

11th Annual Ida B. Wells Philosophical Conference

Friday, April 20, 2018

9:00 am – 9:10 am	Introductory Remarks: John R. Torrey
9:10 am – 10:10 am	Student Presentation: Cameron Evans – “The Color and Complexity of Ignorance”
10:20 am – 11:20 am	Student Presentation: Ashton Toone – ‘She made angry Black woman something that people would want to be’: Lemonade and Black women as audiences and subjects”
11:30 am – 12:30 pm	Student Presentation: Keith Matier, “Against Democratic Agrarianism”
12:30 pm – 2:00 pm	Lunch at Garibaldi’s
2:00 pm – 2:50 pm	Student Presentation: Stephanie Butera – “Thinking ‘Through’ Difference: Badiou, Black Feminism, and Political Subjectivization”
3:00 pm – 5:00 pm	Closing Keynote: Melvin Rogers – “Race, Domination, and Republicanism”

*All speaking sessions will be held in the Fogelman Executive Center Room 219

We must express our appreciation for the great support that has been given to this conference by the faculty, graduate students and staff of The University of Memphis Philosophy Department.

Specifically, we would like to thank Dr. Luvell Anderson for supporting this conference for the last several years. Additionally, we would like to thank Department Chair Dr. Mary Beth Mader for her support for this conference. Additionally, we would like to thank Connie Diffie and Cathy Wilhelm for their unbelievably amazing efforts in making this conference possible.