (901) 678-4726 with the name and number of the stock you intend to transfer or the approximate value of your gift, as well as your broker's name and phone number. The value of your stock gift is based on the average of the high and low price of the stock on the day it was transferred.

Planned giving

There are numerous opportunities for planned gifts including property, estate, and gifts through wills. For more information on these and other planned giving opportunities for the law school, please contact Holly Hazlett, Sr. Director of Development, at (901) 678-4726.



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/28/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law - 2016 Standard 509 Information Report

1 N. Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103
Phone: 901-678-2421
Website: http://www.memphis.edu/law/

Last Site Visit: 2015-2016
Next Site Visit: 2022-2023

ABA Approved Since 1965

The Basics

Type of school	PUBLIC
Term	Semester
Application deadline	3/5/2018
Application fee	$ 0
Financial aid deadline	4/1/2018
Can first year start other than fall?	No

Tuition and Fees (academic year*)

	Resident	Non-Resident
Full-Time	$ 18,763	$ 25,968
Part-Time	$ 16,789	$ 23,012
Tuition Guarantee Program		No

Living Expenses (academic year*)

Estimated Living Expenses for singles

Living on Campus	$ 17,576
Living Off Campus	$ 17,576
Living at Home	$ 11,410

Conditional Scholarships

Students Matriculating in	# Entering with	# Reduced or Eliminated
2015-2016 Academic Year	19	7
2014-2015 Academic Year	29	13
2013-2014 Academic Year	22	12

GPA and LSAT Scores (calendar year)

	Total	Full-Time	Part-Time
of apps	587	587	0
of offers	324	324	0
of matriculants	110	106	4
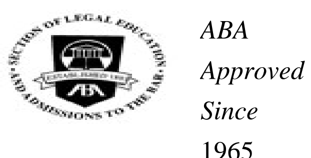
75th Percentile GPA	3.54	3.54	0.00
50th Percentile GPA	3.24	3.24	0.00
25th Percentile GPA	3.01	3.01	0.00
not incl. in GPA percentile calc.	-4.00	-4.00	0.00
75th Percentile LSAT	154	154	0
50th Percentile LSAT	151	151	0
25 Percentile LSAT	149	149	0
not incl. in LSAT percentile calc.	-4	-4	0

Grants and Scholarships (prior academic year*)

	Total		Full-Time		Part-Time
	#	%	#	%	#	%
Total # of students	330	100	307	93	23	7
Total # receiving grants	141	42.7	138	45	3	13
Less than 1/2 tuition	98	29.7	95	30.9	3	13
Half to full tuition	33	10	33	10.7	0	0
Full tuition	8	2.4	8	2.6	0	0
More than full tuition	2	0.6	2	0.7	0	0
75th Percentile grant amount			$ 9,194		$ 7,000
50th Percentile grant amount			$ 7,860		$ 7,000
25th Percentile grant amount			$ 4,000		$ 6,611

J.D. Enrollment and Ethnicity (academic year*)

	Men		Women		Other		Full-Time		Part-Time		First - Year		Total		J.D. Deg Awd
	#	%	#	%	#	%	#	%	#	%	#	%	#	%
Hispanics of any race	7	3.9	9	6.1	0	0	16	5.2	0	0	5	4.5	16	4.9	2
American Indian or Alaska Native	2	1.1	2	1.4	0	0	4	1.3	0	0	2	1.8	4	1.2	3
Asian	2	1.1	6	4.1	0	0	8	2.6	0	0	1	0.9	8	2.5	1
Black or African American	16	9	36	24.5	0	0	41	13.3	11	64.7	13	11.8	52	16	17
Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Two or more races	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Total Minority	27	15.2	53	36.1	0	0	69	22.4	11	64.7	21	19.1	80	24.6	23
White	150	84.3	93	63.3	0	0	238	77.3	5	29.4	89	80.9	243	74.8	76
Nonresident Alien	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Race and Ethnicity Unknown	1	0.6	1	0.7	0	0	1	0.3	1	5.9	0	0	2	0.6	1
Total	178	54.8	147	45.2	0	0	308	94.8	17	5.2	110	33.8	325	100	100



ABA Approved Since 1965

Curriculum (prior academic year*)

Typical first-year section size	60
of classroom course titles beyond first-year curriculum	89
of upper division classroom course sections
Under 25	80
25 - 49	12
50 - 74	4
75 - 99	8
100+	0
of positions available in simulation courses	291
of simulation positions filled	228
of seminar positions filled	89
of law clinics	12
of seats available in the law clinics identified in sub-part (i) above	73
of seats filled in the law clinics identified in sub-part (i) above	61
of field placement positions filled	101
of students who enrolled in independent study	0
of students who participated in law journals	72
of students who participated in interschool skills competitions	59

Faculty and Administrators (calendar year)

	Total		Men		Women		Other		Minorities
	Spr	Fall	Spr	Fall	Spr	Fall	Spr	Fall	Spr	Fall
Full-Time	22	22	12	12	10	10	0	0	3	3
Deans, librarians & others who teach	3	3	2	2	1	1	0	0	0	0
Part-Time	38	23	28	16	10	7	0	0	6	4
	63	48	42	30	21	18			9	7

J.D. Attrition (prior academic year*)

	Academic	Transfer	Other	Total
	#	#	#	#	%
1st year	5	3	6	14	12
2nd year	2	0	0	2	1.8
3rd year	0	0	0	0	0
4th year	0	0	0	0	0

Transfers (prior academic year*)

Transfers In

#
See Appendix for list of schools from which students transferred
Transfers Out	3

Bar Passage Rates (February and July 2015)

First Time Takers: 102

Jurisdiction	Takers	Passers	Pass %	State %	Diff. %
Tennessee	95	71	74.74	78.04	-3.30

Reporting %	Avg. School Pass %	Avg. State Pass %	Avg. Pass Diff. %
93.14	74.74	78.04	-3.30

Bar Passage Rates (February and July 2014)

First Time Takers: 123

Jurisdiction	Takers	Passers	Pass %	State %	Diff. %
Tennessee	114	82	71.93	74.52	-2.59

Reporting %	Avg. School Pass %	Avg. State Pass %	Avg. Pass Diff. %
92.68	71.93	74.52	-2.59

Bar Passage Rates (February and July 2013)

First Time Takers: 122

Jurisdiction	Takers	Passers	Pass %	State %	Diff. %
Tennessee	117	103	88.03	85.49	2.54

Reporting %	Avg. School Pass %	Avg. State Pass %	Avg. Pass Diff. %
95.90	88.03	85.49	2.54

* "Academic year" refers to the 2016 - 2017 academic year.  "Calendar year" refers to the 2016 calendar year.

TRANSFER OF CREDIT POLICY

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.

To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

In conformity with the Association of American Law Schools (AALS), the University of Memphis School of Law may grant a transfer student academic credit up to the equivalent of three semesters for full-time students or up to the equivalent of four semesters for part-time students for work successfully completed at another AALS-accredited law school, and two semesters for full-time students or 2.6 semesters for part-time students for work successfully completed at a non-AALS school.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

JD/MBA PROGRAM

The School of Law and the College of Business and Economics offer a coordinated degree program leading to the conferral of the JD and MBA. The purpose of this joint degree program is to allow the student to study the intricacies of modern law and management as a coordinated educational effort. Students who are contemplating a career as a lawyer specializing in business issues and want to acquire the skills and perspective of the business manager will find the JD/MBA especially helpful. An additional benefit of the joint program is that it offers the student the ability to complete both the JD and MBA in considerably less time than required to complete each degree separately.

Admission

An applicant must submit separate applications and be independently accepted to both the JD and MBA programs. A student is encouraged to apply to both programs at the same time. A law student must begin the MBA program before beginning the third year of law school course work. An MBA student must begin law school before completing one half of the course work in the MBA program. This program is designed for students who wish to complete both degrees simultaneously.

Curriculum

Students are expected to work toward both degrees concurrently. As part of the cooperative nature of the JD/MBA program, the College of Business and Economics and the School of Law have agreed to accept course work from each college toward their specific degrees.

Benefits

The School of Law will award credit toward the JD degree for nine hours of approved Core Curriculum course work with a grade of B or better from the MBA program. Grades in these MBA courses transfer to the School of Law on a Pass/No Grade basis. Grades in MBA courses are not used to determine academic standing or class rank in the School of Law. These nine credit hours count for a portion of the thirty-five JD elective hours.

The College of Business and Economics will award credit toward the MBA degree for nine credit hours from approved courses offered by the School of Law. The student must earn a C+ or better on the law classes used for the MBA. The law classes will not be used towards computing the MBA grade point average; however, no more than two C's may count towards the MBA portion of the joint degree program. These nine credit hours count for the three elective hours and six required hours of the MBA degree. The decision on which six required hours are substituted is at the discretion of the director of the MBA program.

MBA Classes Substituted for JD Classes

For JD/MBA students, the law school will accept up to 9 credits from the following list of courses offered by the MBA program:

- ACCT 7080: Financial and Managerial Accounting for Managers. (3)
- ECON 7100: Economics for the Global Executive. (3)
- MIS 7650: Information Systems in the Global Enterprise. (3)

- FIR 7155: Global Financial Management. (3)
- SCMS 7313: Global Operations Management. (3)
- SCMS 7110: Quantitative Tools for Managers. (3)
- MKTG 7140: Global Strategic Marketing. (3)
- MGMT 7160: Global Strategic Management. (3)

These courses will replace electives hours otherwise required in the Law School curriculum. Only classes taken live (i.e. not online) will be awarded transfer credit.

JD Classes Substituted for MBA Classes

For JD/MBA students, the director of the MBA program will have the discretion to approve course substitutions of up to 9 credits from the following list of courses offered by the law school:

- Administrative Law (311)
- Antitrust (318)
- Arbitration/Labor (315)
- Banking Law (385)
- Bankruptcy Reorganization Seminar (442)
- Business Organizations I (211)
- Business Organizations II (319)
- Commercial Law (700)
- Commercial Paper (323)
- Comparative Law Seminar (441)
- Corporate Finance (384)
- Corporate Tax (334)
- Debtor-Creditor Relations (327)
- Employment & Labor Law Seminar (443)
- Environmental Law (328)
- Environmental Law Seminar (438)
- Health Care Insurance & Regulation Seminar (434)
- Health Law (336)
- Health Law Organization, Regulation, and Finance (302)
- Immigration Law (337)
- Insurance Law (339)
- International Business Transactions (399)
- International Economic Law (397)
- International Finance (338)
- International Law (340)
- Labor Law (343)
- Labor Relations (343)
- Land Use Planning (344)
- Mergers & Acquisitions (301)
- Non-Profit Organizations (370)

- Partnership Tax (352)
- Problems in Bankruptcy (354)
- Realty Transactions (358)
- Sales (359)
- Securities Regulations (361)
- Sports Law (372)
- Transnational Legal Problems (365)
- Unfair Trade Practices (366)

To facilitate customization, students are encouraged to consult with the director of the MBA program to add to this list in order to complement their desired course plan.

Program Sequence

Students in the coordinated JD/MBA program may schedule their course work in the joint program to suit their educational objectives, subject to the restrictions listed below:

- A student may take only law courses while completing the first year law curriculum.
- A law student must begin the MBA program before beginning the third year of law school course work.
- An MBA student must begin law school before completing one half of the course work in the MBA program.

Important note about cost

The Tennessee Board of Regents charges a student in a joint degree program the higher tuition for all credits earned in either degree. Since law school tuition is higher than graduate business school tuition, students in the joint degree are charged law school tuition rates for course credit in both law school and business school even when a student only takes business school courses in a semester.

Contact Information

Before Entrance to JD:

Sue Ann McClellan, Ed.D.
Assistant Dean for Law Admissions, Recruiting and Scholarships
University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Phone: (901) 678-5403
smcclell@memphis.edu

Meredith Aden, J.D., LL.M.
Assistant Dean for Law Student Affairs
University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Phone: (901) 678-3441
maden@memphis.edu

Before Entrance to MBA:

Ms. Marja Martin
MBA Academic Advisor
University of Memphis Fogelman College of Business and Economics
Phone: (901) 678-3656
mnmartin@memphis.edu

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

JD/MA IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

Program Admission

Admission to the dual program will require separate admission to both the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and the University of Memphis Department of Political Science. However, for applicants to the joint program, the Political Science Department will accept LSAT scores in lieu of the GRE. Students are admitted into each program separately; completion of one degree is not contingent upon completion of both.

Program Requirements

The MA degree program will accept up to 16 hours for courses taken at the law school. The remaining hours toward the MA in Political Science must be taken in Political Science. Students may take only law courses while completing the first year law curriculum. The following courses will qualify for credit in the MA in Political Science:

Law Courses required at Law School

- Constitutional Law (4 hours)
- Criminal Law (3 hours)
- Criminal Procedure I (3 hours)

Law School Electives

- Administrative Law (3 hours)
- Criminal Procedure II (2 hours)
- Federal Courts A (2 hours)
- Federal Courts B (2 hours)
- Civil Rights (3 hours)
- Constitutional Law Seminar (2 hours)
- Tennessee Con Law (2 hours)
- Jurisprudence (2 hours)
- International Law (3 hours)
- Comparative Law (3 hours)
- Immigration Law (3 hours)
- Environmental Law (3 hours)

With the above exceptions, all the requirements for admission and graduation for the JD degree and the MA in Political Science degree apply.

This is a unique and wonderful opportunity for students. If you have any questions about this program, please contact Dr. Michael Sances, Assistant Professor, 901.678.2395. For questions about law school admissions, please contact Meredith Aden, J.D., LL.M., Assistant Dean for Law Student Affairs at (901) 678-3441 or maden@memphis.edu.

To view a comprehensive brochure about the program, please click the image below.

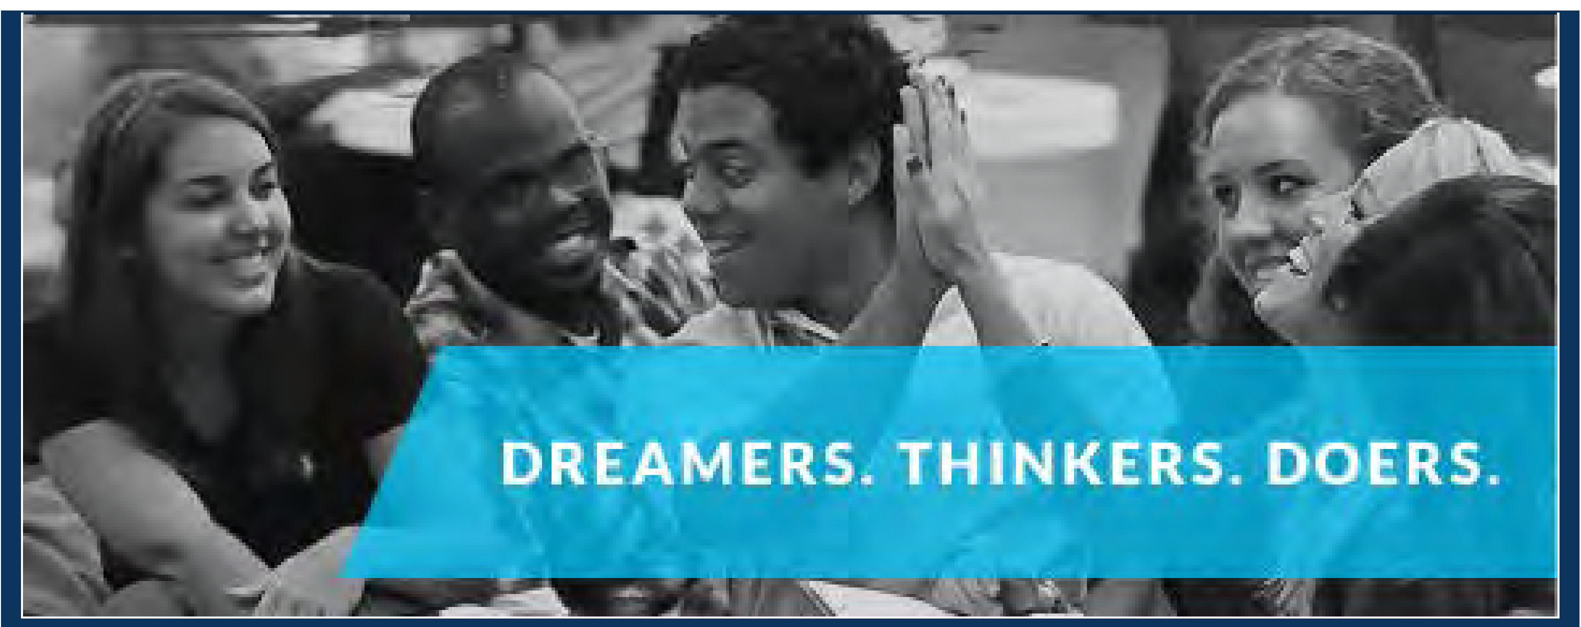
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 11/15/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

JD/MPH PROGRAM

Public health, public policy and issues of health disparities are at the forefront of many of America's unresolved social problems. Rising health care costs pose a growing threat to the economy, while for some access to even the most basic health care is tenous. Lawyers play a central role in society's approach to these public health issues. However, their effectiveness is frequently limited by an inadequate knowledge of public health matters. To close this educational gap, the University of Memphis has created the JD/MPH dual degree program. The program offers students the opportunity to pursue the JD (juris doctor) and MPH (master of public health) degrees simultaneously. Students will have the ability to complete both degrees in four years of full-time study, a year less than it would take to complete each degree separately.

The goal of the JD/MPH program is to prepare and train students to apply law and policy to benefit public health. The dual degree allows law students to combine in-depth advocacy and policy skills learned in the UofM's JD program with the population health perspective gained in the MPH program to address policy and advocacy needs at the community level.

JD/MPH ADMISSIONS AND PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Candidates must meet the entrance requirements for both the Juris Doctor and Master of Public Health degree programs, and must notify both programs at the time of application that s/he intends to pursue the dual JD/MPH degree. Students will be admitted into each program separately, and completion of one degree is not contingent upon completion of both.

The MPH is a 42-credit hour degree program, and the JD/MPH program will allow up to nine (9) credit hours of law courses for shared credit. Students must have a grade of C or higher for the law school courses that are to be credited toward the MPH degree; grades for the shared courses will not be counted in the GPA for the MPH degree. For a complete listing of law courses offered with shared credit, please click here.

JD/MPH APPLICATION

Applicants to the JD/MPH Program must be admitted to the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, the University of Memphis Graduate School, and the MPH Program. Please click here for the application form for the JD/MPH dual degree program.

Questions about the JD/MPH Program?

Marian Levy, DrPH, RD, FAND
Assistant Dean of Students and Public Health Practice 901.678.4514
mlevy@memphis.edu

Questions about the JD/MPH application process?

Shirl Sharpe, MS, Academic Services Coordinator II

114 Robison Hall
901.678.1710
Shirl Sharpe

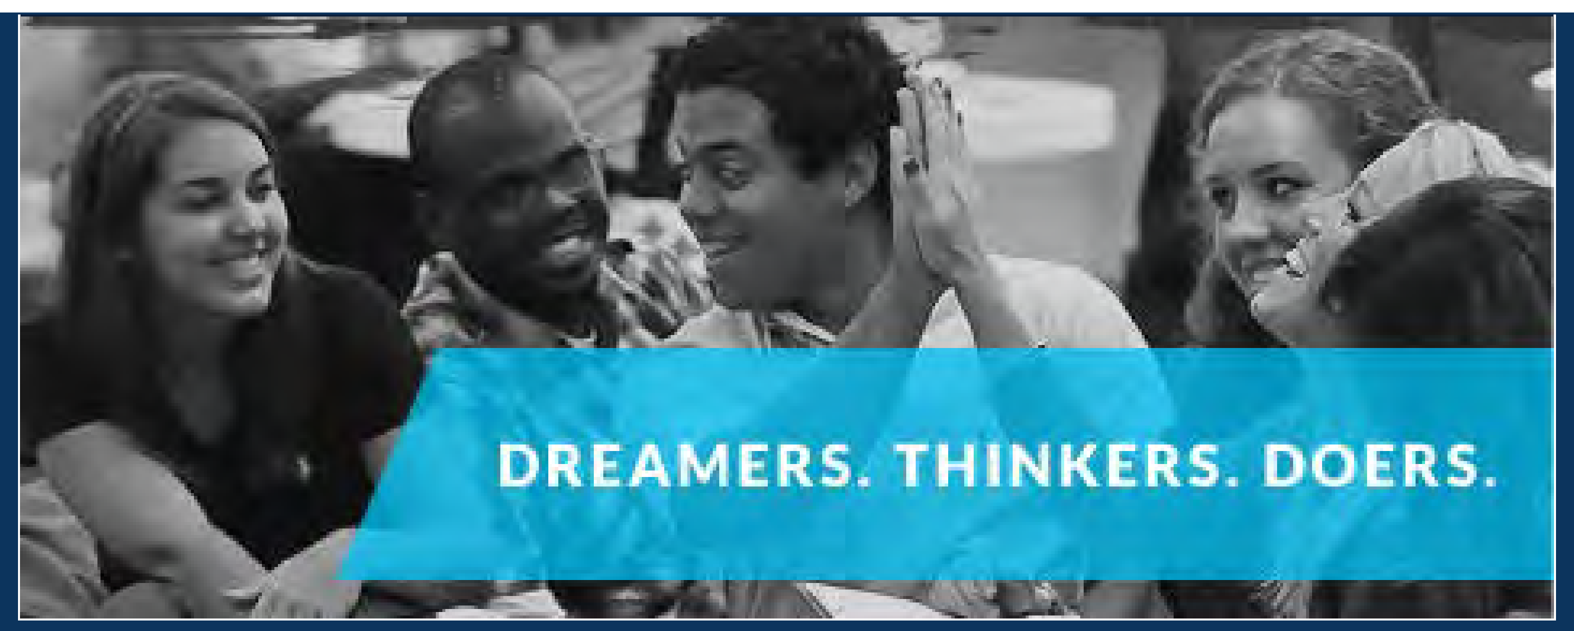
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

MPH FAST TRACK

The School of Public Health at the University of Memphis offers a unique opportunity for attorneys to obtain a Master of Public Health degree in 12-months. Termed the "Fast Track MPH," the MPH is earned in an intensive full-time format in which attorneys attend classes during the evening and online for 3 consecutive semesters (fall, spring, summer). As part of their coursework, students also complete a 240-hour community-based practicum.

The 42-credit program is designed to allow attorneys to extend their advocacy skills to a population health perspective and gain substantive knowledge in applying law and policy to public health problems. Special expertise will be gained in urban public health issues, health systems, public health policy, and environmental health advocacy. The program prepares attorneys for leadership in addressing public health policy issues related to access to healthcare, health reform, environmental justice, and social concerns that affect health equity.

Eligible candidates must be graduates of the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis or another American Bar Association-accredited U.S. law school.

For further information on the program, contact:

- Dr. Marian Levy, MPH Director in the School of Public Health - mlevy@memphis.edu or (901) 678-4514
- Dr. Sue Ann McClellan, Dean of Law Admissions, Recruiting, & Scholarships - smcclell@memphis.edu or (901) 678-5403
- Meredith Aden, J.D., LL.M. - Assistant Dean for Law Student Affairs, University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at (901) 678-3441 or maden@memphis.edu

Admissions Procedure

Individuals applying to the MPH Program should complete and submit the application by April 1 (for Fall) and November 1 (for Spring). MPH application materials can be found online by CLICKING HERE. The MPH admission requirement of GRE scores is waived in lieu of the LSAT.

This training represents an unparalleled opportunity for attorneys to gain insight in applying legal policy to public health problems.

Suggested Course Sequence
"FAST TRACK" for Lawyers
12-month format

Fall (5 courses)	Spring (5 courses)
• PUBH 7150 Biostatistical Methods 1 • PUBH 7180 Foundations of Public Health • PUBH 7170 Epidemiology in Public	• PUBH 7120 Environmental Health • PUBH 7160 Social and Behavioral Sciences Principles • HADM 7105 Health Policy

Health • PUBH 7985 Practicum in Public Health • Guided Elective *	• PUBH 7992 Master's Project Seminar • Guided Elective *
Summer (4 online courses)
• Pre-Summer intersession course (HPRO Health Promotion) • Guided Elective (First Summer Term) • Guided Elective (Second Summer Term) • Guided Elective (Entire Summer Term)

Each course is worth 3 credits hours.14 courses X 3 = 42 hrs.

* Consider shared credit for 6 hrs in Law School; will reduce by two electives. E.G., Administrative Law; Civil Rights; Disability Law and Practice; Education/Civil Rights; Elder Law; Environmental Law; Family Law; Gun Control/ Gun Rights Seminar; Health Law; Immigration Law; Labor Relations; Mental Health Law; or National Security Law.

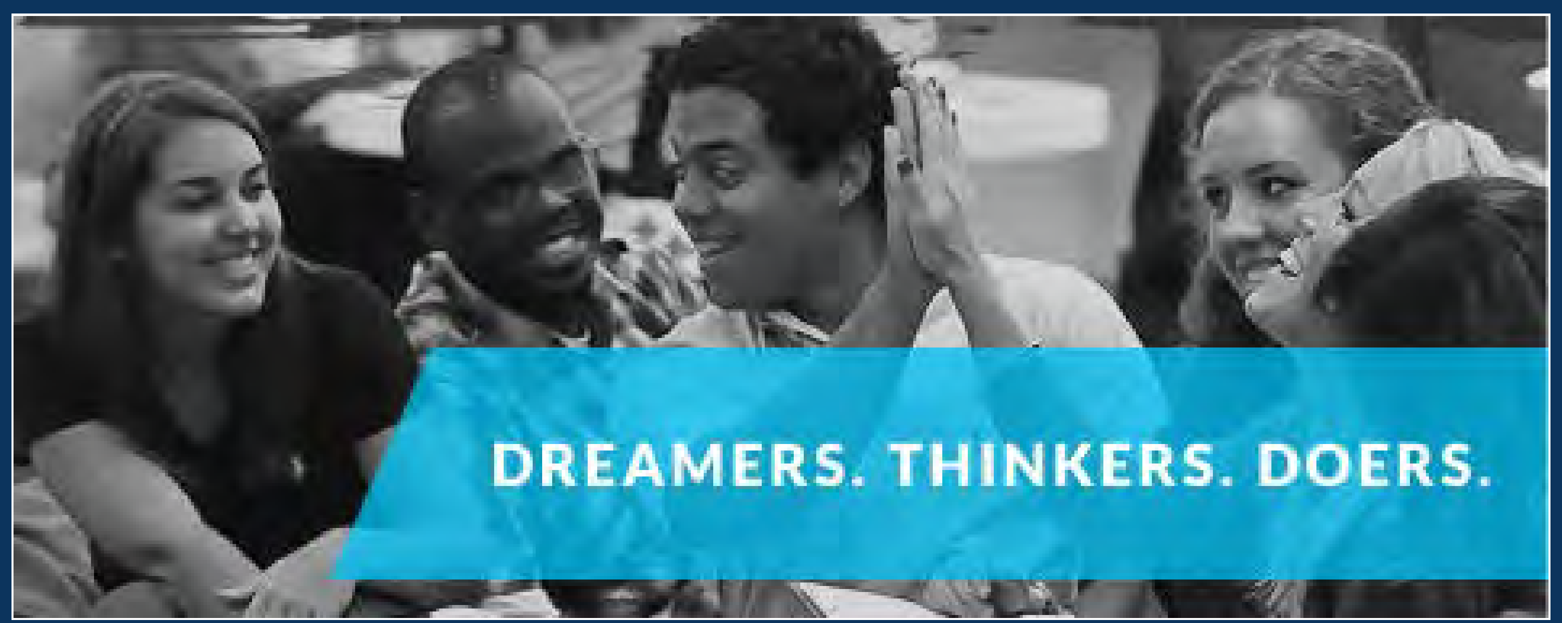
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

PART-TIME PROGRAM

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law offers a part-time program which enables students to enroll in fewer hours than full-time students. This is not an evening program - part-time students attend classes during the day with full-time students. Students are not able to choose the day and time of courses.

By attending classes during the fall, spring, and summer semesters, part-time students will normally graduate in four and one-half years. Graduation requirements in the part-time program are the same as the full-time program. A part-time student is required to enroll in 8 to 11 hours each semester, for a total of 90 law hours. Part-time students may not request a transfer to the full-time program until they have completed the first-year curriculum.

The applicant may check the "part-time" box on the application or, after an offer of admission is received, the applicant can submit (by mail or e-mail) a written request to attend part-time. Only 10% of the entering class of 150 may enroll part-time. All applicants interested in attending part-time should submit an additional statement discussing why they are unable to enroll full-time. Decisions on part-time admission typically are finalized in mid-July.

As an example of class scheduling for part-time students, below are the fall 2015 classes for first-, second- and third-year part-time students:

First-Year Classes

Fall

- Civil Procedure I (3)
- Legal Methods I (3)
- Torts I (3)

Spring

- Civil Procedure II (2)
- Legal Methods II (2)
- Torts II (2)
- Criminal Law (3)

Second-Year Classes

Fall

- Constitutional Law (4)
- Contracts Law I (4)
- Property I (3)

Spring

- Criminal Procedure (3)
- Contracts II (2)
- Property II (3)

Third-Year Classes

Fall

- Business Organizations (3)
- Decedent's Estates (3)
- Income Tax (4)

Spring

- Secured Transactions (3)
- Evidence (4)

An eight-week summer session is offered each year for students who have completed one year of study. Two required courses are usually offered together with electives. Students may enroll for no more than nine hours in a summer session.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

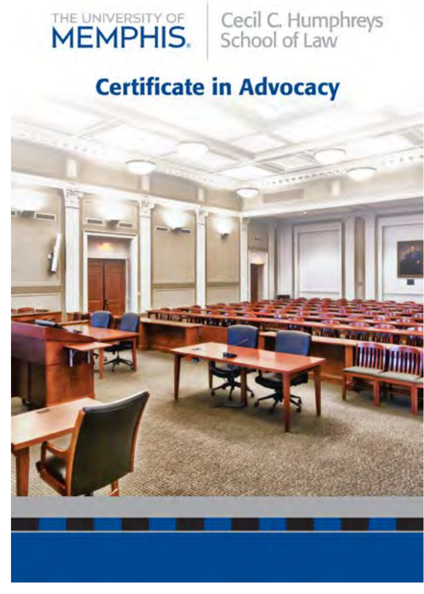
Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

CERTIFICATE IN ADVOCACY



The goal of the Certificate in Advocacy program is to enable students who are interested in a career in litigation or the study of advocacy to follow a specialized course of study, to work closely with other students interested in the area and to receive guidance from faculty members with an interest and expertise in the area.

This program will enable you to work alongside other students and professors to prepare you for a career in litigation. A student who receives the Certificate in Advocacy demonstrates knowledge of fundamental principles of trial and appellate advocacy, as well as competence in the skills essential to a career in litigation. In turn, Certificate in Advocacy graduates are attractive to law firms seeking to hire litigation attorneys who enter the practice of law with practical training.

For more information about the Certificate in Advocacy program, please contact Prof. Barbara Kritchevsky at bkrtchvs@memphis.edu or (901) 678-3239.

Curriculum

Students in the Certificate in Advocacy Program not only take courses that teach legal rules and principles in a traditional classroom setting but also put those ideas into practice through client representation, skills courses and participation in Moot Court, Mock Trial and Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) travel teams. The out of class component enables students to work with practicing attorneys and make contacts in the legal community.

Course Requirements

A student must successfully complete at least 15 hours of advocacy courses. At least 2 hours of study must be in trial advocacy courses and 2 hours must be in appellate advocacy courses

Non-class Requirements

Students seeking the certificate must also complete work outside the classroom, allowing them to gain invaluable experience and see advocacy in action. A student must complete 25 hours of non class work in the advocacy field. The student must complete at least 5 hours each semester. Students in the program must keep a log of their activities in accordance with the Director of Advocacy's guidelines and must attend one meeting each semester with other students enrolled in the Certificate of Advocacy program.

Grade Point Requirement

To satisfy the requirements of the Certificate in Advocacy, each student must demonstrate a successful understanding of the fundamentals of advocacy by receiving a grade of at least a C and obtaining an overall GPA of at least 2.5 in the building-block courses of Legal Methods I and II, Civil Procedure I and II, Evidence and Professional Responsibility. Students must receive at least a 3.0 GPA in all courses taken to satisfy the certificate.

To receive the certificate with honors, a student must complete the graded courses to satisfy the certificate with a GPA of 3.5 or higher and receive a grade of Excellent in at least two-thirds of the non-graded coursework taken to satisfy the certificate requirements.

How to Enroll

Students in good academic standing may enroll in the Certificate for Advocacy program after completing one year of full-time law study (or 30 hours for part-time students). A student may not enroll after the add deadline in the student's fourth semester of full-time study (or the semester after a part-time student has completed 45 hours of study).

A student enrolls by submitting a completed enrollment form to the Director of Advocacy. In completing the form, the student must certify that he/she can satisfy the requirements of the certificate program and is committed to fulfilling its requirements. A student will be dropped from the program if he/she fails to meet the requirements.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

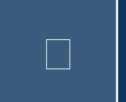
Alumni & Support

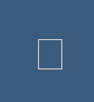
ABA Required Disclosures

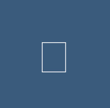
Full sitemap

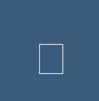
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

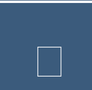
Follow UofM Online

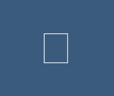












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

BUSINESS LAW CERTIFICATE

The goal of the Certificate in Business Law is to enable students who are interested in a career involving business-related practice areas to follow a specialized course of study, to work closely with other students interested in the area, and to receive guidance from faculty members with an interest and expertise in business law. A student who receives the Certificate in Business Law demonstrates knowledge of fundamental principles of business-related legal issues and competence in the skills essential to a business-related practice.

For more information about the Certificate in Business Law, please contact Prof. Kevin Smith at ksmith@memphis.edu.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

A student must successfully complete business-related study by taking courses from the lists below.

Required Courses: All the following courses.

- Business Organizations I (3 hours)
- Corporate Tax (3 hours)*
- Commercial Law Survey (4 hours) or both Secured Transactions (3) and Sales(3)

Core Electives: At least two (2) of the following courses.

- Administrative Law (3)
- Debtor-Creditor or Problems in Bankruptcy (3)
- Mergers & Acquisitions (3)
- Non-profit Organizations (3)
- Partnership Tax (3)*
- Securities Regulations (3)

Skills Component: At least one of the following courses.

- ADR-Arbitration (2-hour skills course)
- ADR-Labor (2-hour skills course)
- ADR-Mediation (2-hour skills course)
- Business-related Externship (2-, 3-, or 4-hour skills course)
- Contract Drafting (2-hour skills course)
- Mediation Clinic (4-hour skills course)

The Director of the Business Law Program may add courses to these lists to reflect new curricular offerings and may approve substitutions in compelling circumstances.

NON-COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Student must complete at least twenty-five hours of non-course work related to business law while enrolled in the Certificate program. The student must complete at least five hours of work each semester. Permissible activities include participating in the VITA program and performing pro bono work that involves Memphis Area Legal Services Consumer or Tax units and others in consultation with the Pro Bono Coordinator and the Director of the Business Law Certificate Program.

Student must also attend one meeting of students who are enrolled in the Certificate program each semester.

GRADE POINT REQUIREMENTS

A student must demonstrate successful understanding of the fundamentals of business-related law by receiving grades of at least C, and achieving an overall GPA of at least 2.5 in the building block courses of Legal Methods I and II, Contracts, and Professional Responsibility. Students must receive a GPA of at least 3.0 in courses taken to satisfy the Certificate in Business Law.

A student will receive the Certificate in Business Law with Honors by completing the graded courses taken to satisfy the Certificate with a GPA of 3.5 or higher and receiving a grade of Excellent in at least two-thirds of the non-graded courses taken to satisfy the Certificate requirements.

ENROLLMENT

Students in good academic standing may enroll in the Certificate in Business Law program after completing one year of full-time law study (or thirty hours as a part-time student). A student may not enroll after the add deadline in the student's fourth semester of full-time study (or of the semester after a part-time student has completed forty-five hours of study). A student enrolls by completing an enrollment form and submitting it to the Director of the Business Law program. In completing the form, the student certifies that he or she can satisfy the grade requirements for the Certificate program and is committed to completing all of the Program's requirements. A student will be dropped from the Program if he or she fails to meet the requirements.

*Both Corporate Tax and Partnership Tax require Income Tax

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

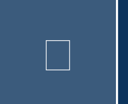
Alumni & Support

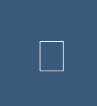
ABA Required Disclosures

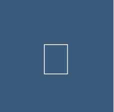
Full sitemap

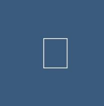
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

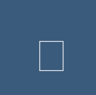
Follow UofM Online

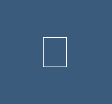












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

HEALTH LAW CERTIFICATE

For more information about the Health Law Certificate, please contact Professor Amy Campbell.

Course Requirements

15 Total Credits: (Doctrinal, Experiential Learning, and Writing Requirements) =

6 Core Credits (Doctrinal credits) +

9 Elective Credits (Includes but is not limited to Experiential & Writing credits)

Core Credits (6):

- Health Law Survey (3)
- Administrative Law (3)

Note: It is recommended that students complete these three core course requirements in the 2L year because they set a critical foundation on which to build enhanced learning and understanding of general or specific, focus areas of health law.

Elective Credits (At Least 9):

- Health Law Writing Requirement (2-3)

Note: Students can fulfill this requirement through completion of a law review note (upon approval of faculty mentor and Institute Director), OR, through Health Law Seminar, Mental Health Law Seminar, or other Seminar with health law-related paper (upon approval of seminar faculty and Institute Director). (This may also meet the Law School's writing requirement.)

- Experiential Learning (2-4)

Note: Students can fulfill this requirement by taking a health law-related clinic or practicum, doing a health law-related externship, or taking another health law-related skills course, upon approval of the Institute Director. (This may also meet the Law School's skills requirement.)

- Other Electives:*

Health-Specific:

Note: Not all of these courses are offered each year. Additionally, other courses may also be considered on a case-by-case basis in consultation with the Institute Director.

F Bioethics & the Law (2)
TBD Elder Law Health Clinic (4)

F/S Externship, Health Law Placement (2-4)
TBD Food and Drug Law (2 or 3)
TBD Health Care Insurance & Regulation Seminar (2)
F/S Health Law Seminar (2 or 3)
TBD Health Policy Practicum (2)
TBD Mental Health Law (3)
F Mental Health Law Seminar (2 or 3)
S Public Health Law (3)

Health-Related:

F Elder Law (3)
TBD Employee Benefits (2)
TBD Environmental Law (3)
TBD Intellectual Property Survey (3)
TBD Nonprofit Organization Tax (3)
TBD Patent Law (3)
TBD Products Liability (2)
S White Collar Crime (2)

* F = offered in the Fall term
S = offered in the Spring term

Summary:

Fall:
Health Law (2L, preferred)
Administrative Law (2L, preferred)
Law Seminar (3L)

Spring:
Health Law Seminar or other Seminar (3L)
Or Note (2L)

Non-Course Requirements

Students must complete at least twenty-five hours of non-course work related to health law while enrolled in the Certificate program. Permissible activities include doing pro bono work with the Health Law Section of the MBA, assisting MALS with health law fairs, providing pro bono legal services or law related education for health organizations, and other activities in consultation with the Pro Bono Coordinator and the Institute Director. Students should arrange a meeting with the Pro Bono Coordinator to discuss options as soon as enrolling in the Certificate program.

Students must also attend an annual meeting held for all students enrolled in the Certificate of Health Law program.

Grade Point Requirement

To satisfy the requirements of the Certificate in Health Law, each student must demonstrate a successful understanding of the fundamentals of health law by holding a minimum 2.5 overall GPA and obtaining at least a C in each course and a minimum 2.5 overall GPA in the building-block courses of Torts I and Torts II, and Constitutional Law. Students must receive at least a 3.0 GPA in all courses taken to satisfy the certificate.

To receive the certificate with honors, a student must complete the graded courses to satisfy the certificate with a GPA of 3.5 or higher and receive a grade of Excellent in at least two-thirds of the non-graded coursework taken to satisfy the certificate requirements.

When to Enroll

Students in good academic standing may enroll after completing one year of full-time law study (or thirty hours as a part-time student). It is highly recommended that a student enroll by the add deadline of his/her third semester. (There is no penalty to later decide to drop from the program.) Students cannot enroll after the add deadline in the student's fourth semester (or, if part-time, of the semester after completion of forty-five hours of study).

How to Enroll

.A student enrolls by submitting a completed enrollment form (available on TWEN) to the Institute Director. In completing the form, the student must certify that he/she can satisfy the requirements of the certificate program and is committed to fulfilling its requirements. A student will be dropped from the program if he/she fails to meet the requirements.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

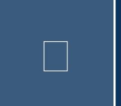
Alumni & Support

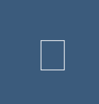
ABA Required Disclosures

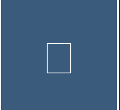
Full sitemap

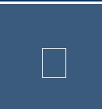
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

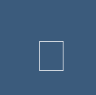
Follow UofM Online

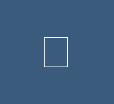












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

TAX LAW CERTIFICATE

Memphis Law is proud to offer a Certificate in Tax for our students. Tax law affects and influences nearly every aspect of our lives, from sales tax, income tax, property tax, charitable deductions, tax credits and inheritance tax just to name a few areas. Students studying tax law will be able to apply their knowledge not only to their work but also to their daily decisions.

In studying the Internal Revenue Service Code, students in the Certificate in Tax program develop and strengthen their critical thinking skills. Knowledge of the code is essential not only for tax practitioners, but also for attorneys practicing in various fields such as labor and employment, family law, insurance, social security, workers compensation, and corporate litigation.

For more information about the Certificate in Tax program, please contact Prof. William P. Kratzke at wkratzke@memphis.edu or (901) 678-3221.

Course Requirements

Basic Income Tax (3)
Corporate Tax (3)
Partnership Tax (3)

Minimum 6 hours from the following list:

Estate & Gift Tax (2)
Nonprofit Organizations (3)
International Taxation (3)
Tax Seminar (2)
Estate Planning (2)
Mergers & Acquisitions (2)

Non-class requirements

Students seeking the Certificate in Tax must also complete 25 hours of VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) clinic work. These 25 hours can be counted toward the pro bono hours that the law school requires for graduation.

Grade point requirement

To satisfy the requirements of the Certificate in Tax, students must demonstrate a successful understanding of the fundamentals of taxation by obtaining an overall GPA of at least 3.0 for Certificate classes and a minimum Overall GPA of 2.5.

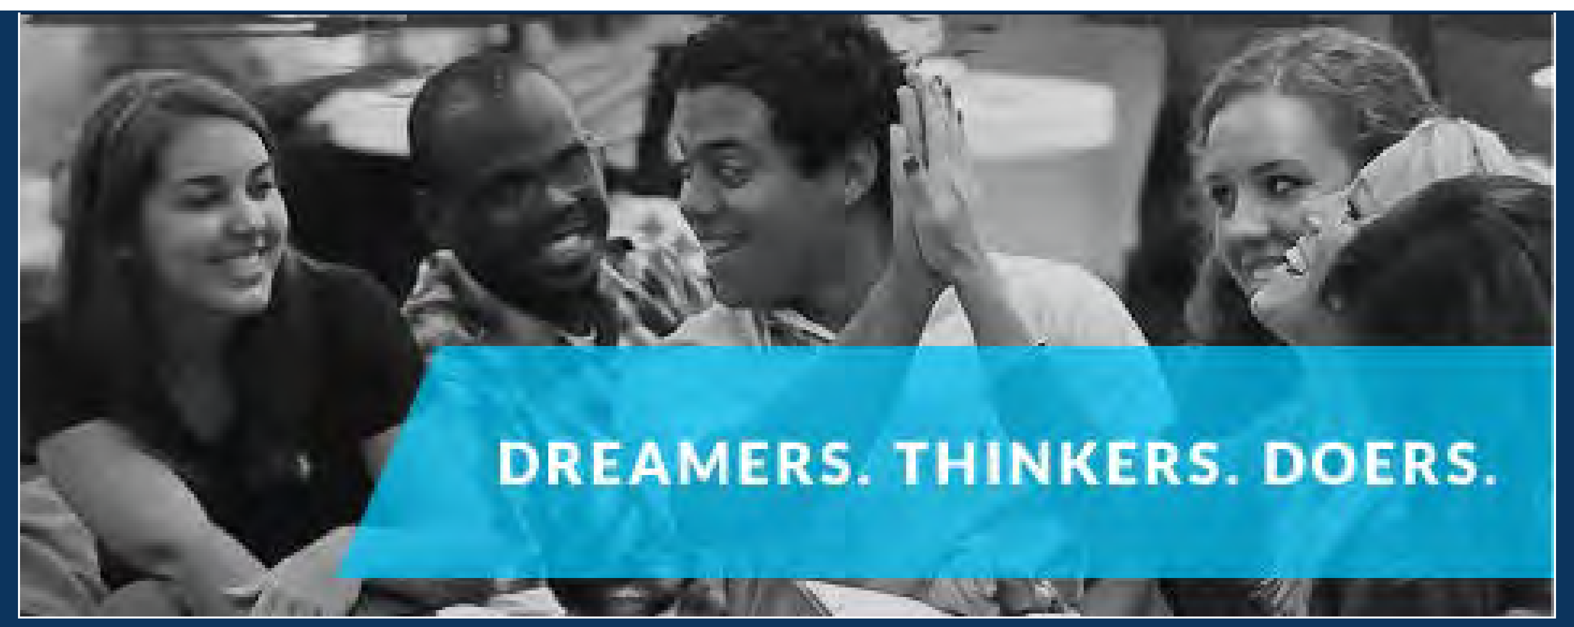
Competition

Students seeking a Certificate in Tax are strongly encouraged to participate in the Law Student Tax Challenge, sponsored by the American Bar Association Section of Taxation.

How to Enroll

Students in good academic standing may enroll in the Certificate for Tax program after completing one year of full-time law study (or 30 hours for part-time students).

A student enrolls by submitting a completed enrollment form to the Tax Certificate Director. In completing the form, the student must certify that he/she can satisfy the requirements of the certificate program and is committed to fulfilling its requirements. A student will be dropped from the program if he/she fails to meet the requirements.



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 11/3/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LEGAL CLINIC

For more than 20 years, the University of Memphis Legal Clinic has enabled student attorneys to make the connection between legal theory and legal practice by offering them the opportunity to represent actual clients under close clinical faculty supervision. Student attorneys are specially licensed by the Tennessee Supreme Court. The Legal Clinic is located on the lower level of the law school building, with a separate exterior entrance plaza for clients. Legal Clinic facilities include a research library, interview rooms, conference rooms, and offices equipped with state-of-the-art technology.

Download the Spring 2017 Legal Clinic Course Application HERE.

The following subject-specific Clinics operate as part of the University of Memphis Legal Clinic:

- Child and Family Litigation Clinic
- Children's Defense Clinic
- Civil Litigation Clinic
- Elder Law Clinic
- Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic
- Housing Adjudication Clinic
- Mediation Clinic
- Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic
- Neighborhood Preservation Clinic

During a three-week orientation period, supervising faculty introduce student attorney to skills, and ethics in the subject area of the designated Clinic. All clinics help student attorneys develop core legal skills, regardless of subject area, making the clinical experience transferable to any area of practice.

Specific emphasis is placed on:

- Client interviewing and counseling
- Fact and witness investigation
- Formal and informal pretrial discovery
- Communication with opposing counsel, court staff, and other key personnel
- Negotiation and settlement
- Drafting of letters, motions, pleadings, briefs, advanced directives, and/or other legal documents
- Motions practice and court filing
- Statutory interpretation
- Use of experts
- Mediation preparation
- Trial preparation and trial advocacy

The clinical program adheres to a client-centered approach, requiring the student attorney to visualize her/himself in the client's circumstances. This approach allows students an opportunity to explore the various roles attorneys assume in society, including trial attorney, transactions attorney, interviewer, negotiator, counselor, mediator, facilitator, community builder, legislative advocate, and officer of the court. Student attorneys also are introduced to holistic legal practice, focusing on representation in all forums in which the client may have a legal problem or need a legal solution.

The University of Memphis Legal Clinic emphasizes the promotion of the highest values of the legal profession as a complement to classroom instruction:

- Personal integrity
- Ethics and professionalism
- Holistic and collaborative approaches to problem solving
- Vigorous client and community service
- Social justice obligations

The University of Memphis Legal Clinic fulfills a critical community service by providing free legal services to under-represented clients – including children, the elderly, and victims of consumer fraud – thus developing first-hand knowledge of ways attorneys can promote social justice and use their law degrees in service to society.

See also:

- Student Testimonials

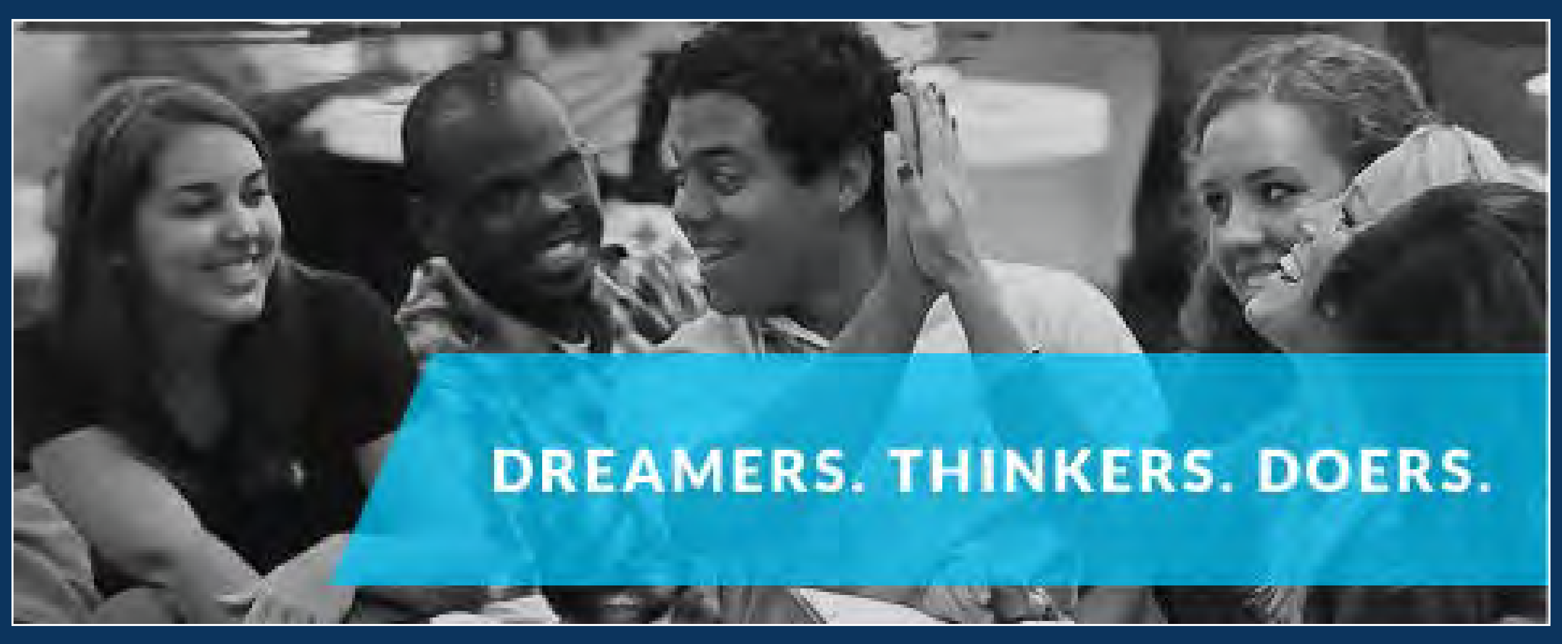
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

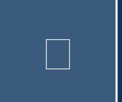
ABA Required Disclosures

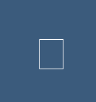
Full sitemap

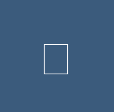


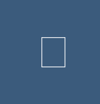
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

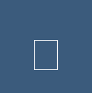
Follow UofM Online

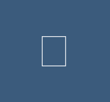












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/12/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM

The University of Memphis Externship Program offers upper-level law students the opportunity to earn academic credit for carefully supervised legal work they perform in a variety of practice settings throughout the Memphis area. Stepping outside the traditional classroom, externship students learn by doing and observing, further developing essential research and writing skills, communication abilities, and problem-solving techniques under the direction of local judges and attorneys. To maximize this experiential learning opportunity, externship students simultaneously participate in a faculty-led seminar designed to introduce the essential habits of the reflective practitioner and assessment of the skills, relationships, issues, and mindsets that prevail in the practice setting.

Download the Spring 2017 Externship Course Application HERE.

Spring 2017 Externship Course Description of Anticipated Field Placements

Exposed to lawyering at both practical and theoretical levels, University of Memphis externs should:

- Strive toward practice readiness through continued development of legal skills, including research and writing
- Better understand the day-to-day work of a lawyer
- Apply classroom learning to the world of legal practice
- Develop the habits of a reflective practitioner

- Identify, explore and address issues of professional ethics and responsibility
- Evaluate and utilize various means and approaches to problem solving
- Improve upon essential communication and relationship-building skills
- Explore career interests
- Build professional and personal networks

The law school's move to its downtown location has allowed a greater number of law students to take part in previously-established externships with the U.S. District Court, the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, the Tennessee Court of Appeals, the Shelby County Circuit Court, the U.S. Attorney's Office, the Federal Public Defender's Office, the Shelby County District Attorney General's Office, the Shelby County Public Defender's Office, the National Labor Relations Board, and the Memphis Area Legal Services. Improved accessibility is also allowing for the establishment of new externship opportunities, including recently initiated placements with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, Tennessee Supreme Court, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (Hearings and Legal Divisions), Memphis City Attorney's Office, the Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority, and the Community Legal Center.

More information about the for-credit field placements offered through The University of Memphis Externship Course can be found HERE.

See also:

- Externship Course Learning Objectives, Policies and Guidelines
- Spring 2017 Externship Course Description of Anticipated Field Placements
- Application Information
- Student Testimonials

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

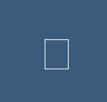
Alumni & Support

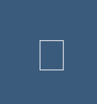
ABA Required Disclosures

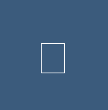
Full sitemap

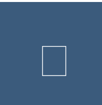
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

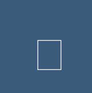
Follow UofM Online

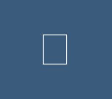












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/12/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

CHILD & FAMILY LITIGATION CLINIC

The Child and Family Litigation Clinic develops core legal skills through representing the child in context.

Broadly grouped as "child advocacy," clinic cases offer practice in "holistic" child representation, including:

- Child abuse and neglect
- Foster care
- Delinquency
- Child custody, paternity, and adoption
- Education or mental health
- Public benefits, such as TennCare
- Any legal forum necessary to meet each child's needs

Student attorneys also experience the variety of roles and responsibilities required: in one case representing a child's best interests; in another representing a child's legal interests or expressed wishes; or in another scenario, representing the child's parent to promote the child's welfare. In addition to developing core legal skills, student attorneys participate in problem-solving, co-counseling, collaboration, meeting facilitation, and multidisciplinary consultation and practice essential in today's global society.

Through giving a vulnerable population a "voice" in the legal system, the Child and Family Litigation Clinic awakens within students who will be tomorrow's litigators, advocates, lawmakers, and judges a spirit of compassion, sense of fairness, and understanding of equal justice.

Faculty: Christina A. Zawisza, Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Child and Family Litigation Clinic

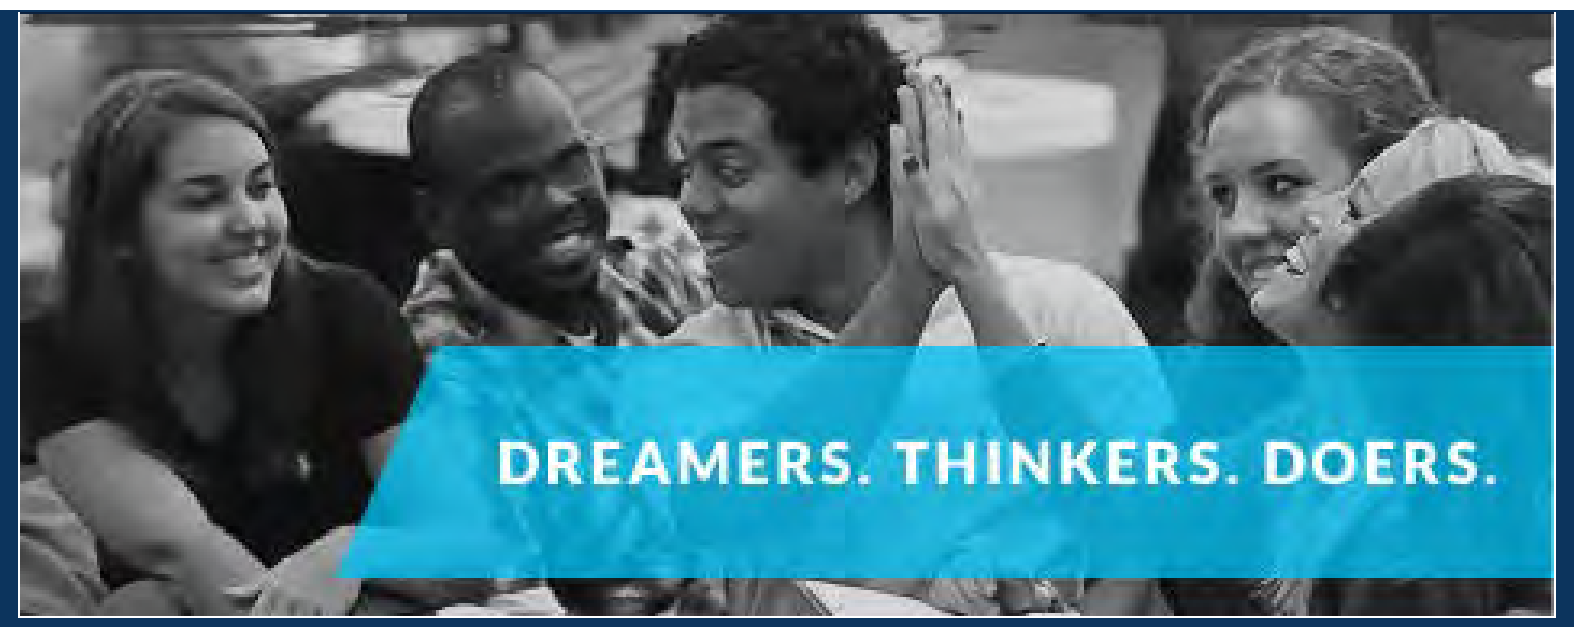
To view a detailed brochure regarding Collateral Consequences of being a Juvenile Delinquent in Tennessee, please click here for a student-made brochure.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

ELDER LAW CLINIC

The Elder Law Clinic offers student attorneys the opportunity to represent senior citizens, who are one of the fastest growing demographic groups in the United States. Student practice will be governed by the tenets of elder law practice developed by the National Elder Law Foundation and refined by the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. Student attorneys will further develop core legal skills through representation of elderly clients across a broad range of substantive areas, including

- Consumer Protection
- Financial Exploitation
- Conservatorship
- Real property issues
- Grandparent adoption
- Health care
- Social Security
- Wills and advanced directives

Student attorneys also gain practical experience in problem solving, case analysis, transactional practice, administrative advocacy, and litigation in Shelby County General Sessions, Circuit, Chancery, and Probate Courts.

Faculty: Donna S. Harkness, CELA, Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Elder Law Clinic

NEWS

ELDER LAW CLINIC HIGHLIGHTED IN PERSPECTIVE MAGAZINE

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Elder Law Clinic, led by Professor Donna Harkness, is highlighted in the new issue of Perspective magazine, a publication of the Young Lawyers Section of the NY State Bar Association. Memphis Law and Elder Law Clinic alum Adam Cooper co-authored the article, which details his experience in the Memphis Law Elder Law Clinic, alongside the experiences of other law students from various other law schools. To read the complete article, please click here.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 12/2/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

HOUSING ADJUDICATION CLINIC

Students enrolled in the University of Memphis Housing Adjudication Clinic are presented with the unique opportunity to study law and lawyering from the standpoint of the administrative law judge rather than that of direct client representative. During the course of this intensive, one-semester clinical program, students will participate in a twice-weekly seminar designed to survey federal fair housing law, provide valuable exposure to administrative law and procedure, and hone essential legal skills. The seminar portion of the course will complement the clinical segment, in which students will be assigned to investigate, research, hear, adjudicate, and issue written opinions ruling on administrative appeals involving participants in the Memphis Housing Authority's Housing Choice Voucher Program who have challenged adverse decisions affecting their eligibility for or amounts of public housing assistance they are receiving.

As they study the substantive and administrative aspects of housing law, Housing Adjudication Clinic students will continue to enhance the critical skills in research and writing, communication, problem-solving, strategy, and persuasion that prepare them to address the multidimensional needs of clients and serve the legal community in other capacities. Important values informing these skills will be fostered through a continuous critique of the justice system and an ongoing dialogue about the ethical and professional responsibilities of judges and lawyers.

Faculty: Daniel M. Schaffzin, Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Clinical Programs and Externships

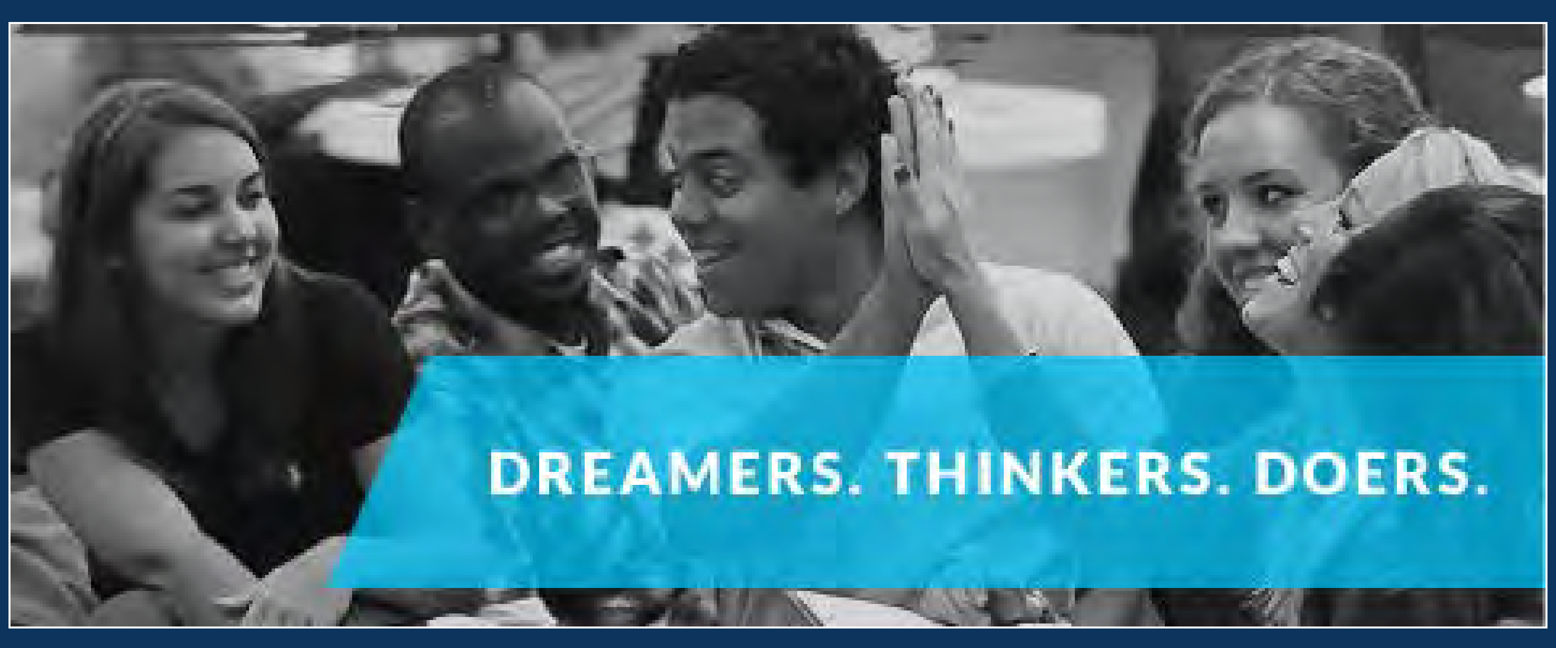
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

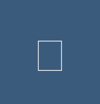
ABA Required Disclosures

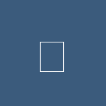
Full sitemap

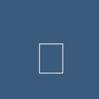


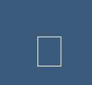
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

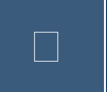
Follow UofM Online











Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

MEDICAL-LEGAL PARTNERSHIP CLINIC

The Medical-Legal Partnership (MLP) Clinic is an interdisciplinary course in which Memphis Law students represent low-income pediatric patients at Le Bonheur Children's Hospital and their families. The MLP Clinic is part of the Memphis Children's Health Law Directive (Memphis CHiLD), a collaborative effort among the School of Law, Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS) and Le Bonheur to address the legal and social issues that impact child and family health though direct legal services, education and systemic advocacy. Memphis CHiLD is the first medical-legal partnership of its kind in the region.

Under the supervision of Professor Janet Goode, MLP Clinic students may handle cases involving one or more of the following I-HELP areas: Income and insurance (including public benefits and public and private health insurance), Housing (including landlord-tenant matters and utilities), Employment and education (including unemployment and IEP's), Legal education and counsel (providing education and training to health care professionals and the community), and Personal and family safety (domestic violence and other family law matters).

To complement their casework, students participate in weekly classroom sessions designed to explore the legal services they are providing, the legal, policy and ethical issues that affect patients' health, and the ways that health outcomes and health care access for low-income children can be enhanced by bringing together health and legal professionals. In both the case and classroom components of the Clinic, students engage in a series of ongoing interactions with the attorney and social work team that MALS has devoted to the Memphis CHiLD, as well as doctors, residents, medical school students, social workers, and other Le Bonheur faculty and staff.

Faculty: Janet H. Goode, Visiting Assistant Professor of Law and Director of the Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic

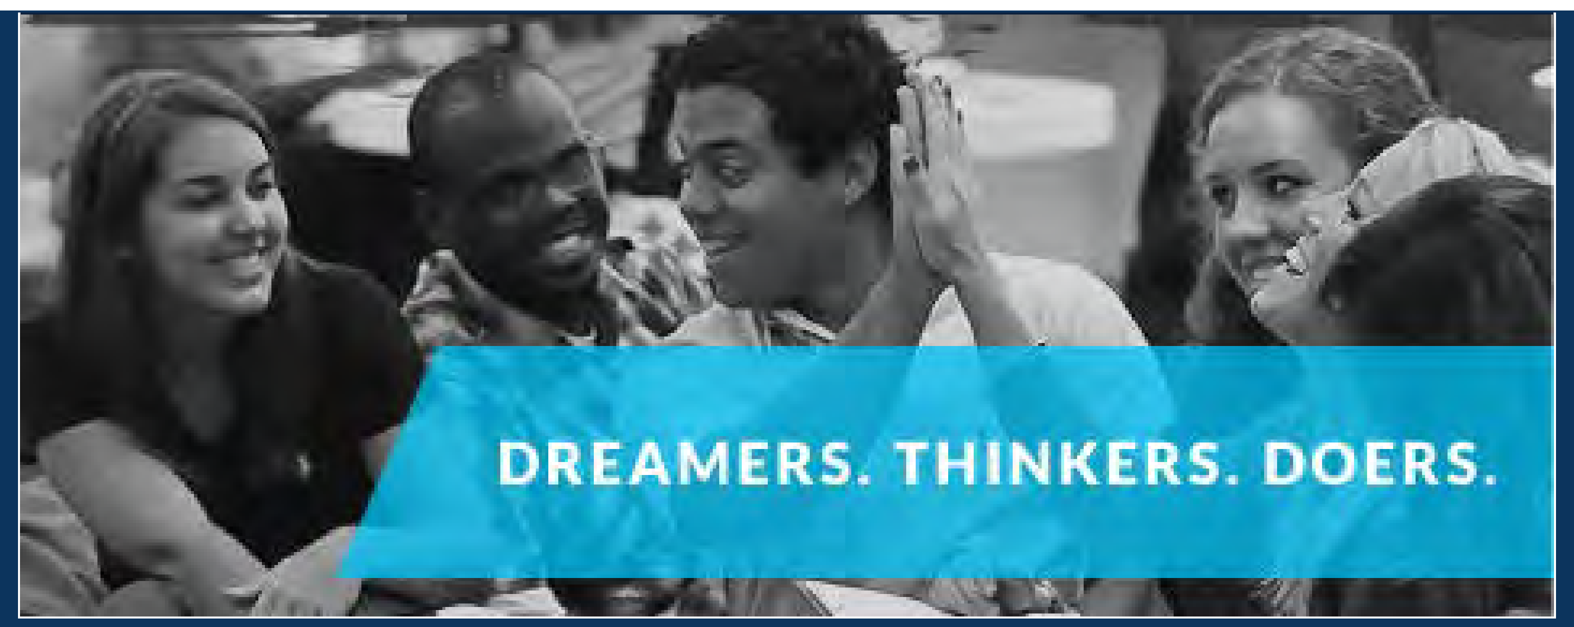
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

MEDIATION CLINIC

Guided by Professor Steve Shields, a Rule 31 Listed Mediator and Tennessee Supreme Court Approved Rule 31 Trainer, students in the Mediation Clinic will study mediation from the inside-out, analyzing in detail the communicative, strategic, and ethical dimensions of specific interventions that mediators make in the context of particular cases. \

The Clinic will primarily focus on the students as the mediators, but the students will also be asked to consider the issues from other points of view: as the disputant, as an attorney representing a client in mediation, and in the capacity of advising an organizational client about dispute resolution options. The Clinic will have four primary components: (1) the training that is required by Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 31 before one may become listed as a Rule 31 Mediator; (2) ongoing student observation of mediations conducted by Rule 31 Mediators in General Sessions Court cases, Federal Court cases, and EEOC administrative proceedings; (3) student participation as co-mediator with Rule 31 Mediators in Shelby County General Sessions Court cases; and (4) weekly classroom seminar and case rounds designed to give students further training and feedback throughout the course of the semester.

Faculty: Stephen Shields, Adjunct Professor of Law

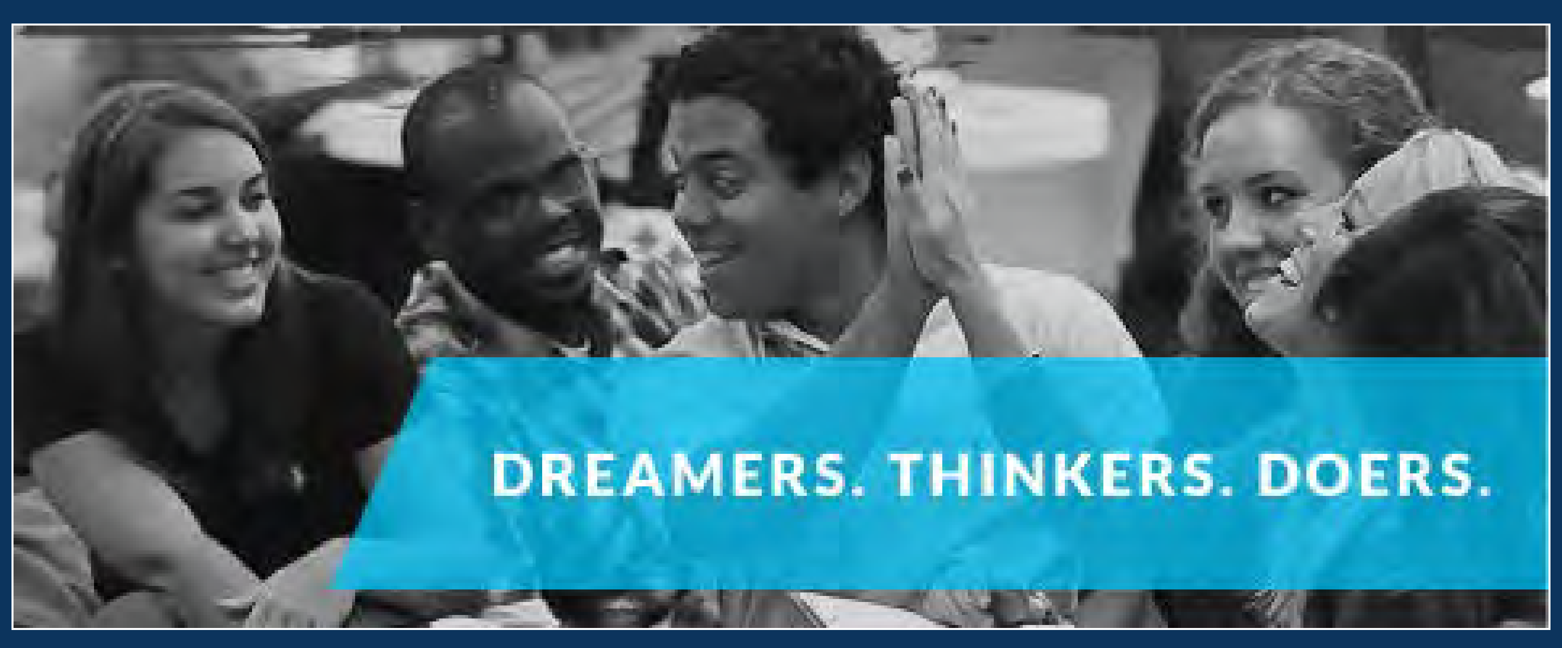
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

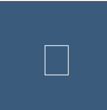
ABA Required Disclosures

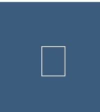
Full sitemap

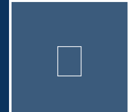


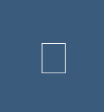
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

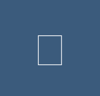
Follow UofM Online

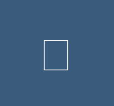












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Programs

NEIGHBORHOOD PRESERVATION CLINIC

Students enrolled in the University of Memphis Neighborhood Preservation Clinic have the opportunity to experience lawyering from the standpoint of the municipal lawyer and municipal administration addressing the complex legal, economic and social issues surrounding real property abandonment and neglect in Memphis.

Working under faculty supervision, students will be assigned to investigate property ownership and conditions, communicate with field code enforcement professionals, prepare civil lawsuits, and prosecute neglectful owners seeking an enforceable order of compliance with property maintenance and other local housing and building code standards. Cases will be brought in the Shelby County Environmental Court, a unique court of special jurisdiction concurrent with the Tennessee Circuit and Chancery Courts for certain purposes, including the prosecution of cases alleging the existence of a public nuisance (as defined in Tennessee Code Annotated §13-6-102 (8)), and requesting either an order of compliance or the appointment of a receiver to abate such public nuisance.

To complement their work as anti-blight litigators, Clinic students will participate in a weekly classroom session focused on the pervasive challenge of blight and abandonment in Memphis. The seminar segment of the weekly class will be designed to survey substantive code enforcement and housing law, explore national models of legal strategies to address blight and abandonment, outline practice and procedure in the Shelby County Environmental Court, provide skills training, and consider issues of ethics and professionalism that arise in the context of their cases. The seminar component of the weekly class will complement the case rounds component, during which students will engage in an ongoing discussion of the myriad issues and challenges they are experiencing in the cases they are handling.

Neighborhood Preservation Clinic in the news:

- WREG News Ch. 3 - http://wreg.com/2016/12/14/anti-blight-partnership-to-clean-up-memphis/
- WREG News Ch. 3 - http://wreg.com/2015/01/12/homeowners-hopeful-law-students-can-help-with-blight-issues/
- Memphis Flyer - http://www.memphisflyer.com/NewsBlog/archives/2015/01/09/new-anti-blight-clinic-launched-at-u-of-m-law-school
- Commercial Appeal - http://www.commercialappeal.com/news/local-news/city-hall/demolition-of-executive-inn-kicks-off-antiblight-law-clinic_08563128
- "City files 1,000th suit against owners of blighted properties," Commercial Appeal, August 27, 2015
- "Problem Properties: Neighborhood Preservation working to remedy blight in Memphis," Memphis Daily News, August 17, 2015
- "In the universe of Memphis blight fighting, all roads lead to Steve Barlow," Commercial Appeal, August 7, 2015
- "Blight Fight: Teams surveying Downtown properties in search of neglect," Memphis Daily News, June 15, 2015
- "City Launches Effort to Condemn Apartment Buildings," Commercial Appeal, April 21, 2015
- "Ministries founder apologizes for apartment conditions, promises immediate repairs," Commercial Appeal, April 24, 2015
- "City afraid blighted downtown property is on the brink of collapse," WREG-TV, April 2, 2015

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

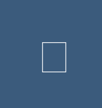
Alumni & Support

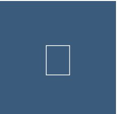
ABA Required Disclosures

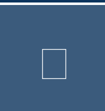
Full sitemap

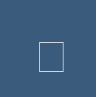
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

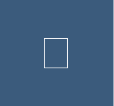
Follow UofM Online











Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 12/16/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

LAW REVIEW EDITORIAL BOARD

2016 - 2017 Law Review Editorial Board:

Lyle Gruby, Editor-in-Chief

Maygan Peaks, Managing Editor

Will Podesta, Business Editor

Pablo Davis, Symposium Editor

Jordan Emily, Senior Articles Editor

Gale Robinson, Articles Editor

McKenzie Reed, Articles Editor

Alexis Peddy, Articles Editor

Danielle Salton, Articles Editor

Taylor Oyaas, Research Editor

Olivia Garber, Senior Notes Editor

Kristen Downey, Notes Editor

Dylan Gillespie, Notes Editor

Callie Tran, Notes Editor

Dylan Holzemer, Notes Editor

Suzanne Lamb, Notes Editor

Zach Johnson, Notes Editor

General E-mail: Contact the Business Editor

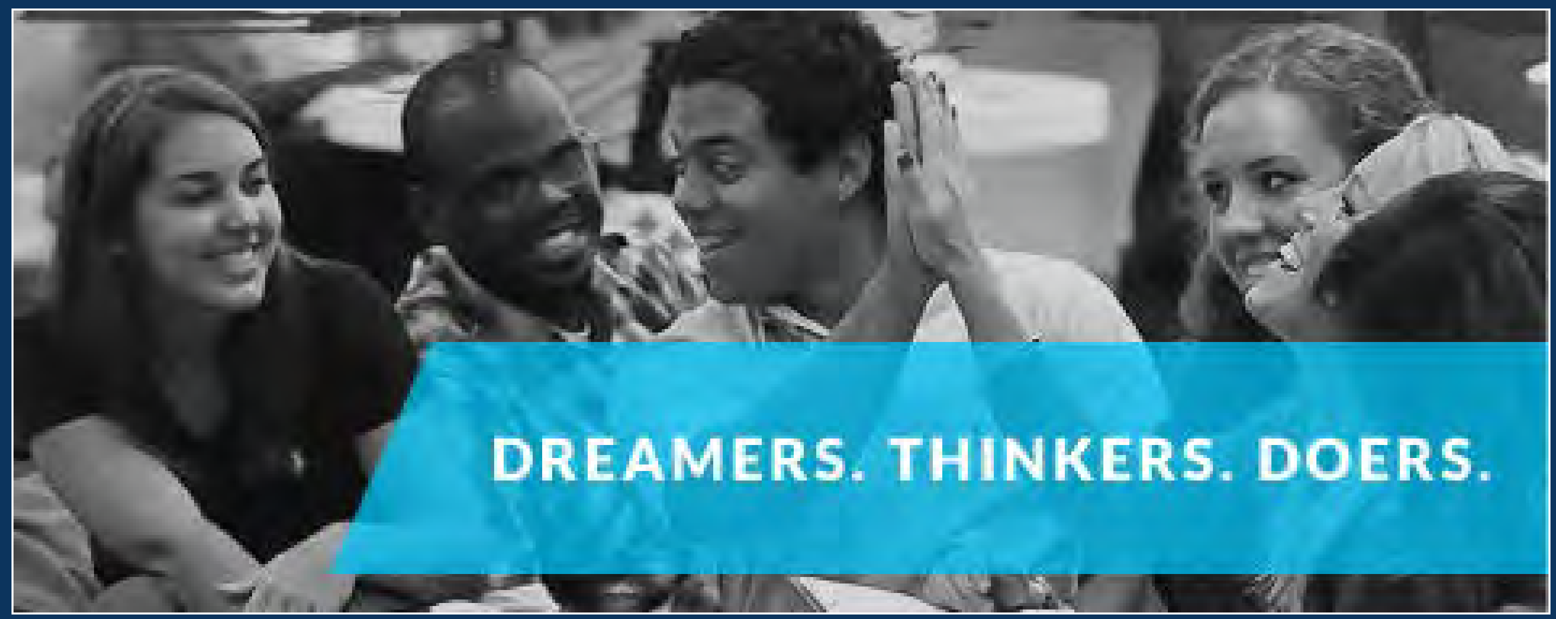
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/22/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

LAW REVIEW EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Welcome to The University of Memphis Law Review web site. I hope that you find this site useful. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at lawreview_editorinchief@memphis.edu.

The Law Review is a student publication committed to producing a scholarly legal journal. All of the articles published in our journal are selected by students and edited by students. The notes and comments selected for publication are also written and edited by students. Our goal is to provide a publication that will benefit practitioners, judges, professors, students, and others that use our journal in their practice, on the bench, in the classroom, or in their legal research.

Lyle Gruby, Editor-in-Chief

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
LAW REVIEW

VOLUME 47 | 2016–2017 | BOOKS 1–4

Authors and Readers,

Thank you for visiting the University of Memphis Law Review website. We strive to publish volumes of the highest quality. Our goal is to provide authors with a professional editing process and readers with useful and insightful legal scholarship. We see our role as integrally tied to the Law School's reputation. Memphis is an excellent law school, and we are proud to call it our own. Because of that, we want every author and reader to see the individualized commitment that we bring to the editing process.

Our published authors include professors, judges, and attorneys from throughout the country who write on a variety of novel legal topics. We do not limit publication to specific jurisdictions but rather seek to publish the best articles. We value articles that are clear, concise, and well-structured: these are the articles that further legal debate and are useful to the legal community.

Volume 47's Editorial Board hopes to build upon the Law Review's reputation for developing great relationships with their authors and producing excellent Volumes. From the moment an author accepts an offer for publication, the Law Review staff seeks to communicate effectively. Throughout the editing process, our Bluebooking staff will find and correct citations, allowing our Articles Editors to focus on a single article as a whole. In this way, the author receives integrated and effective feedback—rather than sporadic communication—from a member of the staff who knows the structure, theme, and thesis of the article by heart.

We are always open to direct submission of articles. If you would like to submit an article for publication, please email your résumé, cover letter, and article to our Articles Editor, Jordan Emily, at jmemily@memphis.edu. If you have questions about subscribing to the University of Memphis Law Review, please contact our Business Editor, Will Podesta, at wcpdesta@memphis.edu. Please also feel free to contact me at lwgruby@memphis.edu with any questions.

Respectfully,

Lyle Gruby
Editor-in-Chief
Volume 47 of the University of Memphis Law Review

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

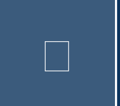
Alumni & Support

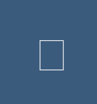
ABA Required Disclosures

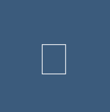
Full sitemap

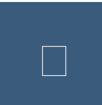
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

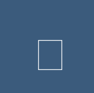
Follow UofM Online

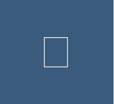












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/24/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

JOINING LAW REVIEW

Membership on the University of Memphis Law Review is limited to second- and third-year law students who are selected based on their performance in a competition held during the summer of their 1L year.

After successfully completing the required courses of a full-time first year law student, and achieving a GPA of 2.50 or higher, the law student is eligible to participate in the summer competition. Part-time law students and transfer students are also eligible to participate once they have completed the required courses of a full-time first year law student and have met the GPA requirements. Second-year transfers are eligible to compete once they complete the second year coursework and have met the GPA requirements.

Selection

Up to thirty rising 2Ls will be chosen as staff members of the Law Review.

The three highest-ranked students in each section of the first-year class at the end of the first year will receive automatic invitations to be Law Review staff members pending a good faith completion of the summer competition.

Selection of the other staff members is based on the results of the summer competition, which is designed to demonstrate the students' aptitude for legal scholarly writing, researching, and cite checking.

The competitors are required to write a Case Comment on a recent state or federal case, as well as complete a citation and editing exam for a piece of unpublished work. The anonymous competition is scored by the Editorial Board and the top scoring 2Ls are then selected as Staff Members.

Membership

If selected for membership on the Law Review, the duties for 2Ls and 3Ls include line editing and cite checking the articles chosen for publication. Additionally, 2L members must write their own work of legal scholarship, the student Note. The Note is roughly thirty to fifty pages in length, and explores a specific issue within an area of law.

Rising 3L members may apply for positions on the Law Review Editorial Board. The Editorial Board is responsible for day-to-day operations of each facet of the journal: article selection and editing, cite checking supervision and reconciliation, and student Note consultation.

Student Publications

Each year, the Law Review selects a number of student works to publish. Selected student Notes and the winning Case Comment from the summer competition are published throughout the year. In conjunction with the faculty, the Editor-in-Chief and the Senior Notes Editor select the best students Notes of those published. The top three ranking Notes receive a cash award and plaque for their achievement.

Credit

Upon successful completion of their Note and other assignments, 2L Staff Members will receive two credits in the spring semester of their 2L year, as well as satisfaction of the legal writing requirement. Senior Staff Members will receive an additional credit hour during the spring of their 3L year. Editorial Board members receive two additional credit hours during the spring of their 3L year, for a total of four credits for fulfilling all of their Law Review responsibilities.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

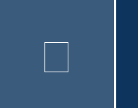
Alumni & Support

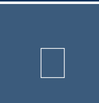
ABA Required Disclosures

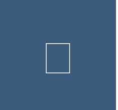
Full sitemap

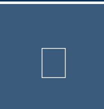
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

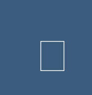
Follow UofM Online

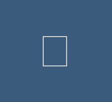












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

LAW REVIEW ANNUAL SYMPOSIUM

The 2017 University of Memphis Law Review Symposium, The Fragile Fortress: Judicial Independence in the 21st Century, will assemble a remarkable group of jurists and scholars to examine one of the great issues of the day. It will be held on Friday, April 7, 2017 at the University of Memphis School of Law. Register now! (Registration and CLE information provided below; all attendees are asked to register, but the event is free to those not seeking CLE hours.)

The ideal of judicial independence — of fair and impartial tribunals standing guard against abuses of power by the other branches of government, protecting civil liberties and serving as the "bulwark of the Constitution"— has never been easy to attain. But it could be that this ideal has been undergoing particularly stern tests in our time.

This year's symposium will bring together voices, insight, experience, and ideas from the bench, academy, and bar in a dialogue meant to bring renewed attention and innovative thinking to this vital issue. We invite attorneys, judges, students, and all members of the public who care about the well-being of our constitutional republic to join us for this crucial dialogue.

We are delighted to recognize the generosity of the Federal Bar Association's Memphis/Mid-South Chapter, and of Lewis, Thomason, King, Krieg & Waldrop, P.C. as event sponsors; it is our pleasure to share the distinguished roster of jurists and scholars who will explore judicial independence from a wide diversity of viewpoints:

- Judge Bernice B. Donald (United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit) — The intrajudicial context of judicial independence
- Judge Timothy J. Corrigan (United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida) — Impact of threats of violence on judges' independence

- Senior Judge Sterling Johnson, Jr. (United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York) — Congress and judicial sentencing discretion: Feeney Amendment revisited
- The Honorable Michael B. Mukasey, Former Chief Judge (United States District Court for the Southern District of New York) and former United States Attorney General — Political criticism of judges: real threat to judicial independence?
- Judge R. David Proctor (United States District Court for the Northern District of Alabama) — Judicial independence: an overview, from impeachment to court-packing
- Chief Justice Zarela Villanueva (Supreme Court of Costa Rica) — Judicial Independence and the rule of law: a hemispheric perspective
- Professor and Dean Emeritus John DiPippa (UALR William H. Bowen School of Law) — Can a legislative committee subpoena a sitting judge?
- Professor Eric Kasper (University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire) — When judges campaign: free speech and restrictions on fundraising
- Professor Justin Walker (University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law) — Should judges be forced to disclose their papers upon retirement?
- Professor Patrick Walsh (Federal Law Enforcement Training Center) — Use of secretly-acquired intelligence evidence in federal criminal proceedings

Registration/CLE: To register, please click here. Please note: The Fragile Fortress has been approved for 6.58 hours CLE Credit (including 1.0 hour Dual Credit) in Tennessee; Arkansas and Mississippi have already confirmed they will recognize the credits. Requests pending with selected other states; if you are seeking CLE Credit from another state, please contact us.

Agenda: Check-in/breakfast 8 a.m.; program 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (lunch 11:55 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.). For a detailed agenda, please click here.

Location: The Law School is located at 1 N. Front Street in downtown Memphis, overlooking the Mississippi River in the historic former U.S. Courthouse, Customs House, and Post Office at 1 North Front Street, Memphis, Tennessee 38103. There are three parking garages within 1 block of the Law School, and some half-dozen within 3-4 blocks.

Questions about the Symposium may be directed to Pablo J. Davis, Symposium Editor, at pablo.j.davis@memphis.edu or 901-288-3018.

We look forward to seeing you!

The University of Memphis Law Review hosts its annual symposium every spring at the Law School. For more information about the most recent past topics and speakers, please visit the links below.

2016 - Urban Revitalization: The Legal Implications of Remaking a City

2015 - In re Valor: Policy and Action in Veterans Legal Aid

2014 - Juvenile Courts in Transition

2013 - Breaking the Silence: Legal Voices in the Fight Against Human Trafficking

2012 - Cultural Competency and the Death Penalty

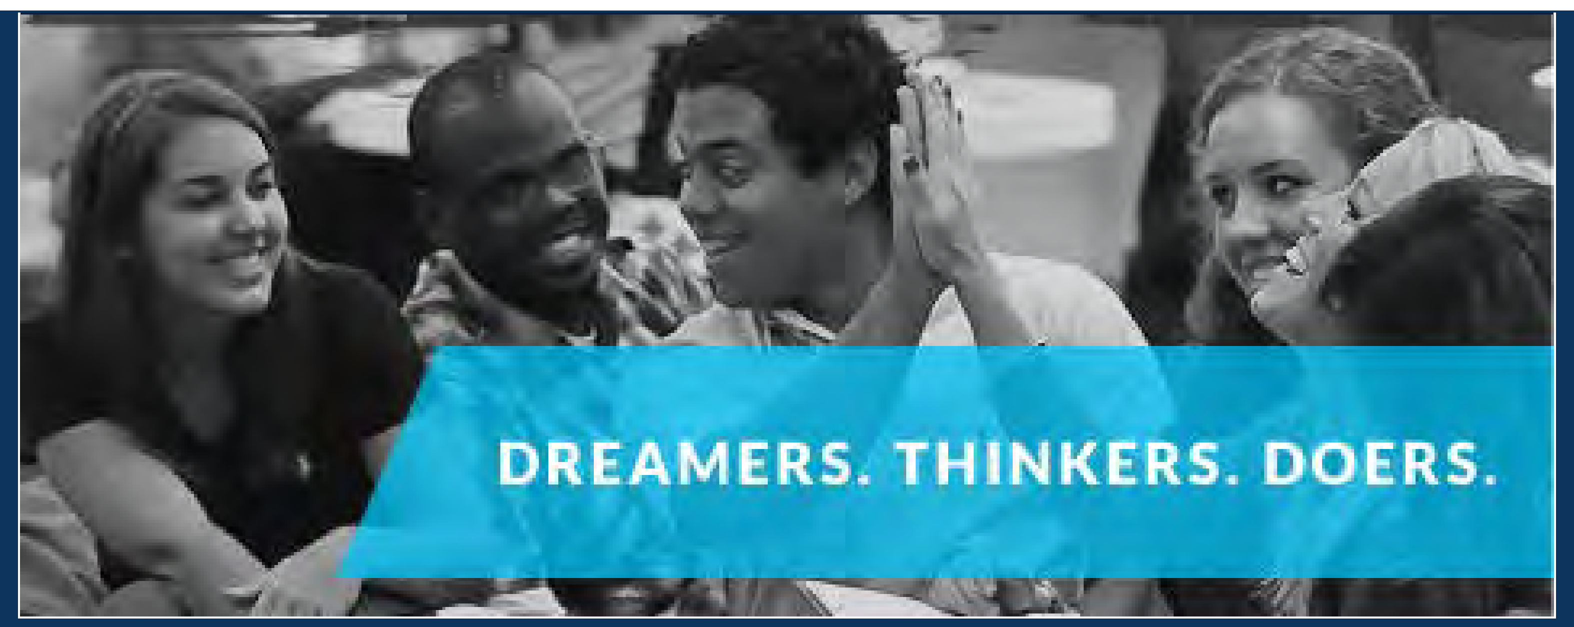
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 3/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LAW REVIEW SUBSCRIPTIONS

An annual subscription to the University of Memphis Law Review is $35 and includes 4 quarterly issues, including 1 symposium issue.

Individual issues are $10 and the symposium issue is $12.

To subscribe, please send a check for $35 payable to the University of Memphis Law Review, as well as the following information:

- name of recipient or organization who will receive the subscription
- mailing address
- billing address

Address all new subscriptions to:

The University of Memphis Law Review
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Attn: Business Editor
One North Front Street
Memphis TN 38103-2189

You can also pay for your subscription online.

Please direct all related inquiries or questions to the Business Editor at the above mailing address or by e-mail at lawreview_businesseditor@memphis.edu.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

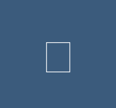
Alumni & Support

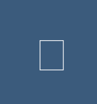
ABA Required Disclosures

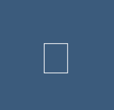
Full sitemap

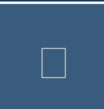
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

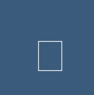
Follow UofM Online

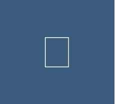












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/22/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LAW REVIEW SUBMISSIONS

The University of Memphis Law Review invites unsolicited manuscripts from members of legal academia, judges, and legal practitioners. We accept submissions in the form of articles, essays, and symposium proposals. Book reviews are also accepted on rare occasion. The University of Memphis Law Review reviews submissions on a rolling basis. Submitted works are generally read and reviewed by three members of the Editorial Staff. Please note that we do not accept student works at this time.

We respectfully request that contributors adhere to the following standards:

Electronic Submission:

We strongly encourage contributors to submit their manuscripts through Expresso, preferably in Microsoft Word format. Articles may also be submitted exclusively to The University of Memphis Law Review via email: lawreview_articleseditor@memphis.edu.

Alternatively, for hard copy submission, please address all manuscripts to:
Senior Articles Editor
The University of Memphis Law Review
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front Street
Memphis, Tennessee 38111

Article Specifications:

Please adhere to the specifications regarding article format:

- Format: Microsoft Word (preferred)
- Text: Double-Spaced
- Footnotes: Single-spaced at the bottom of each page; double-spaced between footnotes; one tab between footnote number and footnote text.
- Font: Times New Roman; 12 pt. (including footnotes)
- Headings: Use traditional outline headings; I,A,1,(a),(1).

Citations:

The University of Memphis Law Review conforms to the formatting and notation provisions set for in THE BLUEBOOK: A UNIFORM SYSTEM OF CITATION (20th ed. 2015) and the style provisions of THE CHICAGO MANUAL OF STYLE (16th ed. 2010).

Expedited Review Requests:

Requests for expedite review should be emailed to the Senior Articles Editor at lawreview_articleseditor@memphis.edu. An expedite request should include: author name, e-mail address, and telephone number, the name of the journal(s) offering publication and the expiration date(s) of the offer(s).

Please note that our journal receives and reviews thousands of submissions each year. Accordingly, while every submission is given an equitable initial review, our staff members are unable to personally respond to each submission. We place high importance on our authors and appreciate your interest in The University of Memphis Law Review.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/24/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LAW REVIEW ISSUE ARCHIVES

Volume 46, Book 3:

ARTICLES

Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen - INVISIBLE INEQUALITY: THE TWO AMERICAS OF MILITARY SACRIFICE

Philip M. Kannan - LOGIC FROM THE SUPREME COURT THAT MAY RECOGNIZE POSITIVE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

Katharine T. Schaffzin - LEARNING OUTCOMES IN A FLIPPED CLASSROOM: A COMPARISON OF CIVIL PROCEDURE II TEST SCORES BETWEEN STUDENTS IN A TRADITIONAL CLASSROOM AND A FLIPPED CLASS

NOTES

Jordan M. Cash - DRONING ON AND ON: A TORT APPROACH TO REGULATING HOBBYIST DRONES

William C. Pannell - PIRATE BATTLES IN OUTER SPACE: PREVENTING PATENT INFRINGEMENT ON THE 8TH SEA

COMMENT

Pablo J. Davis - SPIRITUAL-TREATMENT EXEMPTIONS TO CHILD NEGLECT STATUTES - STATE V. CRANK: VAGUENESS AND ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE CHALLENGES TO SELECTIVE PROSECUTION OF FAITH-HEALING PARENTS

Volume 46, Book 2:

ARTICLES

Steven W. Feldman - VACATUR OF AWARDS UNDER THE TENNESSEE UNIFORM ARBITRATION ACT: SUBSTANCE, PROCEDURE, AND STRATEGIES FOR PRACTIONERS

Pamela Cole Bell - STAND YOUR GROUND LAWS: MIS-CHARACTERIZED, MISCONSTRUED, AND MISUNDERSTOOD

NOTES

Elisabeth Courson - NO LOOKING BACK: THE EFFECT OF TRANSFER ON THE CHOICE OF LAW RULES APPLICABLE TO DIRECTLY FILED MULTI-DISTRICT LITIGATION CASES

Carl Benjamin Lewis- PRIVATE PAYER PARITY IN TELEMEDICINE REIMBURSEMENT: HOW STATE-MANDATED COVERAGE CAN BE THE CATALYST FOR TELEMEDICINE EXPANSION

Mary Katherine Smith - ENOUGH WITH THE WHITE LIE-ABILITY: DECREASING FRIVOLOUS HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTIONS IN TENNESSEE WITH TIME AND TRANSPARENCY

Volume 46, Book 1

Deborah A. Roy- THE NARROWING GOVERNMENT INTEREST IN CAMPAIGN FINANCE REGULATIONS: REPUBLIC LOST?

Rodrigo M. Caruço- TREATING MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY AT LEAST AS WELL AS INMATES AND STUDENTS: DETERMINING WHEN MILITARY NECESSITY REQUIRES INFRINGING UPON CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS IN CASES BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

Christian Dennie - THE BENEFITS OF ARBITRATION: ARBITRATION IN NCAA STUDENT-ATHLETE PARTICIPATION AND INFRACTIONS MATTERS PROVIDES FOR FUNDAMENTAL FAIRNESS

ESSAY

Maureen Truax Holland - EQUAL JUSTICE FOR SAME-SEX MARRIED COUPLES: REFLECTIONS BY A TENNESSEE LAWYER WHO HELPED ACHIEVE NATIONAL MARRIAGE EQUALITY

NOTES

Sarah E. Smith - NO SAFE HARBORS: EXAMINING THE SHIFT FROM VOLUNTARY TREATMENT OPTIONS TO CRIMINALIZATION OF MATERNAL DRUG USE IN TENNESSEE

Gregory A. Wagner - WARHEADS ON FOREHEADS: THE APPLICABILITY OF THE 9/11 AUMF TO THE THREAT OF ISIL

Year	Volume	Book/Issue	Download
2012-2013	Volume 43	Books 1 - 4	PDF
2011-2012	Volume 42	Books 1 -4	PDF
2010-2011	Volume 41	Books 1 -4	PDF
2009-2010	Volume 40	Books 1 -4	PDF
2008-2009	Volume 39	Books 1 -4	PDF
2007-2008	Volume 38	Books 1 -4	PDF
2006-2007	Volume 37	Books 1 -4	PDF
2005-2006	Volume 36	Books 1 -4	PDF
2004-2005	Volume 35	Books 1 -4	PDF
2003-2004	Volume 34	Numbers 1-4	PDF
2002-2003	Volume 33	Numbers 1-4	PDF
2001-2002	Volume 32	Numbers 1-4	PDF
2000-2001	Volume 31	Numbers 1-4	PDF

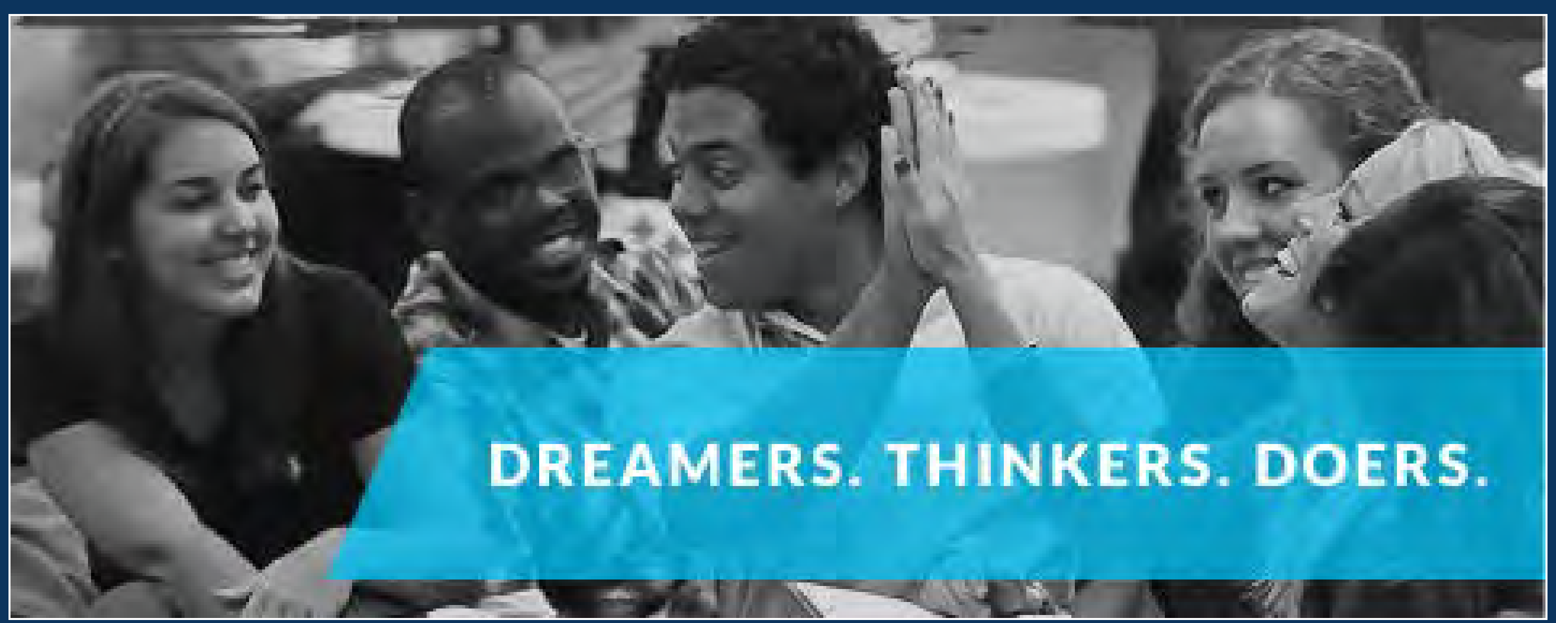
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

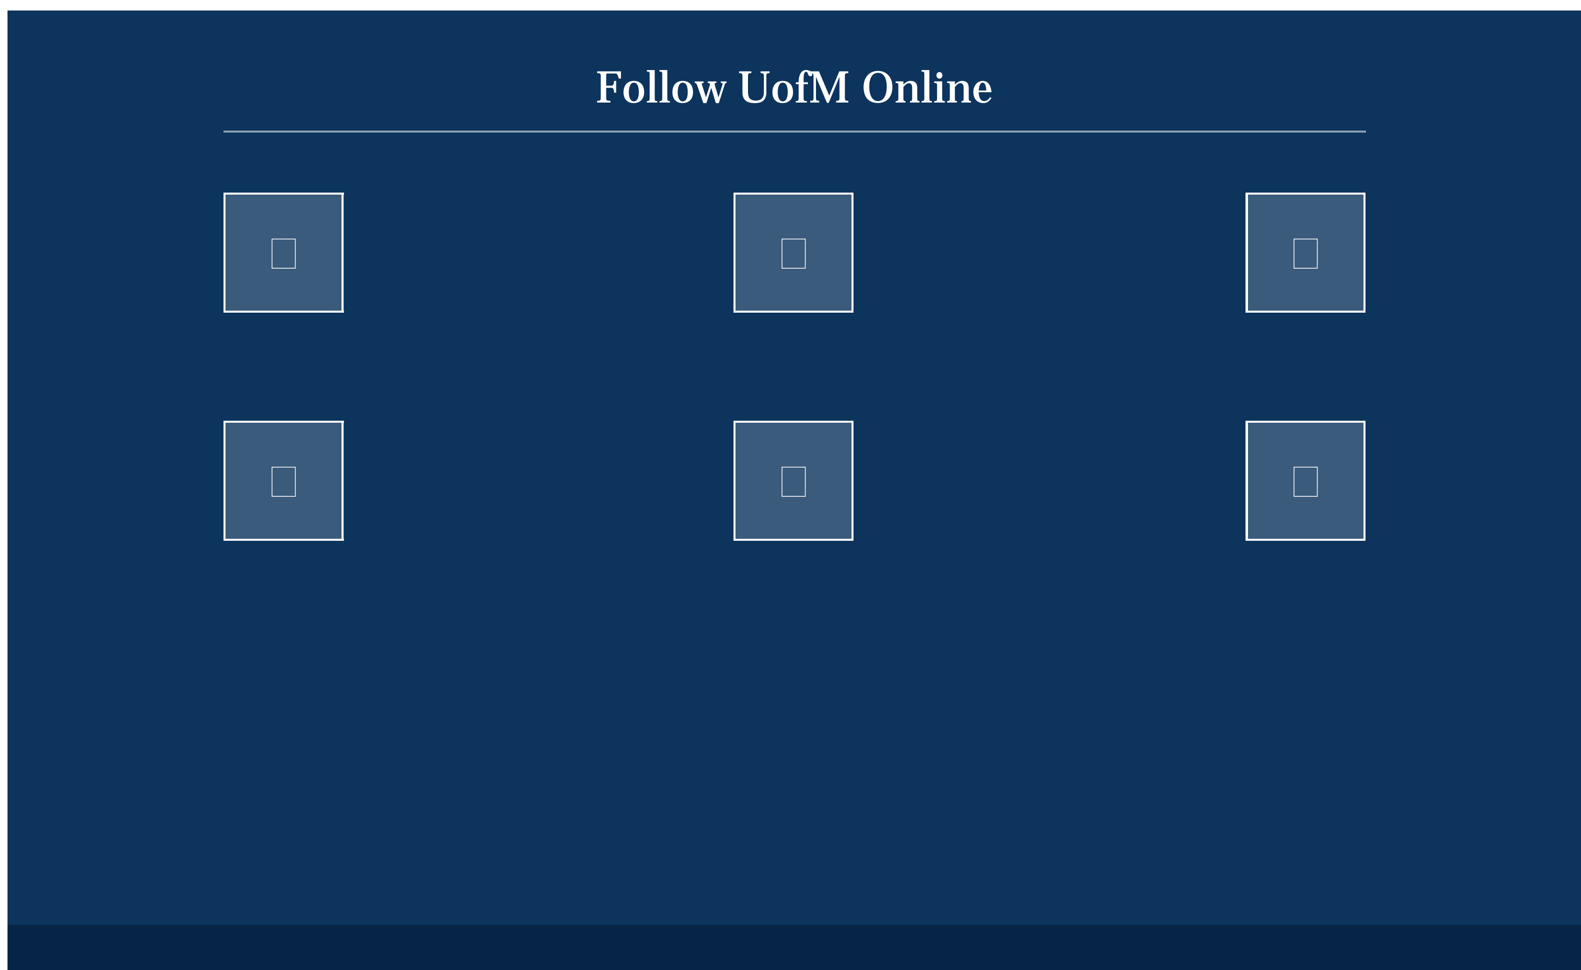
Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS



Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

LAW REVIEW CURRENT JOURNAL

Volume 47, Book 1:

ARTICLES

Sarah E. Redfield & Jason P. Nance - American Bar Association: Joint Task Force on Reversing the School-to-Prison Pipeline

Matteo Gatti - It's My Stock and I'll Vote If I Want to: Conflicted Voting in (Hostile) M&A Deals

NOTES

Pablo J. Davis - "To Return the Funds at All": Global Anticorruption, Forfeiture, and Legal Frameworks for Asset Return

Olivia S. Garber - Animal Abuse and Domestic Violence: Why the Connection Justifies Increased Protection

Megan McKenzie Reed - Banning the Box in Tennessee: Embracing Fair Chance Hiring Policies for Ex-Offenders

Volume 46, Book 4:

INTRODUCTION

Daniel M. Schaffzin - FOSTERING A CULTURE OF SOLUTIONS: AN INTRODUCTION TO THE URBAN REVITALIZATION SYMPOSIUM ISSUE

ARTICLES

Kermit Lind & Joe Schilling - ABATING NEIGHBORHOOD BLIGHT WITH COLLABORATIVE POLICY NETWORKS—WHERE HAVE WE BEEN? WHERE ARE WE GOING?

Steve Barlow, Tommy Pacello & Josh Whitehead - REGULATORY CREATED BLIGHT IN A LEGACY CITY: WHAT IS IT AND WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT IT?

Judge Raymond L. Pianka - COMMUNITY CONTROL SUPERVISION OF BUILDING CODE OFFENDERS IN CLEVELAND'S HOUSING COURT:MAKING THE MOST OF OHIO'S DIRECT SENTENCING FOR MISDEMEANORS

Sohil Shah - SAVING OUR CITIES: LAND BANKING IN TENNESSEE

A. Mechele Dickerson - REVITALIZING URBAN CITIES: LINKING THE PAST TO THE PRESENT

James J. Kelly, Jr. - AFFIRMATIVELY FURTHERING NEIGHBORHOOD CHOICE: VACANT PROPERTY STRATEGIES AND FAIR HOUSING

J. William Callison - INCLUSIVE COMMUNITIES: GEOGRAPHIC DESEGREGATION, URBAN REVITALIZATION, AND DISPARATE IMPACT UNDER THE FAIR HOUSING ACT

Volume 46, Book 3:

ARTICLES

Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen - INVISIBLE INEQUALITY: THE TWO AMERICAS OF MILITARY SACRIFICE

Philip M. Kannan - LOGIC FROM THE SUPREME COURT THAT MAY RECOGNIZE POSITIVE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

Katharine T. Schaffzin - LEARNING OUTCOMES IN A FLIPPED CLASSROOM: A COMPARISON OF CIVIL PROCEDURE II TEST SCORES BETWEEN STUDENTS IN A TRADITIONAL CLASSROOM AND A FLIPPED CLASS

NOTES

Jordan M. Cash - DRONING ON AND ON: A TORT APPROACH TO REGULATING HOBBYIST DRONES

William C. Pannell - PIRATE BATTLES IN OUTER SPACE: PREVENTING PATENT INFRINGEMENT ON THE 8TH SEA

COMMENT

Pablo J. Davis - SPIRITUAL-TREATMENT EXEMPTIONS TO CHILD NEGLECT STATUTES - STATE V. CRANK: VAGUENESS AND ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE CHALLENGES TO SELECTIVE PROSECUTION OF FAITH-HEALING PARENTS

Volume 46, Book 2:

ARTICLES

Steven W. Feldman - VACATUR OF AWARDS UNDER THE TENNESSEE UNIFORM ARBITRATION ACT: SUBSTANCE, PROCEDURE, AND STRATEGIES FOR PRACTIONERS

Pamela Cole Bell - STAND YOUR GROUND LAWS: MIS-CHARACTERIZED, MISCONSTRUED, AND MISUNDERSTOOD

NOTES

Elisabeth Courson - NO LOOKING BACK: THE EFFECT OF TRANSFER ON THE CHOICE OF LAW RULES APPLICABLE TO DIRECTLY FILED MULTI-DISTRICT LITIGATION CASES

Carl Benjamin Lewis- PRIVATE PAYER PARITY IN TELEMEDICINE REIMBURSEMENT: HOW STATE-MANDATED COVERAGE CAN BE THE CATALYST FOR TELEMEDICINE EXPANSION

Mary Katherine Smith - ENOUGH WITH THE WHITE LIE-ABILITY: DECREASING FRIVOLOUS HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTIONS IN TENNESSEE WITH TIME AND TRANSPARENCY

Volume 46, Book 1

Deborah A. Roy- THE NARROWING GOVERNMENT INTEREST IN CAMPAIGN FINANCE REGULATIONS: REPUBLIC LOST?

Rodrigo M. Caruço- TREATING MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY AT LEAST AS WELL AS INMATES AND STUDENTS: DETERMINING WHEN MILITARY NECESSITY REQUIRES INFRINGING UPON CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS IN CASES BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

Christian Dennie - THE BENEFITS OF ARBITRATION: ARBITRATION IN NCAA STUDENT-ATHLETE PARTICIPATION AND INFRACTIONS MATTERS PROVIDES FOR FUNDAMENTAL FAIRNESS

ESSAY

Maureen Truax Holland - EQUAL JUSTICE FOR SAME-SEX MARRIED COUPLES: REFLECTIONS BY A TENNESSEE LAWYER WHO HELPED ACHIEVE NATIONAL MARRIAGE EQUALITY

NOTES

Sarah E. Smith - NO SAFE HARBORS: EXAMINING THE SHIFT FROM VOLUNTARY TREATMENT OPTIONS TO CRIMINALIZATION OF MATERNAL DRUG USE IN TENNESSEE

Gregory A. Wagner - WARHEADS ON FOREHEADS: THE APPLICABILITY OF THE 9/11 AUMF TO THE

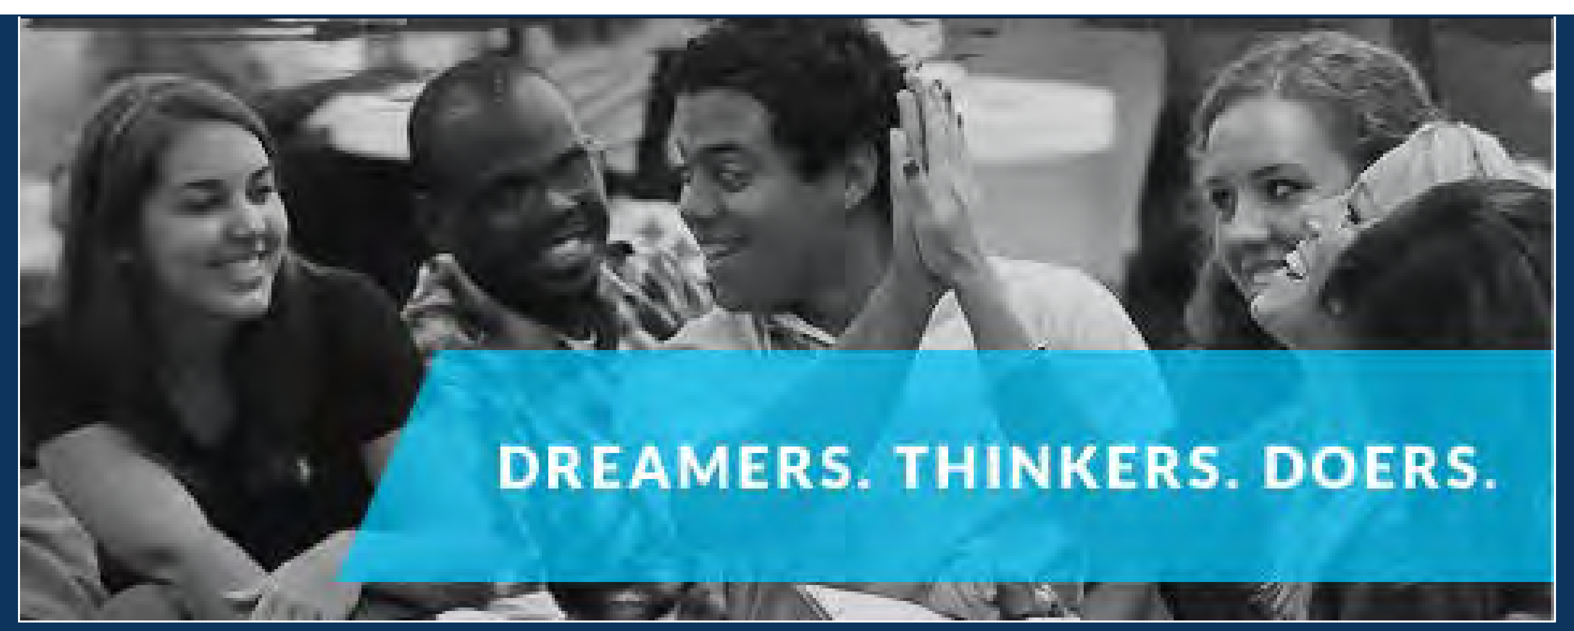
THREAT OF ISIL

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/22/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW

VOLUME 46 | 2015–2016 | BOOKS 1–4

GREGORY A. WAGNER
Editor-in-Chief

SARAH E. SMITH
Managing Editor

MARY KATHERINE SMITH
Senior Notes Editor

C. BENJAMIN LEWIS
Senior Articles Editor

KELLY A. GRAY
Business Editor

KELLY MASTERS PEEVYHOUSE
Symposium Editor

QUYNH-ANH DANG
Research Editor

ARTICLES EDITORS

JORDAN CASH
SYDNEY M. EASON
JOHN FLOYD
WILLIAM PANNELL

NOTES EDITORS

PHOEBE DOSSETT
LORRIE N. HAYES
PATRICK QUINN
MATTHEW SCHWIMMER
JACOB STRAWN
SAMUEL WRIGHT

SENIOR STAFF

WILLIAM CANNON
AUSTIN GARDNER
WILLIAM HAMPTON
R. ALLEN PORTER
CAITLIN O'CONNOR
BRITTANY ROBERTS
FAITH SANFORD

STAFF

ZACHARY J. BURKHALTER
PABLO J. DAVIS
KRISTEN J. DOWNEY
JORDAN M. EMILY
OLIVIA S. GARBER
DYLAN J. GILLESPIE
LYLE GRUBY
MATTHEW HAUSMAN
GARRETT HAYNES
DYLAN M. HOLZEMER
ZACHARY B. JOHNSON
S. SUZANNE LAMB
DEVON C. MUSE
TAYLOR R. OYAAS
SHELBY PATRICK
MAYGAN R. PEAKS
ALEXIS PEDDY
WILLIAM C. PODESTA
MCKENZIE REED
GALE B. ROBINSON, JR.
DANIELLE SALTON
SHELBY N. SMITH
HOLLY J. STANFORD
CALLIE M. TRAN
DARIUS WALKER, JR.
HUNTER K. YOCHES

FACULTY ADVISOR

ANDREW J. MCCLURG

DEAN

PETER V. LETSOU

THE UNIVERSITY OF
MEMPHIS
Institute for Health Law & Policy
INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY
at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW
& POLICY

THE MISSION of the Institute for Health Law & Policy (iHeLP) covers three prongs: Education, Scholarship and Service. Each area is grounded by an overarching mission to use law and policy to advance health.

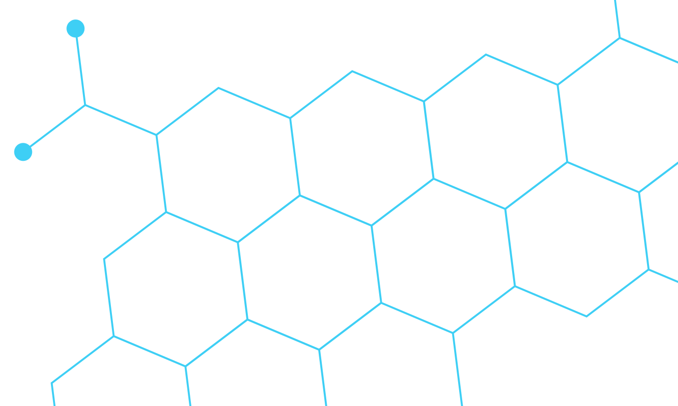
MEMPHIS AS A HUB FOR HEALTHCARE

Healthcare is one of Memphis' most prominent and important industries, with the Greater Memphis area emerging as a leading medical and bioscience center. Shelby County is home to over 16 different hospitals, including internationally-renowned St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and hospitals within two major health systems – Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare and Baptist Memorial Health Care. It's also home to divisional or corporate headquarters to orthopedic and medical device leaders Medtronic, MicroPort Orthopedics, Smith & Nephew and Wright Medical.

EDUCATIONAL goals focus on developing competencies and skills in law students for interdisciplinary, client- and mission-driven practice via traditional coursework, externships and other skills-based opportunities, and scholarship. Focus areas cover traditional health law practice, as well as public health and health system policy and science/biotechnology. Faculty have expertise in a diverse array of health law fields and are also drawn from the surrounding community – who bring a critical practice-based orientation to education.

SCHOLARSHIP opportunities open up for students the possibility for self-directed and faculty-sponsored research, both within and transcending the law school's boundaries, to include, for example, collaboration with affiliated faculty with the School of Public Health and the Loewenberg College of Nursing at the University of Memphis, as well as the University of Tennessee Health Science Center.

SERVICE extends iHeLP's reach into the community where the Institute endeavors to: address unmet health law issues of local organizations and communities, host community forums on health law and policy issues, and work with community leaders to proactively address health policy needs.



Amy Campbell
Director & Associate Professor of Law

We learn by doing; we truly "achieve" our mission only by helping to address, in partnership with others, policy obstacles or gaps that impede the health of the Memphis community. Our mission requires a commitment to civic engagement and collaboration, the very commitments and skills that are necessary ingredients for a successful health law career.

Health-Specific

Bioethics & the Law
Food & Drug Law
Health Law Seminar
Mental Health Law Seminar
Public Health Law

Health-Related

Elder Law
Employee Benefits
Environmental Law
Intellectual Property Survey
Legislation
Patent Law
Products Liability
White Collar Crime

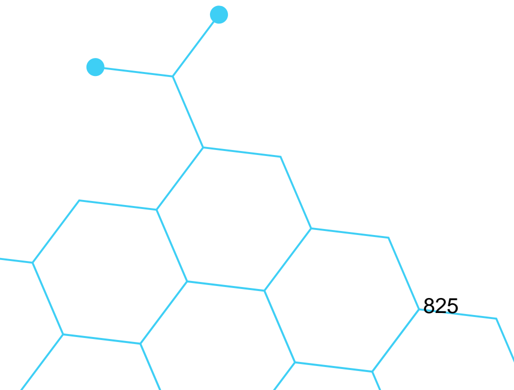
EDUCATION

HEALTH LAW CERTIFICATE

Memphis Law students can take advantage of the robust healthcare industry in the Mid-South through the School of Law's Health Law certificate program. This certificate program offers a wide selection of courses intended to give students specialized knowledge of the healthcare field, as well as the complex policy areas surrounding the industry.

Certificate Requirements

- 15 Credits, covering the Core Curriculum (Health Law and Administrative Law) and 9 Elective Credits, which must include writing and skills credits
- 25 hours of non-course work in health law
- GPA requirements: 3.0 Minimum for Certificate Classes; 2.0 Minimum Overall Classes; 2.5 Overall in Foundational Courses (Torts I and II, and Constitutional Law)



FAST TRACK MPH

Memphis Law has partnered with the School of Public Health at the University of Memphis to offer a unique opportunity for attorneys to obtain a Master of Public Health degree in 12-months. Termed the "Fast Track MPH," the MPH is earned in an intensive full-time format in which attorneys attend classes during the evening and online for three consecutive semesters (fall, spring, summer). As part of their coursework, students also complete a 240-hour community-based practicum.

The 42-credit program is designed to allow attorneys to extend their advocacy skills to a population health perspective and gain substantive knowledge in applying law and policy to public health problems. Special expertise will be gained in urban public health issues, health systems, public health policy and environmental health advocacy. The program prepares attorneys for leadership in addressing public health policy issues related to access to healthcare, health reform, environmental justice and social concerns that affect health equity.

FACULTY

Amy Campbell

Director, Institute of Health Law & Policy; Associate Professor of Law

Professor Campbell leads the Institute. She was formerly Associate Professor of Bioethics and Humanities at SUNY Upstate Medical University, with a background in teaching health law and ethics to medical, nursing and graduate basic science students, and health policy to an interdisciplinary mix of professional students. In 2014, she was selected as one of ten inaugural "Future of Public Health Law Education" Faculty Fellows by a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation-funded program. She received her JD from Yale Law School, her Masters in Bioethics from the University of Pennsylvania and her BA from the University of Notre Dame.

Alena M. Allen

Associate Professor of Law

Professor Allen joined the School of Law faculty in August 2010. Prior to joining the Memphis Law faculty, Professor Allen worked as an associate in the food and drug group at Arnold & Porter. Additionally, she has served on the selection committee for the Food and Drug Law Institute's Thomas Austern Memorial Writing Competition. Professor Allen received her juris doctorate degree from Yale Law School and her Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology from Loyola University New Orleans.

Janet Goode

Visiting Assistant Professor of Law; Director, Memphis CHiLD Medical Legal Partnership

Before joining Memphis Law, Professor Goode served as the first Executive Director of Christian Legal Aid of Pittsburgh (CLA), a large pro bono community clinic, where she significantly shaped CLA's direction and clinic structure, represented clients, and managed a network of volunteer attorneys and law students. She was the recipient of the 2013 Lorraine M. Bittner Public Interest Attorney Award and the 2014 Pennsylvania Bar Association Civil Legal Aid Attorney Award for her work with CLA.

ADJUNCT FACULTY

Tony Alexander, JD – Of Counsel, Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC (teaches Food & Drug Law)

John D. Fabian, JD – Asst. U.S. Attorney (teaches White Collar Crime with health focus)

McGehee Marsh, JD – Senior Counsel, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital (health-focused Externship Seminar)

E. Haavi Morreim, JD, PhD – Professor, Univ. of Tennessee Health Science Center (teaches Bioethics & the Law)

EXTERNSHIP SUPERVISORS

Steve Barlow – Memphis City Attorney's Office

Martha Birkhead – Regional One Health

Laurie Christensen – Baptist Memorial Health Care Corporation

McGehee Marsh – St. Jude Children's Research Hospital

Waid Ray – Baptist Memorial Health Care Corporation

Carla Robbins – Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare

Janet Shipman – Shelby County Health Department

Laura Sy – Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare

Monica Wharton – Regional One Health

INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH LAW & POLICY

SERVICE

COMMUNITY

We are striving to make a meaningful difference in the Memphis community for generations to come. Policy and legislative changes in healthcare can help change the way not simply Memphians live, but also how Memphis as a community fosters and protects the health of its members and neighborhoods. The Institute strives to address unmet health law issues of local organizations and communities, host community forums on health law and policy issues, and work with community leaders to proactively address health policy needs.

HEALTHY HOMES PARTNERSHIP

The Healthy Homes Partnership was established through the leadership of the Institute of Health Law & Policy and Le Bonheur Children's Hospital, and now includes City, County, health system, business, law and community development leaders. It was formed to find comprehensive solutions to eliminate environmental and safety hazards in housing, to promote collaboration between housing and legal services agencies and healthcare providers, and to advance best practices and strategies, including policy and regulatory changes to increase the availability of and access to healthy housing for all Memphis-area residents. Its mission is to ensure "every child in Memphis grows up in a healthy home."

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

Through the strong relationships the Institute has made in the Memphis healthcare community, a number of experiential learning opportunities are available to students.

Externships

Baptist Memorial Health Care Corporation
Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare
Regional One Health
St. Jude Children's Research Hospital
Shelby County Health Department
Memphis City Attorney's Office - Anti-Blight Division

Legal Clinic

Elder Law Health Clinic, Memphis CHiLD (a Medical-Legal Partnership with Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare and Memphis Area Legal Services)

MEMPHIS CHILD

Memphis Law, Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS) and Le Bonheur Children's Hospital have collaborated to create the Memphis CHiLD (Children's Health Law Directive) Medical-Legal Partnership, the first medical-legal partnership of its kind in the region. In addition to a variety of training programs and education, bi-directional partnerships, Memphis CHiLD also consists of an on-site legal clinic located at Le Bonheur Children's Hospital.

IHELP POLICY LAB: ACE INITIATIVE

To manifest the iHelp mission and link our service and educational goals with unique possibilities for scholarship, the School of Law has established a policy lab within the Institute for Health Law & Policy. The policy lab's work will build on local and statewide momentum around addressing adversity in the early childhood years and building family support, and will partner in efforts to drive system-level health policy change in the Mid-South community and across Tennessee for the specific purpose of ACE (Adverse Childhood Experiences), mitigation and recovery. The iHelp Policy Lab: ACE Initiative, with generous support of the ACE Awareness Foundation, will be a resource for policy research, policy advising and drafting of new policies to create a nationally-regarded trauma-informed system, building on the foundation's goals to inform the community about the role of emotional trauma in mental, physical and behavioral health, and implement models that provide preventable and sustainable solutions to reducing toxic stress in family systems.

The policy lab will work on items which include, for example, substantial research into insurance reimbursement policies to help craft "bundled" payment models that incorporate within prevention and wellness services promising culturally-sensitive family and parental-support practices and programs. It will also serve as policy advisor and support to the Building Strong Brains: Tennessee ACEs Initiative.

Through the policy lab, the Institute for Health Law & Policy hopes to advance the law school's role in the community and the growing influence of public/private initiatives to create an academic/public/private approach to benefit our community's health.

The University of Memphis, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University. It is committed to education of a non-racially identifiable student body. UOM051-FY1617/5C Mercury Printing

Workshop on Private International Law in Context: Russian-American Bilateral Trade and Cultural Exchange: Prospects and Challenges

Organizers:
Dr. Beck Niyazov, Russian Cultural Center, Memphis
Dr. Boris N. Mamlyuk, University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

January 13, 2013

Location: Russian Cultural Center, Memphis
509 S. Main St., next door to Bluff City Coffee Shop
Memphis, TN 38103

January 14, 2013

Location: University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103

All participants must sign in with any government issued form of ID at the front security desk.

