

Seeking: Communications & Campaign Interns
Time: Spring 2019

Are you interested in getting hands-on experience implementing a full-scale communications and public engagement campaign? Do you have what it takes to navigate through complex issues to get your client to a win?

Caissa Public Strategy, LLC is a full-service communications firm looking for interns this coming Spring for several large-scale public relations campaigns. This high-speed, exciting internship will offer you the ability to have real, hands-on experience in executing large-scale public relations and communications campaigns.

Interns will have the opportunity to prepare key messages for print, video and online media, participate in grassroots/grass tops outreach efforts, and work with the local press on garnering earned media. Participants will work with project leaders to develop strategy, support information flow to clients, and write engaging copy across multiple platforms.

Responsibilities may include, managing client reputation, working on strategic, cohesive external and internal communications or managing large-scale, high visibility projects.

Skills/Traits Needed:

- Flexibility with job assignments
- Proficiency in Microsoft Office Applications and Google Suite
- Skilled in organization, teamwork & time management
- Ability to communicate effectively and professionally (verbal and written)
- Proficiency in creative and persuasive writing

Suggested Majors:

Communications, Political Science, Public Relations, Journalism, English, and Marketing

This internship is unpaid and can be used for class credit. Hours will be based on availability. Please submit resumes to info@caissaps.com by December 15th, 2018.
