Black Memphis History

THROUGH DANCE AND THEATRE

THE UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS

Department of Theatre & Dance
The University of Memphis Department of Theatre & Dance joins theatres nationwide in Jubilee: A year-long celebration of performances generated by individuals that have been historically excluded from our country's stages.
Memphis Massacre 1866 (Prayer, Discord, Meditation)

Choreographer: Wayne M. Smith in collaboration with the dancers
Dancers: Taylor Jackson, Abbie Martin, Takia Miller and Summer Rowe
Music (composer): Music & sound collage including artists Xumantra, Art of Noise, Ryuichi Sakamoto, The Fink, Michael Wall
Location: Amphitheater in between the Theatre Building and the Music Building

Choreographer notes: This piece commemorates those that struggled, fought, suffered and were brutally killed during a violent massacre of Black people due to racism, bigotry, hate & violence in Memphis in 1866. During that time in Memphis, Black folks & families had become established as a prominent ethnic or social class just after the end of the American Civil War. These people were unjustly singled out, attacked, shot & had their properties burned by angry white men (mostly Irish immigrants, some of the culprits police & fireman). The four dancers in this piece represent deities (north, south, east, west) who descend from the heavens to offer prayers of healing in Memphis through movement meditations. They dance for all the innocent lives that perished during that needless bloodshed, devastation and loss.

America the Beautiful, A Tribute to the Activism of Ida B. Wells

Director: Jamie Warrow
Cast: Ida B Wells: Ashley Clinton
Voice of Ida B. Wells: Madisen White
Location: Muted bells statue outside of CFA

Director notes: Ida B. Wells, a Memphis native, was a powerful voice against the brutality of lynching and the lawlessness of mob rule. Her eloquent and effective writing appeared in Memphis papers. The text in this piece was compiled from two of Ida B. Wells' published articles: Lynch Law in All Its Phases published on February 13, 1893 and Free Speech, an Editorial dated May 21,1892. Ida was out of town when it was published. Pushback against the article was so severe that Ida was exiled from Memphis. America the Beautiful, A Tribute to the Activism of Ida B. Wells was inspired by her bravery to speak out against brutality, lawlessness, and racism.

Wait for 3 (or me!)

Choreographer: Rachael Arnwine, in collaboration with the dancers
Dancers: Taylor Jackson, Takia Miller and Ivy Wetherill
Musical Arranger of W.C. Handy's Work: Jacob Loreant
Alto Sax: Becca Tank
Tenor Sax: Franko Coleman
Location: Outside the library (to the right of Dunavant Plaza)

Choreographer notes: W.C. Handy, known as the "Father of the Blues," spent much of his career playing in clubs on Beale Street in the 1910s. His piece "The Memphis Blues" is credited as the inspiration for the dance in which we know today as the Foxtrot, which would be danced in between the fast-paced Castle Walk and One-step.
Memphis State Eight: I Am Because of You

Choreographer: Michael Medcalf and the dancers
Other Voices: Simmery Branch (BFA ’19), Blake Currie (BFA ’19), Jada Farmer, Jatavius Haynes, Tony Horne (MFA ’99), Akia Miller (BFA ’18) and Tekay King
Music: Michael Wall
Text: Dancers in the Cast
Location: Front of the Administration Building
Choreographer notes: Through movement, dialogue, and text, I tried to use the history of the Memphis State Eight as a way to deepen our current students understanding of the Eight’s legacy.

Sanitation Strike

Choreographer: Jorge Guaman
Dancers: Catherine Barkley, Connor Chaparro, Pershon Harper, Tiffany Goddard, Aiyanna LaRue, Charlye Murrell and Kennedy Reed
Other Voices: Simmery Branch (BFA ’19), Blake Currie (BFA ’19), Jada Farmer, Jatavius Haynes, Tony Horne (MFA ’99), Tekay King and Akia Miller (BFA ’18)
Music: Original composition by DeAnte Payne (University of Memphis School of Music) in collaboration with Jorge Guaman
Location: Outside Mitchel Hall

Panel of American Women - Fanning Flames, Forging Futures

Choreographer: Jill Guyton Nee and Dancers
Dancers: Catherine Barkley, Grace Byrd, Tiffany Goddard and Aiyanna LaRue
Sound Score: Jill Guyton Nee
Location: Pedestrian Bridge
Choreographer notes: The Panel of American Women Memphis chapter was a group of southern women who publicly voiced their opinions by speaking out against intolerance and racism. Having formed the P.A.W. chapter in the 1960’s, and becoming prominent voices in the 1970’s, these women shocked a segregated Memphis by demonstrating their interracial friendships, and openly welcoming other women from different races and religions. Before joining the panel, one had to face her own biases and prejudices - the hard work forged friendships to last a lifetime, and a respect and value of others beyond one’s traditional beliefs.