9:30 – 11:00 Roundtable 1 (Scenic Reading Room, 4th Floor):

American-Russian Business, Cultural and Educational Exchange: Current Challenges for Cooperation

Case Studies

Importance of Institutional Linkages

11:00 – 11:30 Group Photo (In front of Law School)

Meet in Main Floor Vestibule by the Security Desk

11:30 – 12:30 Buffet Lunch (Scenic Reading Room, 4th Floor) and Music Performance

12:30 – 13:00 Break

13:00 – 14:30 Roundtable 2 (Scenic Reading Room, 4th Floor):

Legal Barriers to Further Economic Cooperation Following Russia's Accession to the WTO

- Effect of Russia's WTO Accession for American Firms
- Repeal of Jackson-Vanick
- U.S. Magnitsky Act

14:30 – 15:30 Tour of Law School and Greater Memphis Chamber

17:30 – 19:00 Dinner (Rendezvous BBQ)

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW
2016-2017 ACADEMIC CALENDAR

FALL 2016

First-Year Orientation	Sunday-Friday, August 7-12
Classes Start	Monday, August 15
Labor Day Holiday	Monday, September 5
Classes End	Monday, November 21
Reading Days	Tuesday & Wednesday, November 22-23
Thanksgiving Holiday	Thursday & Friday, November 24-25
Exams Begin	Monday, November 28
Exams End	Friday, December 9
Graduation	Sunday, December 11

SPRING 2017

Classes Start	Wednesday, January 11
MLK Holiday	Monday, January 16
Spring Break	March 6-10
Monday class schedule/Classes End	Wednesday, April 26
Reading Days	Thursday & Friday, April 27-28
Exams Begin	Monday, May 1
Exams End	Friday, May 12
Graduation	Saturday, May 13

SUMMER 2017

Classes Start	Monday, May 22
Memorial Day	Monday, May 29
July 4 Holiday	Monday & Tuesday, July 3-4
Monday class schedule/Classes End	Wednesday, July 12
Reading Day	Thursday, July 13
Exams Begin	Friday, July 14
Exams End	Tuesday, July 18
Graduation	Saturday, August 6

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
2017-2018 Academic Calendar

Fall 2017

First-Year Orientation	Monday-Friday, August 7-11
Classes Start	Monday, August 14
Labor Day Holiday	Monday, September 4
Classes End	Monday, November 20
Reading Days	Tuesday & Wednesday, November 21-22
Thanksgiving Holiday	Thursday & Friday, November 23-24
Exams Begin	Monday, November 27
Exams End	Friday, December 8
Graduation	Sunday, December 17

Spring 2018

Classes Start	Wednesday, January 10
MLK Holiday	Monday, January 15
Spring Break	Monday-Friday, March 5-9
Monday class schedule/Classes End	Wednesday, April 25
Reading Days	Thursday & Friday, April 26-27
Exams Begin	Monday, April 30
Exams End	Friday, May 11
Graduation	Saturday, May 12

Summer 2018

Classes Start	Monday, May 21
Memorial Day	Monday, May 28
July 4 Holiday	Wednesday, July 4
Wednesday class schedule/Classes End	Tuesday, July 10
Reading Day	Wednesday, July 11
Exams Begin	Thursday, July 12
Exams End	Monday, July 16

FIRST ASSIGNMENTS – SPRING 2017

Note: This list is arranged alphabetically by course name. The list may be updated before the first day of classes. If so, a notation of "UPDATED" along with the date will be made next to the link. If your course is not listed, this does not necessarily mean you do not have an assignment. Please check your memphis.edu email account, as professors may email you directly or via their assist.

ADMIRALTY LAW
Professor Mulrooney

- Read pp. 1-4, 31-60
- Print and read Lozman v. City of Riviera Beach, Florida, 133 S. Ct. 735 (2013).

ADVANCED BRIEF-WRITING SEMINAR
Professor Kritchevsky

- Sign up for the course on TWEN. Read the tentative class policies. A syllabus will be posted before the first class.
- The assignment for the first class is to watch Bryan Garner's interview with at least one Supreme Court Justice. (Go to www.lawprose.org, go to the tab Bryan Garner and follow the link to Interviews and then to Supreme Court Interviews).

ANTITRUST
Professor Newman
Read the first numbered assignment in the "Reading Assignments" list posted to the course TWEN site.

Updated BAR EXAM PREPARATION COURSE
Professor Kritchevsky
Sign up for the course on TWEN (course will be up January 2).

- You should have received information from Barbri about signing onto the Matrix course platform. (You may have been enrolled twice; what's key is that you can access it now). Check your spam and clutter folders if you haven't received log on information. If you still don't have it, contact Barbri at IPLearningTeam@barbri.com.
- Complete the Pre Test on Matrix before the first class. The Pre Test is a 100 question simulated Multistate Bar Exam. You are not expected to study before taking it. The point is to give you some sense of what the bar exam will require and give you a benchmark before you begin preparation.
- Course materials will be distributed after the first class.
- I will post a Syllabus and Updated Class Policies on TWEN before the first class.

CIVIL PROCEDURE II (11)
Professor Bock
Please check TWEN for the syllabus and the first week's assignment, which will be posted by 12 noon on Friday, January 6.

CIVIL PROCEDURE II (12)
Professor K. Schaffzin
Register for Prof. Schaffzin's Lexis Webcourse to read the syllabus and reading assignments

FIRST ASSIGNMENTS – SPRING 2017

COMMERCIAL LAW

Professor Smith

After January 1, 2017, please register for the course on TWEN. Please print and read (1) Syllabus (in "Syllabus"), (2) Learning Objectives (in "Syllabus"), and (3) Assignments (in "Syllabus"). I look forward to meeting with you.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Professor Kiel

Assignments will be posted on the course TWEN page.

CONTRACTS II

Professor Newman

Read the first numbered assignment in the "Reading Assignments" list posted to the course TWEN site.

COPYRIGHT

Professor Jones

Please register for the course site on TWEN. Course information and a syllabus are available on the site. The syllabus contains the assignment for Thursday, January 12th as well as the first day of class.

For the first class on Wednesday, January 11th: In the casebook (Julie E. Cohen, et al., Copyright in a Global Information Economy (4th ed. 2015)) read Chapter 1, pp. 3 through 20 (top); 23-34 (top); skim pp. 35 through 40 (top). Please see the Course Information on TWEN for information about the Casebook and Supplement.

CORPORATE GOVERNANCE AND COMPLIANCE

Professor Goldsmith

Read pp. page 1-26, The Role of Shareholders in text Law of Governance, Risk Management & Compliance

CRIMINAL LAW (11)

Professor Mulroy

- Register on TWEN. Download and review the Syllabus/Course Ground Rules, and the Sample Case Brief. Sign up for TopHat. (You will soon be receiving an email from the TopHat company with instructions on how to sign up.)
- Prepare the following assignment (Introduction from the Syllabus): Casebook pages 4-6, notes 3 through 7; page 96 n.4; TCA Section 39-11-101 and Section 39-11-102. (The TCA Handout is under Course Materials on TWEN).

CRIMINAL LAW (12)

Dean Romantz

Please read Dressler (7th ed.) pp. 1 – 14; and pp. 93 - 96.

FIRST ASSIGNMENTS – SPRING 2017

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE II

Judge Ward

Register on TWEN. Download and review Syllabus.

DIVORCE LAW PRACTICUM

Professor Pounders

For the first class:

- Read and brief, in preparation for their first class with Professor Pounders, the following Supreme Court case: Elonis v. United States 135 S. Ct. 2001(2015)

ELDER LAW CLINIC

Professor Harkness

Elder Law Clinic – First Orientation Class – Thursday, Jan. 12th, 3:00-4:20 p.m. Clinic Conference Room

- Read Chaps. 1 & 2 , Rosenblatt, WORKING WITH AGING CLIENTS

Resources for discussion:

- NELF Rules & Regulations for Certification of Elder Law Attorneys (access under Supplemental Materials on TWEN)
- Elder Law Clinic Manual (access under Course materials on TWEN – hard copy will be provided to you at first class meeting)

EMPLOYEE BENEFITS LAW

Professor Kiesewetter

In textbook, Pension and Employee Benefit Law (6th edition) – Part 1, Chapter 1, pages 1-30

EVIDENCE

Professor K. Schaffzin

Register for Prof. Schaffzin's Lexis Webcourse to read the syllabus and reading assignments

FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE

Professor Lidge

The attendance policy will be in effect the first day of class. We will have a makeup class at noon on Thursday, January 19. Attendance will be taken during make-up classes.

Assignment for Wednesday, January 11:

- Read edited version of Brockmeyer, 335 N.W. 2d 834 (Wis. 1983) (in photocopied supplement); Title VII, §§ 701, 702, 703(e)(j), 704 in CB Appendix.

Assignment for Thursday, January 12:

- Read CB 17-25, 31-44.

FIRST ASSIGNMENTS – SPRING 2017

FEDERAL COURTS
Professor Frank
Reading: Fink Text Chapter 1
Assignment: Assignment 1 Problems (available on TWEN on or before 1/2/17)

IMMIGRATION LAW
Judge Pazar
Overview of Immigration Law; Immigration and the Constitution; Sources of the Federal immigration Power; Limits to the Federal Immigration Power; Foundational Cases.
Read: Overview, 1-12; Chapter 2, 97-118 (middle). Emphasis: Chinese Exclusion Case; Ehiu.

LEGAL DRAFTING: CONTRACTS
Professor B. Smith
No assignment.

LEGAL ETHICS SEMINAR
Professor Lidge
Attendance is mandatory for all classes. Please let Professor Lidge know ahead of time if illness or other serious reasons prevent you from attending a class. Laptops are banned in the seminar.
Assignment for Wednesday, January 11

- Read Preamble to ABA Model Rules §§ 1-9 and Model Rule 2.1.
- Read the following three readings. They are available from Linda Hayes, Room 347.
    - Thomas L. Shaffer, Legal Ethics and the Good Client, 36 Cath. U.L. Rev. 319 (1987) – WESTLAW CITE 36 CATHULREV 319.
    - Monroe H. Freedman, Legal Ethics and the Suffering Client, 36 Cath. U.L. Rev. 331 (1987) – WESTLAW CITE 36 CATHULREV 331.
    - The Parable of the Sadhu
    - Have thought about some possible ideas for seminar paper topics

LEGAL METHODS II (Both sections)
Professor Wilson
The Syllabus will be posted on the main Legal Methods TWEN course. Please review the Syllabus for the first assignment. The Syllabus also contains details on the schedule of lecture and section meetings for the spring semester. Please be especially attentive to the schedule for the first two weeks of class. Finally, please review the Section Schedule, also posted on TWEN, for details on when and where your section meetings will take place.

NEGOTIATION AND MEDIATION
Professors Wade (11) and Schwarz (12)
Students in both sections of the class are assigned to read the small, easy to read, but very important book “Getting to Yes” in advance of the first class on January 25, 2016.

First Assignments – Spring 2017

PATENT LAW
Professor Bock
Please register for the Patent Law TWEN site. The syllabus and first assignment will be posted by 12 noon on Friday, January 6.

PRODUCT LIABILITY LAW
Professor Bearman
In the text, read Pp. 15-23.

PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY
Professor Wilson
The Syllabus will be posted on the "Professional Responsibility – Wilson" TWEN course. Please read the Syllabus and complete the first assignment in the Schedule of Assignments included with the Syllabus.

PROPERTY II (12)
Professor Kiel
Assignments will be posted on the course TWEN page.

REALTY TRANSACTIONS
Professor Humphreys
The first assignment is contained in an email from Ms. Cheryl Edwards. If you registered late for the course, contact Ms. Edwards for the information.

REMEDIES
Professor Smith
After January 1, 2017, please register for the course on TWEN. Please print and read (1) Syllabus (in "Syllabus"), (2) Assignments (in "Syllabus"), and (3) any problems or readings to which the assignments refer (in "Course Materials"). I look forward to meeting with you.

TORTS II (11 & 12)
Professor McClurg

- Friday, Jan. 13: Casebook 359-66; Supp. Mat. p. 1-2.
- Pick up the Supplemental Materials for Torts II from Ms. Hayes' work station.
- Note that both sections will meet together this semester at the same time in Wade Auditorium.

TRADEMARKS LAW
Professor Alexander
For the 1st day of class, read chapter 1 (pages 1-49) of the textbook, with emphasis on the following cases: International News Service v. The Associated Press (pages 1-13), Dastar Corp. v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. (pages 18-26) and The Trademark Cases (pages 35-41).

TRIAL ADVOCACY (11)

Professor Frank

Reading: Mauet, Ch. 1; Ch. 5 §§ 5.1 through 5.8, 5.16 and 5.17

Assignment: Imagine that you have been "accused" of enrolling in trial advocacy to sabotage a fellow student. Give a brief opening statement that explains the TRUE reasons for your enrollment in this course (3 minutes max). Include in your opening a brief synopsis of witnesses that will testify on your behalf, and what they will likely say and any other evidence that will be presented on our behalf [for now, don't worry about proper form/contents of opening statements, we will address this later in the course]. Also, please enroll in our TWEN course.

TRIAL ADVOACY (13)

Judge Craft

You will need to have read Chapter One of Modern Trial Advocacy (Lubet) for the first class, "Trial Basics." We will discuss material in that chapter, the reason for certain trial techniques, and demonstrate how to move around the courtroom and use it to your advantage as a battle arena.

TRUST LAW

Professor McDaniel

Bogert text - Chapters 1 & 2. Uniform trust code TCA 35-15-401 thru 408 & 601.

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL
TERM: SPRING 2017

ANY - ANY
PRINT ISBN: YES PRINT NOTES: YES

INCLUDE ONLY NON-RETURNABLE TITLES: NO
12-13-2016 12:00PM PAGE 1

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0121 011		NEWMAN				01-11-2017
FARNSWORTH	CONTRACTS (CASEBOOK)		8TH	2013	9781609300975	FOUND	REQ		NO
LAW 0121 012		MAMLYUK				01-11-2017
KNAPP	PROBLEMS IN CONTRACT LAW (CASEBOOK)		7TH	2012	9780735598225	ASPEN	REQ		NO
KNAPP	RULES OF CONTRACT LAW 2015-2016 STATUTORY SUPPLEMENT			2015	9781454840596	ASPEN	REC		NO
LAW 0122 011		MCCLURG				01-11-2017
GLANNON	LAW OF TORTS: EXAMPLES & EXPLANATIONS		5TH	2015	9781454850113	ASPEN	REC		NO
MCCLURG	1L OF A RIDE: WELL-TRAVELED PROF ROADMAP TO SUCCESS ETC		2ND	2013	9780314283054	WESTG	REC		NO
SCHWARTZ	TORTS, CASES & MATERIALS		13TH	2015	9781609304072	WESTG	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0122 012		MCCLURG				01-11-2017
GLANNON	LAW OF TORTS: EXAMPLES & EXPLANATIONS		5TH	2015	9781454850113	ASPEN	REC		NO
MCCLURG	1L OF A RIDE: WELL-TRAVELED PROF ROADMAP TO SUCCESS ETC		2ND	2013	9780314283054	WESTG	REC		NO
SCHWARTZ	TORTS, CASES & MATERIALS		13TH	2015	9781609304072	WESTG	REQ		NO
LAW 0123 011		WILSON				01-11-2017
GARNER	REDBOOK: MANUAL ON LEGAL STYLE		3RD	2013	9780314289018	WEST	REC		NO
HARVARD LAW REVIEW	BLUEBOOK: UNIFORM SYSTEM OF CITATION		20TH	2015	9780692400197	HARLW	REQ		NO
NEUMANN	LEGAL REASONING & LEGAL WRITING		7TH	2013	9781454826972	ASPEN	REQ		NO
ROMANTZ	LEGAL ANALYSIS		2ND	2009	9781594602795	CACAD	REQ		NO
SLOAN	BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH		6TH	2016	9781454850403	ASPEN	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL
TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE	INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0123 012	WILSON					01-11-2017
GARNER	REDBOOK: MANUAL ON LEGAL STYLE		3RD	2013	9780314289018	WEST	REC		NO
HARVARD LAW REVIEW	BLUEBOOK: UNIFORM SYSTEM OF CITATION		20TH	2015	9780692400197	HARL W	REQ		NO
JR.	LEGAL REASONING AND LEGAL WRITING: STRUCTURE, STRATEGY, AND STYLE		7TH		9781454836001	ASLA W	REQ		NO
NEUMANN	LEGAL REASONING & LEGAL WRITING		7TH	2013	9781454826972	ASPEN	REQ		NO
ROMANTZ	LEGAL ANALYSIS		2ND	2009	9781594602795	CACA D	REQ		NO
SLOAN	BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH: TOOLS AND STRATEGIES		6TH		9781454860907	ASLA W	REQ		NO
SLOAN	BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH		6TH	2016	9781454850403	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0124 011	BOCK					01-11-2017
FRIEDENTHAL	CIVIL PROCEDURE ('16-'17) SUPPLEMENT			2016	9781634607582	WEST G	REQ		NO
FRIEDENTHAL	CIVIL PROCEDURE (CASEBOOK)		11TH	2013	9780314280169	WEST	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0124 012		SCHAFFZIN				01-11-2017
GLANNON	CIVIL PROCEDUR: COURSEBOOK (W/BIND-IN ACCESS CODE)		2ND	2014	9781454851332	ASPEN	REQ		NO
GLANNON	CIVIL PROCEDURE: RULES, STATUTES & OTHER MATERIALS			2016	9781454875338	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0125 011		BRASHIER				01-11-2017
DUKEMINIER	PROPERTY (CASEBOOK) (W/ACCESS CODE)		8TH	2014	9781454851363	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0125 012		KIEL				01-11-2017
DUKEMINIER	PROPERTY (CASEBOOK) (W/ACCESS CODE)		8TH	2014	9781454851363	ASPEN	REQ		NO
SPRANKLING	UNDERSTANDING PROPERTY LAW		3RD	2012	9781422498736	CACAD	REC		NO
LAW 0126 011		MULROY				01-11-2017
DRESSLER	CRIMINAL LAW (CASES & MATERIALS)		7TH	2016	9781628102055	WESTG	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0126 012		ROMANTZ				01-11-2017
DRESSLER	CRIMINAL LAW (CASES & MATERIALS)		7TH	2016	9781628102055	WEST G	REQ		NO
LAW 0212 011		KIEL				01-11-2017
WEAVER	CONSTITUTIO NAL LAW (CASEBOOK)		3RD	2013	9781454830535	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0221 011		SCHAFFZIN				01-11-2017
GOODE	COURTROOM EVIDENCE HANDBOOK 2015-2016			2015	9781634593557	WEST G	REC		NO
MERRITT	LEARNING EVIDENCE (CASEBOOK)		3RD	2015	9781628101003	WEST G	REQ		NO
LAW 0222 011		BLACK				01-11-2017
BROOK	PROBLEMS & CASES ON SECURED TRANSACTION S		3RD	2016	9781454870609	WKLB	REQ		NO
MANN	COMPREHENSI VE COMMERCIAL LAW: 2016 STAT SUPPL			2016	9781454875383	ASPEN	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN		PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0224 011		WILSON					01-11-2017
LERMANSCHRAGGUPTA	BUNDLE: ETHICAL PROBLEMS IN THE PRACTICE OF LAW: CONCISE, 3E FOR TWO-CREDIT COURSE + ETHICAL PROBLEMS IN THE PRACTICE OF LAW: STATUTES, STANDARDS, & QUESTIONS STATUTORY SUPPLEMENT 2017-2018		3RD	2017	9781454886426		ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0305 011		POUNDERS	STUDENTS ARE REQUIRED TO HAVE A COPY OF THE TN RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.				01-11-2017
RICHARDS	RICHARDS ON TENNESSEE FAMILY LAW		3RD		9781422428696		LEXIS	REQ		NO
LAW 0308 011		HARVEY					01-11-2017
DYCUS	NATIONAL SECURITY LAW		6TH	2016	9781454868323		ASPEA	REQ		NO
LAW 0312 011		MULROONEY					01-11-2017
MARAIST	CASES & MATERIALS ON MARITIME LAW (CASEBOOK)		2ND	2009	9780314199621		WEST	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0317 011		WADE				01-11-2017
FISHER	GETTING TO YES		3RD	2011	9780143118756	VP	REQ		NO
LAW 0317 012		SCHWARZ				01-11-2017
FISHER	GETTING TO YES		3RD	2011	9780143118756	VP	REQ		NO
LAW 0318 011		NEWMAN				01-11-2017
SULLIVAN	ANTITRUST LAW ETC (CASEBOOK)		6TH	2009	9781422472156	LEXIS	REQ		NO
LAW 0325 011		JONES				01-11-2017
COHEN LOREN OKEDIJI O'ROURKE	COPYRIGHT IN GLOBAL INFORMATION ECONOMY BUNDLE		4TH	2015	9781454877073	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0326 011		WARD				01-11-2017
MARK WARD	TENNESSEE CRIMINAL TRIAL PRACTICE			2017	9780314843098	WEST	REQ		NO
LAW 0329 011		BLACK				01-11-2017
CCH	FEDERAL ESTATE & GIFT TAXES			2015	9780808038269	CCH	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN		PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0330 011		LIDGE	SEE INSTRUCTOR FOR COURSE PACKET			01-11-2017
FRIEDMAN	LAW OF EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION (CASEBOOK)		10TH	2015	9781628101850		FOUND	REQ		NO
LIDGE	FEP COURSE PACKET			2017			UMCPY	REQ		NO
LAW 0333 011		FRANK				01-11-2017
FINK	FEDERAL COURTS IN 21ST CENTURY: CASES & MATERIALS		4TH	2013	9780769865089		CACAD	REQ		NO
LAW 0334 011		KRATZKE	SEE INSTRUCTOR			01-11-2017
	No Store Supplied Material									NO
LAW 0337 011		PAZAR				01-11-2017
LEGOMSKY	IMMIGRATION & REFUGEE LAW & POLICY (CASEBOOK)		6TH	2015	9781609304249		FOUND	REQ		NO
LAW 0357 011		BEARMAN				01-11-2017
FISCHER	PRODUCTS LIABILITY (CASEBOOK)	(OE-11/13)	4TH	2006	9780314161239		WEST	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN		PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0358 011		HUMPHREYS				01-11-2017
NELSON	LAND TRANSACTION S & FINANCE	(OE-01/16)	4TH	2004	9780314150431		WEST	REQ		NO
LAW 0366 011		ALEXANDER				01-11-2017
LUNNEY	CASES & MATERIALS ON TRADEMARK LAW		2ND	2016	9780314290007		WEST G	REQ		NO
LAW 0368 011		SMITH				01-11-2017
SHOBEN	REMEDIES (CASEBOOK)		6TH	2016	9781634602631		FOUN D	REQ		NO
LAW 0371 011		KIESEWETTER				01-11-2017
LANGBEIN	PENSION & EMPLOYEE BENEFIT LAW		6TH	2015	9781628100211		FOUN D	REQ		NO
LAW 0374 011		BRASHIER				01-11-2017
KOHN	ELDER LAW: PRACTICE, POLICY, AND PROBLEMS				9781454843214		ASLA W	REQ		NO
KOHN	ELDER LAW			2014	9781454837817		ASPEN	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0377 011		MCGOWN				01-11-2017
NITA	FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE			2016	9781601564894	LEXIS	REQ		NO
THOMSON	SKILLS & VALUES: DISCOVERY PRACTICE	(OE-04/13)		2010	9781422429846	MATTH	REQ		NO
LAW 0385 011		KRATZKE				01-11-2017
PERONI	INTERNATIONA L INCOME TAXATION (2016-2017)				9780808044185	CCH	REQ		NO
SCHADEWALD	PRACTICAL GUIDE TO U. S. TAXATION OF INTERNATIONA L TRANSACTION S (10TH EDITION)		10TH	2015	9780808040842	CCH	REQ		NO
LAW 0390 011		BOCK	"GET THE SIXTH (6TH) EDITION (PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED BY LEXISNEXIS). DO NOT GET THE 7TH EDITION."			01-11-2017
MERGES	PATENT LAW & POLICY: CASES & MATERIALS		6TH	2013	9780769857688	CACA D	REQ		NO
LAW 0392 011		MCDANIEL				01-11-2017
BOGERT	LAW OF TRUSTS (CASES & TEXT)		9TH	2012	9781609300982	FOUN D	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0400 011		ALLEN				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0404 011		MAMLYUK				01-11-2017
DAMROSCH	INTERNATIONAL LAW (BASIC DOC SUPPL)	(OE-05/14)	5TH	2009	9780314191298	WEST	REQ		NO
DAMROSCH	INTERNATIONAL LAW (CASEBOOK)		6TH	2014	9780314286437	WEST G	REQ		NO
LAW 0447 011		LIDGE	STUDENTS ARE REQUIRED TO HAVE ANY PR RULES BOOK. THEY SHOULD HAVE FROM ANOTHER COURSE.			01-11-2017
	No Store Supplied Material								NO
LAW 0453 011		KRITCHEVSKY				01-11-2017
GUBERMAN	POINT MADE		2ND	2014	9780199943852	OUP	REQ		NO
SCALIA	MAKING YOUR CASE			2008	9780314184719	WEST	REQ		NO
LAW 0501 011		ROMANTZ				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0502 011		SHIELDS				01-11-2017
KOVACH	MEDIATION		3RD	2004	9780314150226	WEST	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL
TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE / AUTHOR	TITLE	INSTRUCTOR / EDITION NOTE	SECTION NOTE / ED	CY	ISBN	CLASS START DATE / PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0504 011		ZAWISZA	SAME BOOKS USED IN COURSE 0509			01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0505 011		HARKNESS	SAME BOOKS USED IN COURSE 0510			01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0509 011		ZAWISZA				01-11-2017
MICHE	TENNESSEE COMPILATION OF SELECTED LAWS ON CHILDREN, YOUTH & FAMILIES			2016	9781522118237	LEXIS	REQ		NO
VENTRELL	TRIAL ADVOCACY FOR THE CHILD WELFARE LAWYER			2011	9781601561497	NIFTA	REQ		NO
LAW 0510 011		HARKNESS				01-11-2017
MOYE	ASSESSMENT OF OLDER ADULTS WITH DIMINISHED CAPACITY			2005	9781590314975	AMER B	REQ		NO
ROSENBLATT	WORKING WITH AGING CLIENTS			2015	9781634251617	AMER B	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0513 011		LAKEY				01-11-2017
BRIDGES	WRITING FOR LITIGATION			2011	9781454802730	ASPEN	REQ		NO
GARNER	LEGAL WRITING IN PLAIN ENGLISH		2ND	2013	9780226283937	UCHIC	REQ		NO
LAW 0516 011		FRANK				01-11-2017
MAUET	MATERIALS IN TRIAL ADVOCACY (W/CD)		7TH	2011	9780735510449	ASPEN	REQ		NO
MAUET	TRIAL TECHNIQUES & TRIALS (W/WEB 12MTH ACCESS PASS CRD)		9TH	2013	9781454822332	ASPEN	REQ		NO
MAUET	TRIAL TECHNIQUES AND TRIALS		9TH		9781454838609	ASLAW	REQ		NO
LAW 0516 012		LAURENZI				01-11-2017
LUBET	MODERN TRIAL ADVOCACY: LAW SCHOOL ED		3RD	2013	9781601563323	NIFTA	REQ		NO
MAUET	MATERIALS IN TRIAL ADVOCACY (W/CD)		7TH	2011	9780735510449	ASPEN	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE / AUTHOR	TITLE	INSTRUCTOR / EDITION NOTE	SECTION NOTE / ED	CY	ISBN	CLASS START DATE / PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0516 013		CRAFT	STUDENTS ARE REQUIRED TO BRING THE FEDERAL RULES OF EVIDENCE TO CLASS			01-11-2017
LUBET	MODERN TRIAL ADVOCACY: ANALYSIS & PRACTICE (LAW SCHOOL ED)		4TH		9781601565730	NIFTA	REQ		NO
MAUET	MATERIALS IN TRIAL ADVOCACY (W/CD)		7TH	2011	9780735510449	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0516 014		NICHOLS	STUDENTS ARE REQUIRED TO BRING A COPY OF THE FEDERAL RULES OF EVIDENCE TO CLASS			01-11-2017
LUBET	MODERN TRIAL ADVOCACY: LAW SCHOOL ED		3RD	2013	9781601563323	NIFTA	REQ		NO
MAUET	MATERIALS IN TRIAL ADVOCACY (W/CD)		7TH	2011	9780735510449	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0523 011		KRITCHEVSKY				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0523 012		KRITCHEVSKY				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0524 011		KRITCHEVSKY				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0539 011		SCHAFFZIN				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0545 011		SCHAFFZIN				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0557 011		GEIS				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0569 011		GEIS				01-11-2017
AMSTERDAM	TRIAL MANUAL FOR DEFENSE ATTORNEYS IN JUVENILE DELINQUENCY CASES			2014	9781627226608	ABA	REQ		NO
SIMKINS	WHEN KIDS GET ARRESTED			2009	9780813546391	RUTGR	REQ		NO
LAW 0595 011		GOODE				01-11-2017
TYLER	POVERTY, HEALTH & LAW: READINGS & CASES FOR MEDICAL-LEGAL PARTNERSHIP				9781594607790	CACAD	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE	INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0597 011	SMITH					01-11-2017
STARK	DRAFTING CONTRACTS: HOW AND WHY LAWYERS DO WHAT THEY DO		2ND		9781454829058	ASLAW	REQ		NO
STARK	DRAFTING CONTRACTS		2ND	2012	9780735594777	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0598 011	GOODE					01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0599 011	SCHAFFZIN					01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0600 011	SCHAFFZIN					01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0600 012	SCHAFFZIN					01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0600 013	SCHAFFZIN					01-11-2017
	No text required								NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE			CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0700 011		SMITH				01-11-2017
MANN	COMPREHENSIVE COMMERCIAL LAW: 2016 STAT SUPPL			2016	9781454875383	ASPEN	REQ		NO
WHALEY	PROBLEMS & MATERIALS ON COMMERCIAL LAW		11TH	2016	9781454863342	ASPEN	REQ		NO
LAW 0705 011		CAMPBELL				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0710 011		SPENCE				01-11-2017
REBECCA H. GORDON & THOMAS M. SUSMAN	LOBBYING MANUAL COMPLETE GDE TO FEDERAL LOBBYING LAW & PRACTICE		5TH	2016	9781634254540	ABA	REQ		NO
LAW 0711 011		MULROY				01-11-2017
	No text required								NO
LAW 0720 011		GOLDSMITH				01-11-2017
MILLER	LAW OF GOVERNANCE, RISK MANAGEMENT & COMPLIANCE			2014	9781454845447	ASPEN	REQ		NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE	EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN		PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0721 011		KRITCHEVSKY	SEE INSTRUCTOR				01-11-2017
	No Store Supplied Material									NO
LAW 0722 011		ALLEN					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0811 011		KRITCHEVSKY					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0811 012		KRITCHEVSKY					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0812 011		KRITCHEVSKY					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0813 011		KRITCHEVSKY					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0913 011		MCCLURG					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO
LAW 0914 011		MCCLURG					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

BOOK LIST - COURSE ORDER

STORE 1228: UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW SCHOOL

TERM: SPRING 2017

COURSE		INSTRUCTOR	SECTION NOTE				CLASS START DATE
AUTHOR	TITLE		EDITION NOTE	ED	CY	ISBN	PUB	USE	CTN PER	NON-RTN
LAW 0915 011		MCCLURG					01-11-2017
	No text required									NO

PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION OF FOLLETT HIGHER EDUCATION GROUP

Spring 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

#	Name	Section	Hours	Professor	Days	Time	Room	CRN
	1L Required Courses
121	Contracts II	011	2	Newman	MW	11:00-11:50	244	14220
	Contracts II	012	2	Mamlyuk	MTh	3:00-3:50	226	14221
122	Torts II	011	3	McClurg	T	2:30-3:45	244	14222
					F	1:00-2:15
	Torts II	012	3	McClurg	T	2:30-3:45	244	14223
					F	1:00-2:15
123	Legal Methods II	011	2	Wilson	M	1:00-1:50	325	14224
	LM small section	011		Adjunct	TBA	TBA	TBA
	Legal Methods II	012	2	Wilson	M	10:00-10:50	325	14225
	LM small section	012		Adjunct	TBA	TBA	TBA
124	Civil Procedure II	011	2	Bock	WF	10:00-10:50	325	14226
	Civil Procedure II	012	2	Schaffzin	MW	1:00-1:50	226	14227
125	Property II	011	3	Brashier	TTh	10:35-11:50	244	14228
	Property II	012	3	Kiel	TF	9:00-10:15	226	14229
126	Criminal Law	011	3	Mulroy	TThF	9:00-9:50	244	14230
	Criminal Law	012	3	Romantz	TTh	1:00-2:15	226	14232
	2L or 3L Required Course
212	Constitutional Law	011	4	Kiel	TWF	1:00-2:10	325	22359
221	Evidence	011	4	Schaffzin, K.	MW	9:00-10:50	326	14233
224	Professional Responsibility	011	2	Wilson	T	10:00-11:50	325	14243
	Statutory Course Menu
222	Secured Transactions	011	3	Black	MW	8:00-8:50	325	14237
					Th	8:30-9:20
330	Fair Employment Practice	011	3	Lidge	MWTh	11:00-11:50	326	14256
334	Taxation of Corps. & Shareholders	011	3	Kratzke	MWTh	11:00-11:50	233	14260
	Practice Foundation Course Menu
368	Remedies	011	3	Smith, K.	TF	8:00-9:15	325	14278

Spring 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

Electives

308	National Security Law	011	2	Harvey	MW	5:00-5:50	230	19587
312	Admiralty Law	011	2	Mulrooney	W	6:00-7:50	230	20674
318	Antitrust	011	3	Newman	TTh	2:25-3:40	326	23689
325	Copyright	011	3	Jones	MWTh	11:00-11:50	127	20671
326	Criminal Procedure II	011	2	Ward	M	6:00-7:50	325	25122
329	Estate Planning	011	3	Black	MTh	9:30-10:45	127	14254
333	Federal Courts	011	3	Frank	MTh	9:30-10:45	226	23690
337	Immigration Law	011	3	Pazar	TTh	6:00-7:15	230	14262
357	Products Liability	011	2	Bearman	TTh	5:15-6:05	226	14274
358	Realty Transactions	011	2	Humphreys	F	8:30-10:20	233	14275
366	Trademarks	011	3	Alexander	MW	2:30-3:45	127	20670
371	Employee Benefits	011	3	Kiesewetter	MW	4:30-5:45	233	20675
374	Elder Law	011	3	Brashier	MTh	1:00-2:15	326	14280
385	U.S. Taxation of International Income	011	3	Kratzke	TTh	3:50-5:05	233	20676
390	Patent Law	011	3	Bock	TTh	2:25-3:40	127	22362
392	Trust Law	011	2	McDaniel	Th	4:00-5:50	230	16977
700	Commercial Law	011	4	Smith	TThF	1:00-2:10	127	22875
720	Corporate Governance and Compliance	011	2	Goldsmith, Harry	T	5:15-7:05	127	24524
721	Bar Exam Preparation Course	011	2	Kritchevsky	W	9:00-10:50	226	24548
722	Health Law Survey	011	3	Allen	TF	8:30-9:45	230	24786

Spring 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

	Course	Section	Credits	Instructor	Days	Time	Room	CRN
	Seminars/Adv. Research&Writing Permit Required
400	Health Law Seminar	011	2	Allen	W	1:00-2:50	206	22364
404	Public International Law Seminar	011	2	Mamlyuk	W	2:30-4:20	233	24525
447	Legal Ethics Seminar	011	2	Lidge	W	2:30-4:20	338	18531
453	Advanced Brief Writing Seminar	011	2	Kritchevsky	W	2:30-4:20	104	19593
	Skills Courses Permit Required
305	Divorce Law Practicum	011	3	Pounders	TW	5:15-6:30	206	22596
317	Negotiation and Mediation	011	2	Wade	M	6:00-7:50	230	18528
		012	2	Schwarz	M	6:00-7:50	230	24513
377	Discovery	011	2	McGown, Gigi	M	6:00-7:50	206	20669
513	Legal Drafting: Litigation	011	2	Lakey	Th	8:00-9:50	233	19592
516	Trial Advocacy[1]
	Trial Advocacy: Criminal & Civil	011	3	Frank	T	3:50-4:40	230	14289
				Frank	Th	3:50-5:20	310 (SMC)
	Trial Advocacy: Criminal & Civil	012	3	Laurenzi	Th	5:30 - 8:20	Fed Bldg	14290
	Trial Advocacy: Criminal & Civil	013	3	Craft	Th	5:30 - 8:20	201 Poplar	14291
	Trial Advocacy: Criminal	014	3	Nichols	W	5:30 - 8:20	201 Poplar	22366
597	Legal Drafting: Contracts	011	2	Smith, Bryan	T	8:00-9:50	233	20936
705	Health Policy Practicum	011	3	Campbell	T	1:00-2:50	230	24514
	Clinics[3]
501	Clinic: Housing Adjudication	011	4	Romantz	T	3:00-4:40	231	22878
502	Clinic: Mediation	011	4	Shields	W	6:00-7:50	231	22367
504	Advanced Clinic: Child/Family	011	2	Zawisza	F	10:30-12:20	Clinic	22630
505	Advanced Clinic: Elder Law	011	2	Harkness	TBA	TBA	Clinic	22631
509	Civil Litigation Clinic: Children & Families	011	4	Zawisza	F	10:30-12:20	Clinic	14287
510	Elder Law Clinic	011	4	Harkness	F	10:30-12:20	Clinic	14288
539	Clinic: Neighborhood Preservation	011	4	Schaffzin, D	F	10:30-12:20	Clinic	23769

Spring 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

	Clinics Continued
545	Advanced Criminal Prosecution intersession[2]	011	1	Schaffzin, D	TBA	TBA	Clinic	23940
569	Clinic: Children's Defense	011	4	Gies, L	T	3:50-5:40	Clinic	24779
595	Clinic: Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic	011	4	Goode, J	F	10:30-12:20	Clinic	24594
598	Adv. Clinic: Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic	011	2	Goode, J	TBA	TBA	Clinic	24609
599	Adv. Clinic: Neighborhood Preservation	011	2	Schaffzin, D	TBA	TBA	Clinic	24610
557	Adv. Clinic: Children's Defense Clinic	011	2	Geis, L	TBA	TBA	Clinic	25151
	Externships
600	Externships (lecture)
	Externships	all		Schaffzin, D	M	4:30-5:50	244
				McCarver	M	4:30-5:50	226
	Externships	011	2	Schaffzin, D			clinic	21690
	Externships	012	3	Schaffzin, D			clinic	21691
	Research/Moot Court/Law Review
711	Research I	011	1	Mulroy				14299
523	Moot Court Travel Team	011	1	Kritchevsky				19757
	Moot Court Travel Team	012	2	Kritchevsky				19758
524	Trial /ADR Travel Team	011	1	Kritchevsky				20677
811	Moot Court - 2 Competitions	011	1	Kritchevsky				14300
	Moot Court - 4 Competitions	012	2	Kritchevsky				20667
812	Moot Court Board	011	1	Kritchevsky				20678
813	Moot Court Executive Board	011	2	Kritchevsky				20679
913	Law Review Note	011	2	McClurg				14303
914	Law Review Staff	011	1	McClurg				14304
915	Law Review Editorial Board	011	2	McClurg				24219

[1]Trial Advocacy will meet all three class hours in separate adjunct-professor sections; Trial Ad will not meet in big lecture. In the spring, we are trying something new, practice-specific Trial Ad sections. Section 011 (Frank) will teach Trial Ad using civil cases; Section 014 (Nichols) will teach Trial Ad using criminal cases; Section 012 (Laurenzi) and section 013 (Craft) will teach using both civil and criminal cases.

[2]Permit required. Advanced Criminal Prosecution is a 1-credit intersession course offered during the Law School's 2017 Spring Break. The Course will meet each day from Monday, March 6 to Friday, March 10, 2017 and will be filled via application. Please contact Professor D. Schaffzin with any questions.

[3]Students who have previously taken one of the five fall/spring Clinics are eligible to enroll as an Advanced Clinic student in that same clinic. If you have questions,please see the Professor who directs and teaches the base Clinic course.

Monday - SPRING 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00									Sec. Trans. (Black) 8:00-8:50 MW 8:30-9:20 Th
9:00		Estate Planning Black MTh 9:30-10:45			Federal Courts Frank MTh 9:30-10:45					Evidence Schaffzin, K. MW 9:00-10:50
10:00									Legal Methods Wilson §12 M
11:00		Copyright Jones MWTh				Contracts II Newman §11 MW		Corporate Tax Kratzke MWTh		Fair Employment Practice MWTh Lidge
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00					Civil Procedure Schaffzin, K. §12 MW				Legal Methods Wilson §11 M	Elder Law Brashier MTh 1:00-2:15
2:00		Trademarks Alexander MW 2:30-3:45
3:00					Contracts II Mamlyuk §12 MTh
4:00					Externship McCarver M 4:30-5:50	Externship Schaffzin, D. M 4:30-5:50		Employee Benefits Kiesewetter MW 4:30-5:45
5:00							National Security Harvey MW
6:00				Discovery McGown M 6:00-7:50			Negotiation & Mediation Wade & Schwarz M 6:00-7:50		Criminal Procedure II M 6:00-7:50
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Updated on 1/10/2017

Tuesday - SPRING 2017

	006 (10-12)	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00					Legal Methods small section TTh Alden			Health Law Survey Allen TF 8:30-9:45	Legal Drafting: Contracts Smith, B. T 8:00-9:50	Remedies Smith, K. TF 8:00-9:15
9:00						Property II Kiel §12 TF 9:00-10:15	Criminal Law Mulroy §11 TThF
10:00							Property II Brashier §11 TTh 10:35-11:50			Professional Responsibility Wilson T 10:00-11:50
11:00
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00			Commercial Law Smith, K. TThF 1:00-2:10			Criminal Law Romantz §12 TTh 1:00-2:15		Health Policy Practicum Campbell T 1:00-2:50		Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00			Patent Law Bock TTh 2:25-3:40				Torts II - §11 & §12 McClurg T 2:30-3:45 F 1:00-2:15				Antitrust Newman TTh 2:25-3:40
3:00								Trial Advocacy Frank §11 T 3:50-4:40/ Th	US Taxation of Int'l. Income Kratzke TTh 3:50-5:05					Children's Defense Clinic Geis T 3:50-5:40
4:00	Legal Methods small section Wilson T 4:00-5:50
5:00		Legal Methods small section Bell T 5:30-7:20	Corporate Governance & Compliance Goldsmith T 5:15-7:05		Divorce Law Practicum Pounders TW 5:15-6:30	Products Liability Bearman TTh 5:15-6:05				Legal Methods small section Low T 5:00-6:50		Legal Methods small section Singh T 5:00-6:50
6:00	Legal Methods small section Enekwa T 6:00-7:50						Legal Methods small section Wright T 6:10-8:00	Immigration Law Pazar TTh 6:00-7:15	Legal Methods small section Perry T 6:00-7:50
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Updated on 1/10/2017

Wednesday - SPRING 2017

	006 (10-12)	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00										Sec. Trans. (Black) 8:00-8:50 MW 8:30-9:20 Th
9:00						Bar Exam Prep Course Kritchevsky W 9:00-10:50					Evidence Schaffzin, K. MW 9:00-10:50
10:00										Civil Procedure II Bock §11 WF
11:00			Copyright Jones MWTh				Contracts II Newman §11 MW		Corporate Tax Kratzke MWTh		Fair Employment Practice MWTh Lidge
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00					Health Law Seminar Allen W 1:00-2:50	Civil Procedure Schaffzin, K. §12 MW				Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00		Advanced Brief Writing Seminar Kritchevsky W 2:30-4:20	Trademarks Alexander MW 2:30-3:45				Legal Analysis Aden/Gill W 2:00-3:15		Public Int'l. Law Seminar Mamlyuk W 2:30-4:20			Legal Ethics Seminar Lidge W 2:30-4:20
3:00
4:00		Legal Methods small section Vescovo W 4:30-6:20							Employee Benefits Kiesewetter MW 4:30-5:45
5:00			Legal Methods small section Oliphant W 5:30-7:20		Divorce Law Practicum Pounders TW 5:15-6:30			National Security Harvey MW						Trial Ad: Nichols § 14 Criminal 201 Poplar Ave. W 5:30-8:20
6:00								Admiralty Law Mulrooney W 6:00-7:50	Mediation Clinic Shields W 6:00-7:50 Room 231
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Updated on 1/10/2017

Thursday - SPRING 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	Other
8:00				Legal Methods small section TTh Alden				Legal Drafting: Litigation Lakey Th 8:00-9:50	Sec. Trans. (Black) 8:00-8:50 MW 8:30-9:20 Th
9:00		Estate Planning Black MTh 9:30-10:45			Federal Courts Frank MTh 9:30-10:45	Criminal Law Mulroy §11 TThF
10:00						Property II Brashier §11 TTh 10:35-11:50
11:00		Copyright Jones MWTh						Corporate Tax Kratzke MWTh		Fair Employment Practice MWTh Lidge
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00		Commercial Law Smith, K. TThF 1:00-2:10			Criminal Law Romantz §12 TTh 1:00-2:15					Elder Law Brashier MTh 1:00-2:15
2:00		Patent Law Bock TTh 2:25-3:40								Antitrust Newman TTh 2:25-3:40
3:00					Contracts II Mamlyuk §12 MTh			US Taxation of Int'l. Income Kratzke TTh 3:50-5:05				Trial Advocacy Frank § 11 T 3:50-4:40 Th 3:50-5:20
4:00				Legal Methods small section Sink Th 4:00-5:50			Trust Law McDaniel Th 4:00-5:50
5:00					Products Liability Bearman TTh 5:15-6:05								Trial Ad: Laurenzi § 12 Civil & Criminal Federal Bldg. Ct. Rm. 1 11th floor Th 5:30-8:20	Trial Ad: Craft § 13 Civil & Criminal 201 Poplar Ave. Th 5:30-8:20
6:00							Immigration Law Pazar TTh 6:00-7:15
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Updated on 1/10/2017

Friday - SPRING 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00							Health Law Survey Allen TF 8:30-9:45	Realty Transactions Humphreys F 8:30-10:20	Remedies Smith, K. TF 8:00-9:15
9:00					Property II Kiel §12 TF 9:00-10:15	Criminal Law Mulroy §11 TThF
10:00									Civil Procedure II Bock §11 WF					CLINIC Child & Family MLP Elder Nghbrhood Pres. F 10:30-12:20
11:00
12:00	NOON HOUR
1:00		Commercial Law Smith, K. TThF 1:00-2:10				Torts II - §11 & §12 McClurg T 2:30-3:45 F 1:00-2:15			Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00
3:00
4:00
5:00
6:00
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Updated on 1/10/2017

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
SPRING 2017 EXAM SCHEDULE

NOTE: Students may not enroll in courses with conflicting exams unless written approval is obtained from the Associate Dean prior to enrolling. All requests for approval of enrollment in courses with conflicting exams must be submitted in the form of a written memo.

DATE	TIME	SECTION	COURSE	PROFESSOR	ROOM
Monday, May 1
	9:00 am	011	Health Law Survey	Allen	230
		011	Realty Transactions	Humphreys	233
		011	Remedies	Smith, K.	325
	2:00 pm	011	Civil Procedure II	Bock	136
		012	Civil Procedure II	Schaffzin, K.	226, 244
Tuesday, May 2
	9:00 am	011	Copyright	Jones	325
		011	Corporate Tax	Kratzke	233
		011	Fair Employment Practices	Lidge	326
Wednesday, May 3
	9:00 am	011	Admiralty Law	Mulrooney	230
		011	Professional Responsibility	Wilson	325
	2:00 pm	011	Property II	Brashier	226, 244
		012	Property II	Kiel	325,326
Thursday, May 4
	9:00 am	011	Antitrust	Newman	127
		011	Patent Law	Bock	326
Friday, May 5
	9:00 am	011	Estate Planning	Black	127
		011	Evidence	Schaffzin	326
		011	Federal Courts	Frank	325
	2:00 pm	011	Torts II	McClurg	136
		012	Torts II	McClurg	136

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
SPRING 2017 EXAM SCHEDULE

DATE	TIME	SECTION	COURSE	PROFESSOR	ROOM
Monday, May 8
	9:00 am	011	Commercial Law	Smith, K.	127
		011	Constitutional Law	Kiel	325
		011	Secured Transactions	Black	326
	2:00 pm	011	Contracts	Newman	325,326
		012	Contracts	Mamlyuk	226, 244
Tuesday, May 9
	9:00 am	011	Criminal Procedure II	Ward	325
		011	Elder Law	Brashier	230
		011	U.S. Taxation of Int'l Income	Kratzke	233
Wednesday, May 10
	9:00 am	011	Corporative Governance & Compliance	Goldsmith	338
		011	Immigration Law	Pazar	244
		011	Products Liability	Bearman	226
Thursday, May 11
	9:00 am	011	Bar Exam Preparation Course	Kritchevsky	226
		011	Trademark Law	Alexander	127
		011	Trust Law	McDaniel	244
	2:00 pm	011	Criminal Law	Mulroy	325,326
		012	Criminal Law	Romantz	226, 244
Friday, May 12
	9:00 am	011	Employee Benefits	Kiesewetter	233
		011	National Security	Harvey	230

The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR READING THIS MEMO PRIOR TO REGISTRATION

SPRING 2017 LAW SCHOOL REGISTRATION

VETERANS – MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14 AT 8:00 A.M.
43+ HOURS –TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15 AT 9:00 A.M.
15-42 HOURS – THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17 AT 9:00 A.M.
0-14 HOURS – FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18 AT 9:00 A.M.

You will register on your myMemphis Student Self Service account for the 2017 spring semester. Please read the following instructions and pay close attention to the Law School Calendar as some of our dates and deadlines differ from the rest of the University. The registration materials posted on the Law School website and the bulletin board in Room 262 are the only official Law School registration materials. You are responsible for following the Law School's instructions.

PRIORITY ENROLLMENT:
There is a priority procedure in place for registration. Questions about your priority status should be directed to the Law School's Registrar Office.

(1) Veterans or Active Duty Military
State law authorizes priority registration for Veterans. Veterans may register beginning Monday, November 14, at 8:00 a.m.

(a) Veterans: If you are a Veteran but are not claiming VA Educational Benefits, and are not registered with the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office on campus, you will need to provide them with a copy of your DD-214 so your account can be coded for early registration.

(b) National Guard: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 and Notice of Basic Eligibility (NOBE).

(c) Reserves: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 that indicates you have completed initial active duty for training.

Veterans Education Benefits & Certification Office of the Registrar
003 Wilder Tower
Phone: 901-678-2996
Fax: 901-678-1425
vetedbenefits@memphis.edu

(1) Students who have attempted 43 or more credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Tuesday, November 15, at 9:00 a.m.*

(2) Students who have attempted 15-42 credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Thursday, November 17, at 9:00 a.m.*

(3) Students who have attempted 0-15 or more credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Friday, November 18, at 9:00 a.m.*

"Attempted" hours do not include the hours which are currently in-progress, i.e. the hours in which you are enrolled at the time of registration. To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION:
Login to the myMemphis Portal at with your University ID and password, select the Student tab, go to Registration Tools and follow the directions. Course Registration Numbers (CRNs) are listed on the Law School Course Schedule online. If you need assistance accessing your myMemphis account, contact 901-678-8888.

(1) You may register and pay fees until 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, January 10, 2017, without incurring late fees. Seating capacity is limited in some classrooms; it is to your advantage to register early. Your courses will be cancelled for non-payment at 4:31 p.m. on Tuesday, January 10, 2017.

(2) Course Load (Academic Regulation 5):

(a) Full-time students must enroll in a minimum of 12 hours and not more than 18 semester hours. For students with a GPA below 2.50, the maximum course load is 16 hours unless prior approval is obtained from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. Students wishing to switch to part-time must submit a written request to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for approval prior to enrolling.

(b) Part-time students must enroll in at least 8 and not more than 11 credit hours. Students wishing to switch to full-time must submit a written request to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for approval prior to enrolling. Taking less than 12 credit hours may affect the amount of your financial aid. Contact DebraAnn Brown with financial aid questions.

(3) Course Sequencing and Requirements (Academic Regulation 16):

(a) Second-Year Full-Time Students: Second-year students are required to take Evidence and Constitutional Law in the fall or spring semester. Second-year students should, but are not required to, enroll in Professional Responsibility and take two courses from both the Statutory Course Menu and the Practice Foundation Menu. Two courses in each menu must be completed prior to graduation. The following Menu courses are offered in the spring 2017 semester:

Statutory Menu Courses	Practice Foundation Menu Courses
Secured Transactions	Remedies
Taxation of Corps. & Shareholders

(b) Second-Year Part-Time Students:
Constitutional Law
Contracts II
Criminal Law
Property II
Evidence

Curricular requirements vary according to start-date. Check Rule 16 of the Academic Regulations to determine which curricular requirements apply to you.*

(c) Third-Year and Fourth-Year Part-Time Students:
Complete any required courses as needed under the curriculum in place when you entered law school.

(d) Part-Time Students:
You must enroll in required courses in sequence. If you fail to register for a required course in sequence, you are deemed enrolled and will receive a failing grade in the class for failure to attend. You must remain in the same section in which you start for the entire full-time 1L curriculum.

LIMITED COURSES:

Skills and Advanced Research: The sign-up procedure will open on Wednesday, October 26 at noon and will close on Monday, October 31 at noon. Those selected for a seat will be notified by email by Monday, November 7. The Registrar's Office will enroll you during the week of registration. If you decide not to take the limited course, you must drop the course and notify the Law School Registrar's Office immediately.

Externships: Professor Danny Schaffzin, Director of the Externship Program, will notify students who were selected; these students will be enrolled by the Registrar's Office. A student who decides to drop the Externship Course must obtain the permission of Professor Danny Schaffzin before doing so.

Legal Clinics: The clinic faculty member has notified students selected for Legal Clinics; these students will be enrolled by the Registrar's Office. If you decide to drop the clinic, you are required to notify the faculty member and the Law School Registrar's Office immediately.

HOLDS:

If you have any HOLDS on your account, you will not be able to register until you clear the HOLDS through the Bursar's Office. Check your account now and clear any HOLDS, so you are able to register. I do not have access to the HOLD information and cannot help you clear it.

ALTERNATE PIN:

Students who:

(1) have needed an "alternate pin" to enroll in prior semesters,
(2) are registered with Disability Resources Services,
(3) are pursuing a JD/MBA or JD/MA degree, or
(4) are registered with Veteran Services,

should email the Law School Registrar's Office PRIOR to registration.

FEES: Refer to the Bursar's website.

DEADLINES: Refer to the Deadline Calendar.

Drops/Adds: (Refer to Academic Regulations)

Add courses via your account through Tuesday, January 10, 2017 at 4:30 p.m.

Drop courses via your account through Friday, March 3. Drops after this date must be done through the Law Registrar office, with permission from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

(a) The deadline for 100% refund for dropped courses is Tuesday, January 10, 2017.
(b) Courses dropped after Monday, January 30, 2017 will show as a "W" on your transcript.

Late Registration: From Wednesday, January 11 through Thursday, January 19, 2017 at 5:30 p.m., students may register online. The fee payment deadline for Late Registration is Thursday, January 19, at 5:30 p.m. A late registration fee will be assessed to students who register during this period. Any classes missed due to late registration count as absences.

Courses Canceled for Non-Payment: For regular registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, January 10, 2017. For late registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Friday, January 20, 2016.

PREREQUISITES:

Students are responsible for compliance with course prerequisites and other course restrictions as stated in the Academic Regulations and in the Course Catalog. A student may be dropped from a course if the student does not have the required prerequisites.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING:

1. Clinic and Externship course information is available online. In addition to the Academic Regulations, please review the Policies and Procedures of the Externship Program.

2. Students may only receive credit toward graduation for three Externships, or two Clinics, or a combination of two Externships and one Clinic.

3. Absent permission from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, a student may not repeat a clinic or externship, may not enroll in both a clinic and externship in the same term, and may not enroll in more than one clinic or more than one externship in any term. A student enrolled in an externship may not be enrolled in more than 16 hours without permission. Students must have completed 28 hours before enrolling in an Externship. For enrollment purposes in these limited enrollment courses, a student who has taken one clinic will not receive priority for a second clinic, and a student who has taken one externship will not receive priority for a second externship.

INDEPENDENT RESEARCH:
Students interested in enrolling in Independent Research must obtain the permission of the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs and turn in a completed Research Paper Form to the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs. Forms may be picked up from the Law School Registrar. If you are interested, you should speak with the Associate Dean prior to registration.

EXAM SCHEDULE:
Students may not enroll in courses with conflicting exams unless written approval is obtained from the Associate Dean prior to enrolling. All requests for approval of enrollment in courses with conflicting exams must be submitted in the form of a written memo.

LIMITATION ON COURSES GRADED E, S, U ("E,S,U COURSES"):
A student may not utilize more than twelve (12) credit hours toward graduation requirements from any combination of the following courses: Externship, Law Review or Law Review Board, Moot Court (including Moot Court Board, Moot Court Executive Board, and inter-school or intra-school competition credit), Independent Research, and Advanced Clinic.

LOCKERS: Payment should be made online. Once you have paid the locker fee online, see Brigitte Boyd in Room 260 for assignment of a locker and combination.

COURSE CANCELLATION: The Law School Administration reserves the right to cancel a course that fails to get sufficient enrollment.

See important financial information on the next page.*****

Spring 2016 Law
FINANCIAL INFORMATION

YOU are responsible for complying with the policies and fee information on the Bursar's website. Please read before registering. Dates for registration and fee payment are available online. See also the Law Deadlines Calendar.

Registration Cancellation Policy
NO PAYMENT = NO CLASSES!

If your financial aid (grants and student loans), scholarship, and/or third party assistance does not cover 100% of your fees, you must pay the remaining balance by the appropriate fee payment deadline. You will be notified via your University email account when your electronic invoice is available online. You remain responsible for completing the fee payment process by the fee payment deadline, even if you do not receive or open your fee invoice, which will be available on your Banner Student Self Service account.

Tuition and fees are available online.

Payments mailed to the Bursar's Office must be received in their office by the appropriate fee payment deadline, regardless of the postmark date on the envelope. Please allow five to seven days for processing.

The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2017 Spring Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Wednesday, October 26 – Monday, October 31	Limited Enrollment Registration
Monday, November 14 – Friday, November 18	Registration

Monday, November 14: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, November 15: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, November 17: 15-42 Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Friday, November 18: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Tuesday, January 10	Law School Tuition & Fees Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 5:30pm)
Tuesday, January 10	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops and/or Withdrawals
Wednesday, January 11	First Day of Classes
Wednesday, January 11 — Thursday, January 19	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Monday, January 16	Holiday: MLK Birthday
Thursday, January 19	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 5:30pm
Friday, January 20	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Tuesday, January 24	Last Day for 75% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, January 27	Last Day to Apply for May 2017 Graduation
Monday, January 30	Last Day to Drop Course or Withdraw Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Friday, February 10	Last Day for 25% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, March 3	Last Day to Drop Courses or Withdraw Without Permission
Monday, March 6 – Friday, March 10	Spring Break
Wednesday, April 26	Last Day of Classes (Monday Class Schedule)
Thursday & Friday, April 27 & 28	Reading Days
Monday, May 1	Exams Begin
Friday, May 12	Exams End
Saturday, May 13	Commencement

Summer 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

#	Name	Section	Hours	Professor	Days	Time	Room	CRN	Exam
331	Family Law	011	3	Black	MTWR	8:00 am - 9:15 am	244	56234	July 18, 9:00 am
359	Sales	011	3	Mamlyuk	MTWR	5:00 pm - 6:15 pm	244	55771	July 14, 9:00 am
397	International Economic Law*	011	3	Kratzke	MTWR	9:30 am-10:45 am	230	53247	July 17, 9:00 am
600	Externships	011	2	Schaffzin, D.	T	3:00 pm-4:50 pm	244	55619
		012	3	Schaffzin, D.	T	3:00 pm-4:50 pm	244	55620
		013	4	Schaffzin, D.	T	3:00 pm-4:50 pm	244	55621

NOTES:

1. If you are unable to sit for the scheduled final exam, you may not enroll in the course.

2. A student enrolled in 6 or more credit hours may work no more than 20 hours outside the law school.

3. To be eligible for financial aid, law students must be enrolled in at least 3 credit hours during the summer semester.

4. A student may not be enrolled in more than 9 credit hours during the summer semester.

5. Externships: Students must have successfully completed 45 credit hours to be eligible to enroll. Students will apply for and be accepted into an Externship for 2 credits (16 hours weekly), 3 credits (24 hours weekly), or 4 credits (32 hours weekly - see #6 note below), in addition to participating in a once-weekly seminar that will meet on Tuesday from 3:00 p.m. to 4:50 p.m. The number of credit hours assigned to each Externship field placement is predetermined. Credit is awarded for successful completion of both the field placement and the Externship Course seminar. An Externship may satisfy the Skills Requirement.

6. During the Summer Session, students enrolled in a 4-credit (32 weekly hours externship may not concurrently enroll in any additional summer courses offered during the day (1:00-5:00 pm)).

* Students in this course must be available for several possible make-up sessions on Friday mornings, to be scheduled with advanced notice.

The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR READING THIS MEMO PRIOR TO REGISTRATION

SUMMER 2017 LAW SCHOOL REGISTRATION

VETERANS – MONDAY, APRIL 3 AT 8:00 A.M.
43+ HOURS –TUESDAY, APRIL 4 AT 9:00 A.M.
15-42 HOURS – THURSDAY, APRIL 6 AT 9:00 A.M.
0-14 HOURS – FRIDAY, APRIL 7 AT 9:00 A.M.

You will register on your myMemphis Student Self Service account for the 2017 Summer term. Please read the following instructions and pay close attention to the Law School Calendar as some of our dates and deadlines differ from the rest of the University. The registration materials posted on the Law School website and the bulletin board in Room 262 are the only official Law School registration materials. You are responsible for following the Law School's instructions.

PRIORITY ENROLLMENT:
There is a priority procedure in place for registration that is based on attempted hours. Questions about your priority status should be directed to the Law School's Registrar Office.

(1) Veterans or Active Duty Military
State law authorizes priority registration for Veterans. Veterans may register beginning Monday, April 4, at 8:00 a.m.

(a) Veterans: If you are a Veteran but are not claiming VA Educational Benefits, and are not registered with the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office on campus, you will need to provide them with a copy of your DD-214 so your account can be coded for early registration.

(b) National Guard: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 and Notice of Basic Eligibility (NOBE).

(c) Reserves: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 that indicates you have completed initial active duty for training.

Veterans Education Benefits & Certification Office of the Registrar
003 Wilder Tower
Phone: 901-678-2996
Fax: 901-678-1425
vetedbenefits@memphis.edu

(1) Students who have attempted 43 or more credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Tuesday, April 4, at 9:00 a.m.*

(2) Students who have attempted 15-42 credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Thursday, April 6, at 9:00 a.m.*

(3) Students who have attempted 0-14 credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Friday, April 7 at 9:00 a.m.*

"Attempted" hours do not include the hours which are currently in-progress, i.e. the hours in which you are enrolled at the time of registration. To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION:
Login to the myMemphis Portal at https://sso.memphis.edu with your University ID and password, select the Student tab, go to Registration Tools and follow the directions. Course Registration Numbers (CRNs) are listed on the Law School Course Schedule online. If you need assistance accessing your myMemphis account, contact 901.678.8888.

(1) You may register and pay fees until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19, 2017, without incurring late fees. Seating capacity is limited in some classrooms; it is to your advantage to register early. Your courses will be cancelled for non-payment at 4:31 p.m. on Friday, May 19, 2017.

(2) Course Load (Academic Regulation 5):

(a) Full-time student course load is 6 hours during the summer term. Students enrolled in 6 or more hours may not work more than 20 hours per week.
(b) Part-time students may not enroll in more than 5 hours.
(c) A student may not enroll in more than 9 hours during the summer semester.

FINANCIAL AID: For the Summer term only, the minimum enrollment requirement for federal student loans is 3 LAW credit hours. If you did not borrow the maximum amount of your unsubsidized loan between Fall 2016 and Spring 2017, please complete the Summer Request Form available now on the Financial Aid Office's forms page. (Check your myMemphis account for the amount you borrowed.) You can scan the completed form then send as an e-mail attachment directly to dbrown@memphis.edu or you can fax to (901) 678-3590.

If you've exhausted your maximum unsubsidized loan eligibility and/or you need to supplement it, you can apply for the Graduate PLUS online at www.studentloans.gov. Select the 2016-2017 Award/Aid Year, with a loan period of May 2017 through August 2017.

If you have any questions, please contact DebraAnn Brown at dbrown@memphis.edu. Your correspondence should include your name and U-ID# in the Subject Line of your e-mail.

HOLDS: If you have any HOLDS on your account, you will not be able to register until you clear the HOLDS through the Bursar's Office. Check your account now and clear any HOLDS, so you are able to register. I do not have access to the HOLD information and cannot help you clear it.

ALTERNATE PIN:

Students who:

1. have needed an "alternate pin" to enroll in prior semesters,
2. are registered with Disability Resources Services,
3. are pursuing a JD/MBA or JD/MA degree, or
4. are registered with Veteran Services,

should email the Law School Registrar's Office PRIOR to registration.

FEES: Refer to the Bursar's website.

DEADLINES: Refer to the Deadline Calendar.

Drops/Adds: (Refer to Academic Regulations)

Add courses via your account through Thursday, May 25, 2017.

Drop courses via your account through Wednesday, June 14. Drops after this date must be done through the Law Registrar office, with permission from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

(a) The last day for 100% refund for dropped courses is Sunday, May 21, 2017.

(b) Courses dropped after Monday, June 5, 2017 will show as a "W" on your transcript.

Late Registration: From Saturday, May 20 through Thursday, May 25, 2017 at 4:30 p.m., students may register online. The fee payment deadline for Late Registration is Thursday, May 25, 2017 at 4:30 p.m. A late registration fee will be assessed to students who register during this period. Any classes missed due to late registration count as absences.

Courses Canceled for Non-Payment: For regular registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19, 2017. For late registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 26, 2017.

PREREQUISITES:

Students are responsible for compliance with course prerequisites and other course restrictions as stated in the Academic Regulations and in the Course Catalog. A student may be dropped from a course if the student does not have the required prerequisites.

LOCKERS: Payment should be made online. Once you have paid the locker fee online, see Brigitte Boyd in Room 260 for assignment of a locker and combination.

COURSE CANCELLATION: The Law School Administration reserves the right to cancel a course that fails to get sufficient enrollment.

*See important financial information on the next page.****

Summer 2017 Law

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

YOU are responsible for complying with the policies and fee information on the Bursar's website. Please read before registering. Dates for registration and fee payment are available online. See also the Law Deadlines Calendar.

Registration Cancellation Policy
NO PAYMENT = NO CLASSES!

If your financial aid (grants and student loans), scholarship, and/or third party assistance does not cover 100% of your fees, you must pay the remaining balance by the appropriate fee payment deadline. You will be notified via your University email account when your electronic invoice is available online. You remain responsible for completing the fee payment process by the fee payment deadline, even if you do not receive or open your fee invoice, which will be available on your Banner Student Self Service account.

Tuition and fees information is available online.

Payments mailed to the Bursar's Office must be received in their office by the appropriate fee payment deadline, regardless of the postmark date on the envelope. Please allow five to seven days for processing.

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2017 Summer Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Friday, March 17 – Tuesday, March 21	Limited Enrollment Registration
Monday, April 3 – Friday, April 7	Registration

Monday, April 3: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, April 4: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, April 6: 15-42 Attempted Hrs.(9am)*
Friday, April 7: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, in the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Friday, May 19	Law School Tuition & Fee Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Saturday, May 20 — Thursday, May 25	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Sunday, May 21	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops
Monday, May 22	First Day of Classes
Thursday, May 25	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 4:30pm
Friday, May 26	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Monday, May 29	Holiday – Memorial Day Last Day for 75% Refund on Drops
Monday, June 5	Last Day for 25% Refund on Drops Last Day to Drop Without Showing "W" on transcript
Thursday, June 1	Last Day to Apply for August 2016 Graduation
Wednesday, June 14	Last Day to Withdraw Without Permission
Monday & Tuesday, July 3- 4	Holiday — Independence Day Holiday Observed
Wednesday, July 12	Last Day of Classes (Monday Class Schedule)
Thursday, July 13	Reading Day
Friday, July 14	Exams Begin
Tuesday, July 18	Exams End
Saturday, August 6	Commencement (10 am)

Fall 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

#	Name	Section	Hours	Professor	Days	Time	Room	CRN
	1L Required Courses
111	Contracts	011	3	Newman	TTh	3:15-4:30	244	83428
	Contracts	012	3	Mamlyuk	TTh	2:30-3:45	326	83429
112	Torts I	011	3	McClurg	TF	1:00-2:15	244	83443
	Torts I	012	3	Allen	TTh	1:00-2:15	226	83444
113	Legal Methods I	011	3	Wilson	MTh	10:30-11:45	230	83446
		011A		Delta 11D1	MTh	9:00-10:15	127	95977
		011B		Gamma 11G1	MW	9:00-10:15	230	95978
		011C		Gamma 11G2	MW	2:30-3:45	127	95979
	Legal Methods I	012	3	Wilson	MTh	10:30-11:45	230	83447
		012A		Delta 12D2	MTh	10:30-11:45	233	95980
		012B		Beta 12B1	MW	2:30-3:45	233	95981
		012C		Beta 12B2	MW	1:00-2:15	233	95982
114	Civil Procedure I	011	3	Bock	WF	10:30-11:45	325	83449
	Civil Procedure I	012	3	Schaffzin, K.	MWTh	9:00-9:50	226	83450
115	Property I	011	3	Brashier	MTh	1:00-2:15	326	83451
	Property I	012	3	Kiel	TWF	10:00-10:50	226	83453
553	Academic Success Class	011	0	Aden				95777
	Academic Success Class	012	0	Aden				95778
	2L Required Course
221	Evidence	011	4	Frank	TWF	1:00-2:10	325	93684
212	Constitutional Law	011	4	Mulroy	MTTh	9:00-10:10	Wade Aud.	83561
	2L or 3L Required Course
224	Professional Responsibility (offered Fall and Spring)	011	2	Lidge	MTh	1:00-1:50	244	83580
	Statutory Courses Menu
214	Income Tax	011	3	Kratzke	MWF	11:00-11:50	326	83577
359	Sales	011	3	Smith, K.	MWTh	8:00-8:50	226	87307
348	Legislation	011	3	Romantz	MTh	10:30-11:45	244	90186

Fall 2017 Course Schedule
University of Memphis School of Law

#	Name	Section	Hours	Professor	Days	Time	Room	CRN
	Practice Foundation Course Menu
211	Business Organizations	011	3	Harris	MTh	3:50-5:05	325	83548
311	Administrative Law	011	3	Romantz	TTh	2:20-3:35	226	93686
331	Family Law	011	3	Black	MW	2:25-3:40	325	88949
213	Decedents' Estates	011	3	Brashier	TTh	10:30-11:45	326	83575
	Electives
301	Mergers & Acquisitions	011	2	Harris	W	1:00-2:50	226	92960
310	Education & Civil Rights	011	3	Kiel	WF	1:00-2:15	230	95448
318	Antitrust	011	3	Newman	TF	10:30-11:45	244	94422
322	Civil Rights	011	3	Kritchevsky	MTh	1:00-2:15	127	83585
326	Criminal Procedure II	011	2	Ward	M	6:00-7:50	325	83588
327	Debtor-Creditor	011	3	Latta	MW	4:00-5:15	230	87305
343	Labor Law	011	3	Lidge	MWTh	11:00-11:50	127	83602
344	Land Use Law	011	2	Whitehead	W	6:00-7:50	127	90175
352	Partnership Tax	011	3	Kratzke	MTTh	1:00-1:50	104	90177
388	Food and Drug Law	011	3	Alexander	TTh	2:30-3:45	230	94299
394	Mental Health Law	011	3	Campbell	TTh	9:00-10:15	233	93683
395	Intellectual Property Survey	011	3	Bock	TTh	2:25-3:40	127	90180
399	International Business Transactions	011	3	Mamlyuk	TTh	4:15-5:30	127	94495
722	Health Law Survey	011	3	Allen	TF	10:30-11:45	127	95983
723	Tax Lawyering	011	2	Kratzke	MTh	5:10-6:00	104	95988
	Seminars/Adv. Research&Writing Permit Required
421	Reproductive Rights/Family Law Seminar	011	2	Black	W	9:00-10:50	206	94991
444	Federal Discrimination Seminar	011	2	Mulroy	W	9:00-10:50	338	83623
445	TN Constitutional Law Seminar	011	2	Smith, K.	W	9:00-10:50	233	83625
492	Mass Incarceration Seminar	011	2	Frank	W	9:00-10:50	104	95987

Course	Title	Section	Credits	Instructor	Day	Time	Room	CRN
	Skills Courses Permit may be required
309	Appellate Advocacy	011	3
	large section - all students			Kritchevsky	W	3:50-5:05	244	90187
	App. Advocacy small section			Kritchevsky	M	9:00-10:15	206
	App. Advocacy small section			Rogers	M	6:00-7:15	206
	App. Advocacy small section			Perkins	T	5:30-6:45	206
	App. Advocacy small section			Whitwell	T	6:00-7:15	230
316	ADR/Mediation	011	2	Lait	M	6:00-7:50	230	83582
	ADR/Mediation	012	2	Cantrell	M	6:00-7:50	230	83583
513	Legal Drafting: Litigation	011	2	Chambliss	W	6:00-7:50	206	91069
516	Trial Advocacy: Civil & Criminal	012	3	Laurenzi	Th	5:30-8:20	Fed. Bldg.	83640
	Trial Advocacy: Civil & Criminal	013	3	Craft	Th	5:30-8:20	201 Poplar	83642
	Trial Advocacy: Criminal	014	3	Nichols	W	5:30-8:20	201 Poplar	90174
705	Health Policy Practicum	011	3	Campbell	T	4:00-5:50	230	94142
	Clinic and Externships Permit required
501	Clinic: Neighborhood Preservation	011	4	Schaffzin, D	F	9:00-10:50	Clinic	92964
502	Clinic: Mediation	011	4	Shields	T	5:00-6:50	231	96174
504	Advanced Clinic: Child/Family	011	2	Zawisza	TBA	TBA	Clinic	94486
505	Advanced Clinic: Elder Law	011	2	Harkness	TBA	TBA	Clinic	95660
509	Clinic: Child & Family Litigation	011	4	Zawisza	F	9:00-10:50	Clinic	83630
510	Clinic: Elder Law	011	4	Harkness	F	9:00-10:50	Clinic	83632
569	Clinic: Children's Defense	011	4	Geis	W	3:45-5:35	Clinic	95613
595	Clinic: Medical-Legal Partnership	011	4	Goode	F	9:00-10:50	Clinic	95242
598	Advanced Clinic: Medical-Legal Partnership	011	2	Goode	TBA	TBA	Clinic	95760
600	Externships	all		Schaffzin, D	W	4:00-5:20	127
	Externships	011	2	Schaffzin, D				93768
	Externships	012	3	Schaffzin, D				93769
	Externships	013	4	Schaffzin, D				93770

Moot Court/Law Review/Research

Course	Title	Section	Credits	Instructor	CRN
523	Moot Court Travel Team	011	1	Kritchevsky	90536
	Moot Court Travel Team	012	2	Kritchevsky	90537
524	Trial / ADR Travel Team	011	1	Kritchevsky	91453
811	Moot Court - 2 Competitions	011	1	Kritchevsky	83660
	Moot Court - 4 Competitions	012	2	Kritchevsky	91398
812	Moot Court Board	011	1	Kritchevsky	91408
813	Moot Court Executive Board	011	2	Kritchevsky	91409
913	Law Review Note	011	2	McClurg	83667
914	Law Review Staff	011	1	McClurg	95484
915	Law Review Editorial Board	011	2	McClurg	95485
711	Research I	011	1	Mulroy	83658

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

* Students are responsible for compliance with the Academic Regulations and with course prerequisites and other course restrictions as stated in the:

(1) Academic Regulations
(2) Course Catalog
(3) Registration Memorandum

* Students should not enroll in courses with conflicting exams unless prior approval is granted by Dean Mulroy.

FOOTNOTES

[1]Course 309 - Appellate Advocacy will satisfy the Skills graduation requirement, but will not be limited enrollment nor will a permit be required. Students will meet twice weekly; once as one large group and once divided into small groups.

[2]In addition to the two hours of classroom time listed on the schedule, Health Policy Practicum will have also have one hour worth of class credit each week that is earned through meetings in the community, with varying locations and times, which will be determined by Professor Campbell.

Monday - FALL 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00					Sales Smith MWTh 8:00-8:50
9:00		Legal Methods §11D1- DELTA MTh 9:00-10:15	Con Law Mulroy MTTh 9:00-10:10	Appellate Ad small § Kritchevsky M 9:00-10:15	Civ Pro § 12 Schaffzin, K. MWTh		Legal Methods §11G1 - GAMMA MW 9:00-10:15
10:00						Legislation Romantz MTh 10:30-11:45	Legal Methods §11 & §12 - Wilson MTh 10:30-11:45	Legal Methods §12D2- DELTA MTh 10:30-11:45
11:00		Labor Law Lidge MWTh								Income Tax Kratzke MWF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00	Partnership Tax Kratzke MTTh	Civil Rights Kritchevsky MTh 1:00-2:15				Prof. Responsibility Lidge MTh		Legal Methods §12B2 - BETA MW 1:00-2:15		Property I § 11 Brashier MTh 1:00-2:15
2:00		Legal Methods §11G2 - GAMMA MW 2:30-3:45						Legal Methods §12B1 - BETA MW 2:30-3:45	Family Law Black MW 2:25-3:40
3:00									Business Org. Harris MTh 3:50-5:05
4:00							Debtor-Creditor Latta MW 4:00-5:15
5:00	Tax Lawyering Kratzke MTh 5:10-6:00
6:00				Appellate Ad small § Rogers M 6:00-7:15			ADR:Mediation Lait §11 Cantrell §12 M 6:00-7:50		Criminal Procedure II Ward M 6:00-7:50
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Update: 3/3/2017 at 10:20 AM

Tuesday - FALL 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	231 (10)
8:00
9:00			Con Law Mulroy MTTh 9:00-10:10					Mental Health Law Campbell TTh 9:00-10:15
10:00		Health Law Survey Allen TF 10:30-11:45			Property I §12 Kiel TWF	Antitrust Newman TF 10:30-11:45				Dec. Estates Brashier TTh 10:30-11:45
11:00
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00	Partnership Tax Kratzke MTTh				Torts I §12 Allen TTh 1:00-2:15	Torts I §11 McClurg TF 1:00-2:15			Evidence Frank TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00		IP Survey Bock TTh 2:25-3:40			Administrative Law Romantz TTh 2:20-3:35		Food & Drug Law Alexander TTh 2:30-3:45			Contracts §12 Mamlyuk TTh 2:30-3:45
3:00						Contracts §11 Newman TTh 3:15-4:30
4:00		Int'l. Business Transactions Mamlyuk TTh 4:15-5:30					Health Policy Practicum Campbell T 4:00-5:50
5:00				Appellate Ad small § Perkins T 5:30-6:45										Mediation Clinic Shields T 5:00-6:50
6:00							Appellate Ad small § Whitwell T 6:00-7:15
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Update: 3/3/2017 at 10:20 AM

Wednesday - FALL 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00					Sales Smith MWTh 8:00-8:50
9:00	Mass Incarceration Seminar Frank W 9:00-10:50			Reproductive Rtgs. / Family Law Seminar Black W 9:00-10:50	Civ Pro §12 Schaffzin, K. MWTh		Legal Methods §11G1 - GAMMA MW 9:00-10:15	TN Con Law Seminar Smith W 9:00-10:50			Fed Discrimination Seminar Mulroy W 9:00-10:50
10:00					Property I §12 Kiel TWF				Civ Pro §11 Bock WF 10:30-11:45
11:00		Labor Law Lidge MWTh								Income Tax Kratzke MWF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00					Mergers & Acquisitions Harris W 1:00-2:50		Education & Civil Rights Kiel WF 1:00-2:15	Legal Methods §12B2 - BETA MW 1:00-2:15	Evidence Frank TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00		Legal Methods §11G2 - GAMMA MW 2:30-3:45						Legal Methods §12B1 - BETA MW 2:30-3:45	Family Law Black MW 2:25-3:40
3:00						Appellate Ad Kritchevsky all §§ 3:50-5:05								Children's Defense Clinic Geis 3:45-5:35
4:00		Externship Schaffzin, D. W 4:00-5:20					Debtor-Creditor Latta MW 4:00-5:15
5:00														Trial Ad W 5:30-8:20 Criminal §14 - Nichols 201 Poplar
6:00		Land Use Law Whitehead W 6:00-7:50		Legal Drafting: Litigation Chambliss W 6:00-7:50
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Update: 3/3/2017 at 10:20 AM

Thursday - FALL 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00					Sales Smith MWTh 8:00-8:50
9:00		Legal Methods §11D1 - DELTA MTh 9:00-10:15	Con Law Mulroy MTTh 9:00-10:10		Civ Pro §12 Schaffzin, K. MWTh			Mental Health Law Campbell TTh 9:00-10:15
10:00						Legislation Romantz MTh 10:30-11:45	Legal Methods §11 & §12 - Wilson MTh 10:30-11:45	Legal Methods §12D2- DELTA MTh 10:30-11:45		Dec. Estates Brashier TTh 10:30-11:45
11:00		Labor Law Lidge MWTh
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00	Partnership Tax Kratzke MTTh	Civil Rights Kritchevsky MTh 1:00-2:15			Torts I §12 Allen TTh 1:00-2:15	Prof. Responsibility Lidge MTh				Property I §11 Brashier MTh 1:00-2:15
2:00		IP Survey Bock TTh 2:25-3:40			Administrative Law Romantz TTh 2:20-3:35		Food & Drug Law Alexander TTh 2:30-3:45			Contracts §12 Mamlyuk TTh 2:30-3:45
3:00						Contracts §11 Newman TTh 3:15-4:30			Business Org. Harris MTh 3:50-5:05
4:00		Int'l. Business Transactions Mamlyuk TTh 4:15-5:30
5:00	Tax Lawyering Kratzke MTh 5:10-6:00													Trial Ad Th 5:30-8:20 Civil & Criminal §13 - Craft 201 Poplar § 12 - Laurenzi Federal Bldg.
6:00
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Update: 3/3/2017 at 10:20 AM

Friday - FALL 2017

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00
9:00														CLINIC MLP/Elder/ NPC/HAC F 9:00-10:50
10:00		Health Law Survey Allen TF 10:30-11:45			Property I §12 Kiel TWF	Antitrust Newman TF 10:30-11:45			Civ Pro §11 Bock WF 10:30-11:45
11:00										Income Tax Kratzke MWF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00						Torts I §11 McClurg TF 1:00-2:15	Education & Civil Rights Kiel WF 1:00-2:15		Evidence Frank TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00
3:00
4:00
5:00
6:00
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Update: 3/3/2017 at 10:20 AM

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
FALL 2017 EXAM SCHEDULE

NOTE: It is preferable that students not enroll in courses that have conflicting exams. If a student must enroll in courses with conflicting exams, the student should obtain written approval to do so from the Associate Dean prior to enrolling. All requests for approval of conflicting exams must be submitted in writing to the Associate Dean.

DATE	TIME	SECTION	COURSE	PROFESSOR	ROOM
Monday, November 27
	9:00 am	011	Partnership Tax	Kratzke	233
		011	Professional Responsibility	Lidge	226, 244
Tuesday, November 28
	9:00 am	011	Administrative Law	Romantz	226, 244
		011	Food and Drug Law	Alexander	230
		011	IP Survey	Bock	233
	2:00 pm	011	Property I	Brashier	325, 326
		012	Property I	Kiel	226, 244
Wednesday, November 29
	9:00 am	011	Antitrust	Newman	244
		011	Income Tax	Kratzke	326
Thursday, November 30
	9:00 am	011	Criminal Procedure II	Ward	325
		011	Evidence	Frank	226
	2:00 pm	011	Torts I	McClurg	226, 244
		012	Torts I	Allen	325, 326
Friday, December 1
	9:00 am	011	Land Use Law	Whitehead	127
		011	Sales	Smith, K.	226

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
FALL 2017 EXAM SCHEDULE

DATE	TIME	SECTION	COURSE	PROFESSOR	ROOM
Monday, December 4
	9:00 am	011	Constitutional Law	Mulroy	136
		011	Mental Health Law	Campbell	233
Tuesday, December 5
	9:00 am	011	Family Law	Black	325
		011	Mergers & Acquisitions	Harris	244
	2:00 pm	011	Contracts I	Newman	226, 244
		012	Contracts I	Mamlyuk	325, 326
Wednesday, December 6
	9:00 am	011	Decedents' Estates	Brashier	325, 326
		011	Labor Law	Lidge	226
		011	Legislation	Romantz	244
Thursday, December 7
	9:00 am	011	Business Organizations	Harris	325, 326
		011	Debtor-Creditor Law	Latta	230
		011	Tax Lawyering	Kratzke	233
	2:00 pm	011	Civil Procedure I	Bock	136
		012	Civil Procedure I	Schaffzin, K.	226, 244
Friday, December 8

	Course	Professor	Room
Self-Scheduled Exams*	Civil Rights	Kritchevsky	104*
	Education & Civil Rts. Law	Kiel	104*
	Health Law Survey	Allen	104*
	Int'l Business Transactions	Mamlyuk	104*

* Please check with your professor for instructions on your exam. Room 104 will be reserved for Self-Scheduled exams during the examination period.

The University of Memphis

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR READING THIS MEMO PRIOR TO REGISTRATION

FALL 2017 LAW SCHOOL REGISTRATION

VETERANS – MONDAY, APRIL 3 AT 8:00 A.M.
43+ HOURS –TUESDAY, APRIL 4 AT 9:00 A.M.
15-42 HOURS – THURSDAY, APRIL 6 AT 9:00 A.M.
0-14 HOURS – FRIDAY, APRIL 7 AT 9:00 A.M.

You will register on your myMemphis Student Self Service account for the 2017 Fall semester. Please read the following instructions and pay close attention to the Law School Calendar as some of our dates and deadlines differ from the rest of the University. The registration materials posted on the Law School website and the bulletin board in Room 262 are the only official Law School registration materials. You are responsible for following the Law School's instructions.

PRIORITY ENROLLMENT:

There is a priority procedure in place for registration. Questions about your priority status should be directed to the Law School's Registrar Office.

(1) Veterans or Active Duty Military
State law authorizes priority registration for Veterans. Veterans may register beginning Monday, April 3, at 8:00 a.m.

(a) Veterans: If you are a Veteran but are not claiming VA Educational Benefits, and are not registered with the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office on campus, you will need to provide them with a copy of your DD-214 so your account can be coded for early registration.

(b) National Guard: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 and Notice of Basic Eligibility (NOBE).

(c) Reserves: Provide the Veterans Educational Benefits & Certification Office with a copy of your DD-214 that indicates you have completed initial active duty for training.

Veterans Education Benefits & Certification Office of the Registrar
003 Wilder Tower
Phone: 901-678-2996
Fax: 901-678-1425
vetedbenefits@memphis.edu

(1) Students who have attempted 43 or more credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Tuesday, April 4, at 9:00 a.m.*

(2) Students who have attempted 15-42 credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Thursday, April 6, at 9:00 a.m.*

(3) Students who have attempted 0-15 or more credit hours at the time of registration will be allowed to register on Friday, April 7, at 9:00 a.m.*

"Attempted" hours do not include the hours which are currently in-progress, i.e. the hours in which you are enrolled at the time of registration. To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION:
Login to the myMemphis Portal at http://myMemphis.memphis.edu with your University ID and password, select the Student tab, go to Registration Tools and follow the directions. Course Registration Numbers (CRNs) are listed on the Law School Course Schedule online. If you need assistance accessing your myMemphis account, contact 901-678-8888.

(1) You may register and pay fees until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, August 11, 2017 without incurring late fees. Seating capacity is limited in some classrooms; it is to your advantage to register early. Your courses will be cancelled for non-payment at 4:31 p.m. on Friday, August 11, 2017.

(2) Course Load (Academic Regulation 5):

(a) Full-time students must enroll in a minimum of 12 hours and not more than 18 semester hours. For students with a GPA below 2.50, the maximum course load is 16 hours unless prior approval is obtained from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. Students wishing to switch to part-time must submit a written request to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for approval prior to enrolling.

(b) Part-time students must enroll in at least 8 and not more than 11 credit hours. Students wishing to switch to full-time must submit a written request to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for approval prior to enrolling. Taking less than 12 credit hours may affect the amount of your financial aid. Contact DebraAnn Brown with financial aid questions.

(3) Course Sequencing and Requirements (Academic Regulation 16):

(a) Second-Year Full-Time Students: Second-year students are required to take Evidence and Constitutional Law in the fall or spring semester. Second-year students should, but are not required to, enroll in Professional Responsibility and take courses from the Statutory Course Menu and the Practice Foundation Menu. Two of the five courses in each menu must be completed prior to graduation. The following Menu courses are offered in the spring 2016 semester:

Statutory Menu Courses	Practice Foundation Menu Courses
Legislation	Administrative Law
Income Tax	Business Organizations
Sales	Decedents' Estates
	Family Law

(b) Second-Year Part-Time Students: Second—year part-time students must take the following courses in their second year: ****
Contracts I (Fall) & Contracts II (Spring)
Property I (Fall) & Property II (Spring)
Constitutional Law (Fall or Spring)
Evidence (Fall or Spring)

(c) Third-Year and Fourth-Year Part-Time Students:
Complete any required courses as needed under the curriculum in place when you entered law school.

(d) Part-Time Students:
You must enroll in required courses in sequence. If you fail to register for a required course in sequence, you are deemed enrolled and will receive a failing grade in the class for failure to attend. You must remain in the same section in which you start for the entire full-time 1L curriculum unless you obtain permission to switch sections from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs.

LIMITED COURSES:

Skills and Advanced Research: The sign-up procedure will open on Friday, March 17 at 8am and will close on Tuesday, March 21 at noon. Those selected for a seat will be notified by email at least one week before (regular) Registration begins. The Registrar's Office will enroll you in your courses. If you decide not to take the limited course, you must drop the course and notify the Law School Registrar's Office immediately.

Externships: Professor Danny Schaffzin, Director of the Externship Program, will notify students who were selected; these students will be enrolled by the Registrar's Office. A student who decides to drop the Externship Course must obtain the permission of Professor Danny Schaffzin before doing so.

Legal Clinics: The clinic faculty member has notified students selected for Legal Clinics; these students will be enrolled by the Registrar's Office. If you decide to drop the clinic, you are required to notify the faculty member and the Law School Registrar's Office immediately.

HOLDS:

If you have any HOLDS on your account, you will not be able to register until you clear the HOLDS through the Bursar's Office. Check your account now and clear any HOLDS, so you are able to register. I do not have access to the HOLD information and cannot help you clear it.

ALTERNATE PIN:

Students who:

(1) have needed an "alternate pin" to enroll in prior semesters,
(2) are registered with Disability Resources Services,
(3) are pursuing a JD/MBA or JD/MA degree, or
(4) are registered with Veteran Services,

should email the Law School Registrar's Office PRIOR to registration.

FEES: Refer to the Bursar's website.

DEADLINES: Refer to the Deadline Calendar.

Drops/Adds: (Refer to Academic Regulations)

Add courses via your account through Friday, August 11, 2017 at 4:30 p.m.
Drop courses via your account through Friday, September 30. Drops after this date must be done through the Law Registrar office, with permission from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

(a) The deadline for 100% refund for dropped courses is Sunday, August 13, 2017.
(b) Courses dropped after Sunday, September 10, 2017 will show as a "W" on your transcript.

Late Registration: From Monday, August 14 through Wednesday, August 23, 2017, students may register online. The fee payment deadline for Late Registration is Friday, August 25, at 4:30 p.m. A late registration fee will be assessed to students who register during this period. Any classes missed due to late registration count as absences.

Courses Canceled for Non-Payment: For regular registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Friday, August 11, 2017. For late registration, all courses will be canceled for non-payment after 4:30 p.m. on Friday, August 25, 2017.

PREREQUISITES:

Students are responsible for compliance with course prerequisites and other course restrictions as stated in the Academic Regulations and in the Course Catalog. A student may be dropped from a course if the student does not have the required prerequisites.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING:

1. Clinic and Externship course information is available online. In addition to the Academic Regulations, please review the Policies and Procedures of the Externship Program.

2. Students may only receive credit toward graduation for three Externships, or two Clinics, or a combination of two Externships and one Clinic.

3. To satisfy graduation requirements, a student is permitted a total of three (3) externships, two (2) clinic courses, or a combination of (1) clinic and (2) two externship courses. Absent permission from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, a student may not repeat a clinic or externship, may not enroll in both a clinic and externship in the same semester or summer session, and may not enroll in more than one clinic or more than one externship in any semester or summer session. For enrollment purposes in these limited enrollment courses, a student who has taken one clinic will not receive priority for a second clinic, and a student who has taken one externship will not receive priority for a second externship.

INDEPENDENT RESEARCH:
Students interested in enrolling in Independent Research must obtain the permission of the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs and turn in a completed Research Paper Form to the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs. Forms may be picked up from the Law School Registrar. If you are interested, you should speak with the Associate Dean prior to registration.

EXAM SCHEDULE:
Please refer to the Exam Schedule when making course selections. A student may not enroll in courses that have conflicting examination schedules. No exceptions in the Exam Schedule will be made unless written approval is obtained from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs prior to enrolling. Requests must be submitted in writing.

LIMITATION ON COURSES GRADED E, S, U ("E,S,U COURSES"):
A student may not utilize more than twelve (12) credit hours toward graduation requirements from any combination of the following courses: Externship, Law Review or Law Review Board, Moot Court (including Moot Court Board, Moot Court Executive Board, and inter-school or intra-school competition credit), Independent Research, and Advanced Clinic.

LOCKERS: Payment should be made online. Once you have paid the locker fee online, see Brigitte Boyd in Room 260 for assignment of a locker and combination.

COURSE CANCELLATION: The Law School Administration reserves the right to cancel a course that fails to get sufficient enrollment.

*See important financial information on the next page.****

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

YOU are responsible for complying with the policies and fee information on the Bursar's website. Please read before registering. Dates for registration and fee payment are available online. See also the Law Deadlines Calendar.

Registration Cancellation Policy
NO PAYMENT = NO CLASSES!

If your financial aid (grants and student loans), scholarship, and/or third party assistance does not cover 100% of your fees, you must pay the remaining balance by the appropriate fee payment deadline. You will be notified via your University email account when your electronic invoice is available online. You remain responsible for completing the fee payment process by the fee payment deadline, even if you do not receive or open your fee invoice, which will be available on your Banner Student Self Service account.

Tuition and fees are available online.

Payments mailed to the Bursar's Office must be received in their office by the appropriate fee payment deadline, regardless of the postmark date on the envelope. Please allow five to seven days for processing.

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2017 Fall Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Friday, March 17 – Tuesday, March 21	Limited Enrollment Registration
Monday, April 3 – Friday, April 7	Registration

Monday, April 3: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, April 4: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, April 6: 15-42 Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Friday, April 7: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

Monday, August 7 – Friday, August 11	First-Year Orientation
Friday, August 11	Law School Tuition & Fees Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Sunday, August 13	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops and Withdrawals
Monday, August 14	First Day of Classes
Monday, August 14—Wednesday, August 23	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Thursday, August 24	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 5:30pm
Friday, August 25	Late Registration Tuition and Fee Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Sunday, August 27	Last Day for 75% Refund, Drops
Monday, September 4	Labor Day Holiday
Sunday, September 10	Last Day to Drop Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Monday, September 12	Last Day for 25% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, September 15	Last Day to Apply for December Graduation 2017
Friday, September 30	Last Day to Withdraw Without Permission
Monday, November 20	Last Day of Classes
Tuesday & Wednesday, November 21 - 22	Reading Days
Thursday & Friday, November 23-24	Thanksgiving Holiday
Monday, November 27	Exams Begin
Friday, December 8	Exams End
Sunday, December 17	Commencement (at 10:00am)

DRAFT Spring 2018 - Monday

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00									Remedies Smith MTh 8:00-9:15
9:00		LM § 11B1 BETA MW 9:00-10:15								Civil Procedure II §12 - Schaffzin MW
10:00
11:00					Copyright Jones MWTh		Corporate Tax Kratzke MThF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00		FEP Lidge MWTh		Commercial Law Smith MWTh 1:00-2:10		Contracts II §11 - Newman MW 1:00-2:15	NonProfits Kratzke MWF		Contracts II §12 - Mamlyuk MTh 1:00-2:15	Elder Law Brashier MW 1:00-2:15
2:00		LM § 12G2 GAMMA MW 2:30-3:45						LM § 11B2 BETA MW 2:30-3:45	LM § 11D1 DELTA MW 2:30-3:45
3:00							Professional Reponsibility Wilson M 3:35-5:25
4:00		Employee Benefits Kiesewetter MW 4:30-5:45			Entertainment Law Alexander MW 4:30-5:45	Externship Schaffzin M 4:30-5:50					International Tax Kratzke MW 4:30-5:45
5:00								National Security Harvey MW
6:00				Discovery McGown M 6:00-7:50		Negotiation & Mediation both sections Wade Schwarz M 6:00-7:50
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Last edited 3/3/2017 10:18 AM

DRAFT Spring 2018 -Tuesday

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00							Legal Drafting: Contracts Smith, Bryan T 8:00-9:50
9:00					Property II §12 - Kiel TF 9:00-10:15	Secured Trans. Black TThF				Criminal Law §11 Mulroy TThF
10:00		Patent Law Bock TTh 10:35-11:50			Torts II §12 - Allen TF 10:35-11:50	Estate Planning Black TTh 10:35-11:50			Federal Courts Frank TF 10:35-11:50	Property II §11 - Brashier TTh 10:35-11:50
11:00
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00					Criminal Procedure I Romantz TTh 1:00-2:15	Torts II §11 - McClurg TF 1:00-2:15			Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00					Conflicts Newman TTh 2:30-3:45	LM § 12G1 GAMMA TTh 2:30-3:45	Trial Ad -Frank- §11 T 2:30-3:20 Th 2:30-4:30	LM § 11 & 12 Wilson T 2:30-4:20	LM § 12D2 DELTA TTh 2:30-3:45
3:00
4:00											Regulatory Compliance Campbell T 4:00-5:50			Children's Defense Clinic Geis T 4:00-5:50
5:00				Divorce Law Practicum Pounders TW 5:15-6:30	Products Liability Bearman TTh
6:00							Immigration Law Pazar TTh 6:00-7:15
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Last edited 3/3/2017 10:18 AM

DRAFT Spring 2018 -Wednesday

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	231	CLINIC/Other
8:00
9:00	Corporate Law Seminar Letsou W 9:00-10:50	LM § 11B1 BETA MW 9:00-10:15		Legal Ethics Seminar Lidge W 9:00-10:50						Civil Procedure II §12 - Schaffzin MW	Health Law Seminar Allen W 9:00-10:50		Public Int'l. Law Seminar Mamlyuk W 9:00-10:50
10:00
11:00					Copyright Jones MWTh					Civil Procedure II §11 - Bock WF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00		FEP Lidge MWTh		Commercial Law Smith MWTh 1:00-2:10	Criminal Law §12 - Romantz WF 1:00-2:15	Contracts II §11 - Newman MW 1:00-2:15	NonProfits Kratzke MWF		Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10	Elder Law Brashier MW 1:00-2:15
2:00		LM § 12G2 GAMMA MW 2:30-3:45			Bar Prep Kritchevsky W 2:30-4:20			LM § 11B2 BETA MW 2:30-3:45	LM § 11D1 DELTA MW 2:30-3:45
3:00
4:00		Employee Benefits Kiesewetter MW 4:30-5:45			Entertainment Law Alexander MW 4:30-5:45	Legal Analysis TBA W 4:00-5:15					International Tax Kratzke MW 4:30-5:45
5:00				Divorce Law Practicum Pounders TW 5:15-6:30				National Security Harvey MW						Trial Ad: Nichols § 14 Criminal W 5:30-8:20 201 Poplar Ave.
6:00							Admiralty Law Mulrooney Coombs W 6:00-7:50						Mediation Clinic Shields W 6:00-7:50 Room 231
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Last edited 3/3/2017 10:18 AM

DRAFT Spring 2018 - Thursday

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	Other	CLINIC/Other
8:00								Legal Drafting: Litigation Lakey Th 8:00-9:50	Remedies Smith MTh 8:00-9:15
9:00						Secured Trans. Black TThF				Criminal Law §11 Mulroy TThF
10:00		Patent Law Bock TTh 10:35-11:50				Estate Planning Black TTh 10:35-11:50				Property II §11 - Brashier TTh 10:35-11:50
11:00					Copyright Jones MWTh		Corporate Tax Kratzke MThF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00		FEP Lidge MWTh		Commercial Law Smith MWTh 1:00-2:10	Criminal Procedure I Romantz TTh 1:00-2:15				Contracts II §12 - Mamlyuk MTh 1:00-2:15
2:00					Conflicts Newman TTh 2:30-3:45	LM § 12G1 GAMMA TTh 2:30-3:45		Guns & the Law McClurg Th 2:30-4:20	LM § 12D2 DELTA TTh 2:30-3:45			Trial Ad Frank § 11 T 2:30-3:20 Th 2:30-4:00
3:00
4:00							Trust Law McDaniel Th 4:00-5:50
5:00					Products Liability Bearman TTh			Corporate Governance & Compliance Goldsmith Th 5:15-7:05					Trial Ad: Laurenzi § 12 Civil & Criminal Th 5:30-8:20 Federal Bldg. Ct. Rm. 1 11th floor	Trial Ad: Craft § 13 Civil & Criminal Th 5:30-8:20 201 Poplar Ave.
6:00							Immigration Law Pazar TTh 6:00-7:15
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Last Edited 3/3/2017 10:18 AM

DRAFT Spring 2018 -Friday

	104 (10-12)	127 (48)	136(259)Aud	206 (12)	226 (110)	244 (110)	230 (36)	233 (18)	325 (92)	326 (92)	338 (10)	310(44)SMC	335(98)HMC	CLINIC/Other
8:00								Realty Transactions Humphreys F 8:10-10:00
9:00					Property II §12 - Kiel TF 9:00-10:15	Secured Trans. Black TThF				Criminal Law §11 Mulroy TThF
10:00					Torts II §12 - Allen TF 10:35-11:50				Federal Courts Frank TF 10:35-11:50					Clinic MLP / Elder/ Neighborhood Pres. Housing Adj. F 10:00-11:50
11:00							Corporate Tax Kratzke MThF			Civil Procedure II §11 - Bock WF
12:00	NOON HOUR - NO CLASSES
1:00					Criminal Law §12 - Romantz WF 1:00-2:15	Torts II §11 - McClurg TF 1:00-2:15	NonProfits Kratzke MWF		Constitutional Law Kiel TWF 1:00-2:10
2:00
3:00
4:00
5:00
6:00
7:00

1L Required	2L Required	2L/3L Required	Statutory menu	Practice menu	Skills Course	Research/Writing	Elective	LM Section

Last edited 3/3/2017 10:18 AM

Spring 2017 Midterm

Notice: If you are using a newer MacBook Pro model equipped with Apple's Touch Bar feature, you MUST disable the Touch Bar before beginning your exam. Instructions for doing so can be viewed here: Instructions for disabling the MacBook Pro Touch Bar

Failure to do this is an Honor Code violation.

If you have any technical questions about this, please ask a member of the IT staff prior to beginning your exam.

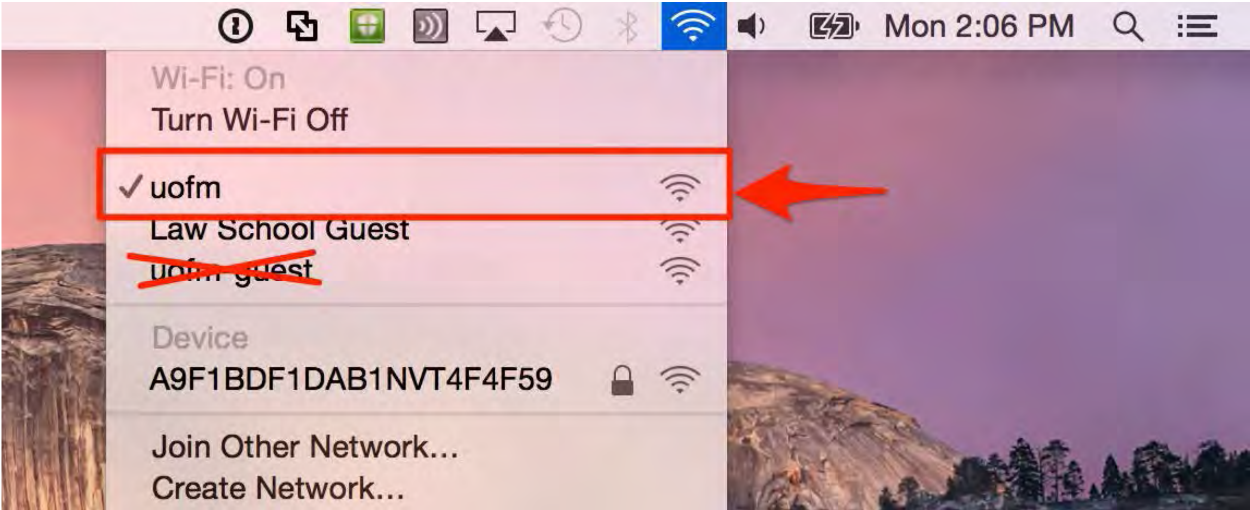
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1 N. Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103-2189
Office: 901.678.3245
Fax: 901.678.3245
http://www.memphis.edu/law

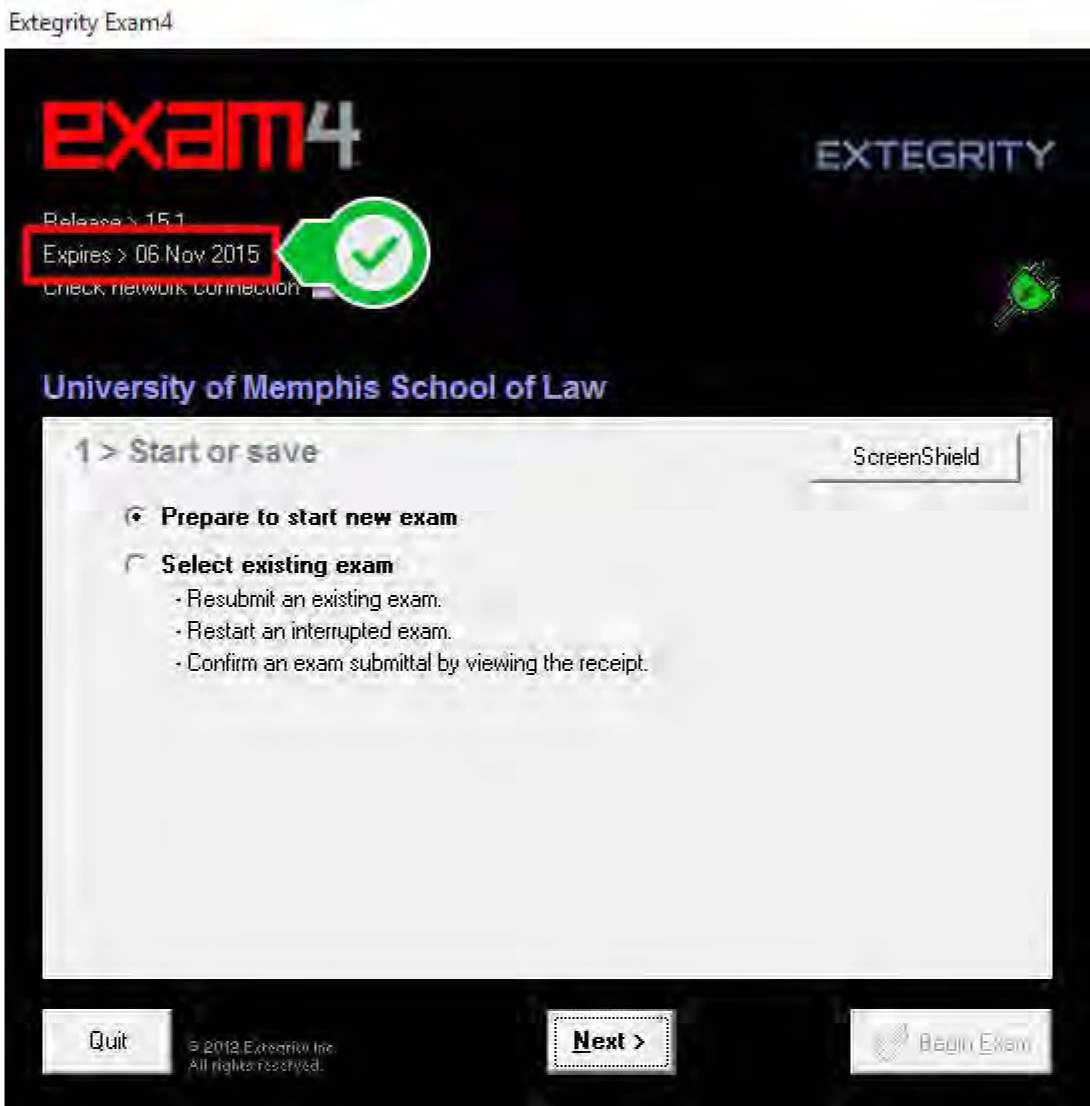
Exam4 Instructions

Pre-requisites

- You must have a working laptop
  - Supported operating systems can be found at the following link, and include:
    - Windows 10
    - Windows 8 (and 8.1)
    - Windows 7
    - Apple OS X 10.11 “El Capitan”
    - Apple OS X 10.10 “Yosemite”
    - Apple OS X 10.9 "Mavericks"
  - Make sure that your system is fully up-to-date with relevant security patches before the exam. Users who do not perform routine system updates before the exam sometimes experience unexpected reboots when the system attempts to update during the exam.
  - Perform a antivirus scan on your system prior to your exam
- You must be connected to the University of Memphis wireless network (not the “Guest” network). Once you’ve connected to the “uofm” wireless network, open a browser and verify that you can browse the internet without receiving an error message. You may need to install the SafeConnect Client Policy Key to use the “uofm” wifi. If so, install it, and then test your internet after the installation completes.



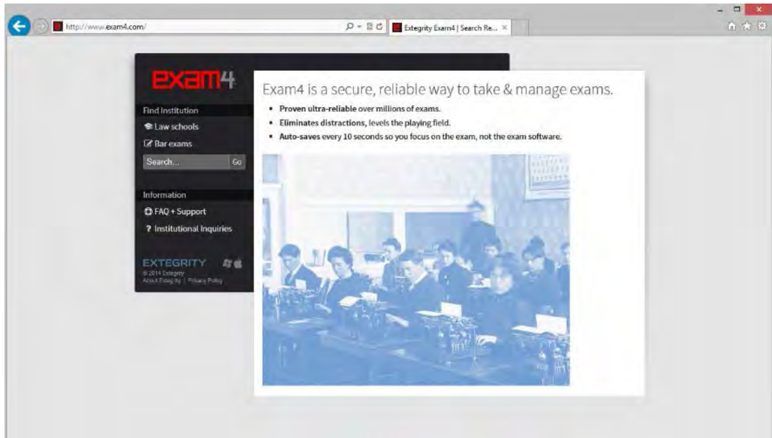
- If you have a previously installed version of Exam4, you MUST UPDATE to the latest version before taking your exams. You can check this by launching the software, and looking at the date next to the “Expires” field. If the expiration date has already passed on the software, then you will NOT be able to use it take your exams. You must download the latest copy of the software using the instructions in the next section of this document.



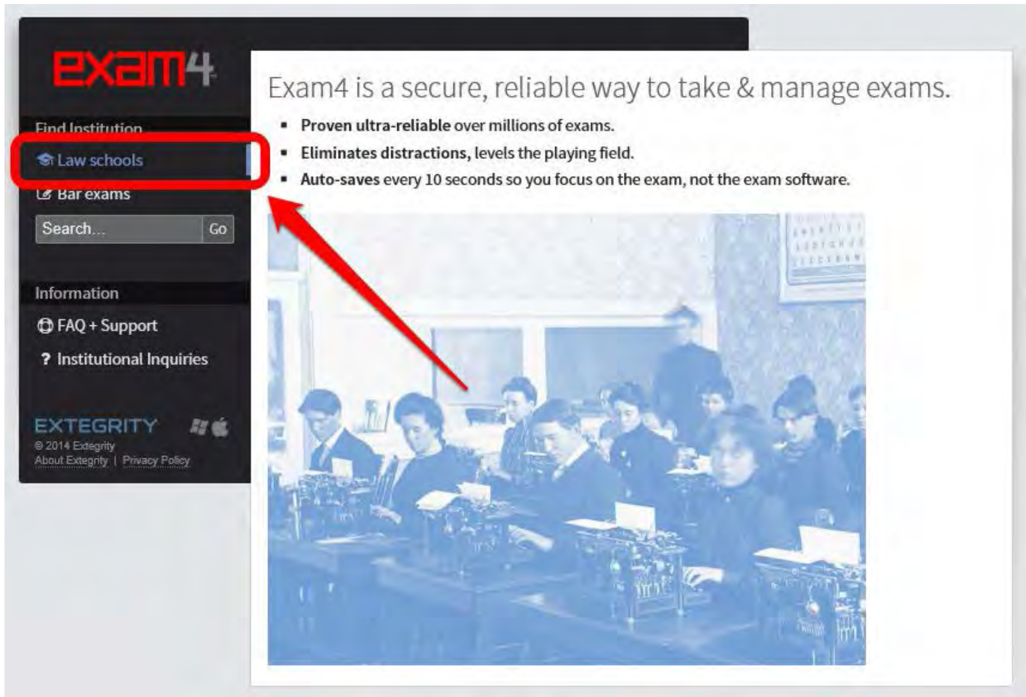
- If you are having trouble with your system prior to exams, please come see IT in Room 209 or email lawit@memphis.edu AS SOON AS POSSIBLE BEFORE YOUR EXAM DATE.

Installing the Exam4 software

1. Navigate to the Exam4 website: http://exam4.com/

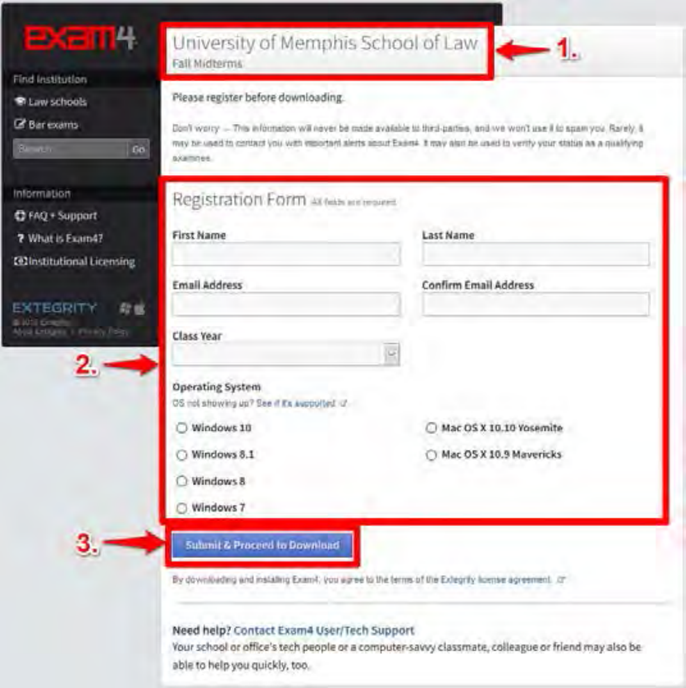


2. From there, on the menu to the left side of the screen, select for Law Schools.

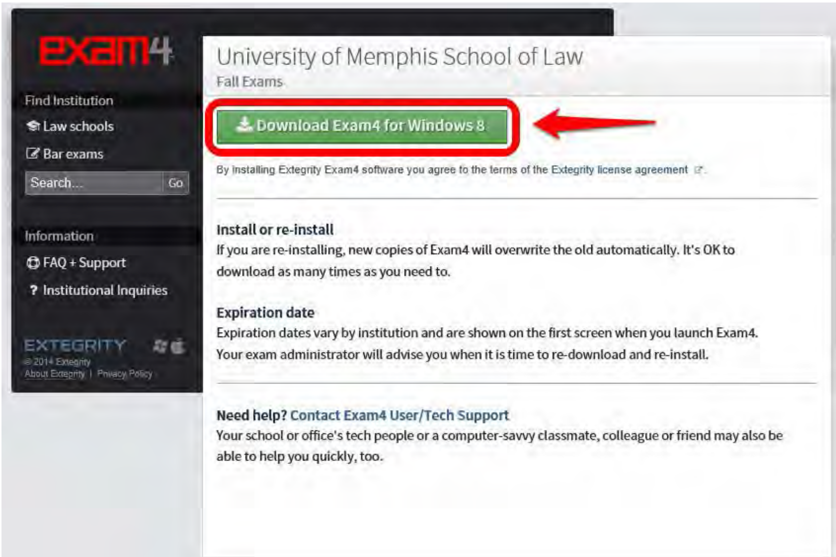


3. Next, click T or scroll down to Tennessee to find the link to our law school, University of Memphis School of Law, which you should select.

4. Next complete the registration form, selecting the Operating System which you will use for the exam.

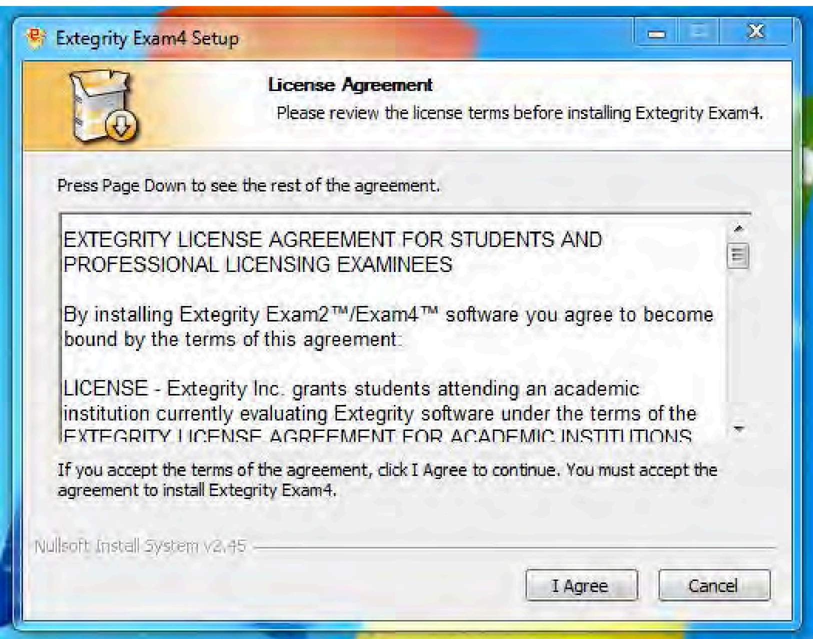


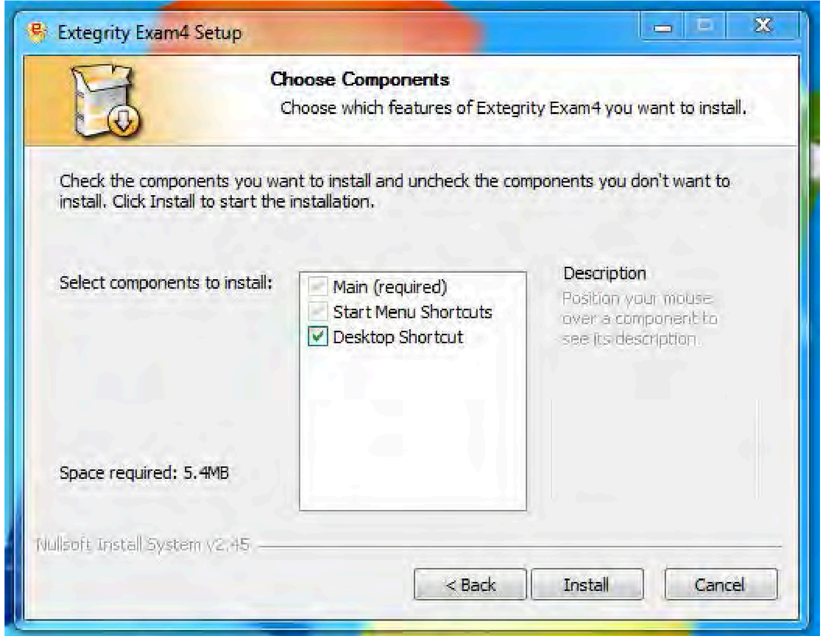
5. After registration, you will see a screen providing instructions for downloading the software.



6. After downloading, you will need to install the software and take a practice exam to confirm that it is working.

PC Installation





Extegrity Exam4 Setup
Choose Components
Choose which features of Extegrity Exam4 you want to install.
Check the components you want to install and uncheck the components you don't want to install. Click Install to start the installation.
Select components to install:
Main (required)
Start Menu Shortcuts
Desktop Shortcut
Description
Position your mouse over a component to see its description.
Space required: 5.4MB
Nullsoft Install System v2.45
< Back
Install
Cancel

Extegrity Exam4 Setup
Completing the Extegrity Exam4 Setup Wizard
Extegrity Exam4 has been installed on your computer.
Click Finish to close this wizard.
Run Extegrity Exam4
< Back Finish Cancel

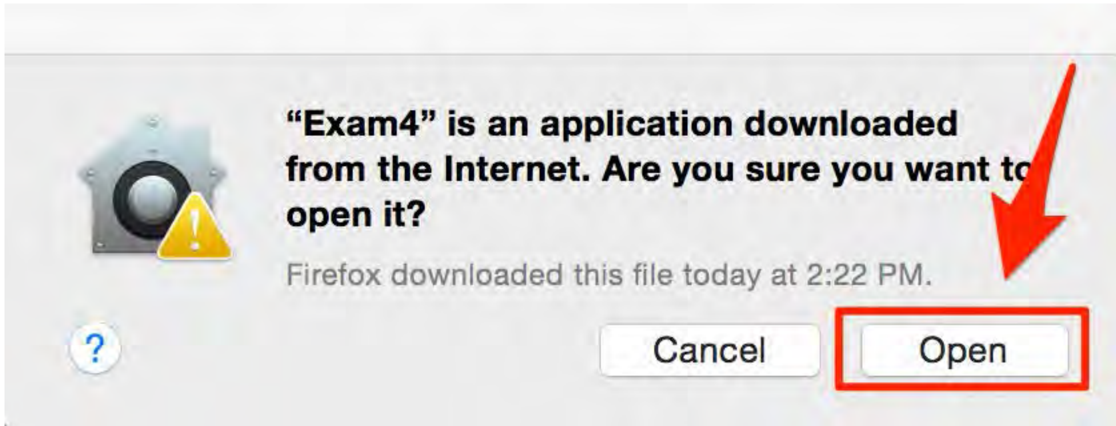
Mac Installation

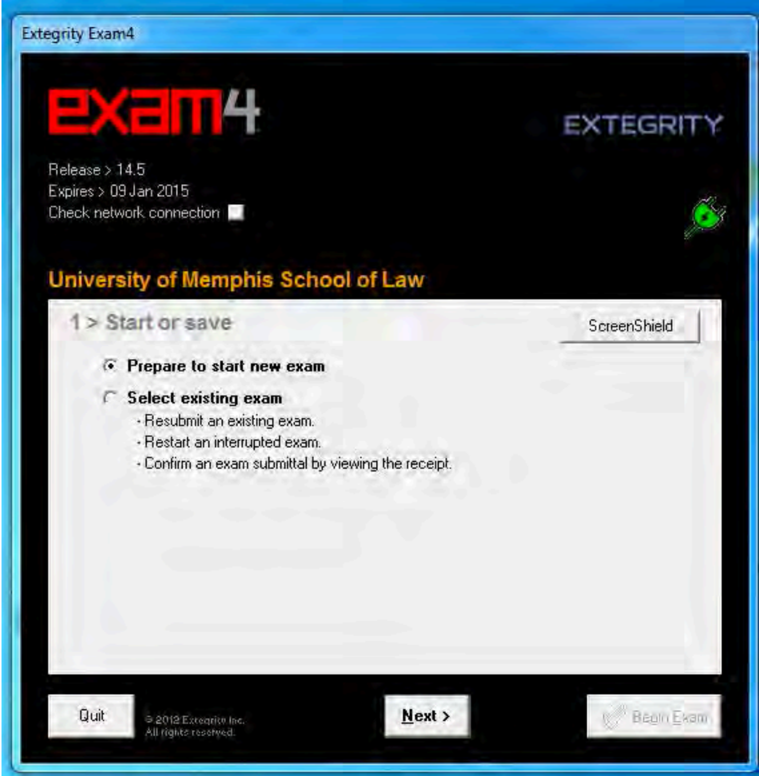


Taking a Practice Exam

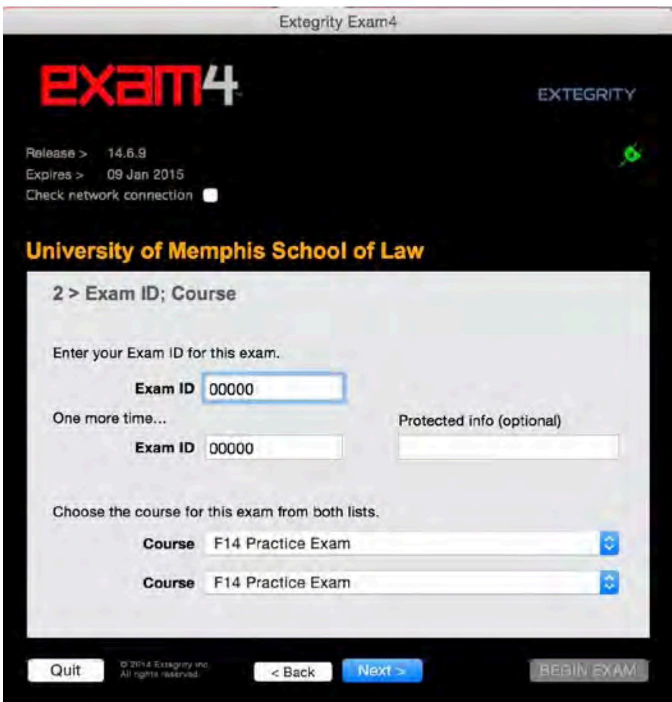
1. Launch the Exam4 software.

2. Click on “OK”

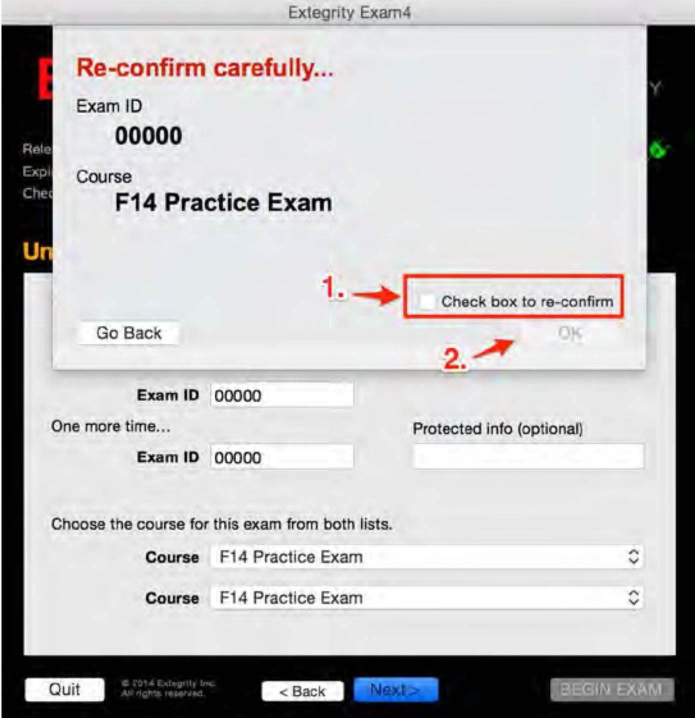
3. Select "Prepare to start new exam" and click Next.



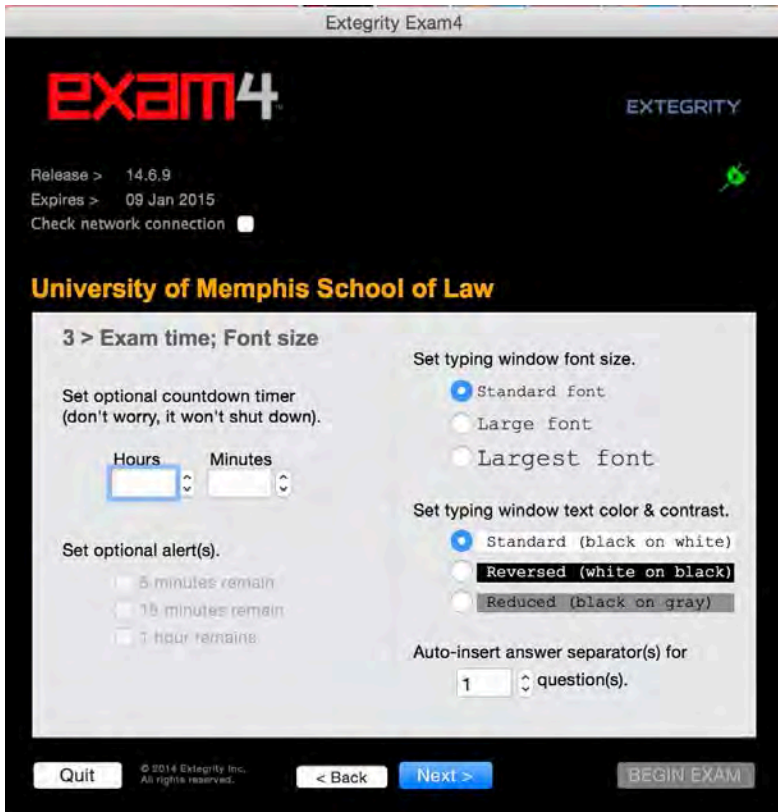
4. Enter your Exam ID, then select “Practice Exam” as the Course, finally click “Next”. On the day of your exams, you will select the Course that has the course name, section number, and professor name corresponding to the exam you are taking.



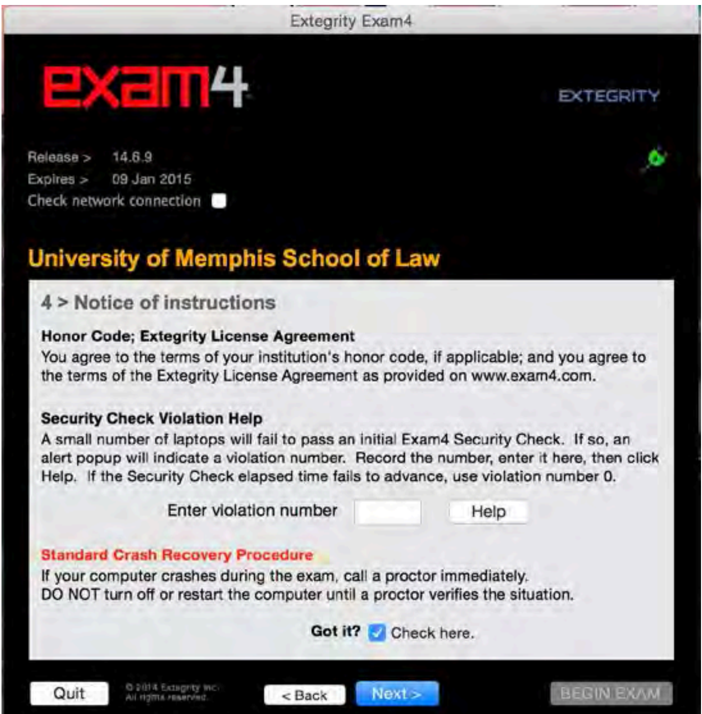
5. When the “Re-confirm carefully…” box appears, click “Check box to re-confirm” then click on “OK” to move forward.



