Currently Open DoD BAAs (July 2020)

Introduction

This list is an extensive list of currently open DoD BAAs as of July 2020. This list isn't comprehensive, although this contains the majority of DoD BAAs that can and do fund academic research.

The list of DoD BAAs is split into three different tranches: 1) Primary DoD BAAs for Academic Researchers, 2) Secondary DoD BAAs for Academic Researchers, and 3) Other DoD BAAs. I recommend reviewing the Primary DoD BAAs before reviewing the BAAs listed in the Secondary DoD BAAs. The BAAs listed in the other DoD BAAs list are also an option; however, many of those BAAs focus on niche research areas or more advanced research.

When looking for the most up-to-date version of the BAA, please look for the BAAs listed under the most recently posted, or updated, BAA under the "Related Documents" tab.

Lastly, this list and the relevant links are accurate as of July 15, 2020. Eventually all the BAAs listed here will expire and new BAAs will be posted. Therefore, please don't view this list as being accurate in perpetuity.

Next Steps

- Review the list of DoD BAAs, as well as the Webinar #1 and #2 slides.
- Identify 2-3 research programs and program managers that you align with your research interests.
- Use language from the BAAs to align your concept with the DoD's research interests.
- REMEMBER: You'll need to tailor your research interests to fit the scope and goals of the DoD research program.
- Please send updated concept papers and the research programs you're interested in by July 28th.

Note: for those of you that submitted a concept paper, I will review the DoD BAAs for you and will match DoD programs to your concept.