The quartet of women in Fanning Flames, Forging Futures represent the four women who would sit on a panel two to three times a week to speak to the public. The dancers use the partition barriers as a table, divider, and leading pathway in which to meet, discuss, argue, and negotiate. We must push against one another to push forward, and we must challenge one another’s beliefs of history to write a future that creates space for everyone at the table. We are grateful to the women of the Memphis P.A.W. “Their lives are inextricably woven into the fabric that is Memphis.” - Carolyn McAtee Cerbin, USA Today

Meet the Choreographers

Rachael Arnwine (she/her) is a Memphis native and graduate of the University of Memphis. She holds Master of Science in Exercise, Sport, & Movement Sciences, a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Theater with a concentration in Dance, and a Bachelor of Science degree in Health & Human Performance with a concentration in Exercise, Sport, & Movement Sciences. Her specific interests lie within dance science, bridging dance with kinesiology and research in injury mechanism. In her time at the U of M, she served as President of the University of Memphis Dance Alliance, the student organization for dance on campus, and has performed in and choreographed for the department’s seasonal dance concerts. She has extensive training in jazz, ballet, tap, modern, musical theatre dance, and flamenco. Rachael has performed with Opera Memphis, Hot Foot Honeys, Raciné + Southern Dance Exchange, the Moscow Ballet, and Carnival Cruise Lines. She has performed in music videos for artists such as Julien Baker and Brennan Villines. She is a certified member of the Southern Association of Dance Masters in ballet and jazz, as well as the International Association of Dance Medicine & Science where she is a published author in the Journal of Dance Medicine & Science. In addition to being an adjunct professor in the Department of Theatre & Dance at the University of Memphis, she is a dance instructor at local studios in the Memphis community.

Jorge Guaman (he/him) is a 2020 spring graduate of the University of Memphis. With a Bachelors in Fine Arts in Theatre with a concentration in Dance he is incredibly excited to have been invited as this year’s guest artist. During his time at the U of M he performed in every dance concert, choreographed in three student productions, and worked with many guest artists. Taking what he learned at the U of M, he hopes to travel the nation and be granted the opportunity to study under many renowned companies. He currently lives back at home in Nashville where he is a ballroom instructor for World Champion Productions and is continuously furthering his knowledge in the genre under many great mentors. “If there is anything that I have learned through dance and at my time at the U of M is that there isn’t a wrong answer when it comes to dance, you chose to be the artist you want to be, and not conform to be the dancer you think you have to be.” He wants to personally thank all of his past professors and friends who have helped him through his college career for shaping him into the artists he has currently become and for seeing so much in him whenever he thought he wasn’t good enough. Through kind spirits and hard work, anything is possible.

Moises Hinojos (he/him) is a second-year MFA directing candidate. He comes from El Paso, TX and received his BFA in Scenic Design at The University of New Mexico. Moy has been working in theater for over a decade as an actor, designer, technical director and director. His most recent work includes playing the role of Reverend Brown in Inherit the Wind and directing The Diaries of Adam and Eve by Mark Twain. He would like to thank his amazing cast and incredibly dedicated crew and production team for their talent, their creativity, and their trust. www.moyhinojos.com

Kristen Osborne Lucas (she/her) holds an MFA in dance from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro as well as a BFA and K-12 teaching license in dance. Her teaching experience includes the University of Memphis, Project Motion: A Memphis Modern Dance Collective, Charleston County School of the Arts, High Point University, Forsyth County Public Schools, University of North Carolina-Greensboro, Now and Next Dance Mentorship Project, North Carolina Dance Theater, North Carolina Dance Project, the YMCA, NC Families United, and a variety of private dance studios. Her choreographic work has been performed at various venues throughout North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, such as the Asheville Fringe Festival, Greenhill Art Gallery, Greensboro Fringe Festival, Piccolo Spoleto Festival, Southeastern Women’s Studies Association, and locally at the University of Memphis and Crosstown Arts. She has completed step 1 and step 2 advanced training through the Dance for PD® organization with the Mark Morris Dance Group and co-teaches a weekly dance for Parkinson's class at Ballet Memphis. When not teaching and dancing, she spends her time wrangling her two little girls.

Michael Medcalf (he/him) is in his third year as an Assistant Professor of Dance at the University of Memphis. In 2013, he graduated from the University of Iowa with an MFA degree in Dance. Medcalf has been a company member of several dance companies throughout the country including the Cleo Parker Robinson Dance Ensemble, Dancing Wheels, Verb Ballets, his own endeavors Cleveland Contemporary Dance Theatre, and the Greene/Medcalf Movement Project amongst others. As a choreographer, Medcalf has been commissioned for the concert stage, musical theatre, film, television, and opera. As a dance instructor, Medcalf has taught workshops and masterclasses at professional studios and private institutions throughout North America, Europe, Asia, and Africa.

Jill Guyton Nee (BA, BS, MFA) (she/her) is an Assistant Professor and Head of Dance at University of Memphis. She is a native of North Carolina, where she worked full-time at American Dance Festival, performed for various companies. She received her Master of Fine Arts in Dance from The Ohio State University. Her work has been presented in throughout the United States and Thailand. Creatively, she has worked with several distinguished choreographers including Mark Dendy, David Dorfman, Bebe Miller, Susan Hadley, Gaspard Louis, and Erin Carlisle Norton. She choreographs for the Memphis community and her company, CJ40 Productions.

Wayne M. Smith (he/him) is a native Memphian, adjunct dance professor & alum of the University of Memphis Theatre & Dance. He holds an MFA in Dance from the Ohio State University, and a BFA in Theatre/Dance (minor Mathematics) from the University of Memphis. Wayne is an independent professional dance artist, improviser and educator. He is a member of Project: Motion Dance Collective, professional dance company in Memphis. Additionally, he is a lead ensemble member of Playback Memphis, an improvisational interactive theatre performance & social justice company. Wayne also teaches and choreographs with Company d, a dance & performance organization in Memphis for dancers with Downs Syndrome.