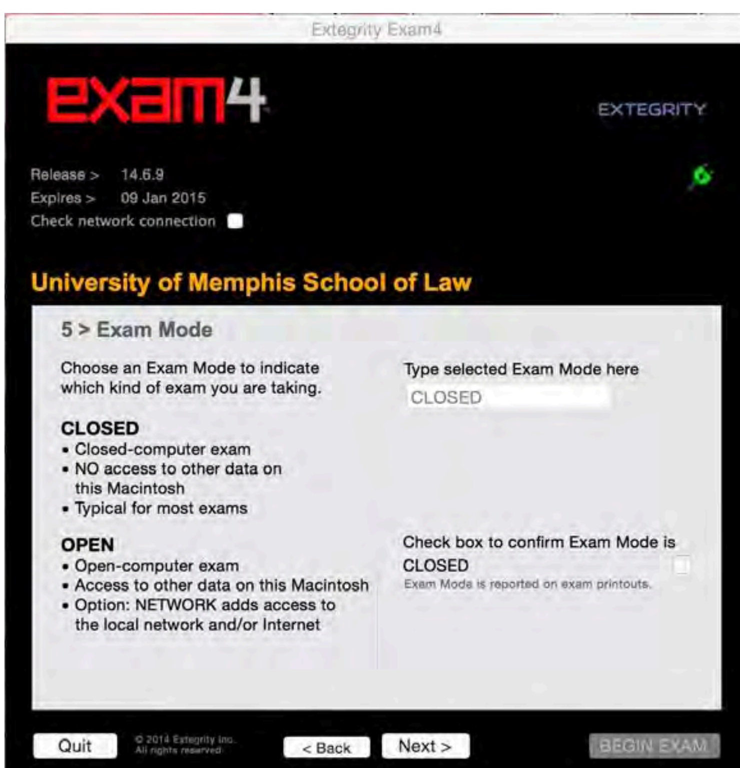
6. On this screen you can set some preferences (font size, alerts, etc). We highly recommend you use the default settings. Click “Next” to move forward.



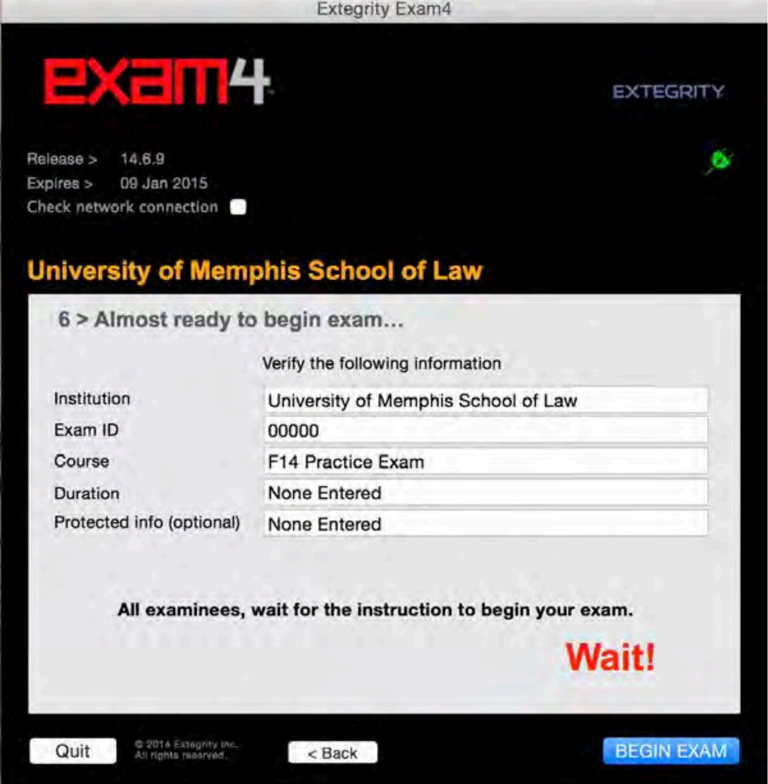
7. After reading the instructions below, put a check on "Got it? Check here" and click Next.



8. Type CLOSED for exam mode, put a check on "Confirm the exam mode" and click Next.



9. Confirm that all the information is correct and click on "Begin Exam".



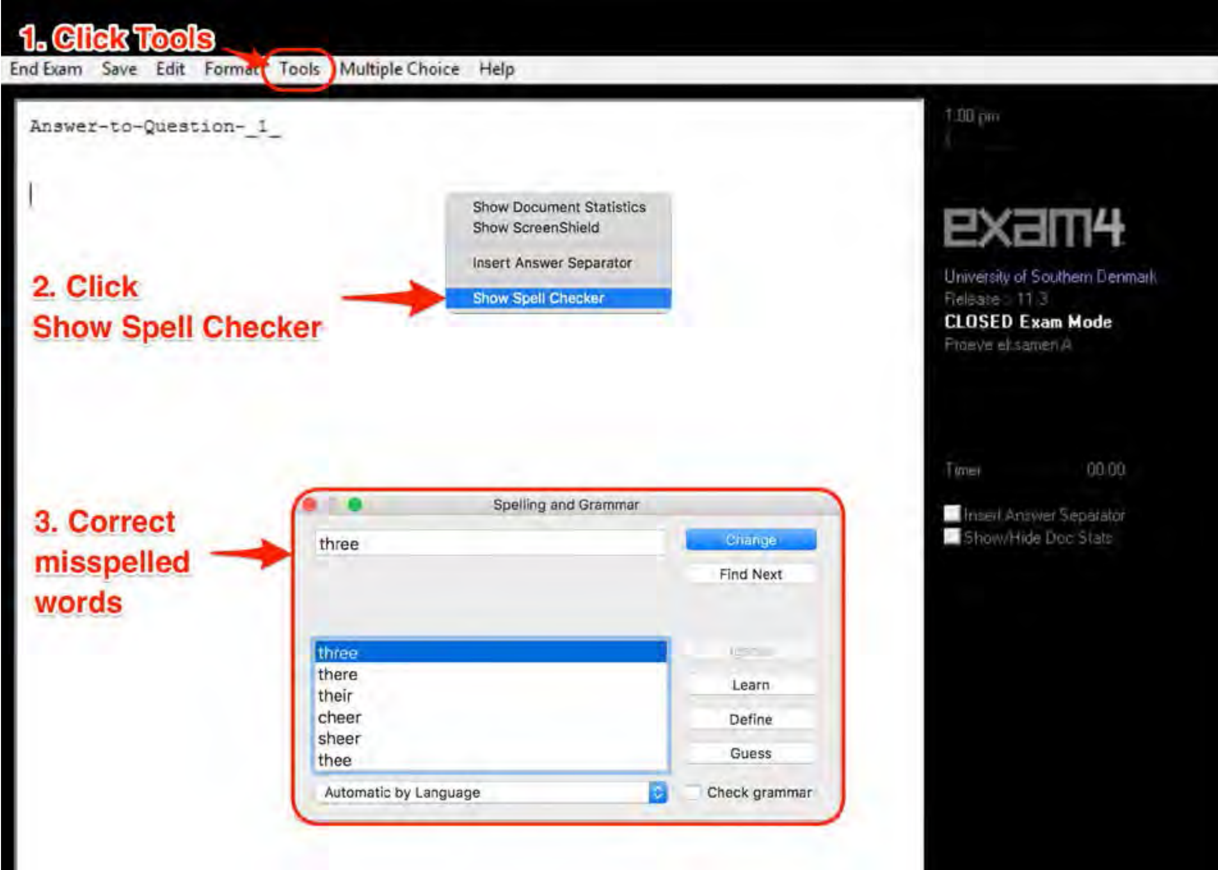
The first time that you run Exam4, it will perform a Security Check. Your screen may go blank for a few seconds. At the end of the check, you will see the exam window.

You may type anything you want into the Practice Exam. There are no questions to answer in the Practice Exam. Your work will be saved automatically every 4 seconds. You may also use the "Save" option on the toolbar.

When you have finished using the Practice Exam, you may exit by clicking on the "End Exam" option. In the End Exam window, put a check in "Confirm" and click on the "OK, end exam" button.

Spell Check

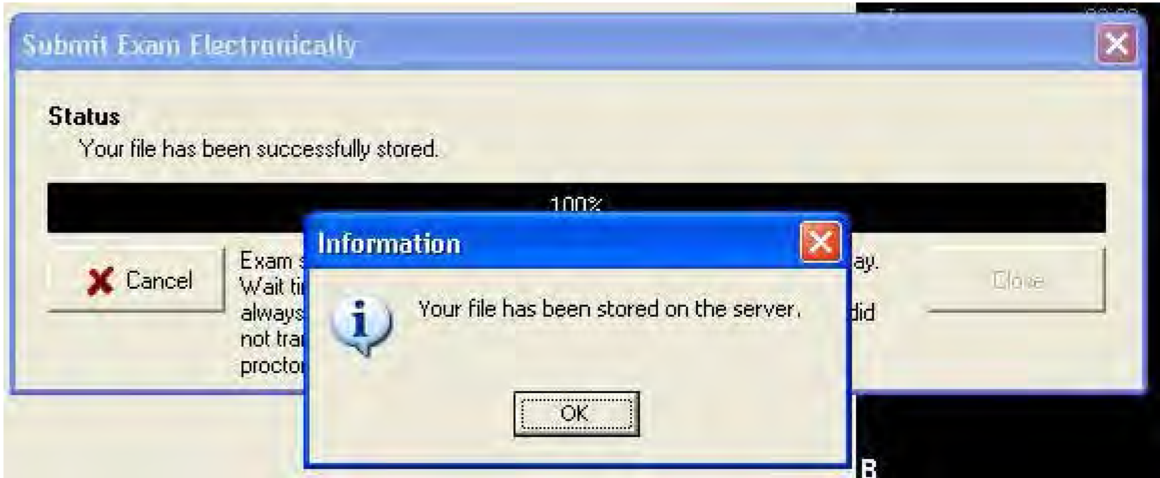
Exam has a built-in spell check feature that is currently enabled; however, it is not an "auto-correct" – it will not correct words as you type them, it will only perform a spell check when you go into the "Tools" menu and start the spell check tool, as in the image below:

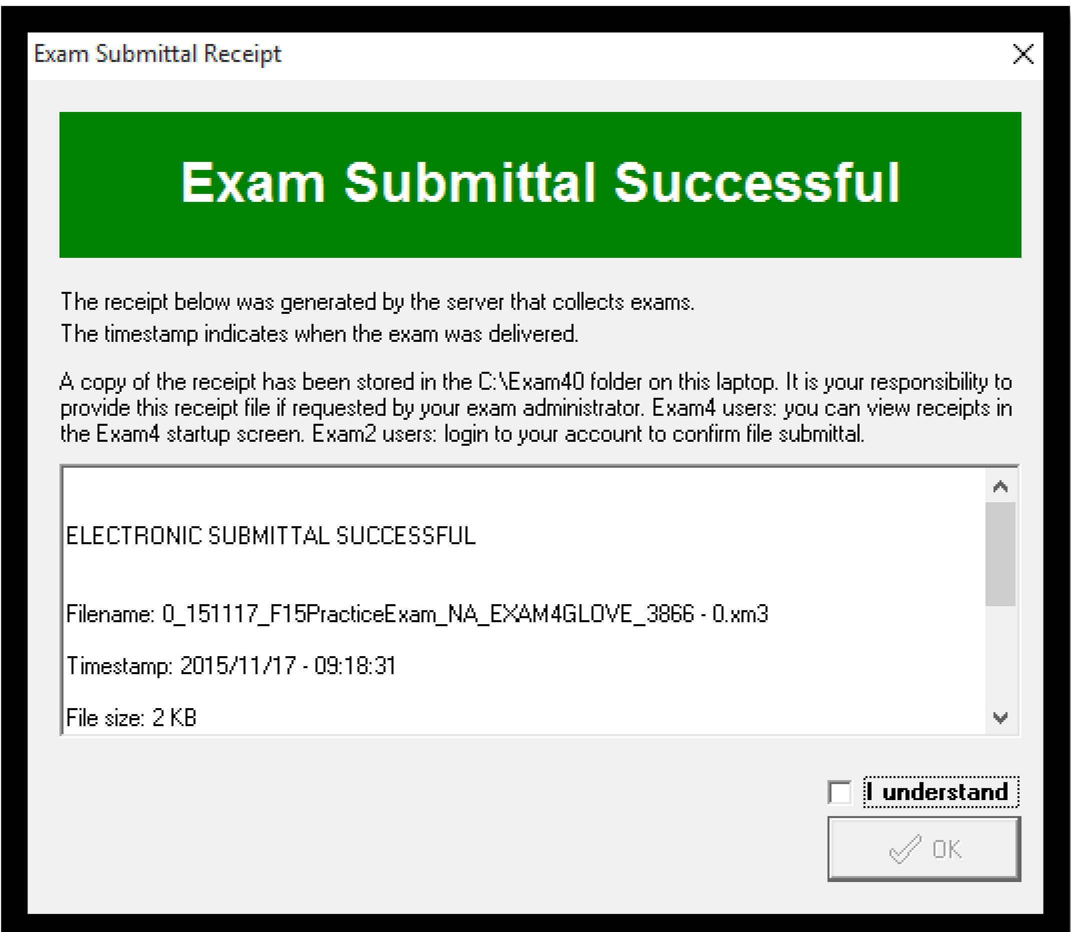


Submitting a Practice Exam

In the "Save Options" window, click on "Submit Electronically".

Your system will then attempt to submit your completed exam to the server. If the process is successful, you will see a message stating that your exam has been stored on the server, followed by a green box.





IF YOU DO NOT RECEIVE THE GREEN BOX ABOVE, THEN YOUR EXAM HAS NOT BEEN SUBMITTED, AND YOU MAY NOT RECEIVE CREDIT. FOLLOW THE STEPS BELOW TO GUARANTEE YOUR EXAM IS SUBMITTED BEFORE YOU LEAVE!!!

If the exam submission process fails, then your exam has been completed, but not turned in. It is possible that your system is not connected to the school network. Please refer to the steps at the being of this guide to check your check your network connection, then try to submit your exam again.

If that does not resolve the issue, then contact IT immediately. Do not leave campus until your completed exam has been successfully submitted, or you may not receive credit for your exam.

If you have any problems, please contact IT by coming to Room 209 or via email at lawit@memphis.edu

Once your exam has been successfully submitted, you can close Exam4 by going to "File and Save Options", selecting "Exit" and then confirming that you wish to close the program.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

NUMERICAL COURSE LIST

111 Contracts I

112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I
115 Property I
121 Contracts II
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
125 Property II
126 Criminal Law

211 Business Organizations I

212 Constitutional Law
213 Decedent's Estates
214 Income Tax

221 Evidence

222 Secured Transactions

223 Criminal Procedure I

224 Professional Responsibility

301 Mergers & Acquisitions

302 Health Law Organization, Regulation, and Finance

308 National Security Law

309 Appellate Advocacy

310 Education/Civil Rights

311 Administrative Law

312 Admiralty and Maritime Law

313 ADR-Arbitration

315 ADR-Labor

316 ADR-Mediation

318 Antitrust

319 Business Organizations II

320 Business Planning

321 Civil Procedure III

322 Civil Rights

323 Commercial Paper

324 Conflicts

325 Copyright

326 Criminal Procedure II

327 Debtor-Creditor

328 Environmental Law

329 Estate Planning

330 Fair Employment Practices

331 Family Law

333 Federal Courts A

334 Federal Taxation of Business Enterprises

335 Estate and Gift Tax

336 Health Law

337 Immigration Law

339 Insurance

340 International Law

342 Jurisprudence

343 Labor Relations

344 Land Use Planning

346 Law and Economics

347 Legal Argument and Appellate Practice

348 Legislation

352 Partnership Tax

353 Pre-Trial Litigation

354 Problems in Bankruptcy

357 Products Liability

358 Realty Transactions

359 Sales

361 Securities Regulation

366 Unfair Trade Practices

367 Worker's Compensation

368 Remedies

370 Non-Profit Organization Tax

371 Employee Benefits

372 Sports Law

374 Elder Law

375 Juvenile Law

377 Discovery

378 Legal History

379 Federal Courts B

385 Banking Law

386 Cyberlaw

390 Patent Law

392 Trust Law

394 Mental Health Law

395 Intellectual Property Survey

397 International Economic Law

399 International Business Transactions

419 Elder Law Seminar

420 Evidence Seminar

421 Family Law Seminar

426 Law and Medicine Seminar

429 Tennessee Civil Procedure Seminar

431 Tax Seminar

438 Environmental Law Seminar

440 Corporate Law Seminar (Corporate Finance)

441 Comparative Law Seminar

444 Federal Discrimination Seminar

445 Tennessee Constitutional Law Seminar
447 Legal Ethics Seminar
452 Scholarly Writing for Law Students Seminar
453 Advanced Brief-Writing Seminar
489 Social Welfare/Poverty Law Seminar
494 Gun Control/Gun Rights Seminar

500 Immigration Law Clinic
501 Housing Adjudication Clinic
509 Child and Family Litigation Clinic
510 Elder Law Clinic
511 General Session Civil Litigation Clinic
513 Legal Drafting: 011-Litigation and 012-Contract
515 Small Business Clinic
516 Trial Advocacy
521 Disability Law and Practice
523 Advanced Appellate Advocacy
524 Advanced Trial Advocacy

611 Bankruptcy Externship
613 National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) Externship
614 U.S. Attorney Externship
616 Criminal Justice Externship
617 Judicial Externship
618 Memphis Area Legal Services Externship

711 Research I

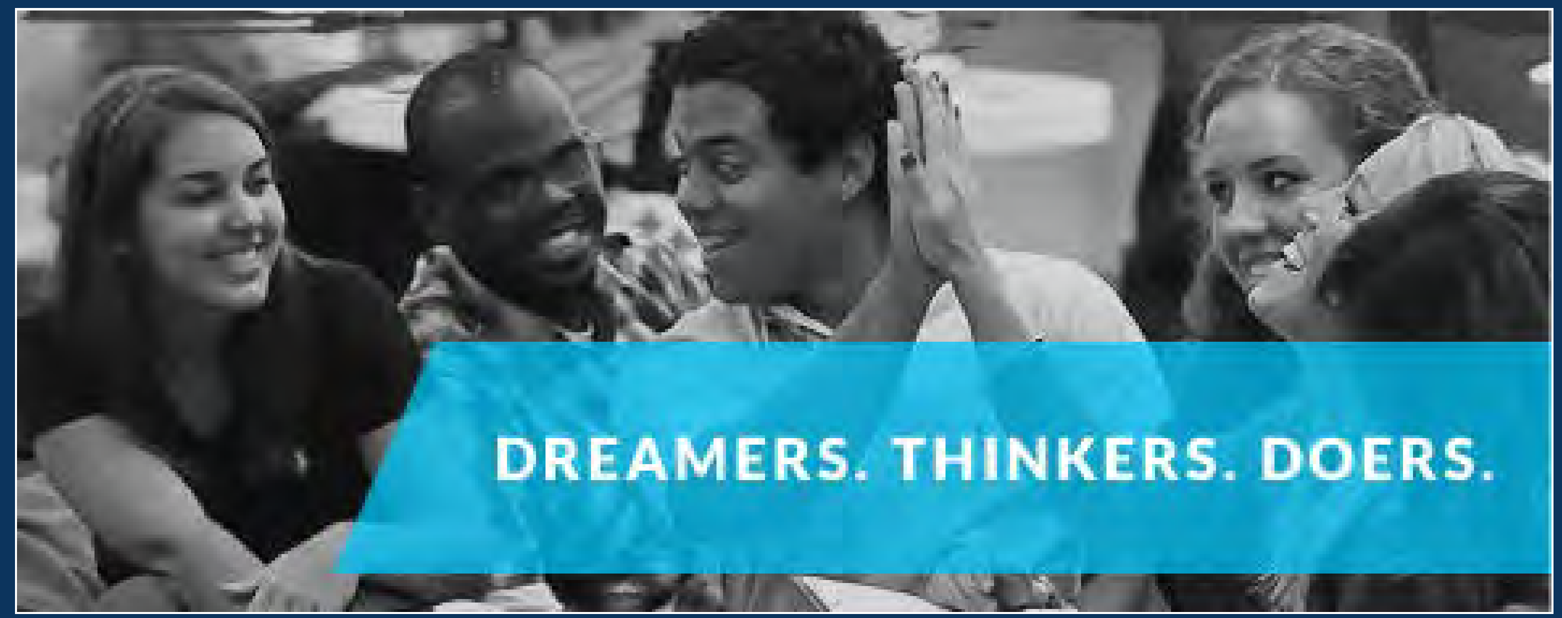
811 Moot Court

912 Law Review
913 Law Review
914 Law Review

Alumni & Support

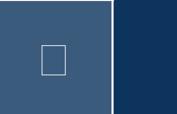
ABA Required Disclosures

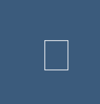
Full sitemap

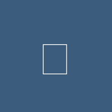


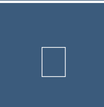
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

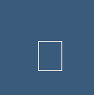
Follow UofM Online

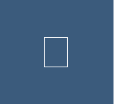












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS SCHOOL OF LAW EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM
ANTICIPATED SPRING 2017 EXTERNSHIP FIELD PLACEMENTS

JUDICIAL EXTERNSHIPS – U.S. COURTS
___ U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
___ U.S. District Court for the Western District of TN (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Western District of TN (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ U.S. Immigration Court (Memphis) (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
 Application for U.S. Immigration Court Due By Wednesday, October 19, 2016

JUDICIAL EXTERNSHIPS – TENNESSEE STATE COURTS (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ Tennessee Supreme Court
___ Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals
___ Shelby County Circuit Court

CRIMINAL JUSTICE EXTERNSHIPS (2 Credits/8 hrs per week, except U.S. Atty's Office)
___ U.S. Attorney's Office (3 Credits/12 hours per week) (Must be 3L Student)
___ Federal Public Defender's Office
___ Shelby County District Attorney General's Office (Must have 45 credits to apply)
___ Shelby County Public Defender's Office

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT EXTERNSHIPS (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ Memphis City Attorney's Office (Litigation Unit)
___ Memphis City Attorney's Office (Transactional Unit)
___ Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority – Office of General Counsel

ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCY EXTERNSHIPS
___ U.S. Dept. of Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Office of Chief Counsel (3 Credits/12 hrs per week)
___ Equal Employment Opp'y Commission–Hearings Unit (3 Credits/12 hrs per week)
___ National Labor Relations Board (2 Credits/8 hours per week)

HEALTHCARE PRACTICE EXTERNSHIPS
___ St. Jude Children's Research Hospital (4 Credits/16 hours per week)
___ Baptist Memorial Healthcare Corporation (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
___ Methodist Le Bonheur Healthcare (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
___ Regional One Health (The Med) (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
___ Shelby County Public Health Department (2 Credits/8 hours per week)

COMMUNITY LEGAL OFFICE EXTERNSHIPS (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ Community Legal Center – Immigrant Justice Program
___ Latino Memphis – Derechos Immigration Program
___ Legal Aid of Arkansas – West Memphis Office
___ Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS)
    ___ Education Law/Partnership for Educational Advocacy and Parity
    ___ Family Law Unit
    ___ Low Income Taxpayer Unit
___ Mid-South Immigration Advocates

IN-HOUSE EXTERNSHIPS
___ Ducks Unlimited (3 Credits/12 hours per week)
___ Orion Federal Credit Union – Office of General Counsel (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ University of Memphis Office of Athletic Compliance (2 Credits/8 hours per week)
___ University of Memphis Office of University Counsel (2 Credits/8 hours per week)

SPRING 2017 EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM – FIELD PLACEMENT DESCRIPTIONS

JUDICIAL EXTERNSHIPS – U.S. COURTS

United States Court Appeals for the Sixth Circuit – The Honorable Bernice B. Donald

Students are placed as externs in the chambers of U.S. Circuit Judge Bernice Donald on the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Judicial externs have a unique opportunity to learn about the process of judicial decision-making while working with the Judge, the Judge's law clerk(s), and court staff, and through observation in the courtroom. Responsibilities will include assisting law clerks in drafting Rule 34 and en banc recommendations. Externs gain broad exposure to essential appellate advocacy skills as well as appellate court practice and procedure.

General Eligibility Preference: GPA > 3.0; Staff membership on The University of Memphis Law Review

U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee
U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Western District of Tennessee

Students are placed as externs in the United States Courts for the Western District of Tennessee. Each student is assigned to the chambers of a U.S. District Court Judge, a U.S. Magistrate Judge, or a U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge. Judicial externs have a unique opportunity to learn about the process of judicial decision-making while working with Court staff and observing in the courtroom. Responsibilities vary from chambers to chambers, but have in common an emphasis on legal research and writing, including the preparation of bench memoranda, and assistance with pretrial, trial and post-trial motions and judicial opinions. Externs gain broad exposure to litigation strategies and advocacy skills, as well as trial court practice and procedure.

Preferred Course(s) (satisfied by prior or concurrent enrollment):
For Bankruptcy Court Judges –Debtor-Creditor and/or Problems in Bankruptcy
For U.S. Magistrate Diane Vescovo– Civil Rights or Federal Courts

Executive Office of Immigration Review/U.S. Immigration Court (Memphis)

This externship is with the United States Department of Justice, Executive Office for Immigration Review at the Memphis Immigration Court in downtown Memphis. The jurisdiction of the United States Immigration Courts includes all matters brought before the Court by the Department of Homeland Security. The immigration judges at the Memphis Immigration Court preside over formal immigration hearings to determine whether aliens are deportable, excludable, inadmissible or removable from the United States. In addition, the judges have jurisdiction to consider applications for various forms of discretionary and mandatory relief, including various waivers, adjustment of status, cancellation of removal, asylum, withholding of removal, and protection under the U.N. Convention Against Torture.

The position will entail in-depth research and analysis of legal issues, as well as preparation of legal memoranda for the immigration judges. Externs will have opportunities to draft decisions that will be taken under advisement by the immigration judges and that may later be used as writing samples. Externs can expect to develop research and writing skills as well as an understanding of immigration law and procedure as it relates to removal and deportation issues. In addition, they will be able to observe a variety of matters brought before the Court. Externs will work under the supervision of the Court's Judicial Law Clerks but will have substantial interaction with the Immigration Judges.

The position requires that applicants be United States citizens. Immigration experience is preferred but not required. Selected candidates must pass a background security check conducted by the Department of Justice.

Through Professor Schaffzin, and BY WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19TH, interested students should submit (preferably in pdf form) a cover letter, resume, transcript, and writing sample (unedited by others to the extent possible) addressed to:

Kaylee Klixbull and Kaitlin McKenzie
Judicial Law Clerks
Memphis Immigration Court
80 Monroe Ave., Suite 501
Memphis, TN 38103
901-528-5883
memphisintern@usdoj.gov

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence, Immigration Law

JUDICIAL EXTERNSHIPS – TENNESSEE STATE COURTS

Tennessee Appellate Courts

Students are placed as externs in a Tennessee Appellate Court. Each student is assigned to the chambers of a Tennessee Supreme Court Justice, a Tennessee Court of Appeals judge, or a Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals Judge. Judicial externs have a unique opportunity to learn about the process of judicial decision-making while working with the Judge and court staff and through observation in the courtroom. Responsibilities vary from chambers to chambers, but have in common an emphasis on legal research and writing, including the preparation of bench memoranda and judicial opinions. Externs gain broad exposure to various appellate advocacy skills as well as appellate court practice and procedure.

Anticipated Spring 2017 Placements:

Tennessee Supreme Court (Justice Holly Kirby)
Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals (Judge Camille McMullen)

Preferred Courses: Evidence, Criminal Procedure

Tennessee Trial Courts

Students are placed as externs in a trial-level court in Shelby County. Each student is assigned to the chambers of a Shelby County Circuit Court Judge or a Shelby County Chancery Court Chancellor. Judicial externs have a unique opportunity to learn about the process of judicial decision-making while working with the Judge and court staff and through observation in the courtroom. Responsibilities vary from chambers to chambers, but have in common an emphasis on legal research and writing, including the preparation of bench memoranda, and assistance with pretrial, trial and post-trial motions and judicial opinions. Externs gain broad exposure to a various litigation strategies and advocacy skills, as well as trial court practice and procedure.

Preferred Courses: Evidence.

IMPORTANT: Externs must be available on Friday mornings for Circuit Court Motions Dockets.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE EXTERNSHIPS

United States Attorney's Office

In this externship, students are placed in the United States Attorney's Office for the Western District of Tennessee. The United States Attorney's Office serves as the principal litigator for its judicial district and is responsible for coordinating multiple agency investigations within the district. The United States Attorney's Office prosecutes violations of federal criminal statutes, defends the government in civil actions, seeks enforcement of a variety of civil enforcement statutes, and institutes proceedings for the collection of fines and penalties. Typical assignments for externs will involve assisting with all aspects of case preparation, including researching legal issues, drafting/writing motions, briefs, responses and various pleadings, providing trial support to Assistant U.S. Attorneys, and assembling exhibits for trial. Students also observe trials in the District Court and appellate arguments at the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Preferred Courses: Evidence, Professional Responsibility, Criminal Procedure.

General Prerequisite: Applicants must have completed their second year of law school (i.e., must be 3L students) by the start of the externship.

Background Check: Students must be able to pass a rigorous background check that will grant them a security clearance to work in this office. The background check will require that students answer questions under oath regarding any illegal drug use (past or present), alcohol abuse, criminal history (including DUI, assault, etc.), credit history, past employment history and mental health.

Federal Public Defender's Office

In this externship, students are placed in the Office of the Federal Public Defender for the Western District of Tennessee. The Federal Public Defender's Office represents indigent clients against convictions at trial, or where appropriate, by bargaining for plea agreements, and if a client is convicted, by obtaining a just and fair sentence. Student externs may have the opportunity to perform legal research, write memoranda, motions, and briefs, and to participate in client interviews and preparation for court appearances. They may also work one-on-one with attorneys and investigators and gain exposure to all stages of criminal cases including initial appearances, plea negotiations with the U.S. Attorneys Office, trials and appellate work.

Preferred Courses: Evidence, Professional Responsibility, Criminal Procedure.

Shelby County District Attorney General's Office

In this externship, students are placed in the Office of the Shelby County District Attorney General. Each extern is assigned to one of the many specialized units of the DA's Office and works under the supervision of a prosecutor within the assigned unit. Responsibilities assigned to externs may include such tasks as researching and preparing pre-trial memoranda, responding to criminal defense motions, and contacting victims and witnesses regarding interviews, trial dates and various other matters. Externs may also prepare trial exhibits and observe felony jury trials. In most instances, externs handle limited court matters (e.g., preliminary hearings) under the supervision of a supervising prosecutor, provided the extern is certified under Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 7, Section 10.03 (the Tennessee Law Student Practice Rule).

Credits Offered: 2 Credits (8 hours per week)

Course Prerequisites/Co-Requisites: Professional Responsibility, Evidence; Criminal Procedure.

Preferred Course(s) (satisfied by prior or concurrent enrollment): Trial Advocacy

Background Check: Students must be able to pass a rigorous background check that will grant them a security clearance to work in this office

IMPORTANT: Externs placed with the Shelby County DA's Office MAY NOT engage in concurrent legal employment or volunteer legal work during the field placements semester.

Shelby County Public Defender's Office

In this externship, students are placed in the Office of the Shelby County Public Defender. Each extern is assigned to one of the many specialized units of the Public Defender's Office and works under the supervision of an assistant public defender within the assigned unit. Responsibilities assigned to externs include such tasks as researching and preparing pre-trial memoranda, responding to prosecution motions, and contacting witnesses regarding interviews, trial dates and various other matters. Externs will also observe and participate in court matters under supervision.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence; Criminal Procedure.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT EXTERNSHIPS

Memphis City Attorney's Office

The Memphis City Attorney's Office externship course will introduce students to the legal issues facing attorneys who represent the City of Memphis in civil litigation, transactional, and policy-related matters, and the role of lawyers in municipal government generally. It will also expose students to the intricacies of the City Attorney's role as counselor and advocate for Memphis, its governmental offices, and its employees. Students selected for this placement will be assigned to either the litigation unit or a transaction unit within the City Attorney's Office.

Depending on the division within the City Attorney's Office to which they are assigned, externs may be asked to prepare internal legal memoranda (for example, analyzing legal issues or policy implications for the City Attorney or client agency officials); draft motion papers; assist with discovery; review proposed rules or legislation; or review drafts of transactional agreements. Externs may also have the opportunity to attend and participate in meetings with government officials, client or witness interviews, legislative hearings, depositions, court appearances, negotiation sessions, or other events relating to their work under the supervision of a licensed attorney. If eligible, externs may seek student practice permission pursuant to Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 7, Section 10.03 (the Tennessee Law Student Practice Rule).

Anticipated Spring 2017 Placements:

General Litigation Unit
Transactional Unit

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence

Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority – Office of General Counsel

This Externship course will offer students the opportunity to earn academic credit for legal work performed under the immediate and ongoing supervision of the General Counsel to the Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority. Students enrolled in this externship will be exposed to the wide variety of legal matters handled by the Airport Authority's General Counsel, examples of which include matters involving business contracting (including contract drafting, negotiation, and interpretation); administrative and regulatory law (e.g., aviation law); risk management (e.g., premises liability issues); labor and employment law (e.g., worker's compensation issues); formulation and implementation of rules and policies (e.g., adoption of a local preference rule for purchasing); and preventative/prophylactic training, advice, and counseling.

Among other assignments, it is anticipated that the extern will perform legal research; draft, review, and opine on contractual agreements; and draft memoranda, letters, and other documents. Externs will also learn through observation of and participation in day-to-day practice activities, including legal proceedings, negotiations, meetings, trainings, and counseling sessions. When possible, externs will work with client departments and departmental staff to gather information and to gain insight into and understanding of the Airport Authority's operations and structure.

Preferred Courses: Evidence, Professional Responsibility.

ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCY EXTERNSHIPS

U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Office of the Chief Counsel (Memphis OCC Litigation Unit)

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), Office of the Chief Counsel in Memphis, Tennessee (Memphis OCC Litigation Unit) handles all litigation for ICE involving administrative removal/deportation, asylum and Torture

Convention claims from many different countries throughout the world, and other relief from removal. The Office of Chief Counsel also provides legal advice to operational components of the Department of Homeland Security, and to the U.S. Attorney's Office throughout its area of responsibility. Memphis OCC Assistant Chief Counsels are in court an average of four to five days per week, covering a docket in excess of 6,000 administrative cases each year.

Externs placed with the Memphis OCC Litigation Unit will gain insight into immigration law from the perspective of the federal government. Assigned externs will also observe the manner in which immigration law touches on many different legal areas. Among other opportunities, externs will perform legal research and writing; work on and assist in the preparation of court filings, and assist in the preparation for and attend immigration hearings. Externs may also be given the opportunity to litigate hearings under the supervision of an Assistant Chief Counsel.

Credits Offered: 3 Credits (12 hours per week)

Course Prerequisites/Co-Requisites: Professional Responsibility, Evidence; Criminal Procedure.

General Prerequisite: Candidates must rank in the top 50% of their respective class.

Background Check: Students must be able to pass a rigorous background check that will grant them a security clearance to work in this office.

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission – Hearings Unit or Legal Unit

Students in this placement will serve as externs in the Memphis Field Office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). Students will be assigned to either the Hearings Unit or the Legal Unit of the EEOC Office. The Hearings Units employs three administrative judges who conduct hearings and render decisions with respect to EEO complaints that are brought by Federal workers. The role of the extern in the Hearings Unit will be similar to that of a judicial law clerk. The extern will conduct legal research on specific topics at the direction of the administrative judge, write decisions in conjunction with the administrative, and prepare for and attend hearings, settlement conferences, and other case-related events. Externs in the Legal Unit will work under the supervision of trial attorneys engaged in litigation against employers for violations of Title VII, the ADEA and the ADA. Externs will perform legal research and writing, assist in interviewing claimants or witnesses, help prepare discovery responses based on those interviews, and help prepare claimants or witnesses for deposition. In addition to the legal assignments, externs will be given the opportunity to observe different aspects of agency functions, including intake interviews, depositions, mediation sessions, administrative hearings, court hearings, and trials.

Preferred Courses: Evidence, Fair Employment Practice or Federal Courts.

Preference: Student(s) should have a sincere interest in employment law or litigation.

National Labor Relations Board Externship

Students in this placement will serve as externs in the Regional Office of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in Memphis. Assigned externs will work on unfair labor practice cases and may assist on matters relating to challenges and objections in representation elections. It is anticipated that externs will perform research of labor law issues, conduct factual investigations, draft relevant documents, and assist in the preparation and handling of hearings and elections.

Credits Offered: 2 Credits (8 hours per week)

Preferences: Professional Responsibility; Labor Law. Student should have a sincere interest in labor law.

HEALTHCARE PRACTICE EXTERNSHIPS

The Health Law Externships will offer students interested in health law and in-house legal practice the opportunity to earn academic credit for legal work performed under the immediate and ongoing supervision of attorneys in the legal departments of local healthcare organizations. Students enrolled in this externship will be exposed to the wide variety of legal matters handled by these offices, examples of which include matters involving administrative and regulatory law, hospital risk management, clinical research compliance, labor and employment law; business contracting; formulation and implementation of hospital and corporate policy; healthcare legislation, policy, and reform; and preventative/prophylactic training and counseling.

Among other assignments, it is anticipated that externs will perform legal research; draft memoranda, letters, and other documents; draft and review contractual agreements; and prepare presentations to hospital personnel. Externs will also learn through observation of and participation in day-to-day practice activities, including legal proceedings, negotiations, meetings, trainings, and counseling sessions. When possible, externs will work with client departments and departmental staff to gather information and to gain insight into and understanding of clinical, business, and health care operations.

Anticipated Spring 2017 Placements:

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital
Baptist Memorial Healthcare
Regional Medical Center at Memphis
Shelby County Health Department

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence.

NOTE: RISING 3L STUDENTS (OTHERS NOT ELIGIBLE) WHO WISH TO APPLY FOR THE EXTERNSHIP WITH ST. JUDE CHILDREN'S RESEARCH HOSPITAL MUST REVIEW A SEPARATE HANDOUT DESCRIPTION OF THE ST. JUDE OFFICE OF LEGAL SERVICES INTERNSHIP. PLEASE CONTACT PROFESSOR SCHAFFZIN IMMEDIATELY IF YOU PLAN TO APPLY FOR PLACEMENT WITH ST. JUDE.

COMMUNITY LAW OFFICE EXTERNSHIPS

Community Legal Center – Immigrant Justice Program

The Community Legal Center's Immigrant Justice Program offers a variety of legal services to low-income immigrants living within the jurisdiction of the Memphis Immigration Court (Tennessee, Arkansas, northern Mississippi, and western Kentucky). Externs placed with the IJP will assist staff attorneys on a variety of family and humanitarian-based immigration cases, including applications for adjustment of status, asylum, U nonimmigrant visas for victims of certain crimes, and Special Immigrant Juvenile status. Responsibilities will include conducting and participating in client interviews, legal research and writing, preparation of pleadings and applications for immigration relief, assistance with and attendance of hearings before the Memphis Immigration Court and interviews with U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services ("USCIS"). Externs will also have the opportunity to represent clients in guardianship proceedings before the Shelby County Probate Court, an initial step in the process of applying for Special Immigrant Juvenile status.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility; Evidence.

Memphis Area Legal Services

The Memphis Area Legal Services Externship allows students to receive academic credit for one semester of work at Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS), a nonprofit law firm that provides free civil legal assistance to eligible elderly and low-income people in Western Tennessee. MALS helps clients who are faced with legal problems that harm their ability to have such basics as food, shelter, income, medical care, and personal safety. The externship course is available to second- or third-year students. Students work under the close supervision of MALS staff attorneys to perform client interviews, undertake factual and legal research; collect and review records; develop witness testimony and evidence; draft pleadings and other written submissions; and participate in the representation of clients at hearings and other court proceedings.

Anticipated Spring 2017 Placements:
Education Law/PEAP
Family Law
Low Income Taxpayer Unit

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility; Evidence.

Latino Memphis – Derechos Immigration Program

Latino Memphis is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization that has served Latino clients throughout the Mid-South for the past 20 years. Its mission is to assist Latinos in this region by connecting, collaborating and advocating for health, education and justice. Latino Memphis addresses the needs of the Latino community by offering three core programs that range from direct client services and immigration assistance to collecting household items for flood victims. As one of the only agencies in the region dedicated specifically to serving Latinos, Latino Memphis has become a resource for individuals struggling to navigate life in the U.S. and to understand their place in the legal system.

Derechos Immigration Program, Latino Memphis' in-house immigration legal practice, provides accessible legal representation to low-income people within the jurisdiction of the Memphis Immigration Court. In addition to direct representation, Derechos also engages in outreach and community programs to disseminate information and build relationships and coalitions throughout the region.

The students enrolled in this field placement will work in devoted space at the office of Latino Memphis. Latino Memphis attorneys Casey Bryant and Stacie Hunhoff will be the primary field supervisors for this externship. Under ongoing supervision, externs will assist in representing clients in immigration matters, defensively in Immigration Court and affirmatively with petitions to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services. Externs will have the opportunity for hands on experience interviewing clients, compiling client information, drafting correspondence, preparing applications, performing legal research, and attending Immigration Court. Additionally, externs will be assigned a project to be completed over the course of their term.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility; Evidence, Immigration Law

Legal Aid of Arkansas – West Memphis Office

Legal Aid of Arkansas (LAA) is a public interest, not-for-profit law firm dedicated to providing equal access to justice in civil matters for low-income Arkansans through legal representation, advocacy, community partnerships, education, and outreach. Substantive practice areas include consumer law, family law, housing, public benefits, expungement, wills, and other related poverty-law issues.

Student externs placed with Legal Aid of Arkansas's West Memphis Office will be presented with opportunities to hone legal writing and researching skills and gain first-hand experience with clients in areas such as client intake, investigation, representation, community education, and outreach. Students who have completed their 2L year (60 credits) may be able to gain in-court experience by obtaining a limited practice license under Arkansas Rule Governing Bar Admission15 (Student Practice).

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility; Evidence

Mid-South Immigration Associates

MIA is a non-profit public interest law office whose primary mission is the provision of affordable immigration services to economically disadvantaged non-citizens within the geographic jurisdiction of the Memphis Immigration Court. Within the Memphis metro region, MIA also seeks to facilitate the administration of justice and to increase public awareness on issues related to US immigration and naturalization law.

In particular, MIA assists individuals to obtain immigration status based upon family relationships, domestic violence and persecution, and other non-employment based avenues available in US immigration law. MIA conducts case appeals as resources allow, but does not at this time engage in impact or class-action litigation. MIA also provides community legal rights presentations and consultations 'clinics' in the Memphis area.

Finally, MIA engages in administrative advocacy in the Memphis area, organizing and attending meetings with USCIS, ICE, EOIR, local police, local immigrants' rights organizations and attorney stakeholders. Currently our administrative advocacy is focused around the 'U Visa' issue.

Under the supervision of MIA staff attorneys, assigned externs will conduct casework in a select number of cases, of the type listed above. Externs will also assist with client intake interviews, have the opportunity to work directly with clients, assist with immigration applications and filings, and potentially represent clients at immigration court hearings.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence, Immigration Law

IN-HOUSE EXTERNSHIPS

Ducks Unlimited -- Office of Land Protection

Ducks Unlimited, the world's largest nonprofit, waterfowl and wetlands conservation organization, has an opportunity for placement of a legal extern in its National Headquarters in Memphis, Tennessee. DU is an accredited land trust with a portfolio of nearly 500 conservation easements and a fee-title portfolio of 23,000 acres. DU's land protection efforts conserve habitat across a diverse array of landscapes, from native prairie ecosystems in the Dakotas to bottomland hardwood forests in the Mississippi Delta to wetland systems along the coasts.

The assigned legal extern will work closely with the Director of Land Protection, whose primary responsibility is to guide, draft, and negotiate easement and fee-title transactions for the organization's nationwide land protection efforts.

Specifically, the extern will assist with the following:

- Draft, review, and perform due diligence for conservation easement and fee-title transactions.
- Ensure DU's land protection efforts comply with federal and state statutes and regulations. Because most conservation easements are either fully or partially donated, it is particularly concerned with IRC § 170 and the associated regulations on Qualified Conservation Contributions, 26 CFR § 1.170A-14.
- Ensure compliance with all internal guidelines and policies, as well as the Land Trust Alliance accreditation standards.
- Interpret Conservation Easement Deed language to determine if a landowner's request to exercise a reserved right is permissible under the terms of the easement.
- Interpret Conservation Easement Deed language when potential violations arise and determine the organization's response to easement violations.
- Work with General Counsel's office to implement easement defense strategies.

The extern may also have the opportunity to work with the General Counsel's office on matters related to nonprofit fundraising, charitable regulations and governance, and trademarks.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility

Orion Federal Credit Union ------ Office of Legal Counsel and Compliance

Founded in 1957 as Memphis Area Teachers' Credit Union, Orion Federal Credit Union has grown to become the largest credit union in Western Tennessee. Orion FCU is a not-for-profit financial cooperative owned Orion offers a full spectrum of banking options ranging from savings and checking accounts to auto, mortgage and personal loans to almost everyone who lives or works in the greater Memphis area.

Student externs placed with Orion FCU's Office of Legal Counsel and Compliance will support the Office's work in the area of banking law. Among other charges, the Office works to ensure compliance with all applicable banking statutes and regulations from the Federal Reserve, NCUA, HUD, and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau; review of loan documents and modification for specific loan promotions; draft modification and forbearance agreements for commercial loans; file claims against estates and review other probate matters; and create procedures for state law matters related to decedents' accounts, safe deposit boxes, etc.

Beyond exposure to the Office of Legal Counsel and Compliance's banking law practice, student externs will assist in the Office's general practice, which includes contract drafting, review, and modification; review of possible EEOC-law violations; management of litigation referred to outside counsel and handling of smaller litigation matters; and provision of legal opinions on general business matters.

Credits Offered: 2 Credits (8 hours/week)

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility

Teach for America – Office of Legal Affairs

Teach For America (TFA) is a not-for-profit national corps of college graduates, graduate students, and professionals who commit two years to teach in low-income urban and rural public schools and become leaders in expanding educational opportunity. TFA's mission is to build the movement to eliminate educational inequity by enlisting America's most promising future leaders in the effort.

TFA's Legal Affairs Team provides legal and strategic advice to over fifty Teach For America regions nationwide and the central functional teams – Program, Regional Operations, Finance, Marketing and Communications, Growth Strategy and Development and Human Assets. Our team of attorneys consists of lawyers that practice in a wide range of substantive areas including employment law, administrative law, nonprofit law, trademark and copyright protection, general compliance, and education laws. The day-to-day work often includes, partnering closely with staff members to manage questions of law and policy; creating training materials for organizational compliance such as copyright and lobbying trainings; and drafting and negotiating contracts with other partner entities and vendors.

The Legal Affairs externship provides a platform for law students committed to working in a mission-driven organization to develop legal skills and acumen while partnering directly with TFA attorneys to work on various legal projects throughout the summer. The extern will get exposure to a wide range of matters from lobbying compliance to developing organization-wide policies to real estate matters. Through the experience, the extern will have the chance to observe the strategy development of a national non-profit.

Responsibilities may include, but are not limited to:

- Conducting legal research across a wide variety of substantive areas with a particular focus on employment and benefits law, state lobbying compliance requirements, contracts, and non-profit corporation and tax law with an opportunity to create a writing sample.
- Producing high-quality written communication for different constituencies within the organization, including training materials and presentations related to various areas of legal compliance.

Credits Offered: 3 Credits (12 hours/week)

Candidate Requirements: At least 2 years of law school required; 3.2 GPA required

Candidate Materials: (1) resume, (2) cover letter, (3) copy of your law school transcript, (4) a minimum of 5 pages writing sample, and (5) a letter of recommendation.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility

University of Memphis Office of Athletic Compliance

The University Athletics Compliance Externship will offer students interested in higher education law and athletics compliance the opportunity to earn academic credit for work performed under the ongoing supervision of compliance personnel in The University of Memphis Office of Legal Counsel and members of the University of Memphis Athletics Compliance Staff. The selected extern(s) will immerse themselves within the day-to-day operations of a compliance office operating under both NCAA and SEC regulations, and will gain experience relevant to NCAA bylaws concerning eligibility, recruiting, financial aid, personnel, awards, and other areas as assigned.

Students enrolled in this externship will perform a wide variety of legal and compliance-focused assignments on behalf of the University client, examples of which may include various rules interpretations, research, and filing of waivers. In addition, students will aid the compliance staff with initial eligibility, continuing eligibility, recruiting database oversight, National Letter of Intent processing, review of pre- and post-official visit paperwork, research and creation of rules education, maintenance of various compliance forms, and other duties as assigned.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility.

University of Memphis – Office of University Counsel

The University Counsel Externship course will offer students interested in higher education law and in-house legal practice the opportunity to earn academic credit for work performed under the immediate and ongoing supervision of attorneys in The University of Memphis Office of Legal Counsel. Students enrolled in this externship will be exposed to the wide variety of legal matters handled by the Office of Legal Counsel on behalf of its University client, examples of which include matters involving labor and employment disputes; academic and student issues; athletic and research compliance; business and real estate transactions; contract drafting and review; formulation and implementation of University policies; and intellectual property. Externs will actively engage in legal research and writing while learning through observation of and participation in hearings, negotiations, client meetings, and other practice events.

Preferred Courses: Professional Responsibility, Evidence

FULL-TIME STUDENTS

16.1.a.i. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Term
- 112 Torts I
- 113 Legal Methods I
- 114 Civil Procedure I
- 115 Property I
- 126 Criminal Law

Spring Term
- 122 Torts II
- 123 Legal Methods II
- 124 Civil Procedure II
- 125 Property II
- 121 Contracts
- 212 Constitutional Law

Second Year

221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes Evidence in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

\+

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.ii A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year

Fall Term
- 111 Contracts I
- 112 Torts I
- 113 Legal Methods I
- 114 Civil Procedure I
- 115 Property I

Spring Term
- 121 Contracts II
- 122 Torts II
- 123 Legal Methods II
- 124 Civil Procedure II
- 125 Property II
- 126 Criminal Law

Second Year

212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

\+

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.iii. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year

Fall Term
- 111 Contracts I
- 112 Torts I
- 113 Legal Methods I
- 114 Civil Procedure I
- 115 Property I

Spring Term
- 121 Contracts II
- 122 Torts II
- 123 Legal Methods II
- 124 Civil Procedure II
- 125 Property II
- 126 Criminal Law

Second Year

212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

\+

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
359 Sales	223 Criminal Procedure
222 Secured Transactions	213 Decedents' Estates
	331 Family Law
	324 Conflict of Laws
	368 Remedies

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.iii. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2017

First Year

Fall Term
111 Contracts I
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I
115 Property I

Spring Term
121 Contracts II
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
125 Property II
126 Criminal Law

Second Year

212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
330 Fair Employment Practice	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	213 Decedents' Estates
348 Legislation	331 Family Law
359 Sales	324 Conflict of Laws
222 Secured Transactions	368 Remedies

C. 223 Criminal Procedure I

D. 721 Bar Exam Preparation Course

 In addition to the above specified courses, and also within the ninety (90) credit hours required for graduation, a student is required to satisfy both the advanced writing and the experiential requirements. Outside of the ninety (90) credit hours required for graduation, students are also required to complete forty (40) pro bono hours.

PART-TIME STUDENTS

16.1.b.i. A PART-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Term
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I

Spring Term
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
121 Contracts

Second Year

Fall Term
115 Property I
126 Criminal Law
221 Evidence/ Elective

Spring Term
125 Property II
212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence/ Elective

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Third and Fourth Year

A.224 Professional Responsibility
+
B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.ii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year

Fall Term
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I

Spring Term
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
126 Criminal Law

Second Year

Fall Term
111 Contracts I
115 Property I
212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence

Spring Term
121 Contracts II
125 Property II
212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Third and Fourth Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility
+
B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.iii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year

Fall Term
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I

Spring Term
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
126 Criminal Law

Second Year

Fall Term
115 Property I
111 Contracts I
212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence

Spring Term
121 Contracts II
125 Property II
212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an*

Third and Fourth Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility
+
B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law
	324 Conflict of Laws

Elective may be taken in its place.

368 Remedies

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.iii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2017

First Year		Second Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	115 Property I	121 Contracts II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	111 Contracts I	125 Property II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence
	126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Third and Fourth Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

+

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
330 Fair Employment Practice	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	213 Decedents' Estates
348 Legislation	331 Family Law
359 Sales	324 Conflict of Laws
222 Secured Transactions	368 Remedies

C. 223 Criminal Procedure I

D. 721 Bar Preparation Course

 In addition to the above specified courses, and also within the ninety (90) credit hours required for graduation, a student is required to satisfy both the advanced writing and the experiential requirements. Outside of the ninety (90) credit hours required for graduation, students are also required to complete forty (40) pro bono hours.

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Credit Hour Policy

1. Definitions

   a. The Law School adheres to Federal law and ABA definitions of a credit hour. ABA Standard 310(b) provides a "credit hour" is an amount of work that reasonably approximates:

      i. Not less than one hour of classroom or direct faculty instruction and two hours of out-of-class student work per week for fifteen weeks, or the equivalent amount of work over a different amount of time; or

      ii. At least an equivalent amount of work as required in subparagraph (1) of this definition for other academic activities as established by the institution, including simulation, field placement, clinical, co-curricular, independent research, and other academic work leading to the award of credit hours.

   b. The Law School currently operates on 15 week class cycles (14 weeks for regularly-scheduled class sessions and 1 week for the course examination). For Law School purposes, in-class time (including for examinations) is calculated in 50 minute "hours" per credit over 15 weeks, or other equivalent for more-condensed courses, including summer courses. Any direct faculty instruction time is calculated at this rate. All other academic time is calculated in 60-minute hours. This means that at least 42.5 total hours, accumulated through some combination of in-class and out-of-class time, are required for a credit hour.

2. Work Required

   a. Professors are responsible for designing courses that reflect at least 42.5 total hours[1] of work per credit hour, attained through any of the following, alone or in combination:

      i. Direct faculty instruction in class, mandatory office hours, exercises, practices, rehearsals, or supervision of field placement or clinic work;

      ii. Reading;

      iii. Preparing and revising notes, class outlines, and related materials;

      iv. Observing taped materials, podcasts, or live events;

      v. Preparing for, performing, and reviewing exercises, simulations, competitions, field placement and clinic work, and other assignments;

      vi. Researching, drafting, and editing writings;

      vii. Reviewing others' work (as allowed by class policies);

[1] Two credit courses will have 85 total hours of work; three credit courses will have 127.5 hours; and four credit courses will have 170 total hours.

viii. Contributing to discussions both orally and in writing;

ix. Preparing for, taking, and reviewing performances on quizzes, midterms, exams, and other assessments; and

x. All other academic activity.

b. Professors are responsible for ensuring that simulation, field placement, clinical, co-curricular, independent research, and all other academic work leading to the award of credit hours, reflect at least 42.5 total hours of work per credit hour.

3. Policy and Procedures for Assuring the Law School Adheres to and Enforces the Credit Hour Policy

a. Responsibility for Assuring Adherence to Standard 310 and the Credit Hour Policy.

i. The Associate Dean for Academic Affairs is charged with assuring that the Law School adheres to ABA Standard 310 and this Credit Hour Policy. This includes assuring that the methods and processes used to determine and assign credits lead to reliable, accurate results, and conform to commonly accepted practice in higher education. It also includes assuring that the methods and processes followed in determining and assigning academic credit are documented, and that all requisite records are kept.

b. Determination of Credit Hours for New Courses:

i. At the time of approving a new course, the Curriculum Committee shall determine and assign the number of credits to be awarded for that course. In doing so, the Curriculum Committee shall adhere to Standard 310 and this Credit Hour Policy.

ii. A new course proposal submitted to the Curriculum Committee shall include a proposed syllabus and set forth a statement from the faculty member proposing the new course that provides a justification for the number of credits to be awarded that takes into account classroom or direct faculty instruction, as well as the time to be spent on course-related out-of-class work.

iii. In determining and assigning the number of credits, the Curriculum Committee shall take into account:

1. The type of course (e.g., first year doctrinal course, upper level common law course, upper level code course, seminar, simulation course, clinical course, and field placement);

2. The amount and difficulty of the assigned readings;

3. The number and types of assignments students must complete during the semester (e.g., papers and simulation exercises);

4. The number and types of assessments (e.g., final examination, midterm exam, research paper, quizzes, and short papers);

5. Other types of academically-related work (e.g*.,* in the case of law journals, the amount of time spent on the completion of a note or comment, reading and evaluating journal submissions, and editing and cite checking articles; and in the case of mock trial and moot court, the amount of time spent practicing, judging practice rounds, doing research, and writing briefs, and the time spent in actual competition);

6. Any feedback from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, the Law School Registrar, and experienced faculty members;

7. Commonly accepted practice in higher education; and

8. Any other factors that the Curriculum Committee determines are relevant for determining accuracy and reliability of the credits being awarded.

iv. The Curriculum Committee shall submit a statement to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs that provides a justification for the number of credits to be awarded that takes into account classroom or direct faculty instruction, as well as the time to be spent on course-related out-of-class work.

v. The Associate Dean for Academic Affairs shall review the statement provided by the Curriculum Committee and make a determination whether or not the number of credits that the Curriculum Committee assigned to the new course complies with Standard 310 and the Credit Hour Policy. If the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs determines that the number of credits assigned is not in compliance, the Associate Dean shall describe the problems identified and send the new course proposal back to the Curriculum Committee for further consideration.

c. Ongoing Review to Assure Adherence to Standard 310 and the Credit Hour Policy

i. Each semester, professors must submit course syllabi to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs that demonstrate compliance with this Credit Hour Policy. If the syllabus has not undergone a significant change, the professor may instead so indicate to the Associate Dean.

ii. The Associate Dean for Academic Affairs will review the documentation to determine whether the professor has complied with this Credit Hour policy. If there is a question concerning compliance with this policy, the professor will be given an opportunity to provide additional information to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs to demonstrate compliance.

Adopted by the faculty on February 10, 2017.

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW
2015-2016 ACADEMIC CALENDAR

Fall 2015

First-year Orientation	Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, August 12-14
Classes Start	Monday, August 17
Labor Day Holiday	Monday, September 7
Classes End	Monday, November 23
Reading Days	Tuesday & Wednesday, November 24-25
Thanksgiving Holiday	Thursday & Friday, November 26-27
Exams Start	Monday, November 30
Exams End	Friday, December 11
Commencement	Sunday, December 13

Spring 2016

Classes Start	Wednesday, January 13
MLK Holiday	Monday, January 18
Spring Break	March 7-11
Monday Class Schedule/Classes End	Wednesday, April 27
Reading Days	Thursday & Friday, April 28-29
Exams Begin	Monday, May 2
Exams End	Friday, May 13
Commencement	Saturday, May 14

Summer 2016

Classes Start	Monday, May 23
Memorial Day Holiday	Monday, May 30
July 4th Holiday	Monday, July 4
Monday Class Schedule/Classes End	Tuesday, July 12
Reading Day	Wednesday, July 13
Exams Begin	Thursday, July 14
Exams End	Monday, July 18
Commencement	TBA

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW
2014-2015 ACADEMIC CALENDAR

Fall 2014

First-year Orientation	Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, August 13-15
Classes Start	Monday, August 18
Labor Day Holiday	Monday, September 1
Classes End	Monday, November 24
Reading Days	Tuesday & Wednesday, November 25-26
Thanksgiving Holiday	Thursday & Friday, November 27-28
Exams Start	Monday, December 1
Exams End	Friday, December 12
Commencement	Sunday, December 14

Spring 2015

Classes Start	Wednesday, January 7
MLK Holiday	Monday, January 19
Spring Break	March 9-15
Monday Class Schedule/Classes End	Wednesday, April 22
Reading Days	Thursday & Friday, April 23-24
Exams Begin	Monday, April 27
Exams End	Friday, May 8
Commencement	Saturday, May 9

Summer 2015

Classes Start	Monday, May 18
Memorial Day Holiday	Monday, May 25
July 4th Holiday	Friday, July 3
Friday Class Schedule/ Classes End	Monday, July 6
Reading Day	Tuesday, July 7
Exams Begin	Wednesday, July 8
Exams End	Friday, July 10
Commencement	Sunday, August 9

University of Memphis School of Law
2015 Spring Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Date	Event
Monday, November 10 – Friday, November 14 Monday, Nov. 10: Veteran registration Wednesday, Nov. 12: 3L registration Thursday, Nov. 13: 2L registration Friday, Nov. 14: 1L registration	Registration (Registration begins at 8am for Veterans and 9am for everyone else.)
Tuesday, January 6	Law School Tuition & Fees Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Tuesday, January 6	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops and/or Withdrawals
Wednesday, January 7	First Day of Classes
Wednesday, January 7— Thursday, January 15	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Thursday, January 15	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 5:30pm
Friday, January 16	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Monday, January 19	Holiday: MLK Birthday
Tuesday, January 20	Last Day for 75% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, January 23	Last Day to Apply for May Graduation 2015
Monday, February 2	Last Day to Drop Course or Withdraw Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Friday, February 6	Last Day for 25% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Monday, March 9 – Sunday, March 15	Spring Break
Friday, March 13	Last Day to Drop Courses or Withdraw Without Showing "F" on Transcript
Wednesday, April 22	Last Day of Classes (Monday Class Schedule)
Thursday & Friday, April 23 & 24	Reading Days
Monday, April 27	Exams Begin
Friday, May 8	Exams End
Saturday, May 9	Commencement (at 5 pm)

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2015 Summer Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Monday, April 6 – Friday, April 10	Registration

Monday, April 6: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, April 7: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, April 9: 15-42 Attempted Hrs. (8am)
Friday, April 10: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

"Attempted" hours do not include the hours which are currently in-progress, i.e. the hours in which you are enrolled at the time of registration. To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Friday, May 15	Law School Tuition & Fee Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Sunday, May 17	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops
Monday, May 18	First Day of Classes
Saturday, May 16 — Thursday, May 21	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Thursday, May 21	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 4:30pm
Friday, May 22	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Sunday, May 24	Last Day for 75% Refund on Drops
Monday, May 25	Holiday – Memorial Day
Sunday, May 31	Last Day for 25% Refund on Drops Last Day to Drop/Withdraw Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Friday, June 5	Last Day to Apply for August 2015 Graduation
Monday, June 29	Last Day to Withdraw Without Permission
Friday, July 3	Observance of Independence Day Holiday
Monday, July 6	Last Day of Classes
Tuesday, July 7	Reading Days
Wednesday, July 8	Exams Begin
Friday, July 10	Exams End
Saturday, August 8	Commencement (at 10 am)

2016 Spring Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Monday, November 9 – Friday, November 13	Registration

Monday, November 9: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, November 10: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, November 12: 15-42 Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Friday, November 13: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

"Attempted" hours do not include the hours which are currently in-progress, i.e. the hours in which you are enrolled at the time of registration. To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, at the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Tuesday, January 12	Law School Tuition & Fees Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Tuesday, January 12	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops and/or Withdrawals
Wednesday, January 13	First Day of Classes
Wednesday, January 13—Thursday, January 21	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Monday, January 18	Holiday: MLK Birthday
Thursday, January 21	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 5:30pm
Friday, January 22	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Friday, January 22	Last Day to Apply for May 2016 Graduation
Tuesday, January 26	Last Day for 75% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Monday, February 1	Last Day to Drop Course or Withdraw Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Friday, February 11	Last Day for 25% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, March 4	Last Day to Drop Courses or Withdraw Without Permission
Monday, March 7 –Friday, March 11	Spring Break
Wednesday, April 27	Last Day of Classes (Monday Class Schedule)
Thursday & Friday, April 28 & 29	Reading Days
Monday, May 2	Exams Begin
Friday, May 13	Exams End
Saturday, May 14	Commencement

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2016 Summer Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Monday, April 4 – Friday, April 8	Registration

Monday, April 4: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, April 5: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, April 7: 15-42 Attempted Hrs.(9am)
Friday, April 8: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, in the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Friday, May 20	Law School Tuition & Fee Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Saturday, May 21 — Thursday, May 26	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Sunday, May 22	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops
Monday, May 23	First Day of Classes
Thursday, May 26	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 4:30pm
Friday, May 27	Courses deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm
Sunday, May 29	Last Day for 75% Refund on Drops
Monday, May 30	Holiday – Memorial Day
Sunday, June 5	Last Day for 25% Refund on Drops Last Day to Drop Without Showing "W" on transcript
Friday, June 3	Last Day to Apply for August 2016 Graduation
Wednesday, June 15	Last Day to Withdraw Without Permission
Monday, July 4	Holiday — Independence Day Holiday
Tuesday, July 12	Last Day of Classes (Monday Class Schedule)
Wednesday, July 13	Reading Day
Thursday, July 14	Exams Begin
Monday, July 18	Exams End
Saturday, August 6	Commencement (10 am)

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2016 Fall Law Registrar Deadline Calendar

Monday, April 4 – Friday, April 8	Registration

Monday, April 4: Veteran registration (8am)
Tuesday, April 5: 43+ Attempted Hrs. (9am)
Thursday, April 7: 15-42 Attempted Hrs.(9am)
Friday, April 8: 0-14 Attempted Hrs. (9am)

To find your official number of attempted hours, look at your Academic Transcript in Banner, in the column entitled "Attempt Hours," under your most recently completed academic term.*

Sunday, August 7 – Friday, August 12	First-Year Orientation
Friday, August 12	Law School Tuition & Fees Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Sunday, August 14	Last Day for 100% Refund on Drops and Withdrawals
Monday, August 15	First Day of Classes
Monday, August 15— Thursday, August 25	Late Registration and Late Add period ($100 Late Registration Fee assessed during Late Registration.)
Thursday, August 25	Late Payment Fee Assessed after 5:30pm
Friday, August 26	Late Registration Tuition and Fee Payment Deadline (Courses Deleted for Non-Payment after 4:30pm)
Sunday, August 28	Last Day for 75% Refund, Drops
Sunday, September 4	Last Day to Drop Without Showing "W" on Transcript
Monday, September 5	Labor Day Holiday
Monday, September 12	Last Day for 25% Refund, Drops/Withdrawals
Friday, September 16	Last Day to Apply for December Graduation 2016
Friday, September 30	Last Day to Withdraw Without Permission
Monday, November 21	Last Day of Classes
Tuesday & Wednesday, November 22 - 23	Reading Days
Thursday & Friday, November 24-25	Thanksgiving Holiday
Monday, November 28	Exams Begin
Friday, December 9	Exams End
Sunday, December 11	Commencement (at 10:00am)

Off-Campus Request for Official Transcript

Office of the Registrar - Transcripts, 003 Wilder Tower, University of Memphis, TN 38152-3520 Fax: (901) 678-3249

 Allow up to 5 business days for processing any transcript request. ***

Use this form only when FAXing or mailing your transcript request. If you intend to submit your request in person at the Registrar's Office, complete the form that is available there.

Name: Last:______________________ First:______________________ Middle:____________

Contact Info: Street Address: ____

City: ____________________ State: ____________________ Zip: ____________

E-mail: ____ Ph: (___) _____-________

U-Number: _________________________ OR Last 4 Digits of SSN: ______________

Birth Date: MM:____DD:____YY:____

Former Names: ____

Years Attended University of Memphis (UM): First Yr:________ Last Yr:________

Check if Appropriate:

Mail transcript now.

I will pick up at your office.

Hold transcript for the current term's grades. (Info format, ex: Full/Spring/20YY.)

Part of Term: ______________ / Term: ______________ / Year:______________

Hold transcript for degree. (Info format, ex: BA/Spring/20YY.)

Degree: ______________ / Term: ______________ / Year:______________

Hold transcript for pending grade change. (Info format, ex: ENGL4501/Spring/20YY.)

CourseID: ______________ / Term: ______________ / Year:______________

I attended Law School at UM.

I have taken Continuing Education (CEU) courses and want them included.

I have attached Enclosures that should accompany the transcript.

Release Academic Record & Other Pertinent Information to (Name/Address):	[#Copies]:
______________________________ ______________________________ ______________________________ ______________________________	[____]
______________________________ ______________________________ ______________________________ ______________________________ (Attach additional addresses if necessary.)	[____]

Signature:____ Date: ______________

A Tennessee Board of Regents Institution
An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
CECIL C. HUMPHREYS
SCHOOL OF LAW

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

(Updated through December 14, 2016)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS
(As Updated on December 14, 2016)

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY 1

1.1 J.D. Degree 1

1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program 1

1.3 Programs 1

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR 1

3. ENROLLMENT 1

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT 2

4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees 2

4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal 3

a. Eligibility 3

b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment 3

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS 3

5.1 Full-Time Students 3

5.2 Part-Time Students 3

5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students 3

5.4 Enrollment 4

6. DROP/ADD COURSES 4

6.1 Adding Courses 4

6.2 Dropping Courses 4

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES 4

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM 5

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program 5

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program 5

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing 5

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS 5

9.1 Class Attendance 5

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students 5

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS 5

10.1 Schedule of Examinations 5

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday 6

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances 6

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters 6

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers 6

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations; Unreasonable Hardship 7

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations 7

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination 7

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination 7

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions 7

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades 8

10.12 Computation of Grades 8

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations are Pending 8

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES 8

11.1 Incompletes 8

11.2 Grade Changes 8

12. GRADING SYSTEM 9

12.1 Grades 9

12.2 Grading System and Factors to be Considered 10

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average 10

12.4 Rounding 10

12.5 Grading Factors 10

13. CLASS RANKING 10

13.1 Full-Time Students 10

13.2 Part-Time Students 11

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking 11

13.4 Honors 11

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS 12

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students 12

a. Good Standing 12

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 12

c. Exclusion after First Semester 13

d. Computation of Grade Point Average 13

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students 13

a. Good Standing 13

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 13

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion 13

15. STARTOVER 14

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION 15

16.1 Course Requirements 15

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students 15

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students 17

c. Other Required Courses 19

d. Elective Courses and Limitations on Certain Courses for Credit Toward Graduation 20

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement 20

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement 20

16.4 Six-Year Requirement 20

16.5 Work at Other Schools 21

16.6 Grade Requirement 21

16.7 Completion of Work 21

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement 21

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT 21

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS 22

18.1 Auditing Courses 22

18.2 Transient Students 22

18.3 Foreign Lawyers 22

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS 22

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION 22

20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records 22

20.2 Grade Information 22

20.3 Non-Posting of Grades upon Request 23

21. HONOR CODE 23

21.1 Definitions 23

21.2 Scope 24

21.3 Oath 25

21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct 25

21.5 Sanctions 27

21.6 Procedures 29

21.7 Elections 33

21.8 Reporting and Record Keeping 35

21.9 Confidentiality 35

21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee 36

21.11 Amendments 36

22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE 36

22.1 Grades 36

23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE 39

23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint 39

23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint 39

23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution ... 40

23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints ... 40

24. NOTIFICATIONS ... 40

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS ... 40

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES ... 41

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS ... 41

APPENDIX I ... 41

STANDARDS FOR ATTAINMENT OF THE J.D. DEGREE ... 41

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

The provisions set forth herein and in the Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree attached hereto as Appendix I govern the Academic Affairs of all students enrolled at the School of Law. All references to these Academic Regulations shall be deemed to include Appendix I. It is the responsibility of each student to be familiar with the terms contained herein and each student shall be deemed to be so. For the purposes of these Academic Regulations, any place where approval of the Dean is required, it shall be taken to mean the Dean or the Dean's designate such as the Associate Dean or an Assistant Dean.

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY

1.1 J.D. Degree

Graduates of The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law receive the Juris Doctor Degree.

1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program

A J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program is available in cooperation with the School of Business. Further information is available in the office of the Dean.

1.3 Programs

The law school offers a full-time day program and a part-time day program on the semester system. Students in the full-time program normally graduate in three years (six semesters). Summer classes and intersession classes may be available and some students may graduate after five semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to six semesters) as full-time students. Intersession classes may be offered between regularly scheduled classes (i.e., Winter intersession), or during regularly scheduled academic breaks in semesters (i.e., Spring intersession). Students in the part-time program normally graduate in nine semesters or in eight semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to nine semesters). (See Section 5 for course maximums and minimums during each semester.)

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR

Some states require that, for a candidate to take the bar examination in that state, the candidate shall have registered with a supervisory authority upon or shortly after enrolling in law school. Each student should ascertain the rules of the state in which he/she expects to take the bar examination in this respect. Tennessee does not have this requirement.

3. ENROLLMENT

Enrollment is subject to the general rules of the University pertaining to registration and is possible only during the scheduled registration periods of the university and School of Law as shown on the Law School and university calendars.

Newly admitted students and startovers may only enter in the fall term. Upper division law students, transfer students, and transient students may enter in any term and should preregister each semester for the succeeding term. Specific instructions on preregistering and course schedules are ordinarily provided at least one month before the preceding examination period.

The enrollment procedure begins in the administration offices of the School of Law. Enrollment in any course or section must be approved by the Dean or the Law School Registrar. Every enrollment after the first is conditional upon the student's being eligible to re-enroll under the Academic Eligibility Requirements. (See Section 14.) Students on probation from the previous semester and those who have been on probation will be conditionally enrolled until such time as all grades are received from the previous semester. If computation of a student's grades results in the student being academically excluded, the student will receive a refund of fees. (See Section 4.1.)

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT

4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees

A student may withdraw from the Law School by notifying the office of the Dean in writing, provided, however, that withdrawal is not permitted within one week of the beginning of the final examination period of a semester, summer, or intersession without permission of the Dean.

Withdrawals are recorded on the student's record at any time after a student has registered and paid fees.

The following refund percentages of enrollment fees (Maintenance, Out-Of-State Tuition and Student Activity Fees) apply to students who withdraw from the law school or who drop to an hourly load below full time:

A full (100%) refund of fees will be made only under the following conditions:

a. Cancellation of a class by the University.

b. Drop or withdrawal prior to official registration. (Example: Pre-registration of a first year student.)

c. Death of a student certified by the Vice President for Student Educational Services or designated university official.

d. Withdrawal of the student by the Dean's Office for reason of academic exclusion after the student has registered and paid fees.

A 75% refund will be provided during the first day of classes and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 90% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

A 25% refund will be provided beginning at the expiration of the 75% refund period and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 75% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

At the conclusion of the 25% refund period, there will be no refund of these fees.

4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal

a. Eligibility

To be eligible to re-enroll as a matter of right after withdrawal, the student who has withdrawn must have completed one academic year, have met the retention standards (See Sec. 14.1.b.), and be able to comply with the six year requirement. (See Section 16.4.) Students who cannot re-enroll as a matter of right must secure permission from the Dean. Denial of permission to re-enroll shall not prevent a student from competing for a position in the first year class. Re-enrollment procedures require filing a readmission application.

b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment

Students re-enrolling after withdrawing in good standing must comply with graduation requirements of the class with whom they are scheduled to graduate. These graduation requirements may differ from those in effect at the time of the student's original enrollment.

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS

5.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students must enroll in at least 12 credit hours toward the J.D. or J.D./M.B.A. degree in each semester. No student may be enrolled at any time in coursework that, if successfully completed, would exceed 18 credit hours. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student with less than a 2.5 cumulative grade point average may enroll in more than 16 credit hours in a semester. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student enrolled in an extern program may be enrolled in more than 16 credit hours, including the externship.

5.2 Part-Time Students

Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, part-time students must enroll in at least 8 credit hours, but not more than 11 credit hours, in each semester.

5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students

Without regard to whether students are classified as full-time or part-time during the regular academic year, such students may enroll in summer session in any number of credit hours not exceeding nine (9). Students enrolling in six (6) or more credit hours will be classified as full-time students for the summer session and will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Students enrolling in five (5) or fewer credit hours will be classified as part-time students for the summer session. Students enrolling in intersession classes will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Enrollment in summer session will not affect the full-time or part-time status of a student. (See Sections 8, 9, and 16.3 for related matters).

5.4 Enrollment

At the time of initial enrollment, students must enroll either as full-time or part-time students. From that time on, they will be governed by regulations applying to their initial enrollment classification unless they change status as provided in these regulations. (See Section 8.)

6. DROP/ADD COURSES

6.1 Adding Courses

With the exception of Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes, courses may be added to a student's schedule during the first ten (10) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first four (4) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer sessions. Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes may be added to a student's schedule during the first five (5) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first two (2) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer session. Classes missed before being added will be counted as absences for the attendance policy of the faculty teaching the course.

6.2 Dropping Courses

Elective courses may be dropped on or before the "drop date" listed in the calendar for each semester without permission of the Dean. Elective courses may be dropped after the drop date only with permission of the Dean. A full-time student may not drop below twelve (12) hours, and a part-time student (in the extended program) may not drop below eight (8) hours, without permission of the Dean. Drops occurring after the "Add Period" are recorded as "withdrawals". Required courses may not be dropped without permission of the Dean. (See Sections 5.1, 5.2 and 16.)

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES

A course may not be repeated unless it is failed -- i.e., no credit earned. Required courses must be completed and passed to meet graduation requirements. Required courses that are failed must be retaken in the next regular semester in which the course is offered unless taken in summer session prior to such next regular semester. When a course is repeated after having previously been failed, the grade for the course is averaged in the normal manner including the previous failure -- i.e., the previous grade stands and both grades become a part of the student's grade record and for computation of the student's grade point average. No grade is removed. (See Section 12.)

Any student who receives a D in a required first-year course the first time he or she takes the course must retake that course prior to graduation. Credit for that course will count towards the 90 credit-hour graduation requirement only the first time, but both grades received will become part of the student's grade record and count for computation of the student's grade point average.

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program

Part-time students must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the full-time program.

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program

Full-time students in good standing must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the part-time program.

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing

Students not in good standing will not be permitted to change programs except for good cause as determined by the Dean. (See Sec. 14.)

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS

9.1 Class Attendance

Students are expected to give their scholastic obligation first priority. Prompt and regular class attendance is considered necessary for satisfactory work. It is expected that a student will regard an engagement to attend classes as he/she would any other engagement or conference with his/her instructor. The necessity of absences does not in any sense relieve the student from responsibility for the work of his/her course during his/her absence. The instructor in charge of a course determines in all instances the extent to which absences and tardiness affect the student's grade and credit. The attendance policy of the instructor shall be announced to the class and distributed to the class in writing at the time of its implementation. Generally, attendance policies will be announced at the first class meeting of the semester. A student may receive a failing grade for excessive absences and may be dropped from the course with a failing grade if excessive absences occur. Each student shall be responsible for keeping records of his/her attendance.

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students

The full-time program of the School of Law is intended to promote full-time study of law. Full-time students may not engage in employment in excess of twenty (20) hours per week. (See Section 5.3.) It is the policy of the School of Law to discourage any employment of first-year full-time students.

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS

10.1 Schedule of Examinations

a. The schedule for examinations is made part of the registration materials. The schedule of examinations may be amended during a regular semester, summer session or intersession. Such amended schedules will be posted, and all students prior to the examination period are responsible for checking the Law School Bulletin Board for an amended schedule.

b. Unless students obtain the written permission of the Dean at the time of registration, students may not register in courses which have conflicting examination schedules -- i.e. where examinations are scheduled to be administered at the same time or on the same day. If permission is granted, one of the conflicting examinations will be scheduled on the next day in the examination period on which the student does not have an examination.

c. Students are required to take examinations at the scheduled times. Faculty members are not authorized to grant exceptions, but the Dean may grant exceptions as set forth in Sections 10.2 and 10.3.

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday

If a scheduled examination conflicts with the observance of a religious holiday or a day on which the student may not be present because of religious practices, the student will be entitled to a deferral of the examination until the earliest time at which the student may take the examination and proctoring can be arranged. The student should notify the Dean's office of the conflict and make arrangements for the deferral no later than two weeks prior to the start of the examination period.

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances

Students with disabilities may be granted permission to take examinations under special circumstance. Such students must be registered with the University Office of Student Disabilities. The special circumstances (conditions) will be established on an individual basis by the Dean considering the recommendations of the University Office of Student Disabilities.

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters

Unless a student has an accommodation from Student Disability Services or demonstrates a case of severe hardship, a student is required to use a laptop or similar device and the approved exam-writing software to write essay or short-answer examinations.

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers

All examinations are to be graded in a manner so as to protect the anonymity of students taking the examinations. To facilitate the anonymous grading system, all students are required to secure from the Law School Registrar an examination number for each semester, summer session and intersession. A student who does not use the assigned examination number will not have a grade reported to the student or to the University until such number is secured.

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations; Unreasonable Hardship

Deferral of, or a delay in taking, an examination may be permitted only by the Dean and then only when it would result, or would have resulted, in an unreasonable hardship on the student to attend the examination. Application for delay must be made to the Dean prior to the examination, if feasible. If a delay is permitted, the student shall take the examination at such time as the instructor in conjunction with Dean's office shall require. Unreasonable hardship includes illness and other matters beyond the control of the student. If for reasons beyond the student's control, deferral or delay cannot be requested in advance of the scheduled examination, such request must be made as soon as possible after the examination. (WARNING: Failure to take a scheduled examination results in a grade F or U unless the Dean permits the student to withdraw from the course.)

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations

A student who arrives at an examination after the examination has started but before it is completed may sit for the examination. The Dean, in consultation with the faculty member, if available, may permit a student whose late arrival is attributable to factors that are beyond the student's reasonable control to take the entire scheduled time for the examination, either beginning immediately or as rescheduled by the Dean. Otherwise, a student shall be permitted to take the examination, but in the Professor's discretion, may be required to complete the examination at the regularly scheduled time.

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination

A student, by taking an examination, is conclusively deemed to represent that no unreasonable hardship existed and the student was able to take the examination. The grade earned will be recorded and will not be expunged for any reason. A student may not withdraw from a course after taking the examination.

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination

If during an examination, an illness or emergency arises which would result in an unreasonable hardship on such student or the student being unable to complete the examination, the student, if capable of so doing, must notify the faculty member or person proctoring the examination immediately upon such occurrence. After such notification and/or occurrence, the Dean's office shall be notified, and, thereafter, the Dean's office will, in conjunction with the faculty member involved, schedule the examination as circumstances permit.

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other Than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions

The research paper in final form, whether written in connection with a seminar or as independent research, must be submitted to the faculty research advisor no later than the last day of the examination period of the semester or summer session in which the student is registered for the seminar or independent research, and may be required earlier by the faculty research advisor. A schedule for the submission of outlines, drafts, lists, and paper will be prepared in writing by the faculty research advisor and given to the student. Failure to comply with the schedule may result in failure in the course for which the paper is required to be written. The faculty research advisor may permit additional time, in which case the conditions and limitations of any such extension must be met; provided, however, no extension of time shall be beyond the last day of the examination period in which the student is registered unless requested in writing and approved by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and filed with the Law School Registrar prior to the last day of the examination period. The Law School Registrar will provide a form by which this may be done. It is the responsibility of the student to procure the execution of the form by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and to file it with the Law School Registrar.

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades

If a deferral or delay of the due date on an examination or research paper extends beyond the end of the semester, a grade of Incomplete will be given in the course or seminar, and a notation will be made in the student's records of the time and method by which completion is required. Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of a permitted deferral or delay will result in a grade of F or U in the course. (See Sections 10.3 & 11.)

10.12 Computation of Grades

For all purposes for which grade point averages are computed (i.e. - standing, retention, rank, etc.), an Incomplete will not be counted in the semester in which it is received. When the grade is reported, it will be included for computation of grade point average at the end of the semester in which it is reported. (See Section 12.3.)

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations Are Pending

The permission of the Dean is required to permit a student to enroll in a semester, summer session, or intersession when scheduled examinations for any prior semester, summer session, or intersession have not been completed including deferred or delayed examinations. A student seeking to enroll under such circumstances must submit a written request to the Dean.

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES

11.1 Incompletes

An Incomplete may be recorded by faculty members when there is a legitimate reason for a student not completing course work during the regular period (i.e., a semester or summer session). Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of the Instructor or approval by the Dean shall result in a grade of F in the course.

11.2 Grade Changes

Upon reporting grades to the Law School Registrar, a professor is required to sign the grade sheet as certification that the grades are correct. After submission of grades to the Law School Registrar, grades may be changed by a professor only for computational or objective errors of the professor. Grade changes for any other reason may be made only with approval of the Academic Affairs Committee. Any such grade change must be made by the end of the semester, excluding summer session, or intersession, after the semester in which the grade was received.

12. GRADING SYSTEM

12.1 Grades

a. Grades are represented by the following letter grades: A+, A, A-, B+, B, B-, C+, C, C-, D+, D, and F, and in certain courses the letters E Excellent), S (Satisfactory), and U (Unsatisfactory) (See Section l2.2) A grade of D or better is passing, and less than a D is failing. While a grade of D, D+ or C- is passing and credit is earned, such grade indicates less than satisfactory performance. (See Section 12.5 for grading factors in seminar courses.)

For purposes of determining grade point averages, letter grades have the following number equivalents:

A+	4.0	C+	2.33
A	4.0	C	2.0
A-	3.67	C-	1.67
B+	3.33	D+	1.33
B	3.0	D	1.0
B-	2.67	F	0

Grades of E, S, and U will not be assigned number equivalents and will not be used in determining grade point averages.

b. For first-year courses, the mean cumulative grade point average for each section shall fall on or between 2.70 – 2.80. In extraordinary circumstances, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may approve an exception to this rule.

12.2 Grading Systems and Factors to be Considered

a. Subject to exceptions set forth in the following subsections, all courses will be graded on a letter grade basis as set forth in Subsection 12.1 supra. (See Subsection 12.5. regarding factors to be considered.)

b. Courses identified as simulation courses shall be graded on a letter grade basis.

c. All courses identified as clinic courses will be graded on a letter basis and will not include as a component the grade on a final examination.

d. Externships, Law Review and Moot Court shall be graded according to standards of Excellent (E), Satisfactory (S) and Unsatisfactory (U). Excellent shall represent achievement substantially above the minimum requirement for a grade of Satisfactory.

e. The use of E, S, and U may be appropriate for courses in which, as taught and tested, the achievement of students cannot be closely compared. The use of these grades shall only be by faculty approval following an initial study and recommendation by the Curriculum Committee. Such grading policy will be noted on the course schedule for each semester, summer session, or intersession to which it applies.

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average

A student's cumulative grade point average is computed by first converting letter grades to number equivalents pursuant to Section 12.l. The number equivalents are then multiplied by the number of hours of credit assigned to each course. The products are added, and the sum divided by the total number of hours of courses whose products are included in the sum. Courses graded E, S and U are excluded from the grade point computation.

12.4 Rounding

Averages are computed and recorded to two decimal places, e.g., 2.65, with no rounding.

12.5 Grading Factors

a. A written examination is usually given at the end of each course, and the grade for the course will be the grade made on the examination. An instructor, at his/her discretion and to the extent he/she desires, may, however, consider class attendance, participation in classroom instruction, other examinations and the performance of required work in determining the grade. These additional factors will be announced at the beginning of the course, or at such time as to provide adequate notice to the students.

b. In a seminar course that fulfills the Law School’s writing requirement, between 65% and 80% of the grade must be based on the research paper. The balance of the course grade must be based on participation that demonstrates the students’ knowledge, comprehension, and analysis of assigned readings or research. A student may not satisfy the research requirement unless a grade of C or better is received, both in the seminar and on the research paper. A student may receive a grade of C or better in a seminar by receiving points based on additional grading factors, even though the research paper is not satisfactory to satisfy the Law School's research requirement for graduation. (See Section 16.1c.)

13. CLASS RANKING

13.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students will be ranked at the following intervals:

1st year: fall and spring semesters

2nd year: fall and spring semesters

3rd year: fall and spring semesters

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.2 Part-Time Students

Part-time students will be ranked at the following intervals with the designated class:

1st year fall and spring semester with admission class

2nd year spring semester with admission class

3rd year fall and spring semester with the second year full-time students after the fall and spring of their third year

4th year fall semester and spring semester with the third year full-time students

5th year (if applicable) fall semester and spring semester with third year full-time students

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking

Only the work completed at the University of Memphis will be considered in computing class rank. (See Section 16.)

13.4 Honors

Students with high cumulative grade point averages are awarded the J.D. degree with honors. The categories are:

Summa Cum Laude – Top 1% of the graduating class

Magna Cum Laude – Top 10% of the graduating class

Cum Laude – Top 25% of the graduating class

Diplomas awarded to such students will reflect the distinction.

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

A student is in good standing only if the student's cumulative grade point average, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 15 credit hours.

2. The student has received grades in 15 to 23 credit hours and has a cumulative grade point average of 1.5 or better.

3. The student has received grades in 24 to 38 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.80 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

4. The student has received grades in 39 to 53 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.90 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

5. The student has had a cumulative grade point average of 2.00 at the end of every previous semester. Such a student will receive one semester of probation. Following the semester of probation, the student will be subject to the requirements of Section 14.1.

A student who is not in good standing but entitled to retention under provisions 1-5 above must complete the student's next semester after no more than two semesters of non-enrollment. Non-enrollment includes withdrawal during a semester. (See Sec. 4.2.a.)

c. Exclusion After First Semester

In addition to the provisions of Rule 14.1a and Rule 14.1b, the Law School will exclude any first year full-time student whose cumulative GPA after one semester is below 1.5 without the benefit of rounding.

d. Computation of Grade Point Average

For the purposes of determining good standing or retention status, the student's grade point average will be determined at the end of each fall semester and at the end of each spring semester. Summer term grades will be computed as if taken during the fall semester. Intersession grades will be computed as if taken during the subsequent full semester. Enrollment in a succeeding academic term prior to computation of the student's grade point average will be at the student's risk. (See Section 3).

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

Any transfer student whose cumulative grade point average for work taken at The University of Memphis, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better is in good standing.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A transfer student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 17 credit hours at this law school.

2. The student transferred to this law school with fewer than 17 transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has a cumulative grade point average of 1.9 for work at this law school, or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.3 in the most recent semester.

3. The student transferred to this law school with 17 or more transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has earned a semester grade point average of 2.5 in the most recent semester.

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion

A student who is academically excluded may:

a. Challenge a grade pursuant to the Grade Appeals procedures outlined in Section 22. In the event that the appeal results in a grade change that raises the student's grade point average over the threshold for exclusion, the student will be readmitted.

b. File a petition with the Academic Affairs Committee seeking a change in the Academic Regulations. If the Committee recommends, and the faculty approves, a change in the Regulations that would result in the student being able to remain in school, the student will be readmitted. There is no appeal from the decision of the Academic Affairs Committee or the faculty.

Subject to the above, academic exclusion is final and there is no appeal. A student who is academically excluded may seek startover admission pursuant to the provisions of Section 15.

15. STARTOVER

a. An applicant for admission to the first year entering class who was academically excluded from any law school may be admitted to the class for which he or she has applied, provided:

1. The applicant was academically excluded from this law school or is a Tennessee resident for fee and tuition purposes at the time of application, residency determination, and enrollment.

2. The applicant has been out of law school for a period of at least two (2) regular academic semesters (excluding the Summer Session) on the date of enrollment; or, if the applicant has completed three (3) semesters of law school, he or she is required to have been out of law school for only one regular academic semester (excluding the Summer session) on the date of enrollment.

3. The applicant has satisfied, on the dates of admission and enrollment, all absolute admission requirements applicable to all other applicants who are admitted and enrolled in the entering class for which application is made, except that the LSAT exam must have been taken within five years prior to the date of admission unless waived by the Admissions Committee;

4. The applicant, before admission, has been approved for admission by a majority of this law school's Admission Committee and the Dean after consideration of the applicant's situation in light of ABA Standard 505;

5. The applicant has not enrolled as a startover admit at any law school after previously being previously being academically excluded from any law school; and

6. The startover application is complete by April 1st.

b. Each applicant described above, who has been admitted and enrolled will not be counted in the total number of enrollments needed to fill the first year entering class. In no event will more than five (5) such applicants be admitted and enrolled in any one entering class. In the event that more than five (5) such applicants are approved as eligible for admission, the Admissions Committee together with the Dean will select the five (5) to be admitted. Selections will be based upon the applicant's admission index and other factors reflecting the likelihood for success at this law school.

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

16.1 Course Requirements

A student is required to complete course work for a total of at least 90 credit hours for all courses.

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students

A student enrolled in the full-time program is required to complete the following courses in the sequence indicated, unless an exception is granted by the Dean or the Dean's designee.

16.1.a.i. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year		Second Year	Second or Third Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	221 Evidence	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	A student is required to complete Evidence by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes Evidence in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*	Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II		323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II		334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
115 Property I	125 Property II		214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
126 Criminal Law	121 Contracts		359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
	212 Constitutional Law		222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law
			Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.ii A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year	Second or Third Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	212 Constitutional Law	A. 224 Professional Responsibility
111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II	221 Evidence	+
112 Torts I	122 Torts II		B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and

113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I
115 Property I

123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
125 Property II
126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.iii. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year

Fall Term
111 Contracts I
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I
115 Property I

Spring Term
121 Contracts II
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
125 Property II
126 Criminal Law

Second Year

212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility
+
B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
359 Sales	223 Criminal Procedure
222 Secured Transactions	213 Decedents' Estates
	331 Family Law
	324 Conflict of Laws
	368 Remedies

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2017.

16.1.a.iii. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2017

First Year

Fall Term
111 Contracts I
112 Torts I
113 Legal Methods I
114 Civil Procedure I
115 Property I

Spring Term
121 Contracts II
122 Torts II
123 Legal Methods II
124 Civil Procedure II
125 Property II
126 Criminal Law

Second Year

212 Constitutional Law
221 Evidence

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
330 Fair Employment Practice	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	213 Decedents' Estates
348 Legislation	331 Family Law
359 Sales	324 Conflict of Laws
222 Secured Transactions	368 Remedies

C. 223 Criminal Procedure I

D. 721 Bar Exam Preparation Course

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students

A student enrolled in the part-time program is required to complete the following courses in the indicated sequence unless an exception is granted by the Dean of the Dean's designee.

16.1.b.i. A PART-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	115 Property I	125 Property II	A.224 Professional Responsibility +
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	126 Criminal Law	212 Constitutional Law	B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	221 Evidence/ Elective	221 Evidence/ Elective
	121 Contracts

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.ii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II	A. 224 Professional Responsibility +
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	115 Property I	125 Property II	B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence	212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence
	126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates

	requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.	222 Secured Transactions 331 Family Law Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2016 or August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.iii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	115 Property I	121 Contracts II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	111 Contracts I	125 Property II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence
	126 Criminal Law
		A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*		Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
				334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
				214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
				359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
				222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law
					324 Conflict of Laws
					368 Remedies

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective after August 1, 2017.

16.1.b.iii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2017

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
112 Torts I 113 Legal Methods I 114 Civil Procedure I	122 Torts II 123 Legal Methods II 124 Civil Procedure II 126 Criminal Law	115 Property I 111 Contracts I 212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence	121 Contracts II 125 Property II 212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
330 Fair Employment Practice	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	213 Decedents' Estates
348 Legislation	331 Family Law
359 Sales	324 Conflict of Laws
222 Secured Transactions	368 Remedies

C. 223 Criminal Procedure I

D. 721 Bar Preparation Course

c. Other Required Courses for Full-Time and Part-Time Students

In addition to the above listed courses, a student is required to satisfy both the advanced writing and the experiential requirements.

1. Advanced Writing
A student is required successfully to complete a two or three hour advanced writing course. The advanced writing requirement is met by earning a C or better in an advanced writing course. (See Section 12.5.) See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the advanced writing requirement. (See Section 12.5.) A student is required to complete the first-year full-time curriculum prior to satisfying the advanced writing requirement by enrollment in an advanced writing course, unless a waiver is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee. An advanced writing course satisfying the advanced writing requirement must be taught by a full-time Law School faculty member. Each such course is offered as a rigorous writing experience under faculty supervision and shall include a substantial research paper, appellate brief, Law Review Note, or other writing of similar length and complexity, individualized assessment by the faculty member of the student's written product, and a faculty member's review and edit of one or more drafts of the student's work.

2. Experiential Learning
A student is required to satisfactorily complete one or more experiential course(s) totaling at least six (6) credit hours, including a minimum of one clinic course or externship. The courses that qualify as experiential courses are designated in the online Course Catalog. For purposes of the Experiential Learning Requirement, satisfactory completion means earning a grade of C or better in the course for courses graded on a letter grade basis, and earning a grade of Satisfactory or better in the course for courses graded on an Excellent/Satisfactory/Unsatisfactory basis. A student is required to complete 28 credit hours before taking an externship, which is one type of course that qualifies as an experiential course for the Experiential Learning Requirement. See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the experiential requirement.

d. Limitations on Courses for Credit toward Graduation

1. Not more than a total of twelve (12) credit hours may be utilized toward satisfying graduation requirements by satisfactorily completing the following courses:

(a) Any externship,
(b) Law Review and Law Review Board,
(c) Moot Court (including Moot Court Board, Moot Court Executive Board, and inter-school or intra-school competition credit),
(d) Independent Research, and
(e) Advanced Clinic.

2. To satisfy graduation requirements, a student is permitted a total of three (3) externships, two (2) clinic courses, or a combination of (1) clinic and (2) two externship courses. Absent permission from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, a student may not repeat a clinic or externship, may not enroll in both a clinic and externship in the same semester or summer session, and may not enroll in more than one clinic or more than one externship in any semester or summer session. For enrollment purposes in these limited enrollment courses, a student who has taken one clinic will not receive priority for a second clinic, and a student who has taken one externship will not receive priority for a second externship.

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement

For good cause shown and to avoid hardship, waiver of completion of any required course may be permitted only with the approval of the Academic Affairs Committee and on conditions set by the Committee.

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement

A student may complete the law school's degree requirements no earlier than 24 months after a student has commenced law study at the law school or a law school from which the school has accepted transfer credit.

16.4 Six-Year Requirement

A student must complete all of such student's graduation requirements within six (6) calendar years from the date of the student's initial enrollment in law school or forfeit all hours earned during this period. The student will, however, be allowed to reapply for admission as an entering student and compete with other applicants for a position in the entering class, with no credit allowed for prior work. The Academic Affairs Committee may make an exception to the foregoing rule if the student submits a proposed course of study for approval, but in no event may a student extend study so that the J.D. degree is not completed within 84 months of the time the student commenced law study.

16.5 Work at Other Schools

Any work to be taken at another law school on a transient basis must be approved by the Dean prior to the student's attendance at such other law school. Once approved, a student may not utilize more than 30 semester hours toward the student's degree at this law school, unless an exception is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee.

16.6 Grade Requirement

A student must have a grade point average of 2.00 or better in all work undertaken at the University of Memphis to graduate.

16.7 Completion of Work

All required courses must be completed. Completion of a course consists of sufficient attendance in class, performance of all required work, the taking of all examinations, making a passing grade (D or above or, in the case of non-graded course, a grade of E or S), with the exception of the research requirement which requires a grade of C or above. (See Section 12.5.) Failure to complete work in any course as it is required, or to take an examination when required, will result in a grade of F in the course. Delay in completing the work in a course may be permitted, as outlined under Delay in Completing Required Work. (See Section 10.)

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement

A student must complete forty hours of pro bono service to graduate. Please see the Pro Bono Program Handbook for more information.

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.

To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS

18.1 Auditing Courses

Subject to limited exceptions, all students enrolled in any course must be a J.D. degree candidate at this law school or have been admitted to the School of Law as a transient student. Exceptions are made for practicing attorneys, members of the faculty of the University, graduates of the University, students pursuing a graduate degree program of the University, and students pursuing graduate degree programs at other accredited universities or colleges. These individuals should contact the office of the Dean for additional information.

18.2 Transient Students

A transient student is a student currently in good standing at another ABA accredited law school and enrolled in this law school for the purpose of transferring the credits earned to the law school in which the student is enrolled as a degree candidate.

18.3 Foreign Lawyers

At the discretion of the Dean or the Dean's designee, a person who has graduated from a foreign law school (or equivalent institution) and has demonstrated proficiency in the English language, which may include objective assessment through a standardized test, may enroll in up to twenty-four(24) credits in courses offered in the first year of law school.

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS

Requirements for student research papers other than those required in seminars are available from the Law School Registrar. Students must secure permission from the supervising faculty member prior to enrolling in Research I. No more than one hour credit may be obtained in this way. (See Section 16.I.d.)

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION

20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records

In compliance with provisions of the "Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974," the School of Law abides by the rules and regulations of the University pertaining to the confidentiality of student records, the release of that information, and the rights of students and others to have access to such records as set forth in the University Student Handbook, University

Bulletins and Schedules of Classes. Copies of these publications are available at the office of the Dean.

20.2 Grade Information

Individual grades will not be divulged over the telephone. Grades for seminar papers are accepted and may be furnished to students individually by the faculty member or the office of the Dean. All grades will be posted by the office of the Dean when received by that office from the instructor, but no earlier than three (3) weeks after the end of the examination period. Thereafter, grades will be posted as received. (See 20.3 for students' rights to not to have their grades posted.) Except for circumstances beyond the control of a faculty member, all grades should be reported by the faculty within three (3) weeks of the end of any examination period. Individual grade reports will be mailed by the University Registrar to each student.

20.3 Non-Posting of Grades Upon Request

Pursuant to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, students may request that their grades not be posted in any manner. Students so requesting will receive their grades individually from the office of the Dean.

21. HONOR CODE

21.1 Definitions

a. "Accused" refers to a student accused of a violation of the Honor Code.

b. "Appellate Board" refers to the three-person appellate board consisting of the Dean, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, and one member of the full-time faculty. The Dean shall select the faculty member on the Appellate Board.

c. "Associate Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the Chief Justice if the Chief Justice is unable to preside over any meeting, hearing, or function involving the Honor Council.

d. "Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the head and the voice of the Honor Council and is vested with the authority to run the Council and hearing processes.

e. "Class" and "Course" refer to any academic enterprise that awards credit toward a degree or any law school-sanctioned, co-curricular activity including but not limited to Moot Court and Law Review.

f. For the purpose of determining deadlines, "day" means any regular business day of the School of Law, and does not include weekends, holidays observed by the School of Law, or any day on which the School of Law is not open to conduct regular business.

g. “Dean” refers to the Dean of the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis, or that person’s designee.

h. “Elections” are the mechanism by which the student body will elect student justices.

i. “Honor Council” refers to the group of Student Justices that has plenary authority to review alleged violations under the Honor Code and to impose those sanctions it deems appropriate. The Honor Council consists of eleven members: five from the 2L class, and six from the 3L class.

j. “Investigators” refer to the two Honor Council members, appointed by the Chief Justice on a case-by-case basis, who will serve as fact gatherers for the preliminary hearings, and who will also serve as presenters of information in all preliminary and main hearings. The Investigators will not have a vote on matters to which they are appointed.

k. “Notice” means written notice and includes e-mail messages.

l. “Secretary” refers to the Student Justice who is responsible for keeping an adequate record of proceedings, as set forth herein.

m. “Student Counsel” refers to a current member of the student body requested by the Accused to be his or her counsel. The Student Counsel may act on behalf of the Accused in an Honor Council hearing. The Student Counsel shall keep confidential any information learned in the course of his or her representation. Current Honor Council members may not serve as Student Counsel.

n. “Student Justice” refers to an individual member of the Honor Council. Any student who has been convicted of a violation of the Honor Code may not serve as a Student Justice.

o. “Writing” includes a letter, memorandum, or e-mail message sent to a student’s School of Law e-mail account.

21.2 Scope

a. This Code applies to all students admitted to the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time a law student applies for admission through graduation and that occurs:

1. at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law;

2. at an off-site event sponsored by the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law; or

3. in connection with a Course.

b. The Code also applies to students enrolled in courses or programs sponsored or co-sponsored by the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time the student is admitted to the course or program and that occurs under the scope of (b)(1)(A-C) of this Code.

c. Investigations may be initiated or continued after a student has graduated, but no later than the time that student is admitted to a state bar. If an Honor Code matter is pending when a student is scheduled to graduate, the student's degree may be withheld at least until the matter is resolved, or for 90 days, whichever is less.

21.3 Oath

A degree-seeking student who registers at the School of Law will take the following oath before beginning classes:

"I [state name], as a student at The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at The University of Memphis, understand that I am joining an academic community and am embarking on a professional career. The law school community and the legal profession share important values that are reflected in the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Academic Honor Code and in its Code of Conduct. I have read this Code, and will conduct my academic, professional, and personal life to honor the values reflected therein."

Each student shall sign a statement attesting that the student has read and understands the provisions of the Honor Code.

21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct

An act of dishonesty is a wrongful or improper act that questions a student's academic honesty or integrity; an act of misconduct is a wrongful, improper or prohibited act. The Honor Council has the authority to investigate either an act of dishonesty or an act of misconduct. Acts of dishonesty and misconduct include but are not limited to the following:

a. Cheating. Using or attempting to use unauthorized materials or sources in connection with any assignment, examination, or other academic exercise, or having someone else do work for the student when forbidden by the professor.

b. Unauthorized assistance or collaboration. Giving or receiving aid on an assignment, examination, or other academic exercise when not permitted by the professor.

c. Plagiarism and inappropriate use of others' work. Using the words, thoughts, or ideas of another without attribution so that they seem as if they are the student's own.

   1. Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to, copying another's work word-for-word, turning in a paper written by another, rewriting another's work with only minor changes, and summarizing another's work or taking another person's ideas without acknowledging the source through proper attribution and citation.

2. An accidental omission of a citation(s) will not be considered an act of academic misconduct, unless other facts determine otherwise.

3. The faculty member responsible for grading the academic work in question has plenary authority either to make a referral of plagiarism to the Honor Council, if that faculty member is unclear if there is a violation, or to reduce the student's grade based on the academic merits of the academic work. The faculty member may not make a determination of a violation, because that is within the sole authority of the Honor Council.

d. Misappropriation of and damage to academic and personal materials. Damaging, misappropriating, or disabling academic resources so that others cannot use them is considered misconduct. This includes but is not limited to removing pages from books, stealing books or articles, hiding or misplacing books or articles intentionally, deleting or damaging computer files intended for others' use, or the taking of any personal property on school grounds.

e. Compromising examination security. Invading the security maintained for preparing or storing examinations, tampering with exam-making or exam-taking software, or discussing any part of a test or examination with a student who has not yet taken that examination but is scheduled to do so.

f. Deception and misrepresentation. Lying about or misrepresenting a student's own work, academic records, credentials, or other academic matters or information. Examples of deception and misrepresentation include but are not limited to: forging signatures, signing another student's name or initials on a roll sheet, forging letters of recommendation, falsifying internship, externship, or clinic documentation, falsifying pro bono records, or falsifying information in an application or on a résumé.

g. Electronic dishonesty. Using network or computer access in a way that inappropriately affects a class or other students' academic work. Non-exhaustive examples of electronic dishonesty include tampering with another student's account so that the student cannot complete or submit an assignment, stealing a student's work through electronic means, or knowingly spreading a computer virus.

h. Facilitating academic dishonesty. Aiding someone else to commit an act of academic dishonesty. This includes but is not limited to giving someone work product to copy or allowing someone to cheat from a student's own examination or assignment.

i. Writing past the end of an examination. Continuing to respond to a test or examination question when the time allotted has elapsed.

j. Failing to disclose admonitory incidents. A matriculated student, a student who is accepted to law school but has not yet enrolled, and a student enrolled in law school must report all admonitory incidents as described in the student's law school application to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, the student must provide all corroborating documentation, including but not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record. A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application is in violation of this Code.

k. Failing to amend admissions application. A student has a continuing responsibility to ensure the completeness and correctness of his or her admissions application to the School of Law by disclosing to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs any factual irregularities or discrepancies in the application.

A student or graduate violates this Code when he or she supplies false information on the Admissions Application or the LSAT application, or submits forged or altered documents in aid of admission, or submits as his/her LSAT score the score of another person.

A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application or who provides false or misleading information on the law school application is in violation of this Code. The disclosure must include a statement of the reasons for failing to report the information or for providing misleading information on the application. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, corroborating documentation includes, but is not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record.

l. Knowingly referring false allegation(s). It is a violation of this Code to knowingly make a false allegation or referral pursuant to this Code or to assist another in doing so.

m. Duty to Report. A student shall report any act or conduct raising a reasonable belief that a violation of the honor code has occurred. A student who fails to meet the duty to report is in violation of the honor code except that a student does not abridge the duty to report when, based upon a good faith belief that a violation has been reported or that the conduct in question is not a violation of the honor code, he or she fails to report a violation of the honor code.

For the purposes of this provision, actual knowledge of a violation is not required to form a reasonable belief that a violation has occurred. A reasonable belief exists when there is a reasonable basis for the belief, based upon personal observation or the report of others that a violation of the honor code has occurred.

n. Illegal activity on school grounds or at school-sponsored events. A student who is accused of, charged with, or arrested while on School of Law grounds or at a School of Law sponsored event will be investigated by the Honor Council and subject to sanctions under this Code.

21.5 Sanctions

a. Types of sanctions: This Code does not require any particular sanction or range of sanctions. The appropriate sanction(s) in a particular case will depend on the circumstances as determined by the Honor Council. Multiple sanctions may be imposed in connection with any violation. Below is a non-exhaustive list of sanctions that may be imposed under this Code, upon recommendation of the Honor Council with approval by the Dean.

1. Written warning;

2. Community or law school service;

3. Counseling or referral to a student support service;

4. Letter of apology or explanation of conduct;

5. Academic penalty, such as a research paper, a lower or failing grade, or no credit for an assignment or course; this penalty may be imposed only by the Honor Council after the Chief Justice consults with and receives the recommendation of the course professor;

6. Exclusion or suspension from one or more activities, events, functions, benefits, or privileges of the School of Law;

7. Disciplinary probation for a set period of time, determined by the Honor Council, during which the student must fulfill any requirements imposed by the Honor Council due to a violation; if the student fails to fulfill the conditions during the disciplinary probation period, the Honor Council may determine that the student has violated the probation and may impose new or additional sanctions; the Honor Council must give the student notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond before making such a determination;

8. Suspension from the School of Law;

9. Expulsion from the School of Law;

10. Revocation of admission from the School of Law;

11. Denial of a dean’s certificate (diploma);

12. Suspension or revocation of a degree, certification, or other award conferred by the School of Law; or

13. Any combination thereof.

b. Effective date of sanctions: All sanctions are effective immediately, unless stayed by the Chief Justice or Dean. The Accused may request that the Chief Justice stay the sanction during the review process.

1. The Chief Justice will stay the sanction at the request of the Accused if the matter has been appealed by the Accused or accepted for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The sanction will take immediate effect once the Appellate Board denies the appeal or otherwise renders a final judgment upon review.

c. Mitigating and aggravating factors: In determining the sanction, the Honor Council may consider mitigating and aggravating factors. A non-exhaustive list of factors that may be considered include the following:

1. Pre-referral admission,
2. Other admissions,
3. Cooperation,
4. Intent,
5. Degree of harm or seriousness of offense,
6. Prior violations,
7. Nexus to professional standards,
8. Willingness to make restitution.

d. Authority of faculty: This Code does not diminish or modify a faculty member's authority to assess students or to formulate grades in the normal course of teaching for academic reasons unrelated to an Honor Code violation. If a faculty member wishes to reduce or modify a grade as a penalty for an instance of dishonesty such as those covered by section (d) of this Code, the faculty member may do so by referring the matter to the Honor Council. If a faculty member chooses to refer a student to the Honor Council, the faculty member may not impose a grade penalty for an alleged Honor Code violation if the Honor Council finds the student not guilty of the relevant dishonesty. If the Honor Council finds that the student is guilty, the Honor Council shall consult with the faculty member regarding the nature of the grade penalty. Faculty members are encouraged to publish their policy on the Honor Code in the court syllabus.

21.6 Procedures

a. Referrals

1. Method of Referral: A student shall refer a violation of this Code to any student member of the Honor Council, to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, or to a faculty member. Referrals may be made in person or through any method approved by the Honor Council, but are not required to be in writing. Referrals may not be made anonymously. However, the identity of a referring student will remain confidential unless the referring student waives his or her right to confidentiality. Further, a student referring a matter may be required to repeat information he or she provides to other Honor Council members or at a hearing.

2. Sua Sponte Referrals: If the Honor Council becomes aware of information that suggests that a student subject to this Code may have violated a provision of the Code, the Honor Council may treat this information as a referral for purposes of this Code.

b. Investigation and decision

1. After receiving a referral, the Chief Justice will appoint Investigators and instruct the Investigators to gather the relevant facts.

2. The Investigators:

i. shall determine whether the referral primarily reflects academic or nonacademic misconduct;

ii. shall make a preliminary determination as to whether the referral reflects conduct that falls within the scope of this Honor Code by an individual subject to this Honor Code;

iii. may interview the person making the referral and other persons with information, and may seek additional information regarding the referral and shall instruct all interviewees of the confidential nature of the investigation;

iv. shall meet with the Accused;

v. may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision;

vi. shall present to the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary all findings so that the three have sufficient information upon which to determine that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Honor Code has been violated;

3. At the meeting with the Investigator, the Accused will be provided with:

i. an explanation of any Honor Code section at issue and the nature of the conduct that is the basis for invoking that Code section(s);

ii. all information gathered during the investigation;

iii. a reasonable opportunity to respond; and

iv. an explanation of the applicable disciplinary procedures.

4. The referral will be considered an allegation under this Code only after the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary determine, by a majority vote, that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Accused violated the Honor Code. A sufficient basis will exist if the referral relates to an allegation of fact, which, if true, would constitute a violation of the Honor Code. The Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision. If no substantive basis exists, the referral will be dismissed.

5. If the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary decide that there is sufficient basis upon which to proceed with an allegation, the Chief Justice will have the Investigators present their findings to three non-officers of the Honor Council. These non-officers will make a probable cause determination, and will decide, by a majority vote, whether to dismiss the claim(s) or proceed to a hearing.

6. A student who fails to attend a scheduled meeting with the Investigator or Honor Council risks a decision being rendered in absentia, for a negative inference will be drawn, unless excused by the Investigator(s) or Chief Justice.

c. Hearing Process

1. Upon determination that a hearing is necessary, the Accused will be notified in writing and in person by the Chief Justice that a referral to the Honor Council has been deemed sufficient, based on probable cause, to warrant a hearing, and the Accused will be informed of the dates and procedures for such a hearing. The hearing will take place within a reasonable amount of time from the time of notification.

2. After carefully considering the information gathered, the Investigators will present their findings to the Honor Council.

3. The names of any witnesses expected to appear at the hearing, as well as any relevant facts, will be provided to the accused at a reasonable time before the hearing so that the accused may present a comprehensive defense to the allegations.

4. In addition to the Honor Council, the following individuals shall be present at the hearing:

    i. The Investigators,

    ii. The Accused and his or her Student Counsel.

5. Witnesses will be permitted at the hearing to give testimony at the request of either the Investigator(s) or the Accused, and the Chief Justice may allow said witnesses to remain at the hearing upon his or her discretion.

6. The Honor Council shall conduct the hearing in the following manner:

    i. The process must include, but is not limited to, examination of the Accused, if the Accused chooses to testify, and any other substantiating witness(es);

    ii. A substantiating witness does not necessarily have to be the initial referring student;

    iii. The Accused or his or her Student Counsel will have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) during a hearing after the Investigator's direct examination. The Investigators will also have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) the Accused or Student Counsel puts forth. The Investigators and Accused or Student Counsel will have the opportunity to redirect a witness upon request which may be granted by the Chief Justice;

    iv. All questioning, cross-examination, and redirection will be strictly limited to the scope of the hearing regarding an Honor Code violation. The Chief Justice will have the plenary discretion to determine if a question is within the scope of the hearing.

    v. The Investigators and the Accused may put forth any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, but the Honor Council may take into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision.

7. After all the facts have been considered and the Accused has been given a sufficient opportunity to respond, the Honor Council shall decide, by a majority vote of those present and voting, whether a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence. If a Student Justice is unable to vote impartially based on any bias at any point before, during, or after the hearing has commenced, he or she may be excused from the hearing, which includes relinquishment of voting responsibilities. In the event of an even number of justices at the end of a hearing, the Chief Justice will not cast a vote. If the Honor Council decides that a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence, the Honor Council must determine the appropriate sanction by a majority vote. At all times, the sanction(s) imposed by the Honor Council shall be reasonably warranted by the facts and subject to approval by the Dean.

8. The Decision of the Honor Council is final, pending approval by the Dean, and pending a request for review by the Accused.

9. The Chief Justice will notify the Dean of the Honor Council's decision at the conclusion of the hearing so that the Dean may approve or reject the Honor Council's decision.

10. Within five days of receiving approval from the Dean, the Honor Council will provide the Accused with written notice of its decision. Such notice must describe the alleged violation, the determination of the Honor Council regarding whether a violation occurred, and, if so, the sanction(s) imposed.

d. Review

1. An Accused who has been sanctioned for a violation of the Honor Code by the Honor Council may petition for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The request for review must be in writing and must be delivered to the Chief Justice within five days of the Honor Council issuing its decision. The Chief justice must deliver the request for review to the Appellate Board, and the Chief Justice, in his or her discretion, may grant an extension of time to the Accused for the filing of request for review.

3. After receiving the request for review, the Honor Council will compile the referring document, if any, any written response from the Accused, all relevant materials submitted to the Honor Council, and the Honor Council's decision. The request for review and accompanying documents shall be submitted to the Appellate Board in a timely manner.

4. The Appellate Board shall review any and all information submitted by the Honor Council. The Appellate Board will review the record de novo and may review determinations of fact made by the Honor Council, but that review is limited to the record. The Appellate Board may affirm, modify, remand, or overturn the decision of the Honor Council, but the Appellate Board cannot overturn an acquittal.

21.7 Elections

a. The ballot for elections to the Honor Council will be determined by anonymous nominations from the student body, submitted to the Dean or assignee.

   1. Once the nomination process is complete, the Dean shall email each nominee and explain that he will apply the standard in part (a)(2) and allow the nominee to withdraw, submit a brief statement in support of his or her nomination, or do nothing.

   2. The Dean shall review the nomination list and may remove nominees from the list if the Dean or designee determines that a nominee is ineligible based on past admonitions in the student's admissions record pertaining to illegal or unethical conduct, a precarious academic status, or other competent information.

   3. After nominees have been notified and accepted their nominations, a final list of nominees will be put on a ballot. Elections will be held at the end of the semester, coinciding with SBA elections.

b. Each student casting a vote for his or her respective class will indicate, on the ballot, which nominees he or she selects based on the number of available positions for that class.

c. If, at any time, a Student Justice is unable to be a member of the Honor Council due to death, transfer, Honor Code violation, or the like, the position will be vacant until the next election, except under exceptional circumstances as determined by the Chief Justice.

d. The SBA will be responsible for administering the election and will have authority to promulgate reasonable rules governing it.

   1. A student in the 2L class will cast five votes, and a student in the 3L class will cast three votes.

   2. The five nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

      i. The three nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated for a two-year term on the Honor Council.

      ii. The remaining two nominees will serve a one-year term on the Honor Council.

      iii. The nominee who receives the most votes from the 2L class will serve as Secretary in his or her first year and Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

iv. The nominee who receives the second most votes will serve as Associate Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

v. The nominee who receives the third most votes will serve Student Justice in his or her third year on the Honor Council.

3. The three nominees from the 3L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

4. A student is only permitted to vote for nominees in his or her class.

21.8 Reporting and Record-keeping

a. The Honor Council's written decision and all other documentation will be placed in the student's file in the Registrar's Office.

b. A finding that the Accused has violated the Honor Code will be reported by the Dean to any board of bar examiners or similar organization for any bar to which the Accused applies. Students should be aware that most bar applications will require the student to report any sanctions imposed on the student by an educational institution, regardless of whether the sanctions were for conduct suggesting unfitness for the practice of law. Students also should be aware that the School of Law routinely responds to inquiries regarding student character and fitness from boards of bar examiners and similar organizations.

c. Approximately two weeks before the last day of classes, the Honor Council must provide a report to the faculty and the SBA providing the following information:

1. For referrals, the number of referrals considered by the Honor Council's Investigators, the Honor Code provisions implicated by the referrals, and the number of referrals dismissed without further proceedings;

2. For allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the number of allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the Honor Code provisions implicated by those allegations, and the number of allegations dismissed without further proceedings;

3. For each allegation submitted to a final hearing, state the Honor Code provisions implicated by the allegation, the determination regarding whether a violation occurred as to each implicated Honor Code provision, and the sanction(s) imposed, if any. Additionally, for each allegation submitted to a final hearing, the report shall indicate the status of the decision in terms of review by the Appellate Board (e.g., "The time for review has expired without a request for review."). If a decision was reviewed by the Appellate Board, the report should state the outcome of the review or indicate that the review is pending.

21.9 Confidentiality

a. The School of Law considers referrals and hearings under the Honor Code to be confidential. All participants should respect the confidentiality of this information and disclose it only to those who have authority to know.

b. A violation of the confidentiality of any proceeding, other than by the Accused or with the express consent of the Accused, will be considered an Honor Code violation.

21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee

a. The Dean, on a periodic basis, may appoint a committee to review all decisions rendered for the purposes of amending these procedures under the Honor Code since the last review.

b. The committee will be determined by appointment by the Dean from the full-time faculty members, but also may include students, staff, alumni, attorneys, national experts, and others the Dean considers appropriate.

c. Information provided to the committee should not contain names of any persons involved with the matter.

d. The committee should prepare a written report that privately advises the Dean about whether, overall, the sanctions issued under the Code were appropriate. No individual result can be changed as a result of this review and report.

e. The committee also may make recommendations to the Dean about possible amendments to the Honor Code. These recommendations will be published to the faculty and the Honor Council.

21.11 Amendments

Amendments to the Honor Code may be proposed by any member of the faculty, by the Honor Council through a majority vote, or member of the student body accompanied by a written petition with twenty-five signatures supporting the amendment, and the amendment must be approved by a majority of the full-time voting faculty, only after consulting with the Honor Council.

a. Any amendment must be published on the announcement bulletin board and emailed to every member of the law school.

b. Any amendments to the Honor Code are not effective until the next full academic semester following the vote to amend the Code.

22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE

22.1 Grades

a. It will be the obligation of the student to arrange a conference with the faculty member involved in sufficient time to meet the time limit set out in 22.1c, below.

b. It will be the obligation of the faculty member to meet with the student to discuss the complaint and try in good faith to reconcile the differences.

c. If the faculty member and the student are unable to resolve the complaint, the student may file a written complaint in duplicate with the Dean of the Law School not more than sixty (60) days after the last examination was given in the term in which the complaint relates, or fifteen (15) days after the grade is posted, whichever is later. The complaint will specifically allege the grounds on which the complaint is based and the cause for action by the committee. The grounds will be supported by a narrative statement of fact.

d. If the faculty member is not available for conference with the student, after the student has made a good faith effort to initiate such conference, the student may omit the procedure in 22.1c. However, in no event will this paragraph become operative until fifty-five (55) days have elapsed since the last examination was given in the term to which the complaint relates.

e. Upon receipt of the WRITTEN COMPLAINT (in compliance with the provisions of paragraph 22.1c) the Dean will attempt to resolve the complaint by consultations with the student and the faculty member. If the complaint is not resolved within fifteen (15) days after the written complaint is filed or if the complaint is resolved adversely to the student, the student may appeal to the Academic Affairs Committee, sitting as the Grade Appeals Committee by requesting that the Dean forward the complaint together with all documents considered in any prior proceedings. Provided, however, that all appeals must be made no later than twenty (20) days after the written complaint is filed with the Dean of the Law School, or five (5) days after the conference with the Dean, whichever is later. The Committee upon receipt of the complaint from the Dean will determine whether or not a prima facie case has been alleged and whether the matter should be heard. Failure to allege a cause of action will result in a dismissal of the petition forthwith.

f. It shall be the obligation of the student to present evidence and a prima facie case as set out below.

g. The Committee shall hear such evidence as is relevant that the faculty member used factors extraneous to academic performance to determine, at least in part, the student's grade. The grading factors listed in 12.5 shall not be deemed to be factors extraneous to academic performance on the grounds that adequate notice of the instructor's use of such factors was not given.

h. The faculty member at whom the appeal is directed may be present if the complaint specifically alleges prejudice, bias or discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin, age, handicap or disability, sexual orientation or gender. The faculty member will not have the right to attend other hearings in which the student presents his/her evidence set out in 22.1g above, although the Committee in its discretion may request or allow him/her to attend. In the event that the faculty member is permitted to attend under any circumstances he/she may do so without comment or examination of any parties to the hearing. The faculty member may not under any circumstances participate or sit in on any deliberation or voting. The Committee upon request will provide the faculty member with a copy of all written statements or documents utilized by the student in making his/her prima facie case. Neither the faculty member nor the student may be represented by counsel or next friend.

i. After the presentment of the student's evidence the Committee will determine whether the student has presented a prima facie case.

j. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has not been made, the appeal will be dismissed by the Committee. The Committee will notify the Dean of the Committee's decision and the Dean will then notify the student.

k. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has been made, it will then determine whether bias, prejudice or other factors extraneous to academic performance did in fact adversely affect the student's grade.

l. In making the determination in 22.1k, above, the Committee shall with the faculty member present, if he/she desires to be, review the written work submitted by the student in the course and review the method by which the final grade was determined.

m. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may request a written statement from the faculty member containing any outline of his/her answers to any examination questions and a statement of how the grade was determined.

n. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may, in its discretion, request written work turned in by other students to be used for comparison purposes. The material and information requested in 22.1, m. and n above will be used only to determine whether factors extraneous to academic performance were used in determining the grade. No evaluation for rank, policy, or substantive determinations will be considered.

o. Should any member of the Committee (a) be unavailable, or (b) excuse himself/herself because of a conflict of interest, the Dean will appoint a substitute member to serve on the Committee for all matters involving the case in question.

p. Any determinations by the Committee as to the grade of the appealing student shall be final within the School of Law. The Dean, faculty member and student will be given notification of the decision of the Committee.

q. The Committee may request the assistance of other members of the law faculty in reviewing the written work submitted by the student and written work of other students used for comparison purposes. The request of assistance of other members of the law faculty will be for the purpose of determination of the use of factors extraneous to the course work in determining the student's grade.

23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis is subject to the ABA Standards for Approval of Law schools. The Standards may be found at http://www.americanbar.org/groups/legal_education/resources/standards.html. Under ABA Standard 512(a), a law school "shall establish, publish, and comply with policies with respect to addressing student complaints." Under ABA standard 512(c), a "complaint" is a communication in writing that seeks to bring to the attention of the law school a significant problem that directly implicates the school's program of legal education and its compliance with the Standards."

23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint

To bring a complaint, a student at the Law School must take the following steps:

a. A student must hand deliver the complaint in writing to a member of the Student Complaint Review Committee ("Review Committee"). The Review Committee is composed of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, the Assistant Dean for Administration, and the Assistant Dean for Student Affairs.

b. The complaint must describe in detail the behavior, program, or process complained of, and demonstrate how it implicates the Law School's program of legal education and the school's compliance with a particular ABA Standard.

c. The complaint must provide the name of the student submitting the complaint, the student's University of Memphis email address, an address where the student receives U.S. mail, and a phone number where the student can be reached.

23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint

a. Once a complaint is delivered, a member of the Review Committee will acknowledge the receipt of the complaint in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within seven business days.

b. A member of the Review Committee must either meet with the student to discuss the resolution of the complaint or mail a written response to the substance of the complaint to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days.

c. The written response must either state a decision regarding the substance of the complaint with an explanation for that decision, or explain steps that the Law School will take to resolve or further investigate the complaint.

d. Absent exceptional circumstances, the Review Committee shall endeavor to fully investigate and resolve all complaints within ninety business days from the date of the complaint.

23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution

a. A student may appeal the Review Committee's resolution to the Dean.

b. The student must hand deliver the appeal to the Dean or Dean's designee in writing within seven business days of the date of resolution.

c. The appeal must describe in detail the grounds for appeal. The appeal may not include complaints not covered in the original complaint.

d. The Dean shall endeavor to respond to the appeal in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days from the date the appeal was submitted.

e. The Dean's decision is final.

23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints

The Assistant Dean for Administration shall maintain a record of the student complaints, resolutions, and appeals for a period of eight years.

24. NOTIFICATIONS

Notifications to students concerning class assignments, attendance, and all other matters pertaining to the Law School and its activities may be given by faculty or the Law School administration as follows:

a. by posting in the mails for delivery by regular mail to the address of a student set forth in the records maintained by the Law School's Registrar; or

b. by posting on the bulletin boards on the second floor of the Law School; or

c. by delivery to a student=s mail folder at the Law School.

Any notification so given shall be deemed received by the student.

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS

In addition to the Academic Regulations as set forth herein governing the rights and responsibilities of law students, the policies and procedures of the university as set forth in the most recent edition of the Student Handbook of The University of Memphis apply to law students. Such policies and procedures include, but are not limited to:

I. Privacy Rights of Parents & Students -- Notice to Students

II. Harassment Policy

III. Student Appeal Procedure for Discrimination

IV. Withdrawal or Temporary Suspension due to Severe Psychological Disturbance

V. Students with Disabilities

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES

These academic regulations shall be interpreted and construed in such a way as to be consistent with the rules and regulations of The University of Memphis, the Tennessee Board of Regents, the Supreme Court of Tennessee, the American Bar Association or other accrediting entity, and the laws of the State of Tennessee and of the United States.

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS

If any provision in these Academic Regulations shall be held invalid or in contravention of the rules and regulations of the University, or of the laws of the State of Tennessee or the United States, then the remainder of these Academic Regulations shall not be affected thereby.

APPENDIX I

Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree

Attainment of the J.D. degree awarded by the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis means that the student has, in the judgment of the faculty, acquired an acceptable level of mastery of essential skills that the faculty has determined to be prerequisite to entering the practice of law. The purpose of the curriculum of the School of Law is to enable students to acquire these skills. All candidates for the J.D. degree must be capable of acquiring, and ultimately demonstrating, mastery of these skills. The requisite level of mastery includes the ability to perform these skills under circumstances, including time constraints and other performance requirements that reflect the realities of the practice of law.

In acquiring these skills, it is essential that the candidate behave honestly, responsibly, fairly and professionally. It is also essential that the candidate regularly and punctually be prepared for and attend scheduled obligations and that the candidate meet deadlines.

To the extent that resources permit, the Law School curriculum is intended to enable students to acquire skills other than those essential skills listed below, but the curriculum, taken as a whole, is intended to insure that students master these essential skills:

1. Intellectual Skills:

    1. Knowledge. Ability to identify, define and describe a core body of American legal terminology and classifications, literature (i.e. sources of law), principles and concepts, and judicial and administrative systems.

    2. Comprehension. Ability to paraphrase, explain, compare, organize, and interpret legal knowledge.

    3. Application. Ability to apply legal knowledge in performing legal research and in identifying legal issues in factual situations that differ from those in which the knowledge was first encountered.

    4. Analysis. Ability to formulate legitimate arguments and responses for resolution of legal issues in new factual situations, and to support those arguments and responses, both directly and by analogy, with sources of law.

    5. Evaluation. Ability to evaluate and criticize the quality of legal analysis in terms of both reasoning and support in sources of law.

    6. Synthesis. Ability to apply skills of analysis and evaluation to a complex body of legal knowledge to create an organized and original intellectual product.

2. Communication Skills:

    1. Ability to acquire and preserve information from both oral and written sources.

    2. Ability to communicate effectively the candidate's knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, evaluation, and synthesis skills.

    3. Ability to communicate effectively and responsively in a public forum.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
CECIL C. HUMPHREYS
SCHOOL OF LAW

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

(Updated through April 27, 2015)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS
(As Updated on April 27, 2015)

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY 1

 1.1 J.D. Degree 1

 1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program 1

 1.3 Programs 1

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR 1

3. ENROLLMENT 1

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT 2

 4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees 2

 4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal 3

  a. Eligibility 3

  b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment 3

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS 3

 5.1 Full-Time Students 3

 5.2 Part-Time Students 3

 5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students 3

 5.4 Enrollment 4

6. DROP/ADD COURSES 4

 6.1 Adding Courses 4

 6.2 Dropping Courses 4

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES 4

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM 5

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program 5

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program 5

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing 5

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS 5

9.1 Class Attendance 5

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students 5

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS 5

10.1 Schedule of Examinations 5

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday 6

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances 6

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters 6

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers 6

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations; Unreasonable Hardship 7

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations 7

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination 7

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination 7

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other Than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions 7

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades 8

10.12 Computation of Grades 8

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations are Pending 8

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES 8

11.1 Incompletes 8

11.2 Grade Changes 8

12. GRADING SYSTEM 9

12.1 Grades 9

12.2 Grading System and Factors to be Considered 9

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average 10

12.4 Rounding 10

12.5 Grading Factors 10

13. CLASS RANKING 11

13.1 Full-Time Students 11

13.2 Part-Time Students 11

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking 11

13.4 Honors 11

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS 12

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students 12

a. Good Standing 12

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 12

c. Computation of Grade Point Average 12

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students 13

a. Good Standing 13

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 13

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion 13

15. STARTOVER 14

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION 15

16.1 Course Requirements 15

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students 15

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students 16

c. Other Required Courses 16

d. Elective Courses and Limitations on Certain Courses for Credit Toward Graduation 17

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement 17

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement 18

16.4 Six-Year Requirement 18

16.5 Work at Other Schools 18

16.6 Grade Requirement 18

16.7 Completion of Work 18

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement 18

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT 19

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS 19

18.1 Auditing Courses 19

18.2 Transient Students 19

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS 19

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION ... 20
20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records ... 20
20.2 Grade Information ... 20
20.3 Non-Posting of Grades Upon Request ... 20
21. HONOR CODE ... 20
21.1 Definitions ... 20
21.2 Scope ... 21
21.3 Oath ... 22
21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct ... 22
21.5 Sanctions ... 25
21.6 Procedures ... 27
21.7 Elections ... 31
21.8 Reporting and Record Keeping ... 32
21.9 Confidentiality ... 33
21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee ... 33
21.11 Amendments ... 33
22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE ... 34
22.1 Grades ... 34
23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE ... 36
23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint ... 36
23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint ... 37
23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution ... 37
23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints ... 37

24. NOTIFICATIONS 37

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS 38

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES 38

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS 38

APPENDIX I.. 40

STANDARDS FOR ATTAINMENT OF THE J.D. DEGREE.. 40

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

The provisions set forth herein and in the Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree attached hereto as Appendix I govern the Academic Affairs of all students enrolled at the School of Law. All references to these Academic Regulations shall be deemed to include Appendix I. It is the responsibility of each student to be familiar with the terms contained herein and each student shall be deemed to be so. For the purposes of these Academic Regulations, any place where approval of the Dean is required, it shall be taken to mean the Dean or the Dean's designate such as the Associate Dean or an Assistant Dean.

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY

1.1 J.D. Degree

Graduates of The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law receive the Juris Doctor Degree.

1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program

A J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program is available in cooperation with the School of Business. Further information is available in the office of the Dean.

1.3 Programs

The law school offers a full-time day program and a part-time day program on the semester system. Students in the full-time program normally graduate in three years (six semesters). Summer classes and intersession classes may be available and some students may graduate after five semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to six semesters) as full-time students. Intersession classes may be offered between regularly scheduled classes (i.e., Winter intersession), or during regularly scheduled academic breaks in semesters (i.e., Spring intersession). Students in the part-time program normally graduate in nine semesters or in eight semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to nine semesters). (See Section 5 for course maximums and minimums during each semester.)

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR

Some states require that, for a candidate to take the bar examination in that state, the candidate shall have registered with a supervisory authority upon or shortly after enrolling in law school. Each student should ascertain the rules of the state in which he/she expects to take the bar examination in this respect. Tennessee does not have this requirement.

3. ENROLLMENT

Enrollment is subject to the general rules of the University pertaining to registration and is possible only during the scheduled registration periods of the university and School of Law as shown on the Law School and university calendars.

Newly admitted students and startovers may only enter in the fall term. Upper division law students, transfer students, and transient students may enter in any term and should preregister each semester for the succeeding term. Specific instructions on preregistering and course schedules are ordinarily provided at least one month before the preceding examination period.

The enrollment procedure begins in the administration offices of the School of Law. Enrollment in any course or section must be approved by the Dean or the Law School Registrar. Every enrollment after the first is conditional upon the student's being eligible to re-enroll under the Academic Eligibility Requirements. (See Section 14.) Students on probation from the previous semester and those who have been on probation will be conditionally enrolled until such time as all grades are received from the previous semester. If computation of a student's grades results in the student being academically excluded, the student will receive a refund of fees. (See Section 4.1.)

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT

4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees

A student may withdraw from the Law School by notifying the office of the Dean in writing, provided, however, that withdrawal is not permitted within one week of the beginning of the final examination period of a semester, summer, or intersession without permission of the Dean.

Withdrawals are recorded on the student's record at any time after a student has registered and paid fees.

The following refund percentages of enrollment fees (Maintenance, Out-Of-State Tuition and Student Activity Fees) apply to students who withdraw from the law school or who drop to an hourly load below full time:

A full (100%) refund of fees will be made only under the following conditions:

a. Cancellation of a class by the University.

b. Drop or withdrawal prior to official registration. (Example: Pre-registration of a first year student.)

c. Death of a student certified by the Vice President for Student Educational Services or designated university official.

d. Withdrawal of the student by the Dean's Office for reason of academic exclusion after the student has registered and paid fees.

A 75% refund will be provided during the first day of classes and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 90% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

A 25% refund will be provided beginning at the expiration of the 75% refund period and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 75% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

At the conclusion of the 25% refund period, there will be no refund of these fees.

4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal

a. Eligibility

To be eligible to re-enroll as a matter of right after withdrawal, the student who has withdrawn must have completed one academic year, have met the retention standards (See Sec. 14.1.b.), and be able to comply with the six year requirement. (See Section 16.4.) Students who cannot re-enroll as a matter of right must secure permission from the Dean. Denial of permission to re-enroll shall not prevent a student from competing for a position in the first year class. Re-enrollment procedures require filing a readmission application.

b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment

Students re-enrolling after withdrawing in good standing must comply with graduation requirements of the class with whom they are scheduled to graduate. These graduation requirements may differ from those in effect at the time of the student's original enrollment.

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS

5.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students must enroll in at least 12 credit hours toward the J.D. or J.D./M.B.A. degree in each semester. No student may be enrolled at any time in coursework that, if successfully completed, would exceed 18 credit hours. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student with less than a 2.5 cumulative grade point average may enroll in more than 16 credit hours in a semester. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student enrolled in an extern program may be enrolled in more than 16 credit hours, including the externship.

5.2 Part-Time Students

Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, part-time students must enroll in at least 8 credit hours, but not more than 11 credit hours, in each semester.

5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students

Without regard to whether students are classified as full-time or part-time during the regular academic year, such students may enroll in summer session in any number of credit hours not exceeding nine (9). Students enrolling in six (6) or more credit hours will be classified as full-time students for the summer session and will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Students enrolling in five (5) or fewer credit hours will be classified as part-time students for the summer session. Students enrolling in intersession classes will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Enrollment in summer session will not affect the full-time or part-time status of a student. (See Sections 8, 9, and 16.3 for related matters).

5.4 Enrollment

At the time of initial enrollment, students must enroll either as full-time or part-time students. From that time on, they will be governed by regulations applying to their initial enrollment classification unless they change status as provided in these regulations. (See Section 8.)

6. DROP/ADD COURSES

6.1 Adding Courses

With the exception of Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes, courses may be added to a student's schedule during the first ten (10) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first four (4) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer sessions. Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes may be added to a student's schedule during the first five (5) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first two (2) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer session. Classes missed before being added will be counted as absences for the attendance policy of the faculty teaching the course.

6.2 Dropping Courses

Elective courses may be dropped on or before the "drop date" listed in the calendar for each semester without permission of the Dean. Elective courses may be dropped after the drop date only with permission of the Dean. A full-time student may not drop below twelve (12) hours, and a part-time student (in the extended program) may not drop below eight (8) hours, without permission of the Dean. Drops occurring after the "Add Period" are recorded as "withdrawals". Required courses may not be dropped without permission of the Dean. (See Sections 5.1, 5.2 and 16.)

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES

A course may not be repeated unless it is failed -- i.e., no credit earned. Required courses must be completed and passed to meet graduation requirements. Required courses that are failed must be retaken in the next regular semester in which the course is offered unless taken in summer session prior to such next regular semester. When a course is repeated after having previously been failed, the grade for the course is averaged in the normal manner including the previous failure -- i.e., the previous grade stands and both grades become a part of the student's grade record and for computation of the student's grade point average. No grade is removed. (See Section 12.)

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program

Part-time students must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the full-time program.

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program

Full-time students in good standing must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the part-time program.

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing

Students not in good standing will not be permitted to change programs except for good cause as determined by the Dean. (See Sec. 14.)

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS

9.1 Class Attendance

Students are expected to give their scholastic obligation first priority. Prompt and regular class attendance is considered necessary for satisfactory work. It is expected that a student will regard an engagement to attend classes as he/she would any other engagement or conference with his/her instructor. The necessity of absences does not in any sense relieve the student from responsibility for the work of his/her course during his/her absence. The instructor in charge of a course determines in all instances the extent to which absences and tardiness affect the student's grade and credit. The attendance policy of the instructor shall be announced to the class and distributed to the class in writing at the time of its implementation. Generally, attendance policies will be announced at the first class meeting of the semester. A student may receive a failing grade for excessive absences and may be dropped from the course with a failing grade if excessive absences occur. Each student shall be responsible for keeping records of his/her attendance.

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students

The full-time program of the School of Law is intended to promote full-time study of law. Full-time students may not engage in employment in excess of twenty (20) hours per week. (See Section 5.3.) It is the policy of the School of Law to discourage any employment of first-year full-time students.

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS

10.1 Schedule of Examinations

a. The schedule for examinations is made part of the registration materials. The schedule of examinations may be amended during a regular semester, summer session or intersession. Such amended schedules will be posted, and all students prior to the examination period are responsible for checking the Law School Bulletin Board for an amended schedule.

b. Unless students obtain the written permission of the Dean at the time of registration, students may not register in courses which have conflicting examination schedules -- i.e. where examinations are scheduled to be administered at the same time or on the same day. If permission is granted, one of the conflicting examinations will be scheduled on the next day in the examination period on which the student does not have an examination.

c. Students are required to take examinations at the scheduled times. Faculty members are not authorized to grant exceptions, but the Dean may grant exceptions as set forth in Sections 10.2 and 10.3.

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday

If a scheduled examination conflicts with the observance of a religious holiday or a day on which the student may not be present because of religious practices, the student will be entitled to a deferral of the examination until the earliest time at which the student may take the examination and proctoring can be arranged. The student should notify the Dean's office of the conflict and make arrangements for the deferral no later than two weeks prior to the start of the examination period.

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances

Students with disabilities may be granted permission to take examinations under special circumstance. Such students must be registered with the University Office of Student Disabilities. The special circumstances (conditions) will be established on an individual basis by the Dean considering the recommendations of the University Office of Student Disabilities.

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters

Unless a student has an accommodation from Student Disability Services or demonstrates a case of severe hardship, a student is required to use a laptop or similar device and the approved exam-writing software to write essay or short-answer examinations.

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers

All examinations are to be graded in a manner so as to protect the anonymity of students taking the examinations. To facilitate the anonymous grading system, all students are required to secure from the Law School Registrar an examination number for each semester, summer session and intersession. A student who does not use the assigned examination number will not have a grade reported to the student or to the University until such number is secured.

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations; Unreasonable Hardship

Deferral of, or a delay in taking, an examination may be permitted only by the Dean and then only when it would result, or would have resulted, in an unreasonable hardship on the student to attend the examination. Application for delay must be made to the Dean prior to the examination, if feasible. If a delay is permitted, the student shall take the examination at such time as the instructor in conjunction with Dean's office shall require. Unreasonable hardship includes illness and other matters beyond the control of the student. If for reasons beyond the student's control, deferral or delay cannot be requested in advance of the scheduled examination, such request must be made as soon as possible after the examination. (WARNING: Failure to take a scheduled examination results in a grade F or U unless the Dean permits the student to withdraw from the course.)

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations

A student who arrives at an examination after the examination has started but before it is completed may sit for the examination. The Dean, in consultation with the faculty member, if available, may permit a student whose late arrival is attributable to factors that are beyond the student's reasonable control to take the entire scheduled time for the examination, either beginning immediately or as rescheduled by the Dean. Otherwise, a student shall be permitted to take the examination, but in the Professor's discretion, may be required to complete the examination at the regularly scheduled time.

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination

A student, by taking an examination, is conclusively deemed to represent that no unreasonable hardship existed and the student was able to take the examination. The grade earned will be recorded and will not be expunged for any reason. A student may not withdraw from a course after taking the examination.

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination

If during an examination, an illness or emergency arises which would result in an unreasonable hardship on such student or the student being unable to complete the examination, the student, if capable of so doing, must notify the faculty member or person proctoring the examination immediately upon such occurrence. After such notification and/or occurrence, the Dean's office shall be notified, and, thereafter, the Dean's office will, in conjunction with the faculty member involved, schedule the examination as circumstances permit.

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other Than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions
The research paper in final form, whether written in connection with a seminar or as independent research, must be submitted to the faculty research advisor no later than the last day of the examination period of the semester or summer session in which the student is registered for the seminar or independent research, and may be required earlier by the faculty research advisor. A schedule for the submission of outlines, drafts, lists, and paper will be prepared in writing by the faculty research advisor and given to the student. Failure to comply with the schedule may result in failure in the course for which the paper is required to be written. The faculty research advisor may permit additional time, in which case the conditions and limitations of any such extension must be met; provided, however, no extension of time shall be beyond the last day of the examination period in which the student is registered unless requested in writing and approved by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and filed with the Law School Registrar prior to the last day of the examination period. The Law School Registrar will provide a form by which this may be done. It is the responsibility of the student to procure the execution of the form by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and to file it with the Law School Registrar.

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades

If a deferral or delay of the due date on an examination or research paper extends beyond the end of the semester, a grade of Incomplete will be given in the course or seminar, and a notation will be made in the student's records of the time and method by which completion is required. Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of a permitted deferral or delay will result in a grade of F or U in the course. (See Sections 10.3 & 11.)

10.12 Computation of Grades

For all purposes for which grade point averages are computed (i.e. - standing, retention, rank, etc.), an Incomplete will not be counted in the semester in which it is received. When the grade is reported, it will be included for computation of grade point average at the end of the semester in which it is reported. (See Section 12.3.)

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations Are Pending

The permission of the Dean is required to permit a student to enroll in a semester, summer session, or intersession when scheduled examinations for any prior semester, summer session, or intersession have not been completed including deferred or delayed examinations. A student seeking to enroll under such circumstances must submit a written request to the Dean.

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES

11.1 Incompletes

An Incomplete may be recorded by faculty members when there is a legitimate reason for a student not completing course work during the regular period (i.e., a semester or summer session). Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of the Instructor or approval by the Dean shall result in a grade of F in the course.

11.2 Grade Changes

Upon reporting grades to the Law School Registrar, a professor is required to sign the grade sheet as certification that the grades are correct. After submission of grades to the Law School Registrar, grades may be changed by a professor only for computational or objective errors of the professor. Grade changes for any other reason may be made only with approval of the Academic Affairs Committee. Any such grade change must be made by the end of the semester, excluding summer session, or intersession, after the semester in which the grade was received.

12. GRADING SYSTEM

12.1 Grades

a. Grades are represented by the following letter grades: A+, A, A-, B+, B, B-, C+, C, C-, D+, D, and F, and in certain courses the letters E Excellent), S (Satisfactory), and U (Unsatisfactory) (See Section l2.2) A grade of D or better is passing, and less than a D is failing. While a grade of D, D+ or C- is passing and credit is earned, such grade indicates less than satisfactory performance. (See Section 12.5 for grading factors in seminar courses.)

For purposes of determining grade point averages, letter grades have the following number equivalents:

A+	4.0	C+	2.33
A	4.0	C	2.0
A-	3.67	C-	1.67
B+	3.33	D+	1.33
B	3.0	D	1.0
B-	2.67	F	0

Grades of E, S, and U will not be assigned number equivalents and will not be used in determining grade point averages.

b. For first-year courses, the mean cumulative grade point average for each section shall fall on or between 2.70 – 2.80. In extraordinary circumstances, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may approve an exception to this rule.

12.2 Grading Systems and Factors to be Considered

a. Subject to exceptions set forth in the following subsections, all courses will be graded on a letter grade basis as set forth in Subsection 12.1 supra. (See Subsection 12.5. regarding factors to be considered.)

b. Courses identified as simulation courses shall be graded on a letter grade basis.

c. All courses identified as clinic courses will be graded on a letter basis and will not include as a component the grade on a final examination.

d. Externships, Law Review and Moot Court shall be graded according to standards of Excellent (E), Satisfactory (S) and Unsatisfactory (U). Excellent shall represent achievement substantially above the minimum requirement for a grade of Satisfactory.

e. The use of E, S, and U may be appropriate for courses in which, as taught and tested, the achievement of students cannot be closely compared. The use of these grades shall only be by faculty approval following an initial study and recommendation by the Curriculum Committee. Such grading policy will be noted on the course schedule for each semester, summer session, or intersession to which it applies.

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average

A student's cumulative grade point average is computed by first converting letter grades to number equivalents pursuant to Section 12.l. The number equivalents are then multiplied by the number of hours of credit assigned to each course. The products are added, and the sum divided by the total number of hours of courses whose products are included in the sum. Courses graded E, S and U are excluded from the grade point computation.

12.4 Rounding

Averages are computed and recorded to two decimal places, e.g., 2.65, with no rounding.

12.5 Grading Factors

a. A written examination is usually given at the end of each course, and the grade for the course will be the grade made on the examination. An instructor, at his/her discretion and to the extent he/she desires, may, however, consider class attendance, participation in classroom instruction, other examinations and the performance of required work in determining the grade. These additional factors will be announced at the beginning of the course, or at such time as to provide adequate notice to the students.

b. In a seminar course that fulfills the Law School’s writing requirement, between 65% and 80% of the grade must be based on the research paper. The balance of the course grade must be based on participation that demonstrates the students’ knowledge, comprehension, and analysis of assigned readings or research. A student may not satisfy the research requirement unless a grade of C or better is received, both in the seminar and on the research paper. A student may receive a grade of C or better in a seminar by receiving points based on additional grading factors, even though the research paper is not satisfactory to satisfy the Law School’s research requirement for graduation. (See Section 16.1c.)

13. CLASS RANKING

13.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students will be ranked at the following intervals:

1st year: fall and spring semesters

2nd year: fall and spring semesters

3rd year: fall and spring semesters

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.2 Part-Time Students

Part-time students will be ranked at the following intervals with the designated class:

1st year fall and spring semester with admission class

2nd year spring semester with admission class

3rd year fall and spring semester with the second year full-time students after the fall and spring of their third year

4th year fall semester and spring semester with the third year full-time students

5th year (if applicable) fall semester and spring semester with third year full-time students

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking

Only the work completed at the University of Memphis will be considered in computing class rank. (See Section 16.)

13.4 Honors

Students with high cumulative grade point averages are awarded the J.D. degree with honors. The categories are:

Summa Cum Laude – Top 1% of the graduating class

Magna Cum Laude – Top 10% of the graduating class

Cum Laude – Top 25% of the graduating class

Diplomas awarded to such students will reflect the distinction.

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

A student is in good standing only if the student's cumulative grade point average, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 24 credit hours.

2. The student has received grades in 24 to 38 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.80 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

3. The student has received grades in 39 to 53 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.90 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

4. The student has had a cumulative grade point average of 2.00 at the end of every previous semester. Such a student will receive one semester of probation. Following the semester of probation, the student will be subject to the requirements of Section 14.1.

A student who is not in good standing but entitled to retention under provisions 1-4 above must complete the student's next semester after no more than two semesters of non-enrollment. Non-enrollment includes withdrawal during a semester. (See Sec. 4.2.a.)

c. Computation of Grade Point Average

For the purposes of determining good standing or retention status, the student's grade point average will be determined at the end of each fall semester and at the end of each spring semester. Summer term grades will be computed as if taken during the fall semester. Intersession grades will be computed as if taken during the subsequent full semester. Enrollment in a succeeding academic term prior to computation of the student's grade point average will be at the student's risk. (See Section 3).

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

Any transfer student whose cumulative grade point average for work taken at The University of Memphis, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better is in good standing.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A transfer student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 17 credit hours at this law school.

2. The student transferred to this law school with fewer than 17 transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has a cumulative grade point average of 1.9 for work at this law school, or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.3 in the most recent semester.

3. The student transferred to this law school with 17 or more transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has earned a semester grade point average of 2.5 in the most recent semester.

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion

A student who is academically excluded may:

a. Challenge a grade pursuant to the Grade Appeals procedures outlined in Section 22. In the event that the appeal results in a grade change that raises the student's grade point average over the threshold for exclusion, the student will be readmitted.

b. File a petition with the Academic Affairs Committee seeking a change in the Academic Regulations. If the Committee recommends, and the faculty approves, a change in the Regulations that would result in the student being able to remain in school, the student will be readmitted. There is no appeal from the decision of the Academic Affairs Committee or the faculty.

Subject to the above, academic exclusion is final and there is no appeal. A student who is academically excluded may seek startover admission pursuant to the provisions of Section 15.

15. STARTOVER

a. An applicant for admission to the first year entering class who was academically excluded from any law school may be admitted to the class for which he or she has applied, provided:

1. The applicant was academically excluded from this law school or is a Tennessee resident for fee and tuition purposes at the time of application, residency determination, and enrollment.

2. The applicant has been out of law school for a period of at least two (2) regular academic semesters (excluding the Summer Session) on the date of enrollment; or, if the applicant has completed three (3) semesters of law school, he or she is required to have been out of law school for only one regular academic semester (excluding the Summer session) on the date of enrollment.

3. The applicant has satisfied, on the dates of admission and enrollment, all absolute admission requirements applicable to all other applicants who are admitted and enrolled in the entering class for which application is made, except that the LSAT exam must have been taken within five years prior to the date of admission unless waived by the Admissions Committee;

4. The applicant, before admission, has been approved for admission by a majority of this law school's Admission Committee and the Dean after consideration of the applicant's situation in light of ABA Standard 505;

5. The applicant has not enrolled as a startover admit at any law school after previously being previously being academically excluded from any law school; and

6. The startover application is complete by April 1st.

b. Each applicant described above, who has been admitted and enrolled will not be counted in the total number of enrollments needed to fill the first year entering class. In no event will more than five (5) such applicants be admitted and enrolled in any one entering class. In the event that more than five (5) such applicants are approved as eligible for admission, the Admissions Committee together with the Dean will select the five (5) to be admitted. Selections will be based upon the applicant's admission index and other factors reflecting the likelihood for success at this law school.

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

16.1 Course Requirements

A student is required to complete course work for a total of at least 90 credit hours for all courses.

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students

A student enrolled in the full-time program is required to complete the following courses in the sequence indicated, unless an exception is granted by the Dean or the Dean's designee.

16.1.a.i. A student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
112 Torts I	122 Torts II
115 Property I	125 Property II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
126 Criminal Law	121 Contracts
	212 Constitutional Law

Second Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
221 Evidence*	221 Evidence*

*A student is required to enroll in Evidence in either the fall or spring semester of their second year.

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Courses Menu and Practice Foundation Courses Menu:

Statutory Courses	Practice Foundation Courses
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
224 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

16.1.a.ii. A student who matriculates after January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
112 Torts I	122 Torts II
115 Property I	125 Property II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II
	126 Criminal Law

Second Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
212 Constitutional Law	221 Evidence*
221 Evidence*

*A student is required to enroll in Evidence in either the fall or spring semester of their second year.

Second or Third Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Courses Menu and Practice Foundation Courses Menu:

Statutory Courses	Practice Foundation Courses
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
224 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students

A student enrolled in the part-time program is required to complete the following courses in the indicated sequence unless an exception is granted by the Dean of the Dean's designee.

16.1.b.i. A student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
112 Torts I	122 Torts II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
	121 Contracts

Second Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
126 Criminal Law	212 Constitutional Law
115 Property I	125 Property II
221 Evidence/Elective*	221 Evidence/Elective*

*A student must take Evidence in the fall or spring of the second year.

Third and Fourth Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Courses Menu and Practice Foundation Courses Menu:

Statutory Courses	Practice Foundation Courses
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
224 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

16.1.b.ii. A student who matriculates after January 1, 2015

First Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
112 Torts I	122 Torts II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
	121 Criminal Law

Second Year

Fall Semester	Spring Semester
111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II
115 Property I	125 Property II
212 Constitutional Law	221 Evidence

Third and Fourth Year

A. 224 Professional Responsibility

B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Courses Menu and Practice Foundation Courses Menu:

Statutory Courses	Practice Foundation Courses
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
224 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

c. Other Required Courses for Full-Time and Part-Time Students

In addition to the above listed courses, a student is required to satisfy both the advanced writing and the skills requirements.

1. Advanced Writing
   A student is required to enroll in a two (2) or three (3) hour advanced writing course. The advanced writing requirement is be met by earning a C or better in an advanced writing course. (See Section 12.5.) See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the advanced writing requirement. (See Section 12.5.) A student is required to complete the first-year full-time curriculum prior to enrollment in an advanced writing course, unless a waiver is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee.

2. Skills
   A student is required to have at least two credit-hours of skills courses to satisfy the skills requirement. (See Section 12.2.) See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the skills requirement.

d. Limitations on Courses for Credit toward Graduation

1. Not more than a total of twelve (12) credit hours may be utilized toward satisfying graduation requirements by satisfactorily completing the following courses:

   (a) Any externship,
   (b) Law Review and Law Review Board,
   (c) Moot Court (including Moot Court Board, Moot Court Executive Board, and inter-school or intra-school competition credit),
   (d) Independent Research, and
   (e) Advanced Clinic.

2. To satisfy graduation requirements, a student is permitted a total of three (3) externships, two (2) clinic courses, or a combination of (1) clinic and (2) two externship courses. Absent permission from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, a student may not repeat a clinic or externship, may not enroll in both a clinic and externship in the same semester or summer session, and may not enroll in more than one clinic or more than one externship in any semester or summer session. For enrollment purposes in these limited enrollment courses, a student who has taken one clinic will not receive priority for a second clinic, and a student who has taken one externship will not receive priority for a second externship.

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement

For good cause shown and to avoid hardship, waiver of completion of any required course may be permitted only with the approval of the Academic Affairs Committee and on conditions set by the Committee.

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement

A student may complete the law school's degree requirements no earlier than 24 months after a student has commenced law study at the law school or a law school from which the school has accepted transfer credit.

16.4 Six-Year Requirement

A student must complete all of such student's graduation requirements within six (6) calendar years from the date of the student's initial enrollment in law school or forfeit all hours earned during this period. The student will, however, be allowed to reapply for admission as an entering student and compete with other applicants for a position in the entering class, with no credit allowed for prior work. The Academic Affairs Committee may make an exception to the foregoing rule if the student submits a proposed course of study for approval, but in no event may a student extend study so that the J.D. degree is not completed within 84 months of the time the student commenced law study.

16.5 Work at Other Schools

Any work to be taken at another law school on a transient basis must be approved by the Dean prior to the student's attendance at such other law school. Once approved, a student may not utilize more than 30 semester hours toward the student's degree at this law school, unless an exception is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee.

16.6 Grade Requirement

A student must have a grade point average of 2.00 or better in all work undertaken at the University of Memphis to graduate.

16.7 Completion of Work

All required courses must be completed. Completion of a course consists of sufficient attendance in class, performance of all required work, the taking of all examinations, making a passing grade (D or above or, in the case of non-graded course, a grade of E or S), with the exception of the research requirement which requires a grade of C or above. (See Section 12.5.) Failure to complete work in any course as it is required, or to take an examination when required, will result in a grade of F in the course. Delay in completing the work in a course may be permitted, as outlined under Delay in Completing Required Work. (See Section 10.)

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement

A student must complete forty hours of pro bono service to graduate. Please see the Pro Bono Program Handbook for more information.

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.

To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS

18.1 Auditing Courses

Subject to limited exceptions, all students enrolled in any course must be a J.D. degree candidate at this law school or have been admitted to the School of Law as a transient student. Exceptions are made for practicing attorneys, members of the faculty of the University, graduates of the University, students pursuing a graduate degree program of the University, and students pursuing graduate degree programs at other accredited universities or colleges. These individuals should contact the office of the Dean for additional information.

18.2 Transient Students

A transient student is a student currently in good standing at another ABA accredited law school and enrolled in this law school for the purpose of transferring the credits earned to the law school in which the student is enrolled as a degree candidate.

18.3 Foreign Lawyers

At the discretion of the Dean or the Dean’s designee, a person who has graduated from a foreign law school (or equivalent institution) and has demonstrated proficiency in the English language, which may include objective assessment through a standardized test, may enroll in up to twenty-four(24) credits in courses offered in the first year of law school.

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS

Requirements for student research papers other than those required in seminars are available from the Law School Registrar. Students must secure permission from the supervising faculty member prior to enrolling in Research I. No more than one hour credit may be obtained in this way. (See Section 16.I.d.)

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION

20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records

In compliance with provisions of the "Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974," the School of Law abides by the rules and regulations of the University pertaining to the confidentiality of student records, the release of that information, and the rights of students and others to have access to such records as set forth in the University Student Handbook, University Bulletins and Schedules of Classes. Copies of these publications are available at the office of the Dean.

20.2 Grade Information

Individual grades will not be divulged over the telephone. Grades for seminar papers are accepted and may be furnished to students individually by the faculty member or the office of the Dean. All grades will be posted by the office of the Dean when received by that office from the instructor, but no earlier than three (3) weeks after the end of the examination period. Thereafter, grades will be posted as received. (See 20.3 for students' rights to not to have their grades posted.) Except for circumstances beyond the control of a faculty member, all grades should be reported by the faculty within three (3) weeks of the end of any examination period. Individual grade reports will be mailed by the University Registrar to each student.

20.3 Non-Posting of Grades Upon Request

Pursuant to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, students may request that their grades not be posted in any manner. Students so requesting will receive their grades individually from the office of the Dean.

21. HONOR CODE

21.1 Definitions

a. "Accused" refers to a student accused of a violation of the Honor Code.

b. "Appellate Board" refers to the three-person appellate board consisting of the Dean, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, and one member of the full-time faculty. The Dean shall select the faculty member on the Appellate Board.

c. "Associate Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the Chief Justice if the Chief Justice is unable to preside over any meeting, hearing, or function involving the Honor Council.

d. "Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the head and the voice of the Honor Council and is vested with the authority to run the Council and hearing processes.

e. “Class” and “Course” refer to any academic enterprise that awards credit toward a degree or any law school-sanctioned, co-curricular activity including but not limited to Moot Court and Law Review.

f. For the purpose of determining deadlines, “day” means any regular business day of the School of Law, and does not include weekends, holidays observed by the School of Law, or any day on which the School of Law is not open to conduct regular business.

g. “Dean” refers to the Dean of the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis, or that person’s designee.

h. “Elections” are the mechanism by which the student body will elect student justices.

i. “Honor Council” refers to the group of Student Justices that has plenary authority to review alleged violations under the Honor Code and to impose those sanctions it deems appropriate. The Honor Council consists of eleven members: five from the 2L class, and six from the 3L class.

j. “Investigators” refer to the two Honor Council members, appointed by the Chief Justice on a case-by-case basis, who will serve as fact gatherers for the preliminary hearings, and who will also serve as presenters of information in all preliminary and main hearings. The Investigators will not have a vote on matters to which they are appointed.

k. “Notice” means written notice and includes e-mail messages.

l. “Secretary” refers to the Student Justice who is responsible for keeping an adequate record of proceedings, as set forth herein.

m. “Student Counsel” refers to a current member of the student body requested by the Accused to be his or her counsel. The Student Counsel may act on behalf of the Accused in an Honor Council hearing. The Student Counsel shall keep confidential any information learned in the course of his or her representation. Current Honor Council members may not serve as Student Counsel.

n. “Student Justice” refers to an individual member of the Honor Council. Any student who has been convicted of a violation of the Honor Code may not serve as a Student Justice.

o. “Writing” includes a letter, memorandum, or e-mail message sent to a student’s School of Law e-mail account.

21.2 Scope

a. This Code applies to all students admitted to the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time a law student applies for admission through graduation and that occurs:

1. at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law;

2. at an off-site event sponsored by the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law; or

3. in connection with a Course.

b. The Code also applies to students enrolled in courses or programs sponsored or co-sponsored by the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time the student is admitted to the course or program and that occurs under the scope of (b)(1)(A-C) of this Code.

c. Investigations may be initiated or continued after a student has graduated, but no later than the time that student is admitted to a state bar. If an Honor Code matter is pending when a student is scheduled to graduate, the student's degree may be withheld at least until the matter is resolved, or for 90 days, whichever is less.

21.3 Oath

A degree-seeking student who registers at the School of Law will take the following oath before beginning classes:

"I [state name], as a student at The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at The University of Memphis, understand that I am joining an academic community and am embarking on a professional career. The law school community and the legal profession share important values that are reflected in the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Academic Honor Code and in its Code of Conduct. I have read this Code, and will conduct my academic, professional, and personal life to honor the values reflected therein."

Each student shall sign a statement attesting that the student has read and understands the provisions of the Honor Code.

21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct

An act of dishonesty is a wrongful or improper act that questions a student's academic honesty or integrity; an act of misconduct is a wrongful, improper or prohibited act. The Honor Council has the authority to investigate either an act of dishonesty or an act of misconduct. Acts of dishonesty and misconduct include but are not limited to the following:

a. Cheating. Using or attempting to use unauthorized materials or sources in connection with any assignment, examination, or other academic exercise, or having someone else do work for the student when forbidden by the professor.

b. Unauthorized assistance or collaboration. Giving or receiving aid on an assignment, examination, or other academic exercise when not permitted by the professor.

c. Plagiarism and inappropriate use of others' work. Using the words, thoughts, or ideas of another without attribution so that they seem as if they are the student's own.

1. Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to, copying another's work word-for-word, turning in a paper written by another, rewriting another's work with only minor changes, and summarizing another's work or taking another person's ideas without acknowledging the source through proper attribution and citation.

2. An accidental omission of a citation(s) will not be considered an act of academic misconduct, unless other facts determine otherwise.

3. The faculty member responsible for grading the academic work in question has plenary authority either to make a referral of plagiarism to the Honor Council, if that faculty member is unclear if there is a violation, or to reduce the student's grade based on the academic merits of the academic work. The faculty member may not make a determination of a violation, because that is within the sole authority of the Honor Council.

d. Misappropriation of and damage to academic and personal materials. Damaging, misappropriating, or disabling academic resources so that others cannot use them is considered misconduct. This includes but is not limited to removing pages from books, stealing books or articles, hiding or misplacing books or articles intentionally, deleting or damaging computer files intended for others' use, or the taking of any personal property on school grounds.

e. Compromising examination security. Invading the security maintained for preparing or storing examinations, tampering with exam-making or exam-taking software, or discussing any part of a test or examination with a student who has not yet taken that examination but is scheduled to do so.

f. Deception and misrepresentation. Lying about or misrepresenting a student's own work, academic records, credentials, or other academic matters or information. Examples of deception and misrepresentation include but are not limited to: forging signatures, signing another student's name or initials on a roll sheet, forging letters of recommendation, falsifying internship, externship, or clinic documentation, falsifying pro bono records, or falsifying information in an application or on a résumé.

g. Electronic dishonesty. Using network or computer access in a way that inappropriately affects a class or other students' academic work. Non-exhaustive examples of electronic dishonesty include tampering with another student's account so that the student cannot complete or submit an assignment, stealing a student's work through electronic means, or knowingly spreading a computer virus.

h. Facilitating academic dishonesty. Aiding someone else to commit an act of academic dishonesty. This includes but is not limited to giving someone work product to copy or allowing someone to cheat from a student's own examination or assignment.

i. Writing past the end of an examination. Continuing to respond to a test or examination question when the time allotted has elapsed.

j. Failing to disclose admonitory incidents. A matriculated student, a student who is accepted to law school but has not yet enrolled, and a student enrolled in law school must report all admonitory incidents as described in the student's law school application to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, the student must provide all corroborating documentation, including but not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record. A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application is in violation of this Code.

k. Failing to amend admissions application. A student has a continuing responsibility to ensure the completeness and correctness of his or her admissions application to the School of Law by disclosing to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs any factual irregularities or discrepancies in the application.

A student or graduate violates this Code when he or she supplies false information on the Admissions Application or the LSAT application, or submits forged or altered documents in aid of admission, or submits as his/her LSAT score the score of another person.

A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application or who provides false or misleading information on the law school application is in violation of this Code. The disclosure must include a statement of the reasons for failing to report the information or for providing misleading information on the application. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, corroborating documentation includes, but is not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record.

l. Knowingly referring false allegation(s). It is a violation of this Code to knowingly make a false allegation or referral pursuant to this Code or to assist another in doing so.

m. Duty to Report. A student shall report any act or conduct raising a reasonable belief that a violation of the honor code has occurred. A student who fails to meet the duty to report is in violation of the honor code except that a student does not abridge the duty to report when, based upon a good faith belief that a violation has been reported or that the conduct in question is not a violation of the honor code, he or she fails to report a violation of the honor code.

For the purposes of this provision, actual knowledge of a violation is not required to form a reasonable belief that a violation has occurred. A reasonable belief exists when there is a reasonable basis for the belief, based upon personal observation or the report of others that a violation of the honor code has occurred.

n. Illegal activity on school grounds or at school-sponsored events. A student who is accused of, charged with, or arrested while on School of Law grounds or at a School of Law sponsored event will be investigated by the Honor Council and subject to sanctions under this Code.

21.5 Sanctions

a. Types of sanctions: This Code does not require any particular sanction or range of sanctions. The appropriate sanction(s) in a particular case will depend on the circumstances as determined by the Honor Council. Multiple sanctions may be imposed in connection with any violation. Below is a non-exhaustive list of sanctions that may be imposed under this Code, upon recommendation of the Honor Council with approval by the Dean.

1. Written warning;

2. Community or law school service;

3. Counseling or referral to a student support service;

4. Letter of apology or explanation of conduct;

5. Academic penalty, such as a research paper, a lower or failing grade, or no credit for an assignment or course; this penalty may be imposed only by the Honor Council after the Chief Justice consults with and receives the recommendation of the course professor;

6. Exclusion or suspension from one or more activities, events, functions, benefits, or privileges of the School of Law;

7. Disciplinary probation for a set period of time, determined by the Honor Council, during which the student must fulfill any requirements imposed by the Honor Council due to a violation; if the student fails to fulfill the conditions during the disciplinary probation period, the Honor Council may determine that the student has violated the probation and may impose new or additional sanctions; the Honor Council must give the student notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond before making such a determination;

8. Suspension from the School of Law;

9. Expulsion from the School of Law;

10. Revocation of admission from the School of Law;

11. Denial of a dean’s certificate (diploma);

12. Suspension or revocation of a degree, certification, or other award conferred by the School of Law; or

13. Any combination thereof.

b. Effective date of sanctions: All sanctions are effective immediately, unless stayed by the Chief Justice or Dean. The Accused may request that the Chief Justice stay the sanction during the review process.

1. The Chief Justice will stay the sanction at the request of the Accused if the matter has been appealed by the Accused or accepted for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The sanction will take immediate effect once the Appellate Board denies the appeal or otherwise renders a final judgment upon review.

c. Mitigating and aggravating factors: In determining the sanction, the Honor Council may consider mitigating and aggravating factors. A non-exhaustive list of factors that may be considered include the following:

1. Pre-referral admission,

2. Other admissions,

3. Cooperation,

4. Intent,

5. Degree of harm or seriousness of offense,

6. Prior violations,

7. Nexus to professional standards,

8. Willingness to make restitution.

d. Authority of faculty: This Code does not diminish or modify a faculty member's authority to assess students or to formulate grades in the normal course of teaching for academic reasons unrelated to an Honor Code violation. If a faculty member wishes to reduce or modify a grade as a penalty for an instance of dishonesty such as those covered by section (d) of this Code, the faculty member may do so by referring the matter to the Honor Council. If a faculty member chooses to refer a student to the Honor Council, the faculty member may not impose a grade penalty for an alleged Honor Code violation if the Honor Council finds the student not guilty of the relevant dishonesty. If the Honor

Council finds that the student is guilty, the Honor Council shall consult with the faculty member regarding the nature of the grade penalty. Faculty members are encouraged to publish their policy on the Honor Code in the court syllabus.

21.6 Procedures

a. Referrals

1. Method of Referral: A student shall refer a violation of this Code to any student member of the Honor Council, to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, or to a faculty member. Referrals may be made in person or through any method approved by the Honor Council, but are not required to be in writing. Referrals may not be made anonymously. However, the identity of a referring student will remain confidential unless the referring student waives his or her right to confidentiality. Further, a student referring a matter may be required to repeat information he or she provides to other Honor Council members or at a hearing.

2. Sua Sponte Referrals: If the Honor Council becomes aware of information that suggests that a student subject to this Code may have violated a provision of the Code, the Honor Council may treat this information as a referral for purposes of this Code.

b. Investigation and decision

1. After receiving a referral, the Chief Justice will appoint Investigators and instruct the Investigators to gather the relevant facts.

2. The Investigators:

i. shall determine whether the referral primarily reflects academic or nonacademic misconduct;

ii. shall make a preliminary determination as to whether the referral reflects conduct that falls within the scope of this Honor Code by an individual subject to this Honor Code;

iii. may interview the person making the referral and other persons with information, and may seek additional information regarding the referral and shall instruct all interviewees of the confidential nature of the investigation;

iv. shall meet with the Accused;

v. may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision;

vi. shall present to the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary all findings so that the three have sufficient information upon which to determine that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Honor Code has been violated;

3. At the meeting with the Investigator, the Accused will be provided with:

   i. an explanation of any Honor Code section at issue and the nature of the conduct that is the basis for invoking that Code section(s);

   ii. all information gathered during the investigation;

   iii. a reasonable opportunity to respond; and

   iv. an explanation of the applicable disciplinary procedures.

4. The referral will be considered an allegation under this Code only after the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary determine, by a majority vote, that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Accused violated the Honor Code. A sufficient basis will exist if the referral relates to an allegation of fact, which, if true, would constitute a violation of the Honor Code. The Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision. If no substantive basis exists, the referral will be dismissed.

5. If the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary decide that there is sufficient basis upon which to proceed with an allegation, the Chief Justice will have the Investigators present their findings to three non-officers of the Honor Council. These non-officers will make a probable cause determination, and will decide, by a majority vote, whether to dismiss the claim(s) or proceed to a hearing.

6. A student who fails to attend a scheduled meeting with the Investigator or Honor Council risks a decision being rendered in absentia, for a negative inference will be drawn, unless excused by the Investigator(s) or Chief Justice.

c. Hearing Process

1. Upon determination that a hearing is necessary, the Accused will be notified in writing and in person by the Chief Justice that a referral to the Honor Council has been deemed sufficient, based on probable cause, to warrant a hearing, and the Accused will be informed of the dates and procedures for such a hearing.

The hearing will take place within a reasonable amount of time from the time of notification.

2. After carefully considering the information gathered, the Investigators will present their findings to the Honor Council.

3. The names of any witnesses expected to appear at the hearing, as well as any relevant facts, will be provided to the accused at a reasonable time before the hearing so that the accused may present a comprehensive defense to the allegations.

4. In addition to the Honor Council, the following individuals shall be present at the hearing:

   i. The Investigators,

   ii. The Accused and his or her Student Counsel.

5. Witnesses will be permitted at the hearing to give testimony at the request of either the Investigator(s) or the Accused, and the Chief Justice may allow said witnesses to remain at the hearing upon his or her discretion.

6. The Honor Council shall conduct the hearing in the following manner:

   i. The process must include, but is not limited to, examination of the Accused, if the Accused chooses to testify, and any other substantiating witness(es);

   ii. A substantiating witness does not necessarily have to be the initial referring student;

   iii. The Accused or his or her Student Counsel will have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) during a hearing after the Investigator's direct examination. The Investigators will also have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) the Accused or Student Counsel puts forth. The Investigators and Accused or Student Counsel will have the opportunity to redirect a witness upon request which may be granted by the Chief Justice;

   iv. All questioning, cross-examination, and redirection will be strictly limited to the scope of the hearing regarding an Honor Code violation. The Chief Justice will have the plenary discretion to determine if a question is within the scope of the hearing.

   v. The Investigators and the Accused may put forth any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, but the Honor Council may take into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision.

7. After all the facts have been considered and the Accused has been given a sufficient opportunity to respond, the Honor Council shall decide, by a majority vote of those present and voting, whether a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence. If a Student Justice is unable to vote impartially based on any bias at any point before, during, or after the hearing has commenced, he or she may be excused from the hearing, which includes relinquishment of voting responsibilities. In the event of an even number of justices at the end of a hearing, the Chief Justice will not cast a vote. If the Honor Council decides that a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence, the Honor Council must determine the appropriate sanction by a majority vote. At all times, the sanction(s) imposed by the Honor Council shall be reasonably warranted by the facts and subject to approval by the Dean.

8. The Decision of the Honor Council is final, pending approval by the Dean, and pending a request for review by the Accused.

9. The Chief Justice will notify the Dean of the Honor Council's decision at the conclusion of the hearing so that the Dean may approve or reject the Honor Council's decision.

10. Within five days of receiving approval from the Dean, the Honor Council will provide the Accused with written notice of its decision. Such notice must describe the alleged violation, the determination of the Honor Council regarding whether a violation occurred, and, if so, the sanction(s) imposed.

d. Review

1. An Accused who has been sanctioned for a violation of the Honor Code by the Honor Council may petition for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The request for review must be in writing and must be delivered to the Chief Justice within five days of the Honor Council issuing its decision. The Chief justice must deliver the request for review to the Appellate Board, and the Chief Justice, in his or her discretion, may grant an extension of time to the Accused for the filing of request for review.

3. After receiving the request for review, the Honor Council will compile the referring document, if any, any written response from the Accused, all relevant materials submitted to the Honor Council, and the Honor Council's decision. The request for review and accompanying documents shall be submitted to the Appellate Board in a timely manner.

4. The Appellate Board shall review any and all information submitted by the Honor Council. The Appellate Board will review the record de novo and may review determinations of fact made by the Honor Council, but that review is limited to the record. The Appellate Board may affirm, modify, remand, or overturn the decision of the Honor Council, but the Appellate Board cannot overturn an acquittal.

21.7 Elections

a. The ballot for elections to the Honor Council will be determined by anonymous nominations from the student body, submitted to the Dean or assignee.

   1. Once the nomination process is complete, the Dean shall email each nominee and explain that he will apply the standard in part (a)(2) and allow the nominee to withdraw, submit a brief statement in support of his or her nomination, or do nothing.

   2. The Dean shall review the nomination list and may remove nominees from the list if the Dean or designee determines that a nominee is ineligible based on past admonitions in the student's admissions record pertaining to illegal or unethical conduct, a precarious academic status, or other competent information.

   3. After nominees have been notified and accepted their nominations, a final list of nominees will be put on a ballot. Elections will be held at the end of the semester, coinciding with SBA elections.

b. Each student casting a vote for his or her respective class will indicate, on the ballot, which nominees he or she selects based on the number of available positions for that class.

c. If, at any time, a Student Justice is unable to be a member of the Honor Council due to death, transfer, Honor Code violation, or the like, the position will be vacant until the next election, except under exceptional circumstances as determined by the Chief Justice.

d. The SBA will be responsible for administering the election and will have authority to promulgate reasonable rules governing it.

   1. A student in the 2L class will cast five votes, and a student in the 3L class will cast three votes.

   2. The five nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

i. The three nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated for a two-year term on the Honor Council.

ii. The remaining two nominees will serve a one-year term on the Honor Council.

iii. The nominee who receives the most votes from the 2L class will serve as Secretary in his or her first year and Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

iv. The nominee who receives the second most votes will serve as Associate Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

v. The nominee who receives the third most votes will serve Student Justice in his or her third year on the Honor Council.

3. The three nominees from the 3L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

4. A student is only permitted to vote for nominees in his or her class.

21.8 Reporting and Record-keeping

a. The Honor Council's written decision and all other documentation will be placed in the student's file in the Registrar's Office.

b. A finding that the Accused has violated the Honor Code will be reported by the Dean to any board of bar examiners or similar organization for any bar to which the Accused applies. Students should be aware that most bar applications will require the student to report any sanctions imposed on the student by an educational institution, regardless of whether the sanctions were for conduct suggesting unfitness for the practice of law. Students also should be aware that the School of Law routinely responds to inquiries regarding student character and fitness from boards of bar examiners and similar organizations.

c. Approximately two weeks before the last day of classes, the Honor Council must provide a report to the faculty and the SBA providing the following information:

1. For referrals, the number of referrals considered by the Honor Council's Investigators, the Honor Code provisions implicated by the referrals, and the number of referrals dismissed without further proceedings;

2. For allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the number of allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the Honor Code provisions implicated by those allegations, and the number of allegations dismissed without further proceedings;

3. For each allegation submitted to a final hearing, state the Honor Code provisions implicated by the allegation, the determination regarding whether a violation occurred as to each implicated Honor Code provision, and the sanction(s) imposed, if any. Additionally, for each allegation submitted to a final hearing, the report shall indicate the status of the decision in terms of review by the Appellate Board (e.g., "The time for review has expired without a request for review."). If a decision was reviewed by the Appellate Board, the report should state the outcome of the review or indicate that the review is pending.

21.9 Confidentiality

a. The School of Law considers referrals and hearings under the Honor Code to be confidential. All participants should respect the confidentiality of this information and disclose it only to those who have authority to know.

b. A violation of the confidentiality of any proceeding, other than by the Accused or with the express consent of the Accused, will be considered an Honor Code violation.

21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee

a. The Dean, on a periodic basis, may appoint a committee to review all decisions rendered for the purposes of amending these procedures under the Honor Code since the last review.

b. The committee will be determined by appointment by the Dean from the full-time faculty members, but also may include students, staff, alumni, attorneys, national experts, and others the Dean considers appropriate.

c. Information provided to the committee should not contain names of any persons involved with the matter.

d. The committee should prepare a written report that privately advises the Dean about whether, overall, the sanctions issued under the Code were appropriate. No individual result can be changed as a result of this review and report.

e. The committee also may make recommendations to the Dean about possible amendments to the Honor Code. These recommendations will be published to the faculty and the Honor Council.

21.11 Amendments

Amendments to the Honor Code may be proposed by any member of the faculty, by the Honor Council through a majority vote, or member of the student body accompanied by a written petition with twenty-five signatures supporting the amendment, and the amendment must be approved by a majority of the full-time voting faculty, only after consulting with the Honor Council.

a. Any amendment must be published on the announcement bulletin board and emailed to every member of the law school.

b. Any amendments to the Honor Code are not effective until the next full academic semester following the vote to amend the Code.

22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE

22.1 Grades

a. It will be the obligation of the student to arrange a conference with the faculty member involved in sufficient time to meet the time limit set out in 22.1c, below.

b. It will be the obligation of the faculty member to meet with the student to discuss the complaint and try in good faith to reconcile the differences.

c. If the faculty member and the student are unable to resolve the complaint, the student may file a written complaint in duplicate with the Dean of the Law School not more than sixty (60) days after the last examination was given in the term in which the complaint relates, or fifteen (15) days after the grade is posted, whichever is later. The complaint will specifically allege the grounds on which the complaint is based and the cause for action by the committee. The grounds will be supported by a narrative statement of fact.

d. If the faculty member is not available for conference with the student, after the student has made a good faith effort to initiate such conference, the student may omit the procedure in 22.1c. However, in no event will this paragraph become operative until fifty-five (55) days have elapsed since the last examination was given in the term to which the complaint relates.

e. Upon receipt of the WRITTEN COMPLAINT (in compliance with the provisions of paragraph 22.1c) the Dean will attempt to resolve the complaint by consultations with the student and the faculty member. If the complaint is not resolved within fifteen (15) days after the written complaint is filed or if the complaint is resolved adversely to the student, the student may appeal to the Academic Affairs Committee, sitting as the Grade Appeals Committee by requesting that the Dean forward the complaint together with all documents considered in any prior proceedings. Provided, however, that all appeals must be made no later than twenty (20) days after the written complaint is filed with the Dean of the Law School, or five (5) days after the conference with the Dean, whichever is later. The Committee upon receipt of the complaint from the Dean will determine whether or not a prima facie case has been alleged and whether the matter should be heard. Failure to allege a cause of action will result in a dismissal of the petition forthwith.

f. It shall be the obligation of the student to present evidence and a prima facie case as set out below.

g. The Committee shall hear such evidence as is relevant that the faculty member used factors extraneous to academic performance to determine, at least in part, the student's grade. The grading factors listed in 12.5 shall not be deemed to be factors extraneous to academic performance on the grounds that adequate notice of the instructor's use of such factors was not given.

h. The faculty member at whom the appeal is directed may be present if the complaint specifically alleges prejudice, bias or discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin, age, handicap or disability, sexual orientation or gender. The faculty member will not have the right to attend other hearings in which the student presents his/her evidence set out in 22.1g above, although the Committee in its discretion may request or allow him/her to attend. In the event that the faculty member is permitted to attend under any circumstances he/she may do so without comment or examination of any parties to the hearing. The faculty member may not under any circumstances participate or sit in on any deliberation or voting. The Committee upon request will provide the faculty member with a copy of all written statements or documents utilized by the student in making his/her prima facie case. Neither the faculty member nor the student may be represented by counsel or next friend.

i. After the presentment of the student's evidence the Committee will determine whether the student has presented a prima facie case.

j. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has not been made, the appeal will be dismissed by the Committee. The Committee will notify the Dean of the Committee's decision and the Dean will then notify the student.

k. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has been made, it will then determine whether bias, prejudice or other factors extraneous to academic performance did in fact adversely affect the student's grade.

l. In making the determination in 22.1k, above, the Committee shall with the faculty member present, if he/she desires to be, review the written work submitted by the student in the course and review the method by which the final grade was determined.

m. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may request a written statement from the faculty member containing any outline of his/her answers to any examination questions and a statement of how the grade was determined.

n. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may, in its discretion, request written work turned in by other students to be used for comparison purposes.

The material and information requested in 22.1, m. and n above will be used only to determine whether factors extraneous to academic performance were used in determining the grade. No evaluation for rank, policy, or substantive determinations will be considered.

o. Should any member of the Committee (a) be unavailable, or (b) excuse himself/herself because of a conflict of interest, the Dean will appoint a substitute member to serve on the Committee for all matters involving the case in question.

p. Any determinations by the Committee as to the grade of the appealing student shall be final within the School of Law. The Dean, faculty member and student will be given notification of the decision of the Committee.

q. The Committee may request the assistance of other members of the law faculty in reviewing the written work submitted by the student and written work of other students used for comparison purposes. The request of assistance of other members of the law faculty will be for the purpose of determination of the use of factors extraneous to the course work in determining the student's grade.

23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis is subject to the ABA Standards for Approval of Law schools. The Standards may be found at http://www.americanbar.org/groups/legal_education/resources/standards.html. Under ABA Standard 512(a), a law school "shall establish, publish, and comply with policies with respect to addressing student complaints." Under ABA standard 512(c), a "complaint" is a communication in writing that seeks to bring to the attention of the law school a significant problem that directly implicates the school's program of legal education and its compliance with the Standards."

23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint

To bring a complaint, a student at the Law School must take the following steps:

a. A student must hand deliver the complaint in writing to a member of the Student Complaint Review Committee ("Review Committee"). The Review Committee is composed of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, the Assistant Dean for Administration, and the Assistant Dean for Student Affairs.

b. The complaint must describe in detail the behavior, program, or process complained of, and demonstrate how it implicates the Law School's program of legal education and the school's compliance with a particular ABA Standard.

c. The complaint must provide the name of the student submitting the complaint, the student's University of Memphis email address, an address where the student receives U.S. mail, and a phone number where the student can be reached.

23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint

a. Once a complaint is delivered, a member of the Review Committee will acknowledge the receipt of the complaint in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within seven business days.

b. A member of the Review Committee must either meet with the student to discuss the resolution of the complaint or mail a written response to the substance of the complaint to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days.

c. The written response must either state a decision regarding the substance of the complaint with an explanation for that decision, or explain steps that the Law School will take to resolve or further investigate the complaint.

d. Absent exceptional circumstances, the Review Committee shall endeavor to fully investigate and resolve all complaints within ninety business days from the date of the complaint.

23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution

a. A student may appeal the Review Committee's resolution to the Dean.

b. The student must hand deliver the appeal to the Dean or Dean's designee in writing within seven business days of the date of resolution.

c. The appeal must describe in detail the grounds for appeal. The appeal may not include complaints not covered in the original complaint.

d. The Dean shall endeavor to respond to the appeal in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days from the date the appeal was submitted.

e. The Dean's decision is final.

23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints

The Assistant Dean for Administration shall maintain a record of the student complaints, resolutions, and appeals for a period of eight years.

24. NOTIFICATIONS

Notifications to students concerning class assignments, attendance, and all other matters pertaining to the Law School and its activities may be given by faculty or the Law School administration as follows:

a. by posting in the mails for delivery by regular mail to the address of a student set forth in the records maintained by the Law School's Registrar; or

b. by posting on the bulletin boards on the second floor of the Law School; or

c. by delivery to a student=s mail folder at the Law School.

Any notification so given shall be deemed received by the student.

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS

In addition to the Academic Regulations as set forth herein governing the rights and responsibilities of law students, the policies and procedures of the university as set forth in the most recent edition of the Student Handbook of The University of Memphis apply to law students. Such policies and procedures include, but are not limited to:

I. Privacy Rights of Parents & Students -- Notice to Students

II. Harassment Policy

III. Student Appeal Procedure for Discrimination

IV. Withdrawal or Temporary Suspension due to Severe Psychological Disturbance

V. Students with Disabilities

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES

These academic regulations shall be interpreted and construed in such a way as to be consistent with the rules and regulations of The University of Memphis, the Tennessee Board of Regents, the Supreme Court of Tennessee, the American Bar Association or other accrediting entity, and the laws of the State of Tennessee and of the United States.

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS

If any provision in these Academic Regulations shall be held invalid or in contravention of the rules and regulations of the University, or of the laws of the State of Tennessee or the United States, then the remainder of these Academic Regulations shall not be affected thereby.

APPENDIX I

Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree

Attainment of the J.D. degree awarded by the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis means that the student has, in the judgment of the faculty, acquired an acceptable level of mastery of essential skills that the faculty has determined to be prerequisite to entering the practice of law. The purpose of the curriculum of the School of Law is to enable students to acquire these skills. All candidates for the J.D. degree must be capable of acquiring, and ultimately demonstrating, mastery of these skills. The requisite level of mastery includes the ability to perform these skills under circumstances, including time constraints and other performance requirements, that reflect the realities of the practice of law.

In acquiring these skills, it is essential that the candidate behave honestly, responsibly, fairly and professionally. It is also essential that the candidate regularly and punctually be prepared for and attend scheduled obligations and that the candidate meet deadlines.

To the extent that resources permit, the Law School curriculum is intended to enable students to acquire skills other than those essential skills listed below, but the curriculum, taken as a whole, is intended to insure that students master these essential skills:

1. Intellectual Skills:

    1. Knowledge. Ability to identify, define and describe a core body of American legal terminology and classifications, literature (i.e. sources of law), principles and concepts, and judicial and administrative systems.

    2. Comprehension. Ability to paraphrase, explain, compare, organize, and interpret legal knowledge.

    3. Application. Ability to apply legal knowledge in performing legal research and in identifying legal issues in factual situations that differ from those in which the knowledge was first encountered.

    4. Analysis. Ability to formulate legitimate arguments and responses for resolution of legal issues in new factual situations, and to support those arguments and responses, both directly and by analogy, with sources of law.

    5. Evaluation. Ability to evaluate and criticize the quality of legal analysis in terms of both reasoning and support in sources of law.

    6. Synthesis. Ability to apply skills of analysis and evaluation to a complex body of legal knowledge to create an organized and original intellectual product.

2. Communication Skills:

    1. Ability to acquire and preserve information from both oral and written sources.

    2. Ability to communicate effectively the candidate's knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, evaluation, and synthesis skills.

    3. Ability to communicate effectively and responsively in a public forum.

Law School Academic Regulations FAQs

Q—What are the Academic Regulations?

A—The Regulations are the rules of your life as a student in this law school. They reflect our insistence that students behave professionally, and they state our standards for academic excellence. At orientation, you signed a statement acknowledging that you read and understand the regulations and agree to abide by them. You are bound by each such rule. If you have a question about the regulations or a question on an interpretation of the regulations, please see the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs.

Q—Suppose a full-time law student enrolls in six hours in the fall semester. The Associate Dean for Academic Affairs tells him he is in violation of Rule 5.1 of the Academic Regulations. The student says, "But I didn't read that regulation, so you can't hold me to it."

A—See above.

Q—What is Appendix I all about?

A—The appendix entitled Standards for the Attainment of the J.D. Degree is the backdrop to the Regulations. The Standards do two things. They explain the essential analytical and communication skills that we believe every student must master in law school; and they set out some essential student obligations. For example, each student must "behave honestly, responsibly, fairly, and professionally." Additionally, each student must "regularly and punctually be prepared for and attend scheduled obligations" and must "meet deadlines."

Q—Why is Academic Regulation 21 so important?

A—Academic Regulation 21 is the law school's Honor Code. The Rule describes the Honor Council and sets a standard for student academic and professional conduct—The Honor Code. Rule 21 also explains the process for reporting, investigating, and prosecuting alleged offenders. Be sure you clearly understand Rule 21.

Q—Am I allowed to withdraw from law school? If so, how do I re-enroll?

A—Rule 4 deals with withdrawals and re-enrollment. While you may withdraw from law school and—in some circumstances—may re-enroll, you must be able to complete the degree requirements within six years from the date of enrollment.

Q—What is the maximum number of credit hours I can take in a semester?

A—Rule 5 discusses course minimums and maximums for part-time and full-time students. A full-time student must take at least 12 credit hours and may not enroll in more than 18 hours. If a student has less than a 2.5 GPA, a student may not enroll in more than 16 hours without the Associate Dean's permission. A part-time student must enroll in at least 8 hours and not more than 11 hours in each semester.

Q—How do I drop or add a course?

A—Rule 6 discusses dropping and adding courses. Generally, a student has up to 10 days after the start of classes in the fall or spring semesters to drop or add a course. Please note a student who enrolls in a course after the start of classes may be counted absent for the missed classes. Before dropping a course you should consider the impact on grades, refunds, and financial aid.

Q—What happens if I fail a required course?

A—Rule 7 requires students to pass each required course. If a student fails a required course, he or she must retake the course at the next regular semester in which the course is offered. If a course is repeated after a failing grade, the original failing grade remains on the student's transcript, and counts toward the cumulative GPA.

Q—Am I allowed to switch to part-time if I start law school as a full-time student?

A—Rule 8 explains how a part-time student can convert to full-time status and vice versa. Please note, once a student changes his or her status, the student cannot revert back to the original status.

Q—Will my professors take attendance in class?

A—Yes. Rule 9.1 discusses class attendance. The ABA, our accrediting agency, requires class attendance. Both the ABA and the law school agree that class attendance is critical to achieving the essential level of mastery of essential legal skills legal skills. For these reasons, class attendance is required. Each professor has his or her own attendance policy, and it is your responsibility to find out that policy and adhere to it. A student who exceeds the allowable number of absences may be penalized and could fail the course. The Associate Dean will not grant exemptions from class attendance policies.

Q—Can I work while a law student?

A—Yes but with limits. Rule 9.2 explains the limitation on working outside the law school. Per our accrediting agency, the American Bar Association, a full-time student may NOT work more than 20 hours per week. 1Ls are discouraged strongly from working at all.

Q—Where can I get information about examination policies?

A—Rule 10 discusses exams and exam procedures. Please note students may not register for courses with conflicting exams without the Associate Dean's permission. Prior to the close of registration, a student must submit a written request to the Associate Dean asking to register for classes with conflicting exams.

Rule 10.5: Exam grading is anonymous. Each student will receive an examination ID number from the Registrar's office before the start of exams.

Rule 10.8: Taking an exam is conclusive. A student cannot sit for an exam and then decide after the fact that he or she was too sick to take it.

Rule 10.9: If there's an illness or similar emergency, students must notify the Associate Dean or the Registrar before the exam if at all possible or as soon as the student is able. Please do not contact the professor in order to maintain anonymity.

Q—If I'm not happy with a final grade, will my professor ever consider a grade change?

A—Probably not. Rule 11 explains grade changes. A professor may change a student's grade only for computational or objective errors. All other grade changes must be approved by the Academic Affairs Committee.

Q—Does the law school use letter grades or numeric grades?

A—Rule 12 discusses our grading system. You will receive a letter grade for each graded course. The grade is converted to a numeric grade in order to determine your GPA. Your GPA is truncated to two decimal places with no rounding. So, a GPA of 2.769 is recorded as a 2.76. In most classes, your grade is based exclusively on a final examination. But professors may take other factors into account, such as a mid-term, attendance or class participation.

Q—Other than my class grades, how else can I tell how well I'm performing in law school?

A—Rule 13 discusses class rank. Each student is ranked with her or his classmates at the end of the fall and spring semesters. There is no rank after the summer semester; summer grades are calculated with the fall grades.

Q—Do students fail out of law school?

A—Unfortunately, yes. Rule 14 explains the law school's academic eligibility requirements. A student must be in good academic standing to remain in law school. Good academic standing is a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or better. A student whose cumulative GPA falls below a 2.0 may be eligible for an exception to Rule 14. Additionally, a student whose GPA falls below 1.5 at the end of his or her first semester will be academically excluded. Please carefully review Academic Regulation 14.1. Please be aware that there are no appeals from academic exclusion.

Q—What courses do I need to take to graduate?

A--Rule 16 explains the requirement for graduation.. Please review carefully Rule 16 and see the registrar for more information.

Q—Can I take a semester abroad or at another law school?

A—Yes. Rule 17 explains the rules for transferring credit from another law school. The law school must be ABA-approved. Students must earn a C or better, and the transferred grade will show on the transcript, but is not calculated into the cumulative GPA.

Q—Why does the law school require students to disclose all past admonitory actions (arrests, terminations, suspensions, etc.)?

A—The law school admits some students who have had legal or other admonitory problems in the past. We are required to report these incidents to the Board of Bar Examiners when students make application for admission to state bars. Even though we admit students with one or more admonitory incidents, we make no guarantee that any state's Board of Bar Examiners will find the student admissible. If you have any questions, you should contact the Bar Examiners in the state where you intend to practice.

A more serious problem is when a student fails to report an admonitory incident to the law school that the student was required to report in the law school application. If a student did not report an incident that he or she should have reported, the student must report it to the Associate Dean immediately. Failure to do so can result in a referral to the Honor Council.

Q—What happens if I get arrested or face other legal problems while in law school?

A—You must report the incident to the Associate Dean. Bar examiners are more tolerant of legal problems prior to law school than they are with legal problems occurring during law school. Law students are rightly held to a higher standard of conduct and breaches of law are taken seriously. You are under a continuing duty to update your record. See Rule 21.4.k.

Q—If I have a physical or learning disability what should I do?

A—A student with a disability should contact the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. Individual faculty members cannot award an accommodation to a student for a disability. The University of Memphis' office of Disability Resources for Students (DRS) determines whether a student has a disability. When the office enrolls eligible students in the disability program, it contacts the law school regarding suggested accommodations. Students with disabilities may be eligible for class and examination accommodations.

Q—What should I do if I can't figure out what the rules (or a particular rule) means?

A—Please see the Associate Dean.

TENNESSEE BOARD OF LAW EXAMINERS
401 CHURCH STREET, SUITE 2200
NASHVILLE, TN 37219
WWW.TNBLE.ORG
BLE.ADMINISTRATOR@TNCOURTS.GOV

LAW DEGREE VERIFICATION AND DEAN CERTIFICATION FORMS AND INSTRUCTIONS

Beginning with applications for the July 2016 Tennessee Bar Examination, new forms are required to be completed by the law schools for any first time applicant to the Bar of Tennessee. Each First-Time Applicant by Examination to the Tennessee Bar must cause to be provided verification of the law degree and certifications of character and fitness from every law school the applicant attended. Included in this document are the following forms:

I. Applicant's Authorization and Release (Page 1)

INSTRUCTIONS: Complete the Authorization and Release Form (page 1) and sign under oath and in the presence of a notary. Forward the Authorization and Release with the appropriate related forms (from the list below) to the Dean of your law school or other appropriate official for completion. Complete the information in the box at the top of each form and forward to your law school(s) with the Authorization and Release form. The completed forms must be forwarded directly by your law school to the office of the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners at the above address.

II. Law Degree Verification Form and Certificate of Dean of Law School (Pages 2 and 3)

INSTRUCTIONS FOR LAW SCHOOLS: Once complete, this two page form should be forwarded directly to the office of the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners at the address above (note the new zip code) and not sent to the student. This form must be received by the final deadline for filing applications, Dec. 20 for the February exam and May 20 for the July exam. If grades and graduation information is not available, the school can submit the form with the anticipated date and submit the Late Degree Confirmation Form (Item III) to verify completion of all requirements for graduation. This form is also used if the Applicant attended but did not graduate from a law school.

III. Late Confirmation of Degree Form (Page 4)

This form is retained by the school and used to verify completion of all requirements for graduation if Applicant had not completed requirements for graduation when the Law Degree Verification form was submitted. The form must be received by the Board of Law Examiners on or before the Friday immediately preceding the exam or the Applicant will not be eligible to sit for the examination.

IV. Non-ABA Accredited Law School Disclosure (Page 5)

INSTRUCTIONS: Applicants seeking admission by examination who attended a law school approved by the state in which it is located but not ABA accredited, pursuant to Tenn. Sup. Ct. Rule 7, Section 2.02(c), must provide certain additional law school disclosures. Please complete this form and return on or before the deadline (Dec 20 for February exam; May 20 for July exam). NOTE: This information is not required from ABA accredited law schools and law schools located in Tennessee approved pursuant to Tenn. Sup. Ct. R. 7.

NOTE: Applicants to the Bar of Tennessee are responsible for ensuring that all documents are submitted to the Board of Law Examiners in a timely manner. As such, the Applicant must submit the Law Degree Verification to the law school with sufficient time for it to be processed prior to the deadline for applications. For the February exam, forms must be received on or before December 20; for the July exam, forms must be received by May 20. The Board of Law Examiners will not consider forms received after the deadline and the Applicant will not be eligible to sit for the examination.

AUTHORIZATION AND RELEASE OF APPLICANT

TENNESSEE BOARD OF LAW EXAMINERS
401 CHURCH ST., SUITE 2200
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE 37219
(Please note new zip code)

TO BE COMPLETED BY APPLICANT:
I,____, authorize and request every person, firm, company, corporation, governmental agency, court, association or institution having control of any documents, records, and other information pertaining to me to furnish to the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners any such information, including documents, records, or any other pertinent data, and to permit the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners or any of their agents or representatives to inspect and make copies of such documents, records and other information. I hereby release, discharge and exonerate the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners, its agents and representatives, and any persons so furnishing information from any and all liability of every kind and nature arising out to the furnishing or inspection of such documents, records, and other information or the investigation made by the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners or its investigating agencies.

____
Signature of Applicant

State of ______________________) County of _____________________)

Subscribed and sworn to before me this (Notary seal) _______ day of ____________ , _____ .

____
Notary Public
My Commission Expires: __________.

To be completed by the Applicant:

____ __________________________
Name of Applicant SS#

LAW DEGREE VERIFICATION FORM

Tennessee Board of Law Examiners | 401 Church St., Suite 2200 | Nashville, Tennessee 37219

I, ____, hereby certify that I am the __________________ of
(name of law school official) (title)

____; that ______________________________ entered the law school of said college (law school) (name of applicant)

on _________________________; and that Applicant
(date)

☐ has completed all requirements for graduation. The date of the graduation is/was: ____________________ (date).

☐ is on course to complete all requirements for graduation and will have the number of credit hours required for graduation prior to the date of the bar examination. If this box is selected, the school must submit the Late Degree Confirmation Form (See Page 4) as soon as possible upon completion of the coursework, certifying that the Applicant successfully completed the requirements for graduation and the date the degree was or will be conferred. The form must be submitted on or before the Friday immediately preceding the exam.

☐ will not complete all requirements for graduation or have the number of credit hours required for graduation prior to the date of the bar examination.

☐ withdrew or otherwise left this law school prior to graduation (please explain): ____.

Said Law School is: (check one)
__________(a) Accredited by the American Bar Association (ABA).
__________(b) Approved by the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners although not accredited by the ABA.
__________(c) Approved/Accredited by the state in which the school is located although not accredited by the ABA (See page 5.)

I further certify that there [ ] are [ ] are not matters known to me or contained in the graduate's record which may deprecate the graduate's good moral character. If there are matters known or contained in the file, I have appended documents fully explanatory of those matters, and have marked the appropriate items below.

Do the records in your office reflect that the applicant has ever been:	YES	NO
1. arrested?	☐	☐
2. accused of a violation of trust?	☐	☐
3. dropped from any educational institution?	☐	☐
4. suspended from any educational institution?	☐	☐
5. expelled from any educational institution?	☐	☐
6. asked to resign from any educational institution?	☐	☐
7. otherwise disciplined by any educational institution?	☐	☐
8. a party to legal proceedings?	☐	☐
9. a party to proceedings before an administrative agency?	☐	☐
10. addicted to the use of narcotics?	☐	☐
11. addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors?	☐	☐
12. afflicted with or received treatment for emotional disturbance?	☐	☐
13. afflicted with or received treatment for mental disorder?	☐	☐
14. afflicted with or received treatment for nervous disorder?	☐	☐
15. denied admission to the Bar of any other state?	☐	☐
16. delinquent in any financial obligations?	☐	☐

The information furnished above is given with the understanding that it will be revealed to no one not interested in the applicant's admission to the Tennessee bar, and it is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

________________________ ____
(Date) (Signature of law school official)

(School Seal)

To be completed by the Applicant:

____ ______________________________
Name of Applicant SS#

DEAN CERTIFICATION OF CHARACTER AND FITNESS

To the Law School Dean or Designated Official:

Please provide the following information to assist us in evaluating the applicant's character and fitness for admission to the Tennessee bar. Your answers should be based on the school's records, as well as the personal knowledge of the applicant.

	YES	NO
1. Did your law school ever determine, within its discipline system that there was "probable cause" to believe that the applicant had violated the policies or honor code of the law school or the campus code of conduct? If so, please attach a description of the matter and its disposition (including sanctions, if any).	□	□
2. Did the applicant fail to disclose or provide late disclosures of any arrest, discipline, or other infraction that was required to be disclosed on the law school application or disclosed at the time of such event? If so, please attach such disclosures, law school application and any response from the school regarding the disclosures.	□	□
3. While engaging in law school activities including, without limitation, clinical courses and student bar association activities, did the applicant breach any professional or fiduciary obligation or violate any law or ordinance?	□	□
4. Has your law school determined that the applicant filed false charges against fellow students, professors, or other members of the law school community?	□	□
5. Is the applicant in default on any financial obligations to the law school or on student loan?	□	□
6. Has the administration of the law school received any complaints–regardless of disposition–alleging dishonesty or breach of an obligation or duty on the part of the applicant? If so, please attach a description of these complaints and their disposition.	□	□
7. Has the applicant exhibited conduct that suggests the applicant lacks the mental and/or emotional stability necessary to practice law, or that the applicant abuses or is addicted to alcohol or drugs?	□	□
8. Is there any additional information that you wish to provide or do you wish to give the names and addresses of others with pertinent information?	□	□

If you answered "Yes" to any question above, please attach to this form an explanation of your answer.

Based on the above, do you recommend the applicant's admission to the practice of law? □ Yes □ No

I certify that a review of the applicant's file maintained by this law school has been conducted and that the information provided above is true and correct.

____ ___________________________
Signature Date

____ (School Seal required)
Title

To be completed by the Applicant:

______________________________ ______________________________
Name of Applicant SS#

LAW DEGREE VERIFICATION
LATE CONFIRMATION OF DEGREE FORM

Tennessee Board of Law Examiners | 401 Church St., Suite 2200 | Nashville, Tennessee 37219

I, ______________________________ (name of law school official), hereby certify that I am the ______________________________ (title) of ______________________________ (name of law school); that ______________________________ (name of applicant) entered the law school of said college on ______________________ (date); and that Applicant completed all requirements for graduation on ______________________ (completion date). The date of the graduation is/was: ______________________ (Graduation date).

____
(Date)

(School Seal)

____
(Signature of law school official)

____
(Typed Name of School Official)

Return this completed form directly to the TN Board of Law Examiners on or before the Friday immediately preceding the bar exam for which Applicant has applied. Failure to provide this information will result in denial of eligibility to sit for the examination.

To be completed by the Applicant:

______________________________ ______________________________
Name of Applicant SS#

NON-ABA ACCREDITED LAW SCHOOL DISCLOSURES

Tennessee Board of Law Examiners | 401 Church St., Suite 2200 | Nashville, Tennessee 37219

I, ____, hereby certify that I am the ________________ of
(name of law school official) (title)

____; and that said Law School (check all that apply):
(name of law school)

__________(a) Is accredited by the State Licensing Board in which the law school is located and its graduated are permitted to take the bar examination in the state in which the school is located.

__________(b) Requires the equivalent of a three-year course of study that is the substantial equivalent of the legal education required of ABA or TN-approved law schools.

__________(c) Issues a Juris Doctorate (J.D.) degree.

__________(d) Does not issue the J.D. degree based in whole or in part on study by correspondence or other than in-person attendance.

The information furnished above is given with the understanding that it will be revealed to no one not interested in the applicant's admission to the Tennessee bar, and it is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

______________________ ______________________________________
(Date) (Signature of law school official)

(School Seal)

____
(Typed Name of School Official)

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

APPOINTMENT INFORMATION

To make an appointment with Dean Aden, please send her a calendar invitation. If she is available during the time you propose, she will accept the invitation, and the appointment will appear on your calendar. If she is unavailable during your proposed time, she will decline your invitation, but please request a new time. If you are unsure how to send a calendar invite, please see the instructions below. Dean Aden prefers for you to use Outlook calendar invites, but if you need to use Google Calendar, that is fine.

- Outlook Online Calendar Invite Instructions
- Outlook 2013 Calendar Invite Instructions
- Google Calendar

Sometimes, your calendar may be set to the wrong time zone, which can create problems with calendar invitations. Instructions on how to set your calendar to the correct time zone area available below.

- How to correct the time zone on your outlook calendar.

If you need assistance, please contact Brigitte Boyd.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Sunday, August 7, 2016

5:00 - 7:00 p.m.	Welcome Reception Sponsored by Mr. & Mrs. Jack Belz, the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter & the law firm of Glassman, Wyatt, Tuttle & Cox P.C.	Belz Museum of Asian & Judaic Art

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Monday, August 8, 2016

Time	Event	Location
8:15 – 9:00 a.m.	Breakfast & Registration Breakfast sponsored by the University Bookstore	Historic Lobby
9:00 – 9:15 a.m.	Introduction & Welcome Peter Letsou, Dean, The University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law	Wade Auditorium
9:15 – 9:35 a.m.	Class Introduction Dr. Sue Ann McClellan, Assistant Dean for Law Admissions, Recruiting & Scholarships	Wade Auditorium
9:35 – 10:20 a.m.	Remarks & Swearing-In The Honorable Deborah M. Henderson & Honor Council	Wade Auditorium
10:20 – 10:35 a.m.	Break
10:35 – 11:15 a.m.	Welcome to Memphis Panel Jen Andrews, Executive Director, Shelby Farms Park Conservancy John Carroll, Executive Director, City Leadership Kandace Stewart, Business Operations Coordinator, Memphis Grizzlies	Wade Auditorium
11:15 a.m.– 12:00 p.m.	Writing Professional Email Dr. Marilyn Dunham Smith, Writing Center Director Maintaining a Professional Digital Presence Kara Phillips, Assistant Director for Law Admissions	Wade Auditorium
12:00 – 1:15 p.m.	Lunch & Tour with Legal Methods Small Sections Sponsored by BARBRI	See List of Assignments
1:15 – 2:15 p.m.	Introduction to Legal Methods Section 11 Jodi Wilson, Associate Professor & Director of Legal Methods	Room 325
	Introduction to the Writing Center Section 12 Dr. Marilyn Dunham Smith, Writing Center Director	Room 326
2:20 – 3:20 p.m.	Introduction to the Writing Center Section 11 Dr. Marilyn Dunham Smith, Writing Center Director	Room 325
	Introduction to Legal Methods Section 12 Jodi Wilson, Associate Professor & Director of Legal Methods	Room 326
3:30 – 4:00 p.m.	Navigating the First Year of Law School Steve Mulroy, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs Meredith Aden, Assistant Dean for Student Affairs	Wade Auditorium

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Tuesday, August 9, 2016

Time	Event	Location
8:30 – 9:00 a.m.	Breakfast Sponsored by Kaplan & Lexis-Nexis	Historic Lobby
9:00 – 10:15 a.m.	Legal Methods Class Jodi Wilson, Associate Professor & Director of Legal Methods	Wade Auditorium
10:15 – 10:30 a.m.	Break
10:30 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.	Diversity & Inclusion at Memphis Law Jacqueline O'Bryant, Diversity Coordinator Christina Zawisza, Professor of Clinical Law & Director of Child & Family Litigation Clinic	Wade Auditorium
12:00 – 1:15 p.m.	Welcome to Downtown Lunch	Student Lounge
	Campus IDs We will make student ID cards for students who did not have an ID made prior to orientation from 12:00 – 1:15 today only.	Room 244
1:15 – 2:15 p.m.	Using Formal Language Effectively for Legal Methods Dr. Marilyn Dunham Smith, Writing Center Director	Wade Auditorium
2:15 – 2:30 p.m.	Break Sponsored by Wolters Kluwer
2:30 – 3:15 p.m.	Faculty Panel Jeremy Bock, Assistant Professor Daniel Kiel, Associate Professor John Newman, Assistant Professor	Wade Auditorium
3:15 – 4:00 p.m.	Student Life Panel Dawn Campbell Maggie McGowan Gale Robinson Callie Tran Sydney Trujillo	Wade Auditorium

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Wednesday, August 10, 2016

9:00 – 10:15 a.m.	Introduction to Legal Analysis
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
10:15 – 10:30 a.m.	Break
10:30 – 11:20 a.m.	Intentional Torts I & Demystification of the Socratic Method I
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
11:20 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.	Intentional Torts II & Demystification of the Socratic Method II
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
12:00 – 1:30 p.m.	Lunch & Student Organization Fair	Student Lounge
1:30 – 2:45 p.m.	Intentional Torts III
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
2:45 – 4:00 p.m.	Introduction to Case Reading & Case Briefing
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Thursday, August 11, 2016

9:00 – 10:15 a.m.	Battery I & Advanced Demystification of the Socratic Method I
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
10:15 – 10:30 a.m.	Break
10:30 – 11:20 a.m.	Battery II
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
11:20 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.	Assault I
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
12:00 – 1:30 p.m.	Lunch on Your Own
1:30 – 2:45 p.m.	Introduction to Outlining
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
2:45 – 4:00 p.m.	Introduction to Essay Writing
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

1L Orientation Schedule
Friday, August 12, 2016

9:00 – 10:00 a.m.	Brief Discussion of Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress & Consent
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
10:00 – 10:15 a.m.	Break
10:15 – 11:20 a.m.	Skills Review & Real Life Exercise I
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
11:20 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.	Real Life Exercise II
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
12:00 – 1:30 p.m.	Lunch on Your Own
1:30 – 4:00 p.m.	Final Exam & Conclusion
	Section 11	Room 325
	Section 12	Room 326
5:00 – 7:00 p.m.	SBA 1L Welcome Party	Promenade

Pre-Orientation Checklist for the Class of 2019

	TO DO	DETAILS	DUE DATE	QUESTIONS?
☐	Complete the Law School Orientation Survey	Please complete the survey here to select your T-shirt size.	By Thursday, July 28, 2016	Ryan Jones
☐	RSVP to Welcome Reception	Please RSVP here to the Welcome Reception at the Belz Museum of Asian & Judaic Art.	By Thursday, July 28, 2016	Ida Bounds
☐	Complete the Student Publicity Release Form	Complete the Student Publicity Release Form here.	By Thursday, August 4, 2016	Ryan Jones
☐	Purchase Your Books	Purchase your books from the Law School bookstore. The book list will be available by Wednesday, July 27, 2016, and you can buy books after that. Check the Orientation website for the 1L book list. The bookstore is open from 8:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m. The University of Memphis offers a program for those students who want to use their financial aid (loan) excess money to buy books before federal aid is officially released. The program is called BAPP (Bookstore Advance Payment Plan). Note you have to complete a Title IV authorization form to be approved for BAPP. Note: Since most 1L books are used both semesters, you save no money by renting books; you should buy them.	By Thursday, August 4, 2016	Cheryl Edwards
☐	Look for your first On Legal Grounds postings	On Legal Grounds is the law school's blog for all announcements and official law school business. We will subscribe your Memphis email address to receive automatic daily email summaries from On Legal Grounds. You can also access On Legal Grounds via the link on the law school home page or here.	By Thursday, August 4, 2016	Brigitte Boyd

	TO DO	DETAILS	DUE DATE	QUESTIONS?
☐	Register for Westlaw/TWEN & Lexis-Nexis/Blackboard	Westlaw/TWEN • Westlaw is an online legal research platform you will use throughout your time in law school. • TWEN is an online course platform used in some first-year classes. TWEN is owned by Westlaw, so you will use the same login information for TWEN and Westlaw. • You must register for Westlaw/TWEN. Lexis-Nexis/Blackboard • Lexis-Nexis is another online research platform you will use throughout your time in law school. • Blackboard is an online course platform used in some first-year classes. Blackboard is owned by Lexis-Nexis, so you will use the same login information for Blackboard and Lexis-Nexis. Registration Instructions • After July 27, 2016, please e-mail Linda Hayes to request the University of Memphis activation codes for Westlaw/TWEN and for Lexis-Nexis/Blackboard. • Instructions for registering for Westlaw/TWEN are here. • Instructions for registering for Lexis-Nexis/Blackboard are available here.	By Thursday, August 4, 2016	Linda Hayes
☐	Register for the Legal Methods TWEN Course 2016 – 2017	After you register for TWEN, you must register for the following TWEN course: LEGAL METHODS – Wilson (Full Year 2016-2017). Instructions for registering for this course are included in the Westlaw/TWEN registration instructions available here. Please note that Legal Methods has both a Lecture component and a Small Section component. Lecture meetings are scheduled for Mondays. Small Section meetings are scheduled later in the week. Although the Small Section schedule is not yet available, please note that most Small Sections meet once a week in the evening for two consecutive hours. Each student will be assigned to a specific Small Section. The Small Section assignments and the Small Section schedule will be posted on the Legal Methods TWEN Course no later than Thursday, August 4. Students are assigned to specific sections in an effort to create Small Sections that are representative of the entire class across several factors. Accordingly, as a matter of course policy, students may not choose their preferred Small Section assignment.	By Thursday, August 4, 2016	Jodi Wilson

	TO DO	DETAILS	DUE DATE	QUESTIONS?
☐	Prepare Required Homework for your First Legal Methods Classes	Your first Legal Methods classes are Monday, August 8, and Tuesday, August 9. You must complete your Legal Methods assignments before class. The Legal Methods syllabus and other materials needed for the first assignments are available via the Legal Methods TWEN Course.	Before class on Monday, August 8, 2016	Jodi Wilson
☐	Read the Academic Regulations	You must thoroughly read the Academic Regulations before Monday, August 8, 2016. You will be asked to sign a document on August 8, 2016 stating that you have read and understand the Academic Regulations. Pay particular attention to the Honor Code (Rule 21). Please note that the Academic Regulations are currently being updated for the upcoming academic year (2016 – 2017). They will be available here after August 2, 2016. Please be sure to read the 2016 – 2017 regulations.	Before Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016	Steve Mulroy
☐	Complete Project Implicit Assessment	Please visit Project Implicit and complete at least one assessment. Project Implicit is a non-profit organization and international collaboration between researchers interested in implicit social cognition – feelings or thoughts outside of conscious awareness and control. You will have the opportunity to assess your conscious and unconscious preferences as it relates to various populations. Each assessment takes 10 -15 minutes to complete. Results from your participation are anonymous and are not provided to the law school. Please complete your assessment prior to Orientation. Steps: 1. Visit Project Implicit 2. Select an IAT You may choose to take any one or more of the following tests: • Asian IAT • Disability IAT • Race IAT • Age IAT • Gender-Career IAT • Weapons IAT • Skin Tone IAT • Sexuality IAT • Arab-Muslim IAT • Religion IAT • Native IAT	Before Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016	Jacqueline O'Bryant

	TO DO	DETAILS	DUE DATE	QUESTIONS?
☐	Sign & Return the University's Financial Responsibility Statement	Please print and bring a completed and signed copy of the University of Memphis's Financial Responsibility Statement to the "Navigating the First Year of Law School" Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016. The form is mandatory. If we do not receive your form, you will be dropped from your classes, and you will not be permitted to start school.	Before Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016	Jamie Johnson
☐	Register for the Academic Success Class on TWEN	After you register for TWEN, please register for the TWEN Academic Success Class for 2016-2017. Follow the same process to register that you followed for the Legal Methods TWEN Course.	Before Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016	Brigitte Boyd
☐	Get your Parking Permit	The Law School does not provide any on-campus parking for law students. Students may not park in the University-designated faculty/staff parking areas on Court Avenue or next to the Law School building or behind the building. Student parking for the Law School is available at all downtown parking garages and public parking venues. The University has negotiated reduced parking rates for law students at nearby garages listed here. Of course, you may choose to seek other options for parking. A good place to start is www.downtownmemphis.com. Click on the parking map link.	Before Orientation on Monday, August 8, 2016	Contact individual garages for any questions.
☐	RSVP to SBA Social Event	RSVP here to the SBA Social Event on Friday, August 12, 2016.	By Monday, August 8, 2016	Sydney Trujillo
☐	Get your University ID	During lunch on Tuesday, August 9, 2016, we will issue University IDs to all students. You will need a government-issued ID, such as a driver's license or passport. Students are encouraged to get IDs made on the main University of Memphis Campus before Orientation. Friday, August 5, the Friday before Orientation would be an excellent day to do this to avoid long lines! To have your ID made, go the Campus Card Office (now part of the Bursar's office) in 115 Wilder Tower on the main campus. The office is open from 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Students must be registered for class and have a form of photo ID to have IDs made early.	Before Orientation or during lunch on August 9, 2016	Brigitte Boyd

	TO DO	DETAILS	DUE DATE	QUESTIONS?
☐	Review Lawyering Fundamentals Welcome Letter & Syllabus	Review the Lawyering Fundamentals Website, Syllabus, and Welcome Letter and complete all included assignments. Assignments will take approximately five hours to complete. You should start working on these assignments prior to Orientation. Note that we anticipate that the Welcome Letter, Syllabus, and other course materials will be available to review by August 1, 2016.	Before first class on Wednesday, August 10, 2016	Meredith Aden
☐	Bring Your Laptop	You will need to use your laptop in the workshops on Friday, August 12, 2016, so please bring them to school.	By Friday, August 12, 2016	Brigitte Boyd
☐	Consider Getting a Locker	Lockers are optional, and the cost is $10/year. Instructions are here. Lockers will be available for rental beginning on Wednesday, August 10, 2016.	Optional, Beginning Wednesday, August 10, 2016	Brigitte Boyd
☐	Sign up For ERefunds	Students who choose to receive excess loan money (i.e., money left after tuition and fees) by direct deposit will receive their funds before students who choose to receive their excess loan money by hard copy check. If you want to receive your excess loan money by direct deposit, you need to sign up for E-Refunds. To sign up • Log into your My Memphis account. • Click the Account tab. • In the “Bursar - Fees, Payments, Disbursements & Refunds” box, click on “Sign up for E-Refunds (Direct Deposit).” You will be redirected to TigerXpress (U of M's online billing site). • Click the E-Refunds tab at the top. • Enter your bank account information. (You’ll need a check with the routing number and account number for the account you want to use).	Optional	Brigitte Boyd

Welcome RECEPTION

HONORING

THE CLASS OF 2019

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7
5:00-7:00 P.M.
Belz Museum of Asian & Judaic Art
Pembroke Square Bldg.
119 South Main, Concourse Level

PLEASE JOIN US

Enjoy hors d' oeuvres & cocktails while welcoming the incoming law class of 2019. Join fellow distinguished guests, including members of the judiciary, alumni, faculty & staff.

This event is made possible through the genorosity of Mr. & Mrs. Jack Belz, Belz Enterprises, the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Alumni Chapter & the law firm of Glassman, Wyatt, Tuttle & Cox P.C.

Parking tickets for the Peabody Place Tower Garage (110 Peabody Place) will be partially validated at the check-in table.

DRESS: Cocktail Attire

Please RSVP by Thursday, July 28

CLICK HERE TO RSVP

CLASS OF 2019 Orientation Social Events

Class of 2019 Welcome Reception
Sunday, August 7
5:00 - 7:00 p.m.
Belz Museum of Asian & Judaic Art
Pembroke Square Bldg.
119 South Main, Concourse Level

RSVP by Thurs., July 28
CLICK HERE TO RSVP

Swearing-In Ceremony
Monday, August 8
9:35 - 10:20 a.m.
Wade Auditorium
University of Memphis Law School
1 North Front St.
Immediate family is welcome to attend.

SBA 1L Welcome Party on the Promenade
Hosted by the Student Bar Assoc.
Friday, August 12
5:00 - 7:00 p.m.

This party & cookout will be held on the Promenade behind the law school and is FREE to all students. Immediate family/significant others are welcome to attend.

CLICK HERE TO RSVP

WWW.MEMPHIS.EDU/LAW/CURRENT-STUDENTS/ORIENTATION.PHP

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY STATEMENT

Name:_________________________________ U# __________________
(Print)

PAYMENT OF FEES/PROMISE TO PAY

I understand and agree that when I register for any class at the University of Memphis, (hereinafter referred to as the "Institution",) or receive any service from the Institution, I am accepting full responsibility to pay all tuition, fees and other associated charges assessed as a result of my registration, and/or receipt of services. I understand and agree that if I drop or withdraw from some or all of the classes for which I register, I will be responsible for paying all or a portion of tuition and fees in accordance with the published tuition refund schedule at http://www.memphis.edu/bursar/calendars.php. I have read the terms and conditions of the published tuition refund schedule and understand those terms are incorporated herein by reference. I further understand that my failure to attend class or receive a bill does not absolve me of my financial responsibility as described above. If I expect financial aid to pay all or part of my financial obligations to the Institution, I understand and agree that it is my responsibility to meet all requirements for disbursement to my student account. I authorize the Institution to use the financial aid to pay for all education costs charged to my student account for my current term of enrollment or attendance at the Institution. I understand that it is my responsibility to ensure that all requirements of grantors, lenders, employers, and other third party payers are met on a timely basis. I understand that despite my expectations for payment from financial aid or other sources, I am ultimately responsible for all charges incurred. I understand that my financial aid may be adjusted due to eligibility. I agree to pay back to the Institution any amounts for which I am not eligible under applicable financial aid guidelines. I understand and agree that it is my responsibility to review my Institution e-mail account and my account history via TigerXpress for notifications regarding balances due and payment deadlines each semester. I understand and agree that if I enter into an installment payment plan, the due dates and terms of the installment payment plan become part of this agreement and are incorporated herein by reference.

DELINQUENT ACCOUNT/COLLECTION

I understand and agree I will be in default if: I break any promise made to the Institution or fail to perform promptly at the time and in the manner provided in my housing plan, meal plan, or tuition plan agreement with the Institution or if I fail to pay other charges, including but not limited to, parking fees or fines, or financial aid adjustments that post to my student account by the date due or at the point at which I am no longer enrolled. If there is an event of default, the Institution may exercise any remedy allowed by law, including one or more of the following, without notice or demand (except as required by law): (1) The Institution may declare the principal balance plus any late fees, fines or penalties immediately due and payable in full. or (2) The Institution may hire or pay a third-party to collect the debt including, without limitation, the pursuit of litigation. Financial Hold: I understand and agree that if I fail to pay my financial obligation to the Institution, the Institution, in accordance with the provisions of T.C.A. § 49-9-108, will place a financial hold on my student account, preventing me from registering for future classes, receiving grades or transcripts, or receiving my diploma. Late Payment Charge: I understand and agree that if I fail to pay my financial obligation to the Institution by the scheduled due date, the Institution may assess a late payment fee as approved by the Tennessee Board of Regents. Collection Agency Fees: I understand and accept that if I fail to pay my financial obligation to the Institution or fail to make acceptable payment arrangements to bring my account current, the Institution may refer my delinquent account to a collection agency. I further understand that I may be responsible for paying the collection agency fee, which may be based on a percentage at a maximum of 33-1/3 percent of my delinquent account, together with all fees and expenses, including reasonable attorney's fees, necessary for the collection of my delinquent account. Finally, I understand that my delinquent account may be reported to one or more of the national credit bureaus. Bankruptcy: I understand and agree Tuition and other related fees or charges may not be dischargeable in bankruptcy and may survive after the bankruptcy has closed and that I may still owe the debt to the Institution after the bankruptcy.

COMMUNICATION

Method of Communication: I understand and agree that the Institution uses e-mail addresses assigned by the Institution as an official method of communication with me, and that, therefore, I am responsible for reading the e-mails I receive from the Institution on a timely basis. Contact: I authorize the Institution and its agents and contractors to contact me at my current and any future cellular phone number(s), email address(es) or wireless device(s) regarding my delinquent student account(s)/loan(s), any other debt I owe to the Institution, or to receive general information from the Institution. I authorize the Institution and its agents and contractors to use automated telephone dialing equipment, artificial or pre-recorded voice or text messages, and personal calls and emails, in their efforts to contact me. Furthermore, I understand that I may withdraw my consent to call my cellular phone by submitting my request in writing to the Institution Bursar's Office or in writing to the applicable contractor or agent contacting me on behalf of the Institution. Updating Contact Information: I understand and agree that I am responsible for keeping the Institution's records up to date with my current physical addresses, email addresses, and phone numbers. Upon leaving the Institution for any reason, it is my responsibility to provide the Institution with updated contact information for purposes of continued communication regarding any amounts that remain due to the Institution.

BILLING ERRORS

I understand that administrative, clerical or technical billing errors do not absolve me of my financial responsibility to pay the correct amount of tuition, fees, and other associated financial obligations assessed as a result of my registration and attendance at the Institution.

RETURNED PAYMENTS/FAILED PAYMENT AGREEMENTS

If a payment made to my student account is returned by the bank for any reason, I agree to repay the original amount of the payment plus a returned payment fee of $30.00 and any applicable late fees. I understand that returned payments for tuition or multiple returned payments for non-tuition items may result in a permanent cash only payment status at the Institution. If any initial term payments for tuition are returned, the Institution reserves the right to delete my class schedule if not settled by the notification deadline.

FINANCIAL AID

I understand that aid described as "memo", "estimated", or "authorized" on my Financial Aid Award does not represent actual or guaranteed payment, but is an estimate of the aid I may receive if I meet all requirements stipulated by that aid program. I understand that my Financial Aid Award is contingent upon my continued enrollment and attendance in each class upon which my financial aid eligibility was calculated. If I fail to attend, drop any class, or stop attending before completion, I understand that my financial aid eligibility may decrease and some or all of the financial aid awarded to me may be revoked or adjusted. If some or all of my financial aid is revoked or adjusted because I dropped, failed to attend, or stopped attending class, I agree to repay all revoked or adjusted aid that was disbursed to my account.

IRS FORM 1098-T

I agree to provide my correct Social Security number (SSN) or taxpayer identification number (TIN) to the Institution upon request as required by Internal Revenue Service (IRS) regulations for Form 1098-T reporting purposes. If I fail to provide my correct SSN or TIN to the Institution, I may be responsible for paying any and all IRS fines assessed as a result of my missing SSN/TIN.

ENTIRE AGREEMENT

This agreement, which is governed by Tennessee law, supersedes all prior understandings, representations, negotiations and correspondence between the student and the Institution, constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the matters described, and shall not be modified or affected by any course of dealing or course of performance. This agreement may be modified by the Institution if the modification is signed by me. Any modification is specifically limited to those policies and/or terms addressed in the modification.

Name: ________________________________ U#: __________________
(Signature)

Date: ________________________

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

LAWYERING FUNDAMENTALS

Lawyering Fundamentals (LF) is a 3-day course you will take during Orientation on August 10 - 12, 2016. The LF course simulates the first semester of law school. It includes daily classes in which you will be questioned on the assigned reading, answer law school exam-style questions, and receive helpful law school success strategies. You will also sit for a final exam at the end of LF. It will not be counted in your GPA, but it will help you assess your progress. However, most importantly, the course will help demystify some of the law school teaching methods in order to help you acclimate and succeed faster. Therefore, consider LF the first step of your legal training.

By August 1, 2016, we will post the materials you will need to review for Lawyering Fundamentals. Please note that you will have assignments and readings due on Wednesday, August 10. You should complete these assignments prior to the beginning of Orientation. We anticipate that you will need about 5 hours to complete the required assignments for the first day of the Lawyering Fundamentals course. You will have additional assignments to complete on Wednesday evening before Thursday's classes and on Thursday evening before Friday's classes and exam.

In order to complete your assignments, you will need to use the BarBri Matrix website. We anticipate that you will receive login information at your University of Memphis email address by August 1, 2016. You will not be able to log in until you receive the login instructions. If you have not received login instructions by August 1, 2016, please check your junk mail folder. If you have other technical questions or difficulty logging in, please contact BarBri at IPLearningTeam@barbri.com.

Syllabus
Welcome Letter
Welcome Materials
Torts Case Materials
BarBri Matrix Website
Matrix Student Instructions

On August 31, 2016, we will have a mandatory exam review for the Lawyering Fundamentals exam. The review session will take place from 11:30 - 12:50 in Wade Auditorium.

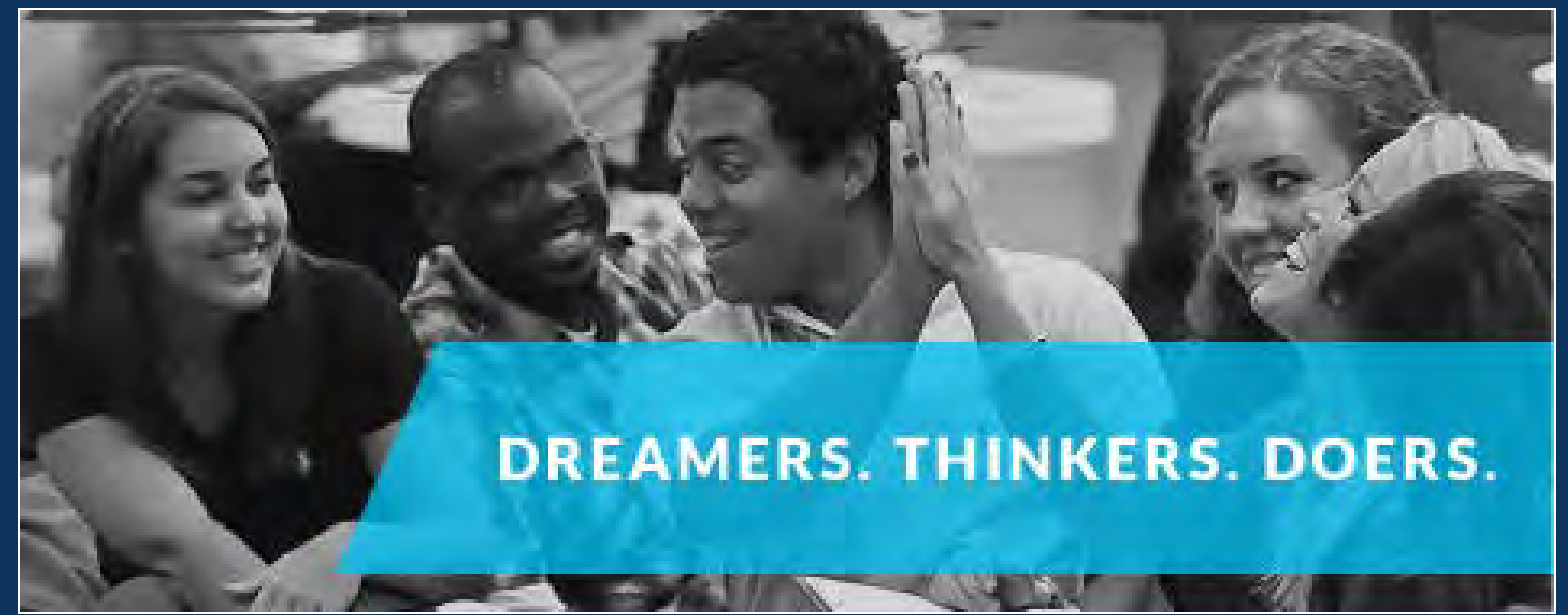
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

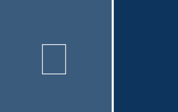
ABA Required Disclosures

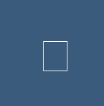
Full sitemap

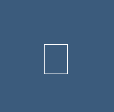


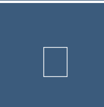
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

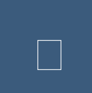
Follow UofM Online

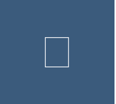












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
CECIL C. HUMPHREYS
SCHOOL OF LAW

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

(Updated through August 1, 2016)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS
(As Updated on August 1, 2016)

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY 1

   1.1 J.D. Degree 1

   1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program 1

   1.3 Programs 1

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR 1

3. ENROLLMENT 1

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT 2

   4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees 2

   4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal 3

      a. Eligibility 3

      b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment 3

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS 3

   5.1 Full-Time Students 3

   5.2 Part-Time Students 3

   5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students 3

   5.4 Enrollment 4

6. DROP/ADD COURSES 4

   6.1 Adding Courses 4

   6.2 Dropping Courses 4

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES 4

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM 5

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program 5

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program 5

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing 5

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS 5

9.1 Class Attendance 5

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students 5

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS 5

10.1 Schedule of Examinations 5

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday 6

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances 6

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters 6

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers 6

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations; Unreasonable Hardship 7

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations 7

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination 7

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination 7

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions 7

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades 8

10.12 Computation of Grades 8

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations are Pending 8

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES 8

11.1 Incompletes 8

11.2 Grade Changes 8

12. GRADING SYSTEM 9

12.1 Grades 9

12.2 Grading System and Factors to be Considered 10

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average 10

12.4 Rounding 10

12.5 Grading Factors 10

13. CLASS RANKING 10

13.1 Full-Time Students 10

13.2 Part-Time Students 11

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking 11

13.4 Honors 11

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS 12

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students 12

a. Good Standing 12

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 12

c. Exclusion after First Semester 13

d. Computation of Grade Point Average 13

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students 13

a. Good Standing 13

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion 13

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion 13

15. STARTOVER 14

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION 14

16.1 Course Requirements 14

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students 15

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students 16

c. Other Required Courses 18

d. Elective Courses and Limitations on Certain Courses for Credit Toward Graduation 19

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement 19

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement 19

16.4 Six-Year Requirement 19

16.5 Work at Other Schools 20

16.6 Grade Requirement 20

16.7 Completion of Work 20

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement 20

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT 20

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS 20

18.1 Auditing Courses 20

18.2 Transient Students 21

18.3 Foreign Lawyers ... 21

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS ... 21

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION ... 21

20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records ... 21

20.2 Grade Information ... 21

20.3 Non-Posting of Grades upon Request ... 22

21. HONOR CODE ... 22

21.1 Definitions ... 22

21.2 Scope ... 23

21.3 Oath ... 23

21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct ... 24

21.5 Sanctions ... 26

21.6 Procedures ... 28

21.7 Elections ... 32

21.8 Reporting and Record Keeping ... 33

21.9 Confidentiality ... 34

21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee ... 34

21.11 Amendments ... 35

22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE ... 35

22.1 Grades ... 35

23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE ... 37

23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint ... 38

23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint ... 38

23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution ... 38

23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints ... 39

24. NOTIFICATIONS ... 39

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS ... 39

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES ... 40

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS ... 40

APPENDIX I ... 41

STANDARDS FOR ATTAINMENT OF THE J.D. DEGREE ... 41

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

The provisions set forth herein and in the Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree attached hereto as Appendix I govern the Academic Affairs of all students enrolled at the School of Law. All references to these Academic Regulations shall be deemed to include Appendix I. It is the responsibility of each student to be familiar with the terms contained herein and each student shall be deemed to be so. For the purposes of these Academic Regulations, any place where approval of the Dean is required, it shall be taken to mean the Dean or the Dean's designate such as the Associate Dean or an Assistant Dean.

1. DEGREES CONFERRED AND PROGRAMS OF STUDY

1.1 J.D. Degree

Graduates of The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law receive the Juris Doctor Degree.

1.2 J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program

A J.D./M.B.A. Degree Program is available in cooperation with the School of Business. Further information is available in the office of the Dean.

1.3 Programs

The law school offers a full-time day program and a part-time day program on the semester system. Students in the full-time program normally graduate in three years (six semesters). Summer classes and intersession classes may be available and some students may graduate after five semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to six semesters) as full-time students. Intersession classes may be offered between regularly scheduled classes (i.e., Winter intersession), or during regularly scheduled academic breaks in semesters (i.e., Spring intersession). Students in the part-time program normally graduate in nine semesters or in eight semesters and two summer sessions (equivalent to nine semesters). (See Section 5 for course maximums and minimums during each semester.)

2. REGISTRATION WITH BAR

Some states require that, for a candidate to take the bar examination in that state, the candidate shall have registered with a supervisory authority upon or shortly after enrolling in law school. Each student should ascertain the rules of the state in which he/she expects to take the bar examination in this respect. Tennessee does not have this requirement.

3. ENROLLMENT

Enrollment is subject to the general rules of the University pertaining to registration and is possible only during the scheduled registration periods of the university and School of Law as shown on the Law School and university calendars.

Newly admitted students and startovers may only enter in the fall term. Upper division law students, transfer students, and transient students may enter in any term and should preregister each semester for the succeeding term. Specific instructions on preregistering and course schedules are ordinarily provided at least one month before the preceding examination period.

The enrollment procedure begins in the administration offices of the School of Law. Enrollment in any course or section must be approved by the Dean or the Law School Registrar. Every enrollment after the first is conditional upon the student's being eligible to re-enroll under the Academic Eligibility Requirements. (See Section 14.) Students on probation from the previous semester and those who have been on probation will be conditionally enrolled until such time as all grades are received from the previous semester. If computation of a student's grades results in the student being academically excluded, the student will receive a refund of fees. (See Section 4.1.)

4. WITHDRAWALS AND RE-ENROLLMENT

4.1 Withdrawals and Refunds of Fees

A student may withdraw from the Law School by notifying the office of the Dean in writing, provided, however, that withdrawal is not permitted within one week of the beginning of the final examination period of a semester, summer, or intersession without permission of the Dean.

Withdrawals are recorded on the student's record at any time after a student has registered and paid fees.

The following refund percentages of enrollment fees (Maintenance, Out-Of-State Tuition and Student Activity Fees) apply to students who withdraw from the law school or who drop to an hourly load below full time:

A full (100%) refund of fees will be made only under the following conditions:

a. Cancellation of a class by the University.

b. Drop or withdrawal prior to official registration. (Example: Pre-registration of a first year student.)

c. Death of a student certified by the Vice President for Student Educational Services or designated university official.

d. Withdrawal of the student by the Dean's Office for reason of academic exclusion after the student has registered and paid fees.

A 75% refund will be provided during the first day of classes and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 90% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

A 25% refund will be provided beginning at the expiration of the 75% refund period and extending for a period of time noted in the term calendar of the Law School Schedule of Classes. A 75% refund of the Student Activity Fee will be provided during this period.

At the conclusion of the 25% refund period, there will be no refund of these fees.

4.2 Re-Enrollment after Withdrawal

a. Eligibility

To be eligible to re-enroll as a matter of right after withdrawal, the student who has withdrawn must have completed one academic year, have met the retention standards (See Sec. 14.1.b.), and be able to comply with the six year requirement. (See Section 16.4.) Students who cannot re-enroll as a matter of right must secure permission from the Dean. Denial of permission to re-enroll shall not prevent a student from competing for a position in the first year class. Re-enrollment procedures require filing a readmission application.

b. Graduation Requirements Upon Re-Enrollment

Students re-enrolling after withdrawing in good standing must comply with graduation requirements of the class with whom they are scheduled to graduate. These graduation requirements may differ from those in effect at the time of the student's original enrollment.

5. COURSE MINIMUMS AND MAXIMUMS: FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS

5.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students must enroll in at least 12 credit hours toward the J.D. or J.D./M.B.A. degree in each semester. No student may be enrolled at any time in coursework that, if successfully completed, would exceed 18 credit hours. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student with less than a 2.5 cumulative grade point average may enroll in more than 16 credit hours in a semester. Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, no student enrolled in an extern program may be enrolled in more than 16 credit hours, including the externship.

5.2 Part-Time Students

Unless permission of the Dean is obtained, part-time students must enroll in at least 8 credit hours, but not more than 11 credit hours, in each semester.

5.3 Summer Session Enrollment: Classification of Full-Time and Part-Time Students

Without regard to whether students are classified as full-time or part-time during the regular academic year, such students may enroll in summer session in any number of credit hours not exceeding nine (9). Students enrolling in six (6) or more credit hours will be classified as full-time students for the summer session and will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Students enrolling in five (5) or fewer credit hours will be classified as part-time students for the summer session. Students enrolling in intersession classes will be subject to all academic regulations applying to full-time students, including outside work limitations. Enrollment in summer session will not affect the full-time or part-time status of a student. (See Sections 8, 9, and 16.3 for related matters).

5.4 Enrollment

At the time of initial enrollment, students must enroll either as full-time or part-time students. From that time on, they will be governed by regulations applying to their initial enrollment classification unless they change status as provided in these regulations. (See Section 8.)

6. DROP/ADD COURSES

6.1 Adding Courses

With the exception of Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes, courses may be added to a student's schedule during the first ten (10) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first four (4) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer sessions. Trial Advocacy, Clinic, and Intersession classes may be added to a student's schedule during the first five (5) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for regular semesters and during the first two (2) calendar days beginning with the first day of classes for summer session. Classes missed before being added will be counted as absences for the attendance policy of the faculty teaching the course.

6.2 Dropping Courses

Elective courses may be dropped on or before the "drop date" listed in the calendar for each semester without permission of the Dean. Elective courses may be dropped after the drop date only with permission of the Dean. A full-time student may not drop below twelve (12) hours, and a part-time student (in the extended program) may not drop below eight (8) hours, without permission of the Dean. Drops occurring after the "Add Period" are recorded as "withdrawals". Required courses may not be dropped without permission of the Dean. (See Sections 5.1, 5.2 and 16.)

7. REPEATING COURSES; PASSING REQUIRED COURSES

A course may not be repeated unless it is failed -- i.e., no credit earned. Required courses must be completed and passed to meet graduation requirements. Required courses that are failed must be retaken in the next regular semester in which the course is offered unless taken in summer session prior to such next regular semester. When a course is repeated after having previously been failed, the grade for the course is averaged in the normal manner including the previous failure -- i.e., the previous grade stands and both grades become a part of the student's grade record and for computation of the student's grade point average. No grade is removed. (See Section 12.)

8. CHANGE OF PROGRAM

8.1 Part-Time to Full-Time Program

Part-time students must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the full-time program.

8.2 Full-Time to Part-Time Program

Full-time students in good standing must secure permission from the Dean to transfer to the part-time program.

8.3 Students Not in Good Standing

Students not in good standing will not be permitted to change programs except for good cause as determined by the Dean. (See Sec. 14.)

9. CLASS ATTENDANCE AND OUTSIDE WORK LIMITATIONS

9.1 Class Attendance

Students are expected to give their scholastic obligation first priority. Prompt and regular class attendance is considered necessary for satisfactory work. It is expected that a student will regard an engagement to attend classes as he/she would any other engagement or conference with his/her instructor. The necessity of absences does not in any sense relieve the student from responsibility for the work of his/her course during his/her absence. The instructor in charge of a course determines in all instances the extent to which absences and tardiness affect the student's grade and credit. The attendance policy of the instructor shall be announced to the class and distributed to the class in writing at the time of its implementation. Generally, attendance policies will be announced at the first class meeting of the semester. A student may receive a failing grade for excessive absences and may be dropped from the course with a failing grade if excessive absences occur. Each student shall be responsible for keeping records of his/her attendance.

9.2 Outside Work Limitation for Full-Time Students

The full-time program of the School of Law is intended to promote full-time study of law. Full-time students may not engage in employment in excess of twenty (20) hours per week. (See Section 5.3.) It is the policy of the School of Law to discourage any employment of first-year full-time students.

10. EXAMINATION POLICIES AND PROCEDURES INCLUDING DEFERRALS OR DELAYS IN COMPLETING EXAMINATIONS OR RESEARCH PAPERS

10.1 Schedule of Examinations

a. The schedule for examinations is made part of the registration materials. The schedule of examinations may be amended during a regular semester, summer session or intersession. Such amended schedules will be posted, and all students prior to the examination period are responsible for checking the Law School Bulletin Board for an amended schedule.

b. Unless students obtain the written permission of the Dean at the time of registration, students may not register in courses which have conflicting examination schedules -- i.e. where examinations are scheduled to be administered at the same time or on the same day. If permission is granted, one of the conflicting examinations will be scheduled on the next day in the examination period on which the student does not have an examination.

c. Students are required to take examinations at the scheduled times. Faculty members are not authorized to grant exceptions, but the Dean may grant exceptions as set forth in Sections 10.2 and 10.3.

10.2 Scheduled Examination Conflicting with Observance of a Religious Holiday

If a scheduled examination conflicts with the observance of a religious holiday or a day on which the student may not be present because of religious practices, the student will be entitled to a deferral of the examination until the earliest time at which the student may take the examination and proctoring can be arranged. The student should notify the Dean's office of the conflict and make arrangements for the deferral no later than two weeks prior to the start of the examination period.

10.3 Examinations under Special Circumstances

Students with disabilities may be granted permission to take examinations under special circumstance. Such students must be registered with the University Office of Student Disabilities. The special circumstances (conditions) will be established on an individual basis by the Dean considering the recommendations of the University Office of Student Disabilities.

10.4 Using Computers and Typewriters

Unless a student has an accommodation from Student Disability Services or demonstrates a case of severe hardship, a student is required to use a laptop or similar device and the approved exam-writing software to write essay or short-answer examinations.

10.5 Anonymous Grading System and Examination Numbers

All examinations are to be graded in a manner so as to protect the anonymity of students taking the examinations. To facilitate the anonymous grading system, all students are required to secure from the Law School Registrar an examination number for each semester, summer session and intersession. A student who does not use the assigned examination number will not have a grade reported to the student or to the University until such number is secured.

10.6 Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations;
Unreasonable Hardship

Deferral of, or a delay in taking, an examination may be permitted only by the Dean and then only when it would result, or would have resulted, in an unreasonable hardship on the student to attend the examination. Application for delay must be made to the Dean prior to the examination, if feasible. If a delay is permitted, the student shall take the examination at such time as the instructor in conjunction with Dean's office shall require. Unreasonable hardship includes illness and other matters beyond the control of the student. If for reasons beyond the student's control, deferral or delay cannot be requested in advance of the scheduled examination, such request must be made as soon as possible after the examination. (WARNING: Failure to take a scheduled examination results in a grade F or U unless the Dean permits the student to withdraw from the course.)

10.7 Late Arrivals for Examinations

A student who arrives at an examination after the examination has started but before it is completed may sit for the examination. The Dean, in consultation with the faculty member, if available, may permit a student whose late arrival is attributable to factors that are beyond the student's reasonable control to take the entire scheduled time for the examination, either beginning immediately or as rescheduled by the Dean. Otherwise, a student shall be permitted to take the examination, but in the Professor's discretion, may be required to complete the examination at the regularly scheduled time.

10.8 Conclusiveness of Taking an Examination

A student, by taking an examination, is conclusively deemed to represent that no unreasonable hardship existed and the student was able to take the examination. The grade earned will be recorded and will not be expunged for any reason. A student may not withdraw from a course after taking the examination.

10.9 Illnesses or Emergencies Arising During an Examination

If during an examination, an illness or emergency arises which would result in an unreasonable hardship on such student or the student being unable to complete the examination, the student, if capable of so doing, must notify the faculty member or person proctoring the examination immediately upon such occurrence. After such notification and/or occurrence, the Dean's office shall be notified, and, thereafter, the Dean's office will, in conjunction with the faculty member involved, schedule the examination as circumstances permit.

10.10 Research Papers and Work Other Than Examinations; Due Dates and Extensions
The research paper in final form, whether written in connection with a seminar or as independent research, must be submitted to the faculty research advisor no later than the last day of the examination period of the semester or summer session in which the student is registered for the seminar or independent research, and may be required earlier by the faculty research advisor. A schedule for the submission of outlines, drafts, lists, and paper will be prepared in writing by the faculty research advisor and given to the student. Failure to comply with the schedule may result in failure in the course for which the paper is required to be written. The faculty research advisor may permit additional time, in which case the conditions and limitations of any such extension must be met; provided, however, no extension of time shall be beyond the last day of the examination period in which the student is registered unless requested in writing and approved by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and filed with the Law School Registrar prior to the last day of the examination period. The Law School Registrar will provide a form by which this may be done. It is the responsibility of the student to procure the execution of the form by the faculty research advisor and by the Dean and to file it with the Law School Registrar.

10.11 Incompletes and Effect on Grades

If a deferral or delay of the due date on an examination or research paper extends beyond the end of the semester, a grade of Incomplete will be given in the course or seminar, and a notation will be made in the student's records of the time and method by which completion is required. Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of a permitted deferral or delay will result in a grade of F or U in the course. (See Sections 10.3 & 11.)

10.12 Computation of Grades

For all purposes for which grade point averages are computed (i.e. - standing, retention, rank, etc.), an Incomplete will not be counted in the semester in which it is received. When the grade is reported, it will be included for computation of grade point average at the end of the semester in which it is reported. (See Section 12.3.)

10.13 Enrollment when Deferrals or Delays in Taking Scheduled Examinations Are Pending

The permission of the Dean is required to permit a student to enroll in a semester, summer session, or intersession when scheduled examinations for any prior semester, summer session, or intersession have not been completed including deferred or delayed examinations. A student seeking to enroll under such circumstances must submit a written request to the Dean.

11. INCOMPLETES AND GRADE CHANGES

11.1 Incompletes

An Incomplete may be recorded by faculty members when there is a legitimate reason for a student not completing course work during the regular period (i.e., a semester or summer session). Any grade of Incomplete not removed in accordance with the requirements of the Instructor or approval by the Dean shall result in a grade of F in the course.

11.2 Grade Changes

Upon reporting grades to the Law School Registrar, a professor is required to sign the grade sheet as certification that the grades are correct. After submission of grades to the Law School

Registrar, grades may be changed by a professor only for computational or objective errors of the professor. Grade changes for any other reason may be made only with approval of the Academic Affairs Committee. Any such grade change must be made by the end of the semester, excluding summer session, or intersession, after the semester in which the grade was received.

12. GRADING SYSTEM

12.1 Grades

a. Grades are represented by the following letter grades: A+, A, A-, B+, B, B-, C+, C, C-, D+, D, and F, and in certain courses the letters E Excellent), S (Satisfactory), and U (Unsatisfactory) (See Section l2.2) A grade of D or better is passing, and less than a D is failing. While a grade of D, D+ or C- is passing and credit is earned, such grade indicates less than satisfactory performance. (See Section 12.5 for grading factors in seminar courses.)

For purposes of determining grade point averages, letter grades have the following number equivalents:

A+	4.0	C+	2.33
A	4.0	C	2.0
A-	3.67	C-	1.67
B+	3.33	D+	1.33
B	3.0	D	1.0
B-	2.67	F	0

Grades of E, S, and U will not be assigned number equivalents and will not be used in determining grade point averages.

b. For first-year courses, the mean cumulative grade point average for each section shall fall on or between 2.70 – 2.80. In extraordinary circumstances, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may approve an exception to this rule.

12.2 Grading Systems and Factors to be Considered

a. Subject to exceptions set forth in the following subsections, all courses will be graded on a letter grade basis as set forth in Subsection 12.1 supra. (See Subsection 12.5. regarding factors to be considered.)

b. Courses identified as simulation courses shall be graded on a letter grade basis.

c. All courses identified as clinic courses will be graded on a letter basis and will not include as a component the grade on a final examination.

d. Externships, Law Review and Moot Court shall be graded according to standards of Excellent (E), Satisfactory (S) and Unsatisfactory (U). Excellent shall represent achievement substantially above the minimum requirement for a grade of Satisfactory.

e. The use of E, S, and U may be appropriate for courses in which, as taught and tested, the achievement of students cannot be closely compared. The use of these grades shall only be by faculty approval following an initial study and recommendation by the Curriculum Committee. Such grading policy will be noted on the course schedule for each semester, summer session, or intersession to which it applies.

12.3 Cumulative Grade Point Average

A student's cumulative grade point average is computed by first converting letter grades to number equivalents pursuant to Section 12.l. The number equivalents are then multiplied by the number of hours of credit assigned to each course. The products are added, and the sum divided by the total number of hours of courses whose products are included in the sum. Courses graded E, S and U are excluded from the grade point computation.

12.4 Rounding

Averages are computed and recorded to two decimal places, e.g., 2.65, with no rounding.

12.5 Grading Factors

a. A written examination is usually given at the end of each course, and the grade for the course will be the grade made on the examination. An instructor, at his/her discretion and to the extent he/she desires, may, however, consider class attendance, participation in classroom instruction, other examinations and the performance of required work in determining the grade. These additional factors will be announced at the beginning of the course, or at such time as to provide adequate notice to the students.

b. In a seminar course that fulfills the Law School’s writing requirement, between 65% and 80% of the grade must be based on the research paper. The balance of the course grade must be based on participation that demonstrates the students’ knowledge, comprehension, and analysis of assigned readings or research. A student may not satisfy the research requirement unless a grade of C or better is received, both in the seminar and on the research paper. A student may receive a grade of C or better in a seminar by receiving points based on additional grading factors, even though the research paper is not satisfactory to satisfy the Law School’s research requirement for graduation. (See Section 16.1c.)

13. CLASS RANKING

13.1 Full-Time Students

Full-time students will be ranked at the following intervals:

1st year: fall and spring semesters

2nd year: fall and spring semesters

3rd year: fall and spring semesters

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.2 Part-Time Students

Part-time students will be ranked at the following intervals with the designated class:

1st year fall and spring semester with admission class

2nd year spring semester with admission class

3rd year fall and spring semester with the second year full-time students after the fall and spring of their third year

4th year fall semester and spring semester with the third year full-time students

5th year (if applicable) fall semester and spring semester with third year full-time students

Final: as a group, following summer session

13.3 Work Considered for Ranking

Only the work completed at the University of Memphis will be considered in computing class rank. (See Section 16.)

13.4 Honors

Students with high cumulative grade point averages are awarded the J.D. degree with honors. The categories are:

Summa Cum Laude – Top 1% of the graduating class

Magna Cum Laude – Top 10% of the graduating class

Cum Laude – Top 25% of the graduating class

Diplomas awarded to such students will reflect the distinction.

14. ACADEMIC ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

14.1 Good Standing. Retention and Academic Exclusion for Non-Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

A student is in good standing only if the student's cumulative grade point average, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 24 credit hours, and is not excluded under Rule 14.1c.

2. The student has received grades in 24 to 38 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.80 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

3. The student has received grades in 39 to 53 credit hours and either has a cumulative grade point average of 1.90 or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.10 in the most recent semester.

4. The student has had a cumulative grade point average of 2.00 at the end of every previous semester. Such a student will receive one semester of probation. Following the semester of probation, the student will be subject to the requirements of Section 14.1.

A student who is not in good standing but entitled to retention under provisions 1-4 above must complete the student's next semester after no more than two semesters of non-enrollment. Non-enrollment includes withdrawal during a semester. (See Sec. 4.2.a.)

c. Exclusion After First Semester

In addition to the provisions of Rule 14.1a and Rule 14.1b, the Law School will exclude any first year student whose cumulative GPA after one semester is below 1.5 without the benefit of rounding.

d. Computation of Grade Point Average

For the purposes of determining good standing or retention status, the student's grade point average will be determined at the end of each fall semester and at the end of each spring semester. Summer term grades will be computed as if taken during the fall semester. Intersession grades will be computed as if taken during the subsequent full semester. Enrollment in a succeeding academic term prior to computation of the student's grade point average will be at the student's risk. (See Section 3).

14.2 Good Standing, Retention, and Academic Exclusion for Transfer Students

a. Good Standing

Any transfer student whose cumulative grade point average for work taken at The University of Memphis, as computed pursuant to Section 12, is 2.00 or better is in good standing.

b. Retention and Academic Exclusion

A transfer student not in good standing will be academically excluded unless one of the following exceptions applies:

1. The student has received grades in fewer than 17 credit hours at this law school.

2. The student transferred to this law school with fewer than 17 transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has a cumulative grade point average of 1.9 for work at this law school, or has earned a semester grade point average of 2.3 in the most recent semester.

3. The student transferred to this law school with 17 or more transfer credits, has received grades in 17 to 32 credit hours at this law school and has earned a semester grade point average of 2.5 in the most recent semester.

14.3 Significance of Academic Exclusion

A student who is academically excluded may:

a. Challenge a grade pursuant to the Grade Appeals procedures outlined in Section 22. In the event that the appeal results in a grade change that raises the student's grade point average over the threshold for exclusion, the student will be readmitted.

b. File a petition with the Academic Affairs Committee seeking a change in the Academic Regulations. If the Committee recommends, and the faculty approves, a change in the Regulations that would result in the student being able to remain in school, the student will be readmitted. There is no appeal from the decision of the Academic Affairs Committee or the faculty.

Subject to the above, academic exclusion is final and there is no appeal. A student who is academically excluded may seek startover admission pursuant to the provisions of Section 15.

15. STARTOVER

a. An applicant for admission to the first year entering class who was academically excluded from any law school may be admitted to the class for which he or she has applied, provided:

1. The applicant was academically excluded from this law school or is a Tennessee resident for fee and tuition purposes at the time of application, residency determination, and enrollment.

2. The applicant has been out of law school for a period of at least two (2) regular academic semesters (excluding the Summer Session) on the date of enrollment; or, if the applicant has completed three (3) semesters of law school, he or she is required to have been out of law school for only one regular academic semester (excluding the Summer session) on the date of enrollment.

3. The applicant has satisfied, on the dates of admission and enrollment, all absolute admission requirements applicable to all other applicants who are admitted and enrolled in the entering class for which application is made, except that the LSAT exam must have been taken within five years prior to the date of admission unless waived by the Admissions Committee;

4. The applicant, before admission, has been approved for admission by a majority of this law school's Admission Committee and the Dean after consideration of the applicant's situation in light of ABA Standard 505;

5. The applicant has not enrolled as a startover admit at any law school after previously being previously being academically excluded from any law school; and

6. The startover application is complete by April 1st.

b. Each applicant described above, who has been admitted and enrolled will not be counted in the total number of enrollments needed to fill the first year entering class. In no event will more than five (5) such applicants be admitted and enrolled in any one entering class. In the event that more than five (5) such applicants are approved as eligible for admission, the Admissions Committee together with the Dean will select the five (5) to be admitted. Selections will be based upon the applicant's admission index and other factors reflecting the likelihood for success at this law school.

16. REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

16.1 Course Requirements

A student is required to complete course work for a total of at least 90 credit hours for all courses.

a. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Full-Time Students

A student enrolled in the full-time program is required to complete the following courses in the sequence indicated, unless an exception is granted by the Dean or the Dean's designee.

16.1.a.i. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year – Fall Term	First Year – Spring Term	Second Year	Second or Third Year
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	221 Evidence	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
115 Property I	125 Property II
126 Criminal Law	121 Contracts
	212 Constitutional Law

A student is required to complete Evidence by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes Evidence in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective August 1, 2016.

16.1.a.ii A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year – Fall Term	First Year – Spring Term	Second Year	Second or Third Year
111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II	212 Constitutional Law	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	221 Evidence
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II
115 Property I	125 Property II
	126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective August 1, 2016.

16.1.a.iii. A FULL-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year	Second or Third Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	212 Constitutional Law	A. 224 Professional Responsibility
111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II	221 Evidence	+
112 Torts I	122 Torts II		B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	A student is required to complete Evidence & Constitutional Law by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes either or both courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied.*	Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II		334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
115 Property I	125 Property II		214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
	126 Criminal Law		359 Sales	223 Criminal Procedure
			222 Secured Transactions	213 Decedents' Estates
				331 Family Law
				324 Conflict of Laws
				368 Remedies

b. Required Courses and Course Sequencing for Part-Time Students

A student enrolled in the part-time program is required to complete the following courses in the indicated sequence unless an exception is granted by the Dean of the Dean's designee.

16.1.b.i. A PART-TIME student who matriculates before January 1, 2015

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term	A.224 Professional Responsibility
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	115 Property I	125 Property II	+
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	126 Criminal Law	212 Constitutional Law	B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	221 Evidence/ Elective	221 Evidence/ Elective
	121 Contracts			Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
		A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*		323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
				334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
				214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
				359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
				222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law
				Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective August 1, 2016.

16.1.b.ii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after January 1, 2015 but before August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term	A. 224 Professional Responsibility + B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	111 Contracts I	121 Contracts II
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	115 Property I	125 Property II
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence	212 Constitutional Law/ 221 Evidence
	126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
323 Commercial Paper	311 Administrative Law
334 Corporate Tax	211 Business Organizations
214 Income Taxation	223 Criminal Procedure
359 Sales	213 Decedents' Estates
222 Secured Transactions	331 Family Law

Note: Any student may opt in to the course menu requirements effective August 1, 2016.

16.1.b.iii. A PART-TIME student who matriculates after August 1, 2016

First Year		Second Year		Third and Fourth Year
Fall Term	Spring Term	Fall Term	Spring Term	A. 224 Professional Responsibility
112 Torts I	122 Torts II	115 Property I	121 Contracts II	+
113 Legal Methods I	123 Legal Methods II	111 Contracts I	125 Property II	B. Two Courses in both the Statutory Menu and Practice Foundation Menu:
114 Civil Procedure I	124 Civil Procedure II	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence	212 Constitutional Law/221 Evidence
	126 Criminal Law

A student is required to complete the above courses by the end of spring of his/her second year. If a student takes one of these courses in the summer term between the first and second year, this requirement will be satisfied, and an Elective may be taken in its place.*

Statutory Menu	Practice Foundation Menu
334 Corporate Tax	311 Administrative Law
214 Income Taxation	211 Business Organizations
359 Sales	223 Criminal Procedure
222 Secured Transactions	213 Decedents' Estates
	331 Family Law
	324 Conflict of Laws
	368 Remedies

c. Other Required Courses for Full-Time and Part-Time Students

In addition to the above listed courses, a student is required to satisfy both the advanced writing and the skills requirements.

1. Advanced Writing
A student is required to enroll in a two (2) or three (3) hour advanced writing course. The advanced writing requirement is be met by earning a C or better in an advanced writing course. (See Section 12.5.) See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the advanced writing requirement. (See Section 12.5.) A student is required to complete the first-year full-time curriculum prior to enrollment in an advanced writing course, unless a waiver is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee.

2. Experiential Learning
A student is required to satisfactorily complete one or more experiential course(s) totaling at least six (6) credit hours, including a minimum of one clinic course or externship. The courses that qualify as experiential courses are designated in the online Course Catalog. For purposes of the Experiential Learning Requirement, satisfactory completion means earning a grade of C or better in the course for courses graded on a letter grade basis, and earning a grade of Satisfactory or better in the course for courses graded on an Excellent/Satisfactory/Unsatisfactory basis. A student is required to complete 28 credit hours before taking an externship, which is one type of course that qualifies as an experiential course for the Experiential Learning Requirement. See the Course Catalog for a list of courses that satisfy the experiential requirement.

d. Limitations on Courses for Credit toward Graduation

1. Not more than a total of twelve (12) credit hours may be utilized toward satisfying graduation requirements by satisfactorily completing the following courses:

   (a) Any externship,
   (b) Law Review and Law Review Board,
   (c) Moot Court (including Moot Court Board, Moot Court Executive Board, and inter-school or intra-school competition credit),
   (d) Independent Research, and
   (e) Advanced Clinic.

2. To satisfy graduation requirements, a student is permitted a total of three (3) externships, two (2) clinic courses, or a combination of (1) clinic and (2) two externship courses. Absent permission from the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, a student may not repeat a clinic or externship, may not enroll in both a clinic and externship in the same semester or summer session, and may not enroll in more than one clinic or more than one externship in any semester or summer session. For enrollment purposes in these limited enrollment courses, a student who has taken one clinic will not receive priority for a second clinic, and a student who has taken one externship will not receive priority for a second externship.

16.2 Waiver of Course Requirement

For good cause shown and to avoid hardship, waiver of completion of any required course may be permitted only with the approval of the Academic Affairs Committee and on conditions set by the Committee.

16.3 Twenty-four Month Requirement

A student may complete the law school's degree requirements no earlier than 24 months after a student has commenced law study at the law school or a law school from which the school has accepted transfer credit.

16.4 Six-Year Requirement

A student must complete all of such student's graduation requirements within six (6) calendar years from the date of the student's initial enrollment in law school or forfeit all hours earned during this period. The student will, however, be allowed to reapply for admission as an entering student and compete with other applicants for a position in the entering class, with no credit allowed for prior work. The Academic Affairs Committee may make an exception to the foregoing rule if the student submits a proposed course of study for approval, but in no event may a student extend study so that the J.D. degree is not completed within 84 months of the time the student commenced law study.

16.5 Work at Other Schools

Any work to be taken at another law school on a transient basis must be approved by the Dean prior to the student's attendance at such other law school. Once approved, a student may not utilize more than 30 semester hours toward the student's degree at this law school, unless an exception is granted by the Academic Affairs Committee.

16.6 Grade Requirement

A student must have a grade point average of 2.00 or better in all work undertaken at the University of Memphis to graduate.

16.7 Completion of Work

All required courses must be completed. Completion of a course consists of sufficient attendance in class, performance of all required work, the taking of all examinations, making a passing grade (D or above or, in the case of non-graded course, a grade of E or S), with the exception of the research requirement which requires a grade of C or above. (See Section 12.5.) Failure to complete work in any course as it is required, or to take an examination when required, will result in a grade of F in the course. Delay in completing the work in a course may be permitted, as outlined under Delay in Completing Required Work. (See Section 10.)

16.8 Pro Bono Requirement

A student must complete forty hours of pro bono service to graduate. Please see the Pro Bono Program Handbook for more information.

17. TRANSFERRED CREDIT

Credit for law school work competed at law schools other than at The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law will be credited toward fulfilling graduation requirements only after individual consideration by the Dean. No credit, however, will be given for work completed in a United States Law School which is not ABA approved. Advanced standing will be granted only for work done after the student has completed a Baccalaureate degree.

To be eligible for transfer, credit earned in each course considered for transfer credit must be at least equal to the overall grade point average required for graduation at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

18. AUDITING (NON-LAW STUDENTS); TRANSIENT STUDENTS

18.1 Auditing Courses

Subject to limited exceptions, all students enrolled in any course must be a J.D. degree candidate at this law school or have been admitted to the School of Law as a transient student. Exceptions are made for practicing attorneys, members of the faculty of the University, graduates of the University, students pursuing a graduate degree program of the University, and students pursuing graduate degree programs at other accredited universities or colleges. These individuals should contact the office of the Dean for additional information.

18.2 Transient Students

A transient student is a student currently in good standing at another ABA accredited law school and enrolled in this law school for the purpose of transferring the credits earned to the law school in which the student is enrolled as a degree candidate.

18.3 Foreign Lawyers

At the discretion of the Dean or the Dean's designee, a person who has graduated from a foreign law school (or equivalent institution) and has demonstrated proficiency in the English language, which may include objective assessment through a standardized test, may enroll in up to twenty-four(24) credits in courses offered in the first year of law school.

19. REQUIREMENTS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH PAPERS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUIRED IN SEMINARS

Requirements for student research papers other than those required in seminars are available from the Law School Registrar. Students must secure permission from the supervising faculty member prior to enrolling in Research I. No more than one hour credit may be obtained in this way. (See Section 16.I.d.)

20. STUDENT RECORDS AND FILES: GRADE INFORMATION

20.1 Confidentiality of Student Records

In compliance with provisions of the "Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974," the School of Law abides by the rules and regulations of the University pertaining to the confidentiality of student records, the release of that information, and the rights of students and others to have access to such records as set forth in the University Student Handbook, University Bulletins and Schedules of Classes. Copies of these publications are available at the office of the Dean.

20.2 Grade Information

Individual grades will not be divulged over the telephone. Grades for seminar papers are accepted and may be furnished to students individually by the faculty member or the office of the Dean. All grades will be posted by the office of the Dean when received by that office from the instructor, but no earlier than three (3) weeks after the end of the examination period. Thereafter, grades will be posted as received. (See 20.3 for students' rights to not to have their grades posted.) Except for circumstances beyond the control of a faculty member, all grades should be reported by the faculty within three (3) weeks of the end of any examination period. Individual grade reports will be mailed by the University Registrar to each student.

20.3 Non-Posting of Grades Upon Request

Pursuant to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, students may request that their grades not be posted in any manner. Students so requesting will receive their grades individually from the office of the Dean.

21. HONOR CODE

21.1 Definitions

a. "Accused" refers to a student accused of a violation of the Honor Code.

b. "Appellate Board" refers to the three-person appellate board consisting of the Dean, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, and one member of the full-time faculty. The Dean shall select the faculty member on the Appellate Board.

c. "Associate Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the Chief Justice if the Chief Justice is unable to preside over any meeting, hearing, or function involving the Honor Council.

d. "Chief Justice" refers to the Student Justice who shall act as the head and the voice of the Honor Council and is vested with the authority to run the Council and hearing processes.

e. "Class" and "Course" refer to any academic enterprise that awards credit toward a degree or any law school-sanctioned, co-curricular activity including but not limited to Moot Court and Law Review.

f. For the purpose of determining deadlines, "day" means any regular business day of the School of Law, and does not include weekends, holidays observed by the School of Law, or any day on which the School of Law is not open to conduct regular business.

g. "Dean" refers to the Dean of the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis, or that person's designee.

h. "Elections" are the mechanism by which the student body will elect student justices.

i. "Honor Council" refers to the group of Student Justices that has plenary authority to review alleged violations under the Honor Code and to impose those sanctions it deems appropriate. The Honor Council consists of eleven members: five from the 2L class, and six from the 3L class.

j. "Investigators" refer to the two Honor Council members, appointed by the Chief Justice on a case-by-case basis, who will serve as fact gatherers for the preliminary hearings, and who will also serve as presenters of information in all preliminary and main hearings. The Investigators will not have a vote on matters to which they are appointed.

k. “Notice” means written notice and includes e-mail messages.

l. “Secretary” refers to the Student Justice who is responsible for keeping an adequate record of proceedings, as set forth herein.

m. “Student Counsel” refers to a current member of the student body requested by the Accused to be his or her counsel. The Student Counsel may act on behalf of the Accused in an Honor Council hearing. The Student Counsel shall keep confidential any information learned in the course of his or her representation. Current Honor Council members may not serve as Student Counsel.

n. “Student Justice” refers to an individual member of the Honor Council. Any student who has been convicted of a violation of the Honor Code may not serve as a Student Justice.

o. “Writing” includes a letter, memorandum, or e-mail message sent to a student’s School of Law e-mail account.

21.2 Scope

a. This Code applies to all students admitted to the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time a law student applies for admission through graduation and that occurs:

1. at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law;

2. at an off-site event sponsored by the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law; or

3. in connection with a Course.

b. The Code also applies to students enrolled in courses or programs sponsored or co-sponsored by the School of Law. The Code covers conduct that occurs from the time the student is admitted to the course or program and that occurs under the scope of (b)(1)(A-C) of this Code.

c. Investigations may be initiated or continued after a student has graduated, but no later than the time that student is admitted to a state bar. If an Honor Code matter is pending when a student is scheduled to graduate, the student’s degree may be withheld at least until the matter is resolved, or for 90 days, whichever is less.

21.3 Oath

A degree-seeking student who registers at the School of Law will take the following oath before beginning classes:

"I [state name], as a student at The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at The University of Memphis, understand that I am joining an academic community and am embarking on a professional career. The law school community and the legal profession share important values that are reflected in the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Academic Honor Code and in its Code of Conduct. I have read this Code, and will conduct my academic, professional, and personal life to honor the values reflected therein."

Each student shall sign a statement attesting that the student has read and understands the provisions of the Honor Code.

21.4 Types of Dishonesty and Misconduct

An act of dishonesty is a wrongful or improper act that questions a student's academic honesty or integrity; an act of misconduct is a wrongful, improper or prohibited act. The Honor Council has the authority to investigate either an act of dishonesty or an act of misconduct. Acts of dishonesty and misconduct include but are not limited to the following:

a. Cheating. Using or attempting to use unauthorized materials or sources in connection with any assignment, examination, or other academic exercise, or having someone else do work for the student when forbidden by the professor.

b. Unauthorized assistance or collaboration. Giving or receiving aid on an assignment, examination, or other academic exercise when not permitted by the professor.

c. Plagiarism and inappropriate use of others' work. Using the words, thoughts, or ideas of another without attribution so that they seem as if they are the student's own.

1. Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to, copying another's work word-for-word, turning in a paper written by another, rewriting another's work with only minor changes, and summarizing another's work or taking another person's ideas without acknowledging the source through proper attribution and citation.

2. An accidental omission of a citation(s) will not be considered an act of academic misconduct, unless other facts determine otherwise.

3. The faculty member responsible for grading the academic work in question has plenary authority either to make a referral of plagiarism to the Honor Council, if that faculty member is unclear if there is a violation, or to reduce the student's grade based on the academic merits of the academic work. The faculty member may not make a determination of a violation, because that is within the sole authority of the Honor Council.

d. Misappropriation of and damage to academic and personal materials. Damaging, misappropriating, or disabling academic resources so that others cannot use them is considered misconduct. This includes but is not limited to removing pages from books, stealing books or articles, hiding or misplacing books or articles intentionally, deleting or damaging computer files intended for others' use, or the taking of any personal property on school grounds.

e. Compromising examination security. Invading the security maintained for preparing or storing examinations, tampering with exam-making or exam-taking software, or discussing any part of a test or examination with a student who has not yet taken that examination but is scheduled to do so.

f. Deception and misrepresentation. Lying about or misrepresenting a student's own work, academic records, credentials, or other academic matters or information. Examples of deception and misrepresentation include but are not limited to: forging signatures, signing another student's name or initials on a roll sheet, forging letters of recommendation, falsifying internship, externship, or clinic documentation, falsifying pro bono records, or falsifying information in an application or on a résumé.

g. Electronic dishonesty. Using network or computer access in a way that inappropriately affects a class or other students' academic work. Non-exhaustive examples of electronic dishonesty include tampering with another student's account so that the student cannot complete or submit an assignment, stealing a student's work through electronic means, or knowingly spreading a computer virus.

h. Facilitating academic dishonesty. Aiding someone else to commit an act of academic dishonesty. This includes but is not limited to giving someone work product to copy or allowing someone to cheat from a student's own examination or assignment.

i. Writing past the end of an examination. Continuing to respond to a test or examination question when the time allotted has elapsed.

j. Failing to disclose admonitory incidents. A matriculated student, a student who is accepted to law school but has not yet enrolled, and a student enrolled in law school must report all admonitory incidents as described in the student's law school application to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, the student must provide all corroborating documentation, including but not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record. A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application is in violation of this Code.

k. Failing to amend admissions application. A student has a continuing responsibility to ensure the completeness and correctness of his or her admissions application to the School of Law by disclosing to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs any factual irregularities or discrepancies in the application.

A student or graduate violates this Code when he or she supplies false information on the Admissions Application or the LSAT application, or submits forged or altered documents in aid of admission, or submits as his/her LSAT score the score of another person.

A student who fails to disclose an admonitory action as described in the law school application or who provides false or misleading information on the law school application is in violation of this Code. The disclosure must include a statement of the reasons for failing to report the information or for providing misleading information on the application. The student must provide all corroborating documentation. For criminal incidents, corroborating documentation includes, but is not limited to, the criminal charge, an arrest record, and the final disposition record.

l. Knowingly referring false allegation(s). It is a violation of this Code to knowingly make a false allegation or referral pursuant to this Code or to assist another in doing so.

m. Duty to Report. A student shall report any act or conduct raising a reasonable belief that a violation of the honor code has occurred. A student who fails to meet the duty to report is in violation of the honor code except that a student does not abridge the duty to report when, based upon a good faith belief that a violation has been reported or that the conduct in question is not a violation of the honor code, he or she fails to report a violation of the honor code.

For the purposes of this provision, actual knowledge of a violation is not required to form a reasonable belief that a violation has occurred. A reasonable belief exists when there is a reasonable basis for the belief, based upon personal observation or the report of others that a violation of the honor code has occurred.

n. Illegal activity on school grounds or at school-sponsored events. A student who is accused of, charged with, or arrested while on School of Law grounds or at a School of Law sponsored event will be investigated by the Honor Council and subject to sanctions under this Code.

21.5 Sanctions

a. Types of sanctions: This Code does not require any particular sanction or range of sanctions. The appropriate sanction(s) in a particular case will depend on the circumstances as determined by the Honor Council. Multiple sanctions may be imposed in connection with any violation. Below is a non-exhaustive list of sanctions that may be imposed under this Code, upon recommendation of the Honor Council with approval by the Dean.

1. Written warning;
2. Community or law school service;
3. Counseling or referral to a student support service;
4. Letter of apology or explanation of conduct;

5. Academic penalty, such as a research paper, a lower or failing grade, or no credit for an assignment or course; this penalty may be imposed only by the Honor Council after the Chief Justice consults with and receives the recommendation of the course professor;

6. Exclusion or suspension from one or more activities, events, functions, benefits, or privileges of the School of Law;

7. Disciplinary probation for a set period of time, determined by the Honor Council, during which the student must fulfill any requirements imposed by the Honor Council due to a violation; if the student fails to fulfill the conditions during the disciplinary probation period, the Honor Council may determine that the student has violated the probation and may impose new or additional sanctions; the Honor Council must give the student notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond before making such a determination;

8. Suspension from the School of Law;

9. Expulsion from the School of Law;

10. Revocation of admission from the School of Law;

11. Denial of a dean’s certificate (diploma);

12. Suspension or revocation of a degree, certification, or other award conferred by the School of Law; or

13. Any combination thereof.

b. Effective date of sanctions: All sanctions are effective immediately, unless stayed by the Chief Justice or Dean. The Accused may request that the Chief Justice stay the sanction during the review process.

1. The Chief Justice will stay the sanction at the request of the Accused if the matter has been appealed by the Accused or accepted for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The sanction will take immediate effect once the Appellate Board denies the appeal or otherwise renders a final judgment upon review.

c. Mitigating and aggravating factors: In determining the sanction, the Honor Council may consider mitigating and aggravating factors. A non-exhaustive list of factors that may be considered include the following:

1. Pre-referral admission,

2. Other admissions,

3. Cooperation,

4. Intent,

5. Degree of harm or seriousness of offense,

6. Prior violations,

7. Nexus to professional standards,

8. Willingness to make restitution.

d. Authority of faculty: This Code does not diminish or modify a faculty member's authority to assess students or to formulate grades in the normal course of teaching for academic reasons unrelated to an Honor Code violation. If a faculty member wishes to reduce or modify a grade as a penalty for an instance of dishonesty such as those covered by section (d) of this Code, the faculty member may do so by referring the matter to the Honor Council. If a faculty member chooses to refer a student to the Honor Council, the faculty member may not impose a grade penalty for an alleged Honor Code violation if the Honor Council finds the student not guilty of the relevant dishonesty. If the Honor Council finds that the student is guilty, the Honor Council shall consult with the faculty member regarding the nature of the grade penalty. Faculty members are encouraged to publish their policy on the Honor Code in the court syllabus.

21.6 Procedures

a. Referrals

1. Method of Referral: A student shall refer a violation of this Code to any student member of the Honor Council, to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, or to a faculty member. Referrals may be made in person or through any method approved by the Honor Council, but are not required to be in writing. Referrals may not be made anonymously. However, the identity of a referring student will remain confidential unless the referring student waives his or her right to confidentiality. Further, a student referring a matter may be required to repeat information he or she provides to other Honor Council members or at a hearing.

2. Sua Sponte Referrals: If the Honor Council becomes aware of information that suggests that a student subject to this Code may have violated a provision of the Code, the Honor Council may treat this information as a referral for purposes of this Code.

b. Investigation and decision

1. After receiving a referral, the Chief Justice will appoint Investigators and instruct the Investigators to gather the relevant facts.

2. The Investigators:

   i. shall determine whether the referral primarily reflects academic or nonacademic misconduct;

   ii. shall make a preliminary determination as to whether the referral reflects conduct that falls within the scope of this Honor Code by an individual subject to this Honor Code;

   iii. may interview the person making the referral and other persons with information, and may seek additional information regarding the referral and shall instruct all interviewees of the confidential nature of the investigation;

   iv. shall meet with the Accused;

   v. may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision;

   vi. shall present to the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary all findings so that the three have sufficient information upon which to determine that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Honor Code has been violated;

3. At the meeting with the Investigator, the Accused will be provided with:

   i. an explanation of any Honor Code section at issue and the nature of the conduct that is the basis for invoking that Code section(s);

   ii. all information gathered during the investigation;

   iii. a reasonable opportunity to respond; and

   iv. an explanation of the applicable disciplinary procedures.

4. The referral will be considered an allegation under this Code only after the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary determine, by a majority vote, that a sufficient basis exists to believe that the Accused violated the Honor Code. A sufficient basis will exist if the referral relates to an allegation of fact, which, if true, would constitute a violation of the Honor Code. The Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary may consider any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, taking into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision. If no substantive basis exists, the referral will be dismissed.

5. If the Chief Justice, Associate Chief Justice, and the Secretary decide that there is sufficient basis upon which to proceed with an allegation, the Chief Justice will have the Investigators present their findings to three non-officers of the Honor Council. These non-officers will make a probable cause determination, and will decide, by a majority vote, whether to dismiss the claim(s) or proceed to a hearing.

6. A student who fails to attend a scheduled meeting with the Investigator or Honor Council risks a decision being rendered in absentia, for a negative inference will be drawn, unless excused by the Investigator(s) or Chief Justice.

c. Hearing Process

1. Upon determination that a hearing is necessary, the Accused will be notified in writing and in person by the Chief Justice that a referral to the Honor Council has been deemed sufficient, based on probable cause, to warrant a hearing, and the Accused will be informed of the dates and procedures for such a hearing. The hearing will take place within a reasonable amount of time from the time of notification.

2. After carefully considering the information gathered, the Investigators will present their findings to the Honor Council.

3. The names of any witnesses expected to appear at the hearing, as well as any relevant facts, will be provided to the accused at a reasonable time before the hearing so that the accused may present a comprehensive defense to the allegations.

4. In addition to the Honor Council, the following individuals shall be present at the hearing:

    i. The Investigators,

    ii. The Accused and his or her Student Counsel.

5. Witnesses will be permitted at the hearing to give testimony at the request of either the Investigator(s) or the Accused, and the Chief Justice may allow said witnesses to remain at the hearing upon his or her discretion.

6. The Honor Council shall conduct the hearing in the following manner:

i. The process must include, but is not limited to, examination of the Accused, if the Accused chooses to testify, and any other substantiating witness(es);

ii. A substantiating witness does not necessarily have to be the initial referring student;

iii. The Accused or his or her Student Counsel will have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) during a hearing after the Investigator's direct examination. The Investigators will also have the right to cross-examine any witness(es) the Accused or Student Counsel puts forth. The Investigators and Accused or Student Counsel will have the opportunity to redirect a witness upon request which may be granted by the Chief Justice;

iv. All questioning, cross-examination, and redirection will be strictly limited to the scope of the hearing regarding an Honor Code violation. The Chief Justice will have the plenary discretion to determine if a question is within the scope of the hearing.

v. The Investigators and the Accused may put forth any probative information, including hearsay and other evidence not normally allowed in an Article III setting, but the Honor Council may take into consideration the credibility of such information when reaching a decision.

7. After all the facts have been considered and the Accused has been given a sufficient opportunity to respond, the Honor Council shall decide, by a majority vote of those present and voting, whether a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence. If a Student Justice is unable to vote impartially based on any bias at any point before, during, or after the hearing has commenced, he or she may be excused from the hearing, which includes relinquishment of voting responsibilities. In the event of an even number of justices at the end of a hearing, the Chief Justice will not cast a vote. If the Honor Council decides that a violation of the Honor Code has been established by clear and convincing evidence, the Honor Council must determine the appropriate sanction by a majority vote. At all times, the sanction(s) imposed by the Honor Council shall be reasonably warranted by the facts and subject to approval by the Dean.

8. The Decision of the Honor Council is final, pending approval by the Dean, and pending a request for review by the Accused.

9. The Chief Justice will notify the Dean of the Honor Council's decision at the conclusion of the hearing so that the Dean may approve or reject the Honor

Council's decision.

10. Within five days of receiving approval from the Dean, the Honor Council will provide the Accused with written notice of its decision. Such notice must describe the alleged violation, the determination of the Honor Council regarding whether a violation occurred, and, if so, the sanction(s) imposed.

d. Review

1. An Accused who has been sanctioned for a violation of the Honor Code by the Honor Council may petition for review by the Appellate Board.

2. The request for review must be in writing and must be delivered to the Chief Justice within five days of the Honor Council issuing its decision. The Chief justice must deliver the request for review to the Appellate Board, and the Chief Justice, in his or her discretion, may grant an extension of time to the Accused for the filing of request for review.

3. After receiving the request for review, the Honor Council will compile the referring document, if any, any written response from the Accused, all relevant materials submitted to the Honor Council, and the Honor Council's decision. The request for review and accompanying documents shall be submitted to the Appellate Board in a timely manner.

4. The Appellate Board shall review any and all information submitted by the Honor Council. The Appellate Board will review the record de novo and may review determinations of fact made by the Honor Council, but that review is limited to the record. The Appellate Board may affirm, modify, remand, or overturn the decision of the Honor Council, but the Appellate Board cannot overturn an acquittal.

21.7 Elections

a. The ballot for elections to the Honor Council will be determined by anonymous nominations from the student body, submitted to the Dean or assignee.

   1. Once the nomination process is complete, the Dean shall email each nominee and explain that he will apply the standard in part (a)(2) and allow the nominee to withdraw, submit a brief statement in support of his or her nomination, or do nothing.

   2. The Dean shall review the nomination list and may remove nominees from the list if the Dean or designee determines that a nominee is ineligible based on past admonitions in the student's admissions record pertaining to illegal or unethical conduct, a precarious academic status, or other competent information.

3. After nominees have been notified and accepted their nominations, a final list of nominees will be put on a ballot. Elections will be held at the end of the semester, coinciding with SBA elections.

b. Each student casting a vote for his or her respective class will indicate, on the ballot, which nominees he or she selects based on the number of available positions for that class.

c. If, at any time, a Student Justice is unable to be a member of the Honor Council due to death, transfer, Honor Code violation, or the like, the position will be vacant until the next election, except under exceptional circumstances as determined by the Chief Justice.

d. The SBA will be responsible for administering the election and will have authority to promulgate reasonable rules governing it.

1. A student in the 2L class will cast five votes, and a student in the 3L class will cast three votes.

2. The five nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

i. The three nominees from the 2L class who receive the most votes will be seated for a two-year term on the Honor Council.

ii. The remaining two nominees will serve a one-year term on the Honor Council.

iii. The nominee who receives the most votes from the 2L class will serve as Secretary in his or her first year and Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

iv. The nominee who receives the second most votes will serve as Associate Chief Justice in his or her second year on the Honor Council.

v. The nominee who receives the third most votes will serve Student Justice in his or her third year on the Honor Council.

3. The three nominees from the 3L class who receive the most votes will be seated.

4. A student is only permitted to vote for nominees in his or her class.

21.8 Reporting and Record-keeping

a. The Honor Council's written decision and all other documentation will be placed in the student's file in the Registrar's Office.

b. A finding that the Accused has violated the Honor Code will be reported by the Dean to any board of bar examiners or similar organization for any bar to which the Accused applies. Students should be aware that most bar applications will require the student to report any sanctions imposed on the student by an educational institution, regardless of whether the sanctions were for conduct suggesting unfitness for the practice of law. Students also should be aware that the School of Law routinely responds to inquiries regarding student character and fitness from boards of bar examiners and similar organizations.

c. Approximately two weeks before the last day of classes, the Honor Council must provide a report to the faculty and the SBA providing the following information:

   1. For referrals, the number of referrals considered by the Honor Council's Investigators, the Honor Code provisions implicated by the referrals, and the number of referrals dismissed without further proceedings;

   2. For allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the number of allegations submitted to probable cause hearings, the Honor Code provisions implicated by those allegations, and the number of allegations dismissed without further proceedings;

   3. For each allegation submitted to a final hearing, state the Honor Code provisions implicated by the allegation, the determination regarding whether a violation occurred as to each implicated Honor Code provision, and the sanction(s) imposed, if any. Additionally, for each allegation submitted to a final hearing, the report shall indicate the status of the decision in terms of review by the Appellate Board (e.g., "The time for review has expired without a request for review."). If a decision was reviewed by the Appellate Board, the report should state the outcome of the review or indicate that the review is pending.

21.9 Confidentiality

a. The School of Law considers referrals and hearings under the Honor Code to be confidential. All participants should respect the confidentiality of this information and disclose it only to those who have authority to know.

b. A violation of the confidentiality of any proceeding, other than by the Accused or with the express consent of the Accused, will be considered an Honor Code violation.

21.10 Honor Code Advisory Committee

a. The Dean, on a periodic basis, may appoint a committee to review all decisions rendered for the purposes of amending these procedures under the Honor Code since the last review.

b. The committee will be determined by appointment by the Dean from the full-time faculty members, but also may include students, staff, alumni, attorneys, national experts, and others the Dean considers appropriate.

c. Information provided to the committee should not contain names of any persons involved with the matter.

d. The committee should prepare a written report that privately advises the Dean about whether, overall, the sanctions issued under the Code were appropriate. No individual result can be changed as a result of this review and report.

e. The committee also may make recommendations to the Dean about possible amendments to the Honor Code. These recommendations will be published to the faculty and the Honor Council.

21.11 Amendments

Amendments to the Honor Code may be proposed by any member of the faculty, by the Honor Council through a majority vote, or member of the student body accompanied by a written petition with twenty-five signatures supporting the amendment, and the amendment must be approved by a majority of the full-time voting faculty, only after consulting with the Honor Council.

a. Any amendment must be published on the announcement bulletin board and emailed to every member of the law school.

b. Any amendments to the Honor Code are not effective until the next full academic semester following the vote to amend the Code.

22. STUDENT GRADE APPEAL PROCEDURE

22.1 Grades

a. It will be the obligation of the student to arrange a conference with the faculty member involved in sufficient time to meet the time limit set out in 22.1c, below.

b. It will be the obligation of the faculty member to meet with the student to discuss the complaint and try in good faith to reconcile the differences.

c. If the faculty member and the student are unable to resolve the complaint, the student may file a written complaint in duplicate with the Dean of the Law School not more than sixty (60) days after the last examination was given in the term in which the complaint relates, or fifteen (15) days after the grade is posted, whichever is later. The complaint will specifically allege the grounds on which the complaint is based and the cause for action by the committee. The grounds will be supported by a narrative statement of fact.

d. If the faculty member is not available for conference with the student, after the student has made a good faith effort to initiate such conference, the student may omit the procedure in 22.1c. However, in no event will this paragraph become operative until fifty-five (55) days have elapsed since the last examination was given in the term to which the complaint relates.

e. Upon receipt of the WRITTEN COMPLAINT (in compliance with the provisions of paragraph 22.1c) the Dean will attempt to resolve the complaint by consultations with the student and the faculty member. If the complaint is not resolved within fifteen (15) days after the written complaint is filed or if the complaint is resolved adversely to the student, the student may appeal to the Academic Affairs Committee, sitting as the Grade Appeals Committee by requesting that the Dean forward the complaint together with all documents considered in any prior proceedings. Provided, however, that all appeals must be made no later than twenty (20) days after the written complaint is filed with the Dean of the Law School, or five (5) days after the conference with the Dean, whichever is later. The Committee upon receipt of the complaint from the Dean will determine whether or not a prima facie case has been alleged and whether the matter should be heard. Failure to allege a cause of action will result in a dismissal of the petition forthwith.

f. It shall be the obligation of the student to present evidence and a prima facie case as set out below.

g. The Committee shall hear such evidence as is relevant that the faculty member used factors extraneous to academic performance to determine, at least in part, the student's grade. The grading factors listed in 12.5 shall not be deemed to be factors extraneous to academic performance on the grounds that adequate notice of the instructor's use of such factors was not given.

h. The faculty member at whom the appeal is directed may be present if the complaint specifically alleges prejudice, bias or discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin, age, handicap or disability, sexual orientation or gender. The faculty member will not have the right to attend other hearings in which the student presents his/her evidence set out in 22.1g above, although the Committee in its discretion may request or allow him/her to attend. In the event that the faculty member is permitted to attend under any circumstances he/she may do so without comment or examination of any parties to the hearing. The faculty member may not under any circumstances participate or sit in on any deliberation or voting. The Committee upon request will provide the faculty member with a copy of all written statements or documents utilized by the student in making his/her prima facie case. Neither the faculty member nor the student may be represented by counsel or next friend.

i. After the presentment of the student's evidence the Committee will determine whether the student has presented a prima facie case.

j. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has not been made, the appeal will be dismissed by the Committee. The Committee will notify the Dean of the Committee's decision and the Dean will then notify the student.

k. If the Committee determines that a prima facie case has been made, it will then determine whether bias, prejudice or other factors extraneous to academic performance did in fact adversely affect the student's grade.

l. In making the determination in 22.1k, above, the Committee shall with the faculty member present, if he/she desires to be, review the written work submitted by the student in the course and review the method by which the final grade was determined.

m. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may request a written statement from the faculty member containing any outline of his/her answers to any examination questions and a statement of how the grade was determined.

n. In connection with the review in 22.1, above, the Committee may, in its discretion, request written work turned in by other students to be used for comparison purposes. The material and information requested in 22.1, m. and n above will be used only to determine whether factors extraneous to academic performance were used in determining the grade. No evaluation for rank, policy, or substantive determinations will be considered.

o. Should any member of the Committee (a) be unavailable, or (b) excuse himself/herself because of a conflict of interest, the Dean will appoint a substitute member to serve on the Committee for all matters involving the case in question.

p. Any determinations by the Committee as to the grade of the appealing student shall be final within the School of Law. The Dean, faculty member and student will be given notification of the decision of the Committee.

q. The Committee may request the assistance of other members of the law faculty in reviewing the written work submitted by the student and written work of other students used for comparison purposes. The request of assistance of other members of the law faculty will be for the purpose of determination of the use of factors extraneous to the course work in determining the student's grade.

23. STUDENT COMPLAINT PROCEDURE

The Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis is subject to the ABA Standards for Approval of Law schools. The Standards may be found at http://www.americanbar.org/groups/legal_education/resources/standards.html. Under ABA Standard 512(a), a law school “shall establish, publish, and comply with policies with respect to addressing student complaints." Under ABA standard 512(c), a "complaint" is a communication in writing that seeks to bring to the attention of the law school a significant problem that directly implicates the school's program of legal education and its compliance with the Standards."

23.1 Procedures for Submitting a Complaint

To bring a complaint, a student at the Law School must take the following steps:

a. A student must hand deliver the complaint in writing to a member of the Student Complaint Review Committee ("Review Committee"). The Review Committee is composed of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, the Assistant Dean for Administration, and the Assistant Dean for Student Affairs.

b. The complaint must describe in detail the behavior, program, or process complained of, and demonstrate how it implicates the Law School's program of legal education and the school's compliance with a particular ABA Standard.

c. The complaint must provide the name of the student submitting the complaint, the student's University of Memphis email address, an address where the student receives U.S. mail, and a phone number where the student can be reached.

23.2 Procedures for Addressing a Complaint

a. Once a complaint is delivered, a member of the Review Committee will acknowledge the receipt of the complaint in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within seven business days.

b. A member of the Review Committee must either meet with the student to discuss the resolution of the complaint or mail a written response to the substance of the complaint to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days.

c. The written response must either state a decision regarding the substance of the complaint with an explanation for that decision, or explain steps that the Law School will take to resolve or further investigate the complaint.

d. Absent exceptional circumstances, the Review Committee shall endeavor to fully investigate and resolve all complaints within ninety business days from the date of the complaint.

23.3 Procedures for Appealing a Resolution

a. A student may appeal the Review Committee's resolution to the Dean.

b. The student must hand deliver the appeal to the Dean or Dean's designee in writing within seven business days of the date of resolution.

c. The appeal must describe in detail the grounds for appeal. The appeal may not include complaints not covered in the original complaint.

d. The Dean shall endeavor to respond to the appeal in writing to the mailing address provided in the complaint within thirty business days from the date the appeal was submitted.

e. The Dean's decision is final.

23.4 Maintenance of Records of Student Complaints

The Assistant Dean for Administration shall maintain a record of the student complaints, resolutions, and appeals for a period of eight years.

24. NOTIFICATIONS

Notifications to students concerning class assignments, attendance, and all other matters pertaining to the Law School and its activities may be given by faculty or the Law School administration as follows:

a. by posting in the mails for delivery by regular mail to the address of a student set forth in the records maintained by the Law School's Registrar; or

b. by posting on the bulletin boards on the second floor of the Law School; or

c. by delivery to a student=s mail folder at the Law School.

Any notification so given shall be deemed received by the student.

25. UNIVERSITY POLICIES & PROCEDURES AFFECTING STUDENTS

In addition to the Academic Regulations as set forth herein governing the rights and responsibilities of law students, the policies and procedures of the university as set forth in the most recent edition of the Student Handbook of The University of Memphis apply to law students. Such policies and procedures include, but are not limited to:

I. Privacy Rights of Parents & Students -- Notice to Students

II. Harassment Policy

III. Student Appeal Procedure for Discrimination

IV. Withdrawal or Temporary Suspension due to Severe Psychological Disturbance

V. Students with Disabilities

26. CONFORMITY WITH RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER ENTITIES

These academic regulations shall be interpreted and construed in such a way as to be consistent with the rules and regulations of The University of Memphis, the Tennessee Board of Regents, the Supreme Court of Tennessee, the American Bar Association or other accrediting entity, and the laws of the State of Tennessee and of the United States.

27. SEVERABILITY OF PROVISIONS

If any provision in these Academic Regulations shall be held invalid or in contravention of the rules and regulations of the University, or of the laws of the State of Tennessee or the United States, then the remainder of these Academic Regulations shall not be affected thereby.

APPENDIX I

Standards for Attainment of the J.D. Degree

Attainment of the J.D. degree awarded by the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis means that the student has, in the judgment of the faculty, acquired an acceptable level of mastery of essential skills that the faculty has determined to be prerequisite to entering the practice of law. The purpose of the curriculum of the School of Law is to enable students to acquire these skills. All candidates for the J.D. degree must be capable of acquiring, and ultimately demonstrating, mastery of these skills. The requisite level of mastery includes the ability to perform these skills under circumstances, including time constraints and other performance requirements that reflect the realities of the practice of law.

In acquiring these skills, it is essential that the candidate behave honestly, responsibly, fairly and professionally. It is also essential that the candidate regularly and punctually be prepared for and attend scheduled obligations and that the candidate meet deadlines.

To the extent that resources permit, the Law School curriculum is intended to enable students to acquire skills other than those essential skills listed below, but the curriculum, taken as a whole, is intended to insure that students master these essential skills:

1. Intellectual Skills:

    1. Knowledge. Ability to identify, define and describe a core body of American legal terminology and classifications, literature (i.e. sources of law), principles and concepts, and judicial and administrative systems.

    2. Comprehension. Ability to paraphrase, explain, compare, organize, and interpret legal knowledge.

    3. Application. Ability to apply legal knowledge in performing legal research and in identifying legal issues in factual situations that differ from those in which the knowledge was first encountered.

    4. Analysis. Ability to formulate legitimate arguments and responses for resolution of legal issues in new factual situations, and to support those arguments and responses, both directly and by analogy, with sources of law.

    5. Evaluation. Ability to evaluate and criticize the quality of legal analysis in terms of both reasoning and support in sources of law.

    6. Synthesis. Ability to apply skills of analysis and evaluation to a complex body of legal knowledge to create an organized and original intellectual product.

2. Communication Skills:

   1. Ability to acquire and preserve information from both oral and written sources.

   2. Ability to communicate effectively the candidate's knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, evaluation, and synthesis skills.

   3. Ability to communicate effectively and responsively in a public forum.

FIRST YEAR LAW STUDENTS
FIRST DAY ASSIGNMENTS
FALL 2016

SECTION 11

Contracts NEWMAN 111-section 11

- Download the reading-assignments list from the course TWEN site and complete the first reading assignment.

Torts I MCCLURG 112-both sections

1. Required book: PROSSER, WADE & SCHWARTZ'S TORTS: CASE AND MATERIALS (Foundation Press 13th ed. 2015).

2. Pick up a copy of the Supplemental Materials for Torts I (SM) from the box outside my office (Room 372). These should be available in the first week of August.

3. First week assignments: Tuesday: SM pp. 1–8; Casebook pp. v-vi; 1–9 (omitting Weaver v. Ward); 17–20. Thursday: No additional reading assignment. Carefully re-review Garratt v. Daily from the prior assignment, which we will start at the first class, but not complete.

4. Register for the Torts I TWEN site, and go to "Course Materials" for more complete course instructions and documents.

Legal Methods I WILSON 113-both sections

- Please refer to the Syllabus on the Legal Methods TWEN Course.

Civil Procedure BOCK 114-section 11

- Starting Monday, August 8, please register for the "Civ Pro I - Section 011" TWEN site. The syllabus and the assignments for the first full week of classes will be posted there.

Property I BRASHIER 115-section 11

- For our first class, please read pages 1-18 in the casebook.

FIRST YEAR LAW STUDENTS
FIRST DAY ASSIGNMENTS
FALL 2016

SECTION 12

Contracts MAMLYUK 111-section 12

- Read and outline the Preface and Chapter 1 of Knapp, Crystal, Prince, Problems in Contract Law: Cases and Materials (7th edition, 2012) (pages xxi to 29) and, afterwards, read Chapter 1 of Knapp, Crystal, Prince, Problems in Contract Law: Cases and Materials (8th edition, 2016) (pages 1 to 27) (will be distributed via email).

Torts I MCCLURG 112-both sections

Required book: PROSSER, WADE & SCHWARTZ'S TORTS: CASE AND MATERIALS (Foundation Press 13th ed. 2015).

- Pick up a copy of the Supplemental Materials for Torts I (SM) from the box outside my office (Room 372). These should be available in the first week of August.
- First week assignments: Tuesday: SM pp. 1–8; Casebook pp. v-vi; 1–9 (omitting Weaver v. Ward); 17–20. Thursday: No additional reading assignment. Carefully re-review Garratt v. Daily from the prior assignment, which we will start at the first class, but not complete.
- Register for the Torts I TWEN site, and go to "Course Materials" for more complete course instructions and documents.

Legal Methods I WILSON 113-both sections

- Please refer to the Syllabus on the Legal Methods TWEN Course.

Civil Procedure SCHAFFZIN 114-section 12

INTRODUCTION: What do you imagine might be covered in a class called "Civil Procedure"? What sort of clients do you think should be concerned that their lawyers understand procedure? Why do we have procedure? How did procedure affect the litigation in A Civil Action?

- Read A Civil Action by Jonathan Harr. The book reads like a novel. Just enjoy your first read through it. Don't worry about how the book will apply to the course. We will return to portions of the book throughout the semester.
- Enroll in my class on Lexis's Blackboard Webcourse.
- Read my Syllabus posted on Blackboard.
- Read chapter 1 in Civil Procedure: A Coursebook.

SECTION 12 CONTINUED

Property I KIEL 115-section 12

August 16: An Introduction to Property Law

- Review Syllabus (TWEN)
- Problem #1 – Who Owns the Watch? (TWEN)

August 17: Competing Interests in Property Law Generally

- Jacque v. Steenberg Homes, Inc. (TWEN)
- State v. Shack (TWEN)

August 19: Continue with Jacque and Shack cases

- Introduction to Acquisition of Property – First Possession
- Pierson v. Post, including notes 3 - 5 (p. 18)

FALL 2016
FIRST YEAR STUDENTS' BOOKLIST
All books are required unless otherwise indicated.

SECTION 11

CONTRACTS – LAW-0111-011 – NEWMAN

CONTRACTS (CASEBOOK)
FARNSWORTH, 8TH ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-1609300975

TORTS I – LAW-0112-011 – MCCLURG

TORTS (CASEBOOK)
PROSSER, WADE & SCHWARTZ, 13TH ed., 2015 – ISBN: 978-1609304072

Recommended - 1L OF A RIDE: WELL-TRAVELED PROF ROADMAP TO SUCCESS
MCCLURG, 2ND ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-0314283054

Recommended – LAW OF TORTS: EXAMPLES & EXPLANATIONS
GLANNON, 5TH ed., 2015 – ISBN: 978-1454850113

LEGAL METHODS I – LAW-0113-011 – WILSON

LEGAL REASONING & LEGAL WRITING
NEUMANN, 7TH ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-1454826972

LEGAL ANALYSIS
ROMANTZ, 2ND ed., 2009 – ISBN: 978-1594602795

BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH
SLOAN, 6TH ed. 2015 – ISBN: 978-1454850403

THE BLUEBOOK: A UNIFORM SYSTEM OF CITATION
20TH ed. – ISBN 978-0692400197

CIVIL PROCEDURE I – LAW-0114-011 – BOCK

CIVIL PROCEDURE (CASEBOOK)
FRIEDENTHAL, 11TH ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-0314280169

CIVIL PROCEDURE SUPPLEMENT (2016-2017)
FRIEDENTHAL, ISBN: 978-1634607582
[Supplement is on backorder and might arrive close to or after classes start.]

PROPERTY – LAW-0115-011 – BRASHIER

PROPERTY (CASEBOOK)
DUKEMINIER, 8TH ed., 2014 – ISBN: 978-1454837602

FALL 2016
FIRST YEAR STUDENTS' BOOKLIST
All books are required unless otherwise indicated.

SECTION 12
CONTRACTS – LAW-0111-012 – MAMLYUK

PROBLEMS IN CONTRACT LAW (CASEBOOK)
KNAPP, 7TH ed., 2012 – ISBN: 978-0735598225

RULES OF CONTRACT LAW STAUTORY SUPPLEMENT
KNAPP, 2015-2016 – ISBN: 978-1454840596

TORTS I – LAW-0112-012 – MCCLURG

TORTS (CASEBOOK)
PROSSER, WADE & SCHWARTZ, 13TH ed., 2015 – ISBN: 978-1609304072

Recommended - 1L OF A RIDE: WELL-TRAVELED PROF ROADMAP TO SUCCESS
MCCLURG, 2ND ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-0314283054

Recommended – LAW OF TORTS: EXAMPLES & EXPLANATIONS
GLANNON, 5TH ed., 2015 – ISBN: 978-1454850113

LEGAL METHODS I – LAW-0113-011 – WILSON

LEGAL REASONING & LEGAL WRITING
NEUMANN, 7TH ed., 2013 – ISBN: 978-1454826972

LEGAL ANALYSIS
ROMANTZ, 2ND ed., 2009 – ISBN: 978-1594602795

BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH
SLOAN, 6TH ed., 2015 – ISBN: 978-1454850403

THE BLUEBOOK: A UNIFORM SYSTEM OF CITATION, 20TH ED.
ISBN 978-0692400197

CIVIL PROCEDURE I – LAW-0114-012 – SCHAFFZIN

CIVIL PROCEDURE: A COURSEBOOK
GLANNON, 2ND ed., 2014 – ISBN: 978-1454851332

CIVIL PROCEDURE SUPPLEMENT
GLANNON, 2016 – ISBN: 978-1454875338

PROPERTY I – LAW-0115-012 – KIEL

PROPERTY (CASEBOOK)
DUKEMINIER, 8TH ed., 2014 – ISBN: 978-1454837602

UNDERSTANDING PROPERTY LAW
SPRANKLIN, 3RD ed., 2012 – ISBN: 978-1422498736

INSTRUCTIONS FOR REGISTERING FOR WESTLAW, TWEN & THE LEGAL METHODS TWEN COURSE

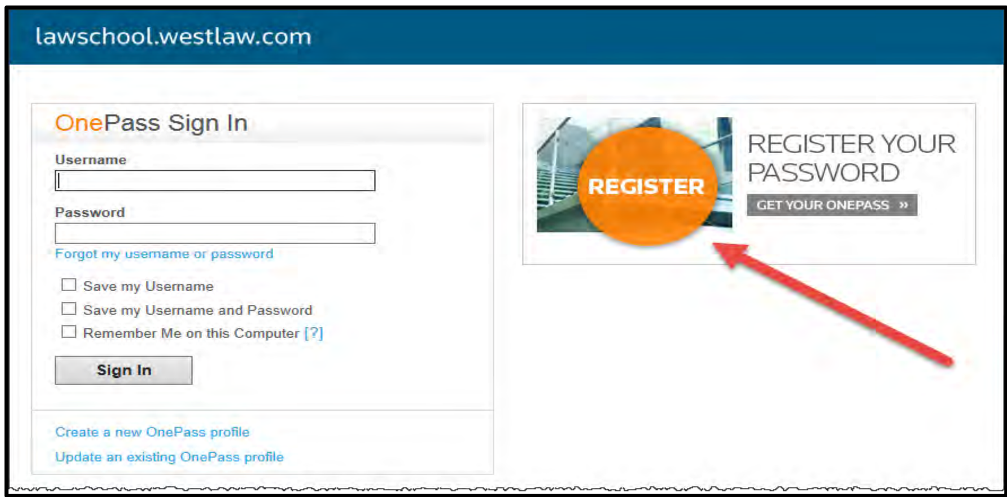
All 1Ls will use Westlaw and TWEN during the fall semester. To gain access to TWEN, you must first register for Westlaw access. After you register for Westlaw access, register for the Legal Methods TWEN Course.[1]

Registering for Westlaw/TWEN Access

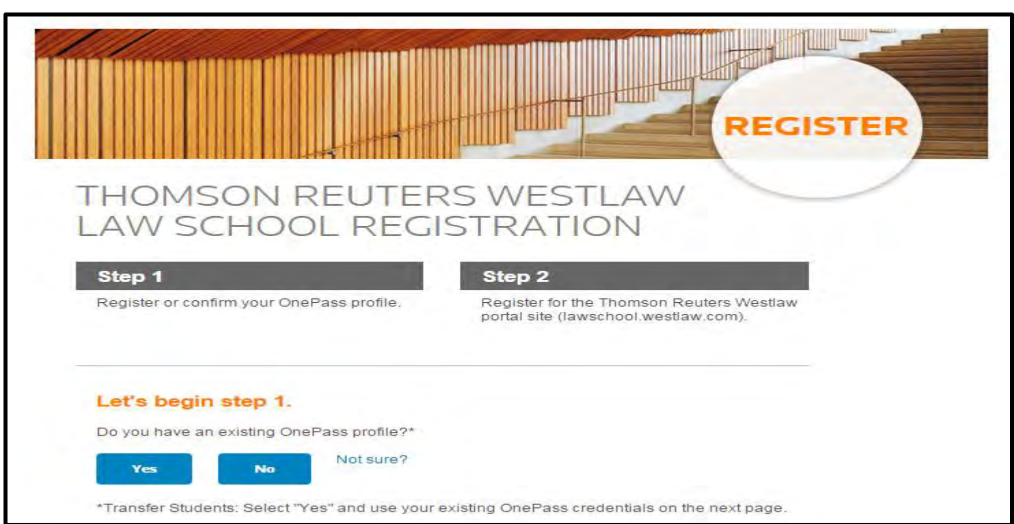
1. Obtain your Westlaw Password from Linda Hayes.

2. Go to www.lawschool.westlaw.com.

3. Click the Register link located on the right.

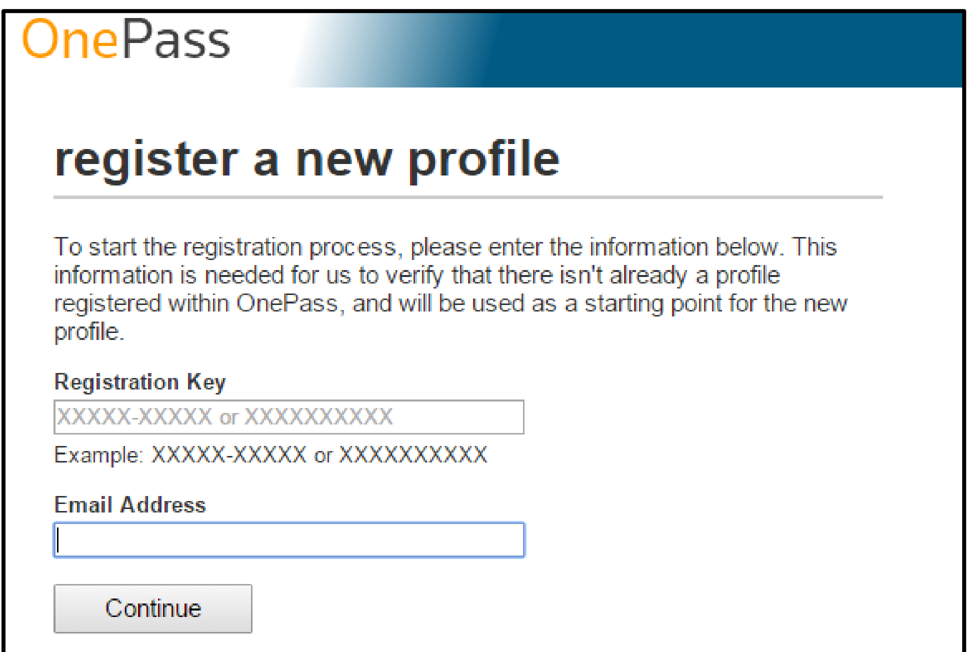


4. Select No in response to whether you have an existing OnePass profile.

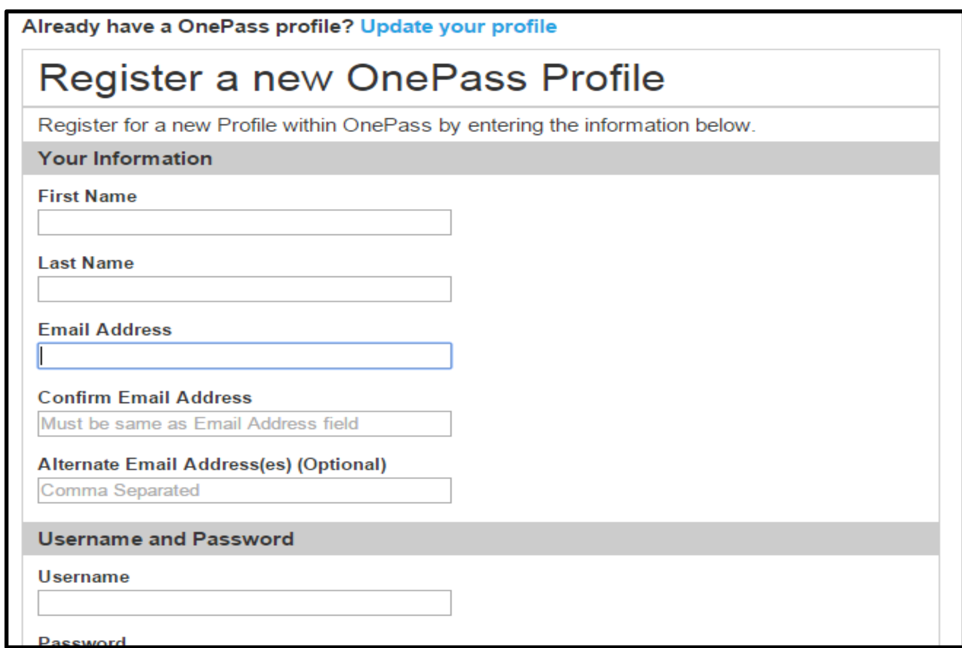


[1] Several other classes will also use TWEN. Please review the first assignments and syllabi for your other classes to determine whether you need to register for additional TWEN Courses.

5. Fill in the Westlaw Registration Key provided to you by Linda Hayes and your preferred email address in the appropriate boxes. Click Continue.



6. Fill out the registration information. Click Create Profile.



7. You are now registered for Westlaw and TWEN. Later in the semester, you will learn how to conduct legal research on Westlaw.

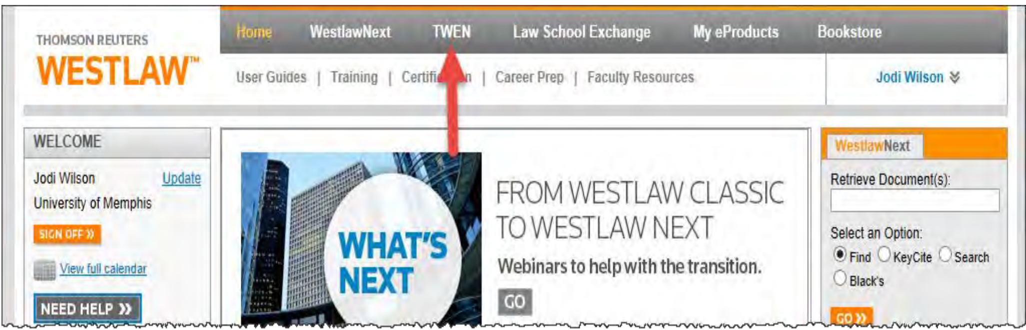
8. If you have problems registering for Westlaw, contact Westlaw technical support at (800) 850-WEST.

Enrolling in the Legal Methods TWEN Course

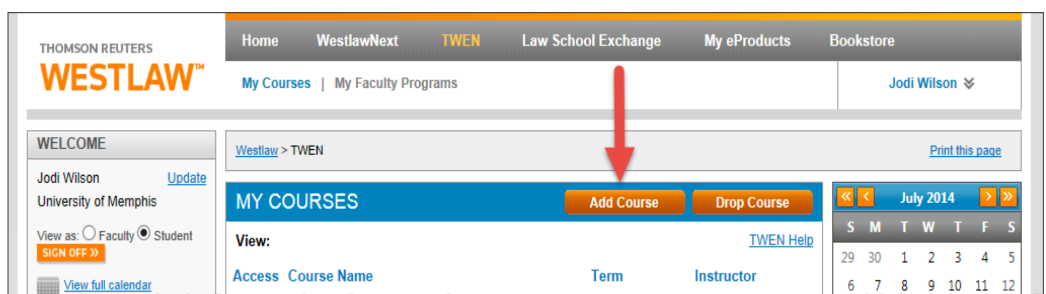
1. Go to www.lawschool.westlaw.com.

2. Enter your OnePass Username and Password. Click Sign In.

3. You should now see the Westlaw "Home" page. Click TWEN at the top of the page.

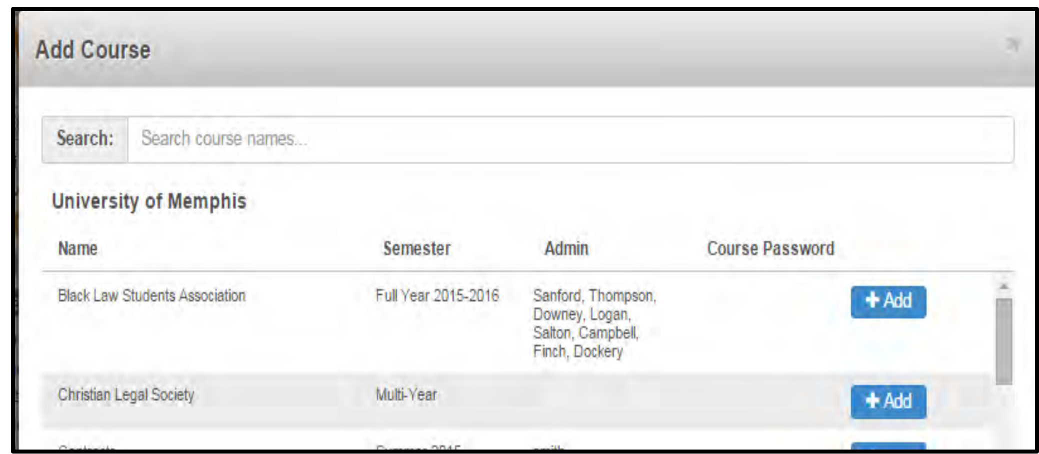


4. You should now see the "My Courses" page. Click Add Course at the top of the My Courses page.



5. The TWEN courses that are available for you will be displayed. Under University of Memphis, you should see a course named LEGAL METHODS – Wilson (Full Year 2016-2017). Click Add.

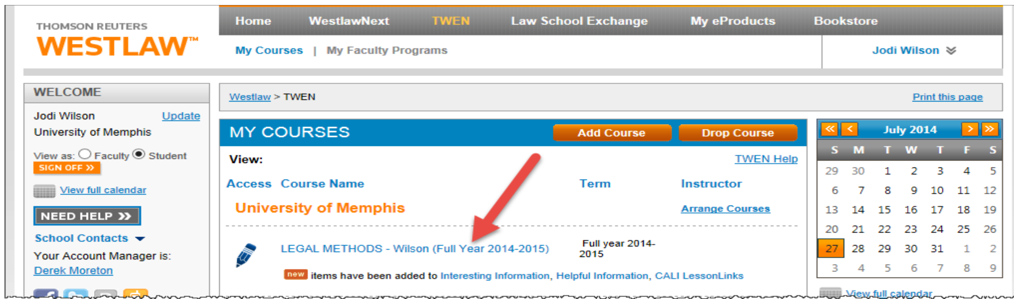
   ➢ NOTE: If your other professors are also using TWEN, you may want to add those courses now too.



6. Scroll to the bottom of the window and click Close.

7. This will take you back to the My Courses page. You should see all of the courses you added.

8. On your My Courses page, click the link for LEGAL METHODS – Wilson (Full Year 2016-2017) to enter the Legal Methods TWEN Course.



9. If you have problems registering for TWEN Courses, contact Westlaw technical support at (800) 850-WEST.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR REGISTERING FOR LEXIS ACCESS and
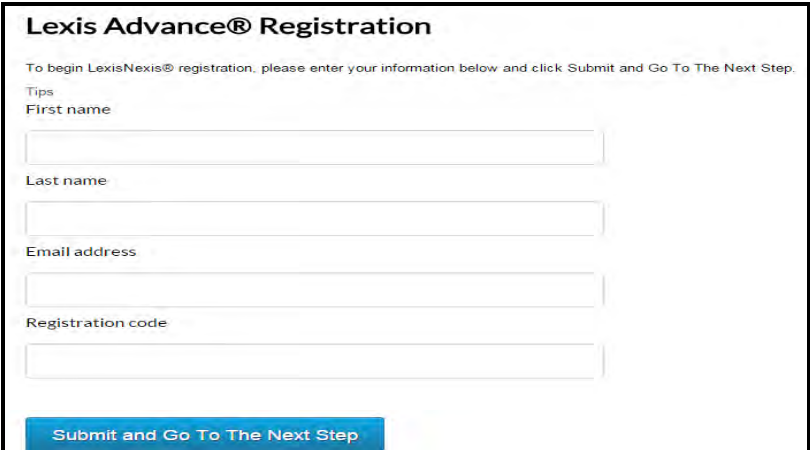
REGISTERING FOR A WEB COURSE ON BLACKBOARD

All 1Ls will use Lexis during the fall semester. Thus, all 1Ls should register for Lexis access now. If a professor instructs you to register for a Web Course on Blackboard, then you will first need to register for Lexis access and then register for the Web Course. You only need to register for a Web Course on Blackboard if one of your professors uses Blackboard in his or her course; review your course syllabi and first assignments for this information.

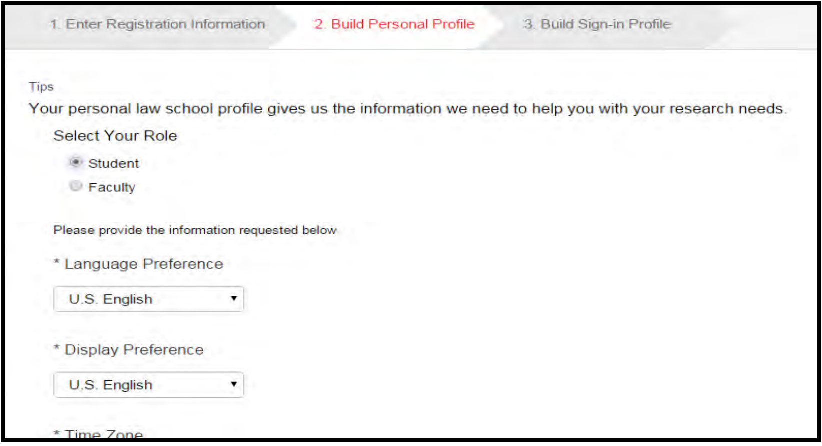
Registering for Lexis Access

1. Go to www.lexisnexis.com/register.

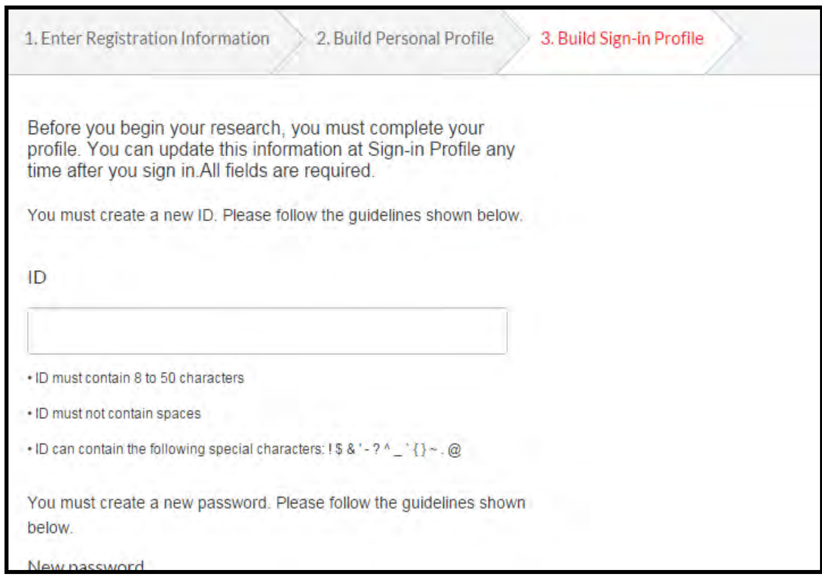
2. Enter your name, your preferred email address, and the University of Memphis Registration Code provided to you by Ms. Hayes. Click Submit.



3. Complete your Personal Profile and click Submit.



4. Complete your Sign-In Profile and click Finish.



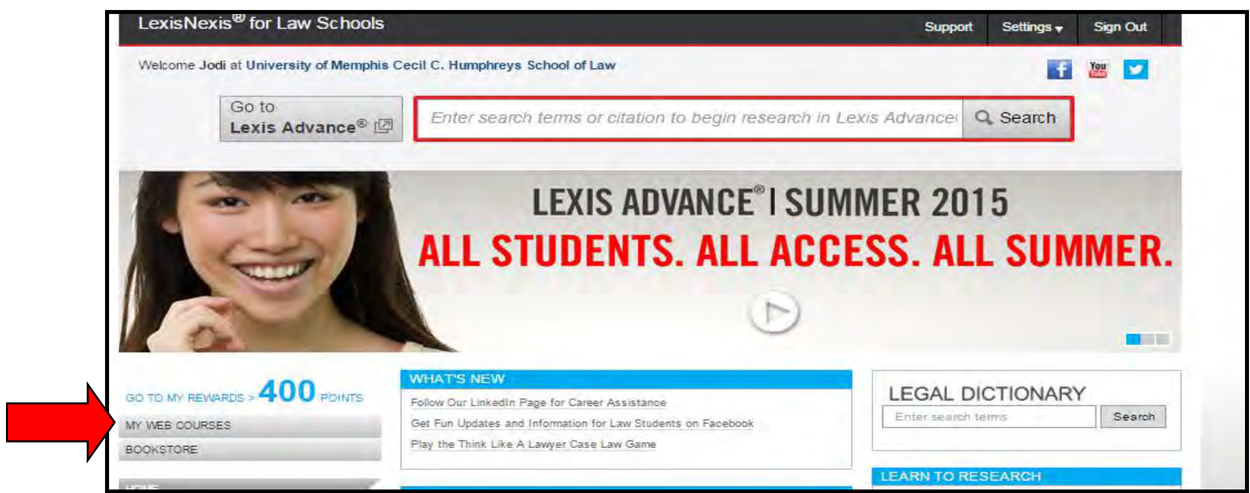
5. After you set up your Lexis Profiles, you will be taken back to the Lexis Law School Home Page. Later in the semester, you will learn how to conduct legal research on Lexis.

6. If you have problems registering for Lexis access, contact your Lexis representative, Lindsey Watson, at Lindsey.Watson@lexisnexis.com or the Lexis Law School Support Line at 1-800-45-LEXIS.

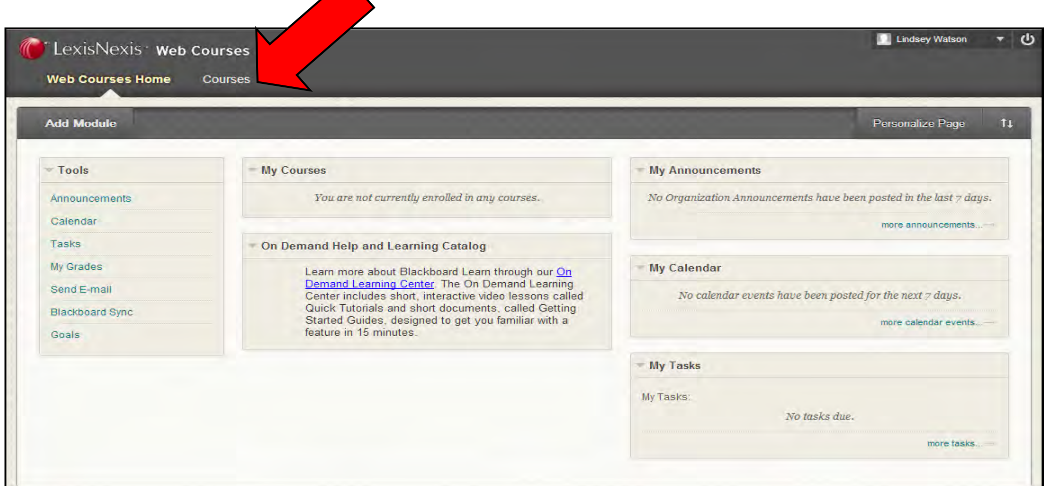
Registering for a Web Course on Blackboard

1. Go to www.lexisnexis.com/lawschool and sign in using the username and password you created.

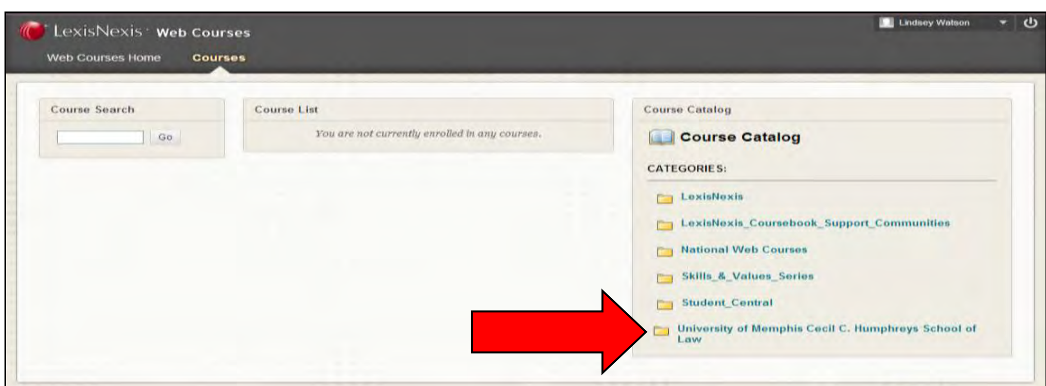
2. Click on My Web Courses.



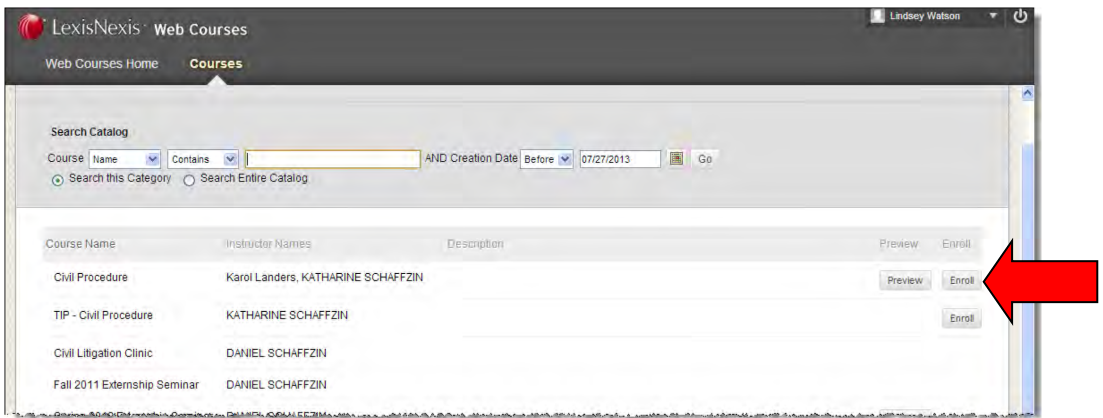
3. You will be taken to the Web Courses Home Page. Click on Courses at the top of the page.



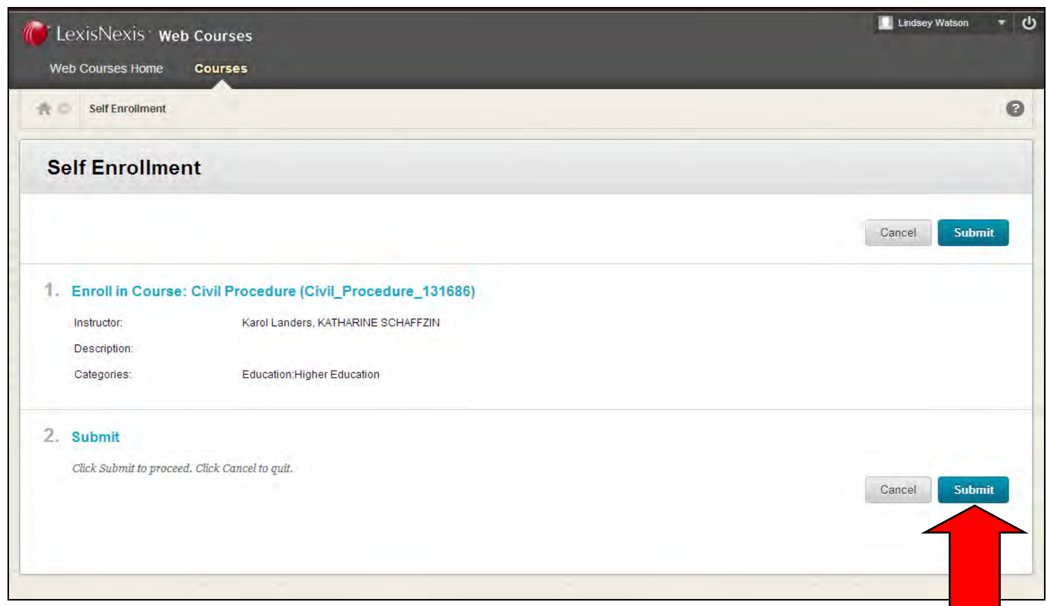
4. In the Course Catalog, click on University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.



5. Find your course in the list and click Enroll.



6. Click Submit to confirm your enrollment. Once you receive the "Action Successful" message, return to the Web Courses Home to access the page.



7. If you have problems registering for a Web Course, contact your Lexis representative, Lindsey Watson, at Lindsey.Watson@lexisnexis.com or the Lexis Law School Support Line at 1-800-45-LEXIS.

MANDATORY CAREER SERVICES ORIENTATION

During Orientation, you will be provided with an overview of the services we offer, Symplicity training, a preview of the calendar of events, an overview of job search tools, and an introduction to the Pro Bono Program.

You are welcome to attend any programs sponsored by the CSO. As a 1L, please keep in mind the National Association for Legal Placement does not allow us to provide one-on-one career guidance until October 15th nor can you initiate contact with future employers until December 1st. Mandatory one-on-one career guidance appointments begin after October 15th.

SAVE THE DATE

OCTOBER 19, 2016
12:00 PM
WADE AUDITORIUM

please turn over

THE UNIVERSITY OF
MEMPHIS.
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

MANDATORY CAREER SERVICES ORIENTATION

During Orientation, you will be provided with an overview of the services we offer, Symplicity training, a preview of the calendar of events, an overview of job search tools, and an introduction to the Pro Bono Program.

You are welcome to attend any programs sponsored by the CSO. As a 1L, please keep in mind the National Association for Legal Placement does not allow us to provide one-on-one career guidance until October 15th nor can you initiate contact with future employers until December 1st. Mandatory one-on-one career guidance appointments begin after October 15th.

SAVE THE DATE

OCTOBER 19, 2016
12:00 PM
WADE AUDITORIUM

please turn over

WHO WE ARE:

Elizabeth G. Rudolph, JD, MSN
Assistant Dean, Career Services

Chesney Falk McAfee
Law School Counselor

Stephanie Hope
Administrative Secretary

Career Services Office (CSO)
Room 236
901-678-3217
lawcareerservices@memphis.edu

WHAT WE DO:

- One-on-One Career Counseling
- Resume & Cover Letter Workshops and Reviews
- Job Search Strategies
- Professionalism Programs
- On Campus Interviews
- Judicial Clerkship Guidance
- Mock Interviews & Interviewing Techniques
- Practice Area Pathways
- Pro Bono Program Administration
- And More

WHO WE ARE:

Elizabeth G. Rudolph, JD, MSN
Assistant Dean, Career Services

Chesney Falk McAfee
Law School Counselor

Stephanie Hope
Administrative Secretary

Career Services Office (CSO)
Room 236
901-678-3217
lawcareerservices@memphis.edu

WHAT WE DO:

- One-on-One Career Counseling
- Resume & Cover Letter Workshops and Reviews
- Job Search Strategies
- Professionalism Programs
- On Campus Interviews
- Judicial Clerkship Guidance
- Mock Interviews & Interviewing Techniques
- Practice Area Pathways
- Pro Bono Program Administration
- And More

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

About

FLOOR PLANS

Whether you're trying to find a professor's office or just want to take a two-dimensional tour, we encourage you to become familiar with our building.

Level 0

The lower level is home to our Legal Clinic with exterior entrance, student locker area and mailboxes, student organization offices, and the library stacks.

Level 1

Main lobby, student lounges, bookstore, auditorium, and the library main level entrance and circulation area are on Level 1.

Level 2

You'll find two large classrooms, administrative offices and library stacks, and study rooms on this level.

Level 3

Level 3 is home to the historic courtroom, a practice courtroom, two large classrooms, and faculty offices, as well as additional library stacks.

Level 4

Come here to see the magnificent river view from the Ball Reading Room, the Law Review suite, and learning commons and offices.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/14/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

2016 Parking Information

The University of Memphis negotiates reduced parking rates annually for law students. Students can park elsewhere, but these garages have reduced costs.

Garage Name	Address	Contact #	Prices
Mud Island Parking Garage	125 North Front Street	901.576.7223	$62.00/monthly $248.00/semester
Econo Lodge Parking Garage	22 North Third Street	901.522.9237	$40.00/monthly $160.00/semester
Republic Parking Garage*	35 Monroe Avenue	901.526.5465	$60.00/monthly covered $47.00/monthly rooftop
Towne Park Shoppers Garage	85 N. Front Street	866.223.7056	$45.00/monthly

* The Law School does not negotiate a student rate with Republic Parking Garage, but the garage offers an unofficial student discount.

Parking Information

The University of Memphis negotiates reduced parking rates annually for law students. Students can park elsewhere, but these garages have reduced costs.

Garage Name	Address	Contact #	Prices
Mud Island Parking Garage	125 North Front Street	901.576.7223	$62.00/monthly $248.00/semester
Econo Lodge Parking Garage	22 North Third Street	901.522.9237	$35.00/monthly $140.00/semester
Republic Parking Garage*	35 Monroe Avenue	901.526.5465	$60.00/monthly covered $47.00/monthly rooftop

* The Law School does not negotiate a student rate with Republic Parking Garage, but the garage offers an unofficial student discount.

Michigan State University
Japan
May 13 – June 11, 2013
http://law.msu.edu/japan/

Penn State Law
Montreal, Quebec, Canada
May 15 – June 18, 2013
http://law.psu.edu/academics/specialized_fields_of_study/international_and_transnational_law/education_abroad/montreal_program

Loyola University New Orleans
Rio de Janeiro, Brazil
May 18 – June 2, 2013
http://loyno.edu/ip/brazil

The Catholic University of America Columbus School of Law
Rome, Italy
May 18 – June 8, 2013
http://www.law.edu/summerabroad

University of Missouri-Kansas City
Beijing, China
May 18 – June 9, 2013
http://www1.law.umkc.edu/academic/china/program_features.htm

St. Louis University
Madrid, Spain
May 19 – June 29, 2013
http://www.slu.edu/school-of-law-home/centers-of-excellence/center-for-international-and-comparative-law/study-abroad/spain

Hamline University
Norway
May 20 – June 21, 2013
http://law.hamline.edu/study_abroad/norway.html

Loyola University New Orleans
Moscow, Russia
May 24 – June 16, 2013

http://loyno.edu/ip/russia

Hofstra Law
Pisa, Italy
May 25 – June 8, 2013
http://law.hofstra.edu/Academics/studyabroad/summerprograminpisa/index.html

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center
Vietnam
May 25 – June 27, 2013
http://www.tourolaw.edu/summerprograms/pages/programInfo.aspx?pID=7

Santa Clara University
Shanghai, China
Classes: May 26 – June 14, 2013
Internships: June 17 ~ July 26, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/shanghai.cfm

Santa Clara University
Vienna & Budapest
Vienna: May 26 – June 14, 2013
Budapest: June 17 – June 21, 2013
Internships: June 24 ~ July 26, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/vienna-bratislava-budapest.cfm

Santa Clara University
Costa Rica
Classes: May 26 – June 21, 2013
Internships: June 24 ~ August 3, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/costa-rica.cfm

Southwestern Law School
Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada
May 26 – June 26, 2013
http://www.swlaw.edu/academics/international/summer/canada

Southwestern Law School
Buenos Aires, Argentina
May 26 – June 28, 2013
http://www.swlaw.edu/academics/international/summer/argentina

Santa Clara University
Hong Kong
Classes: May 27 – June 14, 2013
Internships: June 17 ~ July 26, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/hong-kong-sar-china.cfm

Santa Clara University
Singapore
Classes: May 27 – June 14, 2013
Internships: June 17 ~ July 26, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/asean.cfm

Temple University
Rome, Italy
May 27 – June 27, 2013
http://www.law.temple.edu/Pages/International/Study_Abroad_Rome.aspx

Florida International University
Seville, Spain
May 27 – July 3, 2013
http://law.fiu.edu/academic-information/international-and-graduate-studies-2/summer-study-abroad/

University of Georgia
Beijing & Shanghai, China
May 27 – June 19, 2013
http://www.law.uga.edu/china-summer-program

University of San Diego
Barcelona, Spain
May 27 – June 21, 2013
http://www.sandiego.edu/law/study_abroad/barcelona/index.php

University of San Diego
Florence, Italy
May 27 – June 22, 2013
http://www.sandiego.edu/law/study_abroad/florence/index.php

Southwestern Law School

Guanajuato, Mexico
May 28 – June 28, 2013
http://www.swlaw.edu/academics/international/summer/mexico

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center
Berlin, Germany
May 28 – June 29, 2013
http://www.tourolaw.edu/summerprograms/pages/programInfo.aspx?pID=1

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center
India
May 28 – June 29, 2013
http://www.tourolaw.edu/summerprograms/pages/programInfo.aspx?pID=5

Howard University
Cape Town, South Africa
May 28 – July 4, 2013
http://www.law.howard.edu/49

Golden Gate University School of Law
Paris, France
June 1 – 30, 2013
http://law.ggu.edu/law/academics/study-abroad/paris-summer-program#program-description

Washington University & Case Western University
Utrecht, Netherlands
June 1 – July 13, 2013
http://law.wustl.edu/summer_institute/
http://law.case.edu/summer-institute/

Santa Clara University
Sydney, Australia
Classes: June 2 – June 21, 2013
Internships: June 24 ~ August 2, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/sydney.cfm

Santa Clara University
Tokyo, Japan
Classes: June 2 – June 25, 2013
Internships: July 1 ~ July 26, 2013

http://law.scu.edu/international/tokyo.cfm

University of New Mexico
Madrid, Spain
June 2 – June 29, 2013
http://lawschool.unm.edu/international-law/madrid

American University Washington College of Law
Chile & Argentina
June 2 – 30, 2013
http://wcl.studioabroad.com/index.cfm?FuseAction=Programs.ViewProgram&Program_ID=10540

American University Washington College of Law
London, Brussels, Paris & Geneva
June 2 – 30, 2013
http://wcl.studioabroad.com/index.cfm?FuseAction=Programs.ViewProgram&Program_ID=10541

American University Washington College of Law
The Hague, Netherlands
June 2 – 30, 2013
http://www.wcl.american.edu/hague/

American University Washington College of Law
Israel
June 2 – 30, 2013
http://wcl.studioabroad.com/index.cfm?FuseAction=Programs.ViewProgram&Program_ID=10543&Type=O

American University Washington College of Law
Turkey
June 2 – 30, 2013
http://wcl.studioabroad.com/index.cfm?FuseAction=Programs.ViewProgram&Program_ID=10544

University of Miami
Greece & Italy
June 6 – July 1, 2013
http://www.law.miami.edu/summerabroad

University of Tulsa
Dublin, Ireland
June 7 – July 7, 2013
http://www.utulsa.edu/law/study-abroad

University of Miami
London, England
Human Rights or Entrepreneurship: July 7 – 27, 3013
Evidence: July 7 – August 3, 2013
http://www.law.miami.edu/summerabroad

University of Miami
Germany, Austria, Hungary, Czech Republic, Slovenia, Venice
June 9 – July 1, 2013
http://www.law.miami.edu/summerabroad

New England Law, Boston
Galway, Ireland
June 9 – July 19, 2013
http://www.nesl.edu/students/international_galway.cfm

Whittier Law School
Mexico City, Mexico
June 9 – 28, 2013
http://www.law.whittier.edu/index/centers-programs/study-abroad/mexico/

Santa Clara University
The Hague, Netherlands
June 10 – June 21, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/the-hague.cfm

Willamette University College of Law
China
June 10 – July 7, 2013
http://www.willamette.edu/wucl/innovative/abroad/china/index.html

Santa Clara University
Munich, Germany
Classes: June 16 – July 15, 2013

Internships: July 16 ~ August 9, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/munich-summer-ip.cfm

Loyola University New Orleans
Spetses, Greece
June 16 – 30, 2013
http://loyno.edu/ip/spetses-greece

Santa Clara University
Istanbul, Turkey
Classes: June 16 – July 5, 2013
Internships: July 8 – August 2, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/istanbul.cfm

Penn State Law
Florence, Rome & Siena, Italy
June 16 – July 12, 3013
http://law.psu.edu/academics/specialized_fields_of_study/international_and_transnational_law/education_abroad/florence_rome_siena

Southwestern Law School
London, England
June 16 – July 19, 2013
http://www.swlaw.edu/academics/international/summer/itlaw/
http://www.swlaw.edu/academics/international/summer/england

Santa Clara University
Geneva, Switzerland
Classes: June 23 – July 19, 2013
Internships: July 1 ~ August 2, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/geneva.cfm

Michigan State University
Bialystok, Poland
June 23 – July 19, 2013
www.law.msu.edu/poland

University of Georgia
Brussels, Belgium & Geneva, Switzerland
June 24 – July 18, 2013

http://www.law.uga.edu/brussels-geneva

Santa Clara University
Oxford, England
June 26 – August 2, 2013
http://law.scu.edu/international/oxford.cfm

Whittier Law School
Toulouse, France
June 28 – July 26, 2013
http://www.law.whittier.edu/index/centers-programs/study-abroad/france/

University of Arkansas
St. Petersburg, Russia
June 29 – July 27, 2013
http://studyabroad.uark.edu/Find_Your_Program/University_of_Arkansas_Faculty-led_Programs/St_Petersburg_Law_Institute/Dates_Deadlines.html

University of Tulsa
Tianjin, China
June 29 – July 27, 2013
http://www.utulsa.edu/law/study-abroad

Duke University
Geneva, Switzerland or Hong Kong
June 30 – July 30, 2013
http://law.duke.edu/summerinstitutes/

Loyola University New Orleans
Vienna, Austria
June 30 – July 27, 2013
http://loyno.edu/ip/vienna-austria

Whittier Law School
June 30 – July 24, 2013
Tel Aviv & Ramat Gan, Israel
http://www.law.whittier.edu/index/centers-programs/study-abroad/israel_summer/

William & Mary Law School
Madrid, Spain

June 30 – July 31, 2013
http://law.wm.edu/academics/programs/studyabroad/spain/index.php

American University Washington College of Law
Geneva, Switzerland
July 1 – July 19, 2013
http://www.wcl.american.edu/internationalorganizations/

George Washington University
Munich, Germany
July 1 – 26, 2013
July 15 – 26, 2013
http://www.law.gwu.edu/Academics/degrees/summer_programs/munich/Pages/Munich.aspx

St. Mary's University School of Law
Innsbruck, Austria
July 1 – August 2, 2013
http://www.stmarytx.edu/law/index.php?site=innsBruckProgram

University of San Diego
London, England
July 1 – August 3, 2013
http://www.sandiego.edu/law/study_abroad/london/index.php

University of San Diego
Paris, France
July 1 – August 3, 2013
http://www.sandiego.edu/law/study_abroad/paris/index.php

Whittier Law School
Barcelona, Spain
July 1 – 26, 2013

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center
Croatia
July 7 – August 3, 2013
http://www.tourolaw.edu/summerprograms/pages/programInfo.aspx?pID=6

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center

Israel
July 7 – August 9, 2013
http://www.tourolaw.edu/summerprograms/pages/programInfo.aspx?pID=4

University of Vienna
Strobl, Austria
July 13 – August 10, 2013
http://shs.univie.ac.at/shs

University of Tulsa
Buenos Aires Argentina
July 14 – August 9, 2013
http://www.utulsa.edu/law/study-abroad

Whittier Law School
Nanjing, China
July 14 – August 3, 2013
http://www.law.whittier.edu/index/centers-programs/study-abroad/china/

Michigan State University
Rijeka & Dubrovnik, Croatia
July 17 – August 12, 2013
http://law.msu.edu/croatia/

University of Tulsa
Autumn in London
August 17 – November 29, 2013
http://www.utulsa.edu/law/study-abroad

Temple University
Tokyo, Japan
January 4 – April 25, 2014
http://www.law.temple.edu/Pages/International/Semester_Abroad_in_Tokyo.aspx

Tsinghua University School of Law
LL.M. Program in Chinese Law
Beijing, China
http://www.nesl.edu/students/international_galway.cfm

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

BLACK LAW STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

The National Black Law Students Association (BLSA) is the nation's largest student-run organization representing nearly 6,000 minority law students from over 200 chapters and affiliates throughout the United States. Since its foundation in 1966, BLSA has been seeking to promote the professional needs of African-American and minority law students by promoting professional competence and increasing awareness of the needs of the community.

The Benjamin L. Hooks Chapter of BLSA at the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is devoted to providing opportunities and benefits for students and the community. BLSA provides its members with professional networking and mentorships, study tips and aids, social events, and the opportunity to participate in community service/pro bono activities. In addition, our Thurgood Marshall Mock Trial Team and Frederick Douglass Moot Court Team continue to succeed and compete in the Southern Region of BLSA's competitions, as well in the national competitions. BLSA makes it a point to be available and accessible to all students, not solely African-American students.

2016-2017 Executive Board

- President: Dawn M. Campbell
- Vice-President: Kevin E. Christopher
- Executive Secretary: Misty L. O'Neal
- Treasurer: Christian A. West-Coleman
- Community Service Chair: Naomi Reaves

- Professional Liaison: Patrick J. Hillard
- Activities/Fundraiser Chair: Noor S. Obaji
- Parliamentarian: Danny G. Bounds

For more information, please visit NBLSA's website! (www.nblsa.org)

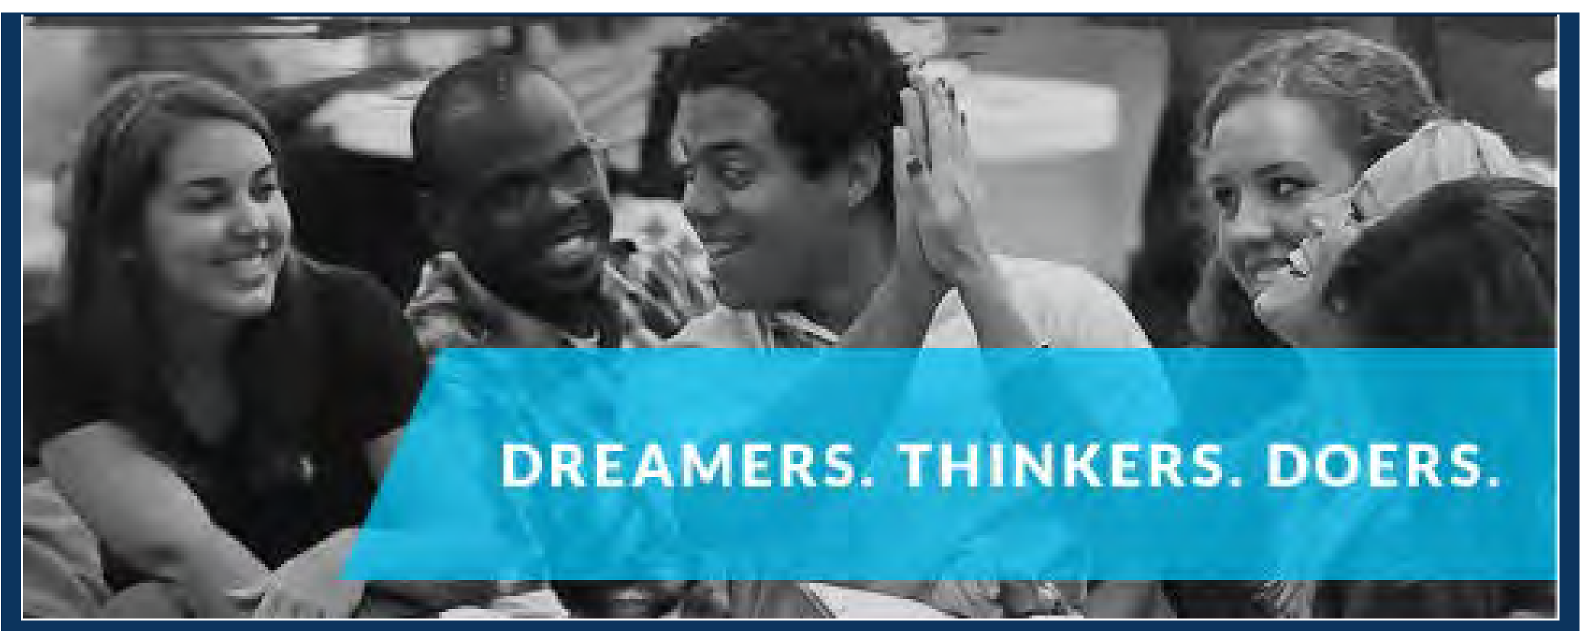
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

FEDERALIST SOCIETY

The Society's main purpose is to sponsor fair, serious, and open debate about the need to enhance individual freedom and the role of the courts in saying what the law is rather than what they wish it to be. We believe debate is the best way to ensure that legal principles that have not been the subject of sufficient attention for the past several decades receive a fair hearing. Throughout the school year, this organization will host many events over controversial and important topics that will challenge students and professors alike to consider both sides of the arguments and make a well educated decision on which side offers the best support.

- Law schools and the legal profession are currently strongly dominated by a form of orthodox liberal ideology which advocates a centralized and uniform society. While some members of the academic community have dissented from these views, by and large they are taught simultaneously with (and indeed as if they were) the law.
- The Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies is a group of conservatives and libertarians interested in the current state of the legal order. It is founded on the principles that the state exists to preserve freedom, that the separation of governmental powers is central to our Constitution, and that it is emphatically the province and duty of the judiciary to say what the law is, not what it should be. The Society seeks both to promote an awareness of these principles and to further their application through its activities.
- This entails reordering priorities within the legal system to place a premium on individual liberty, traditional values, and the rule of law. It also requires restoring the recognition of the importance of these norms among lawyers, judges, law students and professors. In working to achieve these goals, the Society has created a conservative and libertarian intellectual network that extends to all levels of the legal community.

2015-2016 Executive Board:

- President - Hunter Yoches
- Vice President - Briana Lynch
- Secretary - Tara Brown
- Treasurer - Fredrick Culver
- Director of Communications - Alexis Peddy
- 1L Representative (Section 11) - Christopher Burt
- 1L Representative (Section 12) - Connor Kohlscheen

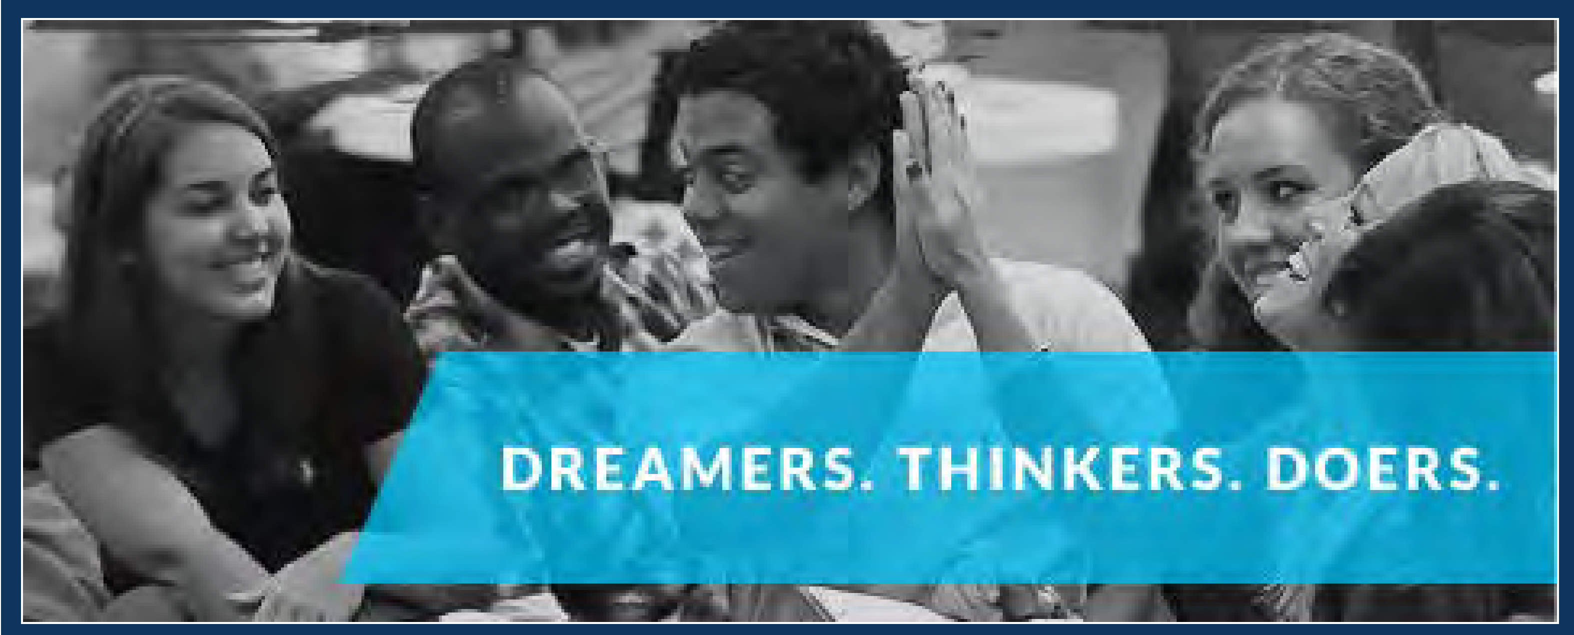
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

HEALTH LAW SOCIETY

Purpose

The Health Law Society ("HLS") is dedicated to exploring the intersection between medical health care and the judicial system. The HLS examines not only the traditional areas of health law, but also delves deeper into local and national health policy concerns. The HLS strives to enhance the experience and knowledge of its members and the entire Memphis law community.

Summary

The Health Law Society is a new student organization at the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. The Society is dedicated to exploring the intersection between medical health care and the judicial system. The Society examines not only the traditional areas of health law, but also delves deeper into local and national health policy concerns. The Society strives to enhance the experience and knowledge of its members and the entire Memphis law community.

In its first year, the Society offered its members many networking and leadership opportunities. The Society hosted a "speed networking" event. At the event, local health lawyers had short one-on-one mentoring sessions with law students. The event was a huge success and will occur yearly. The Society provided another networking opportunity by partnering with the health law section of the Memphis Bar Association for a happy hour-networking event. The happy hour allowed students to interact with health lawyers in an informal and comfortable atmosphere. The relationships established at these events have led to many lawyer-student mentoring relationships.

The members of the Society contributed short summaries of legal issues to the health law section of the Memphis Bar Association's newsletters. This was a great way to introduce the Society members to the local health law community and to display their writing skills. Lastly, the members of the Society were given the wonderful opportunity to meet both Fred Grey and Dr. Jim Jones at the law school's inaugural health law symposium. Fred Grey, attorney, represented both Martin Luther King, Jr. and the participants of the Tuskegee Syphilis Study. Dr. Jim Jones is the author of Bad Blood, a book detailing the Tuskegee Syphilis Study and analyzing the effects of institutionalized discrimination on marginalized segments of a population. It was truly a once in a life time opportunity to meet such inspirational health law figures! The Society is looking forward to another year full of health law

Officers

President
J. Lauren Ball - jlhill7@memphis.edu

Vice-President
Demi Dalrymple - ddlrympl@memphis.edu

Treasurer
Emily Bragg - ebbragg@memphis.edu

Secretary
Caroline Gordon - cgordon2@memphis.edu

Public Relations Chair
Brian Burns - bdburns@memphis.edu

Events Chair
Mary Smith - mksmith5@memphis.edu

HLS Constitution

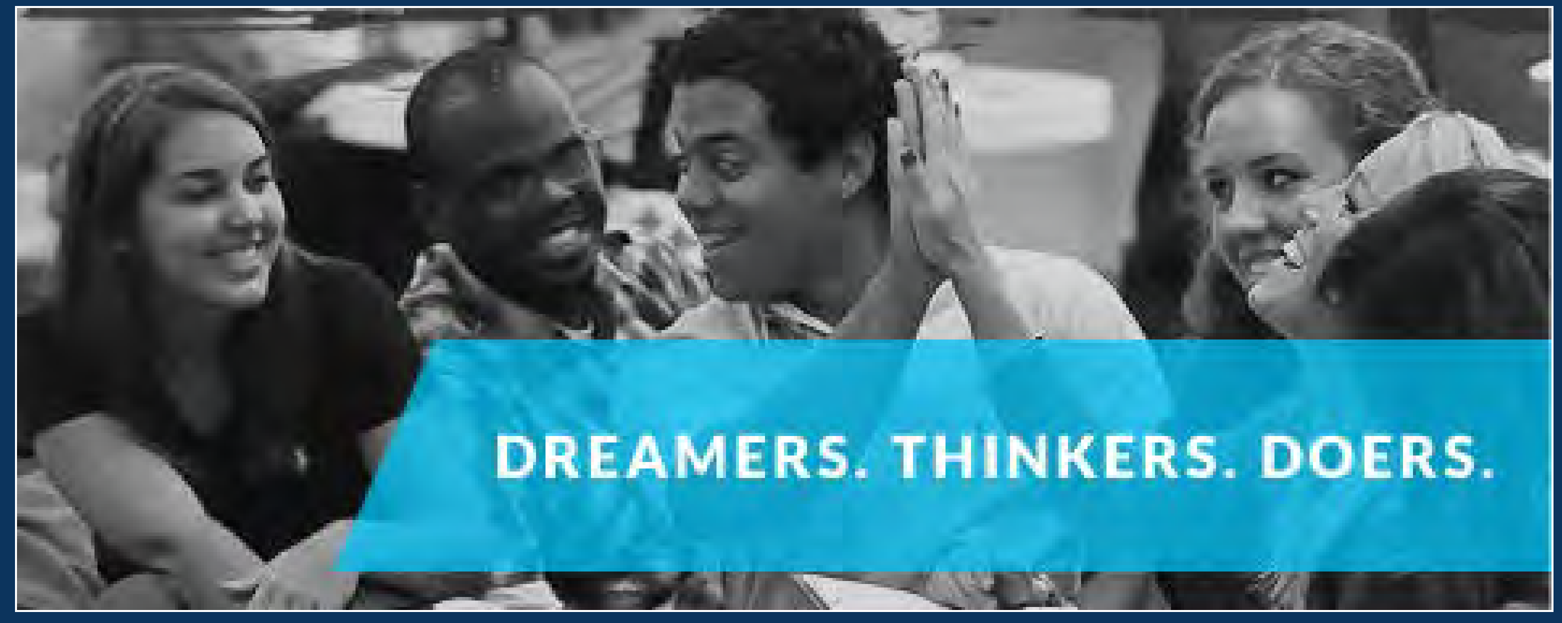
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

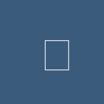
ABA Required Disclosures

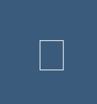
Full sitemap

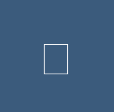


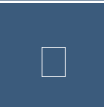
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

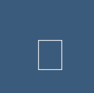
Follow UofM Online

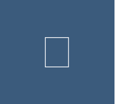












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Current Students

PUBLIC ACTION LAW SOCIETY

The Public Action Law Society (PALS) at the University of Memphis is a student-led organization that seeks to promote volunteerism, community service, and a pattern of activities that will instill in participants a desire to continue in pro bono work after becoming attorneys. PALS coordinates volunteers for a number of different organizations. Volunteers are connected to community service organizations that match the students' interests and abilities.

PALS 2016-17 Board Members (pictured above)

- Top row, left to right: Misty O'Neal, Adam Ryan, Katie Abernathy, Mathew Jehl
- Bottom row, left to right: Preston Dennis, Briana Lynch, Danielle Salton, Maggie McGowna, Kara Bidstrup

PALS Pages:

- Alternative Spring Break
  - Memphis Law student application
  - Out-of-state application
- History of Alternative Spring Break

Alternative Spring Break News Coverage

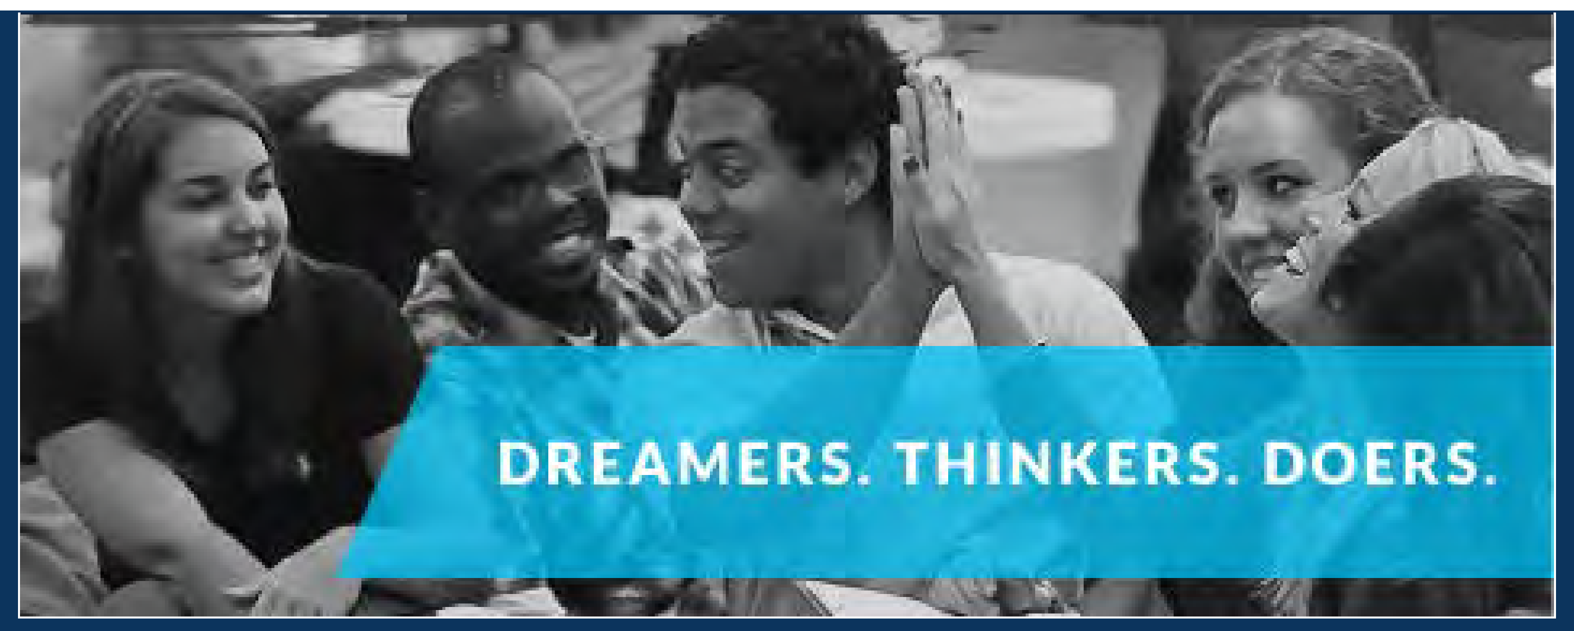
- Memphis Flyer LGBT Article
- 2014 ASB Video
- 2014 ASB Flyer
- Channel 3 News Clip
- Commercial Appeal Article
- Memphis Flyer Article
- Photo Album
- News Clip
- Daily Helmsman Article
- News Clip

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

- About
- Admissions
- Programs
- Current Students
- Faculty
- Careers
- Library

Current Students

STUDENT BAR ASSOCIATION

The SBA is dedicated to connecting all Memphis Law students into one body to foster fellowship and cooperation as well as advance the aims and purposes of the law school.

Duties of the association include creating forums to resolve student issues, plan student's activities, and partner with other university departments for the advancement of common interests. All Memphis Law students are automatically members of the SBA.

We hope that this site will provide useful information about SBA activities and information about events at the law school. Click on the links below to navigate our site and to find important documents, information regarding meetings, upcoming events and opportunities to participate on SBA committees. Please feel free to contact any of the SBA officers with your comments and concerns.

Follow us on Facebook or Snapchat (@sbamemphislaw) to receive the most up to date information about our upcoming events!

SBA Committee Information
SBA Constitution

For information on SBA election rules, upcoming meeting announcements, agendas and minutes, as well as all other SBA-related updates, please visit the SBA TWEN page by clicking HERE.

The SBA is an Administrative Council comprised of the Executive Board and the Board of Bar Governors. The following students were elected for the Administrative Council for the 2016-2017 academic year:

- Sydney Trujillo, President
- Grant Kehler, Vice-President
- Regan Sherwood, Executive Director
- Mel Borrelli, Secretary
- Alex Anderson, Treasurer
- Forrest Edwards, Bar Association Representative and Election Commissioner
- Kelsey Walton, Director of Student Affairs
- Stephanie Tasch, Director of Communications
- Rebecca Holden, Director or Events
- Whitney Trujillo, Community Service Liaison
- Jake Brown, 3L Bar Governor
- Dawn Campbell, 3L Bar Governor
- Dylan Holzemer, 3L Bar Governor
- Holly Stanford, 3L Bar Governor
- Kelly Hagy, 2L Bar Governor
- Tyler Tollison, 2L Bar Governor
- Hallie Flanagan, 2L Bar Governor
- Fred Culver, 2L Bar Governor
- Kaitlyn Cornett, 1L Bar Governor for Section 12
- Andrew Roach, 1L Bar Governor for Section 12
- Trevor Schrader, 1L Bar Governor for Section 11
- Richard Vaughan, 1L Bar Governor for Section 11

SBA 1L Bar Governors

SBA 2L Bar Governors

SBA 3L Bar Governors

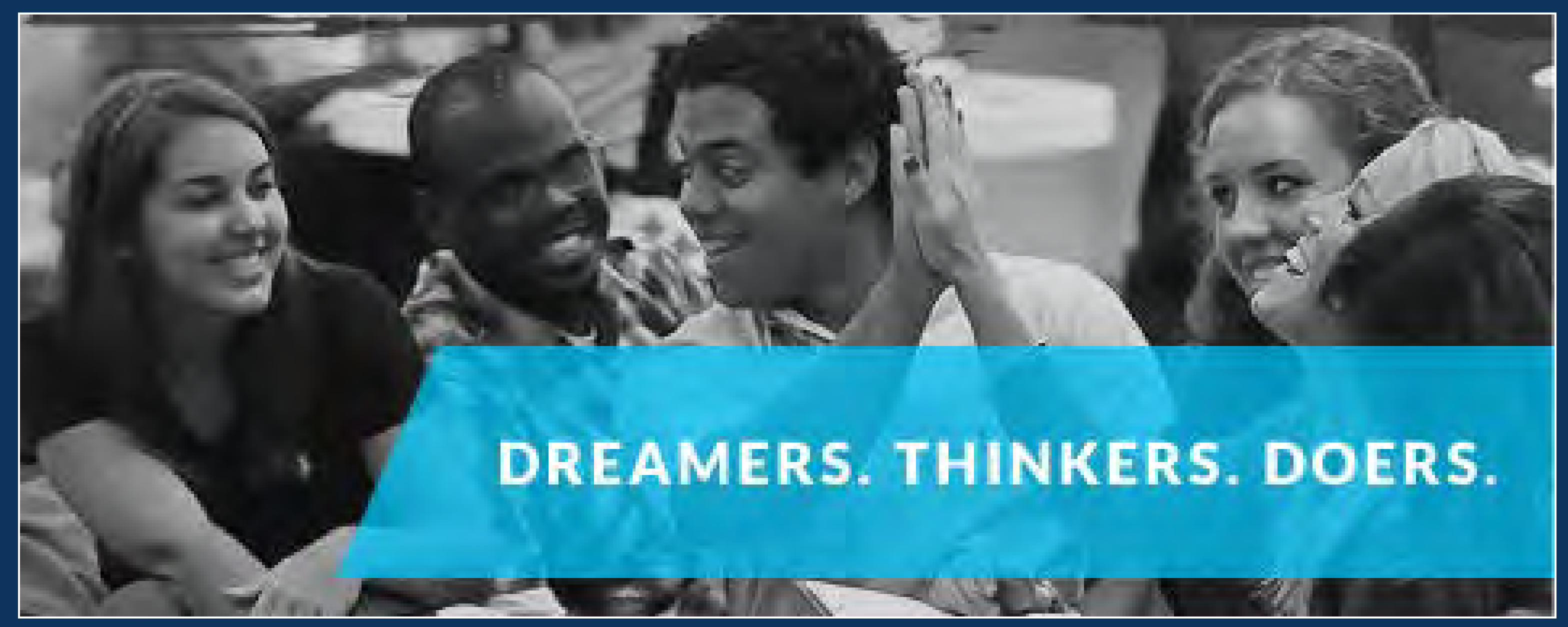
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap



EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 10/26/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

ESTIMATED TUITION & COSTS

The value of your legal education at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law compares very favorably with that available at other state-assisted and private institutions. University tuition and fees are determined by the Tennessee Board of Regents and are subject to change each year.

The estimated costs for the 2015-2016 academic year (Fall & Spring Semesters) are as follows:

	In-State	Out-of-State
Tuition & Fees	$18,387*	$26,247
Room & Board	$9,764	$9,764
Books/Supplies	$1,969	$1,969
Transportation	$2,484	$2,484
Misc./Personal	$3,202	$3,202
Loan Fees	$530	$530
Total	$36,336	$44,196

*Based on full-time enrollment for the academic year. Part-time tuition & fees are billed by the credit hour. Tuition and fees above includes a $20 per credit hour law library fee with no maximum (30 hours for entering students in the 2015-2016 academic year).

Border Counties Tuition Waiver

In an effort to accommodate students from neighboring counties, the University of Memphis School of Law will consider qualified non-resident students as border county residents for purposes of admission and tuition. To qualify for the Border County Tuition Waiver, students must document their permanent residence in one of the five counties listed below. This tuition waiver is determined primarily from information provided on the application for admission to the law school. The School of Law Admissions Office may require applicants to submit additional documentation. Questions about eligibility for the Border County Tuition Waiver should be directed to the Law School Admissions Office.

Eligible Counties include: Crittenden County, Arkansas and Desoto, Marshall, Tate & Tunica Counties in Mississippi

Note: Students on non-immigrant visas are not eligible for the Border County Tuition Wavier

Confirmation

Applicants selected for the entering class will be extended an offer of acceptance in writing. Applicants who choose to accept the offer must confirm their acceptance by April 13th or, in the case of an applicant who is accepted after April 1, within two weeks of receipt of notification. A $250 seat deposit is required of all accepted students regardless of residency. $200 of the deposit is applied towards fall tuition and $50 is an orientation fee. This deposit is non refundable.

An applicant who does not confirm and/or pay the seat deposit within the deadline specified in the acceptance letter will forfeit his or her seat in the entering class.

A mandatory orientation and registration program for entering students is held each fall prior to the beginning of classes. Details concerning the orientation session are sent to accepted students in late spring.

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

ABA Required Disclosures

Full sitemap

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 9/1/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Financing Your Education

Student Financial Aid Office
103 Wilder Tower
Memphis, TN 38152

Phone: (901) 678-4825
Fax: (901) 678-3590

Programs Available

- Scholarships (handled by the Law School):
  http://www.memphis.edu/law/futurestudents/scholarships.php

- Loans:
  http://www.memphis.edu/financialaid/law/aidprog3.php

- Work Study:
  http://www.memphis.edu/financialaid/student_employment/

Applying for Financial Aid

- Apply for a federal PIN at www.pin.ed.gov and keep it in a safe place.

- Each year, you must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) with the current year's tax information. The website is www.fafsa.gov.
  - FAFSA becomes available online every year on January 1.
  - The University of Memphis' federal school code is 003509.
  - FAFSA applies to Fall/Spring/Summer.

Types of Loans

FEDERAL LOANS

- Handled by the Student Financial Aid Office (main campus)
- Requires FAFSA results for the appropriate academic year
- First-time borrowers must complete the Entrance Counseling and Master Promissory Note (MPN) online at www.studentloans.gov.
- Must be enrolled at least part time (6 law credit hours)
- Must maintain a cumulative GPA of 2.0

- Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan:
  - Loan is initially listed as an OFFER on myMemphis.
  - Variable, market-based interest rate that changes every July 1 but is capped at 8.25%
  - Interest is charged while you are in school and during grace and deferment periods.
  - Repayment begins 6 months after you graduate or drop below part time.
  - Annual/academic year limit of $20,500
  - Graduate/professional aggregate limit of $138,500 (includes undergraduate loans)

- Federal Direct Graduate PLUS:
  - Apply online at www.studentloans.gov after June 1 each year
  - Requires a credit check
  - Variable, market-based interest rate
  - Interest charged from date of first disbursement
  - Repayment begins 60 days after last disbursement.
  - Can apply for in-school deferment
  - Requires completion of a separate Master Promissory Note (MPN)
  - Amount requested plus all other aid cannot exceed “Cost of Attendance”

ALTERNATIVE LOANS

- Should be used as a last resort
- Requires a credit check
- Can be used to supplement federal loans but cannot exceed “Cost of Attendance”
- Provided through private banking/lending institutions so FAFSA not required
- Several offer Bar Study Loans
- Research different lenders and their repayment options.
- Suggested list of lenders at http://www.memphis.edu/financialaid/altloans.php

Other Pertinent Information

- If you are completing your FAFSA based on estimated income, you will need to make a correction to your FAFSA shortly after you file your actual income tax return with the IRS. There will be an option on the FAFSA to link your information (electronically) with the IRS, using the Data Retrieval Tool. (Note: Parental income information not required.)

- If your file is selected in a process called “verification,” you will need to submit a verification worksheet, a copy of your income tax transcript, and all other required forms/documents to the Student Financial Aid Office.

- A Budget Adjustment Form may be completed for additional allowable expense(s), which requires certain documentation.

- It is the responsibility of the student to notify our office if there is a change in residency status (from out-of-state to in-state), of any anticipated outside scholarships, and of any potential fee waivers, etc. that could cause your total aid/awards to exceed your “Cost of Attendance.”

- Complete withdrawal or academic exclusion can have serious repercussions.

Financial Aid Checklist

______File your income taxes early

______Apply for a federal PIN at www.pin.ed.gov

______Complete FAFSA at www.fafsa.gov

______List The University of Memphis' federal school code: 003509

______Check myMemphis (under Account$ tab) for award status or missing documents

______Enroll in at least part time (6 law hours)

______Sign up for eRefunds (direct deposit) with the Bursar's Office

______Attend class and maintain Satisfactory Academic Progress (2.0 cumulative GPA)

______Learn your U-ID number (in lieu of SSN)

2015-16 Cost of Attendance

(Based on 15 hours per semester)

	In-State	Out-of-State
Tuition//Fees	$18,387	$26,247
Room/Board	9764	9764
Books	1969	1969
Travel	2484	2484
Miscellaneous	3202	3202
Loan Fees	530	530
TOTAL	$36,336	$44,196

NOTE: Your total financial aid award (loans, fee waivers, scholarships, veterans' benefits, vocational rehabilitation benefits, etc.) cannot exceed your "Cost of Attendance."

Contact Information

Joanna M. Darden
(901) 678-2743
jpullis@memphis.edu (preferred contact)

www.memphis.edu/financialaid

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Admissions

SCHOLARSHIPS

A number of scholarships are available to entering students, including academic merit awards, diversity awards, and awards for students with demonstrated financial need. Some scholarship awards are based on the information in the application, while others require additional information. If you are interested in being considered for first-year scholarships, you are encouraged to complete the optional application questions and submit any necessary information. Scholarship award letters are usually sent by April 1st.

Through state appropriations and the generous donations of law school alumni and friends, over $600,000 in scholarship assistance has traditionally been awarded in previous academic years. Awards range from $1,000 to full in-state tuition.

First-Year Scholarships

A variety of scholarship awards are available for first-year students, including academic merit awards, diversity awards, and awards for students with demonstrated financial need. Many of these scholarships are renewable for subsequent years. Some scholarship awards are based on the information in the application for admission, while others require additional information.

If you are interested in being considered for first-year scholarships, you are encouraged to complete the optional application questions and submit any necessary information. Scholarship recipients will be notified as soon as possible of their scholarship award, usually by April 1st. In order to ensure full consideration for scholarships, applicants should submit their application for admission by the March 15th priority deadline.

Rising Second- and Third-Year Student Scholarships

(Returning Law Students Only)

Returning law students interested in applying for law scholarships have multiple options. There are two different online scholarship applications. Please review the various types of funding and make sure you complete the appropriate online application(s). When applying for a scholarship, students are advised to pay close attention to each of the mandatory application requirements.

LAW SERVICE SCHOLARSHIPS: Online Service Application

Humphreys Fellowship, Herff, and Faculty Emeritus Renewal Applicants

Students interested in being a Humphreys Fellow should use this online application. Students who currently hold a Humphreys Fellowship, Faculty Emeritus or Herff Scholarship must complete this online application as well. You will be required to upload a current resume and answer a number of questions about your law interests. In order to be fully considered for one of these scholarships, you must consent to releasing your law school grade point average and class rank to the faculty and staff. Students who failure to upload a resume and give consent will not receive consideration. Please name your resume by your last name with uploading. DEADLINE is FEBRUARY 28, 2017.

TIGER SCHOLARSHIP MANAGER: TSM Application

- Go to your myMemphis account
- Click on "Account$" tab
- Sign in to your profile using Memphis credentials
- First page is "Your General Application"
- When completed please click on Blue "Finish & Continue" button
- Your "recommended Opportunities" will be available for you based on your answers
- Detailed information on scholarship is available by clicking the "apply" button

MEMPHIS ACCESS AND DIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIPS

Students interested in being considered for Memphis Access and Diversity Scholarships need to complete the Tiger Scholarship Manager application. You will be asked to complete a 250 word essay on how you contribute to diversity at the University of Memphis School of Law. Please review the diversity criteria prior to applying. Current Memphis Access and Diversity recipients must complete this online application as well. Candidates will be notified in June after Spring 2017 grades and class rank have been released. No resume or letters of recommendation are required. DEADLINE: March 24, 2017.

.

OTHER LAW SCHOOL ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS

There are a number of scholarships that are awarded to law students annually. These endowed scholarships require applicants to complete the Tiger Scholarship Manager application. All scholarships require applicants to also upload a resume. Please save your resume document as your last name first, then first name before you upload it online (i.e. "Smith, John"). To access these scholarships, interested returning law students should follow the instruction below after accessing their myMemphis account. The deadline is March 24, 2017. For further details regarding the scholarship process please refer to the PowerPoint presentation linked below.

- Returning Students Only - Scholarship Process Overview PowerPoint
- Scholarship List for First-Year Students
- Scholarship List for Returning Students

Outside Scholarships

A list of outside scholarships, criteria, award amounts, and deadlines are listed below. For more information on each scholarship, click the scholarship name for a full application. These scholarships are not administered by the University of Memphis School of Law. Also, please use the links at the bottom of the page to connect to scholarship search engines that may be helpful in finding alternative sources of school financing.

Scholarship	Amount	Deadline
The National Bar Association - Ben F. Jones Chapter Scholarship	Unspecified	October
The Richard Linn American Inn of court Mark T. Banner Scholarship	$5,000	November
Donald W. Banner Diversity Scholarship	$5,000	January
Baker Hostetler Diversity Fellowship Program	$0 - $25,000	October
Constangy, Brooks and Smith, LLP	$3,000	November 28
Scholarship Foundation of Santa Barbara Applications available here October 1	Unspecified	January
Richard D. Hailey AAJ Law Student Scholarship	$1,000	May
Harry A. Blackmun Scholarship	Varies	June

Phi Kappa Phi Fellowship	Varies	April
Phi Kappa Phi Love of Learning	$500	June
GP LSAT Prep Law Student Scholarship	$1,000	January & June
Robert Masur Fellowship Competition	$1,000	March
Alia Herrera Memorial Scholarship	$3,000	May
Richard D. Hailey Law Student Scholarship	$1,000	May
Trial Advocacy Scholarship	$2,500	May
Mike Eidson Scholarship	$5,000	May 1
Baker Donelson Diversity Scholarship	$10,000	June
Anne Schneider Chapter of Lawyers' Association for Women of Jackson, TN. Application requests should be addressed to: Mary Jo Middlebrooks, Middlebrooks & Gray, P.A.P.O. Box 1085, Jackson, TN 38302	$1,500	September 10
Avon N. Williams & Robert Lillard Law Scholarship	$1,500	November 1
Howard Fox Memorial Scholarship	Varies	April 1
Salvi, Schostok, & Pritchard P.C	$5,000	March
Charles R. Ullman & Associates	Varies	April 15
DRI's Law Student Diversity Scholarship	$10,000	April 19
American Association for Justice (AAJ) Law Student Scholarships	Varies	May 1
Trusp Young Lawyers Scholarship	$1,000
Appelman Law Firm Criminal Defense Law Scholarship	$1,000
Michigan Auto Law Diversity Scholarship	$2,000	May 1

Federal Communications Bar Association Foundation	$2,500-$10,000	April 1
Farzad Family Law Annual Scholarship	$3,000	December 15
Step Ahead Scholarship	Varies	April 15
Davis Devin Livingston Scholarship	$3,000	July 15
Appel Law Firm Scholarship	$1,000	July 1
Bond & Botes Financial Hardship Scholarship	$2,000	July 16
Meinhart Smith & Manning PLLC Law Scholarship	$1,000	August 10
Luvera Law Firm Scholarship	$2,000	August 10
Staver Law Group	$2,000	November 15
Asian Heritage Law Scholarship	$1,000	August 1
Injury Lawyer News Disability Scholarship	$1,000	December 31
A Step Ahead Foundation	Varies	April 15
Access To Advocacy Award	$5,000	May 31
The Cohen, Placitella, Roth Scholarship	$2,500	May 31
Goodman Acker, P.C. Law Scholarship	$1,000	December 1
The Reeves Law Group Scholarship	$3,000	December 15
Sally & Fitch, LLP Scholarship	$1,000 & $1,500	March 1
Los Angeles DUI Attorney Diabetes Scholarship	$1,000	June 15
Kevin P. Landry Don't Text and Drive Scholarship	$1,000	April 1

Sattiraju Employment Law Scholarship	$1,000	December 30
AIAG Law Marketing Scholarship	$1,250	April 30
American Accident Awareness Attorney Scholarship	$2,000	May 30
Chattanooga Bar Foundation	Up to $2,500	May 30
Barbri Law Preview Scholarship	$10,000	April 15
Michael Weiner Scholarship for Labor Studies	$10,000	November 7
Morgan & Morgan For The People Scholarship	$2,000	December 1
Public Defender Scholarship	$1,000	January 15
Sattiraju Employment Law Scholarship	$1,000	December 31
White Collar Criminal Defense Scholarship	$1,000	May 1
Law Enforcement Family Member Scholarship	$1,000	August 31

Scholarship Search Engines

FastWeb - http://www.fastweb.com

StudentScholarshipSearch - http://www.studentscholarshipsearch.com

FinAid - http://www.finaid.org

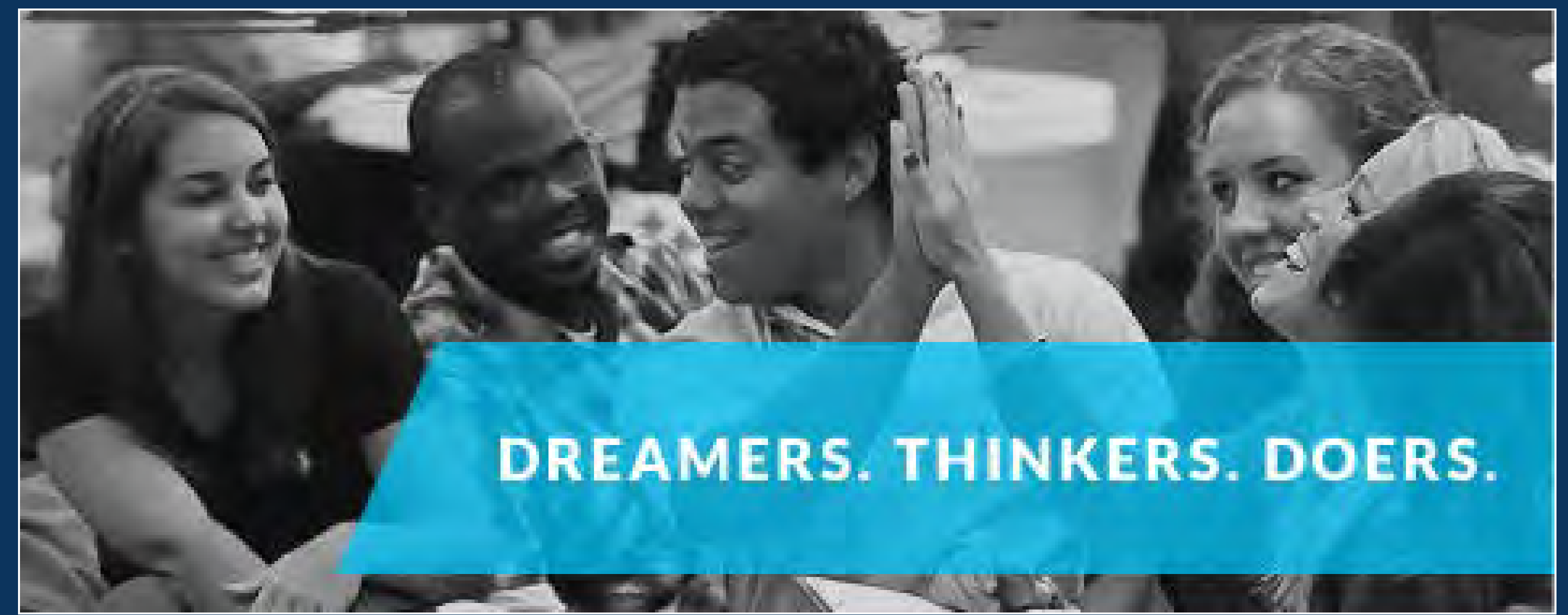
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

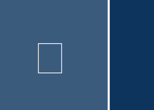
ABA Required Disclosures

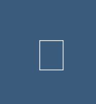
Full sitemap

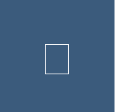


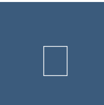
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

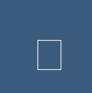
Follow UofM Online

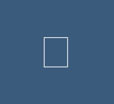












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 2/9/17 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Honor Council Report

Pursuant to Academic Regulation 21.8 the 2012 – 2013 Honor Council presents the following information:

Referrals:

a. Number of referrals: 9
b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4(j), (k), (g), (l), (m), (n)
c. Number of dismissed referrals: 1

Probable Cause Hearings:

a. Number submitted to probable cause hearings: 8
b. Honor Code Provisions implicated: 21.4 (j), (k), (g), (l), (m), (n)
c. Number of dismissed allegations: 2

Final Hearings:

a. Number of final hearings: 6
b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j), (g), (l), (m), (n)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: Community Service
    c. Status: The time for review has expired without request for review
c. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: Explanatory paper
    c. Status: The time for review has expired without request for review
d. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: Community Service
    c. Status: The time for review has expired without request for review
e. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4(j)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: Letter of explanation with corroborating evidence
    c. Status: Time for review has not expired
f. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j)
    a. Determination: No Violation
g. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4(k)
    a. Determination: No Violation

University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Honor Council Report

Pursuant to Academic Regulation 21.8, the 2013–2014 Honor Council presents the following information:

Referrals:

a. Number of referrals: 28
b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4, (a), (j), (k)
c. Number of dismissed referrals: 1

Probable Cause Hearings:

a. Number submitted to probable cause hearings: 6
b. Number of Probable Cause hearings waived by accused: 22
c. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4, (a), (j), (k)
d. Number of dismissed allegations: 2

Final Hearings:

a. Number of final hearings: 25
b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 dishonesty and misconduct – 18 Hearings
    a. Determination: Violations
    b. Sanction: 5 page papers for each student found in violation
    c. Status: 3 students appealed the Honor Council decision. On appeal, the panel upheld the Honor Council's finding that there was a violation and the panel also affirmed the sanctions. The appeal panel only saw fit to amend the final status of the violation to a non-reportable offense to any state Bar examiner's office. The Council affirmatively amended the holding for all similarly situated students to reflect that the offense would be non-reportable to any state Bar examiner's office.
c. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j), (k) – 4 Hearings
    a. Determination: Violations
    b. Sanction: None. However, the Council requested a letter of explanation to be included in the students' file for completeness
    c. Status: The time for review has expired without request for review
d. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j)
    a. Determination: No Violation
e. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4(a)
    a. Determination: No Violation
f. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (a)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: Letter grade drop
    c. Status: The decision was vacated because of potential inconsistent results

University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Honor Council Report

Pursuant to Academic Regulation 21.8 the 2014 – 2015 Honor Council presents the following information:

Referrals:

a. Number of referrals: 13
b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (b), (f), (j), (k)
c. Number of dismissed referrals: 3

Probable Cause Hearings:

a. Number submitted to probable cause hearings: 2
b. Honor Code Provisions implicated: 21.4 (b)
c. Number of dismissed allegations: 0

Final Hearings:

a. Number of final hearings: 10

b. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (b)
   a. Determination: Violation
   b. Sanction: Expulsion from Law Review and academic probation for one year
   c. Status: Overturned on Appeal

c. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (b)
   a. Determination: Violation
   b. Sanction: Expulsion from Law Review and academic probation for one year
   c. Status: Overturned on Appeal

d. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (f)
   a. Determination: Violation
   b. Sanction: Five hours of pro bono in addition to the graduation requirement of 40 hours, suspension from 2L OCI's, a letter of explanation to be added to the student's record for Bar purposes, and a letter of apology explaining the student's misconduct
   c. Status: Time for review has expired

e. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

f. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4(j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

g. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No Sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

h. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

i. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

j. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

k. Honor Code provisions implicated: 21.4 (j) & (k)
    a. Determination: Violation
    b. Sanction: No sanction
    c. Status: Time for review has expired

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Pro Bono Program

Student and Supervisor Handbook

The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Career Services Office
901-678-3217
lawcareerservices@memphis.edu

INTRODUCTION

At the heart of the legal profession is the ethical requirement that attorneys should pursue equal justice under the law. The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (hereinafter "Law School") commits to instilling this value in its students. Because access to justice is not free, lawyers have an obligation to provide pro bono services to those unable to afford counsel. Rule 6.1 of the Model Rules of Professional Conduct states that "[a] lawyer should aspire to render at least (50) hours of pro bono public legal services per year." The objective of the Law School's Pro Bono Program is to nurture this ethical obligation in students.

PRO BONO REQUIREMENT & QUALIFICATIONS

Pro Bono Graduation Requirement

As a condition of graduation, a student entering the Law School in fall 2012 or thereafter must perform forty (40) hours of supervised pro bono work. Students may receive pro bono graduation credit for no more than five (5) hours of pro bono work performed in the first semester of Law School. In order to receive credit beginning in the second semester, all first year law students must complete 15 hours of coursework, attend the Pro Bono Orientation, and complete the Pro Bono Pledge. May graduation candidates must complete all pro bono work by April 1 of their last semester. August graduation candidates must complete all pro bono work by July 1 of their last semester. December graduation candidates must complete all pro bono work by November 1 of their last semester.

Pro Bono Service Defined

Pro bono service is a direct legal service that a student provides without compensation or academic credit. Pro bono service must be supervised by a licensed attorney. Some examples of pro bono work that qualify include:

- Unpaid work for a judge;
- Unpaid work for a government entity;
- Unpaid work for a legal aid or public interest organization, e.g., Memphis Area Legal Services Inc., Community Legal Center, Court Appointed Special Advocates Association (CASA);
- Unpaid work for a licensed attorney, law firm, or corporate counsel undertaken on behalf of a low-income individual who does not pay for the students' work or the work of a lawyer, firm, or corporate counsel for representation; or
- Pre-approved unpaid work for a nonprofit charitable organization that responds to a legal problem, e.g., work for a domestic violence shelter on orders of protection or a defender re-entry program that helps re-establish voting rights.

Pro Bono Work That Does Not Qualify

Pro bono service undertaken in an externship or legal clinic for academic credit does not fulfill the pro bono requirement. Service that a student performs on pro bono cases while in a paid position does not qualify. Service at a private firm that a student undertakes after completion of an internship does qualify for pro bono credit, so long as the student receives no compensation for the service and performs the service on a pro bono case or matter.

Student service in a Registered Student Organization ("RSO") does not count toward the pro bono requirement unless the service is a direct legal service. For example, a student will not receive credit for attending an RSO general meeting, but may receive credit for participating in a service project that an RSO sponsors, e.g., Alternative Spring Break with PALS.

Commuting, Training, and Observation Time

The hours that a student spends commuting to and from a placement site do not count toward fulfillment of the pro bono requirement. The time that a student spends in training or observing may count toward fulfillment of the pro bono requirement, so long as such time does not exceed 20 percent of the time that the student spends at a particular placement. The time spent in Pro Bono Orientation does not count toward fulfillment of the pro bono requirement.

PROCEDURE FOR RECEIVING PRO BONO CREDIT

A student must comply with the following steps in order to receive pro bono credit:

1. Attend mandatory Pro Bono Orientation and complete the Pro Bono Pledge (although a student may receive credit for up to 5 hours of pro bono work during the first semester and before the orientation, so long as the other requirements are met).
2. Find a placement or placements by searching the pre-approved placement list or creating a new project.
    a. Students needing assistance in finding a placement should meet with the Public Interest Counselor in the Career Services Office.
    b. For any student initiated project, the student must first submit a Student Initiated Project Form for pre-approval by the Public Interest Counselor.
3. Secure a placement supervisor.
4. Meet with the placement supervisor to review the assignment, verify that there is no conflict of interest, and advise the supervisor of his or her responsibilities.
5. Perform pro bono work.
6. Ask the supervisor to complete and submit a Supervisor Certification Form to the Public Interest Counselor.

Orientation

All students must attend the Pro Bono Orientation before starting any service beyond the five (5) hours of service allowed during the first semester. The time spent in Pro Bono Orientation does not count toward the forty hour pro bono requirement. The Career Services Office will offer Pro Bono Orientation every year. During orientation, students will familiarize themselves with procedures necessary for receipt of pro bono credit. Upon completion of orientation, students must submit a Pro Bono Pledge.

Finding a Placement

Students may find placements by 1) searching the Pre-Approved Placements List, 2) taking advantage of pro bono opportunities publicized in On Legal Grounds or on Symplicity, or 3) by independently initiating and developing a project suited to their particular interests. If a student initiates a placement, the student must submit a Student Initiated Project Form and procure pre-approval of the Public Interest Counselor before starting service. If a student is denied, the student can appeal to the Assistant Dean of Career Services. If approval is denied a second time, the student can make a final appeal to the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Each student is ultimately responsible for finding a suitable placement or placements. Students should meet with the Public Interest Counselor to discuss suitable potential public service opportunities.

Students may choose to serve in several different placements. In fact many students find it valuable to try out various types of law through their pro bono projects. The student is responsible for contacting the agency offering a placement and to offer his or her services on a volunteer basis. In the event a placement agency asks a student to commit more than forty hours, the student must complete the project and the number of hours of service to which he or she has agreed in order to receive pro bono credit.

Finding a Placement Supervisor

All qualifying pro bono work must be supervised by a licensed attorney. The student is responsible for finding a placement supervisor. A licensed attorney should supervise law-related pro bono work. Law students cannot act as a placement supervisor. Supervisors are responsible for training, assigning tasks, overseeing projects, and evaluating the student's performance.

Initial Placement Meeting

During a student's initial meeting with the placement supervisor, the student and supervisor should discuss the project in detail, establish deadlines, responsibilities, a work schedule, and identify any potential conflicts of interest. Students should make available the Pro Bono Handbook to their supervisor, if needed. The supervisor must fill out a Supervisor Certification Form at the end of the student's service. It is the student's responsibility to submit the completed form to the Career Services Office.

Reporting Hours

Students must submit the following forms to the Public Interest Counselor in the Career Services Office:

1. Pro Bono Pledge
2. Supervisor Certification Form
3. If applicable: Students who initiate a pro bono project must submit a StudentInitiated Project Form before starting service.

The Placement Supervisor or student must submit a Supervisor Certification Form. The student is responsible for assuring that the supervisor has submitted a certification form. Such forms are available under the Pro Bono section of the Career Services website. Such forms are also available in the Career Services Office. Failure to report hours and submit the required forms by the appropriate deadline will result in denial of credit for pro bono hours from the placement agency. Forms may be submitted in person or via email to the Public Interest Counselor.

STUDENT AND SUPERVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES

Unauthorized Practice of Law

Supervisors and students must understand that law students are not authorized to practice law. Students may not, under any circumstance, provide legal advice, make appearances in court, or otherwise act as an attorney. No organization, program, individual, or client may rely on a student's work product in taking or forbearing legal actions. A student who is concerned that he or she has been asked to engage in the practice of law or is not subject to adequate supervision should contact the Public Interest Counselor immediately.

Professionalism

Students are expected to perform service in a timely and professional manner. This includes dressing in a professional manner, being on time, informing the supervisor of student progress in performing assignments, meeting all assigned deadlines and expectations, providing competent service, and treating all individuals with respect. If the supervisor will not certify that the student has met these responsibilities, the student will not receive pro bono credit for the time served.

Confidentiality

While performing pro bono service, students may work on active cases under the supervision of an attorney. Students should remember that this work is protected by the attorney-client privilege and subject to the confidentiality provision of the Rules of Professional Conduct. Students should familiarize themselves with these rules before beginning service.

Conflict of Interest

During the initial placement meeting, students should identify and address any potential conflicts of interest arising from a case or matter. Although unusual, a conflict of interest arises when a student has competing responsibilities to a client, the court, or the student's own interest in remaining ethical. For example, a conflict of interest arises if a student previously represented or worked with a client with an interest adverse to those of a client who the student would represent in the pro bono placement. If questions regarding conflicts of interest should arise, a student should immediately address those concerns with the supervisor and with the Public Interest Counselor.

INTERESTED PRO BONO PARTNERS

Organizations, programs, or individuals interested in having law student volunteers should contact the Public Interest Counselor to discuss the proposed pro bono opportunity.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT THE PRO BONO PROGRAM

Q: Briefly, what is the pro bono requirement?
A: Students must perform forty (40) hours of pro bono service in order to graduate from the Law School.

Q: What happens if a student does not meet the forty hour pro bono requirement?
A: If a student does not meet the pro bono requirement, he or she will not be allowed to graduate, and the Law School will not certify him or her for admission to the Bar.

Q: When can a student begin work on the pro bono graduation requirement?
A: Students can perform up to five (5) hours of pro bono work during the first semester of the 1L year. In order to get credit for any additional pro bono hours, students must have completed 15 hours of coursework, attended the Pro Bono Orientation, and sign the Pro Bono Pledge.

Q: What are the deadlines for completion of pro bono work?
A: Students graduating in May must complete and report forty hours of service by April 1. Students graduating August must complete and report forty hours of service by June 1. Students graduating in December must complete and report forty hours of service by November 1.

Q: Can a student fulfill the pro bono requirement outside of Memphis?
A: Yes. While most students will probably serve in the Memphis area, students may find placements outside of the area, so long as the placements are on Symplicity or are preapproved. Thus, students can opt to perform pro bono service during the summer or over an academic break.

Q: May a student work at more than one place to satisfy the forty-hour requirement?
A: Yes, some students may complete the majority of their hours at a single placement, however, they are encouraged to fulfill the requirement with various placements as needed.

Q: May students perform more than forty hours of pro bono service?
A: Absolutely. Forty hours is only the minimum. Please note, awards are given at graduation for students who exceed these requirements.

Q: Does service for a faculty member qualify for pro bono hours?
A: Not unless the service is not for academic credit, is uncompensated and qualifies as pro bono work. The Law School encourages faculty to commit time to pro bono work and supervise students' pro bono work. If a faculty member supervises his or her graduate assistant's service, the faculty member must certify that the student's service is in addition to the work performed to satisfy the assistantship. Furthermore, clinic students often keep their cases after the end of a semester and after they have received academic credit. The additional hours count as pro bono hours.

Q: What are some examples of organizations that qualify for pro bono placement?
A: Some examples include: legal aid offices, the Public Defender's Office, the District Attorney's Office, public interest law firms non-profit organizations, a private firm or attorney performing pro bono work, government entities or Judges.

Q: Can students perform pro bono work at their place of employment?
A: A student who gives additional time after completion of employment tasks and who receives no compensation for work on a pro bono case or matter may receive pro bono credit for such work.

Q: How does the placement process work?
A: Students can find placements on the preapproved placement list in the Career Services Office or listed on Symplicity or its equivalent, or find their own placement. Pro Bono opportunities are also publicized in the On Legal Grounds blog as well as on class Facebook pages. A student must obtain preapproval for a student-initiated project.

Q: Whom do I contact with questions or concerns about the Pro Bono Program?
A: Please contact the Public Interest Counselor. The Public Interest Counselor assists students in finding placements and resolving issues they may encounter during a project. The Public Interest Counselor also works with placement supervisors to address their needs and concerns.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Pro Bono Program

Pre-Approved Pro Bono Placements

Career Services Office
Tel: 901·678·3257 Fax: 901·678·4107
lawcareerservices@memphis.edu

Aging Commission of the Mid-South www.agingcommission.org

Legal Assistance Program
(901) 222-4100

The Aging Commission of the Mid-South (ACMS) is the designated Area Agency on Aging and Disability (AADD) for Fayette, Lauderdale, Shelby, and Tipton Counties in West Tennessee. The ACMS spearheads planning efforts to ensure the state of Tennessee are ready to accommodate the growing aging population and undertakes advocacy efforts on behalf of older adults and adults with disabilities.

Alternative Spring Break – Public Action Law Society
http://www.memphis.edu/law/career/asb2015.php

Public Action Law Society ASB Coordinator
Professor Christina Zawisza, PALS advisor
czawisza@memphis.edu

The Public Action Society hosts Alternative Spring Break ("ASB") annually. ASB began in 2010 when 15 Memphis law students traveled to Miami to help Haitians stranded in the US apply for temporary protected status. In Spring 2011, PALS brought ASB to Memphis and hosted 37 law students from 8 law schools in 3 areas: (1) Pro Se Divorce, (2) Advance Directives, and (3) Non-Profit Organizations. In 2012, year, PALS hosted 62 students (29 from Memphis) in four areas: (1) Pro Se Divorce, (2) Advance Directives, (3) Legislative Drafting, and (4) Immigration. In 2013, PALS continued to expand its program to allow for more student participation in different areas of the law and offered tracks in (1) Pro Se Divorce, (2) Advance Directives, (3) Immigration in Knoxville, (4) Immigration in Memphis, (5) Human Trafficking Research Track, (6) Public Interest Advocacy Research Track, and (7) Criminal with Street Court. In 2014, PALS offered additional tracks in Voter Restoration and Veteran's Issues. In 2015, PALS is offering tracks in (1) Family Law, (2) Immigration, (3) Criminal Defense (both in juvenile and restoration of rights), (4) Research & Writing (LGBT rights), and (5) Elder Law.

American Civil Liberties Union of Tennessee
www.aclu-tn.org

Internships & Law Clerk Program
(615) 320-7142

The ACLU of Tennessee (ACLU-TN) is dedicated to translating the guarantees of the Bill of Rights into realities for all Tennesseans. Some of the issues ACLU-TN fights for include: the right to free speech and expression; the right to freely practice any religion or no religion; the right to equal treatment; the right to reproductive freedom; and the right to privacy. Law student volunteers are involved in research and preparation of legal memoranda, fact investigations, client and witness interviews, discovery, pre-trial motions, handling expert witnesses, as well as accompanying lawyers at court appearances.

Center for Arkansas Legal Services http://www.arlegalservices.org/

Main office in Little Rock
(501) 376-3423

Center for Arkansas Legal Services (CALS) is one of two free legal aid organizations in Arkansas (the other being Legal Aid of Arkansas) that provides civil legal assistance to low-income Arkansans. The types of issues CALS deals with include: consumer law, education law, employment law, family law, health law, housing law, individual rights law, public benefits, veterans/military benefits, and wills and estates. CALS has multiple offices in El Dorado, Fort Smith, Hot Springs, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Russellville, and Texarkana.

Community Legal Center
http://www.clcmemphis.com/

Meg Jones, Executive Director
megjonesclc@gmail.com
(901)543-3395

Irene Hallett, Pro Se Clinic Supervisor
clcprose@gmail.com
(901) 222-3813

The Community Legal Center (CLC) offers legal services to thousands of lower income individuals and families in the Memphis area. Cases the CLC handles include: landlord/tenant disputes, garnishments, conservatorships & guardianships, commercial contract disputes, probate matters, non-contested divorces, adoptions, and obtaining child support. CLC also offers the following services to low-income immigrants: asylum, u-visas, t-visas, change of status, and voluntary departure. Law students can volunteer by contacting Meg Jones or volunteer with the Pro Se Clinic by contacting Irene Hallett.

Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA)
http://memphiscasa.org/

Reniere Hayes
Coordinator of Recruitment & Training rhayes@memphiscasa.org
(901) 405-8422

CASA volunteers are appointed by judges to watch over and advocate for abused and neglected children, to make sure they don't get lost in the overburdened legal and social service system. Volunteers stay with a case until it is closed and the child is placed in a safe, permanent home. Law students can volunteer and will be thoroughly trained and well-supported by CASA staff. You must pass a background check, participate in a 30-hour pre-service training course and agree to stay with a case until it is closed.

Criminal Justice Center
Victim-Witness Ambassadors

District Attorney Amy Weirich's office
201 Poplar Avenue, Memphis, TN
When: Monday - Friday (except holidays) 8:30- 1:30 - or until courts are finished with their dockets.

Victim/witness ambassadors will perform much of the same functions that a receptionist does—welcoming victims and witnesses when they arrive, answering basic questions about the court process and layout of the building. When the witnesses are needed in court, the ambassadors will be notified by the District Attorney's office and assist the witnesses in finding the court. Ambassadors will not be expected, and will be strongly discouraged from, to provide counseling to victims.

The majority of people subpoenaed are instructed to appear at 9 a.m. and there is no guarantee when their case will be handled, often resulting in them waiting all day. Victims and witnesses often find a confusing, cold and intimidating building when they arrive. There is no central location for witnesses to wait for their case to be handled. These deficiencies lead to inefficiency in locating witnesses when needed in court as well as victims sitting in court near the defendant or the defendant's family.

State law requires that separate space be available for victims and witnesses of the District Attorney's office. The District Attorney's does not have sufficient personnel to cover victim/witness needs.

The county has located space for a victim/witness waiting room that should be available by July 1, 2016. The District Attorney's office and the Crime Victim's Center will provide training.

Disability Law & Advocacy Center of Tennessee
www.dlactn.org/

West Tennessee Office: (901) 458-6013
Middle Tennessee Office: (615) 298-1080
East Tennessee Office: (865) 670-2944

Disability Law & Advocacy Center of Tennessee (DLAC) advocates for the rights of Tennesseans with disabilities to ensure that they have an equal opportunity to be productive and respected members of our society. Some of the issues DLAC assists with include: abuse and neglect outside of the home; discrimination in housing, transportation, and employment; access to programs and services; access to education; obtaining and utilizing assistive technology; and access to vocational rehabilitation.

Families of Incarcerated Individuals
Doorways Re-Entry Program
http://familiesofincarcerated.org/

Jimmie McKinzie
jmckinzie@familiesofincarcerated.org
(901) 726-6191

Families of Incarcerated Individuals, Inc. (FII) is a non-profit organization that serves families who are affected by incarceration. FII goals and objectives include: to provide a forum for families to address concerns regarding incarceration; to provide incarceration prevention and intervention services to youth in affected families; and to assist families and inmates in re-adjusting to life free of incarceration. The Doorways Reentry Program provides one-on-one mentoring to female offenders from Mark Luttrell Correctional Center and assists with reintegration.

Hope Academy
http://www.mcsk12.net/schools/hope.aca/site/index.shtml

Michael J. Smith
(901) 405-8421

The Shelby County Juvenile Court partners with Memphis City Schools to provide juvenile education services and mentoring to youth in juvenile detention. Seventy-five percent of juvenile detainees will be allowed to re-enter Memphis City Schools, so Hope Academy fills the gap while youth are detained. Ninety-five percent of the students are males and need male mentors.

JAG Corps

Air Force: http://www.afjag.af.mil/
Army: http://www.goarmy.com/jag.html
Coast Guard: http://www.uscg.mil/legal/
Marines: http://www.marines.com/being-a-marine/roles-in-the-corps/command-element/judge-advocate
Navy: http://www.jag.navy.mil/

Each JAG Corps division has opportunities for students to intern during the summer. (Note that if you are hired for a paid internship, your hours cannot count towards the Pro Bono Program. However, if you continue to volunteer after your paid internship is complete, these hours will count towards the pro bono requirement.) JAG interns get hands-on experience in a wide number of legal fields, including civil, criminal and international law. Interns often get to draft briefs, conduct a claims investigation, interview witnesses, and assist in the preparation of courts-martial.

Justice for our Neighbors

http://tnjfon.org/

Nashville
Adrienne Kittos, TN JFON Legal Director
adrienne.tnjfon@gmail.com

Justice for our Neighbors (JFON) is a faith driven ministry, welcoming immigrants into our communities by providing free legal services, education, and advocacy. TN JFON offers monthly clinics to assist in different areas of immigration law including: advice and counsel, adjustment of status, family petitions, temporary protected status, naturalization applications, self-petitions under the Violence Against Women Act, T-Visas for victims of trafficking, special immigrant juvenile status, NACARA, and U Visas for victims of violent crime.

Juvenile Court's Foster Care Review Board

Shelby County
thomas.coupe@shelbycountytn.gov
(901) 405-8581

The foster care review board is composed of citizen volunteers appointed by the juvenile court judge. The board advises the court about the permanency process of each child in foster care. In order to serve on the board you must attend a two-hour monthly meeting, be able to interview people from various backgrounds and demonstrate an interest in child welfare.

Legal Aid of Arkansas
www.arlegalservices.org

West Memphis Office:
Kevin de Liban
kdeliban@arlegalaid.org
(870) 732-6370, ext. 2206
Simion Lucuta
slucuta@arlegalservices.org
(870) 732-6370, ext. 2204

Legal Aid of Arkansas (LAA) is one of two legal service organizations (the other being the Center for Arkansas Legal Services) that provides civil legal assistance for low-income Arkansans. LAA has offices in Batesville, Harrison, Helena, Highland, Jonesboro, Mountain View, Newport, Springdale, and West Memphis. LAA's West Memphis office is located just 15 minutes from the law school. The types of issues LAA deals with include: consumer law, education law, employment law, family law, health law, housing law, individual rights law, public benefits, veterans/military benefits, and wills and estates.

Legal Aid of East Tennessee
www.laet.org

Terry Woods (Johnson City & Knoxville Offices)
twoods@laet.org
(865)637-0484
Charles E. McDaniel (Chattanooga Office)
cmcdaniel@laet.org
(423) 756-4013

Legal Aid of East Tennessee (LAET) serves over 26 counties from Chattanooga to Johnson City, providing a wide range of civil legal assistance and advocacy to people with low income. LAET has offices in Chattanooga, Cleveland, Knoxville, Johnson City, Maryville, and Morristown. Law students should contact the Pro Bono Project Director in the area they would like to volunteer.

Legal Aid Society of Middle Tennessee and the Cumberlands www.las.org

Legal Aid Society takes civil cases on behalf of low income clients. Legal Aid Society serves 48 counties and has offices in Clarksville, Columbia, Cookeville, Gallatin, Murfreesboro, Nashville, Oak Ridge, and Tullahoma. Law students can intern at any of the 8 offices.

- Clarksville (931) 552-6656
- Columbia (931) 381-5533
- Cookeville (931) 528-7436
- Gallatin (615) 451-1880

- Murfreesboro (615) 890-0905
- Nashville (615) 244-6610
- Oak Ridge (865) 637-0484
- Tullahoma (931) 455-7000

Memphis Area Legal Services
http://www.malsi.org/

Linda Warren Seely
lseely@malsi.org
(901) 523-8822

Memphis Area Legal Services, Inc. (MALS) is the primary provider of civil legal representation to low income families in western Tennessee. MALS assists clients in the areas of: domestic violence; mortgage foreclosure, eviction, or homelessness; wrongful denial of benefits; consumer fraud or predatory lending; child welfare; elder law; bankruptcy; and general advice and counsel on family law. MALS has two locations: Memphis and Covington. Law students can volunteer on different cases or get involved in a variety of projects such as the Saturday Legal Clinic, the Attorney of the Day Clinic, the Pro Se Divorce Project, the Bankruptcy Project or Conservatorship Project.

Memphis Bar Association
Law Rules Program
http://www.memphisbar.org/displaycommon.cfm?an=1&subarticlenbr=297

Anne Fritz
afritz@memphisbar.org
(901) 527-3573

The Memphis Bar Association has a community outreach program entitled "Law Rules: The Importance of the American Legal System." The goal of the program is to put members of the MBA before classrooms, civic and church groups, and business organizations to educate the general public on the importance of a fair and impartial justice system and the rule of law. Law students can get involved by speaking to different groups with local attorneys.

Memphis City Attorney's Office
http://www.memphistn.gov/framework.aspx?page=14

Herman Morris, City Attorney cityattorney@memphistn.gov
(901) 576-6614

The City Attorney's Office, or Law Division, for the City of Memphis is headed by the City Attorney, Herman Morris, and his staff attorneys. Staff attorneys work in two basic areas: Service and Litigation. Attorneys working in the service area are assigned to provide legal advice to various divisions of City government as well as a number of boards and commissions. City attorneys working in Litigation area defend lawsuits filed against the City. Note that externships with the City Attorney's Office will not count as pro bono hours. However, if you continue your service after your externship is completed, these hours will count.

Memphis Immigration Advocates, Inc.

www.miamemphis.org/

Allison Wanamaker
258 N. Merton St.
Memphis, TN 38112
Phone: (901) 244-4367
Fax: (901) 284-0303

Memphis Immigration Advocates, Inc. is the only non-profit law firm in Memphis whose core mission is to provide low-cost immigration representation to low-income clients. MIA was founded by a group of experienced Memphis immigration attorneys who recognized a need in our community. Office doors opened October 7, 2013 at our start-up location on Union Avenue. MIA provides direct representation and legal consultations to low-income immigrants residing within the Mid-South. We also engage in community education and administrative advocacy in the Memphis metro area. In order to address the recent humanitarian crisis at the U.S./Mexico border, MIA has temporarily shifted its focus to meet the urgent needs of unaccompanied minors and young asylum seekers. On a temporary basis, MIA will be referring other immigration matters to partner agencies in the region. Although MIA may make limited exceptions to this temporary policy, referring "non-emergency" cases to other agencies will allow MIA to focus our resources on helping those who are seeking asylum or Special Immigrant Juvenile Status.

Memphis Public Interest Law Center

Jamie Johnson
info@mpilc.org
(901) 406-0419

Memphis Public Interest Law Center is a non-profit public interest law firm that began conducting activities in 2012. MPILC's mission is to fill a gap in the legal services available in the Memphis community - a gap is services between those who qualify for pro bono or subsized legal services and those who can afford typical, market rate legal fees. MPILC fills this gap through provision of legal support, education, and advocacy.

MPILC serves two groups of clients: 1) Underserved populations, i.e. individuals or groups who do not qualify for subsidized legal services and who also cannot afford private-market rate legal services, and individuals who do qualify for such services but are not selected to receive them, and 2) Those facing underserved issues, i.e. issues of significant public interest that are not politically popular, financially feasible, or, for reasons unknown, addressed by the current legal community in the Memphis area.

MPILC has identified the following program areas and their corresponding areas of law as underserved issues in the local community:
1. Livable Communities Project: Environmental, Environmental Justice, issues affecting neighbors and neighborhood groups
2. Consumer Project: Fair Housing, Disability, Predatory Lending, Tenant-Landlord, FDCPA, TCPA
3. Civil Rights Project: Education, Homelessness, GLBT, Special Need, Immigration, Juvenile Rights, Elder Abuse
4. Family Project: Domestic Violence, Child Support Enforcement, Stalking, Controlling Spouse/Ex-Spouse

In 2013, MPILC's work will focus on Housing.

Memphis and Shelby County Office of Planning and Development

www.shelbycountytn.gov/index.aspx?NID=18

Josh Whitehead
125 N. Main St. Suite 468
Memphis City Hall
Memphis, TN 38103-2084
Ph: (901) 576-7197
Fax: (901) 576-6603

The agency deals with public policy issues that include residential, commercial, and industrial land use development standards; transportation and service delivery; and capital improvements. Work performed by DPD involves the collection and evaluation of data, research and analysis of options and alternatives, and the selection and implementation of projects and programs. DPD also makes recommendations and suggestions to the Memphis City Council and Shelby County Board of Commissioners, citizen advisory groups, and other agencies on comprehensive land use policies and plans, zoning recommendations, special permits, hazard mitigation, and subdivision regulations. The division is also directly responsible for the administration of the Unified Development Code (the Zoning Code and Subdivision Regulations), special use permits, site plan approvals, and street mapping.

Memphis Urban Debate League

www.memphisdebate.org

(901) 604-5644

The Memphis Urban Debate League (MUBL) is a partnership between Memphis City Schools and a private group of civic leaders organized as the MUBL board. MUBL provides Memphis urban youth the opportunity to learn the literacy, critical thinking, and life skills they need to be successful. Over 23 MCS high schools currently participate in 6 citywide tournaments throughout the school year. Each summer, MUDL organizes a free debate institute to prepare students for the upcoming season. Law students can volunteer to be a judge at debates, coach a team, or give general help with league operations.

Peer Power

Malcolm Rawls, Director of Development
mvrawls@gmail.com

Peer Power is a non-profit organization that teaches public school students college and job readiness skills. Law students are needed to lead law-related programs, such as teaching basic advocacy or writing skills, and to counsel students on careers in the legal field. Law Review has developed a partnership with Peer Power to teach writing workshops and would like extend this partnership to other students within the law school.

Project Homeless Connect

Josh Spickler, PALS, MBA, & Community Alliance for the Homeless joshspickler@gmail.com

Twice a year, the Memphis community comes together for a massive one-day event to provide homeless individuals in Memphis and Shelby County with all the resources and services needed to leave homelessness. One of the resources offered to homeless individuals is legal assistance through a civil advice clinic and a criminal Street Courts program. Law students are needed to help with organizing the program, client intake, file preparation, and can shadow attorneys during consultations. To get involved, contact Josh Spickler or the current PALS President.

Pro Se Divorce Project

Matt Macaw (Divorce Incorporated) mrmacaw@divorceincorporatedonline.com
(901) 672-7745

Matt Macaw from Divorce Incorporated and MALS hosts a monthly Pro Se Divorce Project at the Shelby County Courthouse in Room 134. During the project, "clients" referred from MALS learn how to represent themselves in a divorce. Law student volunteers will be paired up with the pro se litigants and help them fill out pro se divorce forms. Each project takes approximately 2 hours.

Shelby County District Attorney's Office
http://www.scdag.com/

Steve Jones
Steve.Jones@scdag.com

The District Attorney General and her staff prosecute all criminal cases on behalf of Memphis and Shelby County. Law students can intern at the DA's office to receive pro bono credit. Note that externship hours do not count as credit unless you take on additional work after your externship hours are completed.

Shelby County Head Start Program
http://www.shelbycountytn.gov/index.aspx?nid=252

John Lovelace
Executive Director
lovelace-j@scgheadstart.com
(901) 922-0712

Shelby County Head Start Program is a comprehensive child development program that serves preschool children ages 3-5 and their families. The program promotes school readiness by enhancing the social and cognitive development of children through the provision of educational, health, nutritional, social and other services to enrolled children and families. The Head Start program engages parents in the learning of their children and helps them make progress toward their educational, literacy, and employment goals.

Shelby County Pretrial Services
http://www.shelbycountytn.gov/index.aspx?NID=250

Richard Harrell
richard.harrell@shelbycountytn.gov

Pre-Trial Services is a comprehensive criminal justice agency offering programs that are alternatives to incarceration. Its operations range from bond settings immediately following the arrest process to providing supervision of offenders convicted and placed on county probation. Additionally, Pre-Trial Services also teaches classes on anger management, batterers' intervention, job readiness, and parenting.

Shelby County Public Defender's Office
http://www.shelbycountytn.gov/index.aspx?NID=106

Stephen C. Bush
Chief Public Defender
stephen.bush@shelbycountytn.gov
Phyllis Aluko

The Public Defender's office provides legal representation to indigent clients in all criminal matters in the General Sessions Court, Criminal Court, and Circuit Court of Shelby County. Law students can intern at the PD's office to receive pro bono credit. Note that externship hours do not count as credit unless you take on additional work after your externship hours are completed.

Shelby County Ryan White Program
http://www.shelbycountytn.gov/index.aspx?NID=2311

Dorcas Young
dorcas.young@shelbycountytn.gov
(901) 379-7512

The Ryan White Program is a federally funded program that provides medical and supportive services for people living with HIV/AIDS who are low income, uninsured or underinsured and have no other resources available to meet these needs. The Ryan White Program Office is the unit for overseeing the legislative, programmatic, and fiscal compliance of federal funds. Although the office does not provide direct services to clients, it is responsible for subcontracting funds to area clinics and community based organizations for service delivery. The Ryan White Program Offices also ensures collaborative, comprehensive planning by key stakeholders, including people living with HIV/AIDS, in the design of a system of quality HIV care throughout the region.

Southern Migrant Legal Services
www.trla.org

The Southern Migrant Legal Services is federally-funded and handles the legal needs of migrant and seasonal workers statewide.

Southeast Tennessee Legal Services
www.selegal.org/

Southeast Tennessee Legal Services (STLS) is a Project of Texas RioGrande Legal Aid, Inc. STLS is a public interest law firm seeking justice and opportunity for Tennesseans. Their programs are for victims of domestic violence and some consumer cases.

Special Education Advocate

Wendi Albert, Social Work Intern with MALS
wendikalbert@gmail.com

Students interested in Civil Rights or Education law have the unique opportunity to be a Special Education Advocate. Special Education Advocates will volunteer through Memphis Area Legal Services to be partnered with a child with needs and his or her parent to help them receive accommodations required in the public school system.

Tennessee's Department of Children's Services

http://www.tn.gov/youth/

Shelby County
901-578-4179

Southwest Region (Jackson, TN)
Regional General Counsel
LeAnn B. Rial
LeAnn.Rial@tn.gov
(731) 421-2032

The Tennessee Department of Children's Services is the state's public child welfare agency, overseeing child protective services, permanency, and juvenile justice. All volunteers must go through an extensive background check and clearance. To make your time at the placement worth it, they ask volunteers to commit a certain amount of time in the beginning. There are opportunities for interns to assist with drafting pleadings, interview witnesses, prepare cases for court, attend/observe court, prepare court orders and participate in post-court follow-up.

Tennessee Immigrant and Refugee Rights Coalition

http://www.tnimmigrant.org/

The Tennessee Immigrant and Refugee Rights Coalition (TIRRC) is a statewide, immigrant and refugee-led collaboration whose mission is to empower immigrants and refugees throughout Tennessee to develop a unified voice, defend their rights, and create an atmosphere in which they are recognized as positive contributors to the state. Students have volunteered with TIRRC in the past to help immigrants receive Deferred Action for Childhood Arrival and Naturalization.

Tennessee Justice Center
www.tnjustice.org

The Tennessee Justice Center is a non-profit, public interest law and advocacy firm serving families in need. TJC gives priority to policy issues and civil cases in which the most basic necessities of life are at stake, and where their advocacy can benefit families statewide.

Unity Solutions
www.jedmitchelllaw.com/unity-solutionslutions

Justin Edward Mitchell
1661 International Place
Memphis, TN 38120
901-494-0159
jedmitchell.law@gmail.com

Unity Solutions is a faith-based, neighborhood-based, 501(c) non-profit legal services corporation. Unity Solutions is comprised of volunteer attorneys, law students, and others dedicated to providing faith-based legal solutions to not only existing problems, but also root causes. Among other partnerships, Unity Solutions works with Advance Memphis (www.advancememphis.org) and Christ Community Health Services (www.christcommunityhealth.org)

Volunteer Income Taxpayer's Assistance (VITA) Program
http://www.irs.gov/Individuals/Free-Tax-Return-Preparation-for-You-by-Volunteers

Interim Dean & Professor William Kratzke
wkratzke@memphis.edu
(901) 678-3221

Students from Memphis Law are starting a VITA program under the supervision of Dean Kratzke. The VITA program provides free current year income tax preparation assistance for low-income taxpayers in Shelby County. From February until early April, the VITA program will operate on Wednesday afternoons. Students must go through training and pass an online test to volunteer.

West Tennessee Legal Services
www.wtls.org

- Main office/Jackson (731) 423-0616
- Dyersburg (731) 285-8181
- Huntingdon (731) 986-8975
- Selmer (731) 645-7961

West Tennessee Legal Services (WTLS) is a non-profit organization that provides civil assistance to individuals, families, and communities located in West Tennessee. WTLS serves 17 counties: Benton, Carroll, Chester, Crockett, Dyer, Decatur, Gibson, Hardeman, Hardin, Haywood, Henry, Henderson, Lake, McNairy, Madison, Obion, and Weakley. WTLS handles the following types of cases: access to health/medical care, securing or retaining housing, ensuring compliance with Fair Housing laws, securing or retaining income, personal freedom and security rights, parental rights with state action, rights of persons in institutions, freedom of all persons from abuse, family issues, education rights, consumer rights, and community education.

Youth Court

Avis P. Lamar
avis.lamar@shelbycountytn.gov
(901) 405-8720

Youth Court is the Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County's first juvenile delinquency diversion and peer-justice program. Using restorative justice principles, Youth Court is dedicated to rehabilitating first-time nonviolent offenders by holding them accountable and educating them about citizenship. Volunteers help prepare high school students to prosecute, defend and to serve as bailiffs and jurors in "real" sentencing hearings of juvenile offenders. Law students (2L & 3L) are encouraged to volunteer by serving as jury monitors and court clerks. Court hearings are held at the Juvenile Court on the first and third Thursdays of each month from 5 to 7 pm. Only 4 law students will be able to volunteer per semester.

PRO BONO INFORMATION

Requirement:

All students must perform forty (40) hours of supervised pro bono work in order to graduate.

Definition:

Pro bono service is supervised law-related public service that a student provides without compensation or academic credit. Pro bono service must be supervised by a licensed attorney. Some examples of pro bono work that qualify include unpaid work for a government entity, public interest organization or a licensed attorney undertaken on behalf of a client that does not pay for the representation.

Steps to receive pro bono credit:

1. Attend Orientation
2. Sign and return a Pro Bono Program Pledge during Orientation
3. Read the Pro Bono Program Handbook
    - http://www.memphis.edu/law/documents/probono-programhandout.pdf
    - Also located in Symplicity's document library.
4. Find a Pro Bono placement
    - Check out the list of Pre-approved Placements list located on the website at http://www.memphis.edu/law/documents/pre-approved_probonoplacements.pdf and in Symplicity's document library.
    - If you want to initiate your own project, feel free to brainstorm with a career counselor and make sure to submit a Student-Initiated Project Form located on the website at http://www.memphis.edu/law/documents/student-initiatedprojectform.docx before serving.
    - Check the Blog, Upcoming Events and Symplicity for additional projects coming up.
5. Serve
    - Go over the program with your supervisor, check for conflicts and serve.
6. Turn in (or make sure your supervisor turns in) a Supervisor Certification Form to the Career Services Office
    - http://www.memphis.edu/law/documents/supervisor-cert2016.docx
7. Track your hours
    - At the end of each semester, you will receive an email verifying the hours you have received. Note, you will NOT receive hours if your Supervisor Certification Form has not been submitted.
    - Once you have completed 40 hours or more, you will receive a copy of the Pro Bono Program Completion Letter that will be placed in your file with the registrar's office.
8. Go above and beyond
    - Students who exceed the minimum requirements are eligible for awards and recognition at graduation.

Questions? Please feel free to ask. Contact us via email at lawcareerservices@memphis.edu or by phone at (901) 687-3217. We are here to help and want to make this a good experience for each of you.

Pro Bono Program
(901) 678-3217 (phone)
(901) 678-4107 (fax)

Career Services Office
lawcareerservices@memphis.edu

SUPERVISOR CERTIFICATION FORM

Thank you for participating in our Pro Bono Program. Please note that students will not receive pro bono credit until this form is submitted. You may return this form to the student to submit or submit it to the contact information above. For more information on our Pro Bono Program, please visit http://www.memphis.edu/law/career-services/pro-bono.php.

Volunteer Student

Name: ____________________________________ Email: ________________________________

Year of Graduation: _________________________ Health Law? Yes ☐ No ☐

Supervisor

Name: ____________________________________ Title: ________________________________

Phone Number: ____________________________ Email: ________________________________

Project Information

Project Name (e.g., Saturday Legal Clinic): ____

Amount of hours volunteered (not including time in training): _____________________________

Amount of time in training: __________________

Date(s) of project: __________________________

Nature of the student's work performed: ____

____

____

Evaluation

Was the student's performance satisfactory? Yes ☐ No ☐

Did the student serve without compensation? Yes ☐ No ☐

Would you supervise another student through the Pro Bono Program? Yes ☐ No ☐

Certification

Supervisor Signature: ______________________________________ Date: _________________

ALENA M. ALLEN

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, CECIL C. HUMPRHEYS SCHOOL OF LAW
UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
1 N. FRONT STREET
MEMPHIS, TN 38103
AMALEN5@MEMPHIS.EDU
901.218.9518

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENT

University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Memphis, TN
Associate Professor of Law, 2014-present (with tenure 2016)
Assistant Professor of Law, 2010-2014

. Courses: Torts I, Torts II, Health Law Survey, Health Law Finance and Regulation, and Health Law Seminar

Committee Assignments: Clery Committee (university-wide), Faculty Grants Committee Social Sciences, Business and Law (university-wide), Dean Search, Faculty Recruitment, Diversity, Grade Normalization, Honors and Awards, Curriculum, Admissions, and Teaching Assignments (elected), Ad Hoc Promotion and Tenure Guidelines Committee (chair).

Honors:
2015 Maxine Smith Fellow (Tennessee Board of Regents)
2013-2014 Memphis Research Scholars Grant, University of Memphis
2013 Professor of the Year (voted on by third year class)
2012-2013 American Society of Medicine, Law, & Ethics/SLU Health Law Scholar
2012-2013 Memphis Research Scholars Grant, University of Memphis

University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, AR
Visiting Associate Professor of Law, Fall 2016

EDUCATION

Yale Law School, New Haven, Connecticut
Juris Doctorate, June 2003
Activities: Morris Tyler Moot Court Board
Editor, The Yale Journal on Regulation
Black Law Students Association

Loyola University, New Orleans, Louisiana
B.A., magna cum laude, Psychology, December 1999
Honors: Dean's List (all semesters)

PUBLICATIONS

Dense Women, 76 OHIO ST. L.J. 847 (2015)

Regulating Health and Wealth, 35 CARDOZO L. REV. 309 (2013)

State Mandated Disability Insurance as Salve to the Consumer Bankruptcy Imbroglio, 2011 BYU L. REV 1327 (2011)

"Drugs General Requirements," in David Adams, Richard Cooper, and Martin Hahn, eds., FOOD AND DRUG LAW AND REGULATION (The Food and Drug Law Institute 2008) (with coauthors)

EXPERIENCE

Claudia & Lee, Memphis, TN April 2009-July 2010
Stay at Home Mom. Provided full-time care for my infant daughter. Managed household for family of four. Regularly provided advice and analyses regarding viable configurations for Lego creations and Thomas the Train track routes. Managed complex search and recovery missions for pacifiers, shoes, backpacks, keys, socks, and various other necessities. Mediated intense disputes with specialization in disputes over toys and sitting on my lap. Taught basic first year courses: how to sleep through the night, learning to use a sippy cup, patty-cake, and waving.

Arnold & Porter LLP, Washington, DC August 2007 – April 2009
Healthcare/ FDA Associate. Member of a 16 lawyer-healthcare group. Provided advice and analyses on calculating the various metrics that are reported to federal agencies or that set price ceilings (e.g., AMP, Best Price, and ASP). Drafted and negotiated contracts with wholesale distributors, hospitals, pharmacy benefit managers, and employees. Summarized the recent amendments to the Food Drug and Cosmetic Act and assisted in writing a client advisory. Drafted comment letter to CMS regarding the calculation of AMP (average manufacturer price) and bundled sales. Drafted a Medicaid compliance policy for a client. Assisted in responding to executive branch subpoena requests by reviewing documents and interviewing employees regarding allegations of illegal marketing practices by a pharmaceutical company. Trained sales representatives on PhRMA code, False Claims Act, and permissible marketing practices. Reviewed promotional materials and advertisements for compliance with applicable laws.

The Honorable Paulette Delk, Memphis, TN August 2006- July 2007
Law Clerk. Judicial law clerk to a federal bankruptcy judge. Prepared the weekly docket by summarizing pleadings. Conducted research and wrote draft opinions regarding a myriad of bankruptcy issues under Chapter 7, 11, and 13. Assisted in the drafting of speeches and presentations for continuing legal education programs and bankruptcy seminars.

The Honorable Samuel H. Mays, Jr., Memphis, TN August 2005 - July 2006
Law Clerk. Judicial law clerk to a federal district court judge. Summarized briefs and assisted in drafting opinions for the civil docket covering a host of legal issues including: evidence, Title VII, RICO, ERISA, ADA, intellectual property, and state laws on contracts and torts.

Baker Botts LLP, Houston, TX September 2003 - July 2005
Employee Benefits Associate. Member of a 15-lawyer employee benefits group. Worked with colleagues, plan sponsors, fiduciaries, actuarial consultants, and other service providers to design, implement, and administer employee benefit programs and executive compensation arrangements. Prepared documents in connection with drafting, amending, merging, and terminating all types of benefit plans including: defined benefit plans, defined contribution plans, stock option plans, employee stock ownership plans, deferred compensation arrangements, and welfare plans. Advised clients concerning operational and compliance issues with the IRS. Assisted the diversity committee in devising strategies to help recruit and retain minority attorneys.

Jeremy W. Bock

The University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front Street, Memphis, TN 38103
(901) 678-5070 ▪ jwbock@memphis.edu

CURRENT POSITION

The University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Assistant Professor of Law, Aug. 2013 – present
Courses: Civil Procedure I/II, Intellectual Property Survey, Patent Law

EDUCATION

University of California, Berkeley, School of Law, J.D., 2004
Massachusetts Institute of Technology, S.B., 1997, M.Eng., 1998 (Electrical Engineering & Computer Science)

CLERKSHIP

Hon. Alan D. Lourie, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit
Law Clerk, Sept. 2004 – Sept. 2005

PUBLICATIONS AND WORKS IN PROGRESS

Patent Quantity, U. HAW. L. REV. (forthcoming 2016).

Does the Presumption of Validity Matter? An Experimental Assessment, 49 U. RICH. L. REV. 417 (2015).

Restructuring the Federal Circuit, 3 N.Y.U. J. INTELL. PROP. & ENT. L. 197 (2014).

- Selected for 6th Annual Junior Scholars in Intellectual Property Workshop, Michigan State University College of Law

Neutral Litigants in Patent Cases, 15 N.C. J.L. & TECH. 233 (2014).

An Empirical Study of Certain Settlement-Related Motions for Vacatur in Patent Cases, 88 IND. L.J. 919 (2013).

ACADEMIC CONFERENCES AND PRESENTATIONS

Presenter, "Patents as Proxies," April 2016, PatCon6, Boston College Law School.

Presenter, "Patent Quantity," February 2016, Works-in-Progress in IP Colloquium, University of Washington School of Law.

Invited Commenter, "The Disclosure Function of the Patent System," November 2015, Vanderbilt Law Review Symposium at Vanderbilt Law School.

Presenter, "Patent Quantity," October 2015, Intellectual Property Scholars Roundtable, Texas A&M University School of Law.

Presenter, "The Patent System's Two-Sided Agency Problem," August 2015, Intellectual Property Scholars Conference, DePaul College of Law.

Presenter, "Black-Box Patenting," April 2015, PatCon5, University of Kansas School of Law.

Discussant, Intellectual Property Works-in-Progress Panel, March 2015, Conference of Asian Pacific American Law Faculty, Northeastern University School of Law.

Presenter, "An Error-Cost Assessment of the Presumption of Validity," February 2015, Works-in-Progress in IP, U.S. Patent & Trademark Office.

Selected Presenter, "Is there a 'July Effect' in Appellate Decisions? Lessons from Patent Law," September 2014, Roundtable on Empirical Methods in Intellectual Property, IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law.

Presenter, "An Experimental Assessment of the Presumption of Validity," August 2014, 14th Annual Intellectual Property Scholars Conference, U.C. Berkeley School of Law.

Presenter, "An Experimental Assessment of the Presumption of Validity," August 2014, SEALS Annual Conference.

Presenter, "Perceptions of Agency Fallibility Among Likely Jurors: An Experiment with the Patent Office," April 2014, PatCon4, University of San Diego School of Law.

Presenter, "Perceptions of Agency Fallibility Among Likely Jurors: An Experiment with the Patent Office," March 2014, Legal Scholars Conference, Arizona State University, Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Presenter, "Rethinking Patent Liquidity," February 2014, Works-in-Progress in IP, Santa Clara University School of Law.

Selected Participant, "Error-Correction at the Federal Circuit," October 2013, 6th Annual Junior Scholars in Intellectual Property Workshop, Michigan State University College of Law (blind review selection process for participants).

Presenter, "Error-Correction at the Federal Circuit," August 2013, Intellectual Property Scholars Conference, Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law.

Presenter, "Does Familiarity Breed Contempt? Perceptions of Agency Fallibility in the Jury Pool," June 2013, Workshop on Research Design for Causal Inference, Northwestern University School of Law.

Presenter, "Dogfooding at the Federal Circuit: A Proposal for Enhancing the Error-Correction Feedback Loop," April 2013, PatCon3, IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law.

Presenter, "Rethinking the Two-Sided Patent Suit: A Proposal for Neutral Litigants in Patent Cases," February 2013, Works-in-Progress in Intellectual Property, Seton Hall University School of Law.

Presenter, "Killing Two Birds with One Party: Using Neutral Third Parties to Represent the Public Interest and to Dampen Overzealous Advocacy in District Court Patent Litigation," August 2012, Intellectual Property Scholars Conference, Stanford Law School.

Presenter, "An Empirical Study of Certain Settlement-Related Motions for Vacatur in Patent Cases," January 2012, Work-in-Progress Workshop, U.C. Hastings College of Law.

NON-ACADEMIC PANELS AND EVENTS

Panelist, "A Case for and Against Patent Reform," November 2014, Leo Bearman, Sr. American Inn of Court (Memphis, TN).

Panelist, "Intellectual Property in the New Technological Age," May 2012, hosted by the Federal Judicial Center and the Berkeley Center for Law & Technology (annual educational program for federal judges).

PRIOR APPOINTMENTS / POST-J.D. LEGAL EXPERIENCE

University of California, Berkeley, School of Law
Berkeley Center for Law & Technology
Senior Visiting Scholar / BCLT Fellow, May 2011 – May 2013

Private Practice – Law Firms/In-House
Patent litigation, prosecution, and related counseling, Oct. 2005- Mar. 2011

BAR ADMISSIONS

2000, U.S. Patent & Trademark Office (Reg. No. 45,482)
2004, California
2006, District of Columbia

Demetria D. Frank, Assistant Professor of Law
University Of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front Street | Memphis, Tennessee | Ph: 901-678-4948 | demetria.frank@memphis.edu

Academic Appointments

University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
Assistant Professor of Law June 2013 – present

Courses Taught: Evidence, Federal Courts, Pretrial Litigation Practice and Trial Advocacy.

University of Wyoming College of Law
Assistant Professor of Law August 2011 – May 2013

Courses Taught: Evidence, Torts, Trial Practice, Summer Trial Institute & Appellate Advocacy

Education

University of Texas School of Law Austin, Texas
Doctorate of Jurisprudence May, 2005
Texas Journal on Civil Liberties and Civil Rights, Staff Member

University of Houston Houston, Texas
Bachelor of Arts, Political Science May, 2002

Cum laude graduate with minor in Interpersonal Communications
Omicron Delta Kappa, National Leadership Honors Society

Publications

The Proof is in the Prejudice: Implicit Racial Bias & the Uneven Treatment of Rule 404(b) Uncharged Act Evidence—A Proposal. Forthcoming.

The Medical Device Federal Preemption Trilogy: Salvaging Due Process for Injured Patients. 35 S. Ill.U. L.J. 453 (2011).

Presentations

Dynamic Voir Dire: Six Steps to Getting a Great Jury. Continuing Legal Education Course Presenter, University of Wyoming College of Law; Laramie, Wyoming, April, 2013.

Foundation, Foundation, Foundation: A Foundational Evidence Review for Practitioners. Continuing Legal Education Course Presenter, Albany County Bar Association; Laramie, Wyoming, November 7, 2011.

Hot Topics in Asbestos Litigation, Speaker, American Bar Association Toxic Tort and Environmental Sections, Annual Meeting; Phoenix, Arizona, March 29, 2007.

Legal Employment Experience

Six years of practice as an attorney with significant litigation and trial experience with over 75 cases resolved through settlement negotiation, mediation and trials as first and second-chair attorney. Practice primarily focused on toxic tort and products liability litigation.

Brent Coon & Associates, PC August 2009-June 2011
Attorney & Litigation Manager

The City of Dallas December 2007 – September 2009
Associate Municipal Court Judge
Assistant City Attorney

Waters & Kraus, LLP July 2004 – August 2007
Associate Attorney
Summer Associate

Other Research Experience

University of Texas School of Law September 2003 – May 2005
Research Assistant to Professor Loftus Carson

Bar Membership

Admitted to the Texas State Bar, 2005

LEE HARRIS

Current Position:

FedEx Professorship in Law (since 2012) (tenured in 2011)
University of Memphis Law School,
1 North Front Street, Memphis, TN 38103
Tel: (901) 678-1393
Email: laharris@memphis.edu
SSRN: http://ssrn.com/author=118242

Education

2003	J.D., Yale Law School
	Earl Warren Legal Scholarship (NAACP Legal Defense Fund)
2000	B.A., Morehouse College, major in International Studies, minor in Economics
	Magna Cum Laude; Phi Beta Kappa; Tobe Johnson Award for the Political Science Student of the Year; Departmental Recognition for Highest G.P.A.; Fellow, Institute for International Public Policy; Congressional Black Caucus Foundation Scholarship; Morehouse Full Tuition Scholarship
1998-99	General Course, London School of Economics and Political Science,
	Men's Varsity Basketball Team

Previous Positions

2012-present	FedEx Professorship in Law, Univ. of Memphis Law School
2009-2012	Associate Prof. of Law, Univ. of Memphis Law School
2007-2008	Visiting Associate Prof. of Law, George Washington Univ. School of Law
December 2007	Visiting Prof. of Law, Ecole de Management, Grenoble, France
2005-2009	Assistant Prof. of Law, Univ. of Memphis Law School
2002-2003	Coker Teaching Fellow and Assistant in Instruction, Yale Law School (Prof. Ian Ayres/Contracts)
2003	Teaching Fellow, Yale Univ. Economics Department
2003-2005	Associate, Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, Commercial Litigation, Memphis, TN

Teaching & Research Interests

Teaching Interests:

Contracts I & II
Business Associations/Corporations
Mergers & Acquisitions
Corporate Finance
Corporate Tax

Research Interests:

Corporate Law
Law & Economics
Empirical Legal Studies
Race & Socio-economic status

Bibliography

Books

CORPORATIONS AND OTHER BUSINESS ENTITIES: A PRACTICAL APPROACH (Aspen 2011)

MASTERING CORPORATIONS & OTHER BUSINESS ENTITIES (Carolina Academic Press 2009, 2d Edition 2015)

Selected Recent Articles

1. Corporate Elections and Tactical Settlements,
   39 J. CORP. L. 221 (2014)
2. CEO Retention,
   24 FLA. L. REV. 1753 (2013)
3. The Politics of Shareholder Voting,
   86 N.Y.U. L. REV. 1761 (2011)
4. Shareholder Campaign Funds,
   58 UCLA L. REV. 167 (2010)
5. Missing in Activism: Retail Investor Absence in Corporate Elections,
   2010 COLUM. BUS. L. REV. 101 (2010), discussed in The Economist magazine.
6. A Critical Theory of Private Equity,
   35 DEL. J. CORP. L. 259 (2010), reprinted in 2 FINANCIAL FRAUD L. REPORT 262 (March 2010)
7. Tort Reform as Carrot-and-Stick,
   46 HARV. J. LEGIS. 163 (2009), reprinted in A. POPPER, TORT REFORM: ESSAYS, CASES & MATERIALS (2010) and selected for 2007 Yale-Stanford Junior Faculty Forum

Admissions, Personal & Miscellaneous

Bar Admissions: Tennessee (2003); U.S. District Court, Western District of Tennessee (2003).

Hobbies & Interests: Cooking • Running • Yoga • Restaurant Recommendations.

Personal: Married to Prof. Alena Allen and two children, Claudia Harris (7) and Lee Allen Harris (10).

LISA M. GEIS

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW
1 North Front Street, Suite 101, Memphis, TN 38103
901-678-3226 lgeis@memphis.edu

EXPERIENCE

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (June 2016 – present)
Director - Children's Defense Clinic
Visiting Assistant Professor of Law

- Design and direct a juvenile defense program providing specialized representation for children involved in delinquency matters in Shelby County Juvenile Court.

DC Law Students In Court Program (July 2014 – May 2016)
Member law schools: The George Washington School of Law, UDC David A. Clarke School of Law, The American University, Georgetown University, Howard University School of Law

Clinical Professor & Supervising Attorney – Juvenile Justice Clinic (January 2015 – May 2016)

- Created a children's justice and policy clinic with a focus on holistic representation of children in contact with DC Superior Court Family Division.
- Supervised law students assigned to representing clients charged in delinquency matters, providing representation of children facing a variety of challenges including educational and behavioral needs, homelessness, and LGBT issues.

Clinical Professor & Supervising Attorney – Criminal Division (July 2014 – May 2016)

- Supervised law students representing indigent, adult defendants charged in DC Superior Court from arraignment through parole release.
- Co-design and teach seminar component of course which includes jurisdiction specific litigation theory and skill development as well as on-going discussion concerning system reform and social justice.

University of the District of Columbia, David A. Clarke School of Law (August 2012 – July 2014)
Juvenile & Special Education Law Clinic – Took Crowell Institute for At-Risk Youth

Clinical Instructor & Supervising Attorney

- Co-taught special education law and advocacy during clinic seminar sessions.
- Supervised student-driven case management including motions practice, administrative law hearings, and school discipline proceedings.
- Counseled students as to legal theory, lawyering competencies, and proficient legal writing.
- As member of multi-agency Family Court Training Committee, facilitated training for the DC Office of Social Services Probation Intake, the Office of the Attorney General, superior court judges, and the DC juvenile defense bar as to regulations pertaining to truancy proceedings in the family court.

Rutgers School of Law - Camden Children's Justice Clinic (September 2010 – August 2012)
John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Models for Change Fellow
Juvenile Indigent Defense Action Network (JIDAN-NJ) - Post Disposition Representation Project

This pilot program provided representation for adjudicated juveniles placed in the custody of New Jersey's Juvenile Justice Commission who were primarily detained in secure facilities as part of the statewide initiative.

- Developed protocol for referral system and ongoing representation of confined youth in conjunction with the NJ Office of the Public Defender.
- Implemented systemic reform through impact appellate litigation.
- Advocated for services addressing special education needs, mental health, medical treatment, and safe conditions of confinement.
- Collaborated with residential community homes, families, home-based service providers, and local educators to ensure a continuum of rehabilitation and promote successful reentry.
- Coordinated with partners and stakeholders to prepare regular foundation grant reports.

ARTICLES

Courtroom, Classroom, Commitment: Special Education & Disability Rights to Keep Youth Out of Secure Facilities, Atlanta's John Marshall Law Journal (Forthcoming – Spring 2016).

An IEP for the Juvenile Justice System: Incorporating Special Education Law Throughout the Delinquency Process, The University of Memphis Law Review, Volume 44, No.4, July 2014.

The Harmful Use of Isolation in Juvenile Facilities: A Report from the New Jersey Post-Disposition Project, 38 Wash. U. J.L. & Pol'y 241(2012), (co-author with Sandra Simkins & Marty Beyer).

SELECTED PRESENTATIONS & LECTURES

Symposiums

The University of Memphis Law Review Annual Symposium – Juvenile Court In Transition: Where Have We Been and Where We are Going, Memphis, TN (February 2014)

Atlanta's John Marshall Law Journal 2015 Dean Robert D'Agostino Symposium – Decreasing Youth Incarceration through Quality Juvenile Defense, Atlanta GA (March 2015) (Symposium presented in conjunction with the National Juvenile Defender Center)

Trainings& Workshops

Annual Juvenile Defender Leadership Summit, National Juvenile Defender Center
(Seattle, WA – 2011; Scottsdale, AZ - 2013)

- Using Suspension & Expulsion Hearings to Win Your Case in Court, Workshop Co-Panelist (2013)
- Incorporating Education & Disability Law into Your Defense, Workshop Co-Panelist (2013)
- Combating Confinement at Disposition and Post Disposition, General Plenary Session Speaker (2011)
- Challenging the Use of Isolation, Workshop Presentation (2011)

Council for Court Excellence Training, Family Court Training Committee of DC Superior Court, Washington DC (March 2014)

- The DC Accountability Amendment Act of 2013: What You Need to Know About Truancy & the Court

New Jersey Office of the Public Defender Juvenile Training, Trenton, NJ (November 2010 & May 2012)

- Post Disposition Representation Project Protocol

Law School & University Presentations

Georgetown University Law Center - Post-Commitment Representation Practicum, Washington DC (March 2014)

- My Time in Juvie: The New Jersey Post-Disposition Representation Project

Rutgers School of Law – Camden, Children's Justice Clinic, Camden, NJ
Presentations include:

- Courtroom, Classroom, Commitment: Special Education & Disability Rights to Prevent Juvenile Incarceration (Spring 2015)
- An IEP for the Juvenile Justice System: Special Education & Representing Juveniles (Spring 2013)
- Post Disposition Representation: An Avenue for System Reform, (Fall 2013)
- The Overuse of Isolation in Juvenile Facilities, (Fall 2012)

American University Washington Semester Program – Criminal Division Justice (Spring 2014)

- They're Not "Just Short Adults":An Introduction to Juvenile Justice

EDUCATION

University of the District of Columbia - David A. Clarke School of Law, Washington, DC
LL.M. (concentration in Clinical Education, Social Justice, & Systems Change), May 2014

- Juvenile & Special Education Clinic, Took Crowell Institute for At-Risk Youth

Rutgers School of Law - Camden, Camden, NJ
Juris Doctorate, May 2010

AWARDS:

The Reed Smith Clinical Excellence Award for demonstrating excellence in both classroom work and by providing outstanding client representation.

2009 Mary Philbrook Student Public Interest Award for dedication and service to the Juvenile Justice Program, development of an innovative intake model used by public defenders across NJ, and dedication to the Street Law Program.

Pro Bono Award for Significant Service for exceptional commitment to the pro bono ethic.

The Catholic University of America, Washington, DC
Bachelor of Arts, May 1988

BAR ADMISSIONS

State of New Jersey	(admitted 2011)
United States District of New Jersey	(admitted 2012)
District of Columbia Bar	(admitted 2012)
United States Supreme Court	(admitted 2015)

OTHER LEGAL EXPERIENCE

New Jersey Office of the Public Defender (Camden County) (Summer 2009)
John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Models for Change Fellow
Juvenile Indigent Defense Action Network (JIDAN-NJ) – Initial Detention Hearing Project

- Actively participated in the Foundation's nationwide Models for Change JIDAN initiative to improve the quality of and early access to legal representation accorded to youth in juvenile courts.
- Provided representation for juveniles at initial detention hearings
- Collected and analyzed data regarding the detention hearing process and outcomes for project reports.

ORGANIZATIONS & COMMITTEES

The Catholic University of America National Alumni Association Board of Governors (2015 - present)

University of the District of Columbia - David A. Clarke School of Law Faculty Affairs Committee
(LL.M. Representative: 2013-2014)

National Juvenile Defender Leadership Summit Regional Caucus

- 2016 – present: Central Region; 2013-2016: Mid-Atlantic Region; 2011 & 2012: Northeast Region

BORIS N. MAMLYUK
Assistant Professor of Law
University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103 USA
(901) 678-2202 (office)
bmamlyuk@memphis.edu
September 10, 2016

WEB

Profile: http://www.memphis.edu/law/facultystaff/bio/mamlyuk.php
SSRN: http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/cf_dev/AbsByAuth.cfm?per_id=1541890
Blogs: http://cjicl.org.uk/author/borismamlyuk/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/boris-mamlyuk/

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law (Memphis, TN)
— Assistant Professor of Law (Tenure-track): Aug. 2011 – present
- Courses: Contracts; Public International Law; International Business Transactions; Comparative Law; Sales (Spring 2012).

Harvard Law School (Cambridge, MA)
— Junior Faculty, Institute for Global Law & Policy (IGLP): Jan. 2015
- Co-convenor of comparative law stream reading discussion group for Ph.D. and post-doctoral participants;
- Provide institutional teaching and support for select institutional events.

Ohio Northern University, Pettit College of Law (Ada, OH)
— Visiting Assistant Professor of Law: Aug. 2010 – July 2011
- Courses: Administrative Law; Law of International NGOs; Rule of Law Seminar; Jurisprudence

Cornell Law School (Ithaca, NY)
— Visiting Scholar: 2007 – 2008; 2009 – 2010
— J.S.D. Candidate: (2010 – 2014)
- Conducted original research; organized and participated in graduate legal studies research colloquia and graduate conferences; Int'l Law Editor (Wex, Cornell Legal Information Institute [LII]); Organized Keynote Lecture: "Popular Constitutionalism Abroad," Sen. Mike Gravel, Spring 2008; Organizer: Inter-university graduate law student conference (Spring 2010).

State University, Higher School of Economics (Moscow, Russia)
— Lecturer: Spring 2009
- Seminars: Law and Civil Society; Contemporary Russian Law & Politics

Columbia University, Harriman Institute (New York, NY)
— Visiting Scholar: Spring 2008
- Conducted archival research (John N. Hazard Manuscript Collection).

Watt, Tieder, Hoffar & Fitzgerald, LLP (Irvine, CA)
— Associate: 2005 – 2007
- Admitted to practice before all courts of California and all federal district courts in California; handled and resolved numerous civil cases involving suretyship, federal and state contract, construction and real estate law; researched and prepared numerous pleadings in state and federal courts, including state appellate briefs and related pleadings.

University of California, Hastings College of the Law (San Francisco, CA)
— Teaching Assistant: Fall 2004

EDUCATION

University of Turin, Faculty of Law
— Ph.D. in Law, Economics and Institutions: April 2011
- Centre for Comparative Analysis of Law, Economics & Institutions (CLEI)
- Collegio Carlo Alberto Fellowship (IEL Programme, Moncalieri, Italy)
- Fulbright Fellow (Moscow, Russia) (2008-2009)
- Dissertation: Russia's Two Twenty-Years' Crises (1919-1939) & (1989-2009): Economic Constraints on the Development of International Law
- Research Interests: Post-Soviet transition & transitology, international law, international environmental law, comparative law, law and economics, law and development, critical legal studies, legal transplant studies.
- Supervisors: Ugo Mattei & Michele Graziadei
- External Examiners: William B. Simons (Leiden); Michele Vellano (Turin); Giudetta Cordero-Moss (Oslo).

University of California, Hastings College of the Law (San Francisco, CA)
— Juris Doctor (J.D.): May 2005
- Member: Hastings Constitutional Law Quarterly (CLQ)
- Articles and Symposium Editor: Hastings Int'l and Comp. L. Rev. (HICLR)
- Member and Student Coach: Jessup International Law Moot Court Team
- President: Hastings International and Comparative Law Society (HICLS)
- Judicial Extern: Justice Richard Aronson, California Court of Appeal (Fourth District, Div. Three); Judge Leslie Tchaikovsky (U.S. Bankruptcy Court, N.D. Cal.); Chief Judge John W. Sedwick (U.S. District Court, District of Alaska).

University of London, School of Oriental and African Studies (London, UK)
— Exchange Study: Fall 2004
- Researched international and comparative law and institutions; audited Russian Law (Prof. William Butler) at University College London; Observer: Nov. 2004 Ukrainian presidential election ("Orange Revolution"), Kiev, Ukraine.

California State University, Fullerton (Fullerton, CA)
— Bachelor of Arts, English (Magna Cum Laude): May 2002
- "Award for Excellence in English" (top student in graduating class)

AWARDS / HONORS

- Fulbright Fellowship (Moscow, Russia) – 2008-2009
  - Research Affiliation: Institute of State & Law, Russian Academy of Sciences
  - Teaching Position: State University, Higher School of Economics (Moscow, Russia); Spring 2009 Seminars: Law and Civil Society; Contemporary Russian Law & Politics
- Ph.D. Fellowship (2007-2010): Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto, Torino, Italy;
- Blum Scholarship (merit scholarship), UC Hastings (2002-2005)
- US Congress: Certificates of Special Recognition for Outstanding Service to the Community, presented by Congressmen David Drier and Gary Miller; California State Assembly: Certificate of Recognition, presented by CA Assemblyman Robert Pacheco; County of Los Angeles: Certificate of Recognition, presented by Los Angeles Country Mayor Michael Antonovich.

PUBLICATIONS (BOOKS)

- PERPETUAL TRANSITION: EARLY SOVIET & POST-SOVIET INTERNATIONAL LEGAL THEORY (Martinus Nijhoff) (forthcoming)
  - General Editor (William Simons, Leiden)

PUBLICATIONS (ARTICLES & BOOK CHAPTERS)

- Decolonization as a Cold War Imperative: Bandung and the Soviets, in BANDUNG, THE GLOBAL SOUTH, AND INTERNATIONAL LAW: CRITICAL PASTS AND PENDING FUTURES (Luis Eslava, Michael Fakhri, and Vasuki Nesiah, eds., Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2016) (forthcoming).
- The Ukraine Crisis, Cold War II, and International Law, 16:3 GERMAN LAW JOURNAL 479 (Summer 2015) (invited submission; peer-reviewed).
- Early Soviet Property Law in Comparison with Western Legal Traditions, in RESEARCH HANDBOOK ON POLITICAL ECONOMY AND LAW (John D. Haskell, Ugo Mattei, eds., Edward Elgar Publishers, 2015) (invited submission);
- Cold War Protagonists, in 'THE BEST IN THE WEST': EDUCATOR, JURIST, ARBITRATOR: LIBER AMICORUM IN HONOUR OF PROFESSOR WILLIAM BUTLER (Natalia Iu. Erpyleva, Maryann E. Gashi-Butler, eds., Wildy, Simmonds & Hill Publishers, 2014) (invited submission);
- Russia and Regional Trade Integration in a Historical Perspective: A Response to William E. Butler, 44 U. MEM. L. REV. 619 (2014) (commentary to keynote lecture delivered by Prof. William Butler);
- Regionalizing Multilateralism: The Effect of Russia's Accession to the WTO on Existing Regional Integration Schemes in the Former Soviet Space, 18 UCLA J. INT'L L. & FOR. AFF. 207 (2014);
  - Original conference paper published in Francis Snyder and Yi Lu, eds., THE FUTURE OF TRANSNATIONAL LAW: EU, USA, CHINA AND THE BRICS [L'AVENIR DU DROIT TRANSNATIONAL: UE, USA, CHINE ET LES BRICS] (Bruxelles: Bruylant 2015).
- Russian International Law: Cold War & Post-Soviet Dynamics, in THE LEGAL DIMENSION IN COLD-WAR INTERACTIONS: SOME NOTES FROM THE FIELD (William Simons, Tatiana Borisova, eds., M. Nijhoff 2012);

- Reviewed in W.E. Butler, Soviet Law and the Cold War, 7 J. COMP. L. 334 (2012)
- Reviewed in William Simons, Tatiana Borisova, Introduction, in THE LEGAL DIMENSION IN COLD-WAR INTERACTIONS: SOME NOTES FROM THE FIELD (William Simons, Tatiana Borisova, eds., M. Nijhoff 2012);

- Russia & Legal Harmonization: an Historical Inquiry Into IP Reform as Global Convergence and Resistance, 10 WASH. U. GLOBAL STUD. L. REV. 535 (2011);
  - available at, CORNELL LAW SCHOOL WORKING PAPERS SERIES (March 5, 2010) (http://scholarship.law.cornell.edu/clsops_papers/71/);
- Comparative International Law, 36 BROOKLYN J. INT'L L. 385 (2011) (with Ugo Mattei);
  - Excerpt republished in Ю.С. Шемшученка, О.В. Кресіна, ред., ІДЕЯ ПОРІВНЯЛЬНОГО МІЖНАРОДНОГО ПРАВА: PRO ET CONTRA (Київ; Львів: Ліга-прес, 2015) [Yu. S. Shemshuchenka, Oleksiy V. Kresin, eds., COMPARATIVE INTERNATIONAL LAW: PRO ET CONTRA (Kiev; Lviv: Liga Press, 2015);
- Analyzing the Polluter Pays Principle Through Law and Economics, 18 SOUTHEASTERN ENV. L. J. 44 (2010);
- Book Review: International Law – a Russian Introduction (V.I. Kuznetsov, B.R. Tuzmukhamedov, eds.), 35 REV. OF CENTRAL AND EAST EUROPEAN LAW 111 (2010);
- The Prophecy of Radical Democracy and Social Populism, 5 REVISTA INTERNACIONAL DE PENSAMIENTO POLÍTICO 260 (2009) (review of Roberto Unger, The Self-Awakened: Pragmatism Unbound) (in Spanish).
- Capitalism, Communism … And Colonialism? A Critical Colonial Reading of 'Transitology' in the Former Soviet Union, 9:2 GLOBAL JURIST 1 (2009), with John D. Haskell (SOAS), available at http://www.bepress.com/gj/vol9/iss2/art7/;
- IUC Independent Policy Report, At the End of the End of History – Global Legal Standards: Part of the Solution or Part of the Problem, 9:3 GLOBAL JURIST (2009) (collectively written by IUC Global Legal Standards Research Group);

PUBLICATIONS (IN PROGRESS)

- Political Economy of a 21st Century Corporate Mass Merger: Walmart-Massmart and the Future of Global Governance (with Dr. Karolina Zurek);
- Vermont Yankee 2: Can the State of Vermont Win its Federalism Showdown Against the Nuclear Regulatory Commission? (with John D. Haskell);

SELECTED CONFERENCE/MEDIA PARTICIPATION

- "Cold War Histories of International Law," co-panelist at Annual Meeting of Law and Society Association, New Orleans, LA (June 2-5 2016);
- International Law Beyond the Nation State? From People Power to ISIL/Daesh, co-panelist at 110th Annual Meeting of the American Society of International Law, Washington, D.C. (March 30-April 2, 2016);
- After Self-Determination: Localities and Universalities in the New Struggles for Territorial Sovereignty, University of Manitoba, Faculty of Law (March 26, 2015);
- Between the Law, Power and Principle: Self-Determination, Constitution Making and the Crisis in Ukraine, University of California, Berkeley School of Law (February 13, 2015);

- Junior Faculty, Institute for Global Law and Policy Annual Conference, Harvard Law School (Doha, January 2-11, 2015);
- Ukraine Workshop: A Case Study in the Viability of International Law, U.S. Military Academy (and co-sponsored by the U.S. Naval War College Stockton Center for the Study of International Law) (October 20-23, 2014);
- The Approaches of Liberal and Illiberal Governments to International Law Conference, University of Tartu (Estonia) / European Society of International Law Legal Theory Group (June 12-13, 2014);
- Docent, Institute for Global Law and Policy Workshop and Colloquium, Harvard Law School (June 1-7, 2014)
- Soviet International Law in Historical Context, presented at Law and History Workshop, University of Utah, School of Law (May 25-30, 2014);
- Docent & Participant, Institute of Global Law and Policy: the Workshop (Doha, Qatar) (January 3-14, 2014);
- National Traditions in International Law Textbook Writing, University of Glasgow, Faculty of Law (November 12-13, 2013) (by invitation);
- "Historicizing Russia's WTO Accession and Regional Trade Agreement Push," Commentary to Keynote Lecture delivered by Prof. William Butler, University of Memphis, School of Law, September 27, 2013;
- Participant, Workshop on Environmental Law and Economics, PERC/George Mason School of Law, Big Sky, Montana, October 2013;
- Docent & Participant, Institute of Global Law and Policy: the Workshop (Doha, Qatar) (January 3-14, 2013);
- "Political Economy of a 21st Century Corporate Mass Merger: Walmart-Massmart and the Future of Global Governance," Presentation with Dr. Karolina Zurek, Doha, Qatar, January 2013;
- "Status of Post-Soviet Regional Integration Treaties Following Russia's WTO Accession," 9th Annual WISH Conference, Shenzhen, China (November 29-December 3, 2012)
- "Teaching History, Historiography & International Law in an Introductory Public International Law Course," SALT Conference, Baltimore, Maryland (October 4-6, 2012)
- Docent & Participant, Institute of Global Law and Policy: the Workshop (Harvard Law School) (June 1-9, 2012)
- "TWAIL-ing Post-Soviet International Law," TWAIL: Capitalism and the Common Good, University of Oregon, School of Law (October 20-22, 2011)
- Teaching Assistant & Participant, Institute of Global Law and Policy: the Workshop (Harvard Law School) (June 1-13, 2011)
- "Comparative International Law," Comparative Law Works-in-Progress Workshop (Yale Law School & American Society of Comparative Law) (February 11-13, 2011)
- "Institute of Global Law and Policy: the Workshop" (Harvard Law School) (June 1-12, 2010)
- "Revisiting, Rather than Reinventing, the Comparative International Law Wheel" (LSE/SOAS, London) (January 14-16, 2010)
    - Third Annual Post-Graduate Colloquium on International Law;
- "Comparative International Law?" (University of Toronto, Faculty of Law) (January 29-30, 2010)
    - Concerning States of Mind, Disturbing the Minds of States – 3rd Annual Toronto Group Conference;

- Media Appearance / Political Discussant, EXPERTTV (January 25, 2009), available at http://tv.expert.ru/video/svz_250109/ (hour-long political analysis panel with Andrei Kortunov & Mikhail Delyagin);
- "Russia's Response to the 2008 Financial Crisis and the Impact on Future U.S./Russian Relations" (IUC-Torino) (December 2008)
  - International University College of Turin – Law, Economics and Finance Annual Conference;
- Media Appearance / Political Discussant, RUSSIATODAY (November 5, 2008) (30-min. news interview).
- "2008 U.S. Presidential Elections: Perspectives and Challenges" (American Center, Moscow) (October 24, 2008)
  - Invited Speaker for Russian Translation of Pres. Barack Obama's Audacity of Hope;
- "Reflections on Post-Soviet Law: The Theory of Lack Reexamined" (University of Toronto, Faculty of Law) (January 11-13, 2008)
  - Mapping Emergent Terrains, Contesting Rigidified Traditions – 1st Annual Toronto Group Conference;
- "The Law and Economics of the Polluter Pays Principle" (University of Toronto, Faculty of Law) (September 28-29, 2007)
  - Canadian Law and Economics Association Annual Conference;
- "Russia's Internet Regulation Regime—A Law and Economics Perspective" (Moscow State University) (October 12-13, 2007)
  - Mass Information in Internet: Freedom and Responsibility Co-organized: Centre for Socio-Legal Studies (Oxford University), Institute for Law and State (Russian Academy of Sciences), Institute for Problems of Information Security (Moscow State University);
- "Fifteen Years of Transitology – A Critical Perspective" (Aleksanteri Institute, University of Helsinki, Finland) (November 28-29, 2007)
  - Revisiting Perestroika - Processes and Alternatives, Aleksanteri Conference;
- Organizer: 2005 Rudolf B. Schlesinger Lecture on Int'l and Comparative Law,
  - Lecture by Laura Nader, Law and the Theory of Lack, 28 HAST. INT'L. & COMP. L. REV. 191 (2005).

OTHER

- U.S. Army ROTC Cadet, Summer 2001 (Ft. Knox, KY)
- Fluent Russian; Reading Spanish, Italian.
- Contributor (Int'l Law): Cornell Law School, Legal Information Institute, Wex.
- Technical Skills: Westlaw, LexisNexis, Bloomberg, STATA, Mathematica 7, MS Office, WordPerfect, CM/ECF
- California Bar No: 238084
- Citizenship: U.S.A.

ACADEMIC/PROFESSIONAL REFERENCES

- Available upon request.

JOHN M. NEWMAN

1 N. Front St., Ste. 362
Memphis, TN 38103
641.425.8289 • 901.678.3224
jmnwman1@memphis.edu

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Assistant Professor 2015–present
Courses: Antitrust Law, Conflict of Laws, Contracts I, Contracts II
Honors: Farris Bobango Faculty Scholarship Award (2016)

Visiting Assistant Professor 2014–15

SCHOLARSHIP

Articles

Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets: Applications, 94 WASH. U. L. REV. __ (forthcoming 2016).

Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets: Foundations, 164 U. PA. L. REV. 149 (2015).

Copyright Freeconomics, 66 VAND. L. REV. 1409 (2013).

Personal Jurisdiction and Choice of Law in the Cloud, 73 MD. L. REV. 313 (2013) (with Damon Andrews).

Anticompetitive Product Design in the New Economy, 39 FLORIDA ST. U. L. REV. 681 (2012).

Student Notes

Raising the Bar and the Public Interest: On Prior Restraints, "Traditional Contours," and Constitutionalizing Preliminary Injunctions in Copyright Law, 10 VIRGINIA SPORTS & ENT. L.J. 323 (2011).

Holden Caulfield Grows Up: Salinger v. Colting*, the Promotion-of-Progress Requirement, and Market Failure in a Derivative-Works Regime*, 96 IOWA L. REV. 737 (2011).

Nonperiodical Materials

Innovation Policy for Cloud-Computing Contracts, in HANDBOOK OF RESEARCH ON DIGITAL TRANSFORMATIONS (Francisco-Xavier Olleros & Majlinda Zhegu eds., 2016).

Working Papers

The Myth of Free (Aug. 21, 2016), http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=2827277.

SELECTED LECTURES AND PRESENTATIONS

FedEx Institute of Technology, Emerging Innovations Series: Blockchains: Legal and Economic Issues (Oct. 20, 2016).

George Washington Institute of Public Policy and The Capitol Forum: Dominant Platforms Under the Microscope—Policy Approaches in the US and EU (Sept. 19, 2016).

U.S. Senate Policy Staff Working Group: Competition and Monopoly in Technology Markets (Sept. 16, 2016).

Fordham University School of Law Workshop Series: The Myth of Free (Sept. 15, 2016).

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Works-in-Progress Series: The Myth of Free (Sept. 9, 2016).

University of Arkansas School of Law–Fayetteville Faculty Exchange: The Myth of Free (Mar. 29, 2016).

Public Lecture at the Peking University School of Transnational Law: Antitrust Law in Zero-Price Markets (Nov. 25, 2014).

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Works-in-Progress Series: Antitrust in Zero-Price Markets (Sept. 12, 2014).

MEDIA

Quoted in Natalie Walters, Users 'Pay Something' to Use Facebook, THESTREET, Sept. 23, 2016.

Interview, Closing Bell, Does Facebook Have a Transparency Issue?, CNBC, Sept. 23, 2016.

Quoted in Hal Hodson, Do We Need to Rein in Facebook and Google's Power?, NEW SCIENTIST, Sept. 3, 2016.

Op-ed., US Antitrust Regulators May Be Giving Free Apps a Free Pass, BUSINESS INSIDER, Aug. 30, 2016.

Interview, 91.3 KUAF (NPR affiliate), Fayetteville, Arkansas, Mar. 31, 2016.

Op-ed., Democratic Hopefuls Pursue a Contradictory Vision, THE HILL, Feb. 15, 2016.

Op-ed., Why Amazon's Work Practices Matter, CLEV. PLAIN DEALER, Aug. 23, 2015.

Interview, 101.9 CFUV, Victoria, British Columbia, Aug. 19, 2015.

Quoted in Christie Smythe, American Express Loses Antitrust Suit over Merchant Rules, BLOOMBERG, Feb. 19, 2015.

Op-ed., Fairer Ways to Stop the Lawyer Brain Drain, DES MOINES REG., Aug. 26, 2014.

OTHER LEGAL AND ACADEMIC EXPERIENCE

U.S. Department of Justice, Antitrust Division, Washington, DC 2011–2014
Trial Attorney, entry via Honors Program
Representative matters: United States v. American Express Co., United States v. ConAgra, Inc., United States v. US Airways Grp., United States v. AT&T Inc.

Waldorf College, Forest City, IA 2011
Guest Lecturer
Delivered lectures on IP and antitrust law to undergraduate Business Law class.

Professor Herbert Hovenkamp, Iowa City, IA 2010–2011
Research Assistant
Drafted memos summarizing research on contemporary issues in connection with updating and revising leading treatise on antitrust law.

U.S. Department of Justice, Washington, DC 2010
Summer Law Intern Program

Professor Christina Bohannan, Iowa City, IA 2009–2010
Research Assistant
Analyzed and reported on copyright and conflict-of-laws issues surrounding works by Matisse and Chagall (University Museum permanent collection).

SELECTED PRO BONO AND VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE

City of Memphis Americorps VISTA 2015–16
Mentor

Blue Sky Photographs (now Heritage Photography Co.) 2013–14
Pro Bono Counsel
Advised digital-photography startup on contract and IP dispute resolution.
Drafted IP licenses and service contracts.

D.C. Bar Advocacy & Justice Clinic 2012–14
Pro Bono Counsel
Obtained $52,000 judgment on tenant's counterclaim against landlord for damages caused by housing-code violations.
Achieved advantageous outcome in ADR for low-income tenants facing eviction.

Liberty Square Building ESL Program 2012–13
Volunteer Instructor
Taught weekly sessions of English courses to nonnative English speakers.

EDUCATION

University of Iowa College of Law 2011
J.D., with highest distinction (GPA: 4.00)
Honors: Outstanding Scholastic Achievement Award, Order of the Coif, Dean's Award, Faculty Award, Jurisprudence Award, College of Law Merit Scholar Activities: Managing Editor, Volume 96, Iowa Law Review; Pro Bono Society

Iowa State University of Science & Technology 2007
B.A., Political Science
Honors: Honors Program, Dean's List, National Merit Scholar Activities: Senator, Government of the Student Body; Journalist, Iowa State Daily

BAR ADMISSIONS

Iowa (inactive), District of Columbia (2012–14, under Rule 49(c)(9)(C)), U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia (2014), U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York (2014).

Daniel M. Schaffzin

The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front Street • Suite 101 • Memphis, TN • 38103-2189
Phone: (901) 678-5056 • E-Mail: dschffzn@memphis.edu

Teaching Experience

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW, Memphis, TN
Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Experiential Learning, August 2011-Present
Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, August 2009-May 2011

Responsibilities and Accomplishments:

- Strategic oversight for Law School's Experiential Learning Program, now comprised of seven In-House Clinical Courses and a robust Externship Course.
- Designed and secured approval for five new In-House Clinic courses: Children's Defense Clinic, Housing Adjudication Clinic, Mediation Clinic, Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic, Neighborhood Preservation Clinic.
- Designed and secured approval of an updated Externship Course, which includes a classroom seminar and diverse field placements across the spectrum of federal and state judicial courts, government offices (criminal, civil, and administrative agency), health entities, not-for-profit organizations, and community law offices.
- Secured approximately $700,000 to date for hiring of new clinical faculty (including Director of Medical-Legal Partnership Clinic and Director of Children's Defense Clinic) and funding of post-graduate Neighborhood Preservation Fellowship.
- Current Course Package: Neighborhood Preservation Clinic (Fall and Spring Semesters); Externship Seminar (Fall, Spring, and Summer Semesters); Advanced Criminal Prosecution (Spring Intersession)
- Other Courses Taught: Civil Litigation Clinic, Housing Adjudication Clinic, Trial Advocacy, Contracts I and II

Service:

- Coach, University of Memphis National Trial Competition Team (2009-Present)
- Ad Hoc Civil Rights Institute Committee (2016-17)
- Ad Hoc ABA Standards Committee (2015-16; 2016-17)
- Faculty Recruitment Committee (Children's Defense Clinic Director) (2015-16)
- Faculty Advisor, Federal Bar Association (2015-Present)
- Faculty Advisor, Sports and Entertainment Law Society (2011-13; 2016-Present)
- Faculty Recruitment Committee (Medical-Legal Partnership Director) (2015)
- Ad Hoc Strategic Planning Committee (2014-15)
- Admissions Committee (2011-12; 2014-15)
- Faculty Advisor, In-School Mock Trial Competition (2009-2014)
- Curriculum Committee (2013-14)
- Untenured Ombudsperson (elected by untenured faculty) (2013-14)

- Student Diversity Committee (2012-14)
- Faculty Recruitment Committee (Health Law Director) (2012-13)
- Ad Hoc Law School Committee (2012-13)
- Faculty Recruitment Committee (Visiting Assistant Professor) (Spring 2012)
- Student Note Advisor, University of Memphis Law Review (2009-15)
- University of Memphis Professional Sports Counseling Panel (2011-Present)
- University Hearing Officer, Employee Grievance Appeals (2010-11)

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH DAKOTA SCHOOL OF LAW, Grand Forks, ND
Visiting Assistant Professor of Law, August 2007-May 2009

Annual Course Package: Clinic I and II (Housing and Employment Litigation)
Service Responsibilities and Honors:

- Coach, University of North Dakota National Trial Team
  - Regional Champion and National Round Qualifier, 2008 and 2009
- Elected Faculty Graduation Speaker by Class of 2008
- Elected Faculty Hooder by Class of 2009

Publications

(B)light at the End of the Tunnel? How a City's Need to Fight Vacant and Abandoned Properties Gave Rise to a Law School Clinic, 50 WASH. U. J. L. & POL'Y __ (2016) (forthcoming).

Fostering a Culture of Solutions: An Introduction to the Urban Revitalization Symposium Issue, 46 U. MEM. L. REV. 793 (2016) (by invitation).

So Why Not an Experiential Law School . . . Starting With Reflection in the First Year?, 7 ELON L. REV. 383 (March 2015) (by invitation).

Teamwork: Doctors and Lawyers Working Together Could Be Cure for Many, 51 TENN. B. J. 12 (Jan. 2015) (with E. Lay, C. McDaniel, L. Mutrie, A. Seamon, L. Seely, E. Todaro).

Warning! Lawyer Advertising May Be Hazardous to Your Health: A Call to Limit Commercial Solicitation of Clients in Pharmaceutical Litigation, 8 CHARLESTON L. REV. 319 (Winter 2013-14) (by invitation), reprinted in 63 DEFENSE L. J. 3 (2014).

Preaching to the Trier: Why Judicial Understanding of Law School Clinics is Essential to Continued Progress in Legal Education, 17 CLINICAL L. REV. 515 (2011) (with M. Jackson).

Landlord Weapon or Tenant Shield? A Proposal to Reform North Dakota's Residential Security Deposit Statute, 85 N.D. L. REV. 251 (2009) (Lead article).

Selected Presentations

Co-Presenter, Preparing Lawyers for Community Engagement: Using Externships to Teach Students How to Collaborate, Communicate, and Be Catalysts for Change, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, May 1, 2016.

Co-Presenter, Best Practices for Externships: Confronting Challenges in Implementation and Seizing Opportunities for Further Growth and Respectability, Externships 8 Conference, Cleveland, OH, March 5, 2016.

Presenter, Avoiding Improper Closing Argument, Continuing Legal Education Presentation to Tennessee Public Defender's Conference, Memphis, TN, October 22, 2015.

Panel Presenter, Making Beautiful Music Together: Lawyers Team with Doctors in Medical-Legal Partnerships, Tennessee Bar Association Annual Convention, Memphis, TN, June 19, 2015.

Presenter, Avoiding Improper Closing Argument, Continuing Legal Education Presentation to Shelby County District Attorney General's Office, Memphis, TN, June 10, 2015.

Co-Presenter, Just What the Doctor Ordered: Multi-Disciplinary Clinics at the Forefront of Change, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Rancho Mirage, CA, May 6, 2015.

Panel Presenter, Navigating the Complexities of the Legal Teaching Market, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Rancho Mirage, CA, May 5, 2015.

Poster Presenter, Advancing Population Health: An Overview of Law-School Based Medical-Legal Partnerships, National Medical-Legal Partnership Summit, McLean, Virginia, April 9, 2015.

Panel Presenter, Collaborative, Patient-Centered, Value-Based Care: Introducing Medical-Legal Partnership, Tennessee Bar Association CME/CLE, Nashville, TN, March 30, 2015.

Co-Presenter, Is Subjective Assessment an Indispensable Cornerstone of Clinical Legal Education? Exploring the Role that Subjectivity Should Play in the Evaluation of Law Clinic Students, Southern Clinical Conference, Williamsburg, VA, October 24, 2014.

Panel Presenter, Excellent Public Housing Authority Approaches to Conducting Informal Hearings and Making Cost-Effective Use of Legal Services, National Association of Housing and Rental Organizations, 2014 National Conference & Exhibition, Baltimore, MD, Oct. 18, 2014.

Co-Presenter, Medical-Legal Partnership in Memphis, Continuing Legal Education, Memphis, TN, October 16, 2014.

Panel Moderator, Evolution of Title VII, Remaking America: 50 Years of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Memphis, TN, June 23, 2014.

Co-Presenter, Educating Money (and Other Motivators): Teaching Social Justice and Life Balance to Future For-Profit Attorneys, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Chicago, IL, April 29, 2014.

Work-in-Progress Presenter, Building on Best Practices: Legal Education in a Changing World, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Chicago, IL, April 29, 2014.

Plenary Session Moderator, How Can We Answer The Call To Reform Legal Education When We Agree On Nothing? Developing Principles And Ranges Of Acceptability & Excellence, Externships 7 Conference, Denver, CO, March 1, 2014.

Co-Presenter, Beyond Best Practices: Externships in the New Best Practices Publication, Externships 7 Conference, Denver, CO, March 1, 2014.

Moderator, New Clinicians 4: Seizing On The Opportunities And Challenges Of The Field Supervisor Relationship, Externships 7 Conference, Denver, CO, March 2, 2014.

Invited Panel Presenter, Domestic Violence Housing and Victim's Rights, Memphis Shelby County Domestic Violence Housing Summit, Memphis, TN, December 2, 2013.

Co-Presenter, Partnerships with Purpose: Seizing on the Opportunities and Challenges of the Field Supervisor Relationship in the New Era of Law School Externships, Southern Clinical Conference, Fayetteville, AR, August 30, 2013.

Invited Panel Presenter, Hot Button Issues in Field Placement Courses, Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) Annual Conference, Palm Beach, FL, August 4, 2013.

Invited Discussant and Paper Presenter, Experiential Legal Education – Assessing the Present and Imagining the Future, Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) Annual Conference, Palm Beach, FL, August 4, 2013.

Poster Presenter, Clinic Student as Teacher: Developing Professionalism and Transferrable Skills Through Student-Led Community Workshops, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, San Juan, PR, April 26, 2013.

Co-Presenter, Clinical Legal Education: The Lay of the Land, CLEA New Clinicians Conference, San Juan, PR, April 26, 2013.

Presenter, Introduction to Tennessee General Sessions Civil Courts, Tennessee Access to Justice Commission Pro Se Litigant Video Project (On-demand video recorded and published in April 2013).

Co-Presenter, Ethical Concerns in Closing Arguments, Tennessee District Attorneys General Conference Trial Advocacy Institute, Memphis, TN, March 14, 2013.

Poster Presenter, Excuses, Excuses: Uncovering, Understanding and Responding to Student Resistance to Enrolling in Clinic, AALS Conference on Clinical Education, Los Angeles, CA, April 30, 2012.

Co-Presenter, Expanding Clinical Opportunities to Promote Access to Justice and Community Engagement, Southern Clinical Conference, Knoxville, TN, March 16, 2012.

Co-Presenter, Necessary Control or Control Freak: For and Against Faculty Selection of For-Credit Field Placements For Externship Students, Externships 6 Conference, Boston, MA, Mar. 3, 2012.

Poster Presenter, Educating Judges on Clinical Education, AALS Annual Meeting, San Diego, CA, January 2009.

Co-Presenter, UND Clinical Education Program: Courses in Reflective Lawyering, North Dakota Judicial Education Commission, Bismarck, ND, November 2008.

Co-Presenter, Landlord-Tenant Law in North Dakota: A Primer, People's Law School, Grand Forks, ND, March 2008.

Service to the Clinical Teaching Community

Planning Committee, 2016 AALS Conference for Clinical Legal Education, Baltimore, MD, April 30-May 3, 2016

Planning Committee, 2016 AALS New Clinicians Workshop, April 30, 2016, Baltimore, MD

Co-Chair, Externships Committee, AALS Clinical Section, May 2015-Present

Member, New Clinicians Committee, Clinical Legal Education Association, 2013-Present.

Member, Externships Committee, Clinical Legal Education Association, 2012-Present.

Chair, Planning Committee, 2015 Southern Clinical Conference, Memphis, TN, Oct. 22-24, 2015.

Contributing Editor, Clinical Law Prof Blog, April 2014-April 2015

Member, Teaching Innovations Committee, AALS Clinical Section, 2012-2014.

Member, Awards Committee, AALS Clinical Section, 2013-2014.

Planning Committee, 2015 CLEA New Clinicians Conference, Rancho Mirage, CA, May 4, 2015.

Planning Committee, 2014 Southern Clinical Conference, Williamsburg, VA, October 23-25, 2014.

Planning Committee, Externships 7 Conference, Denver, CO, February 27-March 2, 2014.

Planning Committee, 2013 CLEA New Clinicians Conference, San Juan, PR, April 26, 2013.

Planning Committee Member and Working Group Leader, 2013 Southern Clinical Conference, Fayetteville, AR, August 28-30, 2013.

Working Group Leader, AALS Conference on Clinical Legal Education, San Juan, PR, April 26-May 1, 2013.

Planning Committee, 2012 Southern Clinical Conference, Knoxville, TN, August 28-30, 2012.

Working Group Leader, AALS Conference on Clinical Legal Education, Seattle, WA, June 12-16, 2011.

Service to the Legal Community

Member, Mayor's Environmental Team (E-Team), Memphis, TN, January 2015-Present.

Board Member, Tennessee Alliance for Legal Services (TALS), May 2011-Present.

Education Committee, Tennessee Access to Justice Commission, April 2012-Present.

Administrative Hearing Officer, Memphis Housing Authority, January 2012-Present.

Commissioner, Memphis Civil Service Commission, August 2012-September 2014.

Cabinet Member, Memphis Area Legal Services Campaign for Equal Justice, 2011-14.

Education

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY BEASLEY SCHOOL OF LAW, Philadelphia, PA
J.D, Cum Laude, May 2000

- Temple Law Review
- Dean's Honor List
- Distinguished Class Performance: Legal Research and Writing, Trial Advocacy, Criminal Law, Civil Procedure
- Beth Farnbach Award for outstanding student contribution to the community

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY , Philadelphia, PA
B.A., Journalism, Magna Cum Laude, May 1996 (University Honors Program)

Bar Membership

Admitted in Tennessee, Pennsylvania (inactive) New Jersey (Retired), and North Dakota (Retired); United States District Court for the District of North Dakota; United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania

Prior Legal Experience

GLAXOSMITHKLINE , Philadelphia, PA
Counsel, U.S. Legal Operations, Sales and Marketing, Oct. 2005-Aug. 2007

- Provided day-to-day advice to diabetes franchise and pediatric vaccine brand teams, as well as Pennsylvania and New Jersey sales regions (management and field representatives), concerning product promotion, fraud and abuse, and compliance issues.
- Prepared and delivered training presentations to marketing and sales personnel regarding commercial practices policies and corporate ethics.
- Conducted training of physician-speakers, including live and teleconference presentations concerning corporate policies on and government regulation of product promotion.
- Negotiated numerous contracts on behalf of in-house marketing clients.

PEPPER HAMILTON LLP, Philadelphia, PA
Associate, Health Effects Litigation Group, Sep. 2000-Sep. 2005

- Represented pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturers in products liability litigation and governmental inquiries.
- Interviewed clients, prepared witnesses, presented oral arguments, conducted depositions, performed extensive legal research, and drafted numerous pleadings, briefs and memoranda.
- Coordinated national discovery, including supervision of junior associates and contract attorney teams, creation of discovery plans and coordination of electronic and hard copy document reviews and productions.
- Engaged in active pro bono practice, including examination of witnesses and extensive brief writing in successful death penalty appeal in Pennsylvania.
- As co-chair of Summer Associate Committee in 2004 and 2005, responsible for coordination of 22 summer associates, including mentoring and evaluation.
- Served as formal mentor to new litigation associates, including substantive review and editing of written work product. Prepared and delivered presentations during new litigation associate training sessions.

OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PA
Clinical Intern, January 2000-May 2000

- Prepared and conducted mock trials, sentencing hearings, negotiations and criminal investigations.
- Observed and attended trials and court proceedings.

Office of The District Attorney, Philadelphia County, PA
Clinical Intern, August 1999-December 1999

- Tried preliminary hearings and municipal court trials.
- Completed curriculum focusing on evidentiary and procedural issues.

Other Professional Experience

Embassy of Israel, Washington, DC
Public Affairs Officer, August 1996-August 1997

- Addressed public on the Middle East peace process and US-Israel relations (more than 25 speaking engagements).
- Authored and coordinated speeches and editorials for the Ambassador of Israel to the United States.
- Developed, wrote and disseminated embassy publications on a variety of subjects, including higher education opportunities in Israel.

Professional Affiliations and Honors

American Association of Law Schools, Clinical Section, Member, 2009-Present

Clinical Legal Education Association, Member, Fall 2007-Present.

Leo Bearman, Sr. American Inn of Court, Memphis, TN, Barrister, 2011-2014.

Randy H. Lee American Inn of Court, Grand Forks, ND, Master, 2008-2009.

Pennsylvania Bar Association Pro Bono Award, May 2005.

Community Affiliations

Memphis Neighborhood Blight Elimination Charter
Steering Committee Member, 2015-Present

Tennessee Alliance for Legal Services
Board of Directors, 2012-Present

Beth Sholom Synagogue of Memphis, Memphis, TN
Executive Committee, 2012-2015.
Board of Directors, January 2010-Present.
Co-Chair, Rabbinic Search Committee, 2013.

Memphis Jewish Community Center, Memphis, TN
Board of Directors, 2011-2014.

Hillel of Greater Philadelphia, Philadelphia, PA
Board of Directors, September 2003-June 2007.

Camp Ramah in the Poconos, Jenkintown, PA/Lakewood, PA
Board of Directors, July 2004-October 2008.

KATHARINE TRAYLOR SCHAFFZIN

University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front Street
Memphis, TN 38120
901-678-1623
k.schaffzin@memphis.edu

TEACHING EXPERIENCE & CERTIFICATIONS

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW, Memphis, TN
DIRECTOR OF FACULTY DEVELOPMENT, May 2012-present
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, August 2011-present
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, August 2009-August 2011
Courses Taught:

- Civil Procedure I & II
- Evidence
- Trial Advocacy

Other Teaching Responsibilities:

- Coach, University of Memphis Trial Team (2009-2012)
- Note Advisor, University of Memphis Law Review
- Advisor, University of Memphis Mock Trial Competition

Service Responsibilities:

- Chair (2012-present), Member (2009-2010; 2011-present), Faculty Recruitment Committee
- Member, Strategic Planning Committee (2009-2011)
- Federal Clerkship Advisor (2010-present)
- Member, Admissions Committee (2010-2011)
- Member, University of Memphis Alumni Association, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Chapter Board (2010-present)
- Member, University Faculty Convocation Planning Committee (2009-present)

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH DAKOTA SCHOOL OF LAW, Grand Forks, ND
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, July 2006-May 2009
Courses Taught:

- Evidence
- Professional Responsibility
- Trial Advocacy
- Constitutional Law II: Civil Rights & Civil Liberties

Other Teaching Responsibilities:

- Coach, UND Trial Team (National Trial Competition: 2008 National Finalists)
- Coordinator, Carrigan Cup Trial Competition

Service Responsibilities:

- Faculty Senator, University Senate (2008-2009)
- Co-Chair (2007-2008), Member (2006-2007), Faculty Selection Committee
- Member, Admissions Committee (2007-2009)
- Member, Promotions & Tenure Drafting Committee (2007-2008)

NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF TRIAL ADVOCACY, Louisville, CO
CERTIFIED TEACHER OF TRIAL ADVOCACY SKILLS, June 2006
Successfully completed NITA's Teacher Training Program in the art of teaching trial skills to practicing trial attorneys and student advocates.

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY BEASLEY SCHOOL OF LAW, Philadelphia, PA
HONORABLE ABRAHAM L. FREEDMAN FELLOW & LECTURER IN LAW, July 2004-May 2006
Courses Taught:

- Professional Responsibility
- Legal Research & Writing, a graded, two-semester course
- Evidence (in collaboration with Professor Louis Natali)
- Contracts I (in collaboration with Professor William Woodward, Jr.)
- Civil Procedure II (in collaboration with Professor Anthony Bocchino)

PUBLICATIONS

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, The Great and Powerful Oz Revealed: The Ethics and Wisdom of the SCOTUS Leaks in National Federation of Independent Business v. Sebilius, 7 CHARLESTON L. REV. 317(Winter 2012-13; by invitation).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, Associate Professor, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, William & Mary Law Review Symposium on the Restyled Federal Rules of Evidence (Oct. 28, 2011), in 53 WM. & MARY L. REV. 1435, 1435 (April 2012).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin (contributing editor), Anthony J. Bocchino & David A. Sonenshein, A Practical Guide to Federal Evidence (10th ed. 2011).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin (contributing editor), Anthony J. Bocchino & David A. Sonenshein, Federal Rules of Evidence with Objections (10th ed. 2011).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, Out with the Old: An Argument for Restyling "Sacred Phrases" Retained in the Proposed Amendments to the Federal Rules of Evidence, 77:4 TENN. L. REV. 1 (Summer 2010).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, Eyes Wide Shut: How Ignorance of the Common Interest Doctrine Can Compromise Informed Consent, 42:1 U. Mich. J.L. Reform 71 (Fall 2008).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, Deference to a Hearing Panel?: Emerging Trends in the Disciplinary Decisions of the Supreme Court of North Dakota – 2004-2007, 83:3 N.D. L. REV. 887 (2007; by invitation).

Katharine Traylor Schaffzin, An Uncertain Privilege: Why the Common Interest Doctrine Does Not Work and How Uniformity Can Fix It, 15 B.U. PUB. INT. L.J. 49 (2005).

Note, A Reexamination of the Evidentiary Weight of Adverse Inferences Drawn from an Employee's Invocation of His Fifth Amendment Silence, 73 TEMP. L. REV. 379 (2000).

SCHOLARLY PRESENTATIONS

TENNESSEE DISTRICT ATTORNEYS GENERAL CONFERENCE, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Memphis, TN
2013 TRIAL ADVOCACY COURSE,
SPEAKER, March 14, 2013
Presented course on Prosecutorial Ethics in Closing Arguments.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON EVIDENCE RULES FALL MEETING, William & Mary Law School, Williamsburg, VA
SYMPOSIUM ON THE RESTYLED FEDERAL RULES OF EVIDENCE,
PANELIST, October 28, 2011
Presented results of empirical research on student reaction to restyled Federal Rules of Evidence, critique of Advisory Committee's failure to restyle "sacred phrases," and effect of restyled rules on reference to tacit admissions.

SOUTHEASTERN ASSOCIATION OF LAW SCHOOLS ANNUAL MEETING, Palm Beach, FL
WORKSHOP ON EVIDENCE: PROPOSED CHANGES TO THE FEDERAL RULES OF EVIDENCE,
SPEAKER, July 31, 2010
Presented research on the current project to rewrite the Federal Rules of Evidence into plain English and its implications.

THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY COLLEGE OF LAW, Lexington, KY
DEVELOPING IDEAS CONFERENCE, SPEAKER, May 12-14, 2010
Presented current research on the "state of mind" exception to the hearsay rule. Critiqued current research of junior legal scholars.

THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN LAW SCHOOLS ANNUAL MEETING, New York, NY
NEW LAW PROFESSORS SECTION, PRESENTER, January 2-6, 2007
Presented poster entitled "Clickers for Conversation" at annual meeting.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION OF NORTH DAKOTA, Grand Forks, ND
CONTINUING LEGAL EDUCATION: THE DISCIPLINARY PROCESS, TRUST ACCOUNTS & RECENT NORTH DAKOTA DISCIPLINARY CASES, SPEAKER, February 2007
Presented Continuing Legal Education course to members of the State Bar Association of North Dakota.

LEGAL EXPERIENCE

CHAMBERS OF THE HONORABLE JAMES KNOLL GARDNER, UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA
LAW CLERK, January 2003 –July 2004
Performed legal research and drafted bench memoranda, orders, and opinions concerning a variety of federal and state issues, both civil and criminal. Made recommendations to and deliberated with the Judge regarding jurisdictional, discovery, and evidentiary disputes, as well as the disposition of motions, bench trials, sentencing, and other matters.

MAZUR, CARP & RUBIN, P.C., New York, NY
LITIGATION ASSOCIATE, CONSTRUCTION PRACTICE GROUP, April 2002-January 2003
Represented owners, contractors, and sub-contractors as plaintiffs and defendants in contract litigation, arbitration, mediation, and contract negotiation. Attended oral arguments, mediations, depositions, and settlement negotiations. Acted as second chair in state courts. Performed legal research, managed discovery, and drafted memoranda, motions, briefs, construction contracts, and surety bonds.

PEPPER HAMILTON LLP, Philadelphia, PA
LITIGATION ASSOCIATE, CONSTRUCTION PRACTICE GROUP, September 2000-March 2002
Represented owners, contractors, and sub-contractors in federal and state contract litigation and arbitration. Also represented defendants in products liability and commercial litigation. Performed legal research, managed discovery, and drafted memoranda, motions, and briefs. Successfully moved state court to enter summary judgment in defendant's favor in $30 million construction dispute. Represented indigent property owner in pro bono premises liability matter from case inception through arbitration.
SUMMER ASSOCIATE, Summer 1999
Conducted research and drafted memoranda for various practice groups.

BAR MEMBERSHIP

Admitted in Pennsylvania (inactive), New Jersey (retired), and New York (inactive).

EDUCATION

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY BEASLEY SCHOOL OF LAW, Philadelphia, PA
LL.M. in Legal Education received May 2006
Honorable Abraham L. Freedman Fellowship

J.D. received May 2000
TEMPLE LAW REVIEW:
- Associate Managing, Articles, Research Editor (1999-2000): Performed the duties of a managing editor, articles editor, and research editor, including editing and managing articles submitted by staff members for publication, reviewing articles submitted by outside authors for publication, and incorporating cite-checks into galleys.
- Staff Member (1998-1999)

Temple University Scholarship Recipient (full tuition merit scholarship)
Dean's List
Barrister's Award Winner for Excellence in Trial Advocacy

LASALLE UNIVERSITY, Philadelphia, PA
B.A., magna cum laude, received May 1997
Major: Political Science
Minor: French
General University Honors
Christian Brothers Scholarship Recipient (full tuition merit scholarship)
Dean's List

CHESTNUT HILL COLLEGE, Philadelphia, PA
Diocesan Scholar, September 1992-May 1993 (full tuition merit scholarship)

- Attended college courses in the mornings during senior year of high school

PROFESSIONAL ORGANIZATIONS & COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES

MEMPHIS JEWISH FEDERATION, Memphis, TN
MEMBER, BOARD OF DIRECTORS, July 2011-Present
Govern activities of Memphis Jewish Federation, an organization that raises funds and delivers services to local constituents in need, as well as promotes individual involvement in and travel throughout Israel.

MEMPHIS JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER, Memphis, TN
MEMBER, EARLY CHILDHOOD CENTER COMMITTEE, August 2010-Present
Work with parents, administration, and teachers to plan and coordinate activities, fundraisers, and events related to preschool.

INSTITUTE FOR PHILOSOPHY IN PUBLIC LIFE, Grand Forks, ND
MEMBER, BOARD OF DIRECTORS, December 2008-August 2012
Govern activities of Institute established to relate philosophy to the daily lives of the public. The Institute brings regional, national, and international philosophers together with members of the public in various settings, including through the weekly public radio broadcast of "Why?"

SMITH MEMORIAL PLAYGROUND & PLAYHOUSE, Philadelphia, PA
MEMBER, BOARD OF DIRECTORS, October 2005-December 2009
Advised Board of Directors on legal matters concerning ongoing rehabilitative reconstruction of historic playground and playhouse.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION OF NORTH DAKOTA, Grand Forks, ND
MEMBER, ASPIRATIONAL GOALS DRAFTING COMMITTEE, August 2008-May 2009
Drafted Aspirational Goals of attorney conduct for consideration and adoption by the State Bar Association of North Dakota.

U.S. SUPREME COURT HISTORICAL SOCIETY, Washington, DC
CHAIR, NORTH DAKOTA MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE, August 2007-August 2008
Served to promote membership in the U.S. Supreme Court Historical Society in North Dakota.

FRANKLIN LEARNING CENTER HIGH SCHOOL, Philadelphia, PA
COACH, JOHN J. BRADWAY HIGH SCHOOL MOCK TRIAL COMPETITION, October 2001-April 2007
Instructed high school students on the rules of evidence and the skill of trial advocacy.

JODI L. WILSON

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW
THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
1 NORTH FRONT STREET ▪ MEMPHIS, TN 38103
901.678.5730 (P) ▪ 901.678.0753 (F)
JODI.WILSON@MEMPHIS.EDU

CURRENT ACADEMIC APPOINTMENT

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW MEMPHIS, TN
THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
DIRECTOR OF LEGAL METHODS (JULY 2009 – PRESENT)
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW (AUGUST 2016 – PRESENT)
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW (JULY 2009 – AUGUST 2016)

- Courses: Legal Methods I, Legal Methods II, Legal Methods for TIP Scholars, Professional Responsibility, and ADR: Arbitration
- Selected Service: Advisor to Freshman Moot Court, Note Advisor, Advisor to Association for Women Attorneys – Student Chapter, ABA Standards Committee (Chair, 2015-2016), Admissions Committee, Dean's Advisory Committee, Library Collection Development Committee, Orientation Committee, Promotion and Tenure Subcommittee, Recruitment Committee, Self-Study Committee, and University Teaching and Learning Advisory Committee (Chair, 2013-2014)

EDUCATION

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW ST. LOUIS, MO
JURIS DOCTOR – MAY 2001
- Washington University Law Quarterly, Staff Member & Associate Editor 1999-2001
- Order of the Coif 2001
- Alumni Association Prize (Highest Average in Law School Career, Class Valedictorian) 2001
- Breckenridge Scholarship Prize (Highest Academic Average for Senior Year) 2001

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS FAYETTEVILLE, AR
BACHELOR OF ARTS – MAY 1998
- Psychology Major
- Summa Cum Laude 1998

PRIOR EMPLOYMENT

BASS, BERRY & SIMS, PLC MEMPHIS, TN
ASSOCIATE (OCTOBER 2007 – JUNE 2009)
- Represented clients in civil litigation and securities industry arbitration, with an emphasis on arbitration of customer disputes and unfair competition/raiding claims.
- Prior firm merged with Bass, Berry & Sims, PLC in October 2007.

CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW MEMPHIS, TN
THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
LEGAL METHODS ADJUNCT PROFESSOR (AUGUST 2007 – MAY 2009)

TATE LAZARINI BRADY & DAVIS, PLC MEMPHIS, TN
ASSOCIATE (FEBRUARY 2005 – OCTOBER 2007)
- ❖ Represented clients in civil litigation and securities industry arbitration, with an emphasis on arbitration of customer disputes and unfair competition/raiding claims.

CATES, KUROWSKI, BAILEY & SHULTZ, LLC BELLEVILLE, IL
ASSOCIATE (OCTOBER 2003 – FEBRUARY 2005)
- ❖ Represented clients in civil litigation and arbitration, with an emphasis on class actions.
- ❖ Prior firm merged with Cates, Kurowski, Bailey & Schultz, LLC in October 2003.

THE CATES LAW FIRM, LLC ST. LOUIS, MO
ASSOCIATE (JULY 2003 – OCTOBER 2003)
- ❖ Represented clients in civil litigation and arbitration, with an emphasis on class actions.
- ❖ The Cates Law Firm, LLC formed following restructuring of prior firm in July 2003.

CARR, KOREIN, TILLERY, KUNIN, MONTROY, CATES,
KATZ & GLASS, LLC (& SUCCESSOR FIRMS) BELLEVILLE, IL
ASSOCIATE (NOVEMBER 2001 – JULY 2003)
LAW CLERK (MAY 1999 – NOVEMBER 2001)
- ❖ Represented clients in civil litigation and arbitration, with an emphasis on class actions.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

- ❖ Appellate and Trial Level Experience
- ❖ Arbitration Experience
- ❖ Federal Forum – Seventh Circuit, Eleventh Circuit, Ninth Circuit, Various District Courts, and Judicial Panel on Multi-District Litigation
- ❖ State Forum – Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, and New York
- ❖ Arbitral Forum – AAA, FINRA, and NYSE
- ❖ Class Action (Emphasis in Health Care Issues and Consumer Protection), Insurance Defense, Personal Injury, Corporate Litigation, and Securities-related Arbitration
- ❖ Client Interaction and Counseling
- ❖ Motions Practice – research, draft, and argue
- ❖ Discovery Practice – defend and take depositions, prepare witnesses, and conduct written discovery
- ❖ Research and Writing – research various areas of law for internal purposes and submission to court and arbitral forums; draft documents for submission to federal, state, and arbitral forums at trial and appellate level
- ❖ Prepare cases for trial and final hearing; assist in presenting cases at evidentiary hearings, trial, and final hearings
- ❖ Extensive involvement in negotiating and drafting settlement terms for nationwide health care and consumer fraud litigation

PROFESSIONAL ADMISSIONS

ILLINOIS BAR (INACTIVE) 2001
MISSOURI BAR (INACTIVE) 2002
TENNESSEE BAR 2005
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS 2001
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE 2007
UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT 2006

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS & SERVICE

AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION
TENNESSEE BAR ASSOCIATION
MEMPHIS BAR ASSOCIATION
-LEADERSHIP FORUM (2008)
ASSOCIATION FOR WOMEN ATTORNEYS
LEGAL WRITING INSTITUTE
-LISTSERV COMMITTEE (2012-PRESENT), CHAIR (2014-PRESENT)
ASSOCIATION OF LEGAL WRITING DIRECTORS
-SURVEY COMMITTEE (2012- PRESENT), CO-CHAIR/CHAIR (2013- PRESENT)
AALS LEGAL WRITING, REASONING, AND RESEARCH SECTION
-WELCOMING COMMITTEE CHAIR (2010), MEMBER (2014)

PROFESSIONAL HONORS

ADVOCATE CIRCLE AWARD FOR INDIVIDUALS 2006
Presented by Memphis Area Legal Services in honor of work performed on behalf of victims of Hurricane Katrina.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS CHAIR AWARD SEPT. 2002
Presented by the American Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery in honor of work performed in health care litigation on behalf of physicians and other health care providers.

PUBLICATIONS

Proceed with Extreme Caution: Citation to Wikipedia in Light of Contributor Demographics and Content Policies, 16 VAND. J. ENT. & TECH. L. 857 (2014).

Teaching by Engaging; Engaging by Gaming, THE LEARNING CURVE, Summer 2013, at 11.

How the Supreme Court Thwarted the Purpose of the Federal Arbitration Act, 63 CASE W. RES. L. REV. 91 (2012).

Students Can't Avoid What They Can't See: Helping Students Recognize Ethical Pitfalls, THE SECOND DRAFT, Fall 2012, at 11.

PRESENTATIONS

Solicited Presenter, Assessing and Citing to Nontraditional Sources, Thirty-Fourth Annual Meeting of the Association of Reporters of Judicial Decisions, Nashville, TN (August 6, 2015).

Presenter (Poster Presentation), Wikipedia on the Rise: Teaching Legal Writers to Assess Non-Traditional Sources, Legal Writing Institute 2014 Biennial Conference, Philadelphia, PA (June 29-July 2, 2014).

Presenter, with Robert B. Vandiver, Jr., Joint Representation in Bankruptcy ~ Ethical Considerations, American Bankruptcy Institute, Memphis Consumer Bankruptcy Conference 2014, Memphis, TN (June 6, 2014).

Presenter, Preventing Prosecutorial Misconduct in Closing, Federal Defender's Office CLE, Memphis, TN (Sept. 27, 2013).

Presenter, The Wikipedia-as-Authority Phenomenon: Should You Join the Crowd?, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Faculty Research Presentation, Memphis, TN (Sept. 18, 2013).

Presenter, Encouraging Class Engagement with Poll Everywhere, Third Colonial Frontier Legal Writing Conference: Technology and the Teaching of Legal Research & Writing, Duquesne University School of Law, Pittsburgh, PA (March 16, 2013).

Presenter, New Opportunities in Research Instruction, Billable Hours: Not Just for Practice Anymore, Legal Writing Institute One-Day Workshop, University of North Carolina School of Law, Chapel Hill, NC (Dec. 7, 2012).

Panelist, Recruiting, Training, and Managing Adjunct Professors, Southeastern Association of Law Schools, 2011 Annual Conference, Hilton Head Island, SC (July 27, 2011).

Presenter, Changing Students' Perspectives about Legal Writing, Second Annual Empire State Legal Writing Conference, St. John's University School of Law, New York, NY (May 13, 2011).

Presenter, Grading, Critiquing, and Conferencing Papers: All Without Losing Your Mind, Legal Writing Institute One-Day Workshop, University of Tennessee College of Law, Knoxville, TN (Dec. 4, 2010).

Presenter, The Unauthorized Practice of Law in a Virtual Practice World, University of Kentucky College of Law Developing Ideas Conference, Lexington, KY (May 2010).

Presenter, A Rose by Any Other Name: Reevaluating the Attorney Licensing Scheme, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Faculty Work-in-Progress Session, Memphis, TN (April 2, 2010).

Panelist, So You Want to Be a Law Professor?, The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, Memphis, TN (Feb. 12, 2010).

Presenter, Current Status of Health Care Litigation, Co-Presentation to Board of Governors, American Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery, Annual Meeting, Oklahoma City, OK (Nov. 2003).

Presenter, Current Status of Health Care Litigation, Co-Presentation to Board of Governors, Co-Presentation at American Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery, Annual Meeting, Oklahoma City, OK (Sept. 2002).

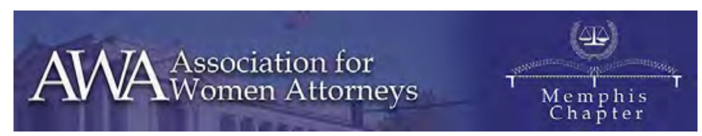
Presenter, Class Action Litigation for Bundling and Downcoding, Oklahoma Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery, Annual Meeting, Branson, MO (May 2002).

Presenter, Practical Steps to Level the Playing Field for Academic and Community Otolaryngologists, Co-Presentation to American Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery, Legislative Briefing Day, Washington, D.C. (March 2002).

Presenter, Class Action Litigation for Bundling and Downcoding, Co-Presentation to American Academy of Otolaryngology – Head & Neck Surgery, Legislative Briefing Day, Washington, D.C. (March 2002).

Sponsors and Supporters

BAKER DONELSON



The U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee Court Improvement Fund

www.bakerdonelson.com

www.memphis.edu/law

THIS IS AN ADVERTISEMENT. Ben Adams is Chairman and CEO of Baker Donelson and is located in our Memphis office, 165 Madison Avenue, Suite 2000, Memphis, TN 38103. Phone 901.526.2000. No representation is made that the quality of the legal services to be performed is greater than the quality of legal services performed by other lawyers. FREE BACKGROUND INFORMATION AVAILABLE UPON REQUEST. © 2016 Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC

The University of Memphis: Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law is located at 1 North Front Street, Memphis, TN 38103. Phone 901.678.2421 © 2016 University of Memphis

Implicit (Unconscious) Bias
A New Look at an Old Problem

Friday, November 18, 2016 • 8:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Approved: 7 hours CLE (6 general, 1 dual) and 8 SHRM recertification credits
HRCI recertification credits are pending.

Introduction

Thought by some to be an "old" problem, explicit bias continues to influence virtually all areas of American life including the business world, the media, education, and our justice systems. In addition, decision-makers may also be influenced by implicit (unconscious) bias. How implicit bias operates including strategies that will assist decision-makers in recognizing, shaping and managing its influence is the subject of this must attend conference that will provide "A New Look At An Old Problem."

Explicit bias refers to bias that is a product of conscious, intentional discriminatory behaviors. In contrast, implicit bias refers to the more recent and controversial belief that automatic, unintentional biases and stereotypes people experience toward members of social groups or categories of people other than their own, can influence their decision-making and systemically and adversely affect members of certain groups. The importance of this topic is illustrated by the recent mandate by the U. S. Department of Justice requiring more than 33,000 of its agents and attorneys to undergo training to eliminate the influence of implicit bias in law enforcement decisions.

Nationally recognized experts will explore these timely and important topics.

Schedule

8:30 – 9:00 a.m. Registration

9:00 – 9:30 a.m.
Welcome and Program Introduction
Welcome to Law School: Peter Letsou, Esq., Dean, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Introduction to Program: Otis Sanford, Professor and Hardin Chair of Excellence in Journalism, University of Memphis

9:30 – 11:30 a.m. Panel One
Introduction to the Concepts and Controversy Surrounding Implicit (Unconscious) Bias
This panel will introduce the concept of implicit bias and discuss its psychological, social and factual underpinnings and its legal consequences.

Moderator:
Jacqueline M. O'Bryant, Esq., Coordinator of Law School Diversity, Director, Tennessee Institute for Pre-Law, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Speakers:
Hon. Bernice B. Donald, Judge, United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit

James Finberg, Esq., Altshuler Berzon, San Francisco, CA.

Professor Gregory Mitchell, Esq., Ph.D., Professor of Law, University of Virginia School of Law

Maurice Wexler, Esq., Baker Donelson Bearman Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC, Memphis, TN

11:30 – 11:45 a.m. Break

11:45 a.m. – 12:45 p.m. Panel Two
Implicit Bias In Our Justice System, Law Enforcement, Educational Institutions, the Media, and the Business World (Part 1)
Leading professionals will lead conference attendees in a series of exercises and discussions that will allow us to assess the reality of implicit bias in a number of areas, including business, education, our judicial systems, law enforcement and the media. Attendees will learn how to identify areas where implicit bias is most likely to influence decision-making.

Moderator:
Demetria Frank, Esq., Professor, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Speakers:
Christine Chambers Goodman, Esq., Professor, Pepperdine School of Law

Darrell D. Jackson, Esq., Ph.D., Professor, University of Wyoming School of Law

Katharine Kores, Esq., District Director, Memphis District Office of the U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission

Altha Stewart, M. D., Associate Professor and Director, Center of Excellence for Health in Justice Involved Youth, University of Tennessee Health Science Center

Quinn Thompson-Slaughter, Director, Global Diversity and Talent Acquisition, International Paper, Memphis, TN

12:45 – 2:00 p.m.
Lunch and Keynote Address
Exploring implicit bias and how the failure to understand and acknowledge it can negatively affect decision making.

Speaker:
Paulette Brown, Esq., Locke Lord, LLP, Morristown, New Jersey, Immediate Past President of the American Bar Association

2:00 – 3:00 p.m. Panel Two
Implicit Bias In Our Justice System, Law Enforcement, Educational Institutions, the Media, and the Business World (Part 2)

3:00 – 3:15 p.m. Break

3:15 – 5:00 p.m. Panel Three
Where Do We Go From Here?
Expert panelists will address strategies and organizational goals that aim to produce fair and non-discriminatory decision-making. Panelists also will discuss specific examples of how diversity and implicit bias initiatives can positively influence organizational success.

Moderator:
Professor Otis Sanford, Professor and Hardin Chair of Excellence in Journalism, University of Memphis

Speakers:
Paulette Brown, Esq., Locke Lord, LLP, Morristown, New Jersey, Immediate Past President of the American Bar Association

Demetria Frank, Esq., Professor, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

William Gibbons, Esq., Executive Director, University of Memphis Public Safety Institute; President, Memphis and Shelby County Crime Commission; and, Immediate Past Commissioner, State of Tennessee Commission on Safety and Homeland Security; former District Attorney General

Daniel Kiel, Esq., Professor, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Hon. Jon P. McCalla, Judge, United States District Court for the Western District of Tennessee

Hon. Dan H. Michael, Judge, Memphis and Shelby County Juvenile Court

Dan Norwood, Esq., Norwood & Atchley, Memphis, TN

5:00 – 5:15 p.m. Concluding Remarks
Linda Klein, Esq., Baker Donelson Bearman Caldwell & Berkowitz, P.C. Atlanta, GA.; President, The American Bar Association

5:15 – 6:00 p.m. Reception
Reception for presenters and attendees.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

ANNUAL FUND PLEDGE FORM

Please return to: University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law Department 238 The U of M Foundation P.O. Box 1000, Memphis, TN 38148-0001 901-678-2425 or give on line at • www.law.memphis.edu

YES, I want to contribute to Memphis Law with a gift in the amount of:

- ☐ $1,000
- ☐ $500
- ☐ $250
- ☐ $100
- ☐ Other $______________

I would like to designate my annual fund gift to:

- ☐ Law Review
- ☐ Law Library
- ☐ Law Enrichment Annual Fund
- ☐ Law Scholarship
  Specify ________________________
- ☐ Other ______________________________

PAYMENT OPTIONS

☐ Enclosed check (payable to University of Memphis Foundation)

☐ Pledge (payable through June 30th) Enclosed is a payment of $ ________ toward my pledge of $ _________.

☐ Transfer of appreciated stock (Please contact the Law School Development Office at 901-678-2425 to make arrangements.)

☐ Credit Card ☐ Visa ☐ MC ☐ Amex ☐ Discover Card # ____

Exp. date _____/_____ Signature ____ Date ____________________

☐ Electronic Fund Transfer (Please contact the Law School Development Office at 901-678-2425 to make arrangements.)

PERSONAL INFORMATION

Please include or update the following:

Name ____ Class Year ______________ or ☐ Friend

As is should appear in the Honor Roll of Donors

Spouse Name ____ Is this a joint gift with your spouse? ☐ Yes ☐ No

Address ____

STREET CITY STATE ZIP

Phone (H) ____________________________________ (W) ____________________________________

Email ____

Employer ____________________________________ Title ____________________________________

Address ____

STREET CITY STATE ZIP

PLANNED GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

☐ I am interested in receiving information on life income plans.

☐ I am interested in receiving information on estate planning.

☐ I am interested in receiving information on including the University of Memphis in my will.

MATCHING GIFTS

If you and your spouse are employees (or retirees) of a company that makes charitable contributions, you can multiply the impact of your gift to the University of Memphis.

☐ My employer/spouse's employer will match my gift. Employer: ______________________________________

☐ I have enclosed the matching gift form, which I have obtained from my employer/spouse's employer.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

One Program, Two Degrees

The Tennessee Board of Regents has officially approved the dual JD/MA program offered by the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and the Department of Political Science at the University of Memphis. Over the years, both undergraduate and graduate students at the University of Memphis have requested a joint program incorporating the law JD and the Political Science MA degree programs. The advantage of such a program is that credit toward degrees in these career-related disciplines can be earned simultaneously if admissions and curricula are carefully structured. Many reputable institutions elsewhere, such as Yale, Duke, Syracuse, Tulane and Cincinnati, have similar programs. None of them, however, are close to Memphis, so by adding the program, the U of M has provided a competitive edge for students in the Mid-South.

Admission

Acceptance in the dual-degree program will require separate admission to each program. However, for applications to the joint program, the Department of Political Science will accept LSAT scores in lieu of GRE scores. Completion of one degree is not contingent upon completion of both.

Requirements

Students may earn a maximum of 16 hours of dual credit for law courses taken at the law school. The remaining hours toward the MA in Political Science must be taken in the Department of Political Science. For students in the dual-degree program, their first year of law school must only include classes that are part of the JD program. The following courses will qualify for both the JD and the MA in Political Science:

Required Law Courses

Constitutional Law (4 hours)
Criminal Law (3 hours)
Criminal Procedure I (3 hours)

Elective Law Courses

Administrative Law (3 hours)
Criminal Procedure II (2 hours)
Federal Courts A (2 hours)
Federal Courts B (2 hours)
Civil Rights (3 hours)
Constitutional Law Seminar (2 hours)
Tennessee Constitutional Law (2 hours)
Jurisprudence (2 hours)
International Law (3 hours)
Comparative Law (3 hours)
Immigration Law (3 hours)
Environmental Law (3 hours)

"After finishing my BA in Political Science, I couldn't decide whether I wanted to go to law school or graduate school. The JD/MA dual-degree program allowed me to do both! For just 20 credit hours in graduate classes and 16 transferable law credits, I was able to earn my master's in Political Science along with my law degree. In a recovering economy, it helps to have additional options. I highly recommend any of the dual-degree programs at the University of Memphis School of Law."

— John Marek, JD/MA '11
Campaign Manager–Steve Cohen 2012 Congressional Campaign

Political Science Contact:
Dr. Michael Sances
Assistant Professor
msances@memphis.edu
Clement Hall

901.678.2395

Law Admissions Contact:
Dr. Sue Ann McClellan
Assistant Dean of Admissions
Recruitment and Scholarships
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
smcclell@memphis.edu
901.678.5403

Law School Contact:
Boris Mamlyuk
Assistant Professor
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
bmamlyuk@memphis.edu
901.678.2202

The University of Memphis, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University. It is committed to the education of a non-racially identifiable student body.

UOM237-FY1213/5C 4783 HICKORY HILL ROAD MEMPHIS TN 38141

memphis.edu/law

CERTIFICATE IN TAX LAW

Objective:

The Law School wishes to award the Tax Law Certificate to students who demonstrate proficiency in tax law by successfully completing fifteen credit hours of tax courses with a certain minimum gpa, both in tax courses and in all law school courses. Tax courses are noted below. Students must also engage in tax-related service activities.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE CERTIFICATE IN TAX LAW

Required Courses:

A student must successfully complete all of the following courses:

Basic Income Tax (3 hours)
Corporate Tax (3 hours)
Partnership Tax (3 hours)

Elective Courses:

In addition, a student must earn sufficient credit hours in any of the following courses to bring the total credit hours up to 15:

Estate Planning (3 hours)
International Taxation (3 hours)
Mergers & Acquisitions (2 hours)
Nonprofit Organizations (3 hours)
Tax Policy seminar (2 hours)

Tax-Related Service:

A student must perform 25 hours of tax-related service (i.e., unpaid) activity. VITA hours count towards fulfilling this requirement as does work in the tax office of MALS. An appropriate externship experience will satisfy this requirement.

A student must achieve an overall gpa of at 2.5. Students must achieve a gpa of 3.0 in the courses applicable to the Tax Law Certificate.

REGISTRATION FOR TAX LAW CERTIFICATE

Print name: ____

Preferred phone number: ____

Preferred email address: ____

Today's Date: __________________________

I am currently in my –

2d year, 1st semester ______

2d year, 2d semester ______

3d year, 1st semester ______

3d year, 2d semester ______

4th year ______

Please turn your form into the Tax Certificate faculty advisor.

THE UNIVERSITY OF
MEMPHIS.
Legal Clinic
1 Front Street

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

CIVIL LITIGATION CLINIC

In the Civil Litigation Clinic, Memphis Law students represent indigent clients in a variety of cases – generally arising from landlord/tenant, consumer protection, and debtor/creditor disputes – pending in the General Sessions, Circuit or Chancery Courts of Shelby County.

Student attorneys engage in the examination of law and advocacy, actively navigating ethical, substantive, procedural, and evidentiary issues in the context of case work, classroom seminars, in-class case rounds and presentations, weekly case team meetings, and group and individual simulations. Through the vehicle of live-client representation, student attorneys also make continuous use of essential skills to address the ever-changing needs of clients.

Emphasis is placed on allowing Civil Litigation Clinic student attorneys to reflect upon their experiences in light of issues such as rapport-building and control in the lawyer-client relationship, professionalism, diversity, and the role of lawyers in social change work. Student attorneys also gain continuous exposure to collaborative lawyering, working together with their supervising attorney and class members to confront and address the many case, office, and time management issues arising in their representations.

Faculty: Daniel M. Schaffzin, Assistant Professor of Law and Director of Experiential Learning

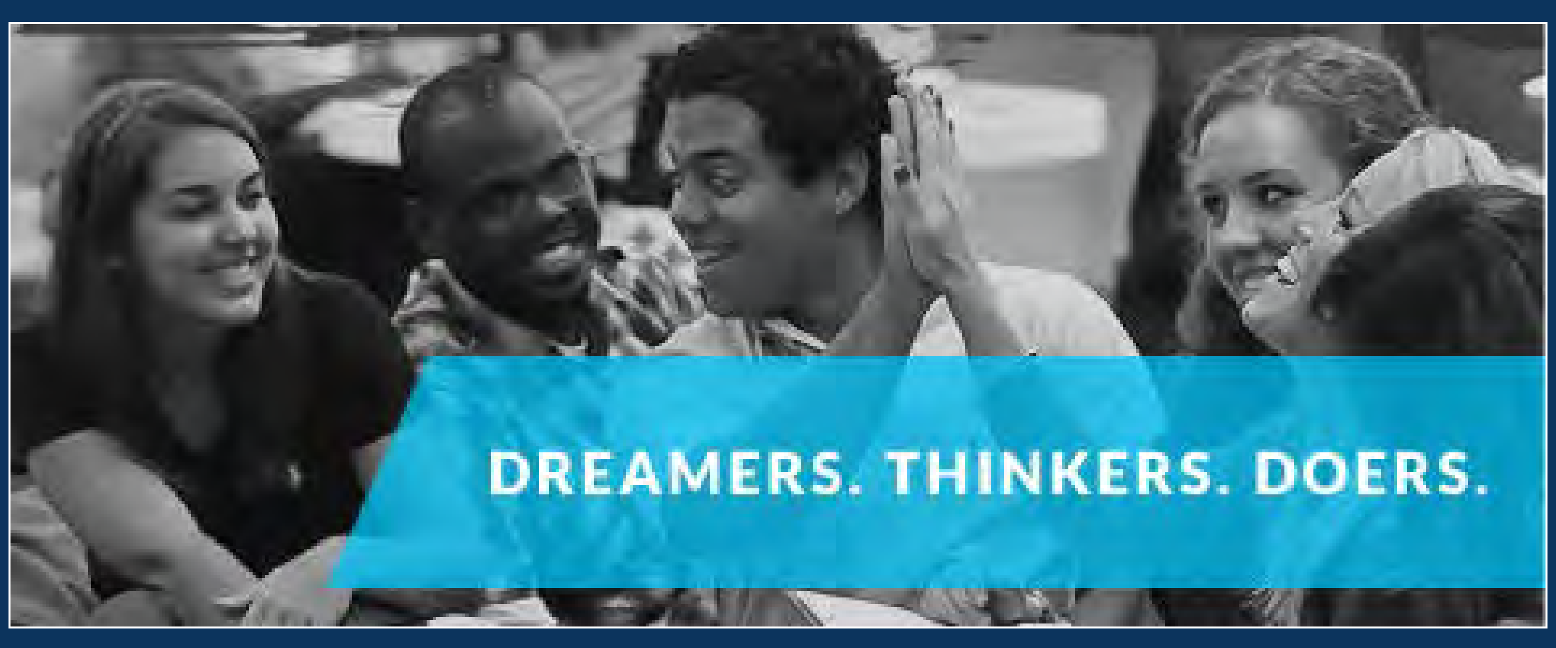
Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

Alumni & Support

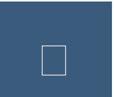
ABA Required Disclosures

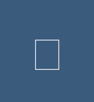
Full sitemap

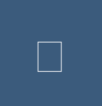


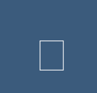
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

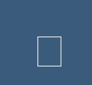
Follow UofM Online

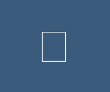












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

About

Admissions

Programs

Current Students

Faculty

Careers

Library

Programs

ELDER HEALTH LAW ADVOCACY CLINIC

The Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic provides students with the opportunity to focus on substantive health law while representing elderly clients in need of legal assistance to address health care issues, such as:

- Execution and administration of advance healthcare directives
- Access to quality health care and long term care
- Eligibility for Medicare and TennCare Choices
- Long-term care insurance
- Diminished capacity and conservatorship
- Social Security and Supplemental Security Income disability
- Resident's rights in long term care facilities
- Discharge planning
- End of life and hospice care
- Medical futility

Students will develop core legal skills while conducting client and witness interviews, engaging in factual development, legal research and writing, problem solving, written and oral communication and drafting of legal documents. Students will deal with HIPAA privacy issues relating to the disclosure of individually identifiable medical information and will deal with ethical situations involving clients with diminished capacity, medical decision making, and conservatorship. Students should expect some litigation and courtroom experience, as well as opportunities for advocacy before administrative agencies.

In addition, as a component of the Clinic orientation and weekly case review class sessions, student attorneys will have the opportunity to interact with health care providers, non-profit agencies, and governmental units that are a part of the aging network and that deal with health care and the elderly, such as the Office of the Long Term Care Ombudsman, the Baptist Memory Care Center, and the Mid-South Coalition for Comfort Care and Bioethics. Finally, one-third of each student's grade will be based on that student's research, development and presentation of a community legal education program to a group of seniors concerning an elder health law issue of the student's choice.

Faculty: Donna S. Harkness, CELA, Professor of Clinical Law and Director, Elder Law Clinic, Elder Health Law Advocacy Clinic.

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

STUDENT TESTIMONIALS

Jenna McDonald (JD '14) - Child and Family Litigation Clinic - Spring 2014 Speaking about herself and fellow Memphis Law student, Paige Munn

"This case was the most demanding, yet rewarding, case we worked on this semester. We both remember the feelings of shock and outrage we felt after first reading the petition....We were completed overwhelmed with joy, excitement, and satisfaction when the paternal grandparents received custody of the children. The Magistrate ruled in our favor and granted nearly all the relief that we requested. We were able to see the case through, from beginning to end, and leave the case with feelings of achievement and comfort that the girls will no longer suffer at the hands of their own father. The case molded our entire clinical experience and provided us with a head start into our legal careers. We are certain that we will carry memories from this case as we move on, and we are optimistic that we helped provide a much brighter future for the girls."

Aurelia Patterson, 3L - Child and Family Litigation Clinic – Spring 2014 Speaking about herself and fellow Memphis Law student, Paige Munn

"Working in the legal clinic has presented us with unforgettable memories and expanded our knowledge of the law tremendously. As 2Ls, we were not only able to study the law of international child abduction, but also educate other attorneys, and even the Magistrate, of the law's direct applicability to the case at hand! It is especially rewarding to know that all our hard work and research will help guide the Magistrate in a direction that will allow him to protect the children from harm at the hands of their parents, which is truly what matters the most.

This case was easily the most fascinating case that we worked on this semester. One of the challenges of this case is something we discussed extensively during case review—culture. The individuals involved in this case were from Africa and thus used to a different culture than ours. Alongside the culture gap was the language barrier.

The legal issues in this case were hands down the most intriguing part of our experience in clinic. When we were drafting our trial brief, we really had to parse the Uniform Child Abduction Prevention Act, and federal and state law on female genital mutilation. Much to our surprise, these laws fit the facts of our case precisely. It was truly captivating to perform the fact/law analysis of this case and see the law play out for the exact reason that it was enacted. It was very rewarding to hear from both attorneys how well we did on the trial brief."

Eric Mogy (JD '12) - Attorney, Wagerman/Katzman Law Firm - Civil Litigation Clinic – Spring 2011

"Working in the Civil Litigation Clinic was one of the most rewarding experiences of my law school career. Participating as a student attorney gave me the practical real world experience that you just can not get inside a regular classroom. Whether it was meeting with actual clients, negotiating with opposing counsel, or trying a case in a real court of law, each aspect helped contribute to my readiness as a lawyer once I passed the bar. The clinic also taught me the nuts and bolts of organization, which is key no matter what type of law you practice. I can honestly say that being a student attorney in the Civil Litigation Clinic was instrumental to setting me on the right path as an attorney."

Seth Guess (JD '12) - Elder Law Clinic, Spring 2012

"Participating in the Elder Law Clinic was a highlight of my law school experience. Working directly with a client and solving real life legal problems was both challenging and rewarding. It was an excellent opportunity to put book learning into practice. For students wishing to acquire hands-on experience in a supervised setting, I thoroughly recommend taking a clinic course."

Chris Lewis (JD '12) - Elder Law Clinic, Fall 2011

"The legal clinics are a very valuable learning tool and greatly enrich the law school experience in many ways. Two of the most valuable aspects of the clinics are the level of involvement with clients' cases and the opportunity to directly interact with clients. In the legal clinics, you get to handle all aspects of the representation. This begins with the initial interview and does not end until the case is resolved. This gives you great hands-on experience that was unparalleled in my legal education. Getting to interact and be responsible for clients' cases was another of the many great benefits of participating in the legal clinics. Filling this role while in a controlled clinic setting is something that no other law school learning opportunity can provide. That is the opportunity to try to resolve all issues in a case and if you cannot you know that there is a leader in the field of law at your side to guide you through whatever matters you cannot resolve on your own. This allows for a deeper learning experience than any law book can provide."

Apply to Memphis Law

News & Events

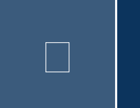
Alumni & Support

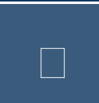
ABA Required Disclosures

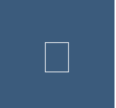
Full sitemap

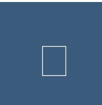
EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

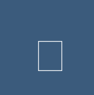
Follow UofM Online

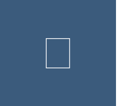












Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS SCHOOL OF LAW
SPRING 2016 EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM

OBJECTIVES, POLICIES, AND PROCEDURES

The University of Memphis Externship Program is designed to expose law students to legal practice in a wide range of contexts while providing a framework for understanding and managing the practical, ethical, and personal challenges that are an inherent part of the legal profession. Stepping outside of the traditional classroom, externs are presented with the opportunity to learn by doing and observing under the direction of a field placement supervisor. To maximize this hands-on learning experience, externs participate in a faculty-led seminar in which they reflect upon and assess the skills, relationships, issues, and mindsets that prevail in the practice setting.

While specific objectives will necessarily vary across the spectrum of field placements, the Externship Program aims to help each student extern achieve the following goals:

- To strive toward practice readiness through continued development of legal skills, including research and writing;
- To better understand the day-to-day work of a lawyer;
- To apply classroom learning to the world of legal practice;
- To develop the habits of a reflective practitioner who understands how to learn from experience;
- To identify, explore and address issues of legal ethics and professional responsibility;
- To evaluate and utilize various approaches to problem solving in the context of real-life legal work;
- To improve upon essential communication and relationship-building skills;
- To explore career interests and goals; and
- To build professional and personal networks.

Through participation in both the field placement and classroom seminar aspects of the Externship Program, it is anticipated that students will further hone their lawyering skills at both practical and theoretical levels, learning from experience, from synthesis, from critique, and from responsibility.

Policies and Procedures of the Externship Program

A. Student Eligibility

1. Prerequisites to Application and Enrollment

Students who have successfully completed their required first year of coursework and at least 28 credit hours toward graduation are eligible to enroll in the Externship Program. Additional prerequisites may be set upon request by specific field placement offices and/or at the discretion of the Director of Experiential Learning. In exceptional circumstances, the prerequisites may be waived with the approval of the Director of Experiential Learning in consultation with the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

2. Academic Standing

Students must be in good academic standing in the semester preceding their participation in the Externship Program.

In consultation with the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, the Director of Experiential Learning retains the discretion to base program admission on a student having compiled an academic record that exceeds the good standing requirement. A student falling below good academic standing (placed on academic probation) while participating in the Externship Program may continue participating barring extraordinary circumstances.

3. Limitations on Externship Credit and Enrollment

Students may enroll in the Externship Program subject to the following limitations:

a. In accordance with the Law School's Academic Regulations, not more than a total of twelve (12) credit hours may be utilized toward satisfying graduation requirements by satisfactorily completing the following courses: Any Externship, Law Review, Moot Court (including credit for participation on travel teams), and independent research.

b. For satisfying graduation requirements, a student is permitted a total of three (3) externships, two (2) clinic courses, or a combination of one (1) clinic and two (2) externship courses. A student may not repeat the same clinic or externship.

c. A student may not enroll in both a Clinic course and the Externship Program in the same semester or summer session.

d. Students may not take more than a total of sixteen (16) hours, including enrollment in the Externship Program, in the semester (or its equivalent in the summer) in which they are enrolled in the Externship Program.

e. For enrollment purposes, students who have already taken and received credit for the participation in the Externship Program will not receive priority for enrollment in the Externship Program for a second semester or summer session.

f. The Director of Experiential Learning, after consultation with the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, may grant waivers, on a case-by-case basis, to permit repetition of a placement in the Externship Program or enrollment in the Externship Program that may result in the student exceeding the ungraded credit limitation or the limitation on the number of externships in which the student may enroll.

B. Student Application Requirements

1. Pre-Application Processes

a. Prior to applying for enrollment in the Externship Program, students must thoroughly familiarize themselves with the Objectives and Goals of the Externship Program as well as the Program's Policies and Procedures.

b. Although not required, interested students should make every effort to attend the Externship Information Session that will be held in advance of registration each semester. Students should also be encouraged to meet with the Director of Experiential Learning to discuss any questions or concerns in advance of moving forward with applications for enrollment.

2. Application Process

Students must apply for an Externship Program placement by completing the Externship Program Application. It is anticipated that the application will be distributed to students via electronic means (e-mail, law school website, Simplicity, etc.) and made available in the Office of the Director of Experiential Learning. In addition to submitting the completed application, students may be asked to submit a cover letter, a current professional resume, a writing sample, and/or a current law school transcript.

3. Security Clearance

Many externship field placements (primarily judicial and government) require a security clearance, a process that may take several months. If a student seeks an externship field placement that requires security clearance, it is expected that the student will work with the Director of Experiential Learning to provide the field placement with all information necessary to secure that clearance.

C. Standards for Selection of Students for Externships

Offers for enrollment in the Externship Program will be made by and at the discretion of the Director of Experiential Learning. In making enrollment decisions, the following factors will be considered:

1. Compatibility

The Director of Experiential Learning will assess whether the placement a good fit for the student and whether the student has the legal, professional, interpersonal and intellectual skills for a productive externship experience in the particular placement. In making this determination, the Director may examine the student's law school transcript, though academic performance will not necessarily be conclusive. In addition, an interview with the student, input from faculty, consultation with the prospective field placement, and performance in other experiential learning settings may be considered.

2. Reason for Wanting to Participate in the Placement

The Director of Experiential Learning will consider whether the placement fits into the educational goals and career interests of the student.

3. Compliance with Requirements and Prerequisites

The Director of Experiential Learning will consider whether the student has complied with all placement and Externship Program requirements and prerequisites.

D. Requirements after Acceptance of an Externship Placement

1. Acceptance and Registration

Once a student accepts an offer to enroll in the Externship Program, that student will be formally enrolled by the Registrar's office. Once enrollment is complete, a student will not be permitted to drop the Externship course without petitioning for and receiving approval of the Director of Experiential Learning to withdraw from the course.

2. Withdrawal

If a student accepts an offer for enrollment in the Externship Program, he or she will not be able to withdraw the commitment except for compelling reasons. To obtain permission for withdrawal, the student must immediately, upon the knowledge of such compelling reasons, petition in writing to the Director of Experiential Learning. The petition must specify the compelling reasons for withdrawal. Failure to petition and receive approval may result in a grade of "Unsatisfactory" for the course and jeopardize the student's chances of being considered for future enrollment in the law school's Experiential Learning courses, including clinical programs and externships.

3. Compensation

Students may not accept compensation of any kind for externship work. Where it is the practice of a particular field placement to reimburse reasonable out-of-pocket expenses related to the placement, the extern may receive such reimbursement.

4. Fulfillment of Externship Placement Requirements

Subject to the Policies and Procedures of the Externship Program, externs must comply with all working hours requirements and conditions implemented by the field placement. Field placement will generally run from the first day of instruction through the last day of instruction of the academic semester or session. It is expected that the extern will be at the placement each week of the semester or summer session. Students must complete their externship in the semester or term they begin it. A student who fails to complete an externship or who receives a grade of "Unsatisfactory" may be barred from future enrollment in any of the law school's Experiential Learning courses, including clinical programs and externships.

5. Completion of Externship Seminar Requirements

Student externs will be required to attend and fulfill the requirements of a regularly convened, faculty-led classroom seminar designed to focus on and enhance the learning that the externs will be doing in their field placements.

Requirements for the classroom seminar, as well as for submission of Externship-related work product and time sheets, will be specified in the course syllabus for the Externship Program.

In general, it is anticipated that students will be expected to reflect on their field placement experiences through a series of written assignments, including a Final Self-Assessment and Reflection Memorandum. Written assignments may focus on the effective development of legal skills; confidentiality, ethics, and professional responsibility; expectations, conduct, and realities of externship work; learning from experience and reflection; workplace communication and feedback; workplace teams and leadership; community and social responsibility of lawyers; the legal system; developing lawyer skills; and job stress and job satisfaction.

6. Confidentiality

The extern is expected to hold in strictest confidence all communications received in the course of the externship placement that are not matters of public record, and to adhere fully to the standards of professional conduct set forth in the Code of Professional Responsibility of the American Bar Association, the Tennessee Rules of Professional Conduct, and any other applicable rules of professional ethics (e.g., codes of judicial conduct)

7. Conflicts of Interest

All externs must avoid conflicts of interest based on past or concurrent employment (or volunteer work) situations. Some externship field placements may prohibit an extern from engaging in concurrent employment or volunteer work. An extern who does plan to engage in concurrent employment or volunteer work during the externship semester must confer with the Director of Experiential Learning, the externship field placement supervisor, and the employment or volunteer work supervisor before the start of an concurrent externship/employment work arrangement. Externs with questions about a potential conflict should immediately consult the Director of Experiential Learning.

8. Unlawful Practice of Law

Within their placements, externs may have the opportunity for contact with clients or potential clients, the court, other attorneys, etc. Externs should be extremely cautious in their communications so that they are limited to and do not overstep the scope of work that they are authorized to perform. All communications should be prefaced by disclosing the student's extern status.

9. Professionalism

Externs are required to exhibit professional conduct at all times during their externships. Students will be appropriately attired as determined by the field placement supervisor. Students will attend all called meetings of the field placement supervisor and/or the faculty supervisor, unless excused by the appropriate party. Students will be familiar with the appropriate Rules of Procedure and other assigned materials.

In the sole judgment of the Director of Experiential Learning, any extern failing to achieve an acceptable level of professionalism may have the academic credit for his/her placement reduced or eliminated.

10. Removal from Externship Program

At the discretion of the Director of Experiential Learning, students may be removed from the Externship Program for unsatisfactory or untimely work, unethical conduct, violation of any agreements with the field placement supervisor or law school, breaches of confidence, inappropriate behavior or attire, violation of any rules of court, or at the request of the field placement supervisor.

Credit and Grading

A. Grading

1. Upon completion of the Externship semester, all externs will be assigned a grade of Excellent, Satisfactory, or Unsatisfactory.

2. The determination of grade assignment and credit allocation will be made by the Director of the Experiential Learning after receiving a student evaluation prepared by the field placement supervisor at semester's end. The assigned grade and allocation of credit will be based upon satisfactory and timely completion of the requisite externship hours and work assigned during the placement, satisfactory participation in the classroom seminar component of the Externship Program course (including consideration of the work product), the evaluation of the field placement supervisor, and the student's compliance with all course requirements.

3. At the discretion of the Director of Experiential Learning, any student enrolled in an externship placement who fails to comply with any requirements of the Externship Program (set forth herein or in the course materials), of the Student Honor Code, or appropriate regulations governing the profession, may be assigned a grade of "Unsatisfactory," awarded no credit and be barred from future enrollment in any of the law school's Experiential Learning courses, including clinical programs and externships.

Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

EXTERNSHIP STUDENT TESTIMONIALS

Zach Hoyt - Class of 2013

Spring 2012 Externship Program – Field Placement EEOC Hearings Unit. Summer 2012 Externship Program – Field Placement with U.S. Attorney's Office (W.D. TN)

"At the time I started my first externship, my idealistic view of the law that I had coming into school was on life support after three semesters of doctrinal classes focused on the technical interpretation and operation of the law. Getting out and working with real people and real problems in my externship reminded why I went to law school in the first place. Seeing how the law worked in practice also made the occasionally dry doctrinal subject much more interesting. Getting feedback from mentors was an invaluable aid in developing practical legal skills and gave me a chance to form relationships with future colleagues. Finally, the externship program helped me figure out what direction I wanted to focus my career on by exposing me to different areas of practice. I strongly encourage every student to take advantage of the externship program."

Jenna Dillier - Class of 2013

Summer 2012 Externship Program - Field Placement with U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge David S. Kennedy

"Participating in the Externship Program was a wonderful experience for me. I learned more than I could have ever hoped for. Not only was I able to see real legal issues in an authentic setting, but I gained a deeper understanding of the judicial decision-making process as well. It was a great feeling to be able to put my classroom knowledge to use outside the classroom. I now feel more comfortable about what to expect inside of a courtroom and believe this experience has bettered prepared me to become a practicing attorney.

Externing in the United States Bankruptcy Court was an enlightening experience which allowed me to learn more about the field of bankruptcy law. Without this experience I would not have been able to discover my interest in this area of the law. Judge Kennedy is an amazing judge, not to mention, a remarkable individual. Judge Kennedy freely shares his wisdom and offered a wonderful new perspective for me about the judicial decision-making process. I truly appreciated the time my supervisor devoted to teaching and mentoring. I highly recommend a judicial externship for students who want to learn more about the judicial decision-making process."

Deanna Windham

Administrative Law Judge, Equal Employment Opportunity Commision, Memphis District Office, Federal Sector Hearings Unit. Externship Field Placement Supervisor, Summer 2011 - Present

"Through this program, students provide valuable assistance to the administrative judges in performing their day-to-day tasks and duties, and in the process, help further the overall mission of the EEOC to stop and remedy unlawful workplace discrimination. This benefits not only the students and the EEOC but also provides a public service to the federal workforce in our district."

Current and former experiential learning students are encouraged to submit testimonials to Professor Daniel Schaffzin (dschffzn@memphis.edu).

EXPLORE LAMBUTH CAMPUS

Follow UofM Online

Print | Got a Question? Ask TOM | Copyright 2017 University of Memphis | Important Notice

Last Updated: 8/29/16 | University of Memphis | Memphis, TN 38152 | Phone: 901.678.2000

The University of Memphis does not discriminate against students, employees, or applicants for admission or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, age, status as a protected veteran, genetic information, or any other legally protected class with respect to all employment, programs and activities sponsored by the University of Memphis. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Michael Washington, Director for Institutional Equity. For more information see University of Memphis Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities which receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance..." 20 U.S.C. § 1681 - To Learn More, visit Title IX and Sexual Misconduct.

WHAT CAN HAPPEN WHEN YOU ARE FOUND TO BE A JUVENILE DELINQUENT IN TENNESSEE?

What is a Juvenile Delinquent Offense?

It is an act that would be a crime if you were an adult. You probably already know the immediate results of getting in trouble with the law as a juvenile. You can be taken into custody, you may have to go to court, and you can be found guilty and be adjudicated as delinquent.

What are the other long-term costs of committing a juvenile offense?

This pamphlet aims to give you a brief overview of the potential other results of committing offenses as a juvenile in Tennessee. For a more in depth discussion, please visit www.beforeyouplea.com/tn.

The Basics

If you're found to be guilty of committing an offense in juvenile court, you're adjudicated, not convicted. Only adults in Tennessee, and juveniles tried as adults, can be convicted of a crime.

You may be transferred to adult criminal court, tried as an adult and potentially convicted if you are 16 or older at the time of the alleged offense and the offense, if committed by an adult, would constitute: first degree murder, second degree murder, aggravated rape, rape of a child, aggravated robbery, especially aggravated robbery, kidnapping, especially aggravated kidnapping, and an attempt to commit any of the above crimes.

Access to your Juvenile Records

Generally, the public is not allowed access to your juvenile records. The public may access your records if you are 14 or older at the time you've committed the offense and the offense you've committed, if committed by an adult, would constitute: first degree murder, second degree murder, aggravated murder, aggravated rape, rape of a child, aggravated robbery, especially aggravated robbery, kidnapping, and especially aggravated kidnapping.

How Will Being Found a Juvenile Delinquent Affect My Future?

- Military personnel will be able to see all of your juvenile history. Juvenile convictions may bar you from enlisting, depending on the nature of the offense.
- Your school may be notified of your adjudication and you could be suspended or expelled for your behavior.
- Your juvenile adjudication could make it harder to get into college.
- If you're applying for financial aid, you'll have to fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), which asks if you have any drug convictions. Since adjudications are not convictions, you may answer "no".
- A juvenile adjudication could impair your ability to get a job. Employers differ on whether they ask about juvenile adjudications or just adult convictions. If a potential employer does a background check on you, your juvenile offense will likely come up, unless you've had it expunged. (For government jobs, there is no such thing as an expunged record!)
- A juvenile adjudication could prevent enrollment in Job Corps
- Public housing authorities have the right to evict your entire family for an offense you commit as a juvenile, even if the offense does not occur on the public housing property.
- Sex Offender Registry: You must register on the Sex Offender Registry if found guilty of an offense that, if committed by an adult would be: aggravated rape, rape, rape of a child (victim at least 4 years younger than offender), aggravated rape of a child, and criminal attempt to commit any of these offenses
    - Consequences of Registry: Ineligible for federally assisted housing AND enlistment in the military
- Methadone Offender Registry: You must register with the Meth Offender Registry if you are found guilty of an offense that, if committed by an adult, would be manufacture of methamphetamine, or initiation of methamphetamine manufacture.
- Immigration: Adjudications and convictions are treated differently by immigration laws. An adjudication can still have serious consequences. You may be deported, prohibited from applying for legal status, including getting your green card, lose your visa or lawful status, be barred from re-entry, detained in a secure facility, and lose eligibility for other immigration relief, including Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals

Can your records be expunged?

Having your records expunged means that you are having them erased. For the most part, it's as if your adjudication never happened. Although you may be able to have your court records expunged…

- Expungement of your court record does not apply to law enforcement records. Files, fingerprints, DNA samples and photographs will remain on law enforcement databases.
- The fact that you've previously had a record erased may be used to determine whether you are eligible for pre-trial diversion at a later date.

This pamphlet was prepared as a public service by Student Attorneys in the Child and Family Litigation Clinic at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law. We hope it is helpful to you.

(901) 678-5301

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW

VOLUME 47 | 2016–2017 | BOOKS 1–4

Authors and Readers,

Thank you for visiting the University of Memphis Law Review website. We strive to publish volumes of the highest quality. Our goal is to provide authors with a professional editing process and readers with useful and insightful legal scholarship. We see our role as integrally tied to the Law School's reputation. Memphis is an excellent law school, and we are proud to call it our own. Because of that, we want every author and reader to see the individualized commitment that we bring to the editing process.

Our published authors include professors, judges, and attorneys from throughout the country who write on a variety of novel legal topics. We do not limit publication to specific jurisdictions but rather seek to publish the best articles. We value articles that are clear, concise, and well-structured: these are the articles that further legal debate and are useful to the legal community.

Volume 47's Editorial Board hopes to build upon the Law Review's reputation for developing great relationships with their authors and producing excellent Volumes. From the moment an author accepts an offer for publication, the Law Review staff seeks to communicate effectively. Throughout the editing process, our Bluebooking staff will find and correct citations, allowing our Articles Editors to focus on a single article as a whole. In this way, the author receives integrated and effective feedback—rather than sporadic communication—from a member of the staff who knows the structure, theme, and thesis of the article by heart.

We are always open to direct submission of articles. If you would like to submit an article for publication, please email your résumé, cover letter, and article to our Articles Editor, Jordan Emily, at jmemily@memphis.edu. If you have questions about subscribing to the University of Memphis Law Review, please contact our Business Editor, Will Podesta, at wcpdesta@memphis.edu. Please also feel free to contact me at lwgruby@memphis.edu with any questions.

Respectfully,

Lyle Gruby
Editor-in-Chief
Volume 47 of the University of Memphis Law Review

THE FRAGILE FORTRESS: JUDICIAL INDEPENDENCE IN THE 21ST CENTURY

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW SYMPOSIUM

April 7, 2017

AGENDA*

Time	Session	Location
8:00	Breakfast/Registration	Atrium
9:00	Opening/Welcome Remarks Peter V. Letsou, Dean of the Law School Andrew McClurg, Faculty Advisor to Law Review Pablo J. Davis, Symposium Editor	Wade Auditorium
9:15	Judicial Independence: An Overview from Impeachment to Court-Packing Hon. R. David Proctor, U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Alabama	Wade Auditorium
9:45	Constraints & Boundaries I: Sentencing, Intelligence Hon. Sterling Johnson, Jr., U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York: Restrictions on Judicial Sentencing Discretion: Feeney Amendment Revisited Prof. Patrick Walsh, Federal Law Enforcement Training Center: Use of Secretly-Acquired Intelligence Evidence in Federal Criminal Proceedings	Wade Auditorium
10:55	Constraints & Boundaries II: Subpoenas, Campaigns Prof. and Dean Emeritus John DiPippa, UALR Bowen School of Law: Can a Legislative Committee Subpoena a Sitting State Judge? Prof. Eric Kasper, University of Wisconsin–Eau Claire: When Judges Campaign: Free Speech and Restrictions on Fundraising	Wade Auditorium
11:55	Lunch	Student Lounge
12:45	Judicial Independence & Rule of Law—A Hemispheric Perspective Hon. Zarela Villanueva, Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Costa Rica	Wade Auditorium
1:30	The Impact of Threats of Violence on Judges' Independence Hon. Timothy J. Corrigan, U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida	Wade Auditorium
2:10	Judicial Independence—Within & Between Chambers Prof. Justin Walker, University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law: Should Judges Be Forced to Disclose Their Chambers Papers upon Retirement? Hon. Bernice B. Donald, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit The Intrajudicial Factor in Judicial Independence: Reflections on Collegiality & Dissent	Wade Auditorium
3:10	Political Criticism of Judges: Real Threat to Judicial Independence? Hon. Michael B. Mukasey, Former US Attorney General; Former Chief Judge, U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York:	Wade Auditorium
3:40	Judicial Independence: Theory & Practice, Questions & Discussion An open panel discussion involving all the speakers, with audience questions/comment	Wade Auditorium
4:55	The Fragile Fortress: Closing Remarks Pablo J. Davis, Symposium Editotr	Wade Auditorium

This agenda is subject to slight modifications between now and the date of the Symposium.*

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS.
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Law Review Annual Symposium

Friday, March 18, 2016

THE LEGAL IMPLICATIONS OF RESTORING A CITY

The University of Memphis, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University. It is committed to education of a non-racially identifiable student body.
UOM376-FY1516/2C50. IMEC.

Law Review Annual Symposium

THE LEGAL IMPLICATIONS OF RESTORING A CITY

The University of Memphis Law Review will take a close look at the legal solutions to the growing problem of vacant, abandoned, and blighted properties in major US cities including a historical overview of the problem, the implications on the surrounding community and novel legal solutions.

Speakers include attorneys from UT Austin School of Law, Notre Dame Law School, Southern University Law Center, and the ABA Forum on Affordable Housing and Community Development. Five and one quarter (5.25) hours of CLE credit have been approved.

For more information contact
Kelly Peevyhouse
kmsters1@memphis.edu
571-239-4643

8:00-9:00AM — Sign-in and Breakfast
Wade Auditorium Lobby

9:00-9:15AM — Welcome Address and Opening Remarks
Greg Wagner, Editor in Chief
University of Memphis Law Review

Danny Schaffzin, Assist. Prof. of Law and Director of Experiential Learning
University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humpreys
School of Law

9:15-10:00AM — Revitalizing Urban Cities: Linking the Past to the Present
A. Mechele Dickerson, Arthur L. Moller
Chair in Bankruptcy Law and Practice
University of Texas at Austin School of Law

10:00-10:35AM — The New Debtor City
Christopher K. Odinet,
Assistant Professor of Law
Southern University Law Center

10:35-10:45AM — Break

10:45-11:30AM — Inclusive Communities: Urban Revitalization, Geographic Desegregation and Disparate Impact Under the Fair Housing Act
J. William Callison, Partner
Faegre Baker Daniels LLP,
Denver, Colorado

11:30-11:45AM — Brief Address
Jim Strickland, Mayor, City of Memphis

11:45AM-12:45PM — Lunch Break
Lunch provided for paying registrants

Brief Address
Peter V. Letsou, Dean
The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

12:45- 1:30PM — Affirmatively Furthering Neighborhood Choice
James J. Kelly Jr., Clinical Professor of Law
Notre Dame Law School

1:30-2:15PM — Land Banking in Tennessee: A Promising Solution for Positive Growth
Sohil Shah, Associate
Polsinelli PC

2:15-2:25PM — Break

2:25-3:10PM — Are We Holding Ourselves Back? Ways that Land Use and Building Regulations Can Encourage Abandonment or Stimulate Reinvestment
Steve Barlow, Partner at Brewer & Barlow;
Adjunct Professor, Memphis Law

Tommy Pacello, President, Medical District
Collaborative

Josh Whitehead, Planning Director,
Memphis & Shelby County Office of Planning & Development; Adjunct
Professor, Memphis Law

3:10-3:55PM — Neighborhood Blight as a Collaborative Policy Movement
Kermit Lind, Clinical Professor Emeritus,
Cleveland-Marshall School of Law

Joe Schilling, Senior Research Associate,
Urban Institute

3:55-4:05PM — Closing Remarks
Kelly Peevyhouse, Symposium Editor
University of Memphis Law Review

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW ANNUAL SYMPOSIUM

IN RE VALOR: POLICY AND ACTION IN VETERANS LEGAL AID

The University of Memphis Law Review will take a close look at legal solutions to issues in veterans legal aid from national and local perspectives. Speakers include attorneys from Harvard Law School, Yale Law School, William & Mary Law School, University of Missouri School of Law, John Marshall Law School, NOVA Southeastern University Law Center, Shelby County General Sessions Court and Memphis Area Legal Services. Four and one third (4.33) hours of CLE credit have been approved.

Breakfast provided by Commercial Bank & Trust Company

For more information contact Clint Crosier at ccrosier@memphis.edu or (865) 332-8429.

Symposium Agenda:

8:00 a.m. - 9:00 a.m.
Sign-in and Breakfast
Wade Auditorium Lobby

9:00 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.
Opening Remarks

Dean Peter V. Letsou, The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Christopher Honeycutt, Maj. USAF (ret), The University of Memphis Veterans Resource Center

9:15 a.m. - 9:55 a.m.
Bridging the Legal Services Gap & Recognizing the Impact Legal Assistance has on Transition, Reintegration, And Ultimately Stabilization

Jayme Cassidy, Staff Attorney/Adjunct Professor, Veterans Law Clinic, NOVA Southeastern University Law Center

9:55 a.m. - 10:40 a.m.
Perspective on the Veterans Clinic Model at Law Schools: Lessons Learned by an Instructor and Student

Angela Drake, Veterans Clinic Instructor and Supervising Attorney, University of Missouri Law School

10:40a.m.- 10:50 a.m.
Break

10:50 a.m. - 11:35 a.m.
Post 9/11 Veterans: As Colleagues and Clients

Patricia Roberts, Clinical Professor of Law and Director, Clinical Programs, and Director, Lewis B. Puller, Jr. Veterans Benefits Clinic, William & Mary Law School 11:35 a.m. - 12:35 p.m.

Lunch

Gordon Ball Fourth Floor Scenic Reading Room

12:40 p.m. – 1:20 p.m.
The Credibility Trap: Some Notes on VA Evidentiary Law and Procedure

Daniel Nagin, Clinical Professor of Law, Faculty Director, WilmerHale Legal Services Center & Veterans Legal Clinic, Harvard Law School

1:20 p.m. – 2:00 p.m.
Emerging Issues in Veterans Law

Michael Wishnie, Deputy Dean for Experiential Education; William O. Douglas Clinical Professor of Law; Supervising attorney and director, Jerome N. Frank Legal Services Organization, Yale Law School.

2:00 p.m. – 2:10 p.m.
Break

2:10 p.m. – 3:10 p.m.
Panel Discussion

Moderated by Albert C. Harvey, Gen. USMCR (ret.), Shareholder, Lewis Thomason

Panelists:

The Honorable Bill Anderson, Shelby County General Sessions Court, Division 7

Linda Warren Seely, Director of Pro Bono Projects and Campaign for Equal Justice, Memphis Area Legal Services

Jake Dickerson, Attorney, Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC.

Edward Farmer, Staff Attorney, Veterans Legal Support Center and Clinic, The John Marshall Law School

Ellen Donati Flechas, Donati Law

3:10 p.m. - 3:20 p.m.
Closing Remarks

Clint Crosier, Symposium Editor, The University of Memphis Law Review

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS
LAW REVIEW
ANNUAL SYMPOSIUM

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 2014

SYMPOSIUM EDITION

A Symposium Edition of the University of Memphis Law Review will be dedicated to Juvenile Court Transition and Reform in conjunction with this event. If you would like to subscribe to the University of Memphis Law Review or receive the Symposium Edition, please contact the Law Review Business Editor at lawreview_businesseditor@memphis.edu.

CLE CREDIT

5 hours of CLE credit have been applied for. To earn full credit for attendance, participants must complete a CLE form at the event in order to receive CLE credit.

Juvenile Courts in Transition:

Where We Have Been and Where We are Going

QUESTIONS?

Contact Sandy Newcombe
University of Memphis Law Review
Symposium Editor
snewcomb@memphis.edu
901-552-6032

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Friday, February 28, 2014
Wade Auditorium
The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front. St., Memphis, TN 38103

AGENDA

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW ANNUAL SYMPOSIUM

Juvenile Courts in Transition: Where We Have Been and Where We are Going

8:00 a.m. - 9:00 a.m.
Sign-in and Breakfast
Historic Lobby

9:00 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.
Opening Remarks
Dean Peter Letsou, The University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

9:15 a.m. – 9:45 a.m.
Protecting the Rights of Juveniles Through Enforcement of Section 14141
Winsome Gayle, Special Litigation Counsel with the Special Litigation Section of the U.S. Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division

9:45 a.m.- 10:15 a.m.
Success in Shelby County: A Roadmap to Systematic Juvenile Reform
Sandra Simkins, Clinical Director at Rutgers University and DOJ Juvenile Court Monitor for JCMSC

10:15 a.m. – 10:45 p.m.
Independent, Ethical, and Zealous Advocacy for All Children of Memphis and Shelby County
Stephen C. Bush, Shelby County Public Defender

10:45 a.m. – 11:00 a.m.
Break

11:00 a.m. – 11:30 a.m.
A New Juvenile Court: Successes and Challenges in the Wake of DOJ Intervention
Tom Coupe', Supervising Attorney and Coordinator for Judge's Action Center at the Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County

11:30 p.m.- 12:00 p.m.
The "Other" Missouri Model: Systemic Juvenile Injustice in the Show Me State
Mae Quinn, Director; Juvenile Law and Justice Clinic, Washington School of Law

12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m.
Lunch
Fourth Floor Gordon Ball Scenic Reading Room
(lunch provided for ticket holders)

1:00 p.m. – 1:30 p.m.
Bringing Facts into Fiction: The First "Data-Based" Accountability Analysis of the Differences Between Presumptively Open, Discretionarily Open, and Closed Child Dependency Court Systems
William Wesley Patton, UCLA David Geffen School of Medicine, Department of Psychiatry, Lecturer; Professor and J. Alan Cook and Mary Schalling Cook Children's Law Scholar, Whittier Law School

1:30 p.m. – 2:00 p.m.
An IEP for the Juvenile Justice System: Incorporating Special Education Law throughout the Delinquency Process
Lisa M. Geis, Clinical Instructor, Juvenile & Special Education Law Clinic, University of the District of Columbia - David A. Clarke School of Law

2:00 p.m. – 2:10 p.m.
Break

2:10 p.m. – 2:40 p.m.
Blended Sentencing in Tennessee Courts
Arthur Horne, III, Esquire, Horne & Wells, PLLC

2:40 p.m. – 3:40 p.m.
The Evolving Role of Attorneys in Juvenile Court
Moderator: Magistrate Dan Michael, Chief Magistrate with the Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County

Panelists: Sandra Simkins, Mae Quinn, Tom Coupe', and Julian Adler, Director of the Red Hook Community Justice Center in Brooklyn, NY.

3:40 p.m. – 4:00 p.m.
Closing Remarks
Magistrate Dan Michael, Chief Magistrate with the Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS. | Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

Symposium Edition

A Symposium Edition of the University of Memphis Law Review will be dedicated to Human Trafficking in conjunction with this event. If you would like to subscribe to the University of Memphis Law Review or receive the Symposium Edition, please contact the Law Review Business Editor at lawreview_businesseditor@memphis.edu.

CLE Credit

Six hours of CLE credit and 2.25 hours of Dual Ethics Credit have been applied for. To earn full credit for attendance, participants must complete a CLE form at the event.

QUESTIONS?

Contact Jessica Bradley
University of Memphis Law Review
Symposium Editor
jbrdley1@memphis.edu
(256) 655-7387

THE UNIVERSITY OF
MEMPHIS
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

The University of Memphis, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University.
It is committed to education of a non-racially identifiable student body. UOM #########/#####. Name of Printer.

2013 Law Review Symposium

Breaking the Silence:

Legal Voices in the Fight Against Human Trafficking

March 22

SYMPOSIUM AGENDA

Friday, March 22, 2013

Wade Auditorium
The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front. St., Memphis, TN 38103

8:00 a.m. - 9:00 a.m.
Sign-in and Breakfast
Wade Auditorium Lobby

9:00 a.m. - 9:10 a.m.
Opening Remarks
Dean William Kratzke, The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

9:10 a.m. - 9:55 a.m.
Abolishing Online Sex Trafficking: Imposing Criminal Culpability on Advertisers Facilitating the Sexual Exploitation of Minors
Ryan Dalton, Director of Anti-Trafficking Operations, Operation Broken Silence

9:55 a.m. - 10:40 a.m.
Game Plan to Fight Human Trafficking: Lessons From Super Bowl XLVI
Abigail Kuzma, Director & Chief Counsel of Consumer Protection, Indiana Attorney General's Office; Indiana Protection of Abused and Trafficked Humans Task Force; International Fellow in Human Trafficking, National Attorneys General Training and Research Institute

10:40a.m.- 10:50 a.m.
Break

10:50 a.m. - 11:35 a.m.
Seeking Justice for Victims of Human Trafficking Through Civil Litigation
Naomi Jiyoung Bang, Clinical Professor, Asylum and Human Trafficking Clinic, South Texas College of Law; Senior Attorney, FosterQuan Immigration Firm

11:35 a.m. - 12:45 p.m.
Lunch
Student Lounge

12:45 p.m. – 3:00 p.m.
Special Presentation and Panel Discussion
Domestic Minor Sex Trafficking and Legislation Related to Appropriate Victim Response Moderated by Samantha Vardaman, Senior Director of Shared Hope International

Panelists:
Shamere McKenzie, Policy Assistant, Shared Hope International; Trafficking Survivor
Amy Weirich, Shelby County District Attorney General
Margie Quin, Assistant Special Agent in Charge, Tennessee Bureau of Investigation
Lt. Wilton Cleveland, Memphis Police Department Sex Crimes Division
Rachel Sumner, Survivor Advocate, Operation Broken Silence
Jonathan Skrmetti, Assistant United States Attorney, Civil Rights Unit, Western District of Tennessee US Attorney's Office; Adjunct Professor of Law, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

3:00 p.m. – 3:15 p.m.
Catered Break
Wade Auditorium Lobby

3:15 p.m. – 4:00 p.m.
Analysis of the Federal Sex Trafficking Statute
Steve Parker, Chief Civil Rights Unit, Western District of Tennessee US Attorney's Office
Jonathan Skrmetti, Assistant United States Attorney, Civil Rights Unit, Western District of Tennessee US Attorney's Office; Adjunct Professor of Law, University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

4:00 p.m. – 4:45 p.m.
Transportation and Human Trafficking
Alicia Wilson, Attorney-Advisor, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Transportation

4:45 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Closing Remarks
Andrew Solarski, The University of Memphis Public Action Law Society Alternative Spring Break Coordinator
Jessica Bradley, The University of Memphis Law Review Symposium Editor

Cancellation/Refund Policy
Prepaid registrations cancelled by March 21, 2012 will be fully refunded. Cancellations made after that date will not be refunded.

Symposium Edition
A Symposium Edition of the University of Memphis Law Review will be dedicated to Cultural Competency and the Death Penalty in conjunction with this event. If you would like to subscribe to the University of Memphis Law Review or receive the Symposium Edition, please contact the Law Review Business Editor at lawreview_businesseditor@memphis.edu.

CLE Credit
Program attendees will be eligible for 6.25 hours of general CLE credit. To earn this credit, attendees must complete a CLE form at the event.

Registration
Visit www.memphis.edu/law/currentstudents/lawreview/symposium.php to register.

Questions?
Contact Isaac Kimes
University of Memphis Law Review
Symposium Editor
iukimes@memphis.edu
(901) 300-6417

The University of Memphis, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action University. It is committed to education of a non-racially identifiable student body. UOM294-FY1112/1M. directFX Solutions.

The University of Memphis Law Review
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 North Front Street
Memphis, TN 38103

NON-PROFIT ORG
U.S. POSTAGE PAID
MEMPHIS, TN
PERMIT NO. 207

THE UNIVERSITY OF
MEMPHIS
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

2012 Law Review Symposium

Cultural Competency and the Death Penalty

March 29 & 30

Thursday, March 29

5:30 p.m. – 7:00 p.m. Symposium Reception (invitation only)
Flight Restaurant Loft Space, 97 Monroe Ave., Memphis, TN 38103

The Symposium Reception will thank the authors and panelists for their participation. Heavy hors d'oeuvres, wine, and beer will be served. There will be a short performance by a Memphis musician.

8:00 p.m. – 10:00 p.m. Symposium Party (open to the public)
The Brass Door, 152 Madison Ave., Memphis, TN 38103

The Brass Door is an Irish pub. The party will take place in the restaurant's lower level, The Cavern.

Friday, March 30

Wade Auditorium, The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law
1 N. Front. St., Memphis, TN 38103

8:00 a.m. – 9:00 a.m. Sign-in and Breakfast
Historic Lobby of the University of Memphis
Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

9:00 a.m. – 9:15 a.m. Opening Remarks
Dean Kevin H. Smith,
The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law

W.J. Michael Cody,
Burch, Porter & Johnson, PLLC, former Attorney General of Tennessee, and former United States Attorney for the Western District of Tennessee

9:15 a.m. – 9:55 a.m. Capital Punishment, Cultural Competency, and Litigating Intellectual Disability
Jeffrey Usman, Assistant Professor of Law,
Belmont Law School, Nashville, Tennessee

10:00 a.m. – 10:40 a.m. Challenges and Opportunities in Bringing the Lessons of Cultural Competence to Bear on Capital Jury Selection
Bidish J. Sarma, Deputy Director of the Capital Appeals Project in New Orleans, Louisiana

10:40 a.m. – 10:50 a.m. Break

10:50 a.m. – 11:30 a.m. Capital Prejudice
J. Richard Broughton, Assistant Professor of Law, University of Detroit Mercy School of Law, former Capital Case Unit lawyer at the United States Department of Justice, Washington, D.C., and former Assistant Attorney General of Texas for Capital Litigation

11:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. Lunch
Student Lounge

12:30 p.m. – 1:10 p.m. Developing the Life Histories of Foreign National Capital Clients
Danalynn Recer, Executive Director of Gulf Region Advocacy Center, Houston, Texas

1:15 p.m. – 2:05 p.m. Shelby County Panel Discussion
Moderator: Judge John T. Fowlkes, Shelby County Criminal Court

Panelists: Judge James C. Beasley, Shelby County Criminal Court; Shelby County District Attorney General Amy P. Weirich; and Gerald Skahan, Shelby County Public Defender Capital Defense Coordinator

2:05 p.m. – 2:15 p.m. Break

2:15 p.m. – 2:55 p.m. Torture and Culture in Guantanamo's Capital Cases
Scharlette Holdman, Executive Director of the Center for Capital Assistance, New Orleans, Louisiana

Samantha Kennedy, attorney licensed in Louisiana

3:00 p.m. – 3:40 p.m. Breaking the Frame: Responding to Gang Stereotypes in Capital Cases
Bradley MacLean, Tennessee Post-Conviction Defender and Vanderbilt Law School adjunct professor

John Hagedorn, Professor of Criminology, Law, and Justice, University of Illinois-Chicago

3:40 p.m. – 3:50 p.m. Break

3:50 p.m. – 4:50 p.m. Satanic Panic and Defending the "West Memphis Three"
Judge Dan Stidham, defense attorney for Jessie Misskelley, current Greene County District Court Judge (Arkansas)

Jason Baldwin of the West Memphis Three

4:50 p.m. – 5:00 p.m. Closing Remarks

J. Richard Broughton

Jason Baldwin

Amy P. Weirich

Danalynn Recer

Judge John T. Fowlkes

About the Symposium

The University of Memphis Law Review invites you to attend its annual Symposium that will be held at the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law on Friday, March 30, 2012 from 9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m. This Symposium will explore "Cultural Competency and the Death Penalty."

In the sentencing phase of a death penalty trial, the life story of the defendant is presented to a jury. Some stories are easier to tell than others because they have familiar themes – a broken home, deficient education or drug use. Others can be more complex, necessitating a new method of representation: cultural competency.

This special symposium will analyze well-known stories such as the West Memphis Three and Guantanamo. Speakers will also address timely cases involving foreign nationals, intellectual disability and more.

Open to the public.
Visit www.memphis.edu/lawreview/symposium.php to register.

Registration:
$125 for those seeking CLE credit
$40 for attendees not seeking CLE credit
Free for students, professors, government employees, and university staff.

Program attendees will be eligible for 6.25 hours of general CLE credit. Breakfast, lunch and refreshments for the duration will be provided. Parking vouchers will be distributed at the event for the Brinkley Parking garage, located directly across from the law school.

For more information contact
Isaac Kimes at iukimes@memphis.edu or (901) 300-6417.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS LAW REVIEW

VOLUME 46 | SPRING 2016 | NUMBER 3

Copyright © 2016 The University of Memphis Law Review

CONTENTS

ARTICLES

INVISIBLE INEQUALITY: THE TWO AMERICAS OF MILITARY SACRIFICE
Douglas L. Kriner
Francis X. Shen 545

LOGIC FROM THE SUPREME COURT THAT MAY RECOGNIZE POSITIVE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS
Phillip M. Kannan 637

LEARNING OUTCOMES IN A FLIPPED CLASSROOM: A COMPARISON OF CIVIL PROCEDURE II TEST SCORES BETWEEN STUDENTS IN A TRADITIONAL CLASS AND A FLIPPED CLASS
Katharine T. Schaffzin 661

NOTES

DRONING ON AND ON: A TORT APPROACH TO REGULATING HOBBYIST DRONES
Jordan M. Cash 695

PIRATE BATTLES IN OUTER SPACE: PREVENTING PATENT INFRINGEMENT ON THE 8TH SEA
William C. Pannell 733

COMMENT

SPIRITUAL-TREATMENT EXEMPTIONS TO CHILD NEGLECT STATUTES—STATE V. CRANK: VAGUENESS AND ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE CHALLENGES TO SELECTIVE PROSECUTION OF FAITH-HEALING PARENTS
Pablo J. Davis 761

Invisible Inequality: The Two Americas of Military Sacrifice

DOUGLAS L. KRINER* & FRANCIS X. SHEN

I. INTRODUCTION 546
II. THE INVISIBLE INEQUALITY OF MILITARY SACRIFICE............548
A. Scholarship on Veterans Affairs.......................................549
B. What Does the American Public Know About Inequalities in Military Sacrifice?...................................554
III. THE TWO AMERICAS OF MILITARY SACRIFICE......................556
A. Poorer Areas of the Country Bear Greater War Sacrifice..557
B. The Causes of the Casualty Gap......................................564
IV. INEQUALITY AND THE VETERAN'S BRAIN 569
A. The Wounds of War..569
B. Social Determinants of Veterans' Brain Health..............574
V. THE POLITICAL COSTS OF CASUALTY INEQUALITY 578
A. Is Inequality in Military Sacrifice Different From Other Forms of Inequality?...579
B. How Americans React to Information About Inequality...580
C. The Invisible Politics of Non-Fatal Casualties................583
D. Non-fatal Casualties and Public Support for the War in Afghanistan..587

* Associate Professor, Boston University Department of Political Science.

 McKnight Land-Grant Professor & Associate Professor of Law, University of Minnesota; Director, Shen Neurolaw Lab; Executive Director of Education and Outreach, MacArthur Foundation Research Network on Law and Neuroscience.

 We thank Ryan Pesch and Morgan Carlson for excellent research assistance, and we thank members of the University of Chicago Public Law Workshop for helpful feedback. Support for this research was provided by Boston University and the University of Minnesota Law School. Shen notes that his work is Ad Maiorem Dei Gloriam.

VI. DISCUSSION 590
 A. Why Don't We Want To Talk About the Inequality of Military Service? 591
 B. Should We Care About Inequality in Military Sacrifice? 596
 C. Are Veterans Already Receiving the Care They Need? 600
 D. Are Courts Likely to Intervene? 609
 E. Fostering a National Debate on Inequality in Sacrifice ..611
VII. CONCLUSION 612

Abstract: Through a series of empirical investigations—including analysis of over 500,000 American combat casualties from World War II through Iraq and Afghanistan—we show in this Article that there is growing socioeconomic inequality in military sacrifice and that the relative invisibility of this inequality has major political ramifications. Today, unlike in World War II, the Americans who die or are wounded in war are disproportionately coming from poorer parts of the country. We argue that these Two Americas of military sacrifice constitute invisible inequality because the issue is routinely overlooked by scholars, policymakers, and the public. We then use seven original surveys of American public opinion to uncover a variety of social, legal, and political consequences of this inequality. With Congress unlikely to act, and courts unwilling to intervene, we argue that the best path forward is to generate a renewed public debate over inequality in military sacrifice. To this end, we show empirically that such a conversation could transform public opinion. Ignoring inequality in military sacrifice is both morally comforting and politically beneficial. But it is at odds with empirical reality, and, most importantly, with our American ideals of shared sacrifice.

I. INTRODUCTION

The central issues of the 2016 presidential campaign are coming into focus: addressing economic inequality at home, and defining America's military strategy abroad amidst new terrorist threats. These issues will be debated thousands of times.

Yet these many debates will overlook a connection between the two: America's economic downturn means that increasingly it is not the governing class, but the working class that disproportionately sends soldiers to fight and bears the burden of physical and mental war wounds.

For members of both parties it is politically convenient to overlook these Two Americas of military sacrifice. But in this Article, we show that ignoring this invisible inequality has not made it go away.

Through a series of empirical investigations—including analysis of over 500,000 American combat casualties from World War II through Afghanistan, combined with seven unique surveys of American public opinion—we reveal that, even more than previous wars, Iraq and Afghanistan have been working class wars. This inequality is normatively troubling, but it also has significant social and political consequences. Inequality in pre-service opportunities can translate into inequality in post-service health outcomes. For example, soldiers returning home to fewer resources may be at greater risk of developing mental disorders. We also show how non-fatal casualties remain largely invisible in the political sphere. This invisibility has artificially inflated public support for wars and for the leaders who wage them.

The emergence of these Two Americas and its consequences are cause for concern. Yet equally problematic is the failure of legislatures and courts to even acknowledge, let alone address, these disparities. With neither legislatures nor courts likely to act without prompting, we argue that the most viable response is a renewed public debate over inequality in military sacrifice. We present experimental data suggesting that such a conversation could have real policy consequences.

The Article proceeds in five parts. We begin in Part II with a discussion of the legal literature on veterans' affairs, finding that it typically makes little mention of inequality in sacrifice. We also report original survey data in which we find that the American public is not aware of the distribution of war sacrifice.

The omissions by scholars, and the views of the American public, would both be warranted if no inequality exists. Thus, we turn in Part III to the empirical question: who is dying, and who is returning wounded, in America's wars? The answer is stark: more than in any conflict since World War II, today's human costs are being borne by America's working class.

In Part IV, we examine the social and political consequences of this invisible inequality. Focusing on mental health, we discuss how soldiers returning home to weaker social support structures are at greater risk of developing mental disorders. Then, we turn to the political sphere in Part V. We show with new data that Americans view inequality in military sacrifice differently from other forms of inequality, and we also show that if knowledge of this inequality is communicated, it reduces public support for war. Yet, we also find that wounded in action casualties are less visible and politically salient than fatalities. Thus, even when American soldiers return home wounded in large numbers, it is not likely to slow American politicians from sending new recruits into the battle zone again.

In light of these many empirical findings uncovered in the Article, we conclude in Part VI with a discussion of why this inequality remains invisible and what to do about it. We call for a national conversation on the human costs of war. The invisible inequality of military sacrifice should be invisible no more.

II. THE INVISIBLE INEQUALITY OF MILITARY SACRIFICE

American society is increasingly concerned with economic inequality as seen in the Occupy movement of 2011 and the rhetoric and policy proposals of the 2016 presidential candidates. Legal scholarship is filled both with articles concerning inequality and redistribution[1] and with commentaries on the need to aid military veterans.[2]

Given this attention to inequality on the one hand, and military veterans on the other, one would think that inequality in military sacrifice is a well-known and researched fact—that is not the case. As we will show in this Part, scholars do not routinely ad-

---

1. Gillian Lester, Can Joe the Plumber Support Redistribution? Law, Social Preferences, and Sustainable Policy Design, 64 TAX L. REV. 313, 315 (2011) ("[A] great deal of legal scholarship concerns itself with questions of inequality and redistribution . . . .").

2. See, e.g., Benjamin Pomerance, Fighting on Too Many Fronts: Concerns Facing Elderly Veterans in Navigating the United States Department of Veterans Affairs Benefits System, 37 HAMLINE L. REV. 19, 22 (2014); Thomas J. Reed, Parallel Lines Never Meet: Why the Military Disability Retirement and Veterans Affairs Department Claim Adjudication Systems Are a Failure, 19 WIDENER L.J. 57, 59–60 (2009); Robert R. Gagan, Thank Veterans; Help Veterans, 88 WIS. LAW., Feb. 2015, at 7; Tara Shockley, Veterans Legal Initiative: Showing Appreciation for Service Through Legal Assistance, 50 HOUS. LAW., May/June 2013, at 16.

dress the issue (Section A), and nearly half of all Americans are not even aware that such inequalities exist (Section B).

A. Scholarship on Veterans Affairs

There is a robust legal literature on veterans' affairs.[3] In 1989, the Department of Veterans Affairs ("VA") was created as a cabinet-level position.[4] At about that same time, VA administrative decisions became subject to judicial review in the United States Court of Veterans Appeals ("CVA") through enactment of the Veterans' Judicial Review Act in 1988.[5] This Act, as well as the Veterans Claims Assistance Act passed in 2000 ("VCAA"), aimed to improve the process for administering veterans claims.[6] Litigation and commentary on the VCAA is now extensive.[7]

---

3. Notably, in 2009 the Veterans Law Review was first published by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. 1 VETERANS L. REV. (2009) http://www.bva.va.gov/VLR.asp. Excellent work such as THE ATTORNEY'S GUIDE TO DEFENDING VETERANS IN CRIMINAL COURT 199 (Brockton D. Hunter & Ryan C. Else eds., 2014), has highlighted a range of legal issues specific to veterans.

4. Department of Veterans Affairs Act, Pub. L. No. 100-527, § 2, 102 Stat. 2635 (1988).

5. Veterans' Judicial Review Act, Pub. L. No. 100-687, 102 Stat. 4105 (1988).

6. 38 U.S.C. §§ 5100, 5102–5103A, 5106–5107, 5126 (2013); Terrence T. Griffin & Thomas D. Jones, The Veterans Claims Assistance Act of 2000: Ten Years Later, 3 VETERANS L. REV. 284, 284 (2011).

7. Veterans' Judicial Review Act, Pub. L. No. 100-687. For scholarship on this topic, see, e.g., Michael P. Allen, Due Process and the American Veteran: What the Constitution Can Tell Us About the Veterans' Benefits System, 80 U. CIN. L. REV. 501 (2011); Laurence R. Helfer, The Politics of Judicial Structure: Creating the United States Court of Veterans Appeals, 25 CONN. L. REV. 155 (1992); James T. O'Reilly, Burying Caesar: Replacement of the Veterans Appeals Process is Needed to Provide Fairness to Claimants, 53 ADMIN. L. REV. 223 (2001); Jeffrey Parker, Two Perspectives on Legal Authority Within The Department of Veterans Affairs Adjudication, 1 VETERANS L. REV. 208 (2009); James D. Ridgway, The Veterans' Judicial Review Act Twenty Years Later: Confronting the New Complexities of the Veterans Benefits System, 66 N.Y.U. ANN. SURV. AM. L. 251, 252 (2010) ("[T]he VA adjudication system today is very different from the one that existed prior to the VJRA, but the adjudication system has not necessarily improved."); Rory E. Riley, Simplify, Simplify, Simplify-an Analysis of Two Decades of Judicial Review in the Veterans' Benefits Adjudication System, 113 W. VA. L. REV. 67 (2010).

There has been much written on the Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims ("CAVC").[8] Scholars have also examined the emergence and efficacy of specialized veterans' treatment courts,[9] as well as training for family court judges on how to work with those returning from combat.[10]

Both in and beyond law reviews, extensive scholarly attention has been given to the physical and mental health of veterans.[11] This has led to action on issues such as traumatic brain injury and mental health treatment for veterans, in part due to an influential

---

8. See VETERANS APPEALS GUIDEBOOK: REPRESENTING VETERANS IN THE U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR VETERANS CLAIMS (Ronald L. Smith ed., 2013).

9. See, e.g., Alana Frederick, Veterans Treatment Courts: Analysis and Recommendations, 38 L. & PSYCHOL. REV. 211 (2014); Michael Daly Hawkins, Coming Home: Accommodating the Special Needs of Military Veterans to the Criminal Justice System, 7 OHIO ST. J. CRIM. L. 563 (2010); Mark A. McCormick-Goodhart, Leaving No Veteran Behind: Policies and Perspectives on Combat Trauma, Veterans Courts, and the Rehabilitative Approach to Criminal Behavior, 117 PENN ST. L. REV. 895 (2013); Tabatha Renz, Veterans Treatment Court: A Hand Up Rather Than Lock Up, 17 RICH. J. L. & PUB. INT. 697 (2014); Robert T. Russell, Veterans Treatment Court: A Proactive Approach, 35 NEW ENG. J. CRIM. & CIV. CONFINEMENT 357 (2009); John Furman Wall, IV, The Veterans Treatment Court Program Act: South Carolina's Opportunity to Provide Services for Those Who Have Served, 65 S.C. L. REV. 879 (2014); Rosendo Garza Jr., Note, "The Soldier Bears the Deepest Wounds and Scars of War": Mobilizing Connecticut to Implement a Veterans Treatment Court, 46 CONN. L. REV. 1937 (2014); C. Philip Nichols, Jr., Veterans Courts: A New Concept for Maryland, MD. B.J. March–Apr. 2014, at 42.

10. See Evan R. Seamone, Educating Family Court Judges on the Front Lines of Combat Readjustment: Toward the Formulation and Delivery of a Core Curriculum on Military Family Issues, 52 FAM. CT. REV. 458 (2014).

11. See, e.g., THE PRAEGER HANDBOOK OF VETERANS' HEALTH: HISTORY, CHALLENGES, ISSUES, AND DEVELOPMENTS (Thomas W. Miller ed., 2012); Kathy Cerminara & Olympia Duhart, Introduction: Wounds of War: Meeting the Needs of Active-Duty Military Personnel and Veterans with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, 37 NOVA L. REV. 439 (2013); Charles W. Hoge et al., Combat Duty in Iraq and Afghanistan, Mental Health Problems, and Barriers to Care, 351 NEW ENG. J. MED. 13, 13 (2004); Matthew Jacupcak et al., Anger, Hostility, and Aggression Among Iraq and Afghanistan War Veterans Reporting PTSD and Subthreshold PTSD, 20 J. TRAUMATIC STRESS 945 (2007).

RAND study that labeled traumatic brain injury and related mental disorders as "invisible wounds" of the wars.[12]

Paul Rieckhoff, the Director of Iraq and Afghanistan Veterans of America, commented in 2009 that "[t]hey call brain trauma 'the invisible wound'; well, there's nothing less visible than being uncounted."[13] It is certainly the case that today, more so than even a decade ago, military leaders are publicly recognizing brain trauma, including mental injuries, as true wounds of war.

In January 2010 in Washington D.C., before an audience at a Suicide Prevention Conference, then United States Secretary of Veterans Affairs Eric Shinseki announced a sobering statistic: "[o]n average, eighteen Veterans commit suicide each day."[14] It has become common knowledge that a record percentage of America's returning combat veterans are committing suicide;[15] that

---

12. TERRI TANIELIAN ET AL., INVISIBLE WOUNDS OF WAR: SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ADDRESSING PSYCHOLOGICAL AND COGNITIVE INJURIES (2008), http://www.rand.org/content/dam/rand/pubs/monographs/2008/RAND_MG720.1.pdf. On a longer historical trajectory, we also now recognize more wounds of war than we did in previous eras. DAVID A. GERBER, FINDING DISABLED VETERANS IN HISTORY, in DISABLED VETERANS IN HISTORY 3 (David A. Gerber ed., 2000) ("[T]he visibility of . . . disabled veterans . . . has increased in this [20th] century . . . ."); see also Brockton D. Hunter, Echoes of War: Combat Trauma, Criminal Behavior, and How We Can Do Better This Time Around, in THE ATTORNEY'S GUIDE TO DEFENDING VETERANS IN CRIMINAL COURT 2–3 (Brockton D. Hunter & Ryan C. Else eds., 2014).

13. Paul Solotaroff, The Iraq War's Invisible Wounded, MEN'S J., Oct. 6, 2009, http://www.mensjournal.com/magazine/print-view/the-iraq-wars-invisible-wounded-20131108. Rieckhoff went on to say:

> The VA and DOD paid no attention to this problem the first four years of the war, and now there are all these guys in need of treatment with no clear way to get it. A lot don't even know they have head trauma, or are too afraid to admit it. They think if they raise their hand for help, it's the end of their service career.

Id.

14. Eric K. Shinseki, Sec'y, Dep't of Veterans Affairs, Remarks at the Suicide Prevention Conference (Jan. 11, 2010), http://www.va.gov/opa/speeches/2010/10_0111hold.asp.

15. Olympia Duhart, Soldier Suicides and Outcrit Jurisprudence: An Anti-Subordination Analysis, 44 CREIGHTON L. REV. 883, 884 (2011); Lindsay I. McCarl, "To Have No Yesterday": The Rise of Suicide Rates in the Military and Among Veterans, 46 CREIGHTON L. REV. 393, 395 (2013) ("The number of suicides has increased significantly since the beginning of the Iraq and Afghanistan

many are being diagnosed with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder ("PTSD");[16] and that the Department of Veterans Affairs needs to improve its provision of mental health services.[17]

In these and other ways, much that was once "invisible" is now in the public square for open debate. But our review of many related contemporary literatures finds very little discussion of the systemic economic inequality undergirding the experiences of returning veterans.[18]

There is some occasional, often tangential, mention of the issue.[19] For instance, psychologist Robert Klein suggested in the early 1980s, in the wake of Vietnam, that inadequate VA care has contributed to the creation of "a whole new underclass of alienatwars, despite the implementation of VA-sponsored programs to help stave off deaths of our war-beaten warriors.").

---

16. See ERIN P. FINLEY, FIELDS OF COMBAT: UNDERSTANDING PTSD AMONG VETERANS OF IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN (2011); Tiffany M. Chapman, Leave No Soldier Behind: Ensuring Access to Health Care for PTSD-Afflicted Veterans, 204 MIL. L. REV. 1, 8 (2010).

17. See, e.g., TIMOTHY A. KELLY, HEALING THE BROKEN MIND: TRANSFORMING AMERICA'S FAILED MENTAL HEALTH SYSTEM (2009).

18. There is legal literature on the inequalities experienced by African-American veterans. See, e.g., BENJAMIN FLEURY-STEINER, DISPOSABLE HEROES: THE BETRAYAL OF AFRICAN AMERICAN VETERANS (2012); Benjamin Fleury-Steiner et al., From the Battlefield to the War on Drugs: Lessons from the Lives of Marginalized African American Military Veterans, 6 ALB. GOV'T L. REV. 464 (2013). For discussion of race and military participation, see Amy C. Lutz, Race-Ethnicity and Immigration Status in the U.S. Military, in LIFE-COURSE PERSPECTIVES ON MILITARY SERVICE 68 (Janet M. Wilmoth & Andrew S. London eds., 2013). However, we do not find that there is a racial casualty gap. See DOUGLAS L. KRINER & FRANCIS X. SHEN, THE CASUALTY GAP: THE CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES OF AMERICAN WARTIME INEQUALITIES (2010). For a review of the historical literature on inequality and military sacrifice and service, see our discussion in Chapter 2. Id. There have been a few longer treatments of military service and class. KATHY ROTH-DOUQUET & FRANK SCHAEFFER, AWOL: THE UNEXCUSED ABSENCE OF AMERICA'S UPPER CLASSES FROM THE MILITARY SERVICE—AND HOW IT HURTS OUR COUNTRY (2006).

19. At the national level, New York Congressman Charles Rangel, who has supported reinstituting the military draft, has complained that "[i]t's just not fair that the people we ask to fight our wars are people who join the military because of economic conditions." David M. Halbfinger & Steven A. Holmes, Military Mirrors Working-Class America, N.Y. TIMES, Mar. 30, 2003, http://www.nytimes.com/2003/03/30/international/worldspecial/30DEMO.html.

ed, unemployed citizens."[20] More recently, in the wake of the war in Iraq, physician Ronald Glasser has observed that the "Vietnam divide between those who serve and those who are served has become the foundation of the volunteer force" and that we have a "country that would send off Reserve and National Guard troops without becoming engaged nor demand an accounting of wartime policy, goals, and purposes."[21] He suggests that the Iraq War was "fought without any sense of pretense of communal sacrifice"[22] and that "privilege spells the difference between living and dying, between being crippled or blind for the rest of your life. Today once again, survival is a matter of class."[23]

On a similar theme, veteran and Rhodes Scholar Josiah Bunting III penned a 2004 essay in The American Scholar entitled "Class Warfare."[24] Bunting observed "[t]he diminishing numbers of war dead disclose another phenomenon: the withdrawal of . . . the privileged intellectual and professional and commercial classes, and their novitiates and children, from the active military service of our country."[25] He argued that this trend "is dangerous, it is unworthy, it is wrong."[26]

In 2014, United States Navy Lieutenant Commander Matthew Ivey identified the challenges of a shrinking all-volunteer force.[27] Ivey similarly recognized that "despite the disproportionate burdens suffered by the current all-volunteer military, very few Americans have called for a change to the current way of staffing the military."[28] Journalist Jorge Mariscal penned a 2007 online essay describing what he called the "poverty draft":

> Exactly who will have to fight and die in those wars will be determined by economic class. In order to

---

20. ROBERT KLEIN, WOUNDED MEN, BROKEN PROMISES 199 (1981).
21. RONALD J. GLASSER, WOUNDED 122–23 (2006).
22. Id. at 128.
23. Id.
24. Josiah Bunting III, Class Warfare, THE AMERICAN SCHOLAR (Dec. 1, 2004), https://theamericanscholar.org/class-warfare/#.VQmPTOGm0UM.
25. Id.
26. Id.
27. Matthew Ivey, The Broken Promises of an All-Volunteer Military, 86 TEMP. L. REV. 525 (2014).
28. Id. at 528. For further history, see id. at 530–40.

> accomplish their goals, the recruiters and politicians will exploit the hopes and dreams of mostly well-intentioned youth from humble origins who are looking for a way to contribute to a society that has lost its moral compass. As they did in Vietnam and again in Iraq, young women and men will serve their country. But how well will their country have served them?[29]

Yet apart from these and similar exceptions, contemporary academic scholarship has not seriously explored inequality in military sacrifice. Indeed, as recently as 2013 a sociologist writing on the topic speculated (incorrectly) that "socioeconomic disadvantage has been associated with war-related mortality, although the same may not be true of the current wars."[30] If scholarship is generally not concerned with this inequality, can we say the same thing about the American public? We turn now to that question.

B. What Does the American Public Know About Inequalities in Military Sacrifice?

Since 2007 we have been conducting studies in which we ask the American public about how wartime casualties are distributed across the country.[31] And we have regularly found that a large segment of the population mistakenly believes there is shared sacrifice.

In a nationally representative sample of Americans polled in 2011, we asked each respondent: "Thinking about the American soldiers who have died fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan, what parts of the United States do you think they are coming from?"[32] Re-

29. Jorge Mariscal, The Poverty Draft, SOJOURNERS, June 2007, at 32, 35.

30. Alair MacLean, A Matter of Life and Death, in LIFE-COURSE PERSPECTIVES ON MILITARY SERVICE, supra note 18, at 213.

31. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 92–103; Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen, Conscription, Inequality, and Partisan Support for War, J. CONFLICT RESOL. (forthcoming 2016).

32. We embedded our survey question in an Opinion Research Corporation CARAVAN omnibus poll administered in May 2011. CARAVAN is a twice-weekly telephone survey that employs a random-digit dialing ("RDD") methodology to ensure a nationally representative sample of 1,000 adult Americans. This survey, which produced a sample of 1,010 respondents from the spondents were then asked to choose one of the following options (or say "I don't know"): (i) More casualties are coming from poorer, less educated parts of the country; (ii) More casualties are coming from richer, more educated parts of the country; or (iii) There is not a significant difference in the share of casualties coming from rich/high-education and poor/low-education parts of the country.

The results, presented in Figure 1, are striking and paint a portrait of an evenly divided public. Just under half those surveyed (45%) believe that the country is equally sharing military sacrifice. This is roughly the same percentage as those who correctly believe that there is inequality.[33]

Closer analysis of our data suggests that rather than basing their answers on knowledge of the facts, many Americans simply adopt the position of their preferred political party. The strongest predictor of a respondent's answer to this question is his or her partisan affiliation. A clear majority of Republicans, 57%, believe that shared sacrifice exists. Only 35% of Republicans believe that there is inequality in casualties. By contrast, for Democrats, the numbers are reversed, with 30% believing that shared sacrifice exists and 60% believing there is inequality. Given the lack of reliable information concerning casualty inequality in the public sphere, many Americans simply draw on their partisan priors to inform their guesses.

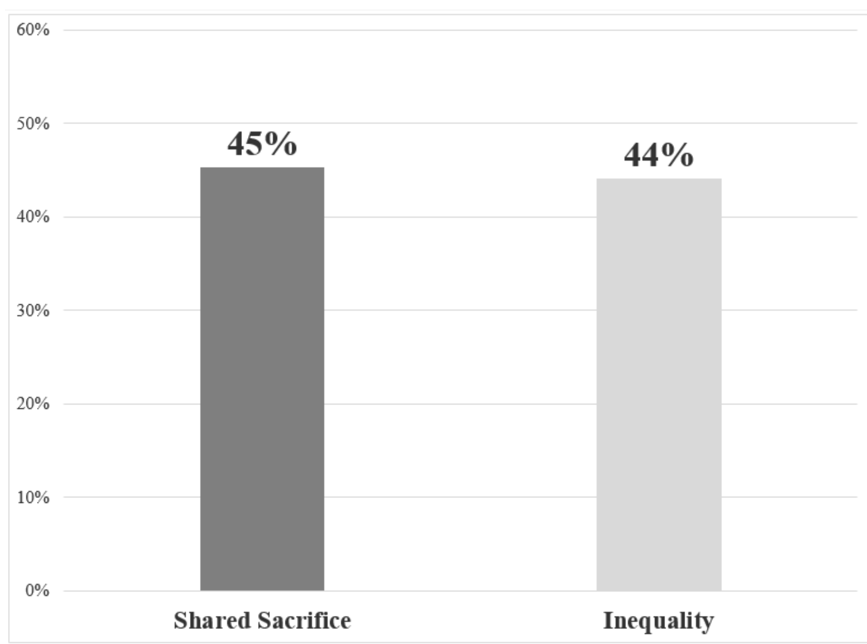
---

continental United States, was conducted from May 19–22, 2011. National news outlets such as CNN rely on Opinion Research Corporation because of its reputation for reliably providing truly nationally representative samples. CARAVAN data is also regularly used in political science research requiring nationally representative samples. The averages reported from this survey in Figure 1 and discussed in the text are the unweighted averages. We also ran a similar experiment with subjects recruited from Mechanical Turk in 2015. Even in this Turk sample, which is younger, more highly educated, and more liberal than a nationally representative sample, a sizeable portion of respondents believed there is not a casualty gap. Thirty-three percent of respondents said casualties come from rich and poor places equally. We also find evidence of a partisan gap. Republicans are more likely to believe a casualty gap does not exist than Democrats or independents.

33. In addition, eight percent chose the "I don't know" option and three percent responded that more casualties were coming from richer/more-educated parts of the country.

The result is that much of the public believes—as we will show, mistakenly—that American localities are sharing the human sacrifice of war equally.

Figure 1. Percentage of Americans Who Believe in Inequality versus Shared Sacrifice in War Casualties



What to Notice in Figure 1: We asked a nationally representative sample of Americans whether American soldiers who have died fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan were coming equally from rich and poor parts of the country ("shared sacrifice"), or more from poor parts of the country ("inequality"). The data presented in Figure 1 is striking because it shows that nearly half of all Americans believe there is shared sacrifice, even though the empirical data suggest otherwise.

III. THE TWO AMERICAS OF MILITARY SACRIFICE

In Part I we established that inequality in military sacrifice is rarely discussed in scholarship and often not acknowledged by the public. Given the widespread public uncertainty over how military sacrifice is shared across the country, in this Part we turn to the actual data and ask: When America goes to war, who fights the battles, who dies, and who returns wounded?[34]

We began to ask these questions in 2004, and in this Article we make a novel extension of the work, as for the first time we examine non-fatal casualties, including casualties from the conflict in Afghanistan.

We find that both fatal and non-fatal casualties in America's wars have come from parts of the country that are lower on the socioeconomic ladder.[35] This Part explains why these Two Americas of military sacrifice have emerged, and how this distribution is more unequal than in past wars. Details of the statistical analyses are presented in the Appendix.

A. Poorer Areas of the Country Bear Greater War Sacrifice

While concerns about inequality and military sacrifice have periodically arisen since America's founding, empirical research to determine the existence of such inequalities and changes in them over time has progressed haphazardly since World War II.[36] Prior

---

34. The discussion in this Part builds on previous discussion in KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18.

35. The analyses discussed in this Part show strong evidence of a socio-economic casualty gap between rich and poor, and high and low education communities. We do not have access to individual-level data, but it seems most plausible that there is also an individual-level gap, i.e. soldiers coming from poorer backgrounds are disproportionately bearing the costs. While plausible, we acknowledge that we cannot conclude definitively from the community-level casualty data alone that poorer individuals or individuals with lower levels of education are dying at higher rates than individuals with greater socio-economic opportunities. To do so would be to commit what social scientists call an error of "ecological inference." From aggregate-level data alone, we cannot make inferences about processes at the level of individuals. To address this, we have previously carried out a series of additional analyses—all suggesting that in fact there is an individual level gap. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18.

36. JOHN CHAMBERS, DRAFTEES OR VOLUNTEERS: A DOCUMENTARY HISTORY OF THE DEBATE OVER MILITARY CONSCRIPTION IN THE UNITED STATES, 1787–1973 (1975). Studies focusing on military enlistments, recruits, and personnel have been conducted by sociologists, historians, think tanks, and the popular press. CHRISTIAN G. APPY, WORKING-CLASS WAR: AMERICAN COMBAT SOLDIERS AND VIETNAM (1993); SUE BERRYMAN, WHO SERVES? THE PERSISTENT MYTH OF THE UNDERCLASS ARMY (1988); ROTH-DOUQUET & SCHAEFFER, supra note 18; Wilson, infra note 40; Tim Kane, Who Bears the Burden? Demographic Characteristics of U.S. Military Recruits Before and analyses have varied significantly in approach and scope. Some have found strong, if limited, evidence that socioeconomically disadvantaged communities have borne a disproportionate share of the nation's casualties.[37] Others have yielded mixed results and uneven empirical support for assertions of a casualty gap.[38] Still others have produced no systematic evidence of a socioeconomic casualty gap.[39] Reviewing this motley state of affairs, sociologist Thomas C. Wilson observed that the variance may be "due in large

---

After 9/11, THE HERITAGE FOUNDATION (Nov. 7, 2005), http://www.heritage.org/research/reports/2005/11/who-bears-the-burden-demographic-characteristics-of-us-military-recruits-before-and-after-9-11; Military Recruitment 2010, NATIONAL PRIORITIES PROJECT (June 30, 2011), https://www.nationalpriorities.org/analysis/2011/military-recruitment-2010. Indeed, since 1974 the federal government has mandated an annual Department of Defense report on social representation in the military. NESE F. DEBRUYNE & ANNE LELAND, CONG. RESEARCH SERV., RL32492, AMERICAN WAR AND MILITARY OPERATIONS CASUALTIES, LISTS AND STATISTICS (2015), https://www.fas.org/sgp/crs/natsec/RL32492.pdf. See generally JEANETTE KEITH, RICH MAN'S WAR, POOR MAN'S FIGHT: RACE, CLASS, AND POWER IN THE RURAL SOUTH DURING THE FIRST WORLD WAR (2004); EUGENE C. MURDOCK, PATRIOTISM LIMITED: 1862-1865 (1967); DAVID WILLIAMS, TERESA CRISP WILLIAMS & DAVID CARLSON, PLAIN FOLK IN A RICH MAN'S WAR: CLASS AND DISSENT IN CONFEDERATE GEORGIA (2002); DAVID WILLIAMS, RICH MAN'S WAR: CLASS, CASTE, AND CONFEDERATE DEFEAT IN THE LOWER CHATTAHOOCHEE VALLEY (1998); Tyler Anbinder, Which Poor Man's Fight? Immigrants and the Federal Conscription of 1863, 52 CIV. WAR HIST. 344 (2006).

37. Emily Buzzell & Samuel Preston, Mortality of American Troops in Iraq, 33 POPULATION AND DEV. REV. 555, 562 (2007); Albert J. Mayer & Thomas Ford Hoult, Social Stratification and Combat Survival, 34 SOC. FORCES 155, 155 (1955); M. Zeitlin, K. G. Lutterman & J. W. Russell, Death in Vietnam: Class, Poverty, and the Risks of War, 3 POL. & SOC'Y 313, 313 (1973).

38. Gilbert Badillo & G. David Curry, The Social Incidence of Vietnam Casualties, 2 ARMED FORCES & SOC'Y 397, 401 (1976); Arnold Barnett et al., America's Vietnam Casualties: Victims of a Class War?, 40 OPERATIONS RES. 856, 857 (1992); John Willis, Variations in State Casualty Rates in World War II and the Vietnam War, 22 SOC. PROBLEMS 558, 558 (1975).

39. CHARLES C. MOSKOS & JOHN S. BUTLER, ALL THAT WE CAN BE: BLACK LEADERSHIP AND RACIAL INTEGRATION THE ARMY WAY (1996); Brian Gifford, Combat Casualties and Race: What Can We Learn from the 2003–2004 Iraq Conflict?, 31 ARMED FORCES AND SOC'Y 201, 201 (2005); Janet Schaefer & Marjorie Allen, Class and Regional Selection in Fatal Casualties in the First 18–23 Months of World War II, 23 SOC. FORCES 165, 165 (1944).

part to the cumulative effect of methodological inconsistencies across studies and methodological flaws within them."[40]

Amidst these competing findings, we launched a new research project in 2004. The project represents the most comprehensive investigation to date of inequality and military casualties. We published some of these findings in a 2010 book, The Casualty Gap. Here, we extend our earlier analysis both to include the war in Afghanistan and to examine inequality in non-fatal casualties. Our analysis in this Article considers non-fatal casualty data through December 26, 2009, and fatal casualty data through July 4, 2011.[41]

The Department of Defense does not release data on the socioeconomic status of individual soldiers who have died or been wounded in America's wars. As a result, we cannot directly observe whether poorer Americans with fewer educational opportunities are disproportionately dying in or returning home wounded from the nation's wars. However, we can examine the communities from which our nation's wartime casualties hail. This allows us to examine whether communities at the bottom of the socioeconomic ladder have sustained higher casualty rates than communities at the top. Such casualty gaps between rich and poor communities are of great importance. First, as we will discuss in more detail shortly, soldiers returning home to socioeconomically disadvantaged communities may enjoy fewer and weaker support structures, which can exacerbate their reintegration into civilian life. Second, most Americans view and assess war through the lens of their local community's experiences with it. Casualty inequality

---

40. Thomas C. Wilson, Vietnam-era Military Service: A Test of the Class-Bias Theory, 21 ARMED FORCES & SOC'Y 461, 464 (1995); John Modell & Timothy Hagerty, The Social Impact of War, 17 ANNUAL REV. OF SOC. 205, 219–20 (1991) (reaching a similar conclusion). Some previous studies analyze casualties from only a single state or region of the country. Other researchers focus more narrowly on a specific age cohort or restrict their analyses to short periods of time. Moreover, the measures used for socioeconomic status change from study to study, and many analyses examine only one potential explanation for inequalities in casualties, while failing to control for other possibilities. Finally, only a handful of analyses examine more than one conflict at a time. Wilson, supra, at 464.

41. We use the term "wounded" and "non-fatal casualty" to mean the same thing in this Article. See infra Section V.C. and note 193 for additional discussion of the challenges of precisely defining these terms.

between rich and poor communities insures that many Americans view the same war very differently; some see its human costs directly, while others are largely insulated from such costs.

We examined the relationship between the socioeconomic status of a community and its share of war sacrifice by looking at the relationship between county-level (or where available place-level) data on socioeconomic variables (such as income and education) and county-level casualty rates.[42] To gain historical perspective, we examined World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq, and Afghanistan, the five wars on which data is available.[43]

Figure 2 illustrates the basic finding: The data show that while sacrifice was shared equally in World War II, beginning with the war in Korea, significant income gaps emerged. In raw, inflation-adjusted dollar terms, this income casualty gap increased over time from a $5,500 gap in Korea, to an $8,200 gap in Vietnam, and now to more than an $11,000 gap in Iraq and Afghanistan. More robust statistical analysis, controlling for a host of possibly confounding variables, confirms this basic finding.[44]

---

42. For details of the statistical analysis, see the Appendix as well as KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 14. For a discussion of the ecological inference problem and efforts to overcome it, see particularly id. at 40–47. For Iraq and Afghanistan, we were able to use census "place" level data, a geographical unit even smaller than the county. Place refers to "Census Designated Place." The U.S. Census Bureau defines a "Census Designated Place" as a place "delineated to provide data for settled concentrations of population that are identifiable by name but are not legally incorporated under the laws of the state in which they are located." UNITED STATES CENSUS BUREAU: GEOGRAPHIC TERMS AND CONCEPTS – PLACE, https://www.census.gov/geo/reference/gtc/gtc_place.html (last updated Dec. 6, 2012).

43. For wars prior to World War II the requisite data is not available. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 14.

44. See discussion in the Appendix.

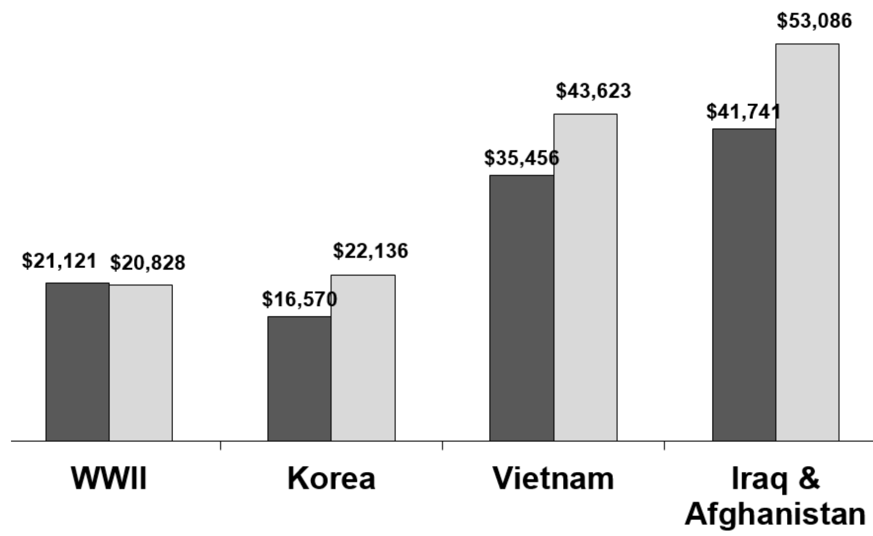
Figure 2. Two Americas of Military Sacrifice: Difference in Median Family Income Levels Between High-Casualty Communities and Low-Casualty Communities



What to Notice in Figure 2: Figure 2 illustrates that since World War II, communities with higher casualty rates have had lower incomes than communities with lower casualty rates. To generate Figure 2, we divided all of the communities for each war into two groups: the first includes all communities whose casualty rates place them in the top quarter of the casualty distribution; the second group comprises all other communities.[45] From census data, we then calculated the average median family income for both groups. To provide a constant metric, we adjusted the income data from previous periods to reflect their value in year 2000 dollars.

---

45. For World War II, Korea, and Vietnam, this analysis is at the county level. For Iraq and Afghanistan, it is at the place level. Because the total number of casualties in the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan is comparatively small, we used a slightly different coding scheme to identify high and low casualty communities in Iraq and Afghanistan. High casualty communities include the 700 census places that have suffered casualty rates of higher than 9.31 fatal casualties per 10,000 male residents. This represents the top twenty-five percent of all communities that suffered at least one casualty in the Iraq War. The low casualty communities in Iraq and Afghanistan are the census places that had not yet suffered a casualty in either war—more than eighty-five percent of all census places.

The discussion and data presented thus far pertain to fatal casualties. But what of those soldiers who are wounded? Do they, too, hail disproportionately from poorer parts of the country? This question is more salient than ever given that more than seven Americans were wounded in Iraq and Afghanistan for every service member killed, a ratio much greater than that observed in earlier wars (see Figure 4 below).

To investigate, we made a Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA") request to the Department of Defense ("DoD") for the number of wounded soldiers for each county in the United States.[46] Indicative of the challenge of studying wounded-in-action, one of our requests to the DoD was (we thought) a straightforward definitional query. We requested "the definitions used by the DoD to determine whether a soldier is considered 'wounded'." After all, how can one interpret the data on number of wounded if we don't know what counts as "wounded"?

In response, the Department of Defense, in conjunction with the Defense Manpower Data Center ("DMDC") wrote that we "cannot provide any definitions used by DoD to determine whether a soldier is considered wounded because this is a medical judgment."[47] We appealed but were not provided additional clarifying information. Thus, we proceeded with the analysis with a best-guess, but no clear certainty, on how the DoD actually determines if a soldier is considered wounded.[48]

---

46. The request, FOIA 10-F-0284, was initially made in writing on November 19, 2009. We requested "1) The number of wounded soldiers from Operation Iraqi Freedom, by month, by branch, and by county; 2) The number of wounded soldiers from Operation Enduring Freedom, by month, by branch, and by county; and 3) The definitions used by the DOD to determine whether a soldier is considered 'wounded.'" See Letter from Paul J. Jacobsmeyer, Chief, Dep't of Def. Freedom of Info. Office, to author (May 18, 2010) (on file with authors). We received a partially responsive reply with a data file on May 18, 2010. Id.

47. Letter from Paul J. Jacobsmeyer, Chief, Dep't of Def. Freedom of Info. Office, to author (May 18, 2010) (on file with authors).

48. In our appeal letter we asked:

> Is it accurate to conclude then that the Department of Defense Manpower Data Center is wholly unaware of how its data on wounded soldiers is defined? For instance, the DMDC does not know whether its statistics include soldiers diagnosed with

We ran a similar analysis to that described above to see if the rate of wounded soldiers was correlated with the county's socioeconomic indicators. We found that once again there was an unequal relationship: Counties with lower education and income levels had higher percentages of their residents wounded in Iraq and Afghanistan.[49]

This relationship is seen vividly in Figure 3, which plots how non-fatal casualties are distributed across the country. We divided communities into deciles based on their median family income. Thus, the 10% of Americans living in the poorest communities are in the first income decile, and so on. If military sacrifice was evenly shared, then each decile would account for 10% of the soldiers wounded in action in Iraq and Afghanistan. On the left hand side, the dark gray shaded bars above the 10% line indicate that communities in the lower deciles generally shouldered more of the burden.[50] On the right hand side, by contrast, the light gray shaded bars are all below the 10% line suggest that those communities in the higher income brackets have not experienced as many non-fatal casualties.[51] Put slightly differently, the nation's poorest communities (those in the lowest three income deciles) have suffered fifty percent more non-fatal casualties than the nation's wealthiest communities (those in the top three income deciles).

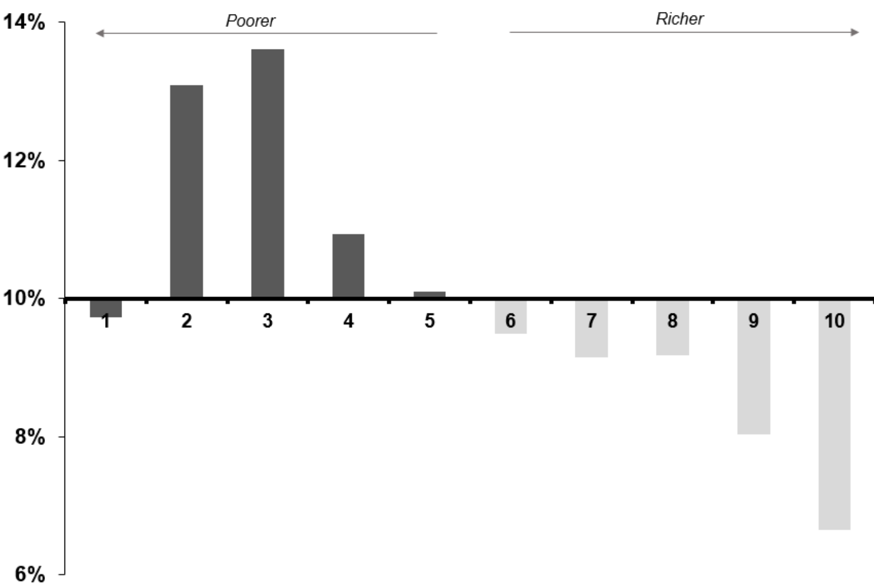
> sprained wrists and twisted ankles? And the DMDC doesn't know whether its data includes soldiers who are diagnosed with depression? Based on the FOIA response . . . [our] conclusion is that DMDC does not know the answers to these questions because they are "medical judgments."

49. Comparable data was not available in previous conflicts.

50. The exception in the lowest decile is consistent with military service data suggesting that the lowest income and lowest education communities do not have as many residents who meet the military's requisite qualifications. See an extended discussion in DOUGLAS L, KRINER & FRANCIS X. SHEN, THE CASUALTY GAP: THE CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES OF AMERICAN WARTIME INEQUALITIES online app. B (2010), http://www.casualtygap.com/KrinerShen_TheCasualtyGap_OnlineAppendixB.pdf.

51. By matching the home of record information for each wounded soldier provided by the DOD with information on community median income levels from the U.S. Census, we found that communities in the bottom three income deciles suffered 4,573 casualties, while those in the top three deciles suffered only 2,995. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18.

Figure 3. Two Americas of Military Sacrifice: Distribution of Non-Fatal Casualties in Iraq and Afghanistan by Income Decile, Above and Below Equal Distribution (ten percent)



What to Notice in Figure 3: If one divides the nation into ten deciles by income, an equal distribution of casualties would produce ten percent casualties in each decile. But Figure 3 shows that there is inequality in the distribution of casualties: the five richest deciles (the light gray bars on the right) are all below-average, while the poorer deciles (the dark gray bars on the left) tend to take on above-average casualties. See text for discussion of data analysis that produced the Figure.

B. The Causes of the Casualty Gap

The evidence presented above makes clear that there are Two Americas of military sacrifice. Working class America is sacrificing at a higher rate than affluent America. Why is this the case?

There are two mechanisms in play, both of which have explanatory power: differential selection into the armed forces ("the selection mechanism") and then differential occupational assignment within the military ("the sorting mechanism"). We have shown in previous work that both the selection and sorting mechanisms affect the unequal outcomes.[52]

One of the most straightforward explanations for inequality in wartime death is inequality in who serves in the military. For more than fifty years, an extensive literature at the crossroads of sociology, history, economics, and political science has investigated military manpower policies and changes in them over time.[53] Today, a small percentage of Americans serve in the military.[54] This has led to a civil-military gap along a number of dimensions.[55]

Men and women join the military for many reasons; for many, patriotism and a desire to serve are undoubtedly key factors. Yet an extensive literature also documents the critical importance of economic incentives in spurring enlistments throughout American history.[56] At the aggregate level, a number of studies have

---

52. KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at ch. 3. Although we can only establish a casualty gap between rich and poor communities, the most likely explanation for this gap is that a parallel inequality exists at the individual level. The selection and sorting mechanisms described here provide a logic for why individuals from socioeconomically disadvantaged backgrounds are more likely to find themselves on the front lines of America's wars.

53. See, e.g., BERRYMAN, supra note 36; JOHN CHAMBERS, supra note 36; GEORGE Q. FLYNN, THE DRAFT: 1940–1973 (1993); PETER KINDSVATTER, AMERICAN SOLDIERS: GROUND COMBAT IN THE WORLD WARS, KOREA AND VIETNAM (2003); MORRIS JANOWITZ, THE PROFESSIONAL SOLDIER, A SOCIAL AND POLITICAL PORTRAIT (1960); CHARLES C. MOSKOS, THE AMERICAN ENLISTED MAN: THE RANK AND FILE IN TODAY'S MILITARY (1970); THE ALL-VOLUNTEER FORCE: THIRTY YEARS OF SERVICE (Barbara A. Bicksler, Curtis L. Gilroy & John T. Warner eds., 2004); NAT'L RESEARCH COUNCIL, COMM. ON THE YOUTH POP. AND MILITARY RECRUIT., ATTITUDES, APTITUDES AND ASPIRATIONS OF AMERICAN YOUTH: IMPLICATIONS FOR MILITARY RECRUITMENT 219 (Paul Sackett & Anne Mavor, eds. 2003); Stuart Altman & Alan Fechter, The Supply of Military Personnel in the Absence of a Draft, 57 AM. ECON. REV. 19 (1967); Peter Karsten, Consent and the American Soldier: Theory Versus Reality, 12 PARAMETERS 42 (1982).

54. Ivey, supra note 27, at 557 ("[O]nly one-half of one percent of Americans served in the military at any given time during the past decade.").

55. PEW RESEARCH CTR., THE MILITARY-CIVILIAN GAP: WAR AND SACRIFICE IN THE POST-9/11 ERA 2 (2011), http://www.pewsocialtrends.org/files/2011/10/veterans-report.pdf.

56. For an example of the nuance that exists within this rich literature, see a recent study, Todd Woodruff, Ryan Kelty & David R. Segal, Propensity to demonstrated strong correlations between the health of the economy and patterns in military enlistments. For example, in a 1994 RAND study of the factors correlated with the successful recruitment of high quality enlistments from 1978 to 1993, two of the factors with the greatest influence on the number of high quality recruits obtained by the Army were the youth unemployment rate and the rate of military pay growth relative to the civilian sector.[57]

This linkage continues to the present day. Reflecting on the surge in military enlistments during the economic troubles of 2008, which followed immediately on the heels of two of the most difficult recruiting years in recent memory in 2006 and 2007, Undersecretary for Personnel and Readiness David S.C. Chu readily acknowledged the faltering economy's role in boosting volunteering: "We do benefit when things look less positive in civil society."[58] Other analyses of enlistment decisions at the individual level demonstrate, logically, that the young men and women most likely to volunteer are those for whom the occupational and educational benefits that the military affords are most appealing compared to their options in the civilian labor market.[59] As summarized by mil-

---

Serve and Motivation to Enlist among American Combat Soldiers, 32 ARMED FORCES & SOC'Y 353 (2006), suggesting institutional incentives are particularly important for the thirty percent new recruits who are "high-propensity" youth, i.e. those that had long planned on joining the military. Id. at 358. By contrast, among the seventy percent of recruits who had not thought seriously about enlisting while in high school, occupational and economic incentives were particularly important. Id. at 363.

57. The size of the military recruiting budget also had a strong impact on recruiting trends. BETH ASCH & BRUCE ORVIS, RECENT RECRUITING TRENDS AND THEIR IMPLICATIONS: PRELIMINARY ANALYSIS AND RECOMMENDATIONS 21 (1994), http://www.rand.org/content/dam/rand/pubs/monograph_reports/2005/MR549.pdf; see also Altman & Fechter, supra note 53, at 19–20; Charles Brown, Military Enlistments: What Can We Learn from Geographic Variation, 75 AM. ECON. REV. 228 (1985); John Warner & Beth Asch, The Record and Prospects of the All-Volunteer Military in the United States, 15 J. ECON. PERSP. 169 (2001).

58. William H. McMichael, Economic Bust Creates Recruiting Boom, ARMY TIMES, Dec. 30, 2008.

59. For example, in their analysis of military volunteerism from 1973 to 1978, sociologists Morris Janowitz and Charles Moskos found that college-educated men, who enjoyed great advantages in the civilian labor market, were significantly under-represented in the armed forces. While almost thirty percent of the military-aged male population had some college education in 1977, only itary historian Peter Karsten, "Most volunteers, today and for the past 200 years, joined the service in order to gain economic rewards, social mobility, or skills needed later in civilian life."[60]

Recognizing these economic incentives, it is not surprising that Army recruits have come disproportionately from parts of the country that are lower on the socioeconomic scale.[61] The military has struggled in some years to meet its enlistment quotas, and as a result it has drawn on recruits with lower qualifications.[62] During five percent of new Army enlistees did. In 1964, more than seventeen percent of young men drafted into the service had some college education. Morris Janowitz & Charles C. Moskos Jr., Five Years of the All-Volunteer Force: 1973–1978, 5 ARMED FORCES & SOC'Y 171, 194–95 (1979).

---

60. Karsten, supra note 53, at 43. This is not to say that the relative importance of economic incentives has not changed over time. For example, surveying the history of 20th century manpower policy, Charles Moskos identifies three eras—the modern (1900–1945), the late modern (1945–1990), and the postmodern (1990–)—and he argues that across these periods the military has become increasingly viewed more through an "occupational" and less through an "institutional" lens. If correct, this trend could also contribute to the emergence of the socio-economic casualty gaps we observed in the Korean and Vietnam wars and the widening of these gaps in the Iraq War. CHARLES C. MOSKOS, JOHN ALLEN WILLIAMS & DAVID R. SEGAL, THE POSTMODERN MILITARY 14 (Charles C. Moskos, John Allen Williams & David R. Segal eds., 2000).

61. For example, Kriner and Shen's ZIP-code level analysis of Army recruiting data shows that the high income communities were significantly under-represented in Army recruiting. KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 65. For an analysis of more recent Army recruiting data, see 2011 DOD POPULATION REPRESENTATION IN THE MILITARY SERVICES REPORT, app. tbl. B-41, http://prhome.defense.gov/portals/52/Documents/POPREP/poprep2011/appendixb/appendixb.pdf. An individual-level analysis of military recruits from the 1990s found that young people from high income families were significantly less likely to enlist in the military, all else being equal, than their peers from lower socioeconomic backgrounds. Amy Lutz, Who Joins the Military?: A Look at Race, Class, and Immigration Status, 36 J. POL. & MIL. SOC. 167 (2008). However, a recent analysis of individual-level data from the post-9/11 era finds little evidence of socioeconomic differences. Andrea Asoni et al., Rich Man's War, Poor Man's Fight? Technological Change, Tactical Developments and the Demographic Composition of the American Military, (Feb. 6, 2016), http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=2728702.

62. Ivey, supra note 27, at 550 ("[P]revious minimum academic and moral standards for enlistment were now being waived in order to make up for the recruiting shortfall.").

some of the relevant periods of recruitment for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, the Army lowered its recruitment standards[63] and offered larger financial incentives.[64] Such selection mechanisms have the potential to create casualty gaps. But this is only part of the story.

The vast majority of those who serve do not die in combat, and those who do die are not a random sample of the military population as a whole. As Colonel Samuel Hays wrote in Army Magazine in 1967, "In many ways the differences in sacrifice between those who are called to the service and those who are excused are less drastic than the differences which result from different assignments in the Services . . . no one could find much equity between pounding a typewriter in the Pentagon and carrying the M16 rifle in the jungles of Vietnam."[65]

Occupational assignment is far from random. Through a series of tests, the military assesses each new soldier's aptitudes and pre-existing skill sets and, on the basis of this information and additional evaluations, it assigns each soldier to the tasks thought to be best-suited to his or her personal skills and to the military's needs.[66] If soldiers assigned to positions with high risks of combat exposure differ systematically from soldiers assigned to occupations with lower levels of combat risk, occupational assignment, too, has the potential to generate a casualty gap.[67]

When one examines the difference between enlisted and officer casualty rates, we find strong evidence that occupational sorting leads to casualty gaps.[68] Casualty rates for the infantry and the enlisted ranks are more inversely related to community wealth and education than are non-infantry and officer casualty rates.[69]

Because lower-skilled recruits are more likely to come from less advantaged communities, and because they are subse-

---

63. Id.

64. Id.

65. Samuel H. Hays, Military Conscription in a Democratic Society, ARMY MAG., Feb. 1967, at 31, reprinted in CHAMBERS, supra note 36.

66. The process of occupational assignment varies across service branches and varies across individuals as well. For instance, some recruits are given the option to select an occupational field.

67. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 67–72.

68. Id.

69. Id.

quently more likely to be assigned to occupations with greater combat risks than are recruits with higher skills, the occupational assignment mechanism may produce a casualty gap, even if the military as a whole were representative of the civilian population.[70] Similarly, because the enlisted ranks come disproportionately from lower income/education communities, and because enlisted soldiers are more likely, on average, to see front line combat than are officers, assignment by rank also explains why a casualty gap can develop even if the military's overall demographics may roughly mirror society.

In sum: We believe there is extremely strong evidence that poorer parts of America are bearing a greater share of the human costs of war. In the next two Parts we explore some of the social and political consequences of these Two Americas of military sacrifice.

IV. INEQUALITY AND THE VETERAN'S BRAIN

A. The Wounds of War

Historical comparisons plainly illustrate the increasing prominence of combat wounds in recent conflicts. For example, the ratio of soldiers killed versus soldiers wounded in Iraq is striking in comparison to earlier conflicts. While the wounded/killed ratio was 1.65 in World War II, 1.9 in Korea, and 2.6 in Vietnam, in Iraq the ratio through March 2014 was 7.2, and in Afghanistan the ratio was 7.6.[71] Thus, when compared with Vietnam and Korea, the ratio of wounded to killed soldiers in Iraq/Afghanistan is more than two and a half times larger. When compared to World War II, the ratio in Iraq/Afghanistan is more than four times as large.

---

70. Moreover, there are differences in the service branches. The Army, for instance, which accounts for a majority of the casualties, is not as representative of the population as a whole. OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FOR PERSONNEL AND READINESS, POPULATION REPRESENTATION IN THE MILITARY SERVICES (2011), http://prhome.defense.gov/portals/52/Documents/POPREP/poprep2011/appendixb/b_41.html.

71. Ratios for World War II, Korea, and Vietnam were calculated using data from the Department of Defense. NESE F. DEBRUYNE & ANNE LELAND, CONG. RESEARCH SERVICE, RL32492, AMERICAN WAR AND MILITARY OPERATIONS CASUALTIES, LISTS AND STATISTICS (2015), https://www.fas.org/sgp/crs/natsec/RL32492.pdf. The Korean War ratio utilized the figure of 54,246 for worldwide military deaths. Id. at 9. Ratios for Iraq and Afghanistan were calculated using data from IRAQ COALITION CASUALTY COUNT, http://icasualties.org (last visited Mar. 10, 2016).

The ratio of wounded to killed reflects advances in military medicine. For instance, the Army now utilizes Forward Surgical Teams ("FSTs"),[72] and they have proven effective at reducing casualties because of their rapid response.[73] But saving lives means that more soldiers are surviving with catastrophic injuries. As one nurse working in Baghdad remarked, "We're saving severely injured people, legs, eyes, parts of brains. These injuries are horrific."[74] And as one of the medical surgeons remarked about the recovery these soldiers can expect, "[w]e can save you, [but] [y]ou might not be what you were."[75]

Veterans are often returning with a variety of symptoms. This is so much the case that caretakers now use the term "polytrauma" to describe veterans with "multiple and complex physical

---

72. Timothy C. Counihan & Paul D. Danielson, The 912th Forward Surgical Team In Operation New Dawn: Employment Of The Forward Surgical Team During Troop Withdrawal Under Combat Conditions, 177 MIL. MED. 1267, 1269 (2012) ("FST have been used widely since the onset of the Global War on Terror in both Iraq and Afghanistan.").

73. GLASSER, supra note 21, at 41 ("The efficiency of the new [FST] system, as well as the resulting survival rates, are quite extraordinary . . . .").

74. Id. at 47.

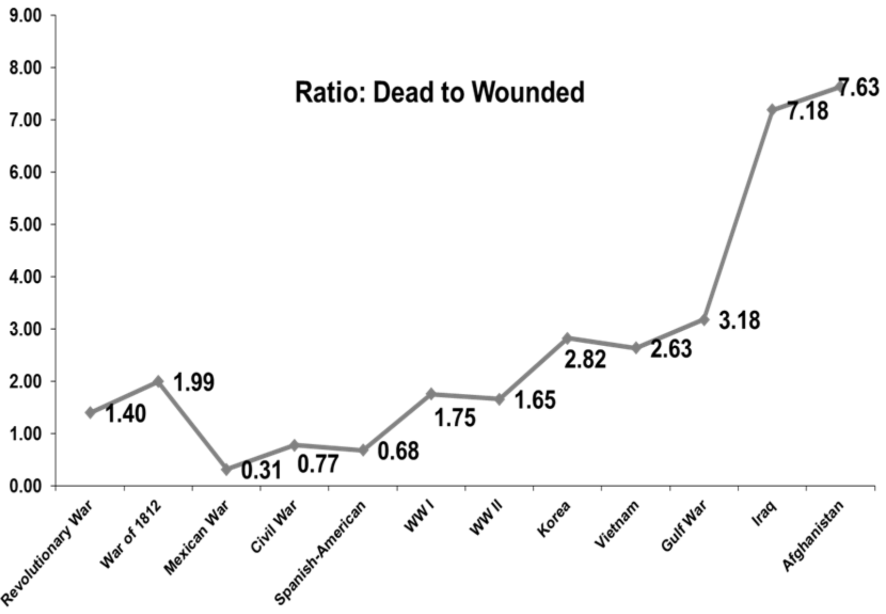
> Th[e] newest type of casualty coming out of this our newest war involves severe and devastating multiple traumas: severe head injuries, vision and hearing loss, nerve damage, bone fractures, contaminated wounds, severed limbs, transected spinal cords along with emotional and behavioral problems. And the numbers of patients with these multiple awful wounds increase every month of the war.

Id. at 143.

75. Robert Carroll, quoted in Karl Vick, The Lasting Wounds of War: Roadside Bombs Have Devastated Troops and Doctors Who Treat Them, WASH. POST (Apr. 27, 2004), http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A44839-2004Apr26_2.html; see also Ann M. Hendricks & Jomana H. Amara, Current Veteran Demographics and Implications for Veterans' Health Care, in RETURNING WARS' WOUNDED, INJURED, AND ILL: A REFERENCE HANDBOOK 17 (Nathan D. Ainspan & Walter E. Penk eds., 2008) ("Battlefield medicine, evacuation procedures, and battlefield medical support services have evolved tremendously leading to greater survival rates for troops.").

and or psychological injuries."[76] The most common trio of symptoms are Traumatic Brain Injury ("TBI"), PTSD, and pain.[77] Many veterans also have substance abuse challenges.[78] Moreover, these substance use problems are comorbid with other psychiatric illnesses.[79]

Figure 4. Ratio of Killed in Action to Wounded in Action, Revolutionary War through Afghanistan



What to Notice in Figure 4: The graph illustrates how the United States' proportion of Killed in Action ("KIA") to Wounded in Action ("WIA") soldiers has increased substantially in the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. This is due in large part to major advances in medical technology on the battlefield, which now allows many soldiers to avoid death from injuries that in earlier wars would have been fatal.

---

76. John Linck & Jared Benge, The Psychological Assessment of Veterans with History of Polytrauma, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERANS 404 (Shane S. Bush ed., 2014).

77. Id. at 409.

78. Dominick Dephilippis et al., Psychological Assessment of Veterans with Substance Use Disorders, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERANS, supra note 76, at 177.

79. Id. at 185.

In addition to these types of brain injuries, the RAND Corporation's 2008 study of the psychological consequences of Operation Enduring Freedom ("OEF") and Operation Iraqi Freedom ("OIF") makes clear that our current wars have taken an immense toll on returning soldiers' mental health.[80] The data plotted in Figure 4 undercount the actual number of soldiers wounded in action because the data (from the DOD) used to generate Figure 4 do not include "mental" injuries as wounds.[81]

---

80. Traumatic Brain Injury has been center stage since the start of the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. Mild TBI is diagnosed when a person has:

> a traumatically-induced physiological disruption of brain function, as manifested by at least one of the following: (1) any period of loss of consciousness; (2) any loss of memory for events immediately before or after the event; (3) any alteration in mental state at the time of the accident (eg, feeling dazed, disoriented, or confused); and (4) focal neurological deficit or deficits that may or may not have been transient; but where the severity of the injury does not exceed the following: loss of consciousness of approximately 30 minutes or less; after 30 minutes, an initial Glasgow Coma Scale (GCS) of 13–15; and posttraumatic amnesia (PTA) not greater than 24 hours.

AM. CONG. OF REHABILITATION MED., DEFINITION OF MILD TRAUMATIC BRAIN INJURY (1993), https://www.acrm.org/wp-content/uploads/pdf/TBIDef_English_10-10.pdf. The Veterans Administration has made a number of changes in its services for veterans experiencing brain trauma, such as the creation of more robust rehab units. Kurt Samson, VA Reinforces Stateside Rehab Units for Iraq Blast Injuries, NEUROLOGY TODAY, Apr. 2006, at 18. The Government Accountability Office ("GAO") found in 2008 that the VA has improved its screening for Mild TBI, though it also suggested a number of policy reforms designed to make assessment more effective. U.S. GOV'T ACCOUNTABILITY OFF., GAO-08-276, VA HEALTH CARE: MILD TRAUMATIC BRAIN INJURY SCREENING AND EVALUATION IMPLEMENTED FOR OEF/OIF VETERANS, BUT CHALLENGES REMAIN 5 (2008), http://www.gao.gov/assets/280/271988.pdf. We do not suggest, however, that it is only in recent wars that mental injuries have been prevalent. It has been observed well before that "[t]he power of the battlefield to break men can never be overstated." David Marlowe, The Human Dimension of Battle and Combat Breakdown, in MILITARY PSYCHIATRY: A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE 7 (Richard A. Gabriel ed., 1986).

81. Moreover, it also excludes civilian casualties. An MIT project on the human costs of war tracks civilian casualties and a natural extension of our argument would be that civilian casualty counts should consider distributions across the socioeconomic spectrum. See Iraq: the Human Cost, MIT CTR. FOR INT'L STUDIES, http://web.mit.edu/humancostiraq/ (last visited Mar. 10, 2016).

Before moving on to discuss inequality and non-fatal casualties, we should be clear that we are not arguing that soldiers are somehow treated differently when coming off the battlefield with injuries. When a soldier is injured in Afghanistan or Iraq, he or she is typically transported to Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany.[82] At Landstuhl, soldiers are treated for a variety of injuries and are screened for traumatic brain injury.[83] Soldiers are also evacuated to Landstuhl for psychiatric evaluations.[84] We have seen no studies suggesting differential treatment at these stages.

While in the Department of Defense's hospital system care may be state-of-the-art,[85] upon leaving active duty, the burden of care falls upon the medical services provided by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.[86]

---

82. Harold L. Timboe & Richard R. Timboe, America's Wounded Warriors, GPSOLO, Jan./Feb. 2005, at 26, 27, http://www.americanbar.org/newsletter/publications/gp_solo_magazine_home/gp_solo_magazine_index/amer wounded.html ("The Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany receives casualties from Europe, Africa, and the Middle East."); see also Joachim J. Tenuta, From The Battlefields to the States: The Road To Recovery. The Role of Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in US Military Casualty Care, 14 J. AM. ACAD. ORTHOPAEDIC SURGEONS S45, S45–S47 (2006); Raymond Fang et al., Critical Care at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center, 36 CRITICAL CARE MED. S383 (2008); Brent A. Johnson, Operation Iraqi Freedom: The Landstuhl Regional Medical Center Experience, 44 J. FOOT & ANKLE SURGERY 177 (2005).

83. Kenneth E. Dempsey et al., Landstuhl Regional Medical Center: Traumatic Brain Injury Screening Program, 16 J. TRAUMA NURSING 6 (2009).

84. James R. Rundell, Demographics of and Diagnoses in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom Personnel Who Were Psychiatrically Evacuated From The Theater Of Operations, 28 GEN. HOSP. PSYCHIATRY 352, 352 (2006) ("Between the beginning of Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF; US military operations in Afghanistan) and Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF; US military operations in Iraq) and July 2004, 12,480 medical, surgical and psychiatric evacuees from the theaters of operation were sent to the Landstuhl Regional Medical Center (LRMC) in Germany. The LRMC received virtually all evacuees leaving OEF and OIF during the reference period. One thousand two hundred sixty-four of those patients (10.1%) were sent to be managed primarily by psychiatry.").

85. GLASSER, supra note 21, at 48.

86. Id. at 49.

B. Social Determinants of Veterans' Brain Health

Recognizing that the number of wounded soldiers is large, what can be said about the relationship between the health of these soldiers and the socioeconomic inequality identified in Part II? To start, we note that veterans have experienced unemployment, housing difficulties, and mental health afflictions, including a high suicide rate.[87] But not all veterans have experienced this equally.[88] So the question becomes: What factors differentiate those veterans who experience mental injury from those who do not?

Decades of research on the social determinants of health have made clear this conclusion: "Life chances differ greatly depending on where people are born and raised."[89] Inequality in so-

---

87. McCarl, supra note 15, at 398; Randi Jensen, Military Suicidality and Principles to Consider in Prevention, in WAR TRAUMA AND ITS WAKE: EXPANDING THE CIRCLE OF HEALING 156 (Raymond M. Scurfield & Katherine T. Platoni eds., 2013). Some of this may have been exacerbated by the use of the stop-loss policy, which "permits the retention of enlisted service members past the end of active obligated service (EAOS) as initially agreed upon in their enlistment contracts," and was used extensively in the wars in Iraq. Ivey, supra note 27, at 548. Court challenges to the military use of the stop-loss policy were unsuccessful, even for the National Guard. Stop-loss was halted in 2011. Id. ("Although the Stop-Loss policy is not purely an invention of recent conflicts, the last decade marks the first time the military has used the policy so broadly.").

88. Not explored in this Article are the differential experiences, and resulting treatment, of females as compared to males. We do not have a sufficient knowledge base yet. See Shirley M. Glynn, Impact on Family and Friends, in RETURNING WARS' WOUNDED, INJURED, AND ILL, supra note 75, at 175 ("Little information exists now on the special needs of female warfighters and their careers, and the research field is in its infancy."). However, there is some evidence that female soldiers have a greater incidence of psychiatric disorder. See, e.g., Stephanie Booth-Kewley et al., Predictors of Psychiatric Disorders in Combat Veterans, 13 BMC PSYCHIATRY 130 (2013); Olympia Duhart, PTSD and Women Warriors: Causes, Controls and a Congressional Cure, 18 CARDOZO J.L. & GENDER 327 (2012); Rundell, supra note 84; Michelle Wilmot, Women Warriors: From Making Milestones in the Military to Community Reintegration, in WAR TRAUMA AND ITS WAKE, supra note 87, at 83–85.

89. Michael Marmot et al., Closing the Gap in a Generation: Health Equity Through Action On The Social Determinants Of Health, 372 LANCET 1661, 1661 (2008).

cioeconomic resources is related to inequality in health outcomes.[90]

This insight, while often used in conversations about cross-national heath policy, also has implications for U.S. social policy on veterans care. In short: Inequality in pre-service opportunity is likely to lead to inequality in post-service options, and thus to an unequal distribution of health outcomes. We posit that one (though certainly not the only) reason we see some soldiers develop mental health issues, while others are able to resume life more seamlessly, is a lack of social supports.[91]

We do not have direct evidence for this claim, and indeed we are not aware of a publicly available dataset that would allow us to answer it. But even without direct evidence, the circumstantial case seems to us very strong.[92]

To start, Naval Health Research Center researcher Stephanie Booth-Kewley conducted a longitudinal study of mental health outcomes in 1,113 Marines who served in Iraq in OIF or Afghanistan in OEF.[93] Eighteen percent of the Marines in the study received a psychiatric diagnosis during the observation period.[94] Common diagnoses were anxiety disorders, mood disorders, substance abuse disorders, adjustment disorders, and PTSD.[95] Included in the analysis was the Marine's education level, and the researchers found that even when controlling for combat exposure, more education was associated with a lower incidence of a psychi-

---

90. We also know, from emerging research, that socioeconomic status affects brain development. Daniel A. Hackman & Martha J. Farah, Socioeconomic Status and the Developing Brain, 13 TRENDS COGNITIVE SCI. 65 (2009).

91. Sociologist Alair MacLean has recognized that "veterans may have worse health than non-veterans not because they served in the military, but because they came from socioeonomically disadvantaged backgrounds and have fewer years of schooling." MacLean, supra note 30, at 207.

92. Our observations here are necessarily preliminary, as "[r]esearchers are only just beginning to thoroughly explore the long-term consequences of physical and psychological wounds for service members' family relationships." Elaine Willerton et al., Introduction: Military Families under Stress: What We Know and What We Need to Know, in RISK AND RESILIENCE IN U.S. MILITARY FAMILIES 13 (Shelley MacDermid Wadsworth & David S. Riggs eds., 2010).

93. Booth-Kewley et al., supra note 88, at 130.

94. Id. at 135.

95. Id.

atric disorder.[96] Less education was associated with a greater incidence of PTSD,[97] anxiety disorders, and adjustment disorders.[98]

There is also evidence that, on average, the demographics of those treated for psychiatric disorders differs from those of the general fighting force. Psychiatrist James Rundell's study of soldiers treated for psychiatric disorders at Landstuhl found that enlisted soldiers were significantly more likely to be treated for psychiatric disorders than were officers.[99] Because enlisted soldiers are more likely to be from the lower rungs of the socioeconomic ladder, this suggests an uneven burden.[100]

Moreover, there is also evidence that PTSD varies by rank in the military: Officers are significantly less likely than enlisted personnel to develop PTSD.[101] Researchers suggest that this may

---

96. Id. at 136 ("[S]ignificant predictors of mental disorder diagnosis included education level (more education was protective), marital status (being divorced was associated with the highest risk), total number of career combat deployments (multiple deployments was associated with the highest risk), combat exposure (moderate exposure was associated with the highest risk), and positive deployment experiences (a moderate level was the most protective).").

97. Id. at 138 ("Four additional variables had marginally significant ($p <$ .10) associations with PTSD: education, unit cohesion, positive deployment experiences, and total number of career combat deployments.").

98. Id. ("Other predictors of anxiety disorders ($p <$ .05) included female gender, education, number of combat deployments, and deployment stressors.").

99. Rundell, supra note 84, at 354. ("When compared with all returned OEF and OIF veterans (N=213,150), psychiatric evacuees were more likely to be . . . enlisted (96% vs. 86%; P<.001) . . . .").

100. Rundell also found that National Guard soldiers were more likely to be evacuated for psychiatric disorders than active-duty military. Id. ("When compared with all returned OEF and OIF veterans (N=213,150), psychiatric evacuees were more likely to be . . . National Guard/Reserve, as opposed to active-duty military (34% vs. 26%; P<.001).").

101. Jessica Wolfe et al., Course and Predictors of Posttraumatic Stress Disorder Among Gulf War Veterans: A Prospective Analysis, 67 J. OF CONSULTING & CLINICAL PSYCHOL. 520, 526 ("[O]fficer rank could serve a protective function. Officers in our study showed negligible levels of PTSD, suggesting that nonofficer rank was influential in the exacerbation of PTSD over time. This protective effect could relate to any number of factors, including differences in entrance-level characteristics, differences in training and preparation, or variations in actual wartime exposure. Although we cannot know for certain, it is possible that these vulnerabilities do not appear until certain contextual resources (e.g., the support of the military environment) are withdrawn."); see also David T. Holmes et al., Preliminary Evidence of Psychological Distress be both because the enlisted soldiers have different entry-level characteristics and because they have fewer supports upon the end of their service commitment.[102]

In addition, a number of other studies have identified social class as a risk factor for a range of veteran health outcomes:

- Soldiers who return to strong support environments may fare better in terms of mental health than peers who lack such supports.[103]

- Social support can help to prevent the onset of PTSD.[104]

- Veterans with stronger social networks are less likely to have PTSD.[105]

- The incidence of depression in veterans is correlated with education level and rank.[106]

- Substance abuse may be exacerbated by low-income status.[107]

Among Reservists in the Persian Gulf War, 186 J. NERVOUS & MENTAL DISEASE 166 (1998).

102. Wolfe et al., supra note 101, at 526.

103. Bradley E. Belsher et al., The Social Context of Post-Trauma Adjustment in Veterans, in THE PRAEGER HANDBOOK OF VETERANS' HEALTH, supra note 11, at 200.

104. Chris R. Brewin, Bernice Andrews & John D. Valentine, Meta-analysis of Risk Factors for Posttraumatic Stress Disorder In Trauma-Exposed Adults, 68 J. OF CONSULTING & CLINICAL PSYCHOL. 748 (2000); Emily J. Ozer, Suzanne R. Best, Tami L. Lipsey & Daniel S. Weiss, Predictors of Posttraumatic Stress Disorder and Symptoms in Adults: A Meta-Analysis, 129 PSYCHOL. BULL. 52 (2003).

105. It is not clear, however, if this correlation is causation. It could be that those veterans who develop PTSD cause their friends/families to distance themselves. MacLean, supra note 30, at 217.

106. Anne M. Gadermann et al., Prevalence of DSM-IV Major Depression Among U.S. Military Personnel: Meta-Analysis and Simulation, 177 MIL. MED. 47, 57 (2012) ("Current prevalence among military personnel was estimated to be higher for women than men, young than old, the unmarried than the married, and those with lower than higher rank and education. These correlates are broadly consistent with those found in general population surveys.").

Beyond the veteran her/himself, there are ripple effects on family members. A family's economic standing affects how well they adjust during the soldier's deployment.[108] If a veteran returns from deployment injured, family members must often pick up the slack, and this compounds the economic crunch. Family members "may be forced to take unpaid leave . . . [or] relinquish jobs or sources of income."[109] As one wife of an injured soldier said, "We are nobody . . . we don't have a lot of money."[110] There can even be ripple effects in terms of child maltreatment, as a stable income (as well as two-parent families and low drug use) reduces the likelihood of child maltreatment in the face of deployment, while family stress during deployment can do the opposite.[111]

In these many ways, the Two Americas of military sacrifice extend well beyond the battlefield.

V. THE POLITICAL COSTS OF CASUALTY INEQUALITY

Inequality in military casualties most directly affects injured service members themselves and the families and communities that care for them when they return home. However, the political ramifications of casualty inequality are also considerable.

In this Part, we examine how greater public awareness of wartime sacrifice, including its significant inequality dimension, may have profound consequences for military policymaking in America. We show that Americans view inequality in military sacrifice as qualitatively different from and more troubling than inequality in other spheres of American life (Section A), informing Americans of inequality changes their support for war (Section B),

---

107. Dephilippis et al., supra note 78, at 187 ("Substance use can cause and/or be a consequence of psychosocial problems such as low income . . . .").

108. Shelley A. Riggs & David S. Riggs, Risk and Resilience in Military Families Experiencing Deployment: The Role of the Family Attachment Network, 25 J. FAM. PSYCHOL. 675, 681 (2011) ("[I]mportant contextual layers are intergenerational processes, the military unit, and the family's social and economic resources.").

109. Lee Lawrence, Physically Wounded and Injured Warriors and Their Families: The Long Journey Home, in WAR TRAUMA AND ITS WAKE, supra note 87, at 145.

110. Id. at 146.

111. Deborah A. Gibbs et al., Child Maltreatment Within Military Families, in RISK AND RESILIENCE IN U.S. MILITARY FAMILIES, supra note 92, at 123.

and that non-fatal casualties are less politically salient than fatal casualties (Section C). The combination of these effects suggests that the invisibility of casualty inequality artificially inflates public support for war and the leaders who wage it.

A. Is Inequality in Military Sacrifice Different From Other Forms of Inequality?

Increasing levels of socioeconomic inequality affect virtually every aspect of contemporary American life, including educational opportunity, health outcomes, and exposure to crime. No doubt inequality in casualties is related to these other types of inequality. And this raises the question: should we pay special attention to inequality in military sacrifice?

We believe the answer is yes. Americans find inequality in military sacrifice to be particularly troubling because it violates a long-cherished norm of shared martial sacrifice. Indeed, George Washington labeled shared service obligations as a core responsibility of democratic citizenship: "Every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government, owes not only a portion of his property, but even of his personal service to the defense of it."[112] Risking and laying down one's life for the defense of country is the greatest sacrifice the state can ask of its citizens. As a result, there are strong reasons to believe that Americans will view inequality in military sacrifice as qualitatively different from inequality arising in other realms.

To explore how the public views military service relative to other high risk occupations, we included the following question on an internet-based survey: "Many jobs and careers require sacrifices of various types. Compared to other jobs and careers that involve high risk, do you think that military service is a unique type of career?" More than ninety percent of respondents answered that a job in the military is, indeed, different from other high-risk jobs.[113]

The vast majority of Americans may agree that military service is different from other forms of high-risk occupations. But is inequality in military sacrifice more normatively troubling than other forms of inequality that are pervasive in contemporary American society? To explore this question, we conducted a follow-up internet-based survey. First, all participants in the survey were told about inequality in military sacrifice.[114] Each participant was then asked: "Do you think it is important to address inequality in military sacrifice?" Eighty-two percent of the sample replied "Yes." We then followed up with those who answered yes and asked, "Do you think inequality in military sacrifice is more important to address than other types of inequality in American life?" Seventy-one percent said yes, it is more important.

112. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 4 n.7.
113. Additional details on this experiment are provided in the Appendix.

The survey data is consistent with the common-sense practices evident in so many aspects of American life. We provide uniformed soldiers with upgraded seats on plane flights; we salute them at sporting events; and we annually celebrate their sacrifices on Memorial Day and Veterans Day. While other occupations also involve risk to physical health, Americans agree that there is something unique about sacrifice as part of the U.S. military.

B. How Americans React to Information About Inequality

One potential mechanism to ameliorate inequality in military sacrifice is to reduce overall sacrifice: that is, to be more hesitant before sending troops into combat. Political scientists have established that "casualty aversion" affects policymaking.[115]

The theory owes its origin to political theorist Immanuel Kant.[116] The crux of his logic focused on how democratic publics would hold their leaders accountable for costly wars. The public must pay both the financial costs of waging war as well as the toll it exacts in blood. As a result, only in the most exigent of circumstances will democratic citizens support going to war. And by ex-

---

114. The text provided was: "There is evidence that the American soldiers who are dying in combat and those who are returning home wounded come disproportionately from parts of the country that are lower on the socioeconomic scale. That said, many jobs require sacrifices, and there is socioeconomic inequality in many aspects of American society."

115. See Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen, Reassessing American Casualty Sensitivity: The Mediating Influence of Inequality, 58 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 1174 (2013); Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen, How Citizens Respond to Combat Casualties: The Differential Impact of Local Casualties on Support for the War in Afghanistan, 76 PUB. OPINION Q. 761 (2012).

116. IMMANUEL KANT, PERPETUAL PEACE AND OTHER ESSAYS 113 (Ted Humphrey trans., 1983) (1795).

tension, they will punish at the ballot box leaders who plunge their countries into costly foreign wars. This basic logic is the foundation of many arguments for the influential "democratic peace" theory.[117]

Recent history, however, fails to comport with Kant's compelling logic. Repeatedly, the American public has supported the use of military force to achieve a wide array of foreign policy objectives.[118] Moreover, while public support for recent wars in Iraq and Afghanistan has fallen as their costs mounted, both wars and the leaders who waged them long enjoyed significant public support, despite costs and casualty figures that far exceeded those promised by politicians in Washington.[119] The democratic brake on costly military policies was much weaker than posited.[120]

---

117. See generally BRUCE BUENO DE MESQUITA & DAVID LALMAN, WAR AND REASON: DOMESTIC AND INTERNATIONAL IMPERATIVES (1992); JAMES LEE RAY, DEMOCRACY AND INTERNATIONAL CONFLICT: AN EVALUATION OF THE DEMOCRATIC PEACE PROPOSITION (1995); DAN REITER & ALLAN STAM, DEMOCRACIES AT WAR (1998); BRUCE RUSSETT, CONTROLLING THE SWORD: THE DEMOCRATIC GOVERNANCE OF NATIONAL SECURITY (1990); Bruce Bueno de Mesquita, James Morrow, Randolph Siverson & Alastair Smith, An Institutional Explanation of the Democratic Peace, 93 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 791 (2003); Zeev Maoz & Bruce Russett, Normative and Structural Causes of Democratic Peace, 1946–1986, 87 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 624 (1993); Clifton T. Morgan & Sally Campbell, Domestic Structure, Decisional Constraints, and War, 35 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 187 (1991).

118. Richard Eichenberg, Victory Has Many Friends: U.S. Public Opinion and the Use of Military Force, 1981-2005, 30 INT'L SECURITY 140, 140–77 (2005).

119. For example, the Congressional Budget Office estimated the Iraq War itself would cost $14 billion and then $8 to $10 billion a month for an unspecified period of time. The Bush administration estimated the war would cost approximately $50 billion, and it fired Larry Lindsay for speculating that the war might cost as much as $200 billion. Seth Cline, The Underestimated Costs, and Price Tag, of the Iraq War, U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT (March 20, 2013), http://www.usnews.com/news/blogs/press-past/2013/03/20/the-underestimated-costs-and-price-tag-of-the-iraq-war; James Fallows, Paying the Costs of Iraq for Decades to Come, THE ATLANTIC (Mar. 29, 2013), http://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2013/03/paying-the-costs-of-iraq-for-decades-to-come/274477/. Most contemporary estimates of the Iraq War's costs are in the trillions. JOSEPH STIGLITZ & LINDA BILMES, THE THREE TRILLION DOLLAR WAR: THE TRUE COST OF THE IRAQ CONFLICT x (2008).

120. On casualties and public support for the Iraq War, see Christopher Gelpi, Peter D. Feaver & Jason Reifler, Success Matters: Casualty Sensitivity

Would citizens be more reticent to support ongoing wars and to engage in new ones if they were informed of the significant socioeconomic inequality sacrifice that has characterized recent American wars? To answer this question, in previous research we conducted a series of experiments embedded on nationally representative public opinion surveys.

In the first experiment, conducted in September of 2007, we explored the influence of information about inequality in sacrifice on popular evaluations of the Iraq War.[121] Subjects assigned to our control group were told nothing about inequality in military sacrifice. Subjects in our main treatment group were told that many of America's more than 3,700 casualties to date in the Iraq War hailed from socioeconomically disadvantaged casualties.[122] Four and a half years after the commencement of the Iraq War, most Americans had firmly made up their minds either to support or oppose the conflict. However, we found that even this modest treatment significantly raised opposition to the Iraq War. In our treatment group, 62% of respondents judged the Iraq War a mistake versus only 56% in the control group, a modest but statistically significant difference.[123] If questions of inequality in sacrifice had received sustained attention and national debate, the adverse consequences on support for the Iraq War likely would have been far greater.

In 2009 we conducted a similar experiment on a second nationally representative survey to examine the influence of information about the Two Americas of military sacrifice on Americans' willingness to support the use of force in future endeavors. All subjects were told of the number of American service members and the War in Iraq, 30 INT'L SECURITY 7 (2005/2006); Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen, Iraq Casualties and the 2006 Senate Elections, 32 LEGIS. STUD. Q. 507, 516–23 (2007); Erik Voeten & Paul Brewer, Public Opinion, the War in Iraq, and Presidential Accountability, 50 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 809 (2006). On the costs of the Iraq War, see STIGLITZ & BILMES, supra note 119.

---

121. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 96–97.

122. In both this and the experiment that follows we included a second experiment treatment claiming that military sacrifice is shared equally. This treatment produced results substantively similar to those observed in the control. This suggests that most Americans implicitly assume shared sacrifice, unless provided with information explicitly contradicting it.

123. See KRINER & SHEN, supra note 18, at 94–97.

who died in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and Iraq. Those in the control group received no further information. Those in the inequality treatment group were told that in most of these wars poor communities have suffered significantly higher casualty rates than rich communities.

Following an established literature in political science that measures casualty sensitivity, we then asked all respondents how many casualties they would be willing to accept for the United States to achieve a range of foreign policy goals: stabilizing a democratic government in Liberia; stopping ethnic cleansing in Darfur; eliminating Iran's nuclear program; and killing or capturing al Qaeda operatives in Somalia.

In each case except the humanitarian intervention (Darfur), we found that Americans informed of casualty inequality in previous wars were significantly less willing to sustain casualties in future military missions. Moreover, these effects were even stronger among residents of communities that had experienced inequality in military sacrifice firsthand in the form of disproportionately high casualty rates in the Iraq War.[124]

C. The Invisible Politics of Non-Fatal Casualties

Although the constraint exercised by public opinion on costly military policies is perhaps not as strong as theory suggests, a mass of empirical scholarship confirms that American support for war sours as war costs mount.[125] A robust literature has examined the effects of fatal combat casualties on presidential approval,[126] support for the military campaign,[127] and presidential and congressional election results.[128]

---

124. See Kriner & Shen, supra note 115, at 1186–89.

125. Following John Mueller's lead, most studies on the effects of war casualties have defined casualties as battle deaths. JOHN MUELLER, WAR, PRESIDENTS, AND PUBLIC OPINION (1973).

126. Richard Eichenberg, Richard Stoll & Matthew Lebo, War President: The Approval Ratings of George W. Bush, 50 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 783, 784–89 (2006); Michael Nickelsburg & Helmut Norpoth, Commander-in-Chief or Chief Economist? The President in the Eye of the Public, 19 ELECTORAL STUD. 313 (2000).

127. PETER FEAVER & CHRISTOPHER GELPI, CHOOSING YOUR BATTLES: AMERICAN CIVIL-MILITARY RELATIONS AND THE USE OF FORCE 102–05 (2004); ERIC V. LARSON, CASUALTIES AND CONSENSUS: THE HISTORICAL ROLE OF CASUALTIES IN DOMESTIC SUPPORT FOR U.S. MILITARY OPERATIONS 5–49

Similarly, scholarship confirms that presidents and members of Congress who support costly wars pay a price at the polls.[129] Particularly in the smaller scale wars that characterize American military actions since World War II, casualties have been the primary way in which most Americans see a war's costs.[130] However, the literature is almost completely silent on (1996); Adam J. Berinksy & James N. Druckman, Public Opinion Research And Support For The Iraq War, 71 PUB. OPINION Q. 126, 129–31 (2007); William A. Boettcher III & Michael D. Cobb, Echoes of Vietnam?: Casualty Framing and Public Perceptions of Success and Failure in Iraq, 50 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 831, 848–49 (2006); Scott Gartner & Gary Segura, War, Casualties, and Public Opinion, 42 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 278, 279–81 (1998); Gelpi, Feaver & Reifler, supra note 120.

128. Timothy Cotton, War and American Democracy: Electoral Costs of the Last Five Wars, 30 J. CONFLICT RESOL. 616, 618–25 (1986); Christopher Gelpi, Jason Reifler & Peter Feaver, Iraq the Vote: Retrospective and Prospective Foreign Policy Judgments on Candidate Choice and Casualty Tolerance, 29 POL. BEHAV. 151, 160–66 (2007); Christian Grose & Bruce Oppenheimer, The Iraq War, Partisanship, and Candidate Attributes: Explaining Variation in Partisan Swing in the 2006 U.S. House Elections, 32 LEGIS. STUD. Q. 531, 533–36 (2007); David Karol & Edward Miguel, The Electoral Cost of War: Iraq Casualties and the 2004 U.S. Presidential Election, 69 J. POL. 633 (2007); Kriner & Shen, supra note 120, at 509–13.

129. Jamie Carson et al., The Impact of National Tides and District-Level Effects on Electoral Outcomes: The U.S. Congressional Elections of 1862-63, 42 AM. J. POL. SCI. 887, 894–98 (2001); Scott Sigmund Gartner & Gary M. Segura, All Politics Are Still Local: The Iraq War and the 2006 Midterm Elections, 41 POL. SCI. & POL. 95, 96–98 (2008); Scott Sigmund Gartner, Gary M. Segura & Bethany A. Barratt, War Casualties, Policy Positions, and the Fate of Legislators, 53 POL. RES. Q. 467, 469–70 (2004); Christian Grose & Bruce Oppenheimer, supra note 128, at 533–36; Karol & Miguel, supra note 128, at 633–36; Kriner & Shen, supra note 120, at 509–13; Douglas L. Kriner & Andrew Reeves, The Influence of Federal Spending on Presidential Elections, 106 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 348, 350 (2012).

130. John Aldrich et al., Foreign Policy and the Electoral Connection, 9 ANN. REV. POL. SCI. 477, 481 (2006) ("Combat casualties are important because the willingness to pay the costs of war is one of the central mechanism by which public opinion might affect foreign policy choices."); Scott S. Gartner, Secondary Casualty Information: Casualty Uncertainty, Female Casualties, and Wartime Support, 25 CONFLICT MGMT. & PEACE SCI. 98, 99–101 (2008).

whether increases in non-fatal casualties produce similar dynamics.[131]

We argue that there are strong reasons to expect non-fatal casualties—despite their large numbers and the significant socioeconomic inequality they create—to be less politically salient than fatal casualties. First, Americans may simply discount wounds versus deaths as they seek to measure the human costs of war. Second, non-fatal casualties may be less visible than fatal casualties.

As the existing political science literature recognizes, the return of a wounded soldier often does not generate the same community response as the return of a deceased soldier. The death of a soldier is typically followed by a well-attended funeral and considerable local media attention.[132] The return of a wounded soldier does not usually trigger the same sort of coverage in local media outlets; however, this is a claim subject to further examination since stories in the popular press have appeared in major newspapers and magazines.[133] For instance, in 2004 the New York Times Magazine ran a cover story on returning soldiers which gar-

131. An important, if sometimes overlooked, exception is Jeffrey Milstein's study of Vietnam. JEFFREY S. MILSTEIN, DYNAMICS OF THE VIETNAM WAR: A QUANTITATIVE ANALYSIS AND PREDICTIVE COMPUTER SIMULATION 20, 55 (1973), https://kb.osu.edu/dspace/bitstream/handle/1811/24664/1/DYNAMICS_OF_THE_VIETNAM_WAR.pdf. Milstein's definition included non-fatal casualties: "U.S. casualties are measured by ten times the number of U.S. troops killed in action, plus the number of wounded requiring hospitalization, plus half the number wounded not requiring hospitalization." Id. at 20. Thus, Milstein was able to conclude from his analysis that "[t]he most significant costs to the American people were the number of American 'boys' killed and wounded in Vietnam." Id. at 55. This notable exception aside, however, the field has relied on battle deaths as their measure of casualties. See Karol & Miguel, supra note 128 (examining the localized electoral effects of Iraq War casualties in the 2004 Presidential election).

132. Gartner & Segura, supra note 129, at 95.

133. See, e.g., Solotaroff, supra note 13. Systematic analysis of media coverage does not yet exist, and indeed such systematic analysis of battle deaths is just now emerging. Scott L. Althaus et al., Uplifting Manhood to Wonderful Heights? Newspaper Reporting of American Combat Deaths from World War One to Gulf War Two, Presentation at Midwest Political Science Association (April 3–6, 2008), http://faculty.las.illinois.edu/salthaus/Publications/uplifting%20manhood%20paper.pdf.

nered significant attention.[134] Investigative journalism by Washington Post reporters spurred reforms at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.[135] And journalist Mark Benjamin won awards for his continued investigative journalism on the return of wounded soldiers, and the military's sub-standard treatment of them.[136]

Moreover, if the returning soldier's wounds are not physically visible, community members or even family and friends may not know the true extent of the soldier's hardships. This lower visibility could theoretically dampen the likelihood of individual event response, the transmission of elite cues concerning wartime costs, and sustained coverage of the full consequences of war in media outlets. To the extent that the costs paid by wounded soldiers are more removed from the public eye, the behavior of the public and public officials should not be altered.[137]

In an empirical analysis, detailed in the Appendix, we find that, at least in the 2006 midterms—an election in which the Iraq War was perhaps the most salient issue—non-fatal casualties did not have the same resonance with voters as fatal casualties. This does not mean that non-fatal casualties never have electoral ramifications.[138] However, if they did not in this context it is quite likely

---

134. Sara Corbett, The Permanent Scars of Iraq, N.Y. TIMES (Feb. 15, 2004), http://www.nytimes.com/2004/02/15/magazine/the-permanent-scars-of-iraq.html.

135. Kathy A. DeBarr, To Hell and Back: Wounded Warriors Return Home to Fight Yet Another Battle, 5 CAL. J. HEALTH PROMOTION 58, 61–63 (2007).

136. See UPI's Benjamin Honored for Military Reporting, UPI.COM, Feb. 4, 2004, http://www.upi.com/Business_News/Security-Industry/2004/02/04/UPIs-Benjamin-honored-for-Army-reporting/29781075950000/.

137. Of course, the significantly greater number of non-fatal casualties may compensate for the lower visibility of any one non-fatal casualty. Moreover, wounded soldiers have the ability to directly engage in the political process. These countervailing forces suggest an alternate hypothesis that non-fatal casualties may have just as significant if not even more so political ramifications as fatal casualties. We test between these competing hypotheses in the analyses that follow.

138. In the only other analysis of the electoral effects of non-fatal casualties on electoral outcomes, Karol and Miguel find modest evidence ($p < .10$) that a state's wounded in action rate depressed support for President George W. Bush in 2004 after controlling for the killed in action casualty rate. Karol & Miguel, supra note 128, at 633. However, the relationship between KIA rates and Bush's electoral fortunes was statistically stronger. Id.

that non-fatal casualties also fail to encourage voters to punish the incumbents for costly military policies at the ballot box in many other conflict environments. If voters punished pro-war incumbents for fatal and non-fatal casualties to the same degree, the democratic constraint on costly military policies would be considerably stronger.

D. Non-fatal Casualties and Public Support for the War in Afghanistan

To further assess the relative influence of information about fatal and non-fatal casualties on public support for war we employed a survey experimental approach.[139]

Subjects were randomly assigned to one of five experimental groups. In the first treatment group, we told subjects that 2,312 American service members had been killed to date in Afghanistan. In treatments two and three, we instead told subjects the number of non-fatal casualties sustained in Afghanistan. In the second treatment we informed subjects that 17,674 Americans had been wounded in action. The third treatment was identical to the second; however, this treatment reported a much larger figure, 217,674, which represents the estimated non-fatal casualty count when expanding the definition to include non-physical wounds, such as PTSD and other brain injuries, the estimated numbers are orders of magnitude higher. The fourth treatment also used the larger figure of non-fatal casualties, but it informed subjects that of these 17,674 were physical wounds while the rest were "invisible" wounds of war, such as depression and PTSD. Our final treatment was identical to the fourth, but it also informed subjects of the number of fatal casualties sustained in Afghanistan. Complete wording for each treatment is provided in the Appendix.

From March 1 to March 3, 2014, we recruited an online convenience sample of 337 subjects. Demographics, and additional details on the experimental method are reported in the Appendix.

---

139. Because fatal and non-fatal casualty rates are highly correlated, it is difficult to assess their relative influence on public opinion by examining aggregate time series opinion data alone. In an experimental approach, we can directly manipulate the information that subjects receive about casualties sustained in a conflict and examine how support for war varies across informational cues.

After reading a screen with some basic background information concerning the study, subjects were randomly assigned to one of the five treatment groups described above. All subjects were then asked the same question taken from previously published polls conducted by NBC News/The Wall Street Journal: "Do you think the war in Afghanistan against the Taliban and Al Qaeda has been very successful, somewhat successful, somewhat unsuccessful, or very unsuccessful?"

Because subjects were randomly assigned to one of the treatment groups, the resulting differences in means across treatments are unbiased. Figure 5 presents the percentage of respondents answering that the Afghan War has been very or somewhat successful across the five treatment groups.[140]

Consistent with the hypothesis that non-fatal casualties may not have the same resonance with the American public as fatal casualties, we observe a large and statistically significant ($p = .05$) difference in war support between the KIA and WIA treatments. Whereas only 44% of respondents who were only told of the 2,312 deaths judged the war very or somewhat successful, that number increased to 59% among the group told that 17,674 American soldiers had been wounded.[141] A difference this large is very unlikely to have emerged by random chance alone. Instead, the data strongly suggests that information about fatal casualties sustained in war can significantly lower support more than information about non-fatal casualties, even when the latter total is many times larger than the former.

Subjects in our third treatment group were told about the 200,000+ Americans wounded in war, physically or otherwise. In this treatment, we provided no additional context, but simply reported the estimated total of 217,674 wounded Americans. De-

---

140. The control group baseline is omitted here for ease of presentation. The mean in this control (50%) lies between that in the KIA and WIA treatments.

141. For comparative reference, the last time that the NBC/Wall Street Journal asked this question in January 12–15, 2013, fifty-five percent of Americans said that the war was either very or somewhat successful. See Mark Murray, NBC/WSJ Poll: Public Lowers Expectations Heading into Obama's 2nd Term, NBC NEWS (Jan. 17, 2013 3:30 PM), http://firstread.nbcnews.com/_news/2013/01/17/16570498-nbcwsj-poll-public-lowers-expectations-heading-into-obamas-2nd-term (citing polling data).

spite the staggeringly high total, the percentage of respondents in this treatment who judged the war a success was virtually identical to that in the WIA treatment, 58% versus 59%. Moreover, this figure is also significantly higher than that observed in the KIA treatment. It is striking that even when the number of non-fatal casualties reported is orders of magnitude larger, we find that public opinion is more opposed to the war when fatal casualties are discussed.

Our fourth treatment allows us to examine whether providing additional context for the much larger estimated figure of 217,674 American soldiers wounded in Afghanistan influences public support for the war. Subjects in this treatment were informed that only 17,674 of these non-fatal casualties involved physical wounds; the remainder suffered more "invisible" wounds, such as PTSD. The additional information had no effect on evaluations of the war, with virtually the same percentage judging the Afghan War a success as in the previous two non-fatal casualties treatments.

Finally, our fifth treatment was identical to the fourth, but it also informed subjects of the number of American soldiers who had died to date in Afghanistan. As shown in the final bar of Figure 5, the small additional prompt about the number of fatal casualties significantly decreased support for the war in Afghanistan with only 44% in this treatment judging the war a success. This difference in means across treatments four and five is statistically significant ($p < .10$). Finally, we can compare treatment five with our initial KIA treatment. Both informed subjects of the number of American soldiers who had died in the war; however, the final treatment added information about the very large number of non-fatal casualties the war has also produced. Did learning about non-fatal casualties further depress evaluations of the Afghan War? Our data suggests that it did not. The percentage judging the war a success was exactly the same in our first (KIA only) and last (KIA plus non-fatal casualty information) treatments. The differences in means presented in Figure 5 are supported by more robust ordered logit analyses reported in the Appendix.

The data tell a compelling story. They plainly suggest that the true driver of popular assessments of the Afghan War was information on fatal casualties; information about the much larger numbers of non-fatal casualties failed to lower popular beliefs about the war's success.

This has immediate and tangible ramifications for politics and policy. To an extent unparalleled in American history, the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have produced many more non-fatal than fatal casualties. And yet, non-fatal casualties fail to rally public sentiment against costly wars to the same extent as fatal casualties. This invisibility allows policymakers to wage war relatively free from the traditional democratic constraints on their actions.

Figure 5: Beliefs about Afghan War's Success by Experimental Treatment

% Believing War a Success 60%
50% 40%
30% 20% 10%
0% 44%
59%
58%
57%
44%
KIA
WIA
Total wounded
Total wounded + note
KIA + total wounded + note

What to Notice in Figure 5: The experimental data presented in Figure 5 illustrate that evaluations of the War in Afghanistan are most affected by fatal, and not non-fatal casualties, suggesting that the wounded in action remain more politically invisible. The mean in each of the three wounded casualty information treatments is significantly higher than in either of the two treatments reporting fatal casualty information, $p < .10$.

VI. DISCUSSION

We have shown to this point that there are indeed Two Americas with respect to military sacrifice; however, this reality is not routinely acknowledged. Moreover, we have shown that non-fatal casualties are rising vis-à-vis fatal casualties, yet those non-fatal casualties do not register politically in the same way.

In this final Part we discuss the implications of these findings. Why don't scholars and policymakers acknowledge this invisible inequality? Do current law and policy adequately account for the challenges posed by inequality in military sacrifice? Is there a legal avenue for reform? If not, what type of intervention is warranted? We consider in turn:

(A) Why the inequality of military service remains invisible;

(B) Why the inequality is worth addressing;

(C) Why current legislative attempts to improve care for veterans are not sufficient to address the inequality;

(D) Why courts are unlikely to intervene; and

(E) What would happen if the American public learned of the inequality?

A. Why Don't We Want To Talk About the Inequality of Military Service?

It is not always easy to talk about class and military sacrifice in America.[142] But why? What explains the invisibility of inequality in military sacrifice in policy debates? To explore this question, we replicated the analysis reported in Part II on subjects recruited to take an online survey.[143]

---

142. This has been noted in the context of military inequality. GLASSER, supra note 21, at 128 ("Social and economic class in America has never been a comfortable thing to talk about in private, much less to discuss in public."). Bunting observed that there is a "national uneasiness about the profoundly unequal sharing of the military burden in the early years of the twenty-first century." Bunting, supra note 24. He also wrote, "The issue of military conscription is deeply controversial, of course; and it is one of a family of public policy questions, recurrent and vexed, upon whose difficulties people advance, make nervous reconnaissances, and then withdraw, unwilling to engage them fully." Id.

143. From February 14–15, 2015, we recruited 314 subjects via Mechanical Turk to take an online survey on which we asked whether they believed there was a casualty gap. Additional details are provided in the Appendix.

We asked an internet convenience sample of 314 Americans: "Thinking about the American soldiers who have died fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan, what parts of the United States do you think they are coming from?" As in the survey described above, respondents had three choices: (i) More casualties are coming from poorer, less educated parts of the country; (ii) More casualties are coming from richer, more educated parts of the country; or (iii) There is not a significant difference in the share of casualties coming from rich/high education and poor/low education parts of the country.

But this time, we added another layer to our analysis by asking these same respondents to answer the question, "What do you think is the primary reason that motivates young men and women to join the United States Armed Forces?" Subjects were able to type in a response, and we then coded the responses into three variables: whether the respondent cited only patriotic motivations; only economic motivations; or a mix of the two. Twenty-five percent of respondents listed only patriotic motivations. Fifty-three percent of the respondents listed only socioeconomic motivations.

Differential beliefs in motivations for enlisting were correlated with being mistaken about inequality. People who believe in shared sacrifice also tend to believe that individuals join the military for purely patriotic, rather than economic, reasons. Whereas 65% of respondents who believe in a casualty gap cited socioeconomics as the only main motivation for enlisting, only 30% of those who rejected the existence of a casualty gap did so.[144]

The survey data suggests to us that part of the refusal to face up to inequality in military sacrifice is due to the belief that the unequal results are solely the result of freely-made individual choices.

The allure of choice is well documented in decades of research by social psychologists. Much of this work has built on Melvin Lerner's (1980) "just world" hypothesis that humans prefer to believe that individual choice, rather than the surrounding situation, is responsible for outcomes. The phenomenon is at work in law, and has been well documented by legal scholars such as Jon

144. This difference is statistically significant, $p < .001$.

Hanson and colleagues.[145] There is, in particular, a large body of literature in psychology discussing how the desire to believe that one is living in a just world can affect attitudes toward inequality and redistributive policies.[146]

For instance, experimental data show that we prefer to point to a rape victim's "poor choices" to explain the victim's assault, and like to give ourselves credit for individual hard work instead of fully appreciating the situational context.[147] The conclusion from this large body of research is clear: our situations determine our actions more than we would like to admit. The world is not "just," but we go to great lengths to make it so in our heads.

---

145. See Jon Hanson & David Yosifon, The Situational Character: A Critical Realist Perspective on the Human Animal, 93 GEO. L. J. 1 (2004); Jon Hanson & Adam Benforado, The Costs of Dispositionism: The Premature Demise of Situationist Law and Economics, 64 MD. L. REV. 24 (2005); Ronald Chen & Jon Hanson, Categorically Biased: The Influence of Knowledge Structures on Law and Legal Theory, 77 S. CAL. L. REV. 1106 (2004); Ronald Chen & Jon Hanson, The Illusion of Law: The Legitimating Schemas of Modern Policy and Corporate Law, 103 MICH. L. REV. 1 (2004); Jon Hanson & David Yosifon, The Situation: An Introduction to the Situational Character, Critical Realism, Power Economics, and Deep Capture, 152 U. PA. L. REV. 129, 132 (2003); Jon Hanson & Kathleen Hanson, The Blame Frame: Justifying Racial Oppression in America, 41 HARV. C.R.-C.L. L. REV. 413 (2006).

146. Lauren D. Appelbaum, Mary Clare Lennon & J. Lawrence Aber, When Effort Is Threatening: The Influence of the Belief in a Just World on Americans' Attitudes Toward Antipoverty Policy, 27 POL. PSYCHOL. 387, 390 (2006). See generally MELVIN J. LERNER, THE BELIEF IN A JUST WORLD: A FUNDAMENTAL DELUSION (1980); RESPONSES TO VICTIMIZATIONS AND BELIEF IN A JUST WORLD (Leo Montada & Melvin J. Lerner eds., 1998); Roland Bénabou & Jean Tirole, Belief in a Just World and Redistributive Politics, 121 Q. J. ECON. 699 (2006). These attitudes, of course, are not held uniformly by Americans and vary according to how the issue is framed or worded. Christopher Faricy & Christopher Ellis, Public Attitudes Toward Social Spending in the United States: The Differences Between Direct Spending And Tax Expenditures, 36 POL. BEHAV. 53, 58 (2014) ("[T]he way a social program is presented and framed to the public will have a substantial impact on citizens' support for it"); see also Max Rose & Frank R. Baumgartner, Framing the Poor: Media Coverage and U.S. Poverty Policy, 1960–2008, 41 POL'Y STUD. J. 22 (2013); Gregory A. Huber & Celia Paris, Assessing the Programmatic Equivalence Assumption in Question Wording Experiments Understanding Why Americans Like Assistance to the Poor More Than Welfare, 77 PUB. OP. Q. 385 (2013).

147. Francis X. Shen, How We Still Fail Rape Victims: Reflecting on Responsibility and Legal Reform, 22 COLUM. J. GENDER & L. 1, 1–2 (2011).

Reframing issues to downplay fundamental tensions is common in the realm of inequality in military service. In their book Tragic Choices, former Dean of Yale Law School and now Federal Judge Guido Calabresi, with law professor Philip Bobbit, addressed the issue head on. Recognizing that military manpower policies are not givens, but are the result of political choices, Calabresi and Bobbit observe that "[b]y making the result seem necessary, unavoidable, rather than chosen, it attempts to convert what is tragically chosen into what is merely a fatal misfortune."[148]

Like Calabresi and Bobbit, we believe that "[h]onesty is the most influential brace in the tragic equilibrium."[149] As the authors argue, "[t]he failure to make society aware of its implicit choices will diminish, with each averting of the eyes, the values of openness and honesty."[150]

The empirical reality is that the "choice" to join the military is contingent on a number of factors. To be sure, many who serve cite non-economic reasons, chief amongst them patriotic duty.[151] Some acknowledge that the economic benefits are also a factor.[152] Others point out that they didn't join for the money at all.[153] Some look to the military after deciding their lives are not what they want them to be.[154] They cite discipline, structure, and honor as

148. GUIDO CALABRESI & PHILLIP BOBBITT, TRAGIC CHOICES 21 (1978).

149. See id. at 26.

150. Id. at 48.

151. See Adam Silow, Why They Chose the Military, THE PRESS DEMOCRAT: TEEN LIFE (Aug. 29, 2012), http://teenlife.blogs.pressdemocrat.com/12004/why-they-chose-the-military/ (quoting many teens in a high school recruiting program as joining for patriotic reasons).

152. See Stacy Bare, Why I Joined the Army, HUFFPOST (Jan. 30, 2012), http://www.huffingtonpost.com/stacy-bare/army-experience_b_1240598.html (acknowledging that he received a free college education).

153. Matt, Comment to Why Did You Join?, RANGERUP (Aug. 18, 2010, 11:01 AM), http://rhinoden.rangerup.com/why-did-you-join/; Jeremy Leo, Comment to Why Young People Join the Military, WORDPRESS (Mar. 16, 2010, 9:49 PM), http://counterrecruiter.wordpress.com/2007/08/03/why-young-people-join-the-military/#comment-5688 ("[T]oo many young kids are joining the military of late just for money and all the wrong reasons.").

154. See, e.g., The Girls Guide to the AIR FORCE: The Reasons Why We Join, HUBPAGES (Mar. 28, 2012), http://hotpinkcombtboots.hubpages.com/hub/the-girls-guide-to-surviving-air-force-basic-military-training-the-embracing-the-military-lifestyle.

important reasons they join.[155] Some join because they think it is their moral responsibility.[156] Others join to support or give back to the country.[157] Many cite the desire to protect loved ones.[158] Those who currently serve may cite the attack of September 11th as an inspiration.[159] Many join because of family members who have done the same.[160]

In sum, the reasons for military service are plentiful and diverse. It is clear that many serve for non-economic reasons; it is equally clear that many decide in part based on economic considerations.[161]

Despite these complexities about whether the choice to serve is truly a voluntary one, government officials have regularly invoked the voluntary nature of today's military. Former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld offered an illustrative response in 2003. When asked about the possibility of a draft, Secretary

---

155. Victoria Swingler, Comment to Why We Joined, NAVYGIRL.ORG (May 31, 2006), http://www.navygirl.org/whywejoined.htm (Responders Yatsu, Mace, and Gonzalez also expressed this sentiment); Steve Sybert, Comment to Why Did You Join?, supra note 153 (saying he needed direction and didn't have work ethic).

156. Mark Daily, Why I Joined, L.A. TIMES http://www.latimes.com/local/la-me-daily16feb16_essay-htmlstory.html (saying he joined because he thought it was the duty of a humanist; killed in explosion in Iraq).

157. Drew Z., Comment to Why Did You Join?, supra note 153 (giving a sentiment similar to responder Clifford Fargason, among others).

158. Rye MacCallan, Comment to Why Did You Join?, supra note 153.

159. Alex Kingsbury, The Pros and Cons of Military Service, USNEWS.COM (Oct. 21, 2010, 9:12 AM), http://www.usnews.com/news/articles/2010/10/21/the-pros-and-cons-of-military-service?page=3 (citing an increase in a public service incentive since 9/11); twenty-two other responders on message threads mentioned 9/11. See Why We Joined, supra note 155; Why Did You Join?, supra note 153.

160. Thirty-seven separate commenters and sources mention following in a family tradition or being inspired by a family member. See Why Did You Join?, supra note 153.

161. As political theorist Michael Sandel has pointed out, "[t]he term 'volunteer' is something of a misnomer. Soldiers do not volunteer in the way that people volunteer to work in the local soup kitchen on Thanksgiving – that is, to serve without pay. The volunteer army is a professional army, in which soldiers work for pay." MICHAEL J. SANDEL, WHAT MONEY CAN'T BUY: THE MORAL LIMITS OF MARKETS, THE TANNER LECTURES ON HUMAN VALUES 110 (1998), http://tannerlectures.utah.edu/_documents/a-to-z/s/sandel00.pdf.

Rumsfeld replied, "We have people serving today – God bless 'em – because they volunteered. They want to be doing what it is they're doing. . . . Today . . . every single person there is there because they stuck their hand up, said "I'd like to do that."[162] Reactions such as Rumsfeld's prevent an honest accounting of the issue of military sacrifice and economic inequality.

B. Should We Care About Inequality in Military Sacrifice?

For some, the Two Americas of military sacrifice are neither surprising nor cause for concern. Consider, for the purposes of comparison, inequality and another American institution, McDonald's. It would not be surprising to learn that those working on the front lines of McDonald's are disproportionately from lower-income neighborhoods.[163] Nor would it be shocking to find that those in upper management at McDonalds are more likely to have had better educational opportunities. These market forces—that put low-education, low-skilled workers on the fry griddles and high-education, high-skilled managers into upper level corporate offices—is what shareholders want because it maximizes efficiency of operations. Not only are we less inclined to see a moral problem with McDonald's operations, an argument can be made that McDonald's provides its entry-level workers with important opportunities for career advancement that they would not obtain otherwise. If this market logic holds in the military service context as well, then Americans should expect a casualty gap, and the gap should not affect their support for war efforts.

Indeed, many have pointed out that positive benefits can flow from the military's reaching out to individuals of lower socio-

162. Pentagon Briefing, TRANSCRIPTS, CNN.COM (Jan. 7, 2003, 11:02), http://transcripts.cnn.com/TRANSCRIPTS/0301/07/se.02.html.

163. This is generally the case in the fast-food industry. See SYLVIA ALLEGRETTO ET AL., FAST FOOD, POVERTY WAGES: THE PUBLIC COST OF LOW-WAGE JOBS IN THE FAST-FOOD INDUSTRY 6 (2013), http://laborcenter.berkeley.edu/pdf/2013/fast_food_poverty_wages.pdf; KATHERINE S. NEWMAN, NO SHAME IN MY GAME: THE WORKING POOR IN THE INNER CITY 4–7 (1999); Orley Ashenfelter & Stepan Jurajda, Cross-country Comparisons of Wage Rates: The Big Mac Index 8–10, 12–14 (Oct. 2001), http://crei.cat/conferences/Unemployment_in_Transition_Economies_Developments,_Challenges_and_Lessons_from_the_EU_and_the_US_/activities/sc_conferences/12/ashenfe.pdf.

economic status.[164] Military service can be an important mechanism for improving economic attainment. Sociologists Pamela Bennett and Katrina Bell McDonald have reviewed the evidence and conclude that, at least for some, the military can be a "turning point" for disadvantaged youth.[165] In terms of Black social mobility, Colin Powell says, "let the rest of American society open its doors to African Americans and give them the opportunities they now enjoy in the armed forces."[166] There may be society-wide benefits too, if one agrees with Judge Richard Posner's argument that "the true consequence of the demographics of the armed forces—a consequence that communitarians should applaud—is that the nation's admiration for these scions of the lower middle class helps to bind the different income classes together."[167]

While we don't doubt the value of social mobility provided to some soldiers in the military, we take the view that the U.S. Armed Forces is not just another employer. As our data discussed earlier showed, this assessment is shared by many if not most Americans. This view starts with Defense Department Form 4, the form an American soldier signs when they enlist or re-enlist in the armed forces. On the second page of the form, individuals are instructed: "My enlistment/reenlistment agreement is more than an employment agreement."[168] The language of the form codifies what our civics class teaches us: military service is more than just a job. It is service to the nation that may place one in harm's way.[169]

---

164. See Alair MacLean & Glen H. Elder Jr., Military Service in the Life Course, 33 SOCIOLOGY 175, 184–85 (2007); Robert J. Sampson & John H. Laub, Socioeconomic Achievement in the Life Course of Disadvantaged Men: Military Service as a Turning Point, Circa 1940-1965. 61 AM. SOC. REV. 347, 347 (1996), http://scholar.harvard.edu/sampson/files/1996_asr_laub.pdf.

165. Pamela R. Bennett & Katrina Bell McDonald, Military Service as a Pathway to Early Socioeconomic Achievement for Disadvantaged Groups, in LIFE-COURSE PERSPECTIVES ON MILITARY SERVICE, supra note 18, at 120.

166. COLIN POWELL & JOSEPH E. PERSICO, MY AMERICAN JOURNEY 501 (1995).

167. Richard A. Posner, An Army of the Willing, THE NEW REPUBLIC (May 18, 2003), http://www.newrepublic.com/article/army-the-willing.

168. ARMED FORCES OF THE U.S. DEF. TECH. INFO. CTR., FORM DD 4 2 (Oct. 2007), http://www.dtic.mil/whs/directives/forms/eforms/dd0004.pdf.

169. As Robert Osgood has observed,

> [T]he nation's ability to sustain a defense program is not only a matter of the gross national product, per capita income, and

When he took office on January 20, 2009, President Barack Obama concluded his inaugural speech by recalling the words of Thomas Paine: "Let it be told to the future world . . . that in the depth of winter, when nothing but hope and virtue could survive . . . that the city and the country, alarmed at one common danger, came forth to meet [it]."[170] What President Obama didn't quote were the sentences immediately before and after this passage. If he had, he would have also told the nation:

> I call not upon a few, but upon all: not on this state or that state, but on every state . . . It matters not where you live, or what rank of life you hold, the evil or the blessing will reach you all. The far and the near, the home counties and the back, the rich and the poor, will suffer or rejoice alike.[171]

> the other objective criteria of economic strength but, just as much, a reflection of what the citizenry, its political representatives, and government officials are willing to sacrifice in terms of competing values for the sake of a particular national strategy.

ROBERT OSGOOD, LIMITED WAR: THE CHALLENGE TO AMERICAN STRATEGY 275 (1957).

170. Barack Obama Inaugural Address (Jan. 20, 2009) (alteration in original), http://www.whitehouse.gov/blog/inaugural-address/.

171. The quote is from Thomas Paine's Common Sense, The Crisis. It appeared in the Philadelphia Journal in December 1776, and George Washington had it read to his troops at Valley Forge to boost their morale. The full quote reads:

> Quitting this class of men, I turn with the warm ardor of a friend to those who have nobly stood, and are yet determined to stand the matter out: I call not upon a few, but upon all: not on this state or that state, but on every state: up and help us; lay your shoulders to the wheel; better have too much force than too little, when so great an object is at stake. Let it be told to the future world, that in the depth of winter, when nothing but hope and virtue could survive, that the city and the country, alarmed at one common danger, came forth to meet and to repulse it. Say not that thousands are gone, turn out your tens of thousands; throw not the burden of the day upon Providence, but "show your faith by your works," that God may bless you. It matters not where you live, or what rank of life you hold, the evil or the blessing will reach you all. The

In our view, inequality in military service runs counter to the American ethos of shared sacrifice.[172] That said, we do not advocate for a return to the draft.[173] What we should do, however, is recognize inequality as another cost of war—a cost that should be addressed through even better resources for wounded veterans and for the families of the fallen.

We agree with Matthew Ivey, who writes:

> Any moral society would demand that the basic needs of veterans be met in exchange for the sacrifices that their country has asked of them. Supporting our troops and our veterans must go beyond bumper stickers and political bluster. The true measure of our society will be defined by how we treat our returning veterans.[174] > far and the near, the home counties and the back, the rich and the poor, will suffer or rejoice alike. The heart that feels not now is dead; the blood of his children will curse his cowardice, who shrinks back at a time when a little might have saved the whole, and made them happy. I love the man that can smile in trouble, that can gather strength from distress, and grow brave by reflection. 'Tis the business of little minds to shrink; but he whose heart is firm, and whose conscience approves his conduct, will pursue his principles unto death.

THOMAS PAINE, THE CRISIS (1776), http://www.ushistory.org/paine/crisis/c-01.htm.

172. We agree with law professor Florence Wagman Roisman, who, writing in the context of veterans homelessness, concludes that our current system "is hardly a model of gratitude for the wealthiest, most powerful nation on earth; it can and should be corrected." Florence Wagman Roisman, National Ingratitude: The Egregious Deficiencies of the United States' Housing Programs for Veterans and the "Public Scandal" of Veterans' Homelessness, 38 IND. L. REV. 103, 176 (2005).

173. We agree with Ivey: "Going forward, it is important to acknowledge the inefficiency and possible immorality of the draft. It is equally important to acknowledge that the last decade of U.S. military involvement overseas has expressed immorality and inefficiency in the all-volunteer force." Ivey, supra note 27, at 561.

174. Id.

And we believe that a step in that direction involves an honest assessment of inequalities in who has made these sacrifices.[175]

C. Are Veterans Already Receiving the Care They Need?

Our concerns about inequality would be significantly mitigated if veterans—rich and poor alike—received compensatory resources in recognition of their sacrifice. But, as many commentators have pointed out, today's health care for veterans remains sub-par.

The VA has, almost since its inception, been criticized.[176] In 2013 a scholar summarized the sentiment in this way: "Most

175. Although we find them, at least at present, to be a political non-starter, we encourage efforts to expand national service. Ivey, for instance, has suggested that we might make national service a prerequisite for some benefits (such as serving in certain civilian leadership positions). Id. Military sociologist Charles Moskos also proposed a national service solution. See generally CHARLES C. MOSKOS, A CALL TO CIVIC SERVICE (1988). National service, however, has not gained traction in Congress. See Congressional Commission on Civic Service Act, H.R. 1444, 111th Cong. (2009). Perhaps this will change in the future due to the advocacy of groups such as Service Nation. SERVICE NATION, http://www.servicenation.org/ (last visited Mar. 15, 2016).

176. Historically there are many instances of the country's failure to adequately provide health care for returning soldiers. In the wake of World War I, for instance, the federal Veteran's Bureau was created amidst "widespread frustration among veterans and veterans' groups, legislators, and the popular press with problems ranging from excessive red tape and the slow processing of claims to an appalling lack of services and unfair determination of eligibility." Rosemary A. Stevens, The Invention, Stumbling, and Reinvention of the Modern U.S. Veterans Health Care System, 1918-1924, in VETERANS' POLICIES, VETERANS' POLITICS: NEW PERSPECTIVES ON VETERANS IN THE MODERN UNITED STATES 38 (Stephen R. Ortiz ed., 2012); see also ROBERT KLEIN, WOUNDED MEN, BROKEN PROMISES 22 (1981) ("Disgust with the VA is nationwide, and its expression is often visceral."). As one World War I quip went:

> God and the military veteran we adore …
> In times of danger, not before;
> The Danger pass'd and all things righted
> God is forgotten and the veteran slighted.

KLEIN, supra, at 20; see also Lawrence Ingraham & Frederick Manning, American Military Psychiatry, in MILITARY PSYCHIATRY: A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE 25 (Richard A. Gabriel ed., 1986) ("American attempts to understand and respond to battle stress casualties have ranged from the positively brilliant to the positively pathetic.").

agree that the system has vastly improved in recent years, but it remains for many a challenging bureaucratic maze whose efficiency depends on the responsiveness and attentiveness of individuals who are often overwhelmed."[177]

To be sure, the Veterans Administration has taken many positive steps toward improving care. For instance, the VA's Health Services Research and Development Service ("HSR&D") has funded Centers of Excellence and Centers of Innovation.[178] Treatment of schizophrenia has advanced in the VA system in parallel with relevant advances in the understanding of and treatments for schizophrenia.[179] The military also provides a large number of support services designed to help veterans reintegrate into the workforce.[180] Yet much work remains to be done.[181]

The administration of veterans' disability claims continues to be a contested space. Historically, there was great concern with fraud. During the United States Civil War "all symptoms or claimed disabilities that were not accompanied by verifiable physical injury were considered malingering unless proven otherwise."[182] And, to be sure, there remain valid concerns today about 177. Lawrence, supra note 109, at 142.

---

178. Health Services Research and Development, VA HSR&D CENTERS, http://www.hsrd.research.va.gov/centers/ (last visited Mar. 15, 2016). At least one commentator suggests that investments such as these will "generate innovative programs of healthcare that will provide a leading direction for healthcare in the United States for the twenty-first century." Thomas W. Miller, Centers of Excellence in the Department of Veterans Affairs, in THE PRAEGER HANDBOOK OF VETERANS' HEALTH, supra note 11, at 20.

179. Daniel N. Allen & Gerald Goldstein, Schizophrenia Spectrum and Other Psychotic Disorders, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERANS, supra note 76, at 233.

180. Nathan D. Ainspan, Finding Employment as a Veteran With a Disability, in RETURNING WARS' WOUNDED, INJURED, AND ILL, supra note 75, at 106–09.

181. See, e.g., Patricia E. Roberts, Post-9/11 Veterans: Welcoming Them Home As Colleagues and Clients, 45 U. MEM. L. REV. 771 (2015); Jayme M. Cassidy, Suddenly Discharged the Combat Continues: Eliminating the Legal Services Gap to Ensure Veterans' Success After Leaving Military Service, 45 U. MEM. L. REV. 837 (2015).

182. Shane S. Bush, Assessment of Symptom and Performance Validity in Veterans, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERANS, supra note 76, at 436.

malingering amongst veterans.[183] But to its credit, the VA now uses a "benefit of the doubt" approach when assessing veterans' disability claims.[184] When experts are unsure about the presence of a disability, the scales should tip in the veteran's favor.

Yet despite improvements, today's VA is still underperforming. As recently as July 21, 2015, President Obama announced that he was "still not satisfied" with the VA.[185] There is a great backlog for veterans seeking services.[186] Of particular concern for the argument of this Article is the VA's treatment for brain injuries. Even when receiving treatment, a large percentage of veterans report being unsatisfied.[187]

---

183. Id. at 437; Thomas Freeman, Melissa Powell & Tim Kimbrell, Measuring Symptom Exaggeration In Veterans With Chronic Posttraumatic Stress Disorder, 158 PSYCHIATRY RESOL. 374, 376 (2008).

184. A unique standard of proof applies in decisions on claims for veterans benefits. Unlike other claimants and litigants, pursuant to 38 U.S.C. § 3007(b), a veteran is entitled to the "benefit of the doubt" when there is an "approximate balance of positive and negative evidence." Gilbert v. Derwinski, 1 Vet. App. 49, 53 (Vet. App. 1990); see also Rory E. Riley, The Importance of Preserving the Pro-Claimant Policy Underlying the Veterans' Benefits Scheme: A Comparative Analysis of the Administrative Structure of the Department of Veterans Affairs Disability Benefits System, 2 VETERANS L. REV. 77, 115 (2010).

185. Press Release, Office of the Press Sec'y, Remarks by the President to the VFW National Convention, THE WHITE HOUSE (July 21, 2015), https://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2015/07/21/remarks-president-vfw-national-convention.

186. DAVID GODFREY, VETERANS APPEALS GUIDEBOOK: REPRESENTING VETERANS IN THE U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR VETERANS CLAIMS 41 (Ronald L. Smith ed., 2013) ("The Department of Veterans Affairs receives about 900,000 claims for benefits each year and has a current backlog of about 600,000 claims.").

187. VA Mental Health Care: Hearing on Access to VA's Mental Health Care Before the H. Comm. on Veterans Affairs, 113th Cong. (July 10, 2014) (statement of Warren Goldstein, Assistant Director for TBI and PTSD Programs, National Veteran Affairs and Rehabilitation Commission The American Legion) ("Two troubling numbers stood out in a recent survey conducted by The American Legion to evaluate the effectiveness of treatments provided by VA when treating veterans suffering from Posttraumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI)—fifty-nine percent and thirty percent. Fifty-nine percent of veterans surveyed reported 'no improvement' or that they were 'feeling worse' after having undergone TBI and PTSD treatment. Nearly a third of veterans, 30 percent, stated they had terminated their treatment plan before it reached conclusion.").

Law professor Olympia Duhart is one of many who have argued that "the entire Veterans Affairs ("VA") regulatory scheme reflects an outmoded cultural refusal to acknowledge the mental and emotional strains of war."[188] Looking at the history of veterans' health care in the Bush and Clinton administrations, a different set of commentators observed that "[m]ental and behavioral healthcare was seen as fundamentally separate from physical healthcare."[189] As one of us (Shen) has argued elsewhere, the material dualism distinction between "physical" and "mental" is problematic in light of neuroscientific insights that all mental life is instantiated in the physical brain.[190]

Recognizing the neurobiological underpinnings of mental life would likely lead to more resources for the treatment of mental injuries. This is in part because it would lead to a change in how the military conceptualizes "wounded in action."

The official Department of Defense definition of "Wounded in Action" reads this way:

> A casualty category applicable to a hostile casualty, other than the victim of a terrorist activity, who has incurred an injury due to an external agent or cause. The term encompasses all kinds of wounds and other injuries incurred in action, whether there is a piercing of the body, as in a penetration or perforated wound, or none, as in the contused wound. These include fractures, burns, blast concussions, all effects of biological and chemical warfare agents, and the effects of an exposure to ionizing

---

188. Olympia Duhart, Soldier Suicides and Outcrit Jurisprudence: An Anti-Subordination Analysis, 44 CREIGHTON L. REV. 883, 900 (2011). Duhart has similarly criticized the failure of the military to allow the Purple Heart to be awarded to those whose only injury is PTSD. Id. at 902 ("[T]he government's stance on the debate makes clear that in its assessment, PTSD struggles earned in battle do not merit recognition generally associated with sacrifice and valor.").

189. Patrick H. Deleon & Paul C. Lewis, Foreword, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERAN, supra note 76, at xii.

190. See Francis X. Shen, Sentencing Enhancement and the Crime Victim's Brain, 46 LOY. U. CHI. L.J. 405, 406–07 (2014); Francis X. Shen, Mind, Body, and the Criminal Law, 97 MINN. L. REV. 2036 (2013).

> radiation or any other destructive weapon or agent. The hostile casualty's status may be categorized as SI ["seriously ill or injured"], VSI ["very seriously ill or injured"], or NSI ["not seriously injured"].[191]

The WIA category covers many of the injuries soldiers suffer, but the operative phrase "due to an external agent or cause" excludes a number of injuries historically thought to be "internal" or "mental," but which are today readily recognized by many in the neuroscientific community as being a physical injury just as concrete as a broken bone. PTSD is not considered a "brain injury" because a brain injury is considered a disruption in brain function from an external source.[192] We think this accounting should change, and returning soldiers who develop Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder should count as "wounded" soldiers.[193]

We recognize that expansion of this sort would require careful consideration of the causal relationship between military service and the mental disorder.[194] The notion of a service-connected disability remains at the heart of Veterans Administra-

---

191. DEP'T OF DEF., DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE INSTRUCTION NUMBER 1300.18 37 (2008), http://www.dtic.mil/whs/directives/corres/pdf/130018p.pdf.

192. John D. Otis et al., The Psychological Assessment of Veterans with Pain and Pain-Related Disorders, in PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT OF VETERAN, supra note 76, at 393.

193. A related issue came up in 2008 and 2009, when the Department of Defense considered whether soldiers suffering from PTSD should be eligible to receive the Purple Heart. Explaining the DOD's reasoning for answering no, Defense Department spokeswoman Eileen Lainez said, "PTSD is an anxiety disorder caused by witnessing or experiencing a traumatic event; it is not a wound intentionally caused by the enemy from an 'outside force or agent,' but is a secondary effect caused by witnessing or experiencing a traumatic event." Jeff Schogol, Pentagon: No Purple Heart for PTSD, STARS AND STRIPES (Jan. 6, 2009), http://www.stripes.com/articleprint.asp?section=104&article=59810. For coverage in the blogosphere, see Ilona Meagher, Reaction to DoD Decision Against Awarding Purple Heart to Veterans with Combat PTSD, PTSD COMBAT BLOG (Jan. 11, 2009), http://ptsdcombat.blogspot.com/2009/01/reaction-to-dod-decision-against-purple.html.

194. Shen, Mind, Body, and the Criminal Law, supra note 190, at 2103 ("Chief amongst the concerns . . . [is] the issue of causation. The evidentiary concern is: how could a court verify, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the victim experienced a mental injury?").

tion disability claims today.[195] To gain disability benefits, the veteran must not only demonstrate evidence of the disability, but evidence that the disability is sufficiently connected to the veteran's military service.[196] Although scientific advances may allow us in the future to make more precise connections between combat exposure and precise brain injuries, at present the causal links between exposure to combat, and in particular explosions, and Traumatic Brain Injury ("TBI") remain uncertain.[197]

Of course, in the future this may change. Today, the assessment of substance use disorders is only beginning to use biomarkers.[198] But some "predict that it won't be long before a substantial amount of testing will be done under a magnet during a functional MRI procedure."[199] To that end, the National Center for PTSD has been actively studying the neurobiology of PTSD, including the use of new psychotherapies.[200]

Aware of the many deficiencies of the VA system, on May 24, 2014, President Obama told the nation in his Memorial Day radio address that "taking care of our veterans and their families is a sacred obligation."[201] We agree. We also agree with Obama's

---

195. Jonathan Krisch, Judge, Jury, and the Gatekeeper: Admitting and Weighing Expert Testimony in Veterans' Claims Adjudication and the Federal Courts, 4 VETERANS L. REV. 41, 57 (2012) ("Veterans alleging that a current disability is related to their service in the United States Armed Forces may apply to VA for compensation. If their disability was incurred in or aggravated by service ("service-connected"), they are awarded various levels of benefits depending on the severity of their disability.").

196. Nema Milaninia, The Crisis at Home Following the Crisis Abroad: Health Care Deficiencies for US Veterans of the Iraq and Afghanistan Wars, 11 DEPAUL J. HEALTH CARE L. 327, 335 (2008) ("The requirement that the injury be 'service connected' is often the basis of legal dispute by veterans in need of expansive medical coverage or pension plans, particularly when the degree of the disability has a significant economic impact.").

197. MILITARY NEUROPSYCHOLOGY (Carrie Kennedy & Jeffrey Moore eds., 2010); Katherine H. Taber et al., Blast-Related Traumatic Brain Injury: What Is Known?, 18 J. NEUROPSYCHIATRY 141 (2006).

198. Dephilippis et al., supra note 78, at 190–91.

199. Allen & Goldstein, supra note 179, at 234.

200. Matthew J. Friedman, The National Center for PTSD, in 4 THE PRAEGER HANDBOOK OF VETERANS' HEALTH, supra note 11, at 107–10.

201. Office of the Press Sec'y, Weekly Address: Paying Tribute to Our Fallen Heroes this Memorial Day, THE WHITE HOUSE (May 24, 2014), https://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2014/05/24/weekly-address-observation that these veterans have "done their duty," and it is time that "this country does ours – now and for decades to come."[202] Yet for all of the rhetoric, the reality of the Obama Administration's and Congress's treatment of veterans is that it does not acknowledge—anymore than the courts do—the systemic inequality of military sacrifice.

A 2014 scandal at the VA Hospital in Phoenix—in which widespread delays for veterans made headlines—resulted in close scrutiny from Congress and the resignation of U.S. Veterans Affairs Secretary Eric Shinseki.[203] An August 2014 report from the VA Office of Inspector General "identified serious conditions . . . that resulted in delays, some significant, in veterans' access to health care services."[204]

In response, the Veterans Access to Care through Choice, and Accountability, and Transparency Act of 2014 ("the Act") was signed into law on August 7, 2014.[205] The Act provided ten billion dollars to immediately aid veterans who had gone without care[206] as well as five billion dollars for the VA to use for internal improvement.[207] Additionally, the Act contained provisions for authorizing leases on twenty-seven medical facilities,[208] established paying-tribute-our-fallen-heroes-memorial-day. The term "sacred obligation" had been used before, e.g. the title of a May 3, 2011 Congressional hearing on veterans affairs was called, "Sacred Obligation: Restoring Veteran Trust and Patient Safety." Sacred Obligation: Restoring Veteran Trust and Patient Safety: Hearing Before the H.R. Comm. on Veterans' Affairs, 112th Cong. (2011), https://veterans.house.gov/hearing-transcript/sacred-obligation-restoring-veteran-trust-and-patient-safety.

---

202. Office of the Press Sec'y, supra note 201.

203. Obama Accepts Veterans Affairs Chief Resignation with 'Regret', WESTLAW J. MED. MAPRAC., June 5, 2014, at 1 ("U.S. Veterans Affairs Secretary Eric Shinseki resigned May 30 after a political firestorm over widespread delays in veterans' medical care . . . .").

204. VA OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GEN., REVIEW OF ALLEGED PATIENT DEATHS, PATIENT WAIT TIMES, AND SCHEDULING PRACTICES AT THE PHOENIX VA HEALTH CARE SYSTEM 34 (2014), http://www.va.gov/oig/pubs/VAOIG-14-02603-267.pdf.

205. Pub. L. No. 113–146, 128 Stat. 1754 (2014).

206. Id. § 802(d).

207. Id. § 801(a).

208. Id. § 601(a).

new wait time goals,[209] and directly addressed many of the issues perceived to have led to the recent improprieties.[210] Finally, the Act called for accountability through investigations, reports, and third party audits, which promise to plague the VA for the foreseeable future.

There was some recognition in the Act that not all veterans had the same baseline access to health care services. Of particular note is section 38 C.F.R. section 64, which provides grants specifically designed to help extend care to "underserved veterans."[211] Underserved communities are areas that meet one or more of the following criteria:

> (1) Have a high proportion of minority group representation;
>
> (2) Have a high proportion of individuals who have limited access to health care; or
>
> (3) Have no active duty military installation that is reasonably accessible to the community.[212]

Yet these small bits of recognition fail to come close to recognizing the structural inequality—that is, the underlying socioeconomic makeup of the wounded warrior population—that pervades the provision of veterans' health care services more generally.

---

209. Id. § 101(s)(1).

210. See id. § 209 (explicitly disallows forgery of data).

211. In addition, in many places throughout the Code it is explicitly stated that special consideration should be given to veterans living in rural areas. See 38 U.S.C. § 1720G(b)(5) (West 2015) ("The outreach shall include an emphasis on covered veterans and caregivers . . . living in rural areas."). Also, the Secretary is instructed in section 1703(a) to contract with other facilities to provide care to veterans who may have limited access. Id. § 1703(a).

212. 38 C.F.R. § 64.2. Limited access to healthcare, in turn, is defined by the Health Resources and Services Administration of the Department of Health and Human Services. 38 C.F.R. § 64.2; see U.S. DEP'T OF HEALTH & HUMAN SERVS.: Medically Underserved Areas/Populations: Guidelines for MUA and MUP Designation, HEALTH RES. & SERVS. ADMIN., http://www.hrsa.gov/shortage/mua/index.html (last updated June 1995).

Without addressing these structural issues, it is no wonder that even after passage of the landmark Act, we continue to see headlines such as these (all from calendar year 2015):

- VA to Iraq War Vet: 'We're not accepting any new patients' (describing how an Iraq War veteran was turned away from the VA when he requested an appointment to assess possible PSTD)[213]

- Veterans Affairs Whistle-Blowers Blast New Agency Watchdog (describing the disappointment of many former VA workers with the new VA Deputy Inspector)[214]

- Veterans Still Waiting For Care at VA Hospitals (describing long wait times and poor service for veterans in Arkansas)[215]

A centerpiece of the Act—the "Veterans Choice Card" system—allows veterans who have waited longer than thirty days for an appointment, or who live more than forty miles from a VA facility, to seek care from a third party. This would seem to at least partially address the needs of those with long wait times. Yet without addressing, or even acknowledging, the structural economic inequality, we remain skeptical that the Act will truly change the system.

---

213. Patricia Kime, VA to Iraq War Vet: 'We're Not Accepting Any New Patients,' USA TODAY (July 1, 2015, 2:53 PM), http://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation-now/2015/06/30/iraq-war-veteran-veterans-affairs-no-new-patients/29546453/.

214. Donovan Slack, Veterans Affairs Whistle-Blowers Blast New Agency Watchdog, USA TODAY (July 30, 2015, 5:51 PM), http://www.usatoday.com/story/news/politics/2015/07/30/veterans-affairs-whistle-blowers-blast-new-agency-watchdog/30890527/.

215. John Boyle & David B. Caruso, Veterans Still Waiting for Care at VA Hospitals, CITIZEN-TIMES (April 9, 2015, 9:47 AM), http://www.citizen-times.com/story/news/local/2015/04/09/veterans-still-waiting-care-va-hospitals/25480601/.

D. Are Courts Likely to Intervene?

In the face of inadequate policymaking from the executive and legislative branches, can we expect courts to successfully intervene? While we hesitate to predict too far into the future, recent case law suggests that this is unlikely.

Consider, by way of illustration, the lawsuit by Veterans for Common Sense ("VCS") against the Department of Veterans Affairs seeking injunctive and declaratory relief to remedy extensive delays in the provision of mental health care and disability compensation claims by the VA.[216]

While the district judge found for the VA, a three-judge panel on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals found that these delays violated veterans' Constitutional due process rights.[217] The ruling was described at the time as "an enormous legal victory."[218]

The victory, however, was short-lived. Just months later the Ninth Circuit, sitting en banc, ruled 10-1 that the court lacked jurisdiction to reprimand the VA in this way.[219] The court concluded that the "complaint sounds a plaintive cry for help, but it has been misdirected to us."[220] Congress was the culprit:

---

216. Veterans for Common Sense v. Peake, 563 F. Supp. 2d 1049 (N.D. Cal. 2008), aff'd in part, rev'd in part and remanded, 678 F.3d 1013 (9th Cir. 2012).

217. Veterans for Common Sense v. Shinseki, 644 F.3d 845, 850 (9th Cir. 2011) opinion vacated on reh'g en banc, 678 F.3d 1013 (9th Cir. 2012) ("Veterans ask us to decide whether these delays violate veterans' due process rights to receive the care and benefits they are guaranteed by statute for harms and injuries sustained while serving our country. We conclude that they do."). Writing for the two-judge majority, Judge Stephen Reinhardt wrote that "The VA's unchecked incompetence has gone on long enough; no more veterans should be compelled to agonize or perish while the government fails to perform its obligations." Id. at 851.

218. Paul Sullivan, Executive Director of Veterans for Common Sense, quoted in Paul Muschick, Veterans Deserve Better Treatment, THE MORNING CALL (May 25, 2011), http://articles.mcall.com/2011-05-25/news/mc-watchdog-veterans-mental-health-be20110525_1_veterans-for-common-sense-ninth-circuit-court-district-court.

219. Shinseki, 678 F.3d at 1016, cert. denied, 133 S. Ct. 840 (2013) ("As much as we as citizens are concerned with the plight of veterans seeking the prompt provision of the health care and benefits to which they are entitled by law, as judges we may not exceed our jurisdiction.").

220. Id. at 1036.

> We would have preferred Congress or the President to have remedied the VA's egregious problems without our intervention when evidence of the Department's harmful shortcomings and its failure to properly address the needs of our veterans first came to light years ago. . . . We willingly acknowledge that, in theory, the political branches of our government are better positioned than are the courts to design the procedures necessary to save veterans' lives and to fulfill our country's obligation to care for those who have protected us. But that is only so if those governmental institutions are willing to do their job.[221]

The en banc decision echoed discussion earlier in the case history about separation of powers. Judge Alex Kozinski in dissent below had argued that "[m]uch as the VA's failure to meet the needs of veterans with PTSD might shock and outrage us, we may not step in and boss it around."[222]

The bottom line of Veterans for Common Sense v. Shinseki, and thus the bottom line for those hundreds of thousands of veterans awaiting VA responses to their mental health disability claims, is that Congress is the cause of the problem, and Congress holds the keys to real reform.

We are thus left with a circle of blame. The Courts blame Congress. Congress blames the VA. And the VA promises it will improve, but with a track record of broken promises. We suggest that this cycle will not be broken until we recognize that rampant economic inequality pervades the system. Inequality in military sacrifice, borne most especially by those who seek medical care upon returning from combat, is not just an administrative problem for Congress or the VA to "fix." It is a deep, systemic problem that requires courts—and us—to act.

But if courts are unlikely to act, then that leaves the academic community and the public as levers for change.

---

221. Shinseki, 644 F.3d at 850–51.

222. Id. at 890–91 ("Congress erected a big 'keep out' sign for us in the Veterans' Judicial Review Act (VJRA) . . . .").

E. Fostering a National Debate on Inequality in Sacrifice

So what can be done? We believe that encouraging a national dialogue on the Two Americas of military sacrifice is both realistic and would be effective in shifting public opinion.

For example, in the first survey experiment detailed in Part IV we found that telling individuals just one additional bit of information about the presence or absence of a casualty gap had a considerable impact on respondents' beliefs of whether the war in Iraq was a mistake. This 6% point increase is of note in its own right; the magnitude of the effect is even more striking when we remember the modest nature of the inequality cue and the amount of information that most Americans already possessed on Iraq with which this new cue had to compete. If a simple cue about casualty inequality can change popular attitudes on a military venture to this extent in the Iraq context, it is quite possible that the acknowledgement of a casualty gap could have even larger effects in other environments in which popular attitudes are more malleable and not so polarized along partisan lines.

Indeed, our second experiment—exploring how information about a casualty gap in previous conflicts affected the public's willingness to use force in a range of future scenarios—showed evidence of much greater effects. In three of our four hypothetical scenarios, receiving the inequality information increased the percentage of Americans willing to sustain fewer than fifty casualties to achieve the stated objective by roughly 10% from the control group baseline.[223]

It is quite possible that an even more thorough accounting of the casualty gap, complete with vivid descriptions of individual soldiers and the effects of their deaths on poor communities could produce an even larger effect. Similarly, while our analyses of election data and follow-up experiment suggest that non-fatal casualties are less influential on public opinion, greater awareness and discussion of the lasting ramifications of non-fatal casualties for socioeconomically disadvantaged communities might heighten their political salience. Greater public awareness of non-fatal casualties and inequality of sacrifice would foster a more nuanced accounting of the human costs of war among both citizens and policymakers alike.

223. Kriner & Shen, supra note 115, at 1183.

VII. CONCLUSION

The substantial empirical evidence amassed in this Article leads to the inescapable conclusion that there is socioeconomic inequality in military sacrifice. Americans wounded in war, as well as those who die, are disproportionately coming from poorer parts of the country. Moreover, wounded soldiers are more likely to return home to fewer community resources, which may negatively affect mental health. Yet courts have failed to recognize this reality, and policymakers have strong incentives to do the same because it reduces criticism of their deploying and keeping combat forces abroad. We have argued in this Article that such ignorance, whether willful or unintentional, is inexcusable in the face of the empirical evidence. Although it is politically convenient to overlook the Two Americas of military sacrifice, continuing to ignore the invisible inequality of America's modern warfare will not make it go away.

APPENDIX

In this Appendix we discuss additional details of various statistical analyses discussed in the main text.

I. DETAILS OF THE PUBLIC OPINION SURVEYS

In the main text, we discuss results from seven original public opinion surveys that we conducted between 2007 and 2015. We used two different types of survey instruments. For three of the surveys we used a truly nationally representative telephone survey, conducted by a professional polling organization. For the remaining four surveys we recruited subjects nationally through Amazon's Mechanical Turk service. In this section we discuss the details of each approach. Summary demographics for each of these samples are provided in Table A1.

Our questions were embedded on three separate CARAVAN omnibus surveys conducted by Opinion Research Corporation. CARAVAN is a twice-weekly telephone survey that employs a random-digit dialing (RDD) methodology to ensure a nationally representative sample of 1,000 adult Americans. Results from the questions embedded on CARAVAN surveys are presented in Part II and Section V.B. of the Article.

In Section V.A., Section V.C., and Section VI.A., we report results from original web-based surveys hosted on the web site Qualtrics. Research using Qualtrics-based experiments has been published in a number of academic fields, suggesting that it meets scholarly expectations for quality online web-based experiments.[224]

All subjects were recruited via modest payments made available through Amazon Mechanical Turk's payment service. No personally identifying information was collected. Studies assessing the quality of Turk subjects have found them to be engaged in the online experimental stimuli, and to be significantly more representative than the convenience samples that would otherwise be used.[225]

---

224. Studies relying on Qualtrics experiments include Matthew R. Ginther et al., The Language of Mens Rea, 67 VAND. L. REV. 1327 (2014); David L. Schwartz, Christopher B. Seaman, Standards of Proof in Civil Litigation: An Experiment from Patent Law, 26 HARV. J.L. & TECH. 429 (2013); and Francis X. Shen, et al., Sorting Guilty Minds, 86 N.Y.U. L. REV. 1306 (2011).

Samples recruited via Mechanical Turk are particularly well-suited for survey experimental research. Indeed, recent research by political scientist Adam Berinsky and his colleagues demonstrates that replicating experiments on samples recruited in this way yields very similar results to previously published studies with nationally representative samples.[226]

---

225. Multiple studies have validated results using Amazon's Mechanical Turk on a variety of assessments, especially when compared to samples of convenience. See, e.g., Tara S. Behrend et al., The Viability of Crowdsourcing for Survey Research, 43 BEHAV. RES. METHODS 800 (2011); Michael D. Buhrmester, Tracy Kwang & Samuel D. Gosling, Amazon's Mechanical Turk: A New Source of Inexpensive, Yet High-Quality, Data?, 6 PERSP. ON PSYCH. SCI. 3 (2011); Joseph K. Goodman et al., Data Collection in a Flat World: The Strengths and Weaknesses of Mechanical Turk Samples, 26 J. BEHAV. DECISION MAKING 213 (2012); Jon Sprouse, A Validation of Amazon Mechanical Turk for the Collection of Acceptability Judgments in Linguistic Theory, 43 BEHAV RES. METHODS 155 (2011).

226. Adam J. Berinsky et al., Evaluating Online Labor Markets for Experimental Research: Amazon.com's Mechanical Turk, 20 POL. ANALYSIS 351, 366 (2012).

Appendix Table A1: Demographics of Participants in the Surveys Reported in the Main Text.[227]

	CARAVAN (2011)	Mturk 1 (6/16-20/15)	MTurk 2 (7/23/15)	CARAVAN (2007)	CARAVAN (2009)	MTurk3 (3/1-3/15)	MTurk4 (2/14-15/15)	Nation as a whole[1]
% Republicans	40%	--	22%	36%	43%	23%	20%	41%
% Democrats	43%	--	57%	48%	51%	42%	42%	43%
% College degree	38%	49%	51%	39%	40%	46%	53%	28%
Median income	$35k-$40k	$20k-40k	--	$40k-$50k	$40k-$50k	$20k-$40k	$20k-$40k	$42,693
% Male	50%	41%	52%	50%	50%	48%	55%	49%
Median age	55-59	32	32	50-54	55-59	30	33	36
% White	82%	66%	76%	81%	82%	77%	78%	72%

227. The national percentage of citizens with a college degree, percentage male, median age, and racial demographics was calculated based on data from the 2010 US Census. The source for the percentage of citizens in each political party was is a survey by NBC News, Wall Street Journal. Methodology: Conducted by Hart and McInturff Research Companies, November 1 - November 3, 2012 and based on 1,800 telephone interviews. Sample: National registered voters. The source for the median personal income in 2012 figures is the Bureau of Business & Economic Research. Per Capita Personal Income by State, BUREAU OF BUS. & ECON. RESEARCH (Apr. 2, 2013), https://bber.unm.edu/econ/us-pci.htm.

II. DETAILS OF STATISTICAL ANALYSIS IN PART III OF THE MAIN TEXT[228]

Part III in the main text discussed inequality in military sacrifice. In this section of the Appendix we present the details of our analytic strategy to examine the relationship between a community's socio-economic status and its share of American war casualties in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and Iraq. We elaborate on the data and present the full results of the statistical models used to generate the figures and tables presented in the main text.

A. Data

To assess whether casualty gaps emerged in each of our nation's last four major wars, we had to construct measures of community casualty rates across the country. This involved first determining the total number of casualties—herein defined as soldiers killed in wartime in combat zones—that came from each county or place for each war, and then dividing those casualties by the relevant county or place population to obtain a per-capita casualty rate.[229]

---

228. Additional details of related analyses are available in The Casualty Gap, including an additional round of analyses modeling Vietnam casualty rates at the place level as a robustness check on our county-level results. DOUGLAS L. KRINER & FRANCIS X. SHEN, THE CASUALTY GAP: THE CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES OF AMERICAN WARTIME INEQUALITIES 136–60 (2010).

229. We also ran models using casualty counts as dependent variables and controlling for county or place population as an independent variable. While there were inconsistencies across model specifications, the patterns largely mirrored those we discuss here. The inconsistencies across specification are likely due to the fact that population and casualty counts are very highly correlated and hence multicollinearity is a problem in the count models. Because complete individual-level data on wounded soldiers is unavailable for several conflicts, we limit ourselves to examining soldiers killed in action. To keep our focus on those soldiers killed in the theater of war, we limited our casualty counts for the Korean War to those soldiers who died between June 1950 (as North Korean forces invaded South Korea on 6/24/50) and July 1953 (as the Military Armistice Agreement was signed on 7/27/53). This only dropped 42 observations. For Vietnam, we limited our casualty counts to those soldiers who died between August 2, 1964 (when the U.S.S. Maddox was first attacked in the Gulf of Tonkin) and March 29, 1973 (when the last U.S. soldiers left Vietnam). Again, this included almost all soldiers in the casualty files.

We obtained raw casualty data on individuals killed in World War II, Korea, and Vietnam from a series of casualty databases maintained by the United States National Archives.[230] For Iraq and Afghanistan, we used data made publicly available by the Statistical Information Analysis Division ("SIAD") of the Department of Defense.[231] Our casualty data for Operation Iraqi Freedom includes all soldiers killed through December 31, 2008. Our casualty data for Operation Enduring Freedom includes all soldiers killed through July 4, 2011. These data files, for each war, provided individual casualty records with information on the deceased soldier's home of record prior to entering the armed forces.[232] We

---

230. For World War II, we used the World War II Honor List of Dead and Missing Army and Army Air Forces Personnel. See World War II Honor List Dead and Missing Army and Army Air Forces Personnel, NAT'L ARCHIVES (June 1946), http://www.archives.gov/research/arc/ww2/army-casualties/. The vast majority of casualties come from this Army and Air Force datafile. Id. The data on Korea and Vietnam deaths and casualties comes from databases archived by the United States National Archives as part of its Access to Archival Databases (AAD) System. All data was downloaded (first in summer 2005 and subsequently in early 2009 after minor file updates) from the AAD website. Access to Archival Databases, NAT'L ARCHIVES, http://www.archives.gov/aad/ (last visited Mar. 17, 2016). For Korea, we utilized the "Records of Military Personnel Who Died as a Result of Hostilities During the Korean War, ca. 1977 - 11/1979." The database was created by the Department of Defense, Directorate for Information Operations and Reports, Manpower Management Information Division. For Vietnam, we used the "Records with Unit Information on Military Personnel Who Died During the Vietnam War, created ca. 1983 - 12/18/2005, documenting the period 6/8/1956 - 10/10/2003" (COFFELT file) and the "Records of Deceased, Wounded, Ill, or Injured Army Personnel, Including Dependents and Civilian Employees, 1/1/1961 - 12/1981." The first database is maintained by the Department of Defense, Washington Headquarters Services, Directorate for Information Operations and Reports, Statistical Information Analysis Division. The second database was created by the Adjutant General's Office.

231. This data is now maintained and publicly available through the Defense Manpower Data Center. Defense Casualty Analysis System, https://www.dmdc.osd.mil/dcas/pages/casualties.xhtml (last visited Mar. 23, 2016).

232. The COFFELT database tracking Vietnam casualties provides home state and city, not county (which is the lowest geographical unit for which complete 1970 census data is available), information for each casualty. Aggregating from the city to county level generally posed few problems, as we were able to assign counties based on cross-referenced census data. For some cities, addithen tallied these individual casualties by the smallest possible geographic unit for which both casualty and complete census data was readily available. This was the county level for World War II, Korea, and Vietnam, though in Vietnam we also had a sub-national sample of place-level data to use for limited analyses. We were able to use national, comprehensive place-level data for our analyses of fatal casualties in Iraq and Afghanistan.[233] For the Iraq and tional steps were necessary. For single cities such as New York City, which span two or more counties in a single state, we followed two methods. The first method, which we used in all of the statistical analyses in this Article, evenly divided such casualties for each city among all of the counties it spanned. The second method assigned each casualty to each county spanned by the city under the premise that deaths from a city spanning multiple counties could affect residents of all counties involved. The results across specifications for both our analyses are virtually identical regardless of which casualty rate operationalization is used. For towns such as Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, for which there is more than one city of the same name in a single state (less than five percent of the total), we also used two methods. First, we dropped all such casualties and ran our models. We then ran alternative models in which we randomly assigned each casualty to one of the towns. The two methods yielded nearly identical results. To construct the casualty rates presented we employed the first method.

---

233. The United States Census Bureau defines place as it refers to "Census Designated Place." The U.S. Census Bureau defines a "Census Designated Place" as a place "delineated to provide data for settled concentrations of population that are identifiable by name but are not legally incorporated under the laws of the state in which they are located." UNITED STATES CENSUS BUREAU: GEOGRAPHIC TERMS AND CONCEPTS – PLACE, https://www.census.gov/geo/reference/gtc/gtc_place.html (last updated Dec. 6, 2012). The Census Bureau notes that, "An incorporated place usually is a city, town, village, or borough, but can have other legal descriptions. . . . exclude[ing] Boroughs in Alaska . . . Towns in the New England states, New York, and Wisconsin . . . [and] Boroughs in New York." Id. The Census Bureau further distinguishes between "four major 'groups' that differentiate between populated places, other geopolitical and census units, institutional facilities, and terminated entries. Some subclasses relate an entry to a class different from its own, which is useful because a number of entries serve in more than one capacity." Appendix J: FIPS Class Code Definitions, http://webapp1.dlib.indiana.edu/virtual_disk_library/index.cgi/4293203/FID1358/DOC/ASCII/APP_J.ASC (last visited Mar. 23, 2016). Because "some sub-classes identify entries in different classes that are coextensive," we use as our unit of analysis the major group: Class-C, incorporated places. Id.

Afghanistan wounded analysis, we used the number of wounded in action, by county.[234]

Once we determined the total number of casualties per locale, we calculated the casualty rate by dividing through by a male population denominator to control for the significant variation in size across counties and places in the country. To make the casualty rate more accessible, we then multiplied the per-capita rate by 10,000.[235]

Using these measures, we are able to examine the relationships between a community's local casualty rate and its demographic characteristics, including its unemployment rate, median income, level of educational attainment, racial composition, rural farm population, median age, partisan composition, and geography. To operationalize these community demographics, we turned to various years of data publications by the United States Census Bureau.[236] The data collected in the decennial censuses are well timed to capture the demographic characteristics of the counties from which the wartime casualties occurred. We were able to match 1940 census data with WWII casualty data, 1950 census data with Korean casualties, 1970 census data with Vietnam casualties, and 2000 census data with the present conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.[237]

To measure income, we use median family income in all but our World War II models. For World War II, where the meas-

---

234. Place-level data was not available for analysis of non-fatal casualties.

235. We also considered alternative models using other variables (e.g. number of males age 18–34) as the denominator. The results were nearly identical, as there were very high correlations between all of the alternative population denominator variables.

236. For the 1940, 1950, and 1970 census data, we utilized data files prepared by Michael Haines (2004) and published by the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR). Michael R. Haines, Historical, Demographic, Economic, and Social Data: The United States, 1790-2002 (ICPSR 2896), DATA SHARING FOR DEMOGRAPHIC RESEARCH, https://www.icpsr.umich.edu/icpsrweb/DSDR/studies/2896 (last visited Mar. 17, 2016). For the 2000 census data, we downloaded raw summary file 3 (sf3) files from the Census Bureau website and built a place-level database for analysis. U.S. CENSUS BUREAU, SUMMARY FILE 3: 2000 CENSUS OF POPULATION AND HOUSING (2007), https://www.census.gov/prod/cen2000/doc/sf3.pdf.

237. For analysis of the Vietnam conflict, we used 1960 census data instead of 1970 census data yields virtually identical substantive results.

ure was unavailable in the Census dataset, we use the very similar measure of median rent per month.[238] Education measures for all years were highly correlated with measures of income; as a result, we estimated separate income and education models. To measure partisanship, we included a measure of the percentage of county residents who voted for the Republican presidential candidate in the election immediately preceding each war: Wendell Willkie in 1940, Thomas Dewey in 1948, Barry Goldwater in 1964, and George W. Bush in 2000.[239] Because we do not have this partisanship variable measured at the place level, in the place-level models we included the state percentage for Bush in 2000. The coefficients and significance for the socioeconomic variables, however, were not sensitive to inclusion of this state level partisanship measure. To capture regional variation, we include a South regional dummy variable.[240] Information on demographic variables is available in Kriner and Shen (2010).

---

238. Median rent is the same measure that Schaefer and Allen used. See Janet Schaefer & Marjorie Allen, Class and Regional Selection in Fatal Casualties in the First 18-23 Months of World War II, 23 SOCIAL FORCES 165–69 (1944). Median rent correlates with 1950 median income at .84 (with significance of $p<.001$). Alternative models were run using average and median value of owner-occupied dwellings. Because median and average value of owner-occupied dwellings correlate at .8 ($p<.001$) with median rent, the results were substantively the same. Finally, we also re-estimated the models using 1950 median income figures, which produced virtually identical results.

239. County-level returns for the 1940 and 1948 elections were obtained from the United States Historical Election Returns, 1824–1968 data file. United States Historical Election Returns, 1824-1968 (ICPSR 1), ICPSR (Apr. 26, 1999), http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/icpsrweb/ICPSR/studies/1. Returns for the 1964 election were obtained from the General Election Data for the United States, 1950-1990. General Election Data for the United States, 1950-1990 (ICPSR 13), ICPSR (Nov. 22, 2013), https://www.icpsr.umich.edu/icpsrweb/ICPSR/studies/13.

240. The U.S. Census Bureau identifies four census regions: Northeast, Midwest, South, and West. Census Bureau Regions and Divisions with State FIPS Codes, CENSUS.GOV, http://www2.census.gov/geo/docs/maps-data/maps/reg_div.txt (last updated Mar. 17, 2016). The South region includes Delaware, Washington, D.C., Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas. Id.

B. Details of the Statistical Model

Having prepared our casualty and demographic databases, we developed county/place-level regression models. For each of the four conflicts, our dependent variable in all of the models is the casualty rate per 10,000 males. Our analysis is truly national, with virtually every county or place included for each war.[241] Our independent variables are the eight demographic measures, including either income or education (but not both simultaneously) in each regression.[242] Because our observations are clustered by state, we also cluster on the state and employ robust standard errors. The general form of our regression model is:

$$[1] \quad CASUALTY_RATE_i = \beta_0 + \beta_1 UNEMPLOYMENT_i + \beta_2 INCOME_i + \beta_3 AFR\text{-}AMERICAN_i + \beta_4 FARM_i + \beta_5 AGE_i + \beta_6 GOP_PREZ_i + \beta_7 SOUTH_i + \varepsilon_i$$ [243]

Results for regression analyses of casualties suffered in World War II, Korea, and Vietnam are presented in Kriner and Shen (2010, 52). Here, we update our earlier analyses to include an assessment of casualty inequality in the war in Afghanistan. Regression results for the Iraq War, the war in Afghanistan, and the two combined, are reported in Table A2. Consistent with the alternative analyses presented in the article itself, this regression analysis shows a strong and significant negative relationship between a community's median family income and its casualty rate across both wars.

241. In models that included county-level partisanship measures, the counties from Alaska were dropped because Alaska reports its election returns by election district and not county.

242. We avoid including both education and income measures in the same regression due to problems of multicollinearity. The two variables are very highly correlated at the county and place levels and, following standard practice in many economic analyses, we choose to run separate models.

243. εi is an error term, and the other variables in the model are defined as discussed above.

Appendix Table A2. Results of Ordinary Least Squares Regression Analysis of Casualty Rates, Iraq and Afghanistan

	Iraq	Afghanistan	Iraq +Afghanistan
UNEMPLOYMENT	0.421	-3.628	-4.049
	(2.308)	(2.601)	(3.329)
INCOME	-0.015	-0.005	-0.020
	(0.003)	(0.002)	(0.004)
RACE	-1.000	-1.011	-2.011
	(0.361)	(0.627)	(0.730)
RURAL	3.271	-3.095	0.177
	(2.616)	(0.985)	(2.453)
AGE	-0.019	-0.021	-0.040
	(0.012)	(0.015)	(0.020)
PARTISANSHIP	-1.847	-2.621*	-4.469*
	(1.125)	(1.328)	(1.696)
SOUTH REGION	0.390	0.713*	1.104
	(0.187)	(0.423)	(0.442)
CONSTANT	3.397	2.845	6.242
	(0.720)	(1.356)	(1.461)
Observations	19,413	19,413	19,413
R-squared	0.001	0.001	0.001

Notes on Table A2: Robust standard errors are reported in parentheses. All significance tests are two-tailed, and significance is indicated as follows:  $p<0.01$,  $p<0.05$, * $p<0.10$

III. THE CHALLENGE OF ECOLOGICAL INFERENCE

The analyses presented in Part III of the main text and just described in further detail above show strong evidence of a socioeconomic casualty gap between rich and poor communities. That is, in recent wars communities with lower median incomes and levels of education have sustained casualty rates that are systematically higher than those experienced by communities with higher median incomes and levels of educational attainment.

This casualty gap at the community level is normatively troubling. In all of the experiments in which we exposed subjects to information about a casualty gap presented in the text, we were explicit that this was a gap between rich and poor communities.

The logical question raised by the strong evidence for a casualty gap between rich and poor communities is whether a parallel gap arises at the individual level; that is, are individuals from lower socioeconomic backgrounds dying disproportionately in America's wars?

The two mechanisms described in Part III suggest a gap at the individual level. Military manpower scholarship has long established that the economic benefits military service affords are more attractive to young men and women from socioeconomically disadvantaged backgrounds who lack greater opportunity in the civilian job market. Moreover, new recruits from socioeconomically disadvantaged backgrounds are more likely to lack the skills that help one be assigned to a position within the military that is more insulated from combat risks.

The most logical explanation for the community-level casualty gap described in the text is that it results from a parallel gap at the individual level. However, from the analysis of aggregate-level data alone we cannot conclusively prove the existence of inequalities in sacrifice between rich and poor individuals. In The Casualty Gap, we undertook a number of additional rounds of analysis to seek more insight into this question.[244] For example, we were able to exploit variation in casualty rates within a city to show that casualties hail from neighborhoods that are significantly poorer than the city average. These additional analyses are consistent with the hypothesis that socioeconomically disadvantaged Americans are more likely to die in military service than their peers with greater socioeconomic opportunity. However, even these analyses cannot overcome the ecological inference barrier completely. Without data on individual soldiers' socioeconomic backgrounds prior to entering the military, we cannot conclude definitively that a casualty gap exists between individuals from socioeconomically advantaged and disadvantaged backgrounds. However, multiple rounds of empirical analysis suggest that that this is the most likely explanation for the patterns we observe between rich and poor communities.

244. KRINER & SHEN, supra note 228, at 40–47.

IV. DETAILS OF THE 2006 SENATE ELECTIONS ANALYSIS IN SECTION V.C

In Section V.B we examined the effect of casualties on political outcomes. To test whether non-fatal casualties are indeed less politically visible and influential than fatal casualties, we examined the influence of state-level fatal and non-fatal casualty rates on the electoral fortunes of Republican candidates in the 2006 Senatorial elections. The Iraq War was extremely salient in 2006. According to a national exit poll of more than 13,000 Americans, 67% of voters answered that the Iraq War was either extremely or very important to their vote choice.[245] In that election, Democrats nationwide ran on a "Six for '06" plan. The plan's final item promised a "significant transition" in Iraq, and indeed, in the very first months following the Democratic takeover of Congress the Democratic majority pushed through a Defense budget that endeavored to mandate a timetable for withdrawal from Iraq. As such, the 2006 midterms present a critical case in which to look for the electoral ramifications of non-fatal casualties.

Data on soldiers killed in the Iraq War and their home state of residence is made publicly available by the Department of Defense. Data on non-fatal casualties is not reliably released, which is one of the main reasons that the bulk of empirical scholarship on casualties and their consequences has focused exclusively on fatal casualties. However, through a Freedom of Information Act request, we obtained data on the number of non-fatal Iraq War casualties from each state in each month of the war.[246] We then divided each state's fatal and non-fatal casualty tally by the state's population as obtained from the 2000 Census to create state-level fatal and non-fatal casualty rates.

245. See 2006 Election Exit Polls, CNN.COM, http://www.cnn.com/ELECTION/2006/pages/results/states/US/H/00/epolls.0.html (last visited Mar. 17, 2016). By contrast, in 2008 only ten percent of Americans listed Iraq as the most important issue guiding their choice between Obama and McCain. 2008 Election Exit Polls, CNNPOLITICS.COM, http://www.cnn.com/ELECTION/2008/results/polls/#val=USP00p6 (last visited Jan. 22, 2016).

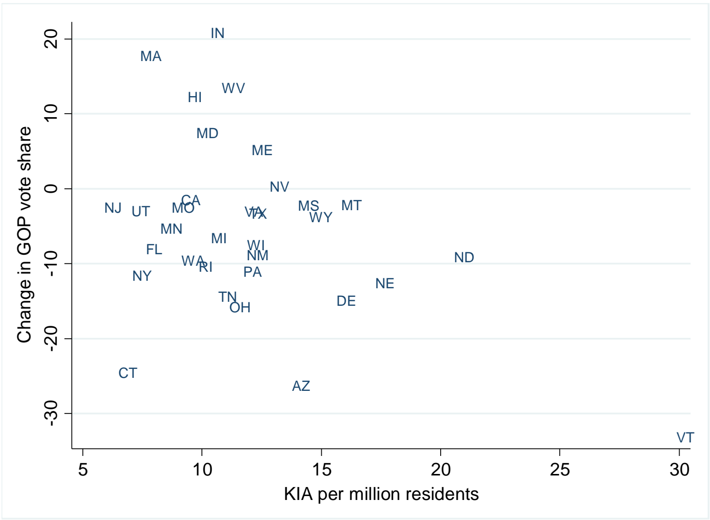
To illustrate the relationship between a state's casualty rate (fatal or non-fatal) and Republican electoral fortunes graphically, Figure A1 reports a pair of scatter plots.

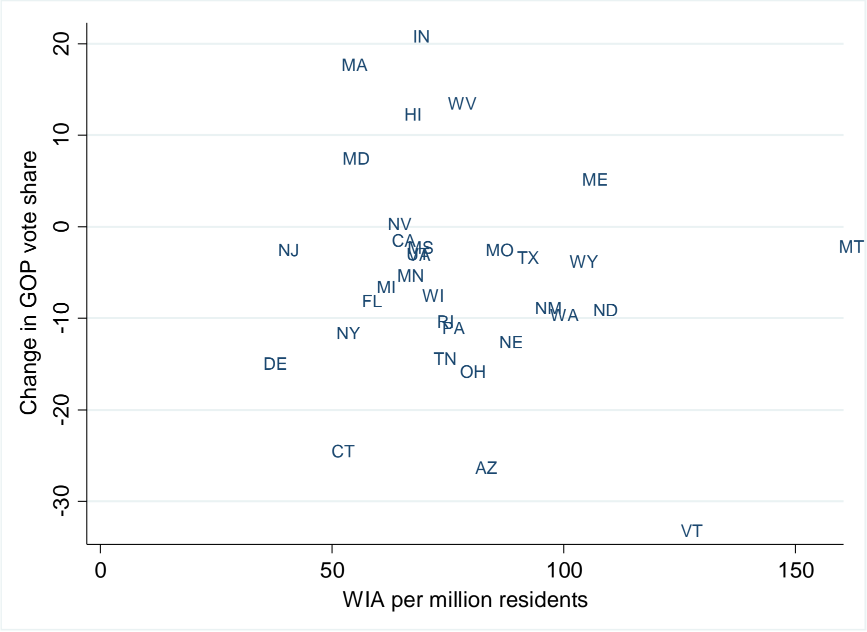
Appendix Figure A1: Scatter Plots of State Iraq War Fatal and Non-Fatal Rates and Change in GOP Vote Share, 2000 to 2006 Senatorial Elections

Fatal Casualties



246. The data made available by the Department of Defense also provided some information at the county level. However, a significant percentage (approaching a majority in the early years of the war) of the non-fatal casualties were reported as hailing from an "unknown" county within a state. It is important to emphasize that the home state information refers not to where the soldier was based before deploying to Iraq, but his or her home of record upon applying to the armed forces. For an extended discussion of this data, we refer interested readers to KRINER & SHEN, supra note 5, at 178–79.

Figure A1, continued: Non-Fatal Casualties



On the y-axis is the change in the Republican candidate's vote share from 2000 to 2006. Using the change in vote share provides an important measure of control as it allows us to assess the GOP's performance in a state in 2006 against an earlier baseline. On the x-axis is the state's casualty rate per million residents. The top panel illustrates the relationship for fatal casualties. The bottom panel illustrates the relationship for non-fatal casualties. Consistent with past research, there is a strong inverse relationship between a state's fatal casualty rate and how the Republican Party's candidate fared in the 2006 Senate elections. Firmly tied in the public conscience to President Bush and his costly war parties, the incumbent party in power suffered significant losses in 2006, particularly in the states that had suffered the most fatal casualties. The two are correlated at $r = -.41$, which is statistically significant, $p < .02$.

By contrast, as illustrated in the bottom panel, we see little evidence of a relationship between non-fatal casualty rates and Republican electoral fortunes. The two are only weakly related at $r = -.18$, and the correlation is not statistically significant ($p = .35$).

At first blush, non-fatal casualties do not seem to impose the same political costs on incumbents as fatal casualties.

To explore this relationship further, we replicated an earlier analysis of the 2006 Senate elections but this time include both fatal and non-fatal casualty rates in the statistical model.[247] This approach allows us to assess the relationship between a state's fatal and non-fatal casualty rates and GOP electoral fortunes after controlling for a number of alternative factors that could be driving variation in Republican vote share.

Part V, Section C reports the conclusion that non-fatal casualties did not affect electoral outcomes in the same way that fatal casualties did. Here we present that regression analysis that led to that conclusion.

To examine the relationship between a state's non-fatal casualty rate and electoral outcomes, we specified a regression model that included a series of important control variables. In addition to casualties, an extensive literature has identified opponent quality and campaign spending as two of the most important predictors of a candidate's electoral fortunes.[248] To account for

247. Douglas L. Kriner & Francis X. Shen, Iraq Casualties and the 2006 Senate Elections, 32 LEGIS. STUD. Q. 507 (2007). In this earlier article, we examined the relationship between local casualty rates and GOP Electoral fortunes at both the state and county level. Here, however, we focus only on the state level because county home of record information is reported as "unknown" for a significant percentage of Iraq War non-fatal casualties in the DOD data.

248. For opponent quality, see GARY JACOBSON, POLITICS OF CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS (2004); Donald Philip Green & Jonathan S. Krasno, Rebuttal to Jacobson's "New Evidence for Old Arguments," 34 AM. J. POL. SCI. 363 (1990); Donald Philip Green & Jonathan S. Krasno, Salvation for the Spendthrift Incumbent: Reestimating the Effects of Campaign Spending in House Elections, 32 AM. J. POL. SCI. 884 (1988); and Peverill Squire, Challenger Quality and Voting Behavior in Senate Elections, 17 LEGIS. STUD. Q. 247 (1992). For campaign spending, see Alan I. Abramowitz, Explaining Senate Election Outcomes, 82 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 385 (1988); Alan I. Abramowitz, Campaign Spending in U.S. Senate Elections, 14 LEGIS. STUD. Q. 487 (1989); Alan Gerber, Estimating the Effect of Campaign Spending on Senate Election Outcomes Using Instrumental Variables, 92 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 401 (1998); Gary C. Jacobson, The Effects of Campaign Spending in Congressional Elections, 72 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 769 (1978); Gary C. Jacobson, The Effects of Campaign Spending in House Elections: New Evidence for Old Arguments, 34 AM. J. POL. SCI. 334 (1990); and Gary C. Jacobson, Money and Votes Reconsidered: Congressional Elections, 1972–1982, 47 PUB. CHOICE 7 (1985). An additional changes in opponent quality, we coded each Republican's opponent according to the eight-point ordinal scale created by political scientists Don Green and Jonathan Krasno, and we calculated the change in this measure across the two electoral cycles. To control for the influence of campaign expenditures, we include the change in the percentage of total campaign expenditures by the Republican candidate from 2000 to 2006.[249] political factor that may have influenced the change in GOP vote share is any change in the incumbency status of the Republican candidate from the 2000 to the 2006 campaign. All of the models were re-estimated with two dummy variables that indicate whether the GOP candidate went from being a challenger (either facing an incumbent or vying for an open seat) to an incumbent from 2000 to 2006 or vice versa. All of our results remain virtually identical in this expanded specification. These augmented models show the expected negative relationship between a shift from incumbent to challenger status and GOP vote share at both the state and county levels. A complementary shift from challenger to incumbent status, however, had no effect at the state level and, contra expectations, a negative correlation with the change in GOP vote share at the county level. The relationship is almost certainly spurious. Only three states involved a Republican challenger from 2000 (2002 for James Talent) running in 2006 as an incumbent—Virginia, Nevada, and Missouri. In the Virginia race, George Allen lost to James Webb; in Nevada, John Ensign handily beat Jack Carter, but not by the same margins as he trounced his Democratic opponent, who lacked a presidential name, in 2000; and the Missouri races were decided by razor-thin margins in 2000, 2002, and 2006. A confluence of national trends and idiosyncratic factors, not any change in incumbency status, determined the results of these three elections.

---

249. Green & Krasno, Salvtion for the Spendthrift Incumbent, supra note 248. Because Green and Krasno's scale was designed to measure challenger quality, it required one minor modification. If the Republican candidate faced an incumbent senator, we coded the opponent quality score at its maximum value of 8. Prior studies have adopted varied operationalizations of relative campaign spending. To control for several outliers in Republican-opponent spending, in this model we took the log of both major candidates' expenditures as reported to the Federal Elections Commission and calculated the percentage of this total spent by the Republican. All of our results are robust across other operationalizations, such as the change in the percentage of unlogged total expenditures spent by the Republican candidate and the change in the ratio of Republican to Democratic spending. Following Jacobson, Green and Krasno, and others, we recoded the handful of missing expenditure data points as $1,000. All of these were minor, dark-horse candidates with little in the way of a formal campaign apparatus.

In addition to factors specific to the Senate race at hand, scholars have long documented the connections between presidential performance and the success of their co-partisans in presidential elections, even in midterm contests.[250] To account for this in the current context, we include a measure of President Bush's share of the two-party vote in each state in the 2004 election. Additionally, a number of previous studies have debated the relative impact of economic conditions on congressional election outcomes.[251] To control for economic factors, we include measures, obtained from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, of the change in the state unemployment rate during the year preceding the 2006 midterm elections. Voters in areas of increasing unemployment may be more likely to punish Republican candidates in this era of unified Republican control of Congress and the presidency.

Finally, the models also control for two important demographic constituency characteristics that might be correlated with considerable change in Republican electoral fortunes from the peacetime election of 2000 to the wartime 2006 contest: the percentage of residents aged 18 to 64 who were serving in the military and the percentage of all residents who were veterans of the armed forces.[252] Conventional wisdom suggests that military communities have largely rallied around the president and his policies; if correct, Republican candidates may have performed better relative 250. Alan I. Abramowitz & Jeffrey A. Segal, Determinants of the Outcomes of U.S. Senate Elections, 48 J. POL. 433 (1986); Lonna Rae Atkeson & Randall W. Partin, Economic and Referendum Voting: A Comparison of Gubernatorial and Senatorial Elections, 89 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 99 (1995); James E. Campbell, The Presidential Surge and its Midterm Decline, 1868-1988, 53 J. POL. 477 (1991); James E. Campbell & Joe A. Sumners, Presidential Coattails in Senate Elections, 84 AM. J. POL. SCI. 513 (1990); Thomas M. Carsey & Gerald C. Wright, State and National Factors in Gubernatorial and Senatorial Elections: A Rejoinder, 42 AM. J. POL. SCI. 1008 (1998).

251. See, e.g., GARY JACOBSON, GARY & SAMUEL KERNELL, STRATEGY AND CHOICE IN CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS (1981); MICHAEL S. LEWIS-BECK & TOM W. RICE, FORECASTING ELECTIONS (1992); Alberto Alesina & Howard Rosenthal, Partisan Cycles in Congressional Elections and the Macroeconomy, 83 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 373 (1989); Peverill Squire, Candidates, Money and Voters: Assessing the State of Congressional Elections Research, 48 POL. RES. Q. 891 (1995).

252. These demographic controls were constructed from data obtained from the U.S. Census Bureau's summary files (sf3) for the 2000 Census.

to their 2000 baseline in these areas than in otherwise comparable communities. Additionally, an extensive literature at the elite level has examined the different perspectives that veterans bring to questions of military policy; however, expectations for electoral behavior in states or counties with large veteran contingents at the mass level are less clear.[253] It is possible that communities with large contingents of veterans, like those with high percentages of active-duty personnel and their families, rallied around the president and the Republicans in the 2006 midterms; alternatively, residents of such communities may have viewed the war and the administration's military policies through a distinctly different and more critical lens and adjusted their voting behavior accordingly. The empirical affords insight into these competing hypotheses.

Table A3 presents the results of our linear regression model.[254] The model in column 1 includes only the fatal casualty rate variable, and the relevant coefficient is negative and statistically significant. Confirming the bivariate relationship illustrated in the top panel of Figure 1, Republican electoral fortunes declined as a state's fatal casualty rate increased, even after controlling for a host of other factors long held to influence election outcomes. Model 2 estimates the same specification, but examines the relationship between non-fatal casualty rates and the change in Republican vote share. The relevant coefficient is negative, but substantively very small and it is not statistically significant. Finally, model 3 re-estimates our model but includes both fatal and non-fatal casualty rates simultaneously. The coefficient for fatal casualty rates remains strongly negative and highly statistically significant. By contrast, the coefficient for a state's non-fatal casualty rate is small, positive, and not statistically significant.

253. On the civil-military gap, see, e.g., Samuel P Huntington, Conservatism as an Ideology, 51 AM. POL. SCI. REV. 454 (1957); RICHARD K. BETTS, SOLDIERS, STATESMEN, AND COLD WAR CRISES (1991); PETER FEAVER & RICHARD H. KOHN, SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS: THE CIVIL-MILITARY GAP AND AMERICAN NATIONAL SECURITY (2001); and PETER D. FEAVER & CHRISTOPHER GELPI, CHOOSING YOUR BATTLES: AMERICAN CIVIL-MILITARY RELATIONS AND THE USE OF FORCE (2004).

254. In Kriner & Shen, supra note 247, at 514, 526 n.11, we drop Connecticut and Vermont, as Joe Lieberman and Jim Jeffords switched partisan affiliation after 2000. Replicating the models in Table 1 excluding these two states yields virtually identical results. The coefficient for fatal casualty rates remains strongly negative and statistically significant in both models 1 and 3. The coefficient for non-fatal casualty rates is positive in this specification in both models 2 and 3.

Appendix Table A3: Results of Ordinary Least Squares Regression Analysis of State Iraq War Fatal and Non-Fatal Casualty Rates and 2006 GOP Senatorial Electoral Fortunes

	(1)	(2)	(3)
KIA per million residents	-1.36		-1.57
	(0.41)		(0.50)
WIA per million residents		-0.10	0.08
		(0.10)	(0.10)
% Bush 2004	0.60	0.48	0.57
	(0.26)	(0.30)	(0.26)
Change in opponent quality	-0.03	-0.18	-0.08
	(0.71)	(0.84)	(0.72)
Change in GOP spending	0.25	0.24	0.25
	(0.15)	(0.18)	(0.15)
Change in unemployment	14.03	9.72	14.98
	(6.40)	(7.39)	(6.58)
% in Military	5.29*	4.73	5.41*
	(3.06)	(3.58)	(3.09)
% Veterans	0.41	-0.11	-0.03
	(1.40)	(1.78)	(1.53)
Constant	-21.97	-20.18	-19.16
	(16.76)	(20.11)	(17.30)
Observations	33	33	33
R-squared	0.44	0.22	0.45

Notes on Appendix Table A3: Robust standard errors are reported in parentheses. All significance tests are two-tailed, and significance is indicated as follows:  p<0.01,  p<0.05, * p<0.10

V. DETAILS OF STATISTICAL ANALYSIS IN SECTION V.D

In the main text, Part V, Section D discusses results from a web-based experiment exploring the effect of casualties on support for war. In this section we discuss additional methodological details about the experiment.

Concerns about subjects' compliance with task instructions are of special concern with online experiments because subjects cannot be monitored while engaged in the experimental tasks.[255] To address this issue, experimental psychologists have developed "attention filters" designed to ascertain whether subjects are in fact following instructions and paying attention to the material being presented to them online. In our experiment reported here, we employed a modified version of the filter developed by psychologist Daniel Oppenheimer and his colleagues.[256] The design of the primary attention filter question was such that users who did not read carefully would see, in large font, a headline reading "Background Questions on Sources for News" as well as another large, bold question: "From which of these sources have you received information in the past month?" A series of check-box options were provided (e.g., local newspaper, local TV news). Subjects reading carefully, however, were instructed not to check any of the boxes, but instead to type "123" into the text box provided. The results presented in this Article are based only on the "good" subjects, i.e. those subjects who were paying attention.

As mentioned in the main text, after receiving one of the experimental prompts chosen at random all subjects were then asked the same question taken as previously utilized in published polls conducted by NBC News/The Wall Street Journal: "Do you think the war in Afghanistan against the Taliban and Al Qaeda has been very successful, somewhat successful, somewhat unsuccessful, or very unsuccessful?"

We employed this measure of public support for the Afghan War for both theoretical and practical reasons. First, a large literature has argued that popular belief about whether or not a military operation is succeeding is the linchpin of public support for war.[257] Second, this question wording, with its explicit reference to the Taliban and Al Qaeda, has consistently generated higher levels of public support for the war than alternative question wordings in national polls. It is important to emphasize that, if anything, our experimental study is biased against finding any effects for casualty information on support for the war. After more than a dozen years of fighting, most Americans have made up their mind on the conflict and are unlikely to be swayed by a modest prompt of new information about the conflict and its costs. If we had conducted this experiment earlier in the war when public opinion was more malleable, we would expect stronger effects. As such, selecting a question wording that produces the strongest levels of ex ante support for the war affords the best estimates of the potential influence of fatal and non-fatal casualty information on war support.

255. A filter employed after data collection allowed for the experiment to exclude from the dataset subjects with duplicate IP addresses.

256. See Daniel M. Oppenheimer et al., Instructional Manipulation Checks: Detecting Satisficing to Increase Statistical Power, 45 J. EXPERIMENTAL SOC. PSYCHOL. 867, 867–68 (2009) (describing a filter in which subjects must carefully read instructions which, counter to the boldface headline above the instructions, tell subjects not to actually click on an answer to the question).

The main text presents basic difference in means results. However, to insure the robustness of our results, we also estimated an ordered logit regression model to assess the influence of each of our experimental treatments on beliefs about the war's success, controlling for each individual respondent's demographic characteristics.

The ordered logit model allows us to use our question's full four-point answer range (very successful; somewhat successful; somewhat unsuccessful; very unsuccessful) as the dependent variable, with higher values equaling a more positive assessment of the war and its progress. Our main independent variables of interest are indicators for assignment to each experimental treatment, with treatment 1 (KIA information only) being the omitted baseline category.[258] This allows us to see examine whether the three non-fatal casualties treatments and the final treatment presenting both fatal and non-fatal casualty information raised or lowered war support above the KIA treatment baseline. Finally, our ordered logit model includes a number of standard demographic controls includ-

257. See, e.g., CHRISTOPHER GELPI, PETER D. FEAVER & JASON REIFLER, PAYING THE HUMAN COSTS OF WAR: AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION AND CASUALTIES IN MILITARY CONFLICTS (2009).

258. As discussed in the text, the experiment also had a control group that received no information about the number of fatal or non-fatal Afghan War casualties. The coefficient for the variable identifying assignment to the control group is positive but not statistically significant. The only significant differences are between the KIA treatments and the WIA treatments.

ing each respondent's gender, race, and age, partisan affiliation, educational attainment, and two measures of religious affiliation.[259] The results are presented in Table A4.

Even after controlling for a host of individual-level factors that might affect Americans' assessment of progress in the war in Afghanistan, we continue to find a significant gulf between those informed of the number of Americans who have died in Afghanistan compared to those told only about the number of American soldiers wounded in the war. The coefficient for our WIA treatment (17,674 soldiers with physical wounds) is positive and statistically significant. Subjects in this treatment were significantly more likely to judge the war a success than those who learned the total number of American soldiers killed in Afghanistan. The coefficients for the two additional wounded treatments providing either a much larger estimated number of non-fatal casualties (treatment 3) or this number with a brief explanation about the "invisible" wounds of war (treatment 4) are also positive, and not significantly different from the WIA coefficient. Finally, the coefficient for treatment 5, which informed subjects of both the number of fatal-casualties and gave them the full accounting of non-fatal casualties is significantly smaller than both the WIA coefficient and the coefficient for treatment 4, which provided subjects exactly the same information except for the number of KIAs in the war.[260] Thus, the ordered logit regression analysis yields the same conclusion as the simple assessment of differences in means: fatal casualties have a significantly greater impact on popular assessments of the war in Afghanistan than non-fatal casualties.

259. Roughly three quarters of our sample identified as being Catholic, Protestant, or having no religion. Of the remaining quarter, the vast majority identified as "other," with only four percent of the entire sample identifying as Jewish or Muslim. Catholics and atheists were the only two groups whose war assessments differed from others, on average.

260. Wald tests confirm that the coefficient for treatment 5 is significantly smaller than the coefficient for treatment 4, p = .06.

Appendix Table A4. Results from Ordered Logit Analysis of Beliefs about Afghan War Success

No casualty information	0.362
	(0.348)
WIA (17,674)	0.677
	(0.338)
Total wounded (217,674)	0.328
	(0.327)
Total wounded + PTSD note	0.479
	(0.378)
KIA (2,312) + Total wounded + PTSD note	-0.182
	(0.365)
Republican	0.370
	(0.293)
Democrat	0.107
	(0.236)
Male	0.297
	(0.216)
Age	-0.007
	(0.009)
College graduate	0.102
	(0.221)
White	-0.469*
	(0.272)
Atheist	-0.773
	(0.259)
Catholic	0.770
	(0.296)
Observations	337

Notes on Table A4: Robust standard errors are reported in parentheses. All significance tests are two-tailed, and significance is indicated as follows:  $p<0.01$,  $p<0.05$, * $p<0.10$

Logic from the Supreme Court that May Recognize Positive Constitutional Rights

PHILLIP M. KANNAN*

I. INTRODUCTION: BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE 638
II. ANALYSES OF BAZE V. REES AND GLOSSIP V. GROSS 642
III. THE PRINCIPLE FROM BAZE AND GLOSSIP: A CONSTITUTIONAL END IMPLIES THE EXISTENCE OF CONSTITUTIONAL MEANS TO REALIZE THE END 645
IV. THE ARGUMENT USED TO ESTABLISH THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE IS ANALOGOUS TO THE LOGIC APPLIED BY THE COURT TO RECOGNIZE UN-ENUMERATED CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS IN GRISWOLD V. CONNECTICUT 646
V. A SUPREME COURT DECISION WHICH SUPPORTS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE 648
VI. AN ONGOING STRUGGLE THAT COULD LEAD TO A TEST CASE FOR THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE 650
VII. CONCLUSION 657

"Man has the fundamental right to freedom, equality and adequate conditions of life, in an environment of a quality [that is, the necessary means] that permits a life of dignity and well-being, [that is, to a protected right]. . . ."[1]

* Distinguished Lecturer and Legal-Scholar-in-Residence, Colorado College.

1. U.N. Conference on the Human Environment, Declaration of the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment (June 16, 1972), http://www.unep.org/Documents.Multilingual/Default.asp?documentid=97&articleid=1503 [hereinafter Stockholm Declaration].

I. INTRODUCTION: BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE

Professor Christopher Serkin recently characterized the general understanding of the nature of rights protected by the United States Constitution as follows: "The Constitution is typically thought to create only negative rights--rights that constrain the government from acting in certain proscribed ways."[2] This is especially true in the judicial branch;[3] however, as the discussion below demonstrates, the United States Supreme Court ("the Court" or "Supreme Court") might be prepared to recognize tightly constrained positive constitutional rights.[4]

In an earlier article, I argued that the Constitution does recognize and protect positive rights and, in fact, that the positive right-negative right dichotomy is illusory.[5] What appears to be a negative right can be rearticulated into what appears to be a positive right[6] and vice versa.[7]

A recent Supreme Court case exemplifies the illusory nature of this distinction. In McCullen v. Coakley,[8] the Court stated the issue to be decided as follows: "Petitioners are individuals who approach and talk to women outside [abortion clinics], attempting to dissuade them from having abortions. The statute prevents petitioners from doing so near the facilities' entrances. The

2. Christopher Serkin, Passive Takings: The State's Affirmative Duty to Protect Property, 113 MICH. L. REV. 345, 346 (2014).

3. See, e.g., DeShaney v. Winnebago Cty. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 489 U.S. 189, 204 (1989) (Brennan, J., dissenting) ("The Court's baseline is the absence of positive rights in the Constitution and a concomitant suspicion of any claim that seems to depend on such rights. From this perspective, the DeShaneys' claim is first and foremost about inaction (the failure, here, of respondents to take steps to protect Joshua), and only tangentially about action (the establishment of a state program specifically designed to help children like Joshua)."); see also Jackson v. City of Joliet, 715 F.2d 1200, 1202 (7th Cir. 1983) ("[T]he Constitution is a charter of negative rather than positive liberties.").

4. See infra Part III.

5. See Phillip M. Kannan, But Who Will Protect Poor Joshua DeShaney, A Four-Year-Old Child with No Positive Due Process Rights?, 39 U. MEM. L. REV. 543, 545 (2009).

6. See id. at 568.

7. See id. at 567.

8. 134 S. Ct. 2518 (2014).

question presented is whether the statute violates the First Amendment."[9] This issue can be phrased in positive right language as: Must the state provide space on the public sidewalk in which the petitioners may approach and talk to women outside such facilities? It may also be phrased in negative rights terms as: May the state deny petitioners the right to approach and talk to women outside such facilities? The Court ultimately held that the state may not "clos[e] a substantial portion of a traditional public forum to all speakers."[10] The Court could have rephrased this as a positive right, namely, that the state must keep open an adequate portion of a traditional public forum to all speakers. A preference for the negative version is traditionally prevalent in court opinions; however, change may be on the horizon.

The Supreme Court may be moving away from its history of refusing to recognize and protect positive constitutional rights. The Court's opinion in the recent case Glossip v. Gross provides support for the existence of positive rights protected by the Constitution and for the illusory nature of distinguishing between positive and negative rights.[11]

Although there are no authoritative definitions of positive right and negative right, there are attempts to correlate negative rights with a prohibition or limitation of government action. Thus, the First Amendment provision that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech"[12] is held out as recognizing a negative right that only prohibits Congress from enacting legislation limiting the speech of persons protected by the Constitution. Under this interpretation, Congress would have no obligation to enable or facilitate free speech because imposing such a requirement would be seen as recognizing a positive right. Clearly, this understanding devalues the role of governments. Just as the United States government did not and could not constitutionally allow a mob in Little Rock, Arkansas, to use violence and intimidation to prevent African American children from attending a formerly all-

---

9. Id. at 2525.
10. Id. at 2541.
11. 135 S. Ct. 2726 (2015).
12. U.S. CONST. amend. I.

white high school,[13] the police could not stand idly by and allow a mob to beat a protestor who was attempting to burn an American flag.[14] People exercising their First Amendment right of free speech have a right to be protected from mobs that would silence them; otherwise, the right to free speech would be merely theoretical.

When one goes beyond the plain language of the Free Speech Clause and considers its functionality, it is clear that it is a positive, as well as a negative, right. Moreover, as I illustrated in my earlier article, rights that are articulated so as to appear to only be negative rights can be rephrased as positive rights.[15] In spite of the fact that the dichotomy of positive rights and negative rights is inconsistent with "the actual state of things,"[16] the Supreme Court and lower courts have continued to assume its existence and to give it legal significance.[17] The purpose of this Article is to demonstrate that the constitutional landscape may be changing. Perhaps the conservative members of the Court, the Justices who traditionally deny the existence of positive rights, are beginning to realize that the categorical rule against positive rights is detri-

13. See Cooper v. Aaron, 358 U.S. 1, 12 (1958) ("The next school day was Monday, September 23, 1957. The Negro children entered the high school that morning under the protection of the Little Rock Police Department and members of the Arkansas State Police. But the officers caused the children to be removed from the school during the morning because they had difficulty controlling a large and demonstrating crowd which had gathered at the high school. On September 25, however, the President of the United States dispatched federal troops to Central High School and admission of the Negro students to the school was thereby effected. Regular army troops continued at the high school until November 27, 1957. They were then replaced by federalized National Guardsmen who remained throughout the balance of the school year.") (citation omitted).

14. See Kannan, supra note 5, at 564 n.122 (referring to Cass R. Sunstein, A New Deal For Speech, 17 HASTINGS COMM. & ENT. L.J. 137, 145 (1994) (asserting that "positive dimensions" of the First Amendment "consist of a command to government to take steps to ensure that the system of free expression is not violated by legal rules giving too much authority to private [citizens]")).

15. Kannan, supra note 5, at 567–68.

16. This is a phrase used often by Chief Justice John Marshall to focus attention on the actual facts from which the case arose and the context in which they exist. See, e.g., Johnson v. M'Intosh, 21 U.S. 543, 591 (1823); Worcester v. Georgia, 31 U.S. 515, 520, 543, 546 (1832).

17. See Kannan, supra note 5, at 587–92.

mental to some important constitutional doctrines they favor. For example, in the majority opinion written by Justice Alito and joined by Chief Justice Roberts and Justices Scalia, Kennedy, and Thomas (the conservative wing of the Court) in Glossip v. Gross,[18] the Supreme Court stated a major premise, on which it ultimately relied for its holding, which is more consistent with "the actual state of things," namely, that there are "positive" rights protected by the Constitution.

To develop the argument supporting this conclusion, Part II analyzes Glossip v. Gross and the case on which it is based, Baze v. Rees.[19] Part III then constructs an argument which concludes that the principle from Baze and Glossip is that a constitutional end implies existence of constitutional means to realize the end, and that the means at times will be positive rights. Part IV demonstrates that the argument developed in Part III is analogous to and consistent with the logic the Court used in Griswold v. Connecticut to recognize a constitutional right of privacy.[20] Part V analyzes and discusses District of Columbia v. Heller,[21] a case that arguably recognizes and applies the general principle developed in this Article.[22] Part VI summarizes the struggle over abortion rights and posits the role the general principle advocated in this Article may play in that struggle. Part VII concludes that in addition to inherent rights and peripheral-penumbral rights that have been recognized by the Supreme Court as emanating from enumerated rights, there are rights that are the necessary means for achieving protected rights.

---

